DANVERS COURIER.

VOL. I. SATURDAY MORNING, MARCH 15, 1845. NUMBER 1.

POETRY.

☞ The following beautiful lines we take from the St. Louis Reveille. They fall upon the heart, like melancholy music—or like the mellowed rays of the departing sun—sadly and tenderly, [Boston Courier.

"She never told her love,
But let concealment, like a worm i' the bud,
Feed on her damask cheek; she pined in thought
And with a green and yellow melancholy
She sat, like Patience on a monument,
Smiling at grief. Was not this love indeed?"

FANNY.

Fanny was seventeen,
All full of beauty as a blooming rose,
Winning, bewitching, reigning o'er the beaux,
A Fairy Queen.

But all unconsciously
She scattered smiles, like kindling darts around her,
And all, alike, the same sweet being found her,
Simple and free.

Love lives in all things bright;
And Fanny loved already, but she ne'er
Had whispered of her passion, save in prayer
To the still night.

A strange and silent boy
Gazed distantly on Fanny, and there came Into her heart a fond and holy flame,
Breathing of joy.

But he was sad in youth,
Nor ever gave he token to the maid
Of passion, in like holiness repaid,
With heart and truth.

Time rolled, and Fanny grew
To share the sadness of the dreaming boy,
And joy in her sad dreaming—the alloy
Was pleasure too.

While still around her hung
A throng of glittering rivals, none were chosen;
And that one burning heart still held a frozen
And silent tongue.

Like the volcanic fire
That smothers 'neath a pyramid of snow,
So in imprisoned torment seemed to glow
The youth's desire.

Time rolled—and came a day
When Fanny for the first time went alone,
For he on whom her wealth of love was thrown
Had roamed away.

O, he was poor and proud,
And could not, would not mingle with the crew
That daily to the feet of Fanny flew,
With tongues so loud.

Fanny had ever been
Of tender moulding, and within her eyes
Light flashed and faded, as the sunbeam dies,
Gorgeous at e'en.

Now grew upon her cheek
A most strange coldness and a stranger bloom,
That deepened still, while smaller spot of room
It seemed to seek.

Time rolled—and one by one
Fanny's rejected lovers dropped away,
And she was lonely, and no longer gay,
For HE was gone!

Slowly the years rolled by,
And Fanny, like some silent floral thing,
Fading too early in its native spring.
Bent down to die.

Still dreamingly she loved,
And muttered, voiceless, to each passing bird,
Asking what news was of the wanderer heard,
Or where he roved!

But the youth came no more;
And Fanny's history was early told:
Still rapidly she faded on—time rolled—
And Fanny died!

When first her cheek was pale,
Some wondered, and some pitied, but none knew,
As cold consumption struck her bosom through,
Of this sad tale.

Time's scythe was still on wave,
Years after, when an old man bent and wept,
And sighed away his life, and soundly slept
On Fanny's grave.

PHAZMA.

SELECTED TALES.

MY TRIAL FOR MY OWN MURDER.

"Run for officers;
Let him be apprehended with all speed;
For fear he 'scape away; lay hands on him.
We cannnot be too sure—'tis wilful murder!"

MIDDLETON.

I verily believe if any man could look into the Sybilline leaf of the future and catch a glimpse of the various vicissitudes and misfortunes with which he must struggle, he would turn sharply round, and seek the nearest course short of suicide, to rid himself of those trials which might shake his manhood; and so, give up all the sunshine of existence to avoid its showers. Fortunately, however, man has not the privilege of foreknowledge, a faculty which few would have the courage to render serviceable, and which most would convert into an engine of misery and affliction.

With what exquisite heart-throbbings we look backwards upon the first twenty or thirty years of our existence, and in retrospective enjoyment brood over those halcyon days (for we all have had our halcyon days,) when the heart was expanding with over-new emotions, omnipotent and all-absorbing. I, indeed, have enjoyed many halcyon days, and often, very often have I reviewed them with increased delight. But I spoke of vicissitudes and misfortunes at the commencement of this paper, and the general observation I then made was drawn from me with reference to one misfortune of my life, perhaps, one of the severest, certainly the most singular, that can befall any man. I was doomed to suffer one overwhelming evil, which stands amidst the events of an otherwise happy life, like a barren and dreary spot, surrounded by the greenest verdure and the most fragrant flowers.

"Oh! the unerring hand of justice and retribution!" says the moralist, when his mind is harrowed by hearing the detail of crime and wickedness. "The unerring hand of justice and retribution," says he—good man—"will sooner or later overtake the culprit:"—and in truth, it not unfrequently happens that it will cry aloud from its hiding place, "with most miraculous organ." I am a moralist, and oftentimes has my mind been harrowed by the detail of crime and wickedness, and I, too, have often exclaimed, "oh! the unerring hand of justice and retribution!"—but my cry has now become—"oh" the erring hand of justice and retribution!"

Justice has indeed been truly painted blind, and a very expressive portrait she makes in that way.

If not really blind, justice is certainly, in some cases, near-sighted or short-sighted, as some people call it; and this same blindness, or short-sightedness of justice, very nearly placed my neck within the grasp of the merciless legal halter. I cannot now endure the sight of a blind man with a rope—they are both images repulsive to my mind—even a field sown with hemp-seed, smells like poison to me.

In what language shall I attempt to explain (so as to be intelligible to my readers, or to such of them as have been accustomed to live in quiet, at a respectful distance from the reach of ropes and halters,) the nature of that charge by which the bungling and erring hand of justice overtook me. The facts are almost incredible——perhaps—but no: I will put a truce to all surmise: I was accused, imprisoned, prosecuted, and all but condemned to the gallows—but I am innocent, in the face of the world, I solemnly protest, I am innocent—for my own murder!—Yes, gentle (and I trust, now still gentler) reader, I, who am at this moment telling the painful story, have been actually accused, imprisoned, and prosecuted, and saw the halter swinging over my head, with retributory menace, for the crime of my own murder.

A wanderer by nature, as well as by necessity, I had for many years been absent from my native land, seeking to gratify my love of variety, in situation and society, and to amass, by my own diligence, those golden qualifications without which a man stands but a poor chance of being looked upon in the world. The first of these objects I accomplished to my heart's content; but as to the second, I fell far short of my hopes, and returned very nearly as poor as I went; for, except a few hundred pounds, invested in merchandise, I set my foot on British ground, with about fifty dollars and a few English coins, and these—for safer custody—I carried in my pocket.

Necessity had taught me economy, and therefore, instead of indulging myself with the accommodation of a stage coach, to make my way to the metropolis, I commenced my journey as a humble pedestrian. Having travelled in this way many miles, I stopped at a mean inn by the way-side to refresh myself, and was soon seated amongst the motley group of the usual hangers-on at such places of resort. Finding that, about two miles further on the road, I should arrive at a small market town, where accommodation for the night, of a much more convenient nature, could be procured, I resolved, after having sufficiently rested myself, to make my way thither to seek a place of repose.

On producing my purse to pay the demands of the host, I took out casually two or three of my dollars, and laid them on the table, surrounded by the boors of the village, who were attracted by the sight of coin so unfamiliar to their eyes; and to satisfy their curiosity, I showed them their relative value. During this proceeding, a greedy-eyed, ill-looking fellow, seemed to fix his eyes on me and my purse, in a way not the most pleasing to me.

Many men are fond of having their purses examined and admired by others; but I have lived long enough in the world to believe that no eyes are so fitting to examine such an object as those of its possessor.

I soon took my departure, and proceeded leisurely onwards to the place of my destination. The evening began to draw to a close; and arriving at a dull part of the road, overhung by high banks, covered with furze and briers, I found myself, in an instant stunned by a blow, administered by some one behind me, the effect of which soon disabled me from making any attempt to protect myself against further violence of my brutal assailant. I sank exhausted and senseless.

When I recovered my consciousness, for I could hardly deem myself sensible, I discovered I was bleeding copiously from my nose, and lying in a wet ditch half drowned, apparently in my own blood, which made a great show, mingled with the water. A country man was leaning over and humanely endeavoring to assist me. I felt in nearly a lifeless condition, although no actual fracture had succeeded the blow; and while my good Samaritan was deliberating what to do, I lay motionless, and, to his apprehension, certainly dead; for I heard him say he would go and find a doctor, but he could do no good, for all was over with me.

For this humane purpose he left me just as he found me.

It was then nearly dark, and I resolved to rouse myself, and endeavor to pursue my walk for the short distance that remained. With considerable effort I roused myself from my muddy resting-place, and found my clothes, which were none of the best, wet through and through, and being scarcely worth the carriage, I thought it best to leave them behind me, and soon equipped myself in another suit, which I carried in my knapsack.

I washed myself as well as I could, and put the best face on the matter. I recollected the ill-looking fellow, who had cast his amorous glances on my dollars, and singled him out as the perpetrator of the crime; but I was rejoiced to find that his obvious intentions had been defeated, and I carried off my purse of dollars in triumph, congratulating myself heartily on my narrow escape.

I pursued my walk to the market town, and soon arrived at the inn. I had scarcely taken my seat, still suffering from the blow I had received, before I overheard an indistinct conversation amongst several men, stationed at the other end of the room, accompanied by expressive looks, directed towards me. Knowing myself to be a perfect stranger in the place, this did not excite my surprise.

The conversation soon became louder and more distinct, and, at length, I heard a strangely exaggerated account of my own murder. It was confidently asserted that a stranger had been robbed and murdered a short distance from the town, and that he had been found by a labourer in a ditch, with his skull fractured, his brains scattered about the road, and his pockets turned inside out. I listened to this marvellous history with great amusement, thinking how easily a strange story is made to pass current, grounded on the slightest facts.

Having taken some refreshment I ordered my bed, and being an entire stranger, I chose to pay for both before I retired for the night, and again produced my purse, containing my dollars and other money. At this juncture an inquisitive looking old man came up to me and looked at my dollars, and then fixing his eyes on my face, turned round to his companions, and with significant gesture, whispered, "there's blood on this man's face—he has got some dollars—where did he come from—who is he?" This excited a general sensation. a pause ensued, and all seemed "at fault," as the sportsmen say. The inquisitive old man again approached me, and asked me in a significant manner, whether he did not just now see some dollars in my possession? I replied in the affirmative, and produced one or two. He turned bluntly round to his companions, and put his finger cunningly up to his nose. He then renewed the attack, and asked me where I had procured them? whether there were many to be met in this country? and a variety of other questions, all of which I answered carelessly—not much pleased with the old man's impertinence.

He then, for the first time, observed aloud to me, with a look of scrutiny, that I had some blood on my face. To this observation I replied as coolly as I did to his questions not choosing to gratify curiosity, and wishing to hear more of my own murder.

At this moment an addition was made to the company, by the arrival of a person who had been my good Samaritan, who found and left me in the ditch. He was full of his subject, and came to relate the "full, true and particular" account to his pot companions. He stated at length where and how he found a strange man in sailor's clothes, with his skull fractured, and his pockets turned inside out, and that he left him quite dead. He stated that he went for assistance to the village from whence I came, and on inquiring at the little public house, to learn whether I had been there, he described my person and dress, and discovered that I had rested and taken refreshment there, and, moreover, that I had a great many ing obtained assistance, he returned to the spot where he left the murdered stranger, but, instead of finding him, he discovered, that, during his absence, the body had been stripped and removed, and, as he believed, buried, and the clothes were lying scattered about on the brink of the ditch.

All this was highly amusing to me, and I resolved to let the story roll on, like a snow-ball, increasing with every step, without offering any explanation, until it should have arived at its climax.

Again I observed inquisitive looks cast on me, and the words "dollars" and "blood" were again whispered about. The old inquisitive man quietly left the room, and returned with an athletic, busy-looking man, who soon discovered himself to me as the constable of the parish; and without further ceremony, the old man gave me in charge to the constable, as being suspected of the murder. The constable proceeded to search me, and on producing my purse with dollars, the man who found the murdered stranger set up a shout, and charged the constable not to let me escape; and then fixing his eyes on the blood on my face, said, he was sure I was the murderer and robber, and he would tell all he knew upon his bible oath. I now found it was high time to speak in my defence, lest the joke, which I had relished so much, should be carried too far; but I learned, to my sorrow, that the joke had quite ceased, and that no assertion or explanation of mine could serve me one jot in proving my personal identity.

The consequence of all this, therefore, was a safe lodgment for the night in the cage, in full sight of the whip-post, and the county jail. Imagine my situation, ye who have been accustomed all your lives to be called honest men and women, and who have never known anything of the inside of the jail, or other place of durance, except through Mrs. Fry and Caleb Williams.

In this horrible condition I passed the night, deprived of my purse of dollars and other money, and with no other prospect before me than being treated as a criminal; yet I sometimes ventured to hope I should be enabled to explain the true state of the case, and exculpate myself before a reasonable and intelligent magistrate.

The morning dawned upon me through the grates of the cage, and my solitude was soon broken by the arrival of the constable the inquisitive looking old man, and my Samaritan friend. I was led out amidst an infuriated crowd, who were by no means sparing in their execrations, and was conducted after much peril, into the presence of the Justice.

As my supposed crime was of glaring and prominent nature, it was allowed to commence the business of the day. My accuser was placed before me, and in a blunt, straight-forward manner, told his story—how he was passing the road—how he found the stranger with a fractured skull, lying dead and covered with brains and blood—how he went for assistance, and on his return, found the clothes scattered about, and the body removed. My own dollars, and my own blood on my own face, were given in evidence against me; the story was made complete in all its parts, and the investigation ended in my committal to the county jail to take my trial at the next assizes, for the wilful murder of a person unknown, and the constable and his companions were ordered to make diligent search for the body. Shortly after my commitment, as if all circumstances conspired against me, the people, after an active search, succeeded in discovering the body of a strange person, almost in a state of nudity, in a canal, which ran along the back of the town, upon which the coroner sat in due form; and thus, to the satisfaction of my persecutors, a chain of evidence was made out sufficiently strong to put me on my trial.

Let those good people who preach so strongly in favour of the comfortable feelings arising from conscious innocence and build so much on inward fortitude, and who join in the declaration of the poet, that "whatever is, is right"—let them place themselves for a moment in my situation—let them feel the horrors of a man, charged with his own murder, and unable to convince his judges that he is actually in existence. How obtuse are the intellects of many worthy people, who, in the eager pursuit of truth, hug to their hearts any antic who may chance to assume the garb of that rarely discovered personage!

Already I fancied in my gloomy reflections, that I heard the jury declare me to be guilty, and in my dreams I saw the judge put on the fatal black cap, and begin to pass on me the awful sentence of the law. Then I fancied I heard my last dying speech and confession chaunted about the streets, to be sold for a halfpenny, and pasted on cottage walls, and children taught reading and the necessity of virtue from the same paper. Then the horrors of an ignominious death—the halter—the gallows—the populace—the murmurs of indignation—the shouts of "monster," "murderer," &c,—all echoing around me in my imagination. These were truly enough to drive me from my senses, and to render me incapable of supporting myself till the hour of trial.

From my childhood I had always accustomed myself to look on the gloomy side of things, and in this, my hour of distress, my brooding disposition was busier than ever. I sometimes began to question whether this was not all a dream, or whether I had not actually been murdered, and whether my present sufferings were not part of my punishment for the sins committed in my lifetime.

At length the assizes commenced, and in due course I was placed before the court to take my trial. Never shall I forget that moment. I was roused by it. My own conviction of my personal identity was complete; but would it avail me any thing? The story on which I had to depend was nothing in the face of the evidence to be adduced. Was such an improbable story to be believed? Should I be allowed to sit up myself as the murdered man, when the witness saw him lying dead, and the body was afterwards found in the canal? It was contrary to common sense, and would, of course, be looked upon as the desperate attempt of a hardened villain to baffle the character or condition—I was alone—friendless, and the public clamour loud against me. My own dollars were more eloquent than the prosecuting counsel.

My trial proceeded. Oh! how the opening speech went to my heart! The audience shuddered as they heard the glaring facts; and oh! what looks of horror and reproach were cast at me; prejudice, with her myriad ears, was gaping on, and gulping down the plausible story. The witnesses gave their evidence with clearness and precision. The landlord of the little public house, where I first stopped, was called to prove his having seen the dollars in the possession of the murdered man when at his house. During all the previous proceedings, this man had never before looked at me face to face; but when he was confronted with me, he gave an involuntary start, and seemed unable to utter a syllable. He fixed his eyes intensely on me, and pointed to his wan cheek, and stammered out, "He is not guilty! he is not guilty!"—Hearing this exclamation, and seeing him point to his cheek, I remembered I had a large scar on my own, from a sabre wound I received years before; and when the witness had regained his composure, he proceeded to identify me as the man who came to his house, in a sailor's dress, with a purse of dollars, on the evening of the supposed murder, and asserted that I could be none other than the supposed victim of brutal violence. But the body found in the canal—had it a scar like mine on the cheek? No—the witnesses who found it remembered it had not. Hope dawned on me warmly enough. I was called on for my defence, and told my tale simply and composedly, and my heart beat calmly.

The judge summed up the evidence to the jury, and directed, as usual, that if there was any doubt, the prisoner should be entitled to the benefit of it. The jury obeyed the direction of the judge, and their verdict of "Not Guilty" alone afforded me the melancholy satisfaction of relating sufferings not to be found amongst the destinies of any other man in the world.

Some ill-natured people, notwithstanding the verdict, still believed me to be guilty, but the majority called me innocent; and while the newspapers were zealously arguing pro and con upon the question, I slipped myself off to America, where I am now living in tolerable ease, and no one has ever since ventured to dispute the point with me, whether I am alive or dead.

It seems from an account in the French newspapers, that the interest upon Louis Phillippe's fortune, is only fifty-five francs a minute. It is said that when Rothschild read this, he was so moved that he actually shed tears, "as he never could have believed there was such destitution in the world."

THE BRIDAL.

A TALE.

The tale which I am about to relate is a simple one—one of unfortunate love; and, like most other tales of that passion, will by many be thought common-place. Well, be it so; it matters not now to the subjects of it, whether the soft tear of sensibility falls like the dew-drop of the summer morn upon their memories, or whether the cool cynical sneer of worldly pride is brought forth on the countenances of those who read their brief but sorrowful story. Without further preface than mentioning their names, which were Edward and Mary, I shall proceed with their short history: for it matters not to record where they lived in trouble, nor where they now rest in peace.

Their walk was in that circle of life in which, generally, most happiness is found; the inmates of which are neither the victims of poverty, nor the votaries of the capricious goddess of fortune. They had been intimate from their childhood; the smile of innocent pleasure, and the tear of infantile sorrow, had reciprocally shone on their cheeks; as their years increased, friendship ripened into a stronger passion.

Edward though a young man of ability, was unfortunate in his prospects; and, after in vain endeavoring to better his circumstances at home, he went abroad, hoping in a short time to return with the means of supporting himself, and the object of his attachment, with comfort and respectability; but, by unavoidable circumstances, he was detained in a foreign country for a much longer period than he either intended or expected. At the commencement of their separation a correspondence had been established between them; but, from his being often obliged to change his residence, their letters unfortunately miscarried.

On his arrival in England he hastened to his betrothed bride, but was filled with consternation on finding her on a bed of sickness. He learnt also that the last surviving branch of her family, her mother, had died soon after Edward left home, and her two young sisters did not long survive their loss: it was only the hope of seeing him she loved once more, that kept her alive.

After the agitation caused by their meeting had subsided, her disorder assumed a more flattering turn; as is generally the case in consumption, only to make the stroke of death more heart-rending. It was spring, and Mary in a short time appeared so far recovered as to prepare to be united to her lover. They went, a happy pair to the village church;—the rose once more bloomed on her cheek; but the blossom, alas! was hectic—for the worm was at the heart. When the lovely and impressive service was over, she, who was the fairest flower that decked the bridal altar, sunk on her husband's bosom—gave one mild look of joy in his face, turned her meek eyes to Heaven, and fell asleep in that dread slumber which is only to be disturbed at the commencement of eternity."

Little more remains to be told:—the unfortunate Edward fell senseless on the steps of the altar, where, but a few moments before, he had knelt in happiness and gratitude. When he recovered from his trance, his friends discovered that reason had left her seat; but he was tranquil, and, after the funeral, he planted a myrtle-tree on his wife's grave, and spent his days [illegible] Towards the latter part of the summer, he did not return at his accustomed time in the evening. Search was made for him, and he was found lying lifeless on the grave—one hand grasping the only blossom of the myrtle, and the other a lock of his bride's hair, which he had obtained from her before he left his native shore.

A CEYLON LOVE QUARREL.

Campbell, in his adventures in Ceylon, says:—"I saw at Covegodde, what the people call a water fight, between, as they told me, two competitors for a dark-eyed maid; one of the lovers, the challenger, being highly exasperated by the pangs which the green-eyed monster, jealousy, generated in his heart. They both stood up to their knees in the lake, opposite to each other; and constantly dashed the water in a curious and expert manner into each other's faces.

I saw the combatants thus, I can scarcely say, hotly engaged, about nine in the morning, and at three in the afternoon, they were still hard at work, and the battle was then still doubtful—for according to established rules, whichever of the two warriors, no matter what may be the pretence or cause, stops first, if it be only for a moment, dashing water at his adversary, is considered to be vanquished.

Hundreds of people were looking on, apparently deeply interested in the result; as he who is thus overcome, they assured me, is never known again to aspire to the hand of the lady, who has caused the antifebrile combat."

Pretty Good.—An Irish travelling merchant, at a pedlar, asked an itinerant poulterer the price of a pair of fowls.

"Six shillings, sir."

"In my dear country, my darling, you might buy them for a sixpence apace."

"Why don't you remain in your own dear country, then?"

"Case we have no sixpences, my jewel," said Pat.

A servant, who had lived many years with a clergyman, his master took occasion to say—'Tom, you have been a long time in my service; I dare say you will be able to preach as well as I.' 'Oh, no, Sir,' said Tom, 'but many an inference I have drawn from yours.'—'Well' said the clergyman, 'I will give you a text from Job—let me hear what you infer from it—And the asses snuffed up the East wind.'—'Well,' said Tom 'the only inference I can draw from this is, that it would be a long time before they would grow fat upon it.'

True modesty blushes for everything that is criminal. False modesty is ashamed of everything unfashionable.

DANVERS COURIER.

SATURDAY MORNING, MARCH 15, 1845.

☞The better to make known the general character of the Courier, the publisher has thought it advisable to print a large edition of this number, which will be circulated gratuitously. The regular publication of the Courier will commence on SATURDAY, the 29th inst., and will be continued regularly every Saturday morning.

Terms—$1 50 if paid in advance, or $2 00, if not paid within one month of the time of subscribing.

Advertisements will be inserted on favorable terms.

GEO. R. CARLTON, Publisher.

☞ To Correspondents.—We thank our friend STUDAS for his kind suggestions in relation to our paper, and we assure him that it is our intention to make the Courier an INDEPENDENT paper, under the control of no clique, and that our endeavor will be to make it such a journal as shall be desired by our citizens. We regret that we are obliged to defer his well written communication until our next number.

We have received several other excellent articles from correspondents, which will have a place in future numbers.

INTRODUCTORY.

It is earnestly desired by many that a Whig paper should be started in Danvers, and it is in compliance with this desire, together with the belief that such a paper can and will be supported by the citizens of Danvers, that induces us to commence the publication of this paper. There are constantly events occurring in every place of considerable size, which are of great interest to all its citizens, and it will be our endeavor to furnish such news of a local character as will interest our readers. Besides, there are frequently questions arising in which the citizens of Danvers feel peculiarly interested; and the Courier will be very useful, it is hoped, as an organ for communications upon such questions. In its political department the Courier will support Whig principles candidly and firmly. In its miscellaneous department will be found the lighter reading of the day, such as well selected tales, Anecdotes, poetry, &c. A portion of the paper will be devoted to the interests of Agriculture, and facts and results of the experience of agriculturists are solicited. In fine it is hoped that the Courier will be a paper which all will be glad to recognize as a Danvers paper—in which they shall feel confidence, as bound to maintain the interests and reputation of the place—a paper which will interest all—one which recognizes and defends the rights and privileges of every citizen of every occupation. We are aware of the great number of papers now published, and of the fact, that many who may be solicited to subscribe for the Courier are already supplied with as many papers as they wish for; yet we cannot but feel, that the local interest, and the desire to see a paper well sustained in this flourishing and enterprising town, will be a sufficient inducement for them to add this to the number.

TEXAS ANNEXATION.

The late Congress has done all in its power to annex Texas to this union. A negociation for that purpose is commenced, and all that is now needed to consummate the deed, is the consent of Texas and a ratification by Congress. Such are the facts, and now what can and what ought the North to do in regard to it? Plainly either to sit still in acquiescent silence and allow Texas to be admitted into the Union, with the same rights and privileges with the State of Massachusetts, or rouse herself through her whole length and breadth and organize into an uncompromising opposition to the measure. Can the North hesitate in choosing the latter course? In that way and in that way alone, an influence might be exerted upon those craven hearted Representatives who have been willing to lick the dust from the feet of the Southern dictators; and the ratification might be prevented, or if made, the provision for Slavery might be stricken from it. This can be done if the North will be determined and united. Shall it be done, or shall Texas come in on the terms proposed by the South?—Answer—freemen of the North! Shall Texas which has been justly a byword and a reproach throughout the country—settled by bands of the offscouring of the States—by vagabonds and fugitives from justice, and polluted with the curse of Slavery—be admitted into all the privileges of this fraternity of States, and admitted solely and confessedly, for the extension of that system, which disregarding the rights of God and man, has been like a desolating scourge to those portions of our country where it has existed, an evil and a curse only to be endured from the difficulty of eradicating it. Shall Texas come in quietly, or will the North put herself in array against it? That is the question.

The President in his inaugural maintains the ground taken by the Democratic party during the late campaign, viz., that "the whole country" means "that portion south of Mason and Dixon's line," and that "the great interests of the country" means "the propagation of the institution of Slavery."

MAP OF TEXAS.

We have just examined a map of this country, prepared under the direction of the Department of War, at Washington. From statistics accompanying it, we learn that it embraces 203,520,000 acres of land, of which some 67,000,000 are appropriated. The population is estimated at 140,000 free whites, and 22,410 slaves. Galveston, the largest town, has 5000 inhabitants, not so many as Danvers.

☞Hon. DANIEL P. KING, our Representative in Congress, arrived home on Friday of last week.

RAILROAD MONOPOLY.

Advantageous to the community as railroads confessedly are, their continuance as a monopoly over which the State itself is to have no control, has become a question of great interest in consequence of some recent proceedings of our Legislature.

When Railroad Companies were first chartered, the public hailed their formation with much satisfaction, believing that the proprietors would be satisfied with the profits of the new mode of transporting passengers and merchandise, with the risk of competition, to which they would be liable as in any other business. The people were also led to believe that one great object the originators had in view was the accommodation and benefit of the community, and that a reduction of fares would follow when success should attend their enterprise. In this expectation the public have been grossly deceived. Instead of a reduction of fares, they are kept at rates fixed before it could be ascertained what would be the result of the experiment. The public derive no advantage from the success of these undertakings. The Directors of these Companies thinking they have a monopoly of conveyance, act towards the public as they think proper. They make their own terms, and provide such accommodations as they please, because they think the public have no remedy. They know that the public having no other means of conveyance (the public Stages being driven off the road,) are completely at their mercy. The travelling community seem now to have discovered that they have been greviously wronged in this matter, and they look to the Legislature for redress. They ask the liberty to build new roads, on which they may travel to the metropolis. They ask no gift or loan, but only the liberty to use their own capital for their own and the public convenience. Then comes a cry of horror from all the old Corporations, echoed by a Legislative Committee, that they are to be robbed of their vested rights! Corporations which have knocked over without a scruple, Turnpike and Stage Companies, rendering their property worthless, are horror stricken when the same cup is presented to their own lips. Portly Directors and Stockholders suddenly become widows and orphans, and cry piteously to the Legislature not to take away their last morsel of bread. These male widows and whiskered orphans with their invested hundreds and thousands, are met by fifty times their number of real widows and orphans, to whom the pittance of the enhanced price of a ticket is of more consequence than the failure of an entire yearly dividend would be to the Stockholder. It is for these and the public at large that we ask for Legislation founded on common rights and common sense. We wish not to be misunderstood. We would give the existing Railroad Companies all the profit they can obtain in fair competition (as in other business,) with rival Companies. More than this they should not ask, as nobody can be expected to build roads where they do not believe they will be productive. It is only the monopolist character of these Companies that we condemn, and as it is a monopoly of the very worst kind, reaching through all the ramifications of society, and touching the interest of almost every individual, we trust that we shall soon witness its extinction.

ANNUAL TOWN MEETING.

The Annual Town Meeting this year was held at Granite Hall, March 3, Moses Black Jr. Esq., Moderator.

Our industrious and indefatigable Town Clerk was re-elected as usual by a unanimous vote.—Most of the officers usually chosen at this meeting were elected, and much other business transacted or referred to committees who are to report at the adjournment on the first Monday in April. As we understand the Clerk intends to prepare a statement of the unfinished business, for the information of the citizens, we withold the account of the meeting we had intended to give. The business was transacted with great regularity, and there was less voting and reconsidering votes than has been usual at our town meetings. We subjoin an extract from the Records March 11, 1754, as a specimen of the manner of transacting town business in olden time.

Voted, That the Swine shall not go at large.
Voted, To reconsider the vote Relating to the Swine's not going at large.
Voted, that the Swine may go at large.
Voted, Mr. John Vinny a Tythingman.
Voted, To release John Vinny from being a Tythingman.
Voted, John Vinny a Hogreeve.
Voted, Capt. Thomas Flint to take care of ye Dear.

The first record we have of the choice of the Fish committee, was in 1757 when Jona. Nourse was chosen Preserver of Alewifes.

We intend in future to make further extracts from these Records, giving a connected history of the Fire Department, Schools, &c. Some of these Records in their chirography and spelling are decidedly rich.

TYLER VETOED AT LAST. The Revenue Cutter bill which was sent back to the House by the Capt. on the last day of the session, was taken up and passed by a majority of over two thirds.

ATTACK BY PIRATES.—We learn from the Salem Register that the brig Hannah, Capt. Chever, of that port was attacked by pirates, on the night of Nov. 28th, on her passage from Macao to Whampoa. The captain was taken and robbed of all his clothing, two watches, &c.; they then anchored the vessel, cut all her rigging and left her.

The U. S. brig Boxer, Com. Parker, immediately commenced a search for the pirates, but was unsuccessful.

ANNEXATION TO SALEM.

An Order of Notice has been granted by the Legislature on the petition of Mr. C. A. Dearborn and others for the annexation of a part of our territory to Salem. As it is late in the Session, this order is made returnable to the next General Court. The prayer of the petitioners will, no doubt, be strenuously opposed by our town authorities, as the proposed measure takes from Danvers a large amount of taxable propetry without an equivalent. The petitioners, however, will present many reasons of great force in favor of their project, and they will probably be assisted by the city of Salem. We should not be surprised if at some future time, a more symmetrical boundary line should be established on terms of compromise and mutual agreement between the two corporations.

RE-ANNEXATION.

Since the agitation of the question of the annexation of a part of our territory to the city of Salem, another project has been started, which deserves consideration. This is a proposition to annex Salem to Danvers. We are inclined to think favorably of this project, or at least, we hope that in case the inhabitants of the village of Salem should make application for admission, with a good degree of unanimity, their claims will receive due consideration. This union may be objected to by our citizens on the ground that our town is now sufficiently large, but it should be recollected that the addition of a place so small as Salem would only increase its size about one third, and it might be advantageous to both parties. They were once united as a single corporation, but unwisely separated and their union now, would only be a re-annexation of a territory of which we have been unjustly deprived. The two places seem naturally to belong to each other as the intercourse between them is constant and continually increasing. This union would prevent many unpleasant occasions of difficulty by a final settlement of boundary lines. It would also prevent the occasion of any collision between the two boards of Fish Committee now separately chosen in the two corporations, whose duty it is to guide the shad and alewives to Springfond, and one committee could do all the business and save the salaries of the remainder. Salem would be particularly benefitted, as she would be taken under our special protection and preserved from the necessity of relying on foreign aid. Although our territory is now large, its extension (we have high authority for believing,) would have the effect to make the union stronger, as the wider apart people live, the better they will like each other. As to the public debt of Salem, it might be so arranged that she shall be permited to retain the Neck and Cat Island to pay it off. The objection may be urged that Salem belongs to the Commonwealth, and the Legislature may not be willing to assent to annexation. Our reply is that Salem belongs to herself and has a right to make such bargain as she pleases. If she has not, if the project is a desirable one, thought to be accomplished, no matter by what means. The proper mode of effecting this annexation, we presume, would be for our town authorities secretly to induce the mayor of Salem to ask for admission, and then complete the negociation before the people of either place shall be aware of the proceedings. If the negociation should not be ratified, the object may yet be accomplished by a joint resolution adopted by our board of Selectmen and Fish Committee, and approved by the Hog Reeve. The act would probably be much more satisfactory to the people if that dignitary should affix his signature with a pen made of Dogwood.

IMPROVEMENTS IN DANVERS.

The space of ground made vacant by the disastrous fire of Sept. 1843, is now nearly covered with new buildings. The only part of the burnt district now remaining to be rebuilt, is the site of the Essex Coffee House, and the estate of the Misses Foster. Many new houses have gone up within a short time on Franklin, Elm, Holten, Washington, Walnut, Chesnut and other new streets, besides stores and other new buildings. We also notice that Messrs. Phelps & Woodbury are about laying the foundation near Grove St., of a large building for their planing mill and blind and sash business. This establishment is to be at a safe distance from other buildings, and every precaution will be taken to make it safe from danger by fire.

But the greatest improvements seem to have been made in North Danvers. Those who attended the Annual Town meeting at Granite Hall from the South Parish were agreeably surprised to see such rapid advances made in that region. Many who attended that meeting had not seen the place for some years, and the change struck them much more forcibly than it would those on the spot. New streets have been opened, old ones built up, old houses transformed to new, and the whole village presents a thrifty and go-ahead appearance to the occasional visitor, not appreciated by the constant resident. The beautiful church, the noble public house, the large shoe manufactories, and long ranges of handsome dwellings seem to have arisen by magic. High street is so filled up that we can hardly tell where the New Mills village leaves off and where the "Plains" begin. They are fast joining hands, and when they come together they will have quite a city like appearance. New villages are also springing up at Tapleyville, Hooper's Mills Judge Collins', where many substantial buildings have been recently erected. We rejoice to witness these evidences of the thrift and industry of our citizens, and hope for a continuance of their prosperity.

DANVERS FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Never, since the organization of a Fire Department in this town, has it possessed so much efficiency as at the present moment. This is partly owing to the enlargement of its numbers and apparatus, partly to the general favor with which it has been regarded by the citizens, but mainly to the increased spirit and activity of its members. Much of the improvement may be attributed to the many and frequent calls to duty within the last few months, by which every member has been drilled to the use of the engine to which he is attached. By these frequent turn outs too, a kind of friendly emulation has been excited, which has had the effect to unite the members of each company, who become better known to each other, and better know their places and duty at the engine. The alacrity with which they have turned out the past winter and the readiness with which they performed their severe labors at the scene of conflagration, are beyond all praise. Much credit is also due to the Board of Firewards for the prompt manner in which, after the fire, the apparatus has been put in repair, and every thing got in readiness for another alarm.

We congratulate our citizens on the excellent condition of this safeguard to their property and habitations, and hope it will continue to have their countenance and support. We are not of course ready to pronounce every thing connected with the Department as faultless, and in a future number we may in a friendly spirit, make some suggestions for its improvement.

STEAM FACTORIES IN SALEM.

We learn that the Naumkeag Manufacturing Co. of Salem has been organized and that considerable part of the stock has been taken up. We are glad to see this evidence of enterprise on the part of our Salem neighbors, and hope entire success will crown their efforts. We should think that all holders of real estate in Salem would feel a special interest in this undertaking.

We also learn that an extensive Iron Foundary is proposed to be established in South Salem.

PROGRESSION.

When the annexation of Texas was first proposed by the slave ultraists, it was simply styled "the annexation project." When baptized into the Democraatic creed at the Baltimore convention, it received the more exalted title of "the great American measure." And now the Madisonian and other papers comment upon it as "the great measure of the age." What next?

The March term of the Court of Common Pleas will be commenced in Salem on Monday next.—Chief Justice Wells is expected to preside.

Grand Juror from this town, JOHN C. LUNT.
Jurors—Kendall Osborn and Caleb L. Frost.

Postage Bill. The vote in the House upon the new Postage bill was a sectional one, the free states going in favor of it, and the slave states against it, with few exceptions.

KINDNESS DELICATELY BESTOWED. We are gratified to learn that Rev. Dr Sharp has taken his passage on board the Cambria, which leaves this port in April next, for Liverpool. His ministering brethren in Boston and vicinity, of their own accord, and without solicitation, have proposed to supply his pulp it, during an absence of about four months, and a purse of $1000 has been made by a few of his fellow citizens, chiefly out of the Baptist denomination as to furnish substantial testimony of the high regard and esteemin which he is held by those among whom he has resided more than thirty years. His church and society have unanimously and cordially consented to the proposal, and he will now, after an absence of forty years, revisit the land of his nativity and the home of his youth. Such acts of spontaneous kindness must be highly pleasing to his friends, and were never more worthily bestowed.—Christian Watchman.

THE MEXICAN MINISTER. Gen. Almonte, the National Intelligencer says, has signified to this Government the termination of his mission, in consequence of the passage of the act for the annexation to the United States of the Province of Texas. He has addressed a letter to the Secretary of State, entering a solemn protest in the name of his Government, against the law, which he declares to be an act of aggression the most unjust that modern history records, being, as he alleges, the spoliation of a friendly nation of a considerable part of its territory.

The Minister has further asked for his passports, it being his purpose to leave Washington for New York as early as practicable, and there to embark for Mexico.

This step on the part of the Minister is, of course, only what every intelligent person knew would be the necessary consequence of the passage of the act of annexation.—Reg.

The Governor and Council have appointed Thursday, the third day of April next, to be observed as a day of Public Fasting, Humiliation and Prayer.

The Governor has appointed Monday, the 28th day of April next, for the fourth trial to elect a Representative for the 29th Congress, in District No. 9.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ELECTION. We have returns from about 30 towns, which show a net loss for Steele the democraic candidate for Gov., of about 500. Still, we think he is elected by the people. Woodbury, nominated in place of J. P. Hale, is pretty certainly defeated for Congress. The Legislature will probably be strongly democratic, as there is very few changes.

P. S. We have just received by Mr Haynes of Walker & Co's Express, the Concord, N. H. papers of this morning. Both Patriots think Gov. Steele is elected by a small majority, and that Woodbury is also elected. Sixty-one towns heard from.—Boston Mail.

A slip from the N. H. Statesman, dated Wednesday afternoon, says:

'We have yet received but very few returns of votes, but these few render it highly probable that Gov. Steele has been defeated. His majority last year in the State, over all others, was 3280, and there was a conservative vote of 1088 last year, given chiefly by the Whigs.'

FOR THE COURIER.

REV. MR. BRAMAN.

It is a source of deep regret to the numerous friends of this distinguished and faithful clergyman, that his long continued and very acceptable labors in this town are about to cease. On account of declining health he has considered it his duty to resign his situation, and, for a time at least, abandon the labors of his profession. On the first Sabbath of the present month he preached a "farewell discourse" to the people of his late charge. The performance was one of uncommon interest, and was listened to by a very large and attentive audience. He spoke of the condition of the parish at the time of his settlement—of the difficulties he had been obliged to contend against—of the many encouraging circumstances attending his ministry, and of some of the present duties of the society. The discourse was characterised by that degree of plainness and sound sense for which the author is distinguished;—and the moistened eyes of a large part of the auditors testified—more fully than words could do—to the affectionate attachment on the part of the people towards him who has so long labored with them and for them.

Mr. Braman has been pastor of the North Society nineteen years, and has enjoyed the esteem and confidence, not only of his own people, but of all who have known him. He has long been an efficient and useful member of the Board of School Committee, and as such, his services to the whole town have been of great importance and worth.—In his removal we feel that the community will sustain a great—an irreparable loss.

His recent sermon before the Legislature has elicited the highest encomiums, and is justly considered as one of the best ever preached before that Hon. body. It abounds in wholesome suggestions, and deserved and well-administered reproof, and is written with great clearness and force. Though very long, it is said to have been the only sermon, on any similar occasion, from which no hearer withdrew before its close. But the sermon speaks for itself, and we advise all who wish to enjoy a rich treat to procure and read it.

Wherever Mr. B. may go, he will bear with him the best wishes and kindliest feelings of a numerous circle of friends. May he enjoy a long and useful life. A.

FOR THE DANVERS COURIER.

OUR SCHOOLS.

During the present month the several schools in our town will undergo their regular annual examinations under the superintendence of the School Committee. We hope the parents in the various districts will consider it a privilege as well as a duty, to be present at these closing exercises of their respective schools. In no other way can they do so much to encourage their children, their teacher or the Committee. We are aware that some parents are fully awake to the interests and wants of our public schools. Yet, comparatively speaking, how few ever think of entering a school house at any time, to witness the exercises of the assembled children. Men will travel miles to behold an exhibition of cattle and swine, but they have no inclination even to cross a street, to attend an exhibition of the mental qualities or mental improvement of their children. But we hope a better feeling on this subject, is gaining ground in our community. We trust that the attendance of parents and citizens at the approaching examinations will be more general than at any former period. D.

FOR THE DANVERS COURIER.

THE NORTHERN WHISTLER.

One of the greatest and most laughter-exciting exhibitions it has ever been the lot of Salem people to witness, came off at the Lyceum Hall, a few weeks since. Some wags of the city wishing to get up a fair hit at the frequent exhibitions of Ethiopian, Virginia, and other mock African serenaders, and minstrels, induced a real descendant of Africa to advertise a public exhibition. Accordingly the city, calling upon all the "musical world" to assemble and witness the wonderful performance of the great Northern Whistler. There could in this case be no doubt of his African descent. He was a perfect specimen, except that he had unfortunately lost one eye. This only made his face more interesting, which on this occasion shone like a newly blacked boot.

At the appointed hour hundreds thronged to the hall, when the audience manifested their impatience in their usual manner, by drumming with their feet on the floor. This was somewhat allayed by the music of the orchestra which consisted of one fiddle played by a white man.—At length the principal performer appeared, and was received with unbounded applause. Never was a starred actor received with more uproarious marks of approbation. Cuffee acknowledged the compliment by a polite bow and a fragment of a speech, which we will not attempt to report, but which drew down thunders of applause. He now prepared to commence the exibition by his introductory whistle. To do this he pursed up his ample lips until they presented the appearance of a projecting red tomato with a hole in the centre, from whence came forth the richest melody, compared with which, all the finest strains from the violin of Ole Bull, sink into absolute insignificance. No wonder that the intelligent audience was electrified. They shouted with delight.—They clapped—they stamped—they threw up their caps—they cried encore and they laughed until they cried. Such is the power of music! Cuffee all this time stood bolt upright, looked straight forward, and continued his captivating whistle. We have already said he had but one eye, and that part of the audience on his blind side, now called out lustily for the light of his countenance on their side of the hall. Obedient to their summons, the performer turned half round and whistled at one half the audience, by which movement he was unfortunately obliged to turn his back to the other half. These now clamored for their rights, and a general shout from all parts of the house of "this way," "front," "open t'other eye," and other undistinguishable noises fairly disconcerted the whistler, who stood like a wavering politician, trying to please all sides but satisfying none. Having finished his tune he left the stage with a tremendous storm of applause, after which it appeared as if every auditor endeavored to outwhistle the great whistler himself. It seemed as if fifty steam whistles and as many tom-cats had opened their throats at once. Even the orchestra itself could not appease the tumult, and for once the squealing of cats overpowered the squeaking of cat-gut.

At length the tumult was hushed and the performer again made his appearance. He was repeatedly called out and whistled every variety of melody from Old Hundred to Yankee Doodle.

The result was, that Cuffee found about forty dollars in his pocket after paying all expenses.—The delighted auditors retired, well satisfied that they had not paid "too dear for their whistle!"

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE.

Monday, March 10.

IN THE SENATE—A committee reported a number of bills and resolves passed various stages, and a committee on Probate and Chancery were ordered to enquire into the expediency of reporting a bill in addition to the act passed in 1841 to defray the expenses of Probate Courts.

A report from a committee, that it is inexpedient to provide that members of the Legislature shall have copies of the laws of the State at cost, was accepted.

Mr. Saltonstall from the joint special committee on the close of the session, reported, that in the opinion of the Committee, the business now before the Legislature may be despatched by Thursday of next week; but that the Committee were not prepared to report definitely yet—but would do so in two or three days.

Tuesday, March 11.

IN THE SENATE—The bill to increase the capital stock of the Western Rail Road Corporation, was debated at some length, and passed to a third reading, 27 to 4.

Ordered, That the Senate meet hereafter at 10 o'clock, A. M.

IN THE HOUSE—On motion of Mr. Chandler, the several Committees were instructed to report on all matters before them, on or before Friday, 14th inst. Also, ordered, that from and after Wednesday, 12th inst. the House will hold two sessions a day—at 10 A. M. and 3 1-2 P.M.

The Resolves and Declaration, from the Senate, concerning the treatment of Samuel Hoar in South Carolina, were specially assigned for consideration on Thursday, at 12 o'clock.

Thirty-six bills and resolves were ordered to a 3d reading, and twenty-four to be engrossed.

From the Boston Courier.

SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT.

Case of Wm. Wyman. In this case, the exceptions taken to the rulings of the Judge at the trial having been previously argued, the Court gave judgement for the defendant, thus setting aside the verdict and granting a new trial.

The course of this celebrated trial strongly illustrates the importance of money, as a means of securing justice. It is needless to say that no insinuation is intended by this remark. It means just what it says. To employ such an array of counsel as conducted the several trials for this defendant, and drew up and argued his exceptions, doubtless cost more than all the salaries of all the prosecuting officers in Massachusetts for a twelvemonth.

Some one remarked to Doctor Johnson, in reference to a poor man who had suffered some wrong, "the courts are always open to a British subject." "Yes" said the Doctor, "and so is London Tavern, provided he can pay for an entertainment!"

MORE ASSAULTS AT SEA.—We understand that Capt John Lendholm and Mr. Agustus Hamblet, master and first mate of the bark Eliza, recently arrived at this port from Zanzibar, were arrested by the U. S. Marshal on Monday, and conveyed to Boston, to be examined before Commissioner Geo. S. Hillard, on the charge of assaulting the cook, William Hunter, while at sea. As we learn the facts, it appears that the cook had been cutting his wood, while about preparing some pancakes for dinner, and on one of the cakes being broken open at the table some hair was found in one of them. This enraged the officers, and they made the cook eat the fruits of his own labor until he could swallow no more, when the captain crammed the food down his throat with the handle of a carving knife, and concluded by beating him over the head with a saucepan.

The second mate, Mr Augustus Prince, was also arrested and examined at the same time on the with a warming pan. The three were held to bail to answer at the next term of the District Court.

At the same time was also arrested Mr Chas. G. Arthur, mate of the whale ship James Maury, of this port, charged with aiding Capt. Chase in the assault on Thomas Bougie, the cooper, as mentioned in our last. He was also held to bail to take his trial with Capt. Chase, in the District Court.—Salem Adv.

☞The New York Courier understands that Dr. Lardner has closed his lecturing tour in the United States, and intends ere long to return to Europe. He is preparing a work to contain all the lectures he has delivered in this country, to be accompanied by a personal narrative of his tour, with anecdotes, &c.

The Providence Gazette states that Thomas W. Dorr is at present so feeble in health, as to be unable to perform any labor in the prison workshop.

A Spanish vessel bound for Laguayra returned to Cadiz previous to Jan. 22d, in consequence of having been chased by three piratical vessels off Cape St. Vincent

---

FIRE AT WASHINGTON.—About 8 o'clock, on the evening of the 5th, the National Theatre took fire in the green room, and was burnt down, with a block of houses extending from the corner of Thirteenth street east. The Globe office on the west was saved with great difficulty. The Empire Club of New York rendered efficient service.

☞The rates of fare on the Eastern Railroad are about to be reduced to 25 cents from Boston to Lynn, 40 to Salem and one dollar to Newburyport. The price of season tickets is to be reduced from one hundred to seventy-five dollars.

The New Haven Courier, alluding to the career of John Tyler, says, "He began with placing his Executive veto on the action of his friends. He concludes with a veto against both friends and foes."

In the notification for town meeting, at Lynn, it is stated that a proposition will be made to provide "some measures to quell the disturbance and riot at public meetings."

The resolutions of Congress have been despatched to Texas, by a special messenger of the government.

MARRIAGES.

In this town, by Rev. Mr. Prince, Mr. Conrad Derx to Miss Ellen B. Bisbee.

North Parish, Mr. James M. Perley to Miss Caroline H. Putnam.

In Salem, Capt. Charles Fisk to Miss Judith Ruee.

In Lynn, Mr. David Thayer to Miss Sarah A. Allen.

DEATHS.

In this town, Samuel S., son of Mr. Philander R. Basford, aged 6 months.

In Salem, on Sunday evening, Sarah Ann, wife of Mr. John B. Peirce, aged 37.

Mrs. Sarah, widow of the late Capt. John Brinley, aged 75. Eliza Grafton Perkins, daughter of Jonathan C. and Eliza G. Perkins, aged 4 years and 2 months.

JOB PRINTING.

The subscriber being furnished with a beautiful assortment of modern type is prepared to execute all kinds of Job Printing promptly and as neat and cheap as at any other office in the state, viz:—

BOOKS AND PAMPHLETS,
BILLS OF LADING,
CHECKS, BLANKS,
SHOP BILLS, LABELS,
POSTERS, HANDBILLS,
CARDS, CIRCULARS, &c.

GEO. R. CARLTON,
Courier Office, Central St.,
A few doors North of Mackintire's Hotel.

POOLE & STEDMAN,
MAKERS OF
CARRIAGES, HARNESSES, TRUNKS, &c.

THE subscribers having formed a Co-partnership under the above firm, are ready to attend to any orders in their line.

Particular attention paid to repairing.

S. A. POOLE,
G. B. STEDMAN.

N. B. Valises, Ladies' Satchels, Carpet Bags, &c. constantly on hand and for sale cheap.

Corner of Grove and Main Streets.

Danvers, March 15.

CHARLES H. MANNING,
CABINET MAKER,
Near the Sign of the Lamb, Main Street,
DANVERS, MASS.

FURNITURE manufactured on the most reasonable terms. Also—CURRIER'S TABLES made and repaired cheap.

SHOE-MAKERS' PEGGING BENCHES made as above. oct 15

POOLE & JACOBS,
MANUFACTURERS OF
Boot and Shoe Linings, Skivers,
AND BINDINGS,
AND DEALERS IN
WOOL,
MAIN ST., DANVERS, MASS.

EASY SHAVING AND
HAIR CUTTING.

B. B. WILLIAMS respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has removed to the store formerly occupied by Lambert & Merrill, (under the Courier Office,) which he has fitted up in a neat manner, and is now prepared to wait upon those who believe that

"Man wants but little beard below,
Nor wants that little long."

Shampooing, Hair Cutting and Shaving is performed to the satisfaction of all who may favor him with their patronage.

Danvers, March 15, 1845. tf

REMOVAL.
DR. J. A. ROBINSON,
SURGEON DENTIST,
SALEM,

WOULD respectfully give notice that he has removed from his old stand, opposite the City Hall, to No. 20 Washington street, recently occupied by A. E. Phillips, where he is ready to perform all operation, in Dentistry, in a most thorough and workmanlike manner.

His experience and success in inserting whole sets either by atmospheric pressure or springs, enables him to furnish them at rates which cannot fail to suit

His method of inserting Teeth, both singly and on plate, with or without Gums, has been found to be satisfactory and successful as combining beauty of finish and adaptation, with all the requisites of mastication and articulation.

Particular attention paid to filling Teeth so as to render them serviceable for many years, and also to the regulation of Children's Teeth.

N. B. For sale as above, a first rate article of TOOTH POWDER. 6m mch 15

G. W & E. CRAFTS.
BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURERS AND STATIONERS,
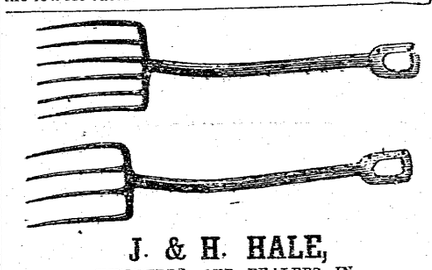
174 ESSEX STREET, SALEM,

HAVE constantly on hand, and will manufacture to order, all kinds of Blank Books, from the best paper, ruled to any pattern, and bound in a neat and substantial manner.

FINE STATIONERY,



of almost ever description, adapted for counting rooms and schools, comprising in part, Letter and Writing Papers, ruled and plain; Drawing Papers; Note. Tissue and Wrapping Papers; Wafers; Sealing Wax; Seals and Steel Pens of every variety; Quills of every description; wafer Cups; sand boxes; writing fluids and inks; penknives; razors, &c.

PRINTING, RULING AND BINDING,

Printing of shop bills, cards, bill heads, catalogues, &c. executed in the neatest manner and on the best terms. Ruling, to any pattern desired, at short notice. Binding, of every description, executed with despatch.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

A constant supply of school books, of the best editions, together with every kind of School Stationery Also, all kinds of miscellaneous books furnished at the lowest rates. mch 15

J. & H. HALE,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
HARD WARE GOODS AND CUTLERY,
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
HOUSE KEEPING ARTICLES AND FANCY GOODS,
Agricultural Tools and Ploughs,
PLOUGH CASTINGS, FRICTION ROLLERS AND CRANKS,
Iron and Copper Pumps and Lead Pipe,
WINDOW GLASS,
CAMPHENE,
CAMPHENE LAMPS, HANGING, SIDE AND ASTRAL—A GREAT VARIETY OF STYLES,
Cut Glass, Britannia, Brass, Bronze and Mantle Lamps,
CARPENTER'S TOOLS,
HOUSE TRIMMINGS,
Shoe Makers' Tools, Nails, Thread and Pegs,
BOILER DOORS AND OVEN MOUTHS,
Furnaces, Cast Iron Hollow Ware, Tubs, Pails, Mats, Cut Nails, Emery, Zinc, Lead, &c.
No. 215 Essex Street, SALEM, Mass.
march 15 tf

REMOVAL.
SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN,
MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN
Rich Jewelry and Fancy Goods,

HAVE removed to the New Store, No. 291 Essex street, (next above Mechanic Hall) where they will keep constantly for sale Gold Finger Rings, Breast Pins, Bracelets, Lockets, Keys, Gold and Silver Pencil Cases, Silver Thimbles, Silver and Plated Table and Tea Spoons. Butter Knives, Silver Plated and Brittania Ware, Shell, Horn, and Ivory Combs, Pocket Books, Purses, &c., &c.

N. B. All kinds of Jewelry repaired in a superior manner and warranted. Old Gold or Jewelry, made over or exchanged for new.

S. & C. having acquired a thorough knowledge of the business in New York, as well as our success for the past five years in this city, will, we feel assured, enable us to execute with approbation any orders entrusted to our care.

☞Thankful for past patronage, we solicit a continuance of the same. tf March 15.

WANTED.

10 GOOD COATMAKERS wanted immediately, to whom steady employment and good wages will be given.

Also—A BOY as an APPRENTICE. by

S. R. BOTT,
mch 15 No. 148 Essex Street, Salem.

Great Bargains

ARE NOW BEING HAD AT THE
Washington Street Clothing Store, Salem

GARMENTS of all description may be obtained at prices which cannot fail to give entire satisfaction.

Great care has been taken in the getting up of every garment, all of which is warranted equal, if not superior to any Clothing in the city.

The subscriber continues to take measures as formerly, and all Garments bespoken, will be made according to the wishes of the customer, and will guarantee both the style and fit.

S. CHAMBERLAIN, JR.

Salem, March, 15. tf

SPRING FASHIONS
JUST RECEIVED.

THE subscriber has just received a large and fashionable stock of Spring Goods, consisting of French, English and American

BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES AND DOESKINS.

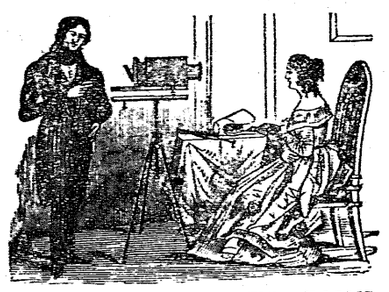
Also—A rich assortment of VESTINGS, of the latest patterns, which will be made into Garments in the most fashionable style, on reasonable terms.

Also received—a nice lot of GENTLEMEN'S SCARFS and STOCKS of the latest styles.

Also—GLOVES, SUSPENDERS, SHIRT BOSOMS and COLLARS.

Also—Gentlemen's DRESSING GOWNS constantly on hand, JOHN DOLAN,
mch 15 275 Essex street, Salem.

S. R. BOTT,
DRAPER & TAILOR,
No. 148 Essex Street, Salem,



TAKES this method of informing the public of Danvers and vicinity that he has for sale one of the richest and BEST selected assortments of Broadcloths, Cassimeres & Vestings ever before offered in Salem. The Stock is of the latest Spring and Summer styles, and cannot be surpassed by any establishment in the city which will be sold by the yard, or made into Garments, in a style that CANNOT be surpassed in this or any other

☞Strangers from the country would do well to call at this establishment, as they select their Goods with the most perfect confidence, that each article is as good in quality, and as low in price as can be obtained at any other store.

N. B. The report of Fashions received every month.

Salem, March 15, 1845.

REMOVAL.

BOWDOIN'S DAGUERROTYPE ROOMS removed from Mechanic Hall to the adjoining building above, 298 Essex street, where he has rooms built expressly for the purpose of taking Miniatures in any weather.

Mr. B. tenders his sincere thanks to his friends and the public, for their liberal patronage the past year, and respectfully solicits the continuance of public favor. He has recently purchased a large Achromatic instrument for the purpose of taking GROUPS and LARGE PICTURES, which enables him to give pictures of all sizes, equal to those taken in New York or Boston. He has formed a connexion with an establishment in New York, from whence he receives all the new improvements, and materials connected with the Art, which will enable him to give better pictures for less prices than can be obtained in Boston.

Miniatures set in every variety of Lockets, Frames, Cases, &c.

☞Persons visiting Salem, and those about going to sea, can have a perfect likeness completed in a few minutes' time.

 Miniatures set in a neat Morocco Case for $1 50. Exhibition rooms open to visiters through the day.

Salem, March 15. tf

HENRY WHIPPLE,
At his Book, Chart and Stationery Store,
No. 190 ESSEX STREET,

HAS for sale a general assortment of Books, in the various branches of Literature, all of which he offers for sale on the most reasonable terms.

PERIODICALS—Nearly all that are published in the United States, are regularly received.

H. W. is agent for Sherman's Cough, Camphor, and Worm Lozenges; Scarpa's Kresoote, Acoustic Oil, for the cure of Deafness, $2 00; Dr. Scudder's Genuine Acoustic Oil, for Deafness $1; Phelps's Tomato Pills; Woodbury's Vegetable Pills; Dean's Rheumatic Pills; Hedge's Rheumatic Plaster; Dyott's Anti-Bilious Pills; Gordak's Jelly of Pomegranate; Matthew's Unrivalled Corn Salve; Dr. Robertson's Vegetable Nervous Cordial; Dr. Robertson's Stomatic Elixir of Health, and various other medicines.

PAPER HANGINGS.

In a few days will be received as above a large assortment of new patterns of Papers, from 12 cts to 25 cts. a roll and new patterns of Philadelphia Papers and Borders. Salem, March 15.

ADAMS & RICHARDSON,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
HARDWARE.
MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS FOR THE SALE OF
Cut Nails, White Lead, Sheet Lead and Lead Pipe,
NO. 267 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.

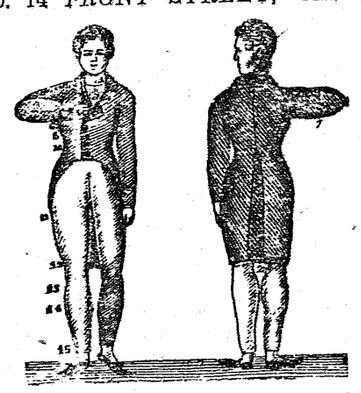
Joseph Adams,
C. M. Richardson,
march 15 tf

J. A. FARNSWORTH & CO.,
DEALERS IN
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC, FANCY AND STAPLE
DRY GOODS,
147 Essex Street, (Lynde Place,)
SALEM.

J. A. FARNSWORTH,
mch 15 W. L. FARNSWORTH.

MICKLEFIELD & CO.,
KEEP CONSTANTLY ON HAND AT THE
CITY MILLS, SALEM,
Nos. 31, 33, 35, 37, 39 Mill Street,
BRANCH, MOTTLED AND PLAIN
VENEERS,
CEDAR AND MAHOGANY
Boards, Plank and Joist,
ALSO—GRAIN AND MEAL.
Wholesale and Retail on the most reasonable terms, for Cash or approved credit.
Also—CIRCULAR, VENEER AND OTHER
Sawing and Turning.

☞They also GRIND all kinds of Grain.



All orders entrusted to their care will be attended to with punctuality and care.

JOHN JEWETT,
T. H. PRIME,
mch 15 J. A. KENNY.

GRASS SEED.

3000 POUNDS CLOVER SEED;
50 bags Red Top Seed;
150 bushels Herds Grass Seed;
Orchard Grass and White Clover Seed—for sale by S. CHAMBERLAIN & SON, march 15 Front Street, Salem.

BENJAMIN EDWARDS,
DRAPER & TAILOR,
No. 14 FRONT STREET, SALEM.

GARMENTS Cut and Made to order, and Fashionably, and warranted to give entire satisfaction

Constantly on hand, a good assortment of BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES,

Also—Neck Stocks, Italian Cravats, Scarfs, Shirt Bosoms, Collars, Feetings, Braces, Umbrellas, Hair and Clothes Brushes, Cologne Water, Wallets,

and other articles necessary for Gentlemen's use.

Grateful for the very liberal patronage which has heretofore been bestowed upon the establishment, he hopes by care and attention to business to merit a continuance.

Any order for Goods in the TAILORING LINE, attended to with fidelity and despatch.

All Garments Repaired and Cleansed CHEAP.

Any of the above articles if not on hand when called for, will be furnished at short notice.

mch 15 tf

☞PAPER HANGINGS.☜

THE subscriber has made such an extensive arrangement with the principal manufacturers of Paper Hangings that he is enabled to sell them at the lowest prices, wholesale and retail. New patterns will be received every week as soon as they are out.

2800 rolls of new styles for the Spring trade have been received within a few days. Unusual inducements are thus offered to purchasers of House Paper of all descriptions, from the highest finished Satin to the most common Paper, (call and see for yourselves.) Country dealers supplied on the most reasonable terms. SAMUEL B. FOSTER,
30 Lawrence Place,

Near the Railroad Station. Be sure and enquire for Foster, 30 Lawrence Place, Salem.
march 15 is

EDWARDS' LINIMENT.

For Sprains, Cuts, Bruises, Stiffened or Swelled Joints, Chilblains, Chapped Hands, Numbness and Rheumatism.

THIS invaluable artidle is now for the first time offered to the public, after having been in use for twenty years, with unusual and astonishing success within the circle of the proprietor's immediate influence. It has received the unqualified approbation of some eminent Physicians, and also Mariners and Mechanics.

It is also recommended, and more than a thousand cases might be cited, when it has been used for Horses in cases of lameness or when galled, &c. &c.

The public are assured that in offering the above we do recommend that which has not the least semblance of QUACKERY, but on the contrary it has done great and lasting good in its efficacious power and healing qualities.

As this medicine has been so long known in Salem and its vicinity, and as there are many that would avail themselves of it if they knew where it could be obtained, therefore the subsciber would now offer it to the public. It will be found always on hand and prepared by the subscriber.

BENJ EDWARDS,
No. 14 Front street, Salem, Mass.

Wanted—trusty and worthy AGENTS in the neighboring towns and vicinity.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENTS.

DANIELS, POOR & CO., Danvers, Mass.
Benjamin F. Browne, Salem Mass.
Smith & Fowle, Boston, "
H. F. Skerry, Bangor, Me.
Charles Whipple, Bookseller, Newburyport.
Wm. R. Preston, Portsmouth, N. H.
John S. Caldwell, Belfast. Me,
Wm. H. Palmer, Lynnfield,
Joseph Edwards, jr., Lynn.
Charles Edwards, Marblehead.
Wm. Edwards, Beverly.
March 15, 1845. tf

EASTERN RAILROAD.
WINTER ARRANGMENT.

ON and after Dec. 4th, 1844, Trains leave daily (Sundays excepted,)

Boston for Portland, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P. M.
" Portsmouth, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 4 1-2 P.M.
" Somersworth, Great Falls, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 P.M.
" for Newburyport, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 and 4 1-2 P.M.
" for Salem, 7 1-4 9, 11 3-4 A.M., 2 1-2, 3 1-4, 4 1-2, 6 P.M.

Salem for Portland, 8 A.M., 3 1-4 P.M.
Salem for Portsmouth and Newburyport, 8 A.M., 3 1-4, 5 1-4 P.M.
Portland for Boston, 7 1-2 A.M., 3 P.M.
Saco for Boston, 8 A.M., 3 1-2 P.M.
Somersworth, Great Falls for Boston, 9 A.M.; 4 1-4 P.M.
Portsmouth for Boston, 7 1-4, 10,* A.M., 5 1-2* P.M.
Newburyport for Boston, 8, 10 3-4* A.M. 6 1-4* P.M.
Salem for Boston, 7 3-4, 9 1-4, 10 1-2 A.M.; 12,* 2, 5, 7,* P.M.

*Or on their arrival from the East.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Trains leave Marblehead for Salem, at 7 1-2, 9, 10 1-4 A.M.; 1 3-4, 3 1-2, 4 3-4, 6 1-2, P.M.

Leave Salem for Marblehead, at 8, 9 3-4 A.M., 12 1-2, 3 1-4, 4, 5 1-4, 6 3-4 P.M.

A Merchandize Train will leave Boston, Portland and all intermediate places every day.

Freight Office in Boston, No. 17 Merchants Row, and on the line of the road at the several Depots.

JOHN KINSMAN,
mch 15 Master of Transportation.

Winter Arrangement of the
DANVERS AND SALEM
HOURLY COACHES

THE Danvers and Salem Hourly Coaches will in connection with the Eastern Railroad, leave Danvers and Salem at the following hours, viz:

Leave Danvers at	7 1-4	A.M.	Leave Salem at	8	A.M.
" "	8 3-4		" "	9	1-2
" "	10		" "	11
" "	11 1-2		" "	12	1-4
" "	1 1-2	P.M.	" "	2	P.M.
" "	3		" "	3	3-4
" "	4 1-2		" "	5
" "	6		" "	6	1-2
" "	7		" "	8

For seats apply at Macintire's Hotel, or at Joseph G. Shed's store in Danvers, and at the Essex House and Salem Hotel in Salem.

Railroad passengers taken at the depot on the arrival of the cars from Boston and the East.

☞Extra Coaches furnished at any hour on reasonable terms. SYMONDS & TEEL.
march 15 tf

REMOVAL.

SHEPARD & BURLEY—AUCTIONEERS—respectfully inform their friends and the public that they have removed to the spacious store recently occupied by Geo. C. Varney & Co., No 31 Lawrence Place, Front street, where they will continue a General Auction and Commission Business.

Regular sales of Clothing, Dry and Fancy Goods, every Wednesday and Saturday.

Consignments of merchandize respectfully solicited.

Salem, March 15 1m

Book, Stationery & Music Store.
JOHN P. JEWETT & CO.,
[Successors of Ives & Jewett.]
Opposite the Mansion House, No. 193 Essex

HAVE CONSTANTLY ON HAND,

A COMPLLTE assortment of Standard and Miscellaneous Books.

BLANK BOOKS, of every description.

Fine STATIONERY, Paper, Quills, &c.

Steel Pens, Ink, &c.

Parallel Rules, Wafers, &c.

SCHOOL BOOKS.—Traders from the country and School Committees, furnished with School Books, by the hundred or dozen, at the lowest prices.

All the popular School Books in quantities, on hand.

NEW PUBLICATIONS received as they issue from the press.

Ruled and Plain CAP and POT PAPERS, Ruled and Plain LETTER PAPER, Wrapping and Cartridge Paper, by the ream.

VIOLINS, FLUTES, CLARINETS, FIFES, &c. Bass VIOL and VIOLIN STRINGS, for sale by the bundle or single, at New York prices. Together with a complete assortment of Musical Instruments,

BOOKS REBOUND, at their Bindery Establishment. march 15

HARRISON'S REMEDY
FOR THE PILES.

THIS is an ointment prepared by the undersigned, and has been so thoroughly tested in so many different cases that I never hesitate to warrant relief to those who will give it a fair trial, observing the directions around each box which give a plain treatise on the disease and full instructions as to diet mode of cure, &c. One application at night never fails to relieve the greatest pain and anguish. I am ready to refer to numerous individuals who have proved this Remedy to be the safest, surest, speediest and cheapest

CURE FOR THE PILES,

My agent in Exeter writes thus: "the Pile Remedy which you left me is all sold, please send me soon a further supply, as a number of persons in this town think very highly of it. N. GILMAN."

MORE TESTIMONY.

Salem, Aug. 6. Mr. Harrison: The box of ointment which I had from you has worked like a charm—I have used it only one night, and I am cured. I had used Hays' Liniment as I stated to you, with no benefit but rather was worse, it causing more inflammation. Yrs, J. W.

BLEEDING PILES CURED.

Mr. Harrison—Having given your Peristaltic Lozenges and Pile Remedy a fair trial, I have the satisfaction to inform you that they have operated wonderfully in my case. I had not been able for months to do any work at my trade, owing to exhaustion from bleeding, but I now feel myself cured. The severe pain which I had in my stomach is gone, and my strength is fast returning. I had used various remedies to no purpose, until I tried your medicine. I can also state that Capt. Benj. Ireson of this town has also experienced great benefit from your Remedy. I cheerfully recommend the medicine to all suffering with that distressing complaint—the Piles.

EDWARD H. LEWIS.

Lynn, Sept. 27, 1844.

For sale at 256 Essex street, by the Proprietor, J. S. HARRISON JR.,

Agent in Danvers, S. PROCTOR, Jr.
mch 15 6m

TO AN EPICUREAN WIFE.

BY G. H. S.

'Twere vain to speak of love to thee,
Or tell thee all I feel,
For thou too cold and callous art
While eating cold roast veal:
But from this bosom ne'er shall spring
One word or sigh 'gainst thee,
Thine image in mine inmost soul
Shall dwell while you're at tea.

Thy happiness has been my care,
Throughout long years of peace,
But no responsive feeling bursts
From thee, 'midst all that grease.
Jane, you love me not, and yet
You left your home for me—
Friends take thy love of eating,
Which so alienated thee!

When in the course of coming years,
Thy form unwieldly grows,
Encumbered with excess of fat,
Carbuncles on thy nose,
Then, from the sneers of vulgar crowds,
You'll ask for my protection,
You'll give my tender heart a blow,
And die of indigestion.

MISCELLANY.

LILLY LARNARD.

A VILLAGE SKETCH.

BY CHARLES LANMAN.

Lilly Larnard is the bright particular star of our village, as the poet hath written concerning another:

All that life can rate
Worth name of life, in her hath estimate;
Youth, beauty, wisdom, courage, virtue, all
That happiness and prime can happy call.

She is an only child,—the pride of her mother, and the joy of her father—and he is the clergyman of our secluded and beautiful village. As I passed her cottage home this afternoon, which stands on the southern extremity of the green, about an hundred paces from the meeting-house, I noticed an almost startling stillness about the premises, as if the place were deserted. But this was owing to the heat and natural silence of the hour. The closed window-blinds, half hidden by the woodbine and honey-suckle, the open door, with a kitten sunning itself upon the sill, the neatness and perfect order of every thing around, bespoke it to be not only inhabited, but the abode of peace and contentment. In a green grape-vine arbor beside the house, sat our little heroine, engaged in drawing some curious flowers which she had gathered in the meadow, during the morning walk. At this moment, two of her female cousins stopt at the front gate, and called out to her to go with them on a ramble in the woodlands. I had just had time to change from one hand to the other, my heavy string of trout, (for I was returning home from angling), when out she came bounding like a fawn, robed in white muslin, her gipsey bonnet awry, and a crimson scarf thrown carelessly over her shoulders. This simple dress is a specimen of her taste in such matters, and precisely the very thing to correspond with her dark brown curling hair, regular pearly teeth, blue madonna-like eyes, and blooming cheeks. An Italian greyhound, her constant playmate and companion, soon came following after, and, having licked the hands of the two friends as a token of recognition, leaped a neighboring fence and led the way across a clover field. When I turned to look again, the happy group was crossing a rude bridge, at the foot of a hill, and following the path a short distance, they were lost to view.

Lilly Larnard is now in her sixteenth year She is passionately fond of the country, and I do believe, could she obtain permission, would spend half her time in the open air. If she has not her favorite brook, half a mile from home, where she will angle away her time, wandering up the stream, to where the overhanging trees throw a soft twilight upon her path, and, if necessity requires it, will off with her slippers, and wade in, after a bunch of lilies, or some golden pebbles. The neighboring farmer, as he comes to the post-office after his newspaper, early in the morning, if he chances to pass the parsonage, will most likely be saluted by a sweet smile and bow. And from whom, do you think? Why, from Lilly Larnard, who is airing the parlor, or arranging some flowers beside the door, with her pretty face almost hidden by a 'kerchief white.' And it may be, when mowing in his fields in the afternoon, he will be surprised by a happy laugh in an adjoining copse, and, on looking round, behold a party of girls, returning from the strawberry hills, with Lilly as their leader. She is a pure-hearted lover of nature, and every thing, from the nameless flower to the cloud-capt mountain, hath a language which causes her to feel that the attributes of God are infinite. For her gayer hours nature 'hath a tale of gladness, and a smile and eloquence of beauty, that glides into her darker musings, with a mild and gentle sympathy, which steals away their sharpness, ere she is aware.'

But how does she busy herself at home? it will be asked. She is an early riser; and the first thing she does in the morning, after she has left her room, is, to put every thing in its place, which is out of place. She kindly directs and helps Betty the servant to do those numerous little household duties, such as feeding the chickens and straining the milk, not forgetting to give little Pussy a saucer full of the warm, sweet liquid. She sits the breakfast table, prepares the toast and all those kindred delicacies, and pours out the coffee, sitting at the head of the table, with her parents on either side. And when her father crosses his hands to implore the blessing, she meekly bends down her head, and most sweetly responds to the solemn—amen. If any thing is wanted from the kitchen, she is up and away, and back again, in less than a minute, so sprightly and childlike is she in all her movements. During the forenoon she is generally helping her mother to do what needle-work may be required to be done; or if her father wants her to read one of his chaste and deeply religious sermons, the sweetness of her eloquent voice makes it doubly eloquent.

In the afternoon she is generally engaged in some benevolent duty. Not one in a hundred is so well acquainted with the condition of the poor of the parish. She enters the abode of the poor widow, and besides administering to her temporal wants, gives her the overflowing sympathy of her warm heart, administers the consolations of religion. It is a common sight to see her tripping along the street, with a basket on her arm, covered with a clean napkin; and the clerk, or the more stately merchant, as they see her pass their door, take particular pains to make a respectful bow, inwardly exclaiming, 'who now is to become the debtor of Lilly Larnard?' And the stranger, who may have met her in his morning walk, fails not to inquire of his host at noon, who the lovely 'maiden is, that wears a white dress and a gipsey bonnet?'

Lilly is not only a church-going Christian, but her life is one continual round of charitable deeds and Christian duties, almost worthy of an angelic being. She has a class of little boys in the Sabbath school, and they are all so fond of their amiable teacher, that I do believe they would undergo any trial for her sake. She loves her Bible, and would be unhappy were she deprived of the privilege of reading it every day. When she rises from her pillow at dawn, she kneels beside her couch, and breathes her offering of prayer; and so, too, when the day is ended and she retires to repose.

Her father is a clergyman of easy fortune.—The prayer of his youth, 'give me neither poverty nor riches,' seems to have been kindly answered by the Most High. About one year ago he bought a beautiful chesnut pony, and all saddled and bridled, presented to Lilley on her birth-day. As might be expected she was perfectly transported with the gift. 'O, father,' said she, 'how I will try to merit your approbation in every action of my life!' A colored boy named Tommy, is Lilly's groom and page, and he seems to love the pony and his mistress above every thing else in the world. A smarter and better hearted page did not follow a high born lady of the Feudal times. Lilly has now become a first-rate rider, and often when with her friends, takes pleasure in boasting of her noble accomplishment, and the speed of her horse. When she has been out riding, she most always manages to canter through the middle street of the village, on her return. Sometimes she is alone, with her dog, and sometimes accompanied by some female friend. Only a week ago, (the very day I caught that two pound trout,) while standing upon a hill, I saw her try to leap a narrow, but deep brook, and she did not give up trying until she had accomplished the deed. I think if her pony had been gifted with the power of speech, he would have said, 'well done, you courageous girl, you possess more spirit than I thought you had.'

Lilly left school about two years ago, because her father chose to superintend her education himself. She is a good scholar, and speaks French fluently. You could hardly puzzle her with questions in history, geography, or mathematics. Her modesty and simplicity of character are so great that you would be surprised at the extent of her book information and practical knowledge. She has a wonderful talent for making herself agreeable under all circumstances. If she meets a beggar woman in the street, she will talk familiarly with her about her sorrows, instructing her how to bear up under every trial. She is the universal favorite of the whole village. All who know her, the poor and the rich, from the child of three years to the hoary head, all love her with the affection of a sister or daughter. She smiles with those who smile, and weeps with those who weep. Servant girls consult with her about purchasing a new dress, and little children invite her to participate with them in their various pastimes.

Lilly Larnard is a lover of poetry, whether she sees it in the primrose, the evening cloud, or hears it in the laughing rivulet and the song of birds; or reads it in the pages of Spenser and Milton, Shakespeare, Wordsworth, and Coleridge. She is fond of music, too, and plays delightfully on the harp. Her voice is sweeter than the sound of falling waters, when heard at a distance, in the stillness of the twilight hour. She knows nothing of fashion, and if she did, would consider it beneath her dignity to be incommoded or swayed by it. Instead of decking herself with gew-gaws, as thousands do, for a flashy appearance in the gay saloon, within sound of the rude jest and foolish flattery, she strives, by watchfulness and care to purify her daily conduct, for she is not less prone to sin than all other human hearts. Necklaces does she sometimes wear in her playful glee, made of the purple fruit that feeds the small birds in the morn, and beautiful is her gentle bosom.

Never has she been more than thirty miles away from the place of her birth. She has read of cities and the busy multitudes that throng them, of armies and navies, of politics and war, but all these things to her are but as the visions of a dream. She is ignorant of the real condition and character of the great world, for nought but the echo of its din has ever fallen upon her ear. She listens with wonder to the deeds which I sometimes tell her I have been an unwilling witness of in the wilderness of men. She thinks it strange that the inhabitants of cities should think so much of the present life and so little of the future. Her days have been spent in innocence beneath the blue dome of the illimitable sky, inhaling the pure, unadulterated air of the country, now sporting in the sunshine, and now sprinkled by a refreshing shower, while the loveliest of flowers and birds, and holy and tender affections, have been her hourly companions; and her nights have passed away in pleasant dreams of that bright world beyond the stars.

SUBDUED TEMPER.

EXAMPLE OF ROGER SHERMAN.

Roger Sherman was naturally possessed of strong passions; but over these he at length obtained an extraordinary control. He became habitually calm, sedate, and self-possessed. He was one of those men who are not ashamed to maintain the forms of religion in his family. One morning he called them together, as usual, to lead them in prayer to God; the "old family Bible" was brought out and laid on the table. Mr. Sherman took his seat, and beside him placed one of his children, a small child—a child of his old age; the rest of the family were seated round the room; several of these were now grown up. Besides these, some of the tutors of the college were boarders in the family, and were present at the time alluded to. His aged and now superannuated mother occupied a corner of the room, opposite the place where the distinguished judge of Connecticut sat. At length he opened the Bible and began to read. The child, which was seated beside him, made some little disturbance, upon which Mr. Sherman paused, and told it to be still. Again he proceeded; but again he paused, to reprimand the little offender, whose playful disposition would scarcely permit it to be still.

At this time, he gently tapped its ear. The blow, if it might be called a blow, caught the attention of his aged mother, who now, with some effort, rose from her seat, and tottered across the room. At length she reached the chair of Mr. Sherman, and in a moment most unexpected to him, she gave him a blow on the ear, with all the power she could summon. "There," said she, "you strike your child and I will strike mine!"

For a moment, the blood was seen rushing to the face of Mr. Sherman; but it was only for a moment, when all was calm and mild as usual. He paused—he raised his spectacles—he cast his eye upon his mother—again it fell upon the book, from which he had been reading. Not a word escaped him; but again he calmly pursued the service, and soon after sought, in prayer, an ability to set an example before his household, which should be worthy of their imitation. Such a victory was worth more than the proudest victory ever achieved in the field of battle.

Sir Isaac Newton' temper, it is said, was so equable and mild, that no accident could disturb it; a remarkable instance of which, is related as follows: Sir Isaac had a favorite little dog, which he called Diamond. Being one evening called out of his study into the next room, Diamond was left behind. When Sir Isaac returned, having been absent but a few minutes, he had the mortification to find that Diamond had overset a lighted candle among some papers, the nearly finished labor of twenty years, which soon were in flames, and almost consumed to ashes. This loss, as Sir Isaac was then very far advanced in years, was irretrievable,; yet, without once striking the dog, he only rebuked him with this exclamation; "Oh, Diamond! Diamond! you little know the mischief you have done!"

[Chris. Family Magazine.

A SCENE IN A COURT OF JUSTICE.

I have frequently seen counsel in our courts of law, who attempting to be very witty at the expense of some adverse witness, get the laugh completely turned on themselves by the happy retorts of the party under cross-examination. In the spring of the year 1838, a very amusing instance of this kind occurred, in which the laugh was well turned against a counsel who was doing his best to be at once severe and witty at the expense of an adverse witness. The latter was one of the skin-and-bone class of persons, and by a curious coincidence so was the counsel. You could not look on either without coming to the conclusion that to partake of a substantial meal must be an era in his existence.

'So, sir,' says the counsel to the witness, in the usual brow-beating style, 'So you have been in the prosecutor's house?'

Witness. I have.

Counsel. Have you been often?

Witness. Sometimes. [A laugh.]

Counsel. That sir, is not an answer to my question. I ask, have you been in this person's house often!

Witness. (With much archness of manner.) I don't know what you mean by often.

Counsel. Have you been twenty times?

Witness. (laughter.)

Counsel. Come sir, don't be rude. I ask you, have you been twenty times in the house?

Witness. I can't speak positively as to the number of times.

The Bench. About the number of times; speaking according to the best of your belief!

Witness. (With great readiness and politeness.) I should think my lord I have have been in the prosecutor's house from fifteen to twenty times.

Counsel. (With great harshness of manner. So. sir, though you could not answer a question when put by me, you found no difficulty in answering it when put by his lordship.

Witness. His lordship put—Counsel. (Interrupting witness. Stay a little, if you please sir.

Witness. O, certainly: as long as you like. I'm in no particular hurry. [Loud laughter.]

Counsel. Perhaps, sir, you would condescend to tell the court what your object was in going to the prosecutor's house.

Witness. The Court has not asked me the question. [Renewed laughter.]

Counsel. Don't be insolent, sir; I have asked you the question.

Witness. Then I can't answer you.

Counsel. You must answer me, sir.

Witness. I can't: for I often went without knowing the reason why. [Laughter.]

Counsel. Can you inform us, then, about what particular hour?

Witness. [Looking towards the Bench.] Is it necessary that I should answer that question, my lord?

The Judge. If you can, I do not see why you should not.

Counsel. Come, sir, answer the question.

Witness. I should suppose it generally was between one and two o'clock.

Counsel. [His countenance brightening up as if he had made some important discovery.] O, I see, that was about the dinner hour, was it not?

Witness, I never inquired what was the dinner hour. [Laughter.]

Counsel. Perhaps not; but I dare say your nose would be of some service in enabling you to ascertain it.

Witness. My nose, sir, never asks questions. Loud [laughter.]

Counsel. [His face coloring with confusion.] But, though your nose does not speak, I dare say it has acquired considerable dexterity, from experience, at discovering when a good dinner is on the table of a friend, and enabling you to regulate your visits accordingly.

Witness. You must be judging of my nose from your own, sir. [Roars of laughter, in which the Bench joined.]

Counsel. [Laboring to conceal his mortification.] You seem disposed to be very witty to-day, sir.

Witness. I think we are, sir.

[This sarcastic, though only implied allusion to the efforts of the counsel to be witty, told with admirable effect.]

Counsel. You say that your favorite hour for visiting this man's house was between the hours of one and two o'clock.

Witness. I never said anything of the kind.

Counsel. [Pulling himself up.] What, do you mean to deny what you have just said? Recollect, sir, you are on your oath.

Witness. I said that was generally about the time; but I never said anything about "favorite hour."

Counsel. Well, sir, perhaps you would have no objection to tell us whether you were in the habit of partaking of the prosecutor's dinner, when honoring him with your visits at the particular time you mention.

Witness. I do not see what that has to do with the present case.

Counsel, It's not what you see, sir. Pray, sir, answer me the question, whether, you were in the habit of partaking of this man's dinner on such occasions?

Witness. Whether I partook of it or not depended on circumstances.

Counsel. On what circumstances, sir?

Witness. Why, on whether I was asked to partake or not. [Loud laughter.]

Counsel. Yes, I dare say you never declined an invitation when you got one.

Witness. [With renewed emphasis.]—Never, sir. Never refuse a good dinner when I can get one. [Renewed laughter.]

Counsel. Ay, I can well believe that. And I am sure you would do the dinner of any friend ample justice.

Witness. I always do my best, sir, on such occasions. [Loud laughter.]

Counsel. I don't doubt it; you have always, I suppose, a good appetite and a capacious stomach when at the table of a friend.

Witness. Always, sir.

Counsel. Ay, you look the very picture of a hungry fellow.

Witness. We look as if we were on starvation allowance.

[The walls of the Court resounded again with the shouts of laughter which followed this severe retort, the effect of which was greatly heightened by the peculiar archness of manner in which it was made. The learned gentleman was completely crest-fallen, and made no further efforts to be witty at the witness's expense.

AN ESTIMATE OF MARRIAGE.

The said marriage was fun—pooty fun, to be sure. When I was jist like an omnibus: I was a passenger, paid my levy and had'nt nothing more to do with it than to sit down, & care not a button for anything—S'posing the omnibus got upset—well, I walks off and leaves the man to pick up the pieces. But then, I must take a wife and be hanged to me. It's all very well for a while; but afterwards it's what did I get by it? How much fun? Why a jawing old woman and three squallers. Mighty different from courting. Instead of, "yes, my duck,' 'No, my dear,' 'As you please, honey,' and 'When you like, lovely,' like what it was in courting times, it's riglar row. Sour looks and cold potatos, children and table cloths badly off for soap, always darning and mending, and nothing ever darned or mended. If it wasn't that I am particularly sober, I'd be inclined to drink. My house ain't my own—my money ain't my own—I belong to four people besides myself—the old woman and the three children—I'm a partnership concern, and so many have got their fingers in the till, that I must bust up—I'll break, and sign over the stock in trade to you."—Sam Slick.

COLLEGE DIVINITY.—At a late catechetical examination in Trinity College, Dublin, an examiner, well known for his delight in badgering blockheads, enjoyed the following treat:

Q. It is recoded in scripture that a beast spoke—what was the beast?

A. A whale.

Q. To whom did the whale speak?

A. To Moses in the bulrushes.

Q. What did the whale say:

A. Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian?

Q. What did Moses reply?

A. Thou art the man.

A. QUERY.—"Sam, who was the first man that struck a bell?"

"Go 'long wid your nonsense, Dick; tell me yourself."

"Well, you is a dumb niggar, sure; caze if you would only look in Webster, you would see that Cain was the first man that struck A bel."

A SIMILE.—An old lady, not remarkable for the clearness of her ideas, describing a fine summer evening, said, "It was a beautiful bright night—the moon made every thing as light as a feather."

SAVING FUEL.

Paddy, when told a stove would save
Just half his usual fuel, Replied, "Arrah, then, two I'll have,
And save it all—my jewel."

"By grasping at Time, you have reached eternity," as the judge told the man who was sentenced to be hung for stealing a clock.

AGRICULTURAL.

TOP DRESSING FOR SPRING WHEAT.

Mr. Bacon, in an essay in the Boston Cultivator, thinks this is the preferable way of applying the manure. The land should be well manured, however, for the previous crop. Then, no matter how coarse that which is applied after sowing and harrowing. The wheat will feel it not only as a manure, but as a preventive of too great dryness of the soil, and from the scorching rays of the sun upon the roots in very dry, warm weather. It is a fact, which every farmer must have noticed, that spring wheat does best on a moist (not wet) soil, and in cool seasons. But another benefit comes from it. You wish to stock your wheat land, for the thorough tillage you have given it renders it fit for a good piece of meadow. The top dressing will protect your young grass (harrow in your grass-seed) from being burnt up, and prevent the earth around the roots from becoming hard if heavy storms fall upon it. It will continue its protection when the wheat is taken off and it is exposed to the hot rays of the scorching August sun, which often ruins many a well-stocked acre.

From the Massachusetts Ploughman.

EIGHTH AGRICULTURAL MEETING.

On Tuesday evening Feb. 25th, the farmers held another meeting in the State House. Subject of conversation, Irrigation and draining. President Lincoln in the chair.

Mr S. COLE opened and remarked that the object of Irrigation was to supply a suitable quantity of water to grass lands. Draining was necessary to render soils dry enough for tillage. Fertile soils are usually too wet.

Hon. MR. ALLEN, of Pembroke said his poverty compelled him, on commencing farming, to try the most economical mode. His land needs draining but he thinks it unnecessary to make covered drains. He had fallowed his lands, ploughing repeatedly through the summer to enrich and to throw them into ridges. His furrows were eight or nine inches deep, and he found he could drain his lands sufficiently by means of his plough. His dead or centre furrows, left open drains that may be carted over with safety; whereas covered drains are not always safe. His grass would grow in these open drains and no land was lost.

Mr MOTLEY, of Boston, gave an account of ditching a swamp, full of alders, and making good land of it. He dug a ditch seven or eight feet wide and threw up an island in the middle. This island, when rotted, he used as manure.

SUBSOIL PLOWING.

Col. Sherwood, of Auburn, made use of the sub-soil plough the past season on fifteen acres.

A part of the subsoiled land was planted with corn, and a part sown with wheat in the fall, and gravel. He used the subsoil plough. It required four oxen to draw it, and to work to the best advantage at the depth it was run in this case, which was one foot. Col. Sherwood thinks there ought to be six oxen. The team worked over from an acre, to an acre and a quarter per day. The ground had not been ploughed for thirty years. It was naturally wet, so much so that in a wet time; the water would stand on it to the injury of the grass. The effect of the subsoiling was to render the soil and subsoil so pliable, that the water immediately found its way through, and though a portion of the past season was very wet, the water at no time remained so near the surface as to do the least injury to the crop. That part which was put to corn, was first planted on the 20th of May, but the seed failed, and it was planted again on the last day of May and first day of June, and grew so vigorously that it got ripe as soon as other corn in the neighborhood. Several strips of twenty to thirty feet wide were left through the field not subsoiled. The difference in favor of the subsoiled portion was very obvious in the ranker growth and larger size of the corn on that part—it was so plain that it might be seen to a row. The different portions were not measured separately at harvest time. The effect of subsoiling on the wheat crop, cannot be told at present.—Alb. Cult.

A GOOD COMPOST FOR SANDY LAND.

Take 10 loads of stable or barnyard manure, 5 loads or clay, 20 bushels of ashes, and 20 bushels of lime; mix the whole well together, and let it remain in a pile a few weeks; then turn it over, and it will be fit to apply to the land.

The above will make a better dressing for an acre of sand than twenty or twenty-five loads of stable or barnyard manure alone, and will last longer.—Amer. Far.

ROTATION OF CROPS.

Mr Benj. A. Hart, of Datchess county, practices the following course with success: first year, corn and roots—the second, oats with clover seed, to remain two years in clover; the first crop cut for hay the second, the seed stripped off, leaving the grass to be partly eaten off by wethers, which are procured in October, fattened on clover, hay, and sent to market on the first of March, leaving a moderate stock on hand through the summer,

GRAFTING.

Many begin early in early in April, to graft their apple trees, while others defer till June. We think (says the Massachusetts Ploughman) May a better month than either, and there will be but little difficulty in making the scions live if they are well set. We advise to set scions in nursery trees quite close to the ground, as the bodies of the trees will be more straight and handsome.

DANVERS COURIER.

VOL. 1. SATURDAY MORNING, MARCH 29, 1845. NUMBER 2.

THE DANVERS COURIER

IS PUBLISHED BY

GEORGE R. CARLTON,

EVERY SATURDAY MORNING,

A few doors North of Mackintire's Hotel,

CENTRAL ST.—SOUTH DANVERS.

Terms—$1 50 if paid in advance, or $2 00, if not paid within one month of the time of subscribing.

The carriers are not allowed to sell any copies of the Courier. Single copies may be obtained at the office, at 5 cents each.

Advertisements will be inserted on favorable terms.

CALENDAR OF COURTS

TO BE HELD IN THE COUNTY OF ESSEX IN THE YEAR 1845.

April 1—Probate,—Salem.
" 2 " Marblehead.
" 8—County Commissioners,—Ipswich.
" 15—Probate,—Haverhill.
" 29—Supreme Judicial,—Ipswich.
May 6—Probate,—Ipswich.
" 13 " Gloucester.
" 20 " Salem.
June 3 " Ipswich.
" 10 " Newburyport.
" 16—Common Pleas,—Ipswich.
July 1—Probate,—Salem.
" 2 " Lynn.
" 8—County Commissioners,—Salem.
" 15—Probate,—Andover, S. P.
August 5 " Ipswich.
" 19 " Salem.
Sept. 2 " Ipswich.
" 9 " Newburyport.
" 15—Common Pleas,—Newburyport.
Oct. 7—Probate,—Salem.
" 8 " Marblehead.
" 14—County Commissioners.—Newburyp't.
" 21—Probate,—Haverhill.
Nov. 4—Supreme Judicial,—Salem.
" 4—Probate,—Ipswich.
" 11 " Gloucester.
" 18 " Salem.
Dec. 2 " Ipswich.
" 9 " Newburyport.
" 15—Common Pleas, Ipswich.
" 23—County Commissioners,—at such place as ordered at the preceding term.

POETRY.

BANKS OF THE RHINE.

The castled crag of Drachenfels
Frowns o'er the wide and winding Rhine,
Whose breast of waters broadly swells
Between the banks which bear the vine,
And scatter'd cities crowning these,
Whose far white walls along them shine,
Have strew'd a scene, which I should see
With double joy wert thou with me!

And peasant girls, with deep-blue eyes,
And hands which offer early flowers,
Walk smiling o'er this paradise;
Above, the frequent feudal towers
Through green leaves lift their walls of grey;
And many a rock which steeply lowers,
And noble arch in proud decay,
Look o'er this vale of vintage bowers;
But one thing want these banks of Rhine,—
Thy gentle hand to clasp in mine!

I send the lilies given to me;
Though long before thy hand they touch,
I know that they must withered be,
But yet reject them not as such;
For I have cherished them as dear,
Because they yet may meet thine eye,
And guide thy soul to mine, even here,
When thou behold'st them drooping nigh,
And know'st them gathered by the Rhine,
And offer'd from my heart to thine!

The river nobly foams and flows,
The charm of this enchanted ground,
And all its thousand turns disclose
Some fresher beauty varying round;
The haughtiest breast its wish might bound
Through life to dwell delighted here;
Nor could on earth a spot be found
To nature and to me so dear,
Could thy dear eyes, in following mine,
Still sweeten more these banks of Rhine!

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE NEW POSTAGE LAW.

It is now certain that at last the Postage Bill has passed both houses of Congress, been signed by the President, and that according to one of its provisions, it will go into effect on the first of July next. The provisions of the bill are in substance these. It fixes the rate of postage on all single letters at 5 cents for a distance not exceeding 300 miles, for a greater distance, 10 cents. Every letter not over one half an ounce in weight is to be deemed a single letter, and every additional half ounce is to be charged at the rate of a single letter. Newspapers are to go free thirty miles; one half cent is to be charged for all over thirty and under one hundred, and over one hundred, one cent. The franking privilege is restricted to members of Congress and a few others.

That such a reform in the reduction of postage has been needed, is abundantly proved by the fact that it has been long and loudly called for by a very great majority of the people of the United States. Petition after petition from nearly every part of the country has been presented to Congress that some measures might be taken to effect such a change, and although every project has met with strong and determined opposition, a bill has now been passed which cannot fail to be satisfactory to every one: thus furnishing another demonstration of the certainty of the success of every reform which the people have thought deeply upon, and really feel the need of.

The postage system of our country is one of positive and peculiar interest. To our merchants and traders, to our mechanics and manufacturers, by the ready means of communication between different and distant parts of our country, by giving early information of the state of the markets both abroad and at home, and in numerous other respects, its permanent benefits and innumerable conveniences are easily perceived for they are universally felt. The facilities which it affords to the business men of our community, are perhaps not more important than the favors, blessings and happiness which it confers upon it as composed of friends, parents, brothers, sisters and lovers. I appeal to you, blushing girls and young men, who have, by its means, just received the first, long looked for love-letter, and with beating hearts have slipped away into some hidden corner to devour its delicious contents, to bear witness to the truth of this last item. In the active, bustling, restless life of our country especially, friends are so often separated, so many sons have left their parents to make their fortunes in the city, or to enter the opening fields of labor in the South and West, that the importance and influence of a well-regulated conveyance of letters are incalculable. In scattering abroad, also, all over our land the papers with which the press is teeming, filled with valuable information, its effects are equally great and lasting.

And not only is it most beneficial to all classes of the community, but also its tendency to promote the national prosperity and happiness cannot be doubted. In a country like ours occupying such a wide, almost unlimited extent of territory, embracing so great a variety of climate, and consequently giving employment to so many different occupations, and creating so many conflicting interests, nothing can be of more importance. The prejudices of one occupation against another, the jealousies of different sections, which, with a long train of evil consequences, naturally arise in in such a state of things, can in no way be more effectively averted than by making the people of each section thoroughly acquainted with the characters, habits and modes of thinking of those of every other. To know and to understand each other is indeed the strongest bond of union between the States. Everything then, tending to increase that knowledge, to call into action the natural sympathy and affection really existing between them, and to strengthen the ties that bind them into one, is a great and lasting national benefit, and as such deserves the consideration of every lover of his country.

Such, we conceive, are some of the effects of the Post Office system, and being of such vital importance, and exerting such a powerful and wide spread influence, it is evident that the easiest, cheapest and most expeditious mode of communication should be adopted. This new Bill in this respect is all that could be asked for and must in a great measure accomplish this end. It will render these benefits and blessings more universal, and its good effects must soon be felt all over the land. *

FOR THE DANVERS COURIER.

A NEW HALL.

There is one public building needed in the south part of the town which we hope will soon be provided. I mean a hall for public meetings. It has been the wish of many that the town should erect two town halls, one in each parish, but the condition of the finances now forbid this hope. How then shall it be done? I have heard the suggestion that it could be effected by a joint company; and there cannot be a doubt such property would be productive and yield a good interest. They have tried the experiment in Marblehead and built a fine hall which pays the proprietors 10 per cent. Perhaps some of our public institutions would embark in the project and provide accomodations for their meetings. We have a large and flourishing division of the Sons of Temperance, a Masonic Lodge and the Mechanic Institute, and if these should unite their efforts and their funds in such an undertaking it would undoubtedly advance the prosperity of all these societies as well as provide suitable accomodation for their meetings. We hope public attention will be drawn to this subject and that we shall have an edifice which shall be a credit to the town.

CENTRAL STREET.

SELECTED TALES.

JUDGE CRANE.

Shortly after the first republican constitution of the State of New York was framed, and the judiciary system was established for the civil department, the supreme court, or that branch of it called the "circuit court," was appointed for one of the circuits, in the county of Dutchess, and the eccentric Judge Crane was to preside. Judge Crane was very wealthy, and was highly respected for his public and private virtue, especially for his charitableness to the poor; but he always dressed in a plain garb, and would hardly ever wear an overcoat, whatever might be the state of the weather, and it was seldom that he rode when he went abroad, although he owned many valuable horses. On the morning of the day in which the court was to begin, the Judge set out before day, and walked gently on, through hail, rain, and snow, to the appointed place. On arriving at Poughkeepsie, cold and wet, he walked to a tavern, where he found the landlady and her servants were making great preparations for the entertainment of the judges, lawyers, and other gentlemen, whom they expected would attend the cuircuit court.

The judge was determined to have some sport, and in a pleasant tone addressed the landlady; I have no money, and was obliged to come to court, and I have walked through this dreadful storm more than twenty miles. I am wet and cold, dry and hungry. I want something to eat before the court begins; when the landlady put herself in a magisterial posture, and putting on a countenance of contempt, said to the judge, you are wet and cold, dry and hot; how can all that be? No, my dear madam, says the judge, I said that I was wet and cold—and if you had been out as long as I have been in this storm, I think you would likewise be wet and cold. I said that I wanted something to drink and eat. But you have no money, you say, retorted the landlady. Well, I tell you the truth; but were I as rich as Crœsus, I would be willing to work for something to eat and drink.

Crœsus! who is Crœsus says the lady. I never knew him, said the judge, but I have understood that he was very rich. I want something to drink, and were I as poor as Job in his utmost calamity, and had my health and strength as well as I now have, I would willingly go to work a little while, if I could get something to drink, and a good bite of cold victuals. Well old daddy, says she, how much do you want to drink? Half a gill of good brandy, madam, said he. Very well, says she, I will give you half a gill and some cold victuals, if you will go into the back yard, and cut and split three arms full of wood, and bring it into the kitchen, where the servants want to make a good fire to dry the gentleman's great coats when they come; and after you get your victuals I shall want you to go away. Well, says he, give me the brandy, and I'll soon bring the wood. He drank the liquor, and walked quietly to the yard, where he found a good axe, and he soon laid by the kitchen fire a quantity of wood, viz. his arms three times full. When the landlady had got his cold luncheon on the table, in hopes that he would eat and be off. Now for the good bite of victuals, said the judge. There it is, said she, coldly. And it is almost as cold as myself, but not half so wet, for I see neither tea, nor coffee, nor chocolate to wet it. Beggars must not be choosers, said she. I am not begging of you, madam, said he, but have paid the full price demanded. I told you, said she, that I would give you cold victuals, and there is cold boiled ham, cold pork and beef, cold potatoes and turnips, and vinegar, pickles, and soup; and if you want any thing hot, there is mustard and pepper, and here is good bread, good butter, and good cheese, and it is all good enough for such an old ragamuffin as you are. It is all very good, madam, said he, pleasantly, but pray be so good as to let me have some new milk, warm, right from the cow, to wet these good vitcuals. The cows are not milked, says she. Then let me have a bowl of cold milk, said he. I will not send servants in this storm to the spring house to skim it for you, said she. Said he with a pleasant smile, Dear madam, I have a good wife at home, older than you are, who would go out in a worse storm than this, to milk the cows, and bring the milk to the poorest man on earth, at his request, or to bring the milk from the spring house, cream and all, without skimming, to feed the most abject of human beings. You must have a very good wife at home, says she. Indeed, I have, said he, and she keeps my clothes clean and whole, notwithstanding you called me an old ragamuffin.—Indeed, I am not ashamed to appear abroad in the clothes I wear in any good company. Well, I must confess, says she, that when you have your broad brimmed hat off, you look middling well, but I want you to eat and be off, for we want the fire to dry the gentlemen's great coats and umbrellas by; and among the rest we expect Judge Crane. Judge Crane, said the Judge, who is Judge Crane? The circuit judge, said she, one of the supreme judges, you old fool.

Well, said the judge, I will bet a goose that Judge Crane has not had, and will not have a great coat on his back, or an umbrella over his head this day. You old goose, said she, I care nothing for your bets. Eat and be off, I tell you, Judge Crane is to be here, and we've no room for you. I don't care, said he, one straw more for Judge Crane than I do for myself, and it has got to be so late, that if he has to come at this time of day, he would be more likely to go direct to the court house, and stay until dinner time, than to go to any tavern; and if business was very urgent, he would be very likely to stay from dinner. I even know something about the old codger, and some people say he is a rusty, crusty, fusty, old fudge. Pretty talk, indeed, says the landlady, about the supreme judge. Now eat your cold chuck, and be off, or be off without eating, just as you please.—I tell you, said the Judge, Judge Crane is not the supreme judge, and even if he were, he is no more fit to be a judge than I am. Well, now be off with yourself, says she. Do n't be in so great a hurry, said he mildly. I wish to know who is the landlord here? I wish to know where he is? He is the high sheriff of the county, and won't be home till night; but if he were here you wouldn't stay long. Well madam, said he, give me a cup of cider to wet my victuals, if you won't give me milk. Not a drop, says her ladyship. The Judge, who had now got pretty well warmed and dried, and wished for his breakfast, put on a stern countenance, and positively declared he would not leave the room and fire until he pleased. But, added he, if you will grant my request, I will eat and be off. The cider was immediately brought, and the Judge partook heartily of the collation before him, took his broad brimmed hat, and gently walked to the court house, where he found good fires and clean floors, and during the court hours he presided with dignity and propriety.

When the judge withdrew, the landlady anxiously looked after him, for some time, as he walked steadily on towards the court house, supposing him to be some poor man, summoned up to court as a witness, or some vagabond, who might give her farther trouble in time of courts and expressed to her servants a desire that they would see that he did not disturb the gentleman and the Judges who might put up there; while some of the girls declared, if he did come, they would use some of his expressions, which he used respecting Judge Crane. Let me see, says one, "rusty, crusty," yes, "fusty old fudge," says another.

When dinner was announced, the court, not being thronged, was immediately adjourned, and the day being stormy and cold, the Judges and lawyers poured into the sheriff's tavern where they were sure of good fare; all except Judge Crane who walked to a store and purchased a valuable shawl, and put it into his pocket on the inside of his coat; then walked quietly to the tavern.—While he was thus detained, the landlady entered the dining room and earnestly re-inquired if Judge Crane had come in? The answer was, Not yet, madam, and perhaps he may not come. The landlady, who was anxious to pay the highest respect to the supreme judge, retired to the kitchen, not a little chagrined or disappointed. In the meantime the Judge had arrived, and being at proper times very sociable, and at all times fond of cheering the minds of those present, he began to make some pertinent remarks, and to tell some lively anecdotes calculated to convey good morals, which kept the whole company in a roar of laughter. At this instant, one of the waiting maids entered to inform the gentlemen that dinner was ready. She did her errand, and hastened back to her mistress with the tidings that the old fusty fellow with the broad brimmed hat, was right in among the gentlemen, talking as loud as he could, and all the judges and lawyers were laughing at him. Then go, says she, and whisper to the old man that I wish him to come down into the kitchen. The errand was done accordingly, and the Judge said in a low voice to the girl, tell your mistress, that I have a little business to do with these lawyers, and when done I'll be off in the course of two or three days.

Well, Betty, says the mistress, go back, and when the gentlemen begin to sit down, do you stand by the head of the table, and whisper to some gentleman, that I wish a vacant place left at the head of the table for Judge Crane, and then do you hasten back and see that John has the cider and other liquors in good order. And Mary, do you fill two more turreens with gravy, and put one at each end of the table. And Martha, do you see that all the clean plates for a change are ready, and that the tarts and pies are in good order. Betty again repaired to her post at the head of the table, and softly informed a gentleman of the request of her mistress. Certainly, said the gentleman; and Betty hastened back to assist John. The gentlemen now sat down to an excellent repast, and after a short ejaculatory address to the throne of grace delivered by Judge Crane, in which he adored the Father of all mercies, for feeding all his creatures throughout the immensity of space—invoked a blessing on that portion of earthly bounty then before them, and supplicated divine mercy through the merits of our Redeemer, the gentlemen began to carve and serve round in usual form.

But as the Judge was of a singular turn in almost every thing, and had taken a fancy that if a person eats light food and that which is more solid and harder of digestion, at the same meal, that the light food should be eaten first; he therefore filled his plate with some pudding, made of milk, rice, and eggs, and placing himself in rather an awkward situation, with his left elbow on the table, and his head near the plate, began to eat according to his common custom, which was very fast, although he was no great eater. And some of the gentlemen near the Judge, following his example as to partaking of the pudding before the meat, of course a large deep vessel, which had contained that article, was nearly emptied, when Mary entered with the two additional turreens of gravy, according to the command of her mistress, and as she sat down the last near the Judge, he says to her in an austere manner, bring me a clean plate to eat sallad on. The abrupt manner in which he addressed her, and her disgust at seeing him in that position so disconcerted the poor girl, that she did not observe that any one excepting the Judge had partaken of the pudding, nor did she know what he meant by sallad; but she observed that the large pudding pan was nearly empty, and then hastened back with her utmost speed to her mistress and addressed her with, Why, madam, that old fellow is there yet, and he is certainly crazy or drunk, for he is down at the table, and has eaten more than a skipple* of the rice pudding already, and his nose is right down in a plate-full now, shovelling it in like a hog, and he told me, as if he was lord of the manor, to bring him a clean plate to eat sallad on. Bless me, where can we get sallad at this time of the year? And the gentlemen have not done carving, and not one has begun to eat meat, much less to eat a tub full of pudding.

Aye, he'll get a clean plate, says Martha, before gentlemen want clean plates.

I'll clear him out, says the mistress, and starts for the dining room, burning with indignation.

The Judge was remarkable for not giving unnecessary trouble to any body where he put up, and generally ate whatever was set before him without making any remarks; and seldom made use of more than one plate at a meal; but at this time he had observed near him a dish of beautiful raw white cabbage, cut up and put into vinegar, (which the Low Dutch at Poughkeepsie call cold slaw, and which he called sallad,) and he wished for a separate plate to prepare some of it for his own fancy. The carving and serving were not yet finished, when he expected the clean plate, and when the landlady arrived at the door of the dining room, determined to drive him out. She advanced with a firm step to the door, and fixed her keen eye firmly on the Judge, when he turned his eye that way and observing her, mildly said Landlady, can I have a clean plate to eat some sallad on? A clean plate and sallad! retorted the landlady indignantly, I wish you would come into the kitchen until gentlemen have dined: I had reserved that seat for Judge Crane. The company were struck with astonishment, and fixed their eyes alternately on the landlady and on the Judge; and sat or stood in mute suspense—when the Judge gracefully raised himself up in the chair, carelessly folding his arms across his breast, then putting his head awkwardly on one side—you reserved this seat for Judge Crane, did you, landlady? Indeed I did, says she. It was very kind, says he, in an ironical tone, but if you will just step to the door and see if he is coming, or send one of the servants to call for him, with your permission and the approbation of these gentlemen, with whom I have some business to do, I will occupy his seat until you shall find the Judge. Find the Judge, said she with emphasis; go look for him yourself, not send me or my servants. I gave you your breakfast this morning for chopping a little wood because you had no money;—and I expected you would go away quietly, and keep away, and now you must come here to disturb gentlemen at dinner. Here the whole joke burst upon the minds of the gentlemen present, who fell into a loud fit of laughter. After the tumult had a little subsided, says the Judge mildly, did I chop wood to pay for my breakfast? Indeed you did, says she, and said you had no money. I told you the truth, says the Judge, but I have a beautiful shawl worth more than ten dollars, which I just now bought, and will leave it with you in pawn, if you will only let me eat dinner with these gentlemen. Here the gentlemen were biting their lips to keep from laughter. How did you buy the shawl worth more than ten dollars, without money? I bought it on credit, says he. And she. I brought it from home, said he. This is a likely story, and something like your abuse of Judge Crane this morning, said she. How could I abuse the Judge if he was not present? said he. Why, says she, you called him a rusty, fusty fudge, and old codger, and said you did not care a rye straw more for him than you did for yourself. And here the whole company were in an uproar of laughter again. But as soon as it a little subsided, one of the gentleman asked the landlady how she knew that the gentleman she was adressing was not Judge Crane? Said she He looks more like a snipe than a crane!

Here the loud laughter burst forth a third time. And after a little pause the Judge said I must confess that I am not a bird of very fine feathers, but I assure you that I am a Crane, and a crane is often a very useful instrument. I saw a very good one in your kitchen this morning; and sometimes an instrument called a "crane" is of incalculable use madam;—before she had time to reply, some of the gentlemen with whom she was acquainted, assured her that she was talking with the presiding Judge. Astonished and confounded, she attempted some excuse, and hastily asked his pardon for her rudeness.

The Judge had by this time, unobserved, taken from his pocket the beautiful shawl and folded it at full length one way, and in a narrow form the other, and being of very fine texture, appeared more like an elegant sash than like a valuable shawl.—When he arose, with dignity and with a half smile, he advanced a few steps towards the landlady, saying, 'it is not my province to pardon, but it is my buisiuess to judge! and I judge that you and I shall hereafter be friends—and I judge that you will, without hesitation, receive this as a present if not as pawn.' So saying, he gently laid it over her shoulders, and across her arms, saying, "Take it madam, and do not attempt to return it, for it was purchased on purpose for a present for you." She hastily retired in confusion, hardly knowing what she did, and took with her the shawl worth twelve dollars instead of ten.

And here are three parties who had each two good things. The lahdlady had a good shawl and a good lesson to meditate upon—the gentlemen had a good dinner and a good joke to talk over—and the Judge had good intentions in the joke, and good will and ability to follow up the lesson given.—Republican Advocate.

*Skipple is a measure of three pecks, used in Holland instead of the English bushel; and the inhabitants of Poughkeepsie were mostly Low Dutch at that time.

Mr. WEBSTER said he called one day to see Mr. JOHN ADAMS, the compatriot of Washington and second President, who was a large, fat man, and at times had great difficulty in breathing. He made this call a little while previous to his death. He found him reclining on a sofa evidently in ill health. He said to Mr. Adams, I am glad to see you sir, and I hope you are getting pretty well. To which Mr. Adams replied, after a long breath, in the followtng figurative language: "Ah! sir, quite the contrary. I find I am a poor tenant, occupying a house much shattered by time; it sways and trembles with every wind, and has in fact almost gone to decay, and what is worse, sir, the landlord, as near as I can find out, don't intend to make any repairs."

DANVERS COURIER.

SATURDAY MORNING, MARCH 29 1845.

OUR PATRONS

Will confer a favor by informing us as early as possible if their papers are not regularly received. It is our intention that they shall be promptly issued early on Saturday morning. Those who wish to avail themselves of the advantages of advance payment, can do so any time within one month.

THE FREE, AND THE SLAVE STATES.

There can be no greater contrast than that which the character of the free people of the North affords, when compared with that of the slaveholding whites at the South. The hardy sons of the North inured to labor and hardships, and obliged to earn their bread by "the sweat of the brow" from a naturally sterile soil, or to seek it from the ocean or the work shop, are a noble, active and manly race. Bold and enterprising, indued with the spirit of their Saxon ancestors, nothing is too difficult for them to achieve. Every department of labor is filled with strong, energetic men. Every new project for extending the fields of industry is entered into with promptness and alacrity. Sometimes too rash and speculative perhaps, they learn discretion from experience. Never still or contented while there is anything to strive for, they are continually at work, and are always to be found in the first ranks of any laudable enterprize.

As a result of this we find throughout the whole length and breadth, competence and happiness,—the sterile soil is made to bring forth abundantly, commerce is prosperous, and manufactories spring up in every village. Education which is congenial to a free country, is here of primary importance. Free schools, open alike to the rich and the poor, are found in every district; religion and morals are strictly observed; and as all honorable labor is respectable, there is in a striking degree equality of rank. All is prosperous and progressing.

From this, turn to the character of the slaveholders of the South. Slothful, enervated and indolent, the unavoidable result of a system which leads them to regard labor as degrading, and proper only for slaves to perform, they are fast retrograding. The ancient spirit which fired the zeal of the Southern nobility has sunk into a low bravado, and vents itself in threats and denunciations; enterprize is extinct; education of the masses of the people is entirely neglected; morals and religion unattended to, and they seem fast degenerating into a state little better than that of the slaves themselves. Their naturally fertile soil is exhausted and barren, and in many places abandoned; all seems dilapidated and decaying.

This is emphatically true of the South, and is so apparent that it is beginning to be regarded with their country. A South Carolina paper, in advocating an attention to manufactures says with a melancholy truth, "Shall we pass unnoticed the thousands of poor, ignorant and degraded white people among us, who in this land of plenty live in comparative nakedness and starvation?" and adds, "It is perhaps not generally known, that there are twenty nine thousand white persons in this state above the age of twelve years who can neither read nor write: this is about one in every five of the white population." And the Richmond Whig, feeling the truth of the degeneracy of the "President making state", utters forth his plaint as follows,

"Living now upon the reputation of the dead, we are even more arrogant than when the dead were alive! Declined into a fourth or fifth rate State, with a fair prospect of declining still lower, we are far more immodest than when Virginia ruled the Union, less by her physical force, than the general illumination of her people, and the learning and abilities of her celebrated statesmen. Dwarfed in moral stature, we make up (like Roderick Random's companion in the night coach) in loudness of voice and vehemence of gasconade, what we lack in our ancient dimensions!"

Such is the character of the slaveholding South, as it is beginning to be felt by the slaveholders themselves; and such is the contrast it affords, when compared with that of the free North; and who shall say that slavery is not the great and only cause of it? Who will say that if slavery shall cease to exist among us, the South will not rise from her lethargy and supineness, and take the stand designed for her by nature? Who shall say that if slavery is abolished, education, industry and prosperity will not again take their seats upon her rich domains? And who can but feel that the South once free, the great cause for jealousy between the two great sections, will be removed, and we shall all feel in sincerity and in truth, that "we have one country, one constitution, one destiny!"

We have received the argument of Charles G. Loring Esq. on behalf of the Eastern Rail Road Company before the Rail Road Committee of the Massachusetts Legislature, against the granting of the petition of David Pingree and others. It is a very able argument, and we think all the objections to a new road are brought up in it with great ability. Yet all the learning and ability of any counsel cannot in the least alter the claims which Danvers and other towns have for rail road accommodation. That those claims are good and strong we are convinced; and the exertions made by the different Roads throughout the state to retain a monopoly of the travel, and the learning and ability which they have engaged in their behalf, only proves the truth that

"Diseases desperate grown,
By desperate appliance are relieved."

ADVERTISING.

A large part of the business community seem not to be aware of the benefits arising from advertising. Many are the fortunes which have been made by this mode of informing the public where their wants may be supplied. To the young man starting in business, whether professional, mechanical or mercantile, it is almost necessary to advertise to enable him to become known to the community where he has established himself. An advertisement informs us where we can supply almost all our wants,—where we can obtain our food, our clothing and our fuel. It tells us where we can buy the cheapest, because those who advertise sell the most, and can thus sell at the lowest prices. It enables us to find the lawyer, the doctor, the dentist, and the apothecary. It guides us to the coach office and railroad station, and informs us of the hours of arrival and departure. It directs us to the auction room and the insurance office, the lecture and the concert.

An advertisement is a sign board—a handbill—a card—a town crier—a polite billet of invitation. It asks us to "walk in" and says, "I am glad to see you." We walk in the street,—our eye catches a familiar name on the sign of a retail dealer. We have seen his name in the newspapers and involuntarily go in, and almost before we know it, our purchase is made.

BAD WRITING.

Every body who has had correspondence with Senator Choate, or who have seen his hand writing, especially when in haste, are struck with his wretched penmanship. Those who have expressed surprise that not a line from his pen has ever appeared in print, will cease their wonder after seeing his manuscript, which no editorial skill or patience has yet been able to decipher. The only wonder is how the writer is able to read it himself.

Mr. Choate, it will be recollected, commenced his professional career in this town, and while here he was employed to draw up a deed of land in Middlesex County. The instrument was taken to the Registry Office to be recorded and there examined by the Register who might as well have attempted to translate a Chinese manifesto as to read it. It was no discredit to that officer or his assistants, that they could not understand the strange characters on the manuscript. It was so totally illegible that no mortal man but the writer could decypher it, and accordingly it was returned to be re-written. Upon being asked how it happened that the deed was not recorded, Mr. Choate's reply was, that "they had got a Register of Deeds up in Middlesex, who did not know how to read writing."

Our acknowledgements are due to our brethren of the press for the favourable notice they have given of onr paper.

The report is current that Nathaniel Hawthorne is to be appointed Postmaster of Salem, in place of Hon. B. F. Browne.

Luther Chandler has for sale, the report of the trial of Rev. Mr. Fairchild, published in the Boston Weekly Mail. It contains all the evidence in the case.

AN UNKIND CUT.

Our exchange papers inform us that Commodore Elliot, of figure head and jackass notoriety, has recently presented a sarcophagus to the National Institute, which is intended as a coffin for the remains of General Jackson!

What an appropriate gift for a man in his lifetime! only imagine, gentle reader, a correspondence something like the following.

To Andrew Jackson, LL. D.

Venerable Sir—It affords me great pleasure to inform you that I have imported a sarcophagus from the island of Malta, which was once the coffin of a Roman emperor. The idea at once struck me that it would be a most appropriate receptacle for your illustrious remains. Accordingly I succeeded in procuring it, and, as you may well imagine, I feel the greatest anxiety and impatience to see it occupied by the bones of one who has "more of the Roman in him than any man living."

Allow me to express the hope that whenever some future curious hunter of ancient relics shall eject your remains from this sacred receptacle, it may again be occupied by other bones as distinguas those which have preceeded them.

I remain, Dear Sir,
most affectionately yours,
March 4. 1845. J. D. Elliot.

(REPLY.)

Hermitage, March, 1845

Commodore Elliot—Sir, I have received your note of the fourth inst. containing the offer of a sarcophagus intended for my remains. Notwithstanding the very pleasant reflections suggested by your polite offer, (and I suspect you have only anticipated some of my political friends, who would also be willing to honor me by such a present) I have in reply to inform you that I am not in immediate want of such an article, and must beg you to keep it for yourself, and you have my best wishes for a speedy use of it.

I prefer to have my own way of perpetuating my own name and fame, and accordingly, I have placed my life in the hands of the new Secretary of War, who has engaged to carry me down to a grateful posterity. I may therefore as well tell you, that if you attempt to do it, you are my enemy, and I am Yours,

Andrew Jackson.

INDUSTRY.

We would say to every young man, if you would be successful in life, be industrious. It is only by hard, indefatigable labor that you can rise in the world. To be sure we occasionally hear of a man blundering into good fortune, but such cases form the exceptions, and the rule is very general, that industry is the only way to success. Be determined to do something in the world, relying upon your own powers, and depend upon it you will succeed.

MANUFACTURES IN SOUTH CAROLINA.

We learn from the Charleston, S. C. papers, that an attempt is being made to repeal the law prohibiting the erection of steam factories in that city. This, if successful, will be the date of a new era in the policy of South Carolina. Undoubtedly cotton can be manufactured in that state to good advantage, as there will be no expense of transporting the raw material, and perhaps the human machines of her "peculiar institution" may be very useful in putting into operation the iron machines of the "peculiar institution" of the north.

South Carolina would present a curious spectacle if in ten years from this time she should become as furious and uncompromising an advocate of a high protective tariff, as she is now an opposer and denouncer of it, and it certainly is not improbable that it may be so. Many other portions of the South are turning their attention to manufactures, and there is but little doubt that ere many years elapse the whole west will be deeply engaged in them; which shows the short sighted and narrow policy of those sections in opposing so strenuously as they do the protective system.

SIDEWALKS.

We hope that whatever system may be adopted for the repair of the highways, some attention will be given to the sidewalks in the populous parts of the town. In many places these have been almost entirely neglected and while horses and oxen have had a good land foundation to travel upon, men, women and children have been obliged to travel over shoes in mire. When a sidewalk is once well gravelled, it will last a long time without further repairs.

CHARITY FOR CRIMINALS.

As we pass through penitentiaries and see the offenders against the laws of society suffering the penalties of their crimes, who of us can say, that if we had passed through the same circumstances and temptations, been exposed to the same influences from childhood, we should not have been in the same situation. Pity then, rather than reproach, the unfortunate victims. Do all in your power to remove temptations from the young, and to offer them noble inducements to pursue a life of virtue and honesty. Do this and you can do nothing better or more acceptable for the great cause of humanity.

Rev. Messrs. Upham and Cheever.—Those who remember the somewhat piquant polemic controversy between these distinguished divines several years since, may discover rather a remarkable coincidence in their present positions. They have both recently become Editors of leading religous newspapers of their several denominations. Rev. Dr. Cheever has taken charge of the New York Evangelist while his former antagonist presides at the editorial chair of the Christian Register. Both stand deservedly high with their several denominations and are universally regarded as writers of great strength and power. In their new positions they will have ample opportunities for the indulgence of their controversial predilections.

Texas Annexation. It appears very probable from the recent accounts from Texas, that that country will not accept of the proposal for annexation, made by the United States. Several of the leading papers show quite a young indignation on the subject, and talk largely enough of the dishonor to their country from an annexation upon the terms proposed. It would indeed be a sad thing for Texas to be dishonored; and no one who has a spark of humanity in his bosom, would wish to deprive her of the "little leaven" of honor which is working in her mass of corruption.

Fires in Newburyport. The good citizens of Newburyport are in a constant state of alarm on account of the incendiary attempts of some villians. We learn from a private source, that an attempt was made to set fire to Dr. Dana's church on Saturday evening last. One of the stairs in a closet where the coal is kept, was burned considerably, but as the incendiary shut the door after him, it stopped the draft, so that the fire soon went out.

State of Florida. An election for Senators and Representatives under the new state organization, will be held in May. These, it is expected, will meet in June to elect Senators to the United States Senate, and the state officers necessary to be chosen to complete their organization as a state. One of the articles in the constitution of the state is, that the Governor shall hold his office for the term of four years—and shall be commander in chief of the Army and Navy of the state. Wonder how large an Army and Navy the new bantling intends to maintain!

Remarkable Success. Mr. Coleman, the inventor of the Piano attachment, has just returned from England where he has disposed of his entire right to the invention in Europe for six hundred thousand dollars, cash down. Before leaving this country, he had sold the right for Massachusetts for ten thousand dollars, and for New York for one hundred thousand, making in all seven hundred and ten thousand dollars. This is paying pretty "dear for a whistle."

New Hampshire Election. In the whole state, Steele has a clear majority of 719. Hon. John Woodbury lacks some two hundred votes of an election.

The result of the recent town elections in New York is very favorable to the Whig party.

HISTORY OF SCHOOLS IN DANVERS.

There is abundant evidence in the early records of the town, that the inhabitants felt a good degree of interest in education. Accordingly we find that in their application to the "Great and General Court" for a separation from Salem, one reason given was, "Because ye Inhabitants are so far from ye Grammar School which is in ye first Parish." At this meeting it was also Voted, That ye Selectmen be Impowered and Desired to Agree with some meet Person to keep a Grammer School in ye District as soon as may be.

For several years after the separation, we find mention of the Grammar School, which was then under direction of the Selectmen. In 1756 a clause was inserted in the warrant "to consider the request of Mr. Jacob Fuller of Middleton, whether ye Inhabitants will consent that his Son may go to said School from this time to next Commencement," The following was the result of this application.

"It being put to vote whether Mr. Fuller's Son might go to School in sd district from this time to next Commencement, and it passed in ye Negative."

The first School Committee was chosen in 1757.

Voted, to choose a Com. of 5 men to regulate ye Grammar School. Daniel Gardiner, Daniel Purington, Daniel Epes jr., Nathaniel Felton and David Putnam were chosen.

Voted, That the School Committee draw up something and lay it before ye District on ye adjournment.

This 'something' was the first School Report and was accepted. We have not been able to find this document, but it recommended that the Selectmen provide a suitable school master and determine where the school shall be kept.

United States Senator. The two branches of the Massachusetts Legislature on Monday last, made choice of Hon. John Davis, to succeed Hon. Isaac C. Bates, deceased, in the United States Senate. In the Senate, Mr. Davis had 26 of the 30 votes given. In the House of Representatives, he received 149 of the 200 votes given. Mr. Frederick Robinson was the Democratic candidate. Two men of greater ability for the office of U. S. Senator, are not to be found in the state than Daniel Webster and John Davis, and it is extremely fortunate that at this juncture, we are represented by such men in that body, which will probably be called upon next winter to decide upon questions raught with the welfare of the country.

NEW RAIL ROAD PROJECT.

We learn from the Salem Gazette, that a petition has been presented to the Legislature, for the grant of a charter for a Rail Road from Lowell to Andover, commencing in Lowell, and connecting with the Boston and Maine Rail Road in Andover, between the factory of Mr. Eben Sutton and South Andover depot, thereby shortening the distance ten miles.

Legislative. The Danvers Railroad. The report of the Railroad Committee, giving leave to withdraw to David Pingree and others, came up for decision in the Senate, yesterday afternoon. Mr. Child stated that the decision of the committee was unanimous, and that it was one of the weakest or the weakest case which had been presented for their consideration. Mr. Stearns, also of the railroad committee, said that if the petitioners could have selected a committee of their own, from among the members of the Senate, it must have reported against them unanimously. Mr. Wheatland of Essex moved to amend by substituting reference to next session for leave to withdraw, and Mr. Clark of Essex asked the yeas and nays upon the question. This substitute seemed to be the occasion of some mirth to the Senator who offered it, and was received with a due degree of pleasantry by the whole board. Mr. Adams wished to know why the proposition of the committee was to be changed in name, In all his legislatve experience, he had understood that a reference to the next General Court meant indefinite postponement. Mr. Wheatland answered that the difference was this. You call upon a gentleman with a request which he does not intend to grant. He takes you to his door and politely bows you out. This is reference to neat session. Otherwise, he turns his back upon you, and leaves you to find your way out by yourself. This is leave to withdraw. The vote was taken, the amendment prevailed, 17 to 13, the Essex members voting with the majority and the petitioners were "politely bowed out" of the Senate Chamber. Whether the citizens of Danvers will be sufficiently thankful for this extra exhibition of politeness towards them, is, of course, a question between themselves and their Senators.

Some of the Essex senators will probably find themselves next fall "politely bowed out" of the Senate chamber, and one in particular may find his constituents "turning their back" upon him and leaving him to "find his way out himself."

G. W. & E. Crafts, booksellers of Salem, have just published an account of the great New England Witchcraft, &c, in a pamphlet of thirty six pages, being a lecture delivered by James R. Newhall of Lynn. Mr. N. has with a good deal of labor collected much valuable information upon the subject, and it is written in a very pleasing style. It will no doubt be read with great interest by all who have any delight in the strange and mysterious.

The many promulgators of "new things" at the present day remind us of the African magician in Aladdin, traversing Ispahan, and crying out for his own selfish purposes, who will exchange old lamps for new ones?

Mr Lawrence, of Hampshire, stated in the Senate that Mr Bates is the third United States Senator from the town of Northampton who has died in office, or just after its termination. The other wo were Eli P. Ashmun and Elijah H. Mills.

FOR THE DANVERS COURIER.

Mr. Courier, as you are now about to launch forth upon the great sea of public opinion, and to mingle with the thousand and one newspapers which are carried by the current of this reading age into every village and hamlet of our happy New England, to be criticised by hundreds, and by hundreds condemned or approved—and by ladies particularly, despised or admired.

Now the first thing that arises in the mind of an editor, when entering upon so important a speculation, is this—what course shall we pursue in order to please our patrons?

Mr. Editor, pardon me for taking the liberty of dropping a few suggestions upon the subject, not in dictation, for that is decidedly uncalled for, but as a mere expression of my own individual opinion. And first, independence should be the principle characteristic of an editor, whether the paper is partizan or neutral. For, how many papers are there now, and some of them professing to be strictly partizan, that are conducted in every respect, except in politics, and even this should not be excepted—in accordance with the views and feelings of its wealthy and popular patrons; while those editors, instead of being characterized by independence and fearlessness—instead of giving their own unbiassed opinions—are obliged to defer to the views of a certain clique, and consequently submit to their dictation. With such, Mr. Editor, it makes no difference how wise or how witty they may be, or how original their views, or how brilliant their talent, the very fear of that terrible, 'stop my paper,' by some wealthy and influential subscriber, rears an obstacle that at once retards all progress of the mind. Those editors may be unbiassed and deliberate, but they must watch the prejudices and passions of their patrons, and must accord with them and defend them. Sophistry is too often substituted for sound reasoning. But this miserable fawning and cringing, this mean subserviency of the press, is of all evils, the one most to be dreaded of any that can befall this free and enlightened country. If there is a man who should stand forth in firm and manly independence, it is the conductor of a press; his influence is unbounded. There are seasons, when the eyes of the public are turned towards the press,—in times of political or social excitement, and then they should not be deceived or disappointed, but find a man that stands true to his post, with an eye single on duty. Let come weal, or let come wo, he is unwavering. He readily conceives his duty, and in such an hour of emergency, boldly maintains his independence, He acts with a clear and unclouded mind, he knows neither fear nor favor, but like Richard of old he is himself. In this way, the press is conducted with honor and safety to the country. Stubbs.

FOR THE COURIER.

HOPE DEFERRED.

For several months the attention of our citizens has been awakened to the benefits that might accrue to them, from a more direct and speedy communication with the City of Boston, by means of the proposed New Rail Road. They have always felt that they have been in a measure deprived of their natural rights, by the mistaken location of the Eastern Road. They have felt, that a due regard to the public convenience, would have so located that road, as that the business of Danvers would have been directly accomodated by it. But such has not been the fact. Hitherto the inconveniences of the ferry combined with the repulsive disposition in some of the managers of the road, has left their business with as little accommodation as though we were [illegible] City, they found that it took them one and a half hours to get there; and that the expense of going and returning was $1 50. This was no saving either in time or money, as compared with the old fashioned way of talking their own carriage, or going by the stage.—And in regard to merchandise, so many obstacles were in the way of its safe and speedy arrival at its place of destination, that one could not be confident that what he wished would be accomplished.

These things being so, our hopes were excited, when we saw it announced that a road could be constructed, at a moderate expense, that would enable us to reach the City in half the time, and for half the money, now required. That would enable us to start from Danvers, and go direct to the City, in 40 minutes, at a charge not exceeding 40 cents. There seemed to be a propriety in the statement; and we have not been able to discover any reason to doubt its correctness. We were also encouraged when we found those in our own neighborhood and vicinity, who had the means, were ready to invest them in the promotion of this enterprize.

When petitions were started for the purpose, we found almost every one ready to lend their names and influence in its favor. And it scarcely occurred to us, that what we so fondly hoped, might not be realized.

But so it is, our hopes are deferred—the prayer of our petitons are not granted. Our wise rulers have undertaken to say that we do not rightly understand what is best for our own interests,—that the granting of our request would involve us in a ruinous expenditure. Now so far as this is done with proper feelings and proper motives, we thank them for their kind precautionary advice. We are aware that in the excitement of the commencement of an enterprize, without practical experience, erroneous anticipations may be indulged; and that a check upon these may sometimes be salutary; but we wish to be fully satisfied whence those checks originate, and by what motives they have been prompted. We have no disposition to question the integrity of our legislators, but even honest legislators may be the dupes of artful managers. And we think it will be in our power to demonstrate, that such management has been practised, in relation to the enterprize before mentioned. At least to state some facts, having a tendency to prove this. EXAMINER.

FOR THE DANVERS COURIER.

DANVERS RAIL ROAD.

The Legislative committee, as was expected, have reported against the petitioners, and the Eastern Rail Road Company are circulating to the four winds, the argument of their counsel Mr Loring. Much dissatisfaction has been expressed in various quarters in relation to the management of this case on the part of the petitioners, and many are of opinion that a public meeting of the citizens as well as petitioners should be held to give a public expression of the feelings of this community on the whole subject.

MANY PETITIONERS.

Henry Clay is now practising law in Lexington, Ky., with all the vigor and buoyancy of a young practitioner. His health is excellent, and it is said he has not looked so well for many years. He is 68 years of age.

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE.

IN THE SENATE, Monday, March 24.

The report of the Joint Standing Committee on Railways and Canals, leave to withdraw in the petition of David Pingree and others for a Railroad from Salem, to connect with the Boston and Maine Extension Railroad at Malden, was taken up. Mr. Wheatland moved to amend, so that the petition be referred to the next General Court. Messrs. Child and Stearns opposed the amendment and Messrs. Wheatland, Kimball and Borden supported it. It was adopted, 17 to 13—the Essex Senators all voting for the amendment.

In the House—The report, from the Senate, leave to withdraw on the petititon of W. J. Valentine and others, was accepted.

The bill providing for the appointment of a Board of Railroad Commissioners, was ordered to a 3d reading.

IN THE SENATE, Tuesday, March 25.

The bill authorizing the Eastern Railroad Corporation to construct branches to Gloucester and Danvers, came back from the House, with an amendment striking out the Danvers branch. The Senate non-concured; but the House refusing to yield, the Senate subsequently gave way, and concurred with the House in the amendment.

In the House—The bill to authorize the Eastern Railroad Corporation to construct branches, was amended on motion of Mr. Fowler, of Danvers, by striking out the 2d section, (the Danvers branch) 81 to 32—and was then ordered to be engrossed.

The Pay Roll was ordered to be made up including to-morrow.

The House held three sessions, and adjourned about 9 P. M., having despatched a great amount of business.

WEDNESDAY, March 26.

At half past 1 o'clock, the two Houses were prorogued, by His Excellency the Governor, to the Tuesday next preceding the first Wednesday of January next. The number of bills passed during the session is 254—of resolves 132. The pay-roll of the Senate amounts to $7181—of the House to $17,492.

SHAVINGS.

Morse's magnetic telegraph is to extend from Baltimore to New York, as rapidly as the wires can be laid and protected. The line between Philadelphia and New York will be put in operation first. A private company has the work in charge.

Cheap Postage.—The Postage,(under the new act,) between Philadelphia and Boston will be ten cents. If the distance was two miles shorter, the postage would be only five cents.

Death of Mrs Shuck. The mournful intelligence has reached this country of the death of Mrs. Henrietta H. Shuck, wife of the Rev. J. L. Shuck, missionary of the American Baptist Board to China, which occurred on the 27th of November last.—She was a very superior and highly useful woman, and her death is a very heavy loss to the mission, and a source of unspeakable grief to her bereave husband.

Accident. Mr John Bradstreet, of Topsfield, a respectable young man, had his leg badly shatterer on Wednesday last, while riding. He observed that his harness was out of place, and, when endeavoring to put it right, his horse kicked and broke his leg, mangling the flesh and causing it to bleed fearfully. He is now doing as well as could be expected, considering the severe injury he received. —Register.

Smelts.—We understand that 9 bushels of smelts were taken from Frost fish brook, (so called) at this town.

Fires. A fire broke out on Friday morning about two o'clock, at Newburyport, in an Engine house, and destroyed both house and engine, valued at $200, and the machine shop of Mr. E. S. Lesley, its contents. Mr. L.'s loss is more than $5000—insured for $3000 at Manufacturer's Ins. Office, Boston. The fire was the work of an incendiary.

At Gloucester, on Wednesday night the shop of Mr. Nelson, in Spring street, was partly destroyed, with most of the goods it contained. Building insured at Holyoke Mutual Office for $175—stock at same office for $175.—Reg.

Hon Josiah Quincy has resigned the office of President of Harward College; an office which he has held for sixteen years.

The Hon. John Q. Adams presented three hundred and four petitons and memorials to the House of Representatives during the last session of Congress.

The venerable Robert Rives, Esq, father of Senator Rives, died at his residence in Nelson county, Va., on Sunday the 9th inst.

50's of the Citizens' Bank, at Augusta, Maine altered to Danvers Bank, Danvers, Mass., are in circulation.

The Treasurer of the Mass. Bible Society acknowledges the receipt of a bequest from Levi Adams, late of Medway, of $100.

Also, the legacy of Mrs Mary Meek, late of Marblehead, of five shares of the Marblehead Insurance Co. valued at $500.

General Simeon Cameron, loco foco has been elected United States Senator from Pennsylvania, to serve out the term of Mr Buchanan, appointed Secretary of State.

Iowa and Florida have been fully admitted into the Union; so that when Texas comes, we shall have a galaxy of twenty-nine States.

A murderous affray occurred at Hanover, in this State on Monday, in which three persons, Irishman, were killed. It was St. Patrick's Day, and a gang of workmen on the Old Colony Railroad met at a groggery, kept by one Seth Perry. The rum at length produced a quarrel; and Perry, in attempting to drive the Irish party from his premises, shot three of them dead.

Messenger to Texas.—Mr. Waggaman, the bearer of the Texas resolutions, arrived at Nashville on the 11th inst. and not finding Major Donelson there, immediately started off for Texas. The Union observes, "this is prompt work—"immediately, if not sooner."

The United States Senate adjourned on Thursday of last week, sine die.

The towns of Frankfort and Monroe, Me. are in a great state of excitement, in consequence of the body of a Mrs Brooks having been stolen from the grave, and carried to the office of a Dr. Tewksbury for dissection. It was found in his office. The doctor and his students have been arrested.

President Polk has pardoned Capt. Sangster, convicted of a violent assault upon Hon. J. Q. Adams. Mr Adams petitioned for the pardon.

BRIGHTON MARKET—Monday. March 24.

[From the Boston Daily Advertiser.]

At market 340 Beef Cattle, 60 pairs Working Oxen, 1200 Sheep, and 1960 Swine. About 100 Beef Cattle and 50 Working Oxen remain unsold.

PRICES—BEEF CATTLE—Last week's prices not generally sustained by about 25c per hundred. Some very extraordinary fine Cattle were at market, and a yoke or two brought as high as any last week. We quote extra 5 50 a 5 75; first quality $5 a 5 25; second quality 4 75 a $5; third quality 4 25 a 4 50.

WORKING OXEN—We noticed sales at $65, 68, 78, 85, 105 and 125.

SHEEP—Sales from $3 to 4 50.

SWINE—Lots to peddle from 4 1-2c to 4 5-8c for Sows, 5 1-2c to 5 5-8c for Barrows; large Barrows 5 and 5 1-4 c. At retail, from 5 1-2 to 6 1-2c.

MARRIAGES.

In Salem, Mr. Joseph A. Walton to Miss Maria Haseltine. Mr. Edward Callum to Miss Nancy Bartlett. Mr. William Russell to Miss Hannah Farmer. Mr. Samuel F. Upton to Miss Mary R. Brown.

In Byfield, by Rev. Mr. Durant, Mr. Charles W. Titcomb to Miss Phebe J., daughter of Mr. Enoch Pearson.

DEATHS.

At North Parish, on Thursday, Mrs. Betsey Nichols, wife of Eliab Evans, in the 26th year of her age.

In this town, (North Parish) Charles W. son of Mr. Jona Buxton, 4 years, 5 months. Mrs. Lucy, wife of Mr. Daniel Marsh, 66.

(New Mills) Capt. Jeremiah Putnam, 75. Jeremiah Chaplin, son of Mr. Wm. Chaplin, 11 months.

In Salem, Miss Elizabeth R. Bray, aged 43. Mr. Samuel N. Glover, aged 37. Elizabeth, widow of the late Mr. Stephen Larabee, aged 85, On Thursday morning, 13 inst. Miss Mary Peters, and on the 16th, her twin sister, Miss Betsy Peters, aged 73 years, and 4 months. Abby Rodman, daughter of William and Lydia P. Chase, aged 5 months. Mrs Susannah Anderson, aged 34.

Lost overboard from brig Pavilion, off Falkland Islands, July 10th, Mr William P. Frothingham, son of Mr Richard Frothingham, of this town. He fell from the main topsail yard, and was drowned.

PORT OF DANVERS.

WEDNESDAY, March 26th.

ARRIVED.

Sch. Alnomock, Hall Thomaston with lime.
Sch. Dispatch, Segee, Bucksport with wood.

THURSDAY, 27th.

ARRIVED.

Sch Victoria, Allen, New York with flour and grain.

SAILED.

FRIDAY, 28th.

Sch. Alnomook.
Sch. Samuel.

MICKLEFIELD & CO.,

KEEP CONSTANTLY ON HAND AT THE

CITY MILLS, SALEM,

Nos. 31, 33, 35, 37, 39 Mill Street,

BRANCH, MOTTLED AND PLAIN

VENEERS,

CEDAR AND MAHOGANY

Boards, Plank and Joist.

ALSO—GRAIN AND MEAL.

Wholesale and Retail on the most reasonable terms, for Cash or approved credit.

Also—CIRCULAR, VENEER AND OTHER

Sawing and Turning.

☞They also GRIND all kinds of Grain.

All orders entrusted to their care will be attended to.

JOHN JEWETT,
T. H. PRIME,
J. A. KENNY.

mch 15

Fales' Cathartic, or Vegetable PURGATIVE LOZENGES.

THOUGH prepared from a great many Vegetable substances, are as palateable and pleasant to eat as any other Confectionary Compound.

This preparation is decidedly the best among all the known purgative preparations; for while its operation is as sure as Salts, Castor Oil, Calomel and Julop, or any other cathartic medicine, it has the advantage over all in being pleasant to eat, while other cathartics are generally disagreeable to take. Price, 25 cents per box with full directions, and may be found at the Depository, No. 96 Commercial street, Boston.

FALES' WORM LOZENGES,

Are a safe and sure remedy for worms. Children love them. They act like a charm in removing the symptoms such as starting in sleep, grating the teeth paleness about the mouth and nose, occasional sickness at stomach, precarious appetite, swelled bowels, and general feverish habit, The child falls into a quiet sleep, and the worms are stupified and expelled, and the child, as far as heard from, in every instance has been cured. Price, 25 cents per box, with full directions; sold at Commercial street, Boston,

FALES' COUGH LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common Colds and Coughs, Whooping Cough, Inflamation of the Throat and Lungs, in the Croup or Hives, and more certain to act satisfactory than the celebrated Hive Syrup. The most happy effect is obtained in a few moments; the symptoms disappear and the disease is broken up by the magical effect of these Lozenges. Full directions accompany each box, are found at the Depositopy, 96 Commercial staeet, Boston.

FALES' DYSENTERY LOZENGES,

Are a safe and agreeble temedy for Dysentery, Diarrhœa and Bowel Complaints of children. Particular attention must be paid to the directions which are on each box.

FALES' CAMPHOR LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common and sick head ache, and where there is a sense of tightness or weight over the eyes, in erruptive diseases, such as Measles and Small Pox. Also in Mania, Epilepsy, Melancholy, Hysteria, in St. Vitus Dance, and in all eases of languor and oppession of the Vital powers, may be taken with safety by women and children in all conditions. Full directions accompany each box.

FALES' CYPRIAN HAIR TONIC,

Is now so extsnsively known and justly celebrated that further comment upon it will be useless, we can say, however, that among the many thousands who have purchassed the Tonic, in this and other countries, none have returned with complaints, while thousands have expressed not only their approbation, but their wonder and admiration on beholding its effects. A few bottles only can be had at 96 Commercial street, Boston.

CLEAR OUT YOUR RATS.

The gnawing and antics of these destructive creatures can be hushed forever in your house and store, if you will procure a box of the genuine.

MADAGASCAR RAT EXTERMINATOR,

and use it according to directionf. You cannot depend upon it unless obtained at J. J. FALES' No. 96 Commercial street Boston.

—AGENTS—

Salem, J. S. HARRISON, J. Stone, jr., H. Whipple, S Badger, jr; Lynn, J. Moulton jr., Geo. Lummus, Wm. Cogswell, Wm. L Ladd; Swampscot, W. Thompson; Marblehead, E. Arnold. Wm. Stacey; Danvers, S. Proctor, Jos Shed, New Mills, H. S Pope, A. P Perley & Co, C. Simonds, Calder & Foster; Topsfield, B. P. Adams; Beverly. A N Clark. laf1y mch 29

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

JONATHAN W. OSBORNE has taken into Co-partnership MICHAEL L. WHIDDEN, and they will continue the

Painting, Glazing & Papering

business, at the old Stand, No 10 PARK STREET, under the firm of

OSBORNE & WHIDDEN,

Particular attention to

SIGN PAINTING,

Imitations of Wood, Marble, Bronze, Ground Glass, &c. &c. 1y mch 29

Dissolution of Co-Partnership.

THE Co-partnershiy heretofore existing under the firm of

PERKINS, WELCH & CO.,

is this day dissolved by mutual consent.

I. PERKINS,
P. D. PERKINS,
SAMUEL WELCH.

South Danvers, March 24th, 1845.

The business will be continued at the old stand, Central street, by

PERKINS & CO.,

who are authorized to settle all accounts of the late firm. They will keep constantly on hand a good assortment of the BEST GROCERIES which they will sell on the most reasonable terms. A share of patronage is respectfully solicited. mch 29

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

OFFICE IN FELTON (late Osborne's Building.)

Danvers, March 29th. tf

Ploughs & Cultivators,

MANUFACTURED BY

RUGGLES, NOURSE & MASON,

And other Agricultural Tools,

FOR SALE BY

DANIEL RICHARDS,

Danvers Plains, March 29, 1845.

PERIODICALS, PAPERS, &c.

LUTHER CHANDLER, GENERAL AGENT for the sale of all the principal Periodicals, Newspapers, &c., and will furnish them to all persons who may wish to subscribe; among which are

Graham's Magazine,	Harper's Pictorial Bible,
Ladies' National do,	Verplanck's Shakspeare,
Arthur's Lady's do,	Phil Saturday Courier,
Christian Family Mag.,	Neal's Gazette,
Gentlemen's Magazine,	New York Mirror,
Godey's Lady's Book,	Frost's Pictorial World,

The above and all the principal periodicals and papers will be furnished promptly.

☞BOOKS BOUND at the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

Orders may be left at J. SHED'S, opposite the Monument, South Danvers. 1y mch 29

POOLE & STEDMAN,

MAKERS OF

CARRIAGES, HARNESSES, TRUNKS, &c.

THE subscribers having formed a Co-partnership under the above firm, are ready to attend to any orders in their line.

Particular attention paid to repairing.

S. A. POOLE,
G. B. STEDMAN.

N. B. Valises, Ladies' Satchels, Carpet Bags, &c. constantly on hand and for sale cheap.

Corner of Grove and Main Streets.

Danvers, March 15.

CHARLES H. MANNING,

CABINET MAKER,

Near the Sign of the Lamb, Main Street,

DANVERS, MASS.

Has on hand a large assortment of Cabinet Furniture, which he will sell on reasonable terms. Also—CURRIER'S TABLES made and repaired cheap.

SHOE-MAKERS' PEGGING BENCHES made as above. oct 15

POOLE & JACOBS,

MANUFACTURERS OF

Boot and Shoe Linings, Skivers,

AND BINDINGS,

AND DEALERS IN

WOOL,

MAIN ST., DANVERS, MASS.

EASY SHAVING AND HAIR CUTTING.

B. B. WILLIAMS respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has removed to the store formerly occupied by Lambert & Merrill, (under the Courier Office,) which he has fitted up in a neat manner, and is now prepared to wait upon those who believe that

"Man wants but little beard below,
Nor wants that little long."

Champooing, Hair Cutting and Shaving is performed to the satisfaction of all who may favor him with their patronage.

Danvers, March 15, 1845. tf

A FARM FOR SALE.

SITUATED in Byfield Parish, Newbury, 4 1-2 miles from Newburyport, 1 1-4 miles from the meeting-house, 1-4 mile from Dummer Academy, and 3 1-2 miles from the Rowley depot, and is on the stage road from Newburyport to Georgetown, Andover and Lowell, containing 81 acres of Land, enclosed by a good stone wall, in good repair.

The buildings consist of a good Dwelling House, 2 stories high, containing 5 lower rooms, 8 chambers, a milk room, a brick milk cellar, with a good cellar under the whole house. Also, a Wood House and Grain Chamber attached to the house. It has 2 good Barns, in good repair, a Chaise and Waggon House, and Work Shop, with a Store Chamber.

There is on the Farm a great variety of Apple Trees, consisting of Baldwins, Russets, Greenings, Gardner Sweetings, &c., from which was gathered over 250 bbls the last season. Half an acre is enclosed for a Garden, containing a choice collection of peach, pear and plum trees, red and white Currants, Grape Vines, Strawberry and Quince Bushes.

Water is conducted into the house by a pipe from a never-failing spring of soft water, precluding the necessity of a cistern.

Also, a large Ox Waggon and Cart, both of which have Iron axletrees, and every kind of farming utensil, together with the stock of said farm. For further particulars inquire on the premises of

EBENEZER STEDMAN, or
mch 29 tf W. D. NORTHEND, Danvers.

☞PAPER HANGINGS.☜

THE subscriber has made such an extensive arrangement with the principal manufacturers of Paper Hangings that he is enabled to sell them at the lowest prices, wholesale and retail. New patterns will be received every week as soon as they are out.

2800 rolls of new styles for the Spring trade have been received within a few days. Unusual inducements are thus offered to purchasers of House Paper of all descriptious, from the highest finished Satin to the most common Paper, (call and see for yourselves.) Country dealers supplied on the most reasonable terms. SAMUEL B. FOSTER,

30 Lawrence Place,

Near the Railroad Station. Be sure and enquire for Foster, 30 Lawrence Place, Salem. mch 15

THE

Massachusetts Mechanic Association

HAVING AWARDED TO

GOVE, LOCKE & COMPANY,

and no one else, a DIPLOMA for specimens of

The Best Ready Made Clothing!

Exhibited by them at the Mechanics' Fair in September last, must satisfy the community that the location of an establisnment is of but little importance, and that the idea of being confined to a particular section of the city, in order to obtain a

GENTEEL GARMENT,

has been rendered obsolete, by the above named award, as without prejudice the award was made to those who deserved it. Being convinced themselves, that their CUSTOM WORK has not been surpassed in any point of view, still they have been obliged to stem the current against the strongest prejudices, and have, by unremitted attention to the tastes and desires of their patrons, to a very considerable extent, overcome them, resulting in a successful trade, and encouraging them to prosecute the NEW ENGLAND BRANCH OF THEIR BUSINESS, with renewed vigor, and to devote a large share of their attention the present season, to the

Highest Grade of Custom Work!

Being now prepared with every facility adapted to the various classes in the community, they can furnish any style of Garment which their notion or fancy may dictate—aiming

In point of Style and Fashion,

to be in advance of any other

CLOTHING ESTABLISHMENT!

and being at all times supplied with materials of every description, they are prepared to turn out at the shortest notice

AS GOOD AND AS GENTEEL A GARMENT, as can be obtained in the United States, and have entire confidence in making the assertion, having Cutters constantly

ENGAGED ON CUSTOM WORK:

who are inferior to none in this region, enabling them to assure those who have favored them with their patronage, that no pains will be spared to deserve a continuance of their support—and to those who lack confidence in a Clothing Establishment, because it is situated on

COMMERCIAL STREET,

they would say that a specimen of their work can be seen in nearly every section of the city, particularly on the backs of

THE MOST GENTEEL PEOPLE!

and to them they refer, in relation not only to the treatment which is universally tendered to them by all concerned in the

COMMERCIAL ARCADE!

but more especially in regard to the price as the Proprietors have by experience ascertained that they can furnish a

FIRST RATE GARMENT!

at a medium price, equal in every respect to those furnished up in town, at an exhorbitant one. Their Stock of Clothing, adapted to the

SPRING SALES!

is far superior to any previous year, and the patronage of the public is respectfully invited, whether in pursuit of a single garment or otherwise, as their stock embraces every article essential or requisite to the wardrobe of a gentleman, while its magnitude enables them to supply COUNTRY DEALERS in any quantity at the shortest notice, and on the best terms.

WHOSESALE DEALERS!

located any where from Maine to Georgia, or even in Texas, can find at this concern an assortment of Wearing Apparel adapted to their sales, and are invited before concluding their

SPRING PURCHASES!

—TO CALL—

At No. 60 Commercial street,

BOSTON,

Sign of the Monument,—and visit the proprietors of

COMMERCIAL ARCADE,

GOVE, LOCKE & COMPANY.

Boston, March 29, 1845. 3m

HARRISON'S REMEDY

FOR THE PILES.

THIS is an ointment prepared by the undersigned, and has been so thoroughly tested in so many different cases that I never hesitate to warrant relief to those who will give it a fair trial, observing the directions around each box which give a plain treatise on the disease and full instructions as to diet mode of cure, &c. One application at night never fails to relieve the greatest pain and anguish. I am ready to refer to numerous individuals who have proved this Remedy to be the safest, surest, speediest and cheapest

CURE FOR THE PILES.

My agent in Exeter writes thus: "the Pile Remedy which you left me is all sold, please send me soon a further supply, as a number of persons in this town think very highly of it. N. GILMAN"

MORE TESTIMONY.

Salem, Aug. 6. Mr. Harrison: The box of ointment which I had from you has worked like a charm—I have used it only one night, and I am cured. I had used Hays' Liniment as I stated to you, with no benefit but rather was worse, it causing more inflammation. Yrs, J. W.

BLEEDING PILES CURED.

Mr. Harrison—Having given your Peristaltic Lozenges and Pile Remedy a fair trial, I have the satisfaction to inform you that they have operated wonderfully in my case. I had not been able for months to do any work at my trade, owing to exhaustion from bleeding, but I now feel myself cured. The severe pain which I had in my stomach is gone, and my strength is fast returning. I had used various remedies to no purpose, until I tried your medicine. I can also state that Capt. Benj. Ireson of this town has also experienced great benefit from your Remedy. I cheerfully recommend the medicine to all suffering with that distressing complaint—the Piles.

EDWARD H. LEWIS.

Lynn, Sept. 27, 1844.

For sale at 256 Essex street, by the Proprietor,

J. S. HARRISON JR.,

Agents—in Danvers, S. PROCTOR, Jr.; Marblehead—E. Arnold; Lynn—Ladd, and Holder; Beverly—Clarke; Newburyport—C. Whipple; Andover—Amos Abbott; Topsfield—Bixby and Merriam, Haverhill—Nichol; Boston—Ransom & Stevens, Tompkins, Southers and Fowle.

mch 15 6m

ADAMS & RICHARDSON,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC

HARDWARE.

MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS FOR THE SALE OF

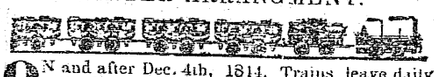
Cut Nails, White Lead, Sheet Lead and Lead Pipe,

NO. 207 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.

Joseph Adams,
C. M. Richardson,
march 15 tf

WANTED.

10 GOOD COATMAKERS wanted immediately, to whom steady employment and good wages will be given.



Also—A BOY as an APPRENTICE, by

S. R. BOTT,

mch 15 No. 148 Essex Street, Salem.

EASTERN RAILROAD.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.

ON and after Dec. 4th, 1844, Trains leave daily (Sundays excepted,)

Boston for Portland, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P. M

" Portsmouth, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 4 1-2 P.M.

" Somersworth, Great Falls, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 P.M.

" for Newburyport, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 and 4 1-2 P.M.

" for Salem, 7 1-4 9, 11 3-4 A.M., 2 1-2, 3 1-4, 4 1-2, 6 P.M.

Salem for Portland, 8 A.M., 3 1-4 P.M.

Salem for Portsmouth and Newburyport, 8 A.M., 3 1-4, 5 1-4 P.M.

Portland for Boston, 7 1-2 A.M., 3 P.M.

Saco for Boston, 8 A.M., 3 1-2 P.M.

Somersworth, Great Falls for Boston, 9 A.M.; 4 1-4 P.M.

Portsmouth for Boston, 7 1-4, 10,* A.M., 5 1-2* P.M.

Newburyport for Boston, 8, 10 3-4* A.M. 6 1-4* P.M.

Salem for Boston, 7 3-4, 9 1-4, 10 1-2 A.M.; 12,* 2, 5, 7,* P.M.

*Or on their arrival from the East.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Trains leave Marblehead for Salem, at 7 1-2, 9, 10 1-4 A.M.; 1 3-4, 3 1-2, 4 3-4, 6 1-2, P.M.

Leave Salem for Marblehead, at 8, 9 3-4 A.M., 12 1-2, 3 1-4, 4, 5 1-4, 6 3-4 P.M.

A Merchandize Train will leave Boston, Portland and all intermediate places every day.

Freight Office in Boston, No. 17 Merchants Row, and on the line of the road at the several Depots.

JOHN KINSMAN,

mch 15 Master of Transportation.

DOWLEY & WHALL,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, AND

AUCTIONEERS,

FOR THE SALE OF

Boots, Shoes, Leather and all kinds of Shoe Stock, at Private and Auction Sale,

Nos. 21 and 22 PEARL STREET,

Levi A. Dowley, } BOSTON.
Joseph B. Whall, }

Cash liberally advanced on Boots, Shoes and Shoe Stock, for private and public sales.

—References—

Messrs. Jos. Whitney & Co., } Boston.
" Josiah M. Jones, Esq.,
" Spofford, Tileston, & Co., } New York.
" Shepard Knapp, Esq.,
" C. M. Leupp & Co.,
" Haddock, Hazletine & Reed, Philadelphia.
" Poland, Jenkins & Co., Baltimore.
" Friend, Humphrey & Co., Albany.

mch 29 1y

Great Bargains

ARE NOW BEING HAD AT THE

Washington Street Clothing Store, Salem.

GARMENTS of all description may be obtained at prices which cannot fail to give entire satisfaction.

Great care has been taken in the getting up of every garment, all of which is warranted equal, if not superior to any Clothing in the city.

The subscriber continues to take measures as formerly, and all Garments bespoken, will be made according to the wishes of the customer, and will guarantee both the style and fit.

☞BOY WANTED, as an Apprentice.

S. CHAMBERLAIN, JR.

Salem, March, 15. tf

DANVERS AND SALEM

HOURLY COACHES.

THE Danvers and Salem Hourly Coaches will in connection with the Eastern Railroad, leave Danvers and Salem at the following hours, viz:

Leave Danvers at	7 1-4	A.M.	Leave Salem at	8	A.M.
" "	8 3-4		" "	9 1-2
" "	10		" "	11
" "	11 1-2		" "	12	1-4
" "	1 1-2	P.M.	" "	2	P.M.
" "	3		" "	3	3-4
" "	4 1-2		" "	5
" "	6		" "	6	1-2
" "	7		" "	8

For seats apply at Macintire's Hotel, or at Joseph G. Shed's store in Danvers, and at the Essex House and Salem Hotel in Salem.

Railroad passengers taken at the depot on the arrival of the cars from Boston and the East.

☞Extra Coaches furnished at any hour on reasonable terms. SYMONDS & TEEL.

march 15 tf

REMOVAL.

DR. J. A. ROBINSON,

SURGEON DENTIST,

SALEM,

WOULD respectfully give notice that he has removed from his old stand, opposite the City Hall, to No. 20 Washington street, recently occupied by A. E. Phillips, where he is ready to perform all operation, in Dentistry, in a most thorough and workmanlike manner.

His experience and success in inserting whole sets either by atmospheric pressure or springs, enables him to furnish them at rates which cannot fail to suit those in want of an article of superior quality.

His method of inserting Teeth, both singly and on plate, with or without Gums, has been found to be satisfactory and successful as combining beauty of finish and adaptation, with all the requisites of mastication and articulation.

Particular attention paid to filling Teeth so as to render them serviceable for many years, and also to the regulation of Children's Teeth.

N. B. For sale as above, a first rate article of TOOTH POWDER. 6m mch 15

REMOVAL.

SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

Rich Jewelry and Fancy Goods,

HAVE removed to the New Store, No. 291 Essex street, (next above Mechanic Hall) where they will keep constantly for sale Gold Finger Rings, Breast Pins, Bracelets, Lockets, Keys, Gold and Silver Pencil Cases, Silver Thimbles, Silver and Plated Table and Tea Spoons, Butter Knives, Silver Plated and Brittania Ware, Shell, Horn, and Ivory Combs, Pocket Books, Purses, &c., &c.

N. B. All kinds of Jewelry repaired in a superior manner and warranted. Old Gold or Jeweiry, made over or exchanged for new.

S. & C. having acquired a thorough knowledge of the business in New York, as well as our success for the past five years in this city, will, we feel assured, enable us to execute with approbation any orders entrusted to our care.

☞Thankful for past patronage, we solicit a continuance of the same. tf March 15.

JOB PRINTING,

OF ALL KINDS

EXECUTED AT THE COURIER OFFICE.

THE DEATH BED.

BY T. HOOD.

We watched her breathing through the night,
Her breathing soft and low,
As on her breast the wave of life
Kept heaving to and fro.

So silently we seemed to speak,
So slowly moved about,
As we had lent her half our powers,
To eke her being out.

Our very hopes belied our fears,
Our fears our hopes belied;
We thought her dying when she slept,
And sleeping when she died.

For when the morn came dim and sad,
And chill with early showers,
Her quiet eyelids closed;—she had Another morn than ours.

MISCELLANY.

From the Boston Courier.

GRANT THORBURN—an old acquaintance—of whom we have heard nothing for some years, has an advertisement in the New York Commercial Advertiser, which is as good as an auto-biography. It delighted us to see the honest little Scotchman once more, in print. Pleasant reminiscences of the evening and the morning which he once spent with us, were awakened, and imagination brought back the tones of the old gentleman's voice, as he sung Elgin Martyrs, and Dundee. It is not our custon to advertise gratis but there is something so truly characteristic in his advertisement, and something so pleasant withal in preserving a memorial of so clever a specimen of humanity, that we copy it without further preface:—

ADVERTISEMENT EXTRAORDINARY.

In 1799 the subscriber commenced business with three pots of geraniums, a monthly rose and 15 dollars' worth of seeds. The seeds grew till they filled the whole continent—the rose blossomed till it spread into a tree, and the little birds formed their nests under its branches Presently there came forth a host of pretenders, boasting of what they could do; they done nothing. In 1818 appeared William Cobbett. This same Cobbett, in 1793, '4 and '5, published the Porcupine's Gazette in Philadelphia; its object was to prove to a demonstration that all republics were humbugs—that Kings only had a divine right to reign—and that the Americans were a set of consummate rebels. The mob tore down his office, made pi of his types, and scattered his porcupine quills in their native air. He fled to England, returned to New-York a full-blooded radical Democrat, and opened a seed shop at 62 Fulton street, where he sold ruta baga at one dollar per pound and black pigs for ten dollars each. For a long space of time you could hear nothing in Wall or Exchange streets but Cobbett and his black pigs—Cobbett and his ruta baga. The consternation was similar to that at Frankfort, when the man rode through the streets with a long nose, and still the wonder grew whether the nose was a paper or a timmer (wooden) nose. He vowed he would drive Thorburn from the boards with his black pigs and ruta baga in less than six months. Before twelve he closed the concern and again sailed for England. Naked he came into America, and naked he returned from thence; his whole goods and chattels (a few minor articles excepted,) consisting only of ruta baga and smoked hams from the hind quarters of his black pigs; he shipped one case, however, which by some estimation, was beyond all prize, viz: a rough Albany deal board, formed into a square box, and in this box was deposited the profound skull and dry bones of "Common Sense," &c. Out of these bones Cobbett meant to have made political capital, but they were seized by the custom-house at London for duty, and sunk (if report speaks true) in the deep, green sea.

From this subject it may be profitable to observe how similar are the movements of political quacks in all countries and at all periods. It is but a few years since that our political jugglers turned the world upside down about Morgan, his dry bones and spilt skull; Louis Philippe, too, and his French radicals, must needs parade the bones of Bonaparte wherewith to make a bank political.

But enough of this long preamble. It is only meant to let his friends know that Grant yet lives—his eye as clear, his head as sound, and his health as good as in 1801—and this being the first day of Spring, he is provided with the usual supply of goods (as they say in Pearl street,) to accommodate his friends; and his being only a branch from the tree at 15 John street, the seeds, on trial, will prove good. American and European Flower seeds, just received. Boquets prepared for ladies in the neatest order. Catalogues gratis. Gentlemen supplied with Gardeners, &c.

GRANT THORBURN.

A CRUEL STRATAGEM.

Did you ever hear of "old Smith," that used to live away down east, during the early settlement of the country, now called Maine? Old Smith had lost several relations by the hands of the Indians, and had vowed eternal enmity to the whole race. He had been twice taken by the savage tribes, but contrived to escape from them, and had killed several of their number. He sought every opportunity to do them mischief in any way. By this course he had become so exceedingly obnoxious to the redmen, that they would not even kill him directly if they could, but were almost constantly on the watch to take him alive for the purpose of satisfying their vengeance by the infliction of the utmost torture that barbarity could invent. Smith was aware of this disposition of the savages, and was the less afraid of their bullets It is reported that Smith was at one time engaged in splitting some pine logs for fence rails, and in the ardor of his employment he had neglected his "lookout," till six indians came upon him with a yell of exultation. The chief of the party, whose name was Wahsoos, seized him by his arms, exclaiming. "Now Smith now Smith me got you." Smith saw it would be vain to resist, and assuming an air of composure, thus addressed his captor: "Now, Wahsoos, I will tell you what I will do: If you will now help me to split open this log, I will then go with you without any resistance, otherwise I will not walk a step and you will have to carry or kill me." The indians now having him safe in their possession, and willing to save themselves trouble, agreed to help split the log, if he would tell them how. Smith had already opened one end of the log with a large wooden wedge, and renewing his blows on the wedge with a beetle, he directed them to to take hold of the separated parts of the log, three on each side, and pull with all their might, while he should drive in the wedge. The red men were not without suspicions, but kept their eyes on Smith's motions, while they pulled at the sundered parts of the log. Every blow of Smith opened the crevice wider, which enabled the Indians to renew their hold by inserting their fingers deeper into the crevice, when Smith, slightly changing the direction of the beetle, struck on the side of the wedge, knocking it out of the log, which closing with great force, caught every foe by the hands. save one, who seeing the predicament of his companions, took to his heels; but was quickly brought down by Smith's long barrelled gun, which he had kept near him. The other five expected no mercy, and were not disappointed. Five blows from Smith's axe, silenced their death-song.

A year or more after this affair, Smith was returning one evening from an excursion, and passed near a bend of the Androscoggin river, about a mile above the falls, on which the Lewiston Mills are now located: it was nearly dark, and he discovered an Indian making a fire on a rock by the river bank. Smith saw through the business at once: the fire was for a beacon, to guide the landing of a strong party. With unerring aim, he shot the lone savage, who pitched into the water, and Smith quickly threw the fire and fire-brands after him; and then proceeded down to the falls, and there he soon kindled another fire on a projecting rock; and then retiring up the river bank a small distance, awaited the result. He soon heard the songs of a company of warriors, who had discovered the fire, and were steadily paddling towards it in high glee. Smith could hardly refrain from laughing aloud, as they neared the fatal beacon. The songs were suspended by surprise, at the rapid motion of their canoes, and the hoarse roar of the falls, revealed too late the dreadful truth. A brief death song uttered in savage yells, and the cries of several squaws and papooses, were all that preceded their last and dreadful plunge over the perpendicular falls.—N. Y. Mechanic.

SAGACITY OF THE DOG.

There used formerly to be as many dogs as men at the kirk of Tweedsmuir, Peeblesshire, on account of the difficulty which the farmers and shepherds of that pastoral district had in preventing canine attendants from following them. The dogs in general behaved pretty well, and lay below the seats; still noisy quarrels among them sometimes took place, and on these occasions the minister had to order the beadle to turn out the disturbers of the peace: with these exceptions they kept a tolerable good order till the congregation was going to disperse. From long attendance at church, they knew when this breaking up was to take place. The signal for uproar was the rising of the people, when the minister in the pulpit was about to pronounce the blessing; as soon as they did so, the dogs used to rush pell-mell to the door barking and screeching for joy to be let loose, and therefore not a word could be heard. At length the minister, honest man! bethought himself of a members of the congregation, that ter for them all to keep their seats till the parting benediction was over, and then they would rise and walk leisurely out. This was tried, and succeeded remarkably well. However, it happened one day that the minister of the parish was absent, and a stranger was in the pulpit, who, when he rose to pronounce the blessing after the last psalm, was surprised to see the congregation sitting, which is against all rule and custom. At last an old grey-haired shepherd called out to him—"Oh, just go on, Sir, go on; we are only sitting a wee bit, to cheat the dowgs; but when ye have done we'll all rise and go out quietly."—Scottish Farmer's Magazine.

THE RETORT COURTEOUS. A member of one of the learned professions, was driving his sulky along the road in England, when he overtook a pedlar with his pack and inquired what he had to sell.

The man produced, among other things a pair of cotton suspenders. They were sixpence, he said. The gentleman paid the money, and then said, "You have a license?"

"Yes," was the reply.

"I should like to see it."

It was produced.

"My good fellow, all's right, I see. Now as I do not want these things, you may have them again for three pence."

The bargain was struck; but how surprised was the gentleman, a few days after, to find a summons to attend the country magistracy at Croyden. The gentleman was convicted in the full penalty for selling goods on the king's highway without a license.

Sir Richard Jebb was very rough and harsh—somewhat after the fashion of Abernethy. He said to a patient to whom he had been very rude, "Sir, it is my way." "Then," said the patient, pointing to the door, "I beg you will make that your way."

Abbot Lee says he is quite sure that women were never intended to be any thing else but to fill home with sunshiny smiles, to be happy themselves and to make every body happy around them. What business, he asks, have they in the elbowing crowd of the world?

The Archer and the Arrow.—A Fable.—An archer complained of his arrow, because it did not hit the mark. "If you had directed me right," said the arrow, "I should not have failed." We often blame others, when the fault is only in ourselves.

Were there, says Socrates, a common bank made of men's troubles, most men would choose rather to take those they brought, than venture on a new dividend, and think it best to sit down with their own.

AGRICULTURAL.

From the Mass. Ploughman.

Extract from the Report of the Tenth Agricultural Meeting.

On Tuesday evening the farmers held another meeting in the State House. Gov. ernor Lincoln in the Chair, Subject—Compost Manure.

Dr. Jackson said at Providence, manure is worth five dollars per load; but that one barrel of fish, costing ninepence, put into a load of peat, costing nothing but digging, would be quite as valuable.

Dr. J. exhibited a quantity of artifical guano which he had manufactured on that and the previous day. The principal ingredients were potash and sawdust boiled together, then were added ground bones, phosphate of soda, and a long catalogue of articles too numerous to be named in a newspaper. He did not doubt thas this home-made guano was as good as the imported. He could make it for $3 per hundred.

Mr. W. Buckminster said he presumed the Doctor could manufacture as valuable an article as that brought from South America or from Ichaboe. We have yet but little experience of the value of this article. He purchased 100 weight of it last summer at the shop of C. Hovey & Co. He had been warned to mix it with other matter, to prevent its operating so powerfully as to destroy his plants.—He mixed fine loam anp fine manure with it, so as to double the quantity. He applied the 100 weight to his cornfield in Framingham. It did not eat up his plants. It seemed to be of some service to the corn hills. He and his laborers thought the 100 weight, cost $6, in addition to freight from Baston, was equal to ten bushels of ashes, which cost $1 25.

In regard to the estimate of the valuable matter in peat, Mr. B. said, some peat is three times as valuable as other peat for fuel as well as for manure.

Mr. J. Breck said he compounded some artificial guano last season and the purchaser said it was the best manure he had ever tried. He thought that which was sold by Mr. Hovey last year was not good—not so good as the Ichaboe from Africa.

The President now called on practical farmers to tell how they had succeeded in making compost manures. (All seemed backward.)

Mr. Gleason of Wayland said he felt very awkward in attempting to speak after hearing so scientific a lecture. He presumed that the gentleman from Framingham may not have tried guano so thoroughly and skilfully on his land as he might do. He had himself tried salt peat and found it valuable. nure of his horses by keeping them in a stable without a floor and throwing in loam in summer and litter in winter till the stable wants clearing out. Lime he has used on his high and dry lands without any advantage. On his low clayey grounds he finds lime useful.

[His low clayey lands have iron ore in them.—[Ed.

We have often found great benefit in harrowing winter grain in spring of the year, as soon as the ground is well settled, and dry, more especially wheat somewhat winter killed. It stirs the earth, encourages tillering, and adds to the vigor of the growth of the plant. The harrow should be followed by the roller, so as to replace the roots of the plants which may be laid bare by the harrow, and crowd them into the earth. It is hardly necessary to add, that the harrow should be light, with short, fine teeth. Among the German population of this country we have seen wooden tooth harrows frequently made use of for this purpose.

We believe that barley, oats, and all spring crops of grain may be harrowed to advantage, whenever the surface of the ground becomes hard and encrusted, which all clay soils are liable to after a hard rain. Harrowing the hemp crop under such circumstances, we are informed in Kentucky, has been found highly beneficial.—American Agriculturalist.

ASPARAGUS. A medical correspondent, on whose statement we can most implicitly rely, informs us that the advantages of this plant are not sufficiently estimated by those who suffer from rheumatism and gout. Slight cases of rheumatism are cured in a few days by feeding on this delicious esculent: and more chronic cases are much relieved, especially if the patient carefully avoid all acids, whether in food or beverage. The Jerusalem artichoke has also a simular effect in relieving rheumatism. The heads may be eaten in the usual way, but tea made from the leaves and stalks, and drank three or four times a day, is a certain remedy, though not equally agreeable.—York (Eng.) Courant.

Fruits of Electricity. When at Biloxi this autumn, says the Memphis Enquirer, we saw a lemon tree which had been made to produce several crops in quick succession, by the application to its roots of the galvanic battery. The fruit was as perfect as that grown in the natural way.

G. W & E. CRAFTS,
BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURERS AND STATIONERS,
174 ESSEX STREET, SALEM,

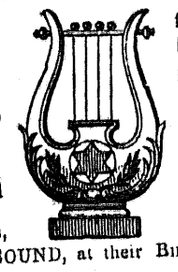
HAVE constantly on hand, and will manufacture to order, all kinds of Blank Books, from the best paper, ruled to any pattern, and bound in a neat and substantial manner.

FINE STATIONERY,

of almost ever description, adapted for counting rooms and schools, comprising in part, Letter and Writing Papers, ruled and plain; Drawing Papers; Note, Tissue and Wrapping Papers; Wafers; Sealing Wax; Seals and Steel Pens of every variety; Quills of every description; wafer Cups; sand boxes; writing fluids and inks; penknives; razors, &c.

PRINTING, RULING AND BINDING,

Printing of shop bills, cards, bill heads, catalogues, &c. executed in the neatest manner and on the best terms. Ruling, to any pattern desired, at short notice. Binding, of every description, executed with despatch.



SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

A constant supply of school books, of the best editions, together with every kind of School Stationery Also, all kinds of miscellaneous books furnished at the lowest rates. mch 15

Book, Stationery & Music Store.
JOHN P. JEWETT & CO.,
[Successors of Ives & Jewett,]
Opposite the Mansion House, No. 193 Essex Street,—SALEM,

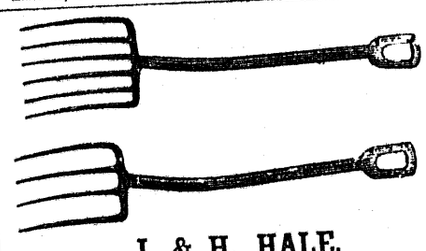
HAVE CONSTANTLY ON HAND,
A COMPLLTE assortment of Standard and Miscellaneous Books.
BLANK BOOKS, of every description.
Fine STATIONERY, Paper, Quills, &c.
Steel Pens, Ink, &c.
Parallel Rules, Wafers, &c.
SCHOOL BOOKS.—Traders from the country and School Committees, furnished with School Books, by the hundred or dozen, at the lowest prices.
All the popular School Books in quantities, on hand.
NEW PUBLICATIONS received as they issue from the press.
Ruled and Plain CAP and POT PAPERS, Ruled and Plain LETTER PAPER, Wrapping and Cartridge Paper, by the ream.

VIOLINS, FLUTES, CLARINETS, FIFES, &c. BASS VIOL and VIOLIN STRINGS,

for sale by the bundle or single, at New York prices. Together with a complete assortment of Musical Instruments.

BOOKS REBOUND, at their Bindery Establishment. march 15



HENRY WHIPPLE,
At his Book, Chart and Stationery Store,
No. 190 ESSEX STREET,

HAS for sale a general assortment of Books, in the various branches of Literature, all of which he offers for sale on the most reasonable terms.
PERIODICALS—Nearly all that are published in the United States, are regularly received.
H. W. is agent for Sherman's Cough, Camphor. and Worm Lozenges; Scarpa's Kresoote, Acoustic Oil, for the cure of Deafness, $2 00; Dr. Scudder's Genuine Acoustic Oil, for Deafness $1; Phelps's Tomato Pills; Woodbury's Vegetable Pills; Dean's Rheumatic Pills; Hedge's Rheumatic Plaster; Dyott's Anti-Bilious Pills; Gordak's Jelly of Pomegranate; Matthew's Unrivalled Corn Salve; Dr. Robertson's Vegetable Nervous Cordial; Dr. Robertson's Stomatic Elixir of Health, and various other medicines.

PAPER HANGINGS.

In a few days will be received as above a large assortment of new patterns of Papers, from 12 cts to 25 cts. a roll and new patterns of Philadelphia Papers and Borders. Salem, March 15

BOWDOIN'S DAGUERROTYPE ROOMS removed from Mechanic Hall to the adjoining building above, 208 Essex street, where he has rooms built expressly for the purpose of taking Miniatures in any weather.
Mr. B. tenders his sincere thanks to his friends and the public, for their liberal patronage the past year, and respectfully solicits the continuance of public favor. He has recently purchased a large Achromatic instrument for the purpose of taking GROUPS and LARGE PICTURES, which enables him to give pictures of all sizes, equal to those taken in New York or Boston He has formed a connexion with an establishment in New York, from whence he receives all the new improvements, and materials connected with the Art, which will enable him to give better pictures for less prices than can be obtained in Boston.
Miniatures set in every variety of Lockets, Frames, Cases, &c.
☞Persons visiting Salem, and those about going to sea, can have a perfect likeness completed in a few minutes' time.
 Miniatures set in a neat Morocco Case for $1 50. Exhibition rooms open to visiters through the day.
Salem, March 15. tf

J. & H. HALE,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
HARD WARE GOODS AND CUTLERY,
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
HOUSE KEEPING ARTICLES AND FANCY GOODS,
Agricultural Tools and Ploughs,
PLOUGH CASTINGS, FRICTION ROLLERS AND CRANKS,
Iron and Copper Pumps and Lead Pipe,
WINDOW GLASS,
CAMPHENE,
CAMPHENE LAMPS, HANGING, SIDE AND ASTRAL—A GREAT VARIETY OF STYLES,
Cut Glass, Britannia, Brass, Bronze and Mantle Lamps,
CARPENTER'S TOOLS,
HOUSE TRIMMINGS,
Shoe Makers' Tools, Nails, Thread and Pegs,
BOILER DOORS AND OVEN MOUTHS,
Furnaces, Cast Iron Hollow Ware, Tubs, Pails,
Mats, Cut Nails, Emery, Zinc, Lead, &c.
No. 215 Essex Street, SALEM, Mass.
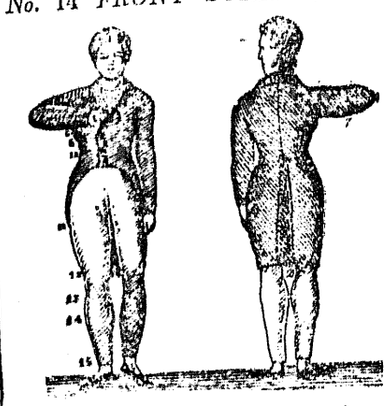
march 15 tf

REMOVAL.

SHEPARD & BURLEY—AUCTIONEERS—respectfully inform their friends and the public that they have removed to the spacious store recently occupied by Geo. C. Varney & Co., No. 34 Lawrence Place, Front street, where they will continue a General Auction and Commission Business.
Regular sales of Clothing, Dry and Fancy Goods, every Wednesday and Saturday.
Consignments of merchandize respectfully solicited.
Salem, March 15. 1m



S. R. BOTT,
DRAPER & TAILOR,
No. 148 Essex Street, Salem,

TAKES this method of informing the public of Danvers and vicinity that he has for sale one of the richest and BEST selected assortments of Broadcloths, Cassimeres & Vestings, ever before offered in Salem. The Stock is of the latest Spring and Summer styles, and cannot be surpassed by any establishment in the city, which will be sold by the yard, or made into Garments, in a style that CANNOT be surpassed in this or any other city.
☞Strangers from the country would do well to call at this establishment, as they select their Goods with the most perfect confidence, that each article is as good in quality, and as low in price as can be obtained at any other store.
N. B. The report of Fashions received every month.
Salem, March 15, 1845.

SPRING FASHIONS
JUST RECEIVED.

THE subscriber has just received a large and fashionable stock of Spring Goods, consisting of French, English and American
BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES AND DOESKINS.
Also—A rich assortment of VESTINGS, of the latest patterns, which will be made into Garments in the most fashionable style, on reasonable terms.
Also received—a nice lot of GENTLEMEN'S SCARFS and STOCKS of the latest styles.
Also—GLOVES, SUSPENDERS, SHIRT BOSOMS and COLLARS.
Also—Gentlemen's DRESSING GOWNS constantly on hand. JOHN DOLAN,
mch 15 275 Essex street, Salem.

BENJAMIN EDWARDS.
DRAPER & TAILOR,
No. 14 FRONT STREET, SALEM.

GARMENTS Cut and Made to order, and Fashionably, and warranted to give entire satisfaction
Constantly on hand, a good assortment of BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES, AND VESTINGS.
Also—Neck Stocks Italian Cravats, Scarfs, Shirt Bosoms, Collars, Feetings, Braces, Umbrellas, Hair and Clothes Brushes, Cologne Water, Wallets,
and other articles necessary for Gentlemen's use.
Grateful for the very liberal patronage which has heretofore been bestowed upon the establishment, he hopes by care and attention to business to merit a continuance.
Any order for Goods in the TAILORING LINE, attended to with promptness.
All Garments Repaired and Cleansed CHEAP.
Any of the above articles if not on hand when called for, will be furnished at short notice.
mch 15 tf

J. A. FARNSWORTH & CO.,
DEALERS IN
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC, FANCY AND STAPLE
DRY GOODS,
147 Essex Street, (Lynde Place,)
SALEM.
J. A. FARNSWORTH,
mch 15 W. L. FARNSWORTH.

GRASS SEED.
3000 POUNDS CLOVER SEED;
50 bags Red Top Seed;
150 bushels Herds Grass Seed;
Orchard Grass and White Clover Seed—for sale by S. CHAMBERLAIN & SON, march 15 Front Street, Salem.

EDWARDS' LINIMENT.
For Sprains, Cuts, Bruises, Stiffened or Swelled Joints. Chilblains, Chapped Hands, Numbness and Rheumatism.

THIS invaluable artidle is now for the first time offered to the public, after having been in use for twenty years, with unusual and astonishing success within the circle of the proprietor's immediate influence. It has received the unqualified approbation of some eminent Physicians, and also Mariners and Mechanics.
It is also recommended, and more than a thousand cases might be cited, when it has been used for Horses in cases of lameness or when galled, &c. &c.
The public are assured that in offering the above we do recommend that which has not the least semblance of QUACKERY, but on the contrary it has done great and lasting good in its efficacious power and healing qualities.
As this medicine has been so long known in Salem and its vicinity, and as there are many that would avail themselves of it if they knew where it could be obtained, therefore the subsciber would now offer it to the public. It will be found always on hand and prepared by the subscriber.
BENJ EDWARDS,
No. 14 Front street, Salem, Mass.
Wanted—trusty and worthy AGENTS in the neighboring towns and vicinity.
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENTS.
DANIELS, POOR & CO., Danvers, Mass.
Benjamin F. Browne, Salem Mass.
Smith & Fowle, Boston, "
H. F. Skerry, Bangor, Me.
Charles Whipple, Bookseller, Newburyport.
Wm. R. Preston, Portsmouth, N. H.
John S. Caldwell, Belfast. Me.
Wm. H. Palmer, Lynnfield.
Joseph Edwards, jr., Lynn.
Charles Edwards, Marblehead.
Wm. Edwards, Beverly.
March 15, 1845. tf

DANVERS COURIER.

VOL. 1. DANVERS, (Mass.) SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 5, 1845. NUMBER 3.

THE DANVERS COURIER

IS PUBLISHED BY

GEORGE R. CARLTON,

EVERY SATURDAY MORNING,

A few doors North of Mackintire's Hotel,

Central St.—South Danvers.

Terms—$1 50 if paid in advance, or $2 00, if not paid within one month of the time of subscribing.

The carriers are not allowed to sell any copies of the Courier. Single copies may be obtained at the office, at 5 cents each.

Advertisements will be inserted on favorable terms.

CALENDAR OF COURTS

TO BE HELD IN THE COUNTY OF ESSEX IN THE YEAR 1845.

April 1—Probate,—Salem.
" 2 " Marblehead.
" 8—County Commissioners,—Ipswich.
" 15—Probate,—Haverhill.
" 29—Supreme Judicial,—Ipswich.
May 6—Probate,—Ipswich.
" 13 " Gloucester.
" 20 " Salem.
June 3 " Ipswich.
" 10 " Newburyport.
" 16—Common Pleas,—Ipswich.
July 1—Probate,—Salem.
" 2 " Lynn.
" 8—County Commissioners,—Salem.
" 15—Probate,—Andover, S. P.
August 5 " Ipswich.
" 19 " Salem.
Sept. 2 " Ipswich.
" 9 " Newburyport.
" 15—Common Pleas,—Newburyport.
Oct. 7—Probate,—Salem.
" 8 " Marblehead.
" 14—County Commissioners.—Newburyp't.
" 21—Probate,—Haverhill.
Nov. 4—Supreme Judicial,—Salem.
" 4—Probate,—Ipswich.
" 11 " Gloucester.
" 18 " Salem.
Dec. 2 " Ipswich.
" 9 " Newburyport.
" 15—Common Pleas, Ipswich.
" 23—County Commissioners,—at such place as ordered at the preceding term.

POETRY.

Robed for the grave the young bride lay;
Her hands were crossed upon her breast;
The dimpling smile had ceased to play,
And on her pale lip gone to rest.

A rosebud, mossy, dewy, white,
Amid her flaxen curls was twined,
Just opening, beautiful and bright,
Like her unstained and thoughtful mind.

'Tis meet, the mourning lover said,
That flowers should deck my perished bride:
I little care, since she is dead,
How many wither at her side.

The rosebud breathed a gentle sigh,
Whose sweetness reached his fainting heart:
"I am content," it said, to die
But not till I this truth impart:

"I would fain teach thee, ere I go,
That though my form to death is given,
In all its bright and youthful glow,
My fragrance is exhaled to heaven.

"So thy young bride, on whose fair brow
I find a holy place of rest,
Has risen in spirit, even now,
And leans upon her Father's breast."

THE INDIAN.

He stood on the hill where his fathers had stood;
And gazed on the plains, the fields and the wood;
But the smoke of the wigwam had faded in air,
And the shout of the warrior no longer was there.

The forests were gone, and the wild deer had fled;
The mounds were upturned that had covered the dead;
The stream and the lake still rose to his view;
Where the sport of his youth was the light bark canoe.

But the track of the white man was seen on the shore;
In the field was his plough, in the stream was his oar;
And the flocks of the farmer were cropping their food,
Where the bark-covered hut of the warrior had stood.

Then, the last of the red men, he hastened away
From the graves where the bones of his forefathers lay,
To the grass-covered plains of the far distant West,
There alone in the desert unhonored to rest.

COMMUNICATION.

THE ORATORIO OF SAMSON.

This celebrated Oratorio has been performed on each of the ten Sabbath evenings last past, with great success, by the Handel and Haydn Society, at the Melodeon in Boston.—The music was composed by Handel in the year 1742; the words were written by Milton. It is essentially dramatic in its style, and has, in consequence of this characteristic, been not inappropriately denominated a great Religious Opera. The language employed by the great Poet in delineating the subject, is strikingly beautiful and expressive, and the master mind of Handel was never more successful in any effort, than in the adaptation of this music.

The Handel and Haydn Society is composed of about two hundred performers, including a most efficient Orchestra which is now under the direction of Mr. Herwig, whose reputation as a thoroughly accomplished musician is fully established. The vocalists of the Society are mostly amateurs, who are associated for the improvement of Sacred Music, and the good effects of their efforts have long been felt and appreciated not only in the city of Boston, but to a great extent throughout New England.

They have been eminently successful in bringing out this magnificent piece, and their spacious hall has been crowded on every evening of its performance, and the universal testimony of the audiences has been to the excellence of the manner in which it has been produced. It may well be imagined that the choruses are magnificent, when it is recollected that they are given out by about one hundred and eighty well trained singers, assisted by a powerful organ and an orchestra of twenty excellent performers.

The persons represented in the Oratorio, are Samson; Manoah, the father of Samson; Delilah Samson's wife; Micah; Harapha, of Gath, and a Messenger who conveys the news of the catastrophe by which Samson lost his life.—The first named has been personated by Mr. Marshall, a member of the Society. This part, which is a difficult and laborious one, he has invariably sustained with great credit to himself. He has a voice of much compass and flexibility, and he sings with ease and correctness. We have been particularly pleased with his performance of the splendid Air in which Samson so bitterly bewails the loss of sight, in these words:

Total eclipse! no son, no moon,
All dark amidst the blaze of noon;
O glorious light, no cheering ray,
To glad my eyes with welcome day.
Why thus depriv'd, thy prime decree!
Sun, Moon, and Stars, are dark to me.

It is a remarkable fact, that the author of the Poem, after so beautifully picturing the blindness of Samson, became blind himself; and also that the immortal composer of the Music, who was present at a subsequent representation of it, was observed to be powerfully affected during the performance of this sublime air, having been visited by the same calamity.

Mr. Aiken, in the performance of the part of Manoah, exhibits his rich and melodious bass voice to great advantage. His articulation is faultless, and his style is exceedingly chaste.—He gives promise of the highest excellence as a vocalist. We cannot omit to allude to the beautiful pathos with which he sings the mournful Air,

To sorrows now I tune my song,
And set my harp to notes of woe,

in which Manoah sadly bemoans the evils which have befallen his son. The Recitative, commencing "The good we wish for, often proves paternal lot," are also given with fine effect.

The part of Delilah is sustained by Miss Rosa Garcia. Her performance of the couplet, "With plaintive notes" is perfectly beautiful, and when she sings it, the audience find it difficult to keep within the rule of the Society which forbids any audible manifestations of applause during the evening.

Micah is represented by Miss Anna Stone, and her part is performed in the true spirit, and with a correct realization of the idea of the author. We would, however, suggest that her articulation is not so perfect as it should be.—Perhaps she is not aware how much this defect sometimes mars the pleasure which the audience would otherwise derive from listening to the rich tones of her voice. We make this suggestion in kindness, and not in the unbecoming spirit of the ungentlemanly critic of the Boston Post, who seems to aspire to nothing better than to gratify his propensity to censure, by finding fault with the arrangement of the lady's dress.

Mr. B. F. Baker personates "Harapa of Gath," the Philistine champion, and sings his part in a style which does him great credit.—He has, by industry and close application gained an enviable eminence among the best of the musical profession in Boston, and his performances in this Oratorio confirm his title to the high reputation which has been awarded to him. Your readers who have heard the Oratorio, will particularly remember his excellent performance of the Airs, "Honor and Arms," and "Presuming Slave."

The orchestral parts are rich and are finely sustained. The "Dead March," which is introduced after the death of Samson, is a thrilling performance. Some of the accompaniments, especially those to Miss Garcia's song, are delightful.

On the occasion of the ninth performance, the part of Samson was taken by Mr. Jones (a professional singer,) from New York, and originally, we believe, from England. We were disappointed in his singing. He was deficient in the knowledge of the music and the words, and, as we judge, unequal, in point of vocal power, to the performance. We observe that some of the Boston papers attribute his ill success to a lack of practice with the orchestra.—It may be so, in part; but he has also to learn the words, and their meaning, and that Alas! should not be pronounced "Ad-las!" to accomodate any difficulty that may stand in the way of a correct utterance. When an experienced professional singer comes before an audience, he should certainly be acquainted with what he has to do. The excuse of lack of study is rarely allowed to an amateur—by a master of music it never should be offered.

Much interest has been manifested in this vicinity to hear this Oratorio, and hundreds of persons from Salem, Danvers, &c. have attended. We hope the Society will find it for their interest to continue it for many weeks longer.

In speaking of Miss Stone and Miss Garcia, the discriminating musical critic who writes for the Boston Atlas, makes the following just and correct remarks:

"Here are two young singers, who are of us and among us. They are our stationary lights; and although the meteor-like visits of exotics may dazzle and charm by their novelty—perhaps by their splendor—a share of fostering regard and applause will bring our own resident talent into approximation to higher excellence. Miss Stone, with great breadth of voice, sustained breath, and ready and true reading, has the most advantage in subjects of grandeur.—Miss Garcia, with liquid notes, cultivated taste, and ready and true reading, has the advantage in subjects of beauty. One has a bold hand to present a fine portrait; the other, the delicate touch required in the detail of a miniature.—One is most like the onward majesty of a cataract, with its adjuncts of deep shadows, and overhanging rocks, and bold scenery of Autumn; the other is most like the gentle, murmuring rivulet, winding its way along the moss-covered and flowery banks of Summer. One commands our feelings; the other wins them. The power, perception and course of these two sisters in the art, are as different as well may be. There is no common space for jealousy.—Let us encourage both, and both will repay us by closer study, and further progress, for they both have high, though different, natural powers."

So say we—let us encourage to the full extent, all our young singers who exhibit powers worth cultivating, and the effect will be of immense benefit to the improvement of music in our midst—there will be more of a general love and taste engendered for that which is perfect in the art, and that which is merely superficial and trashy will disappear. We need awakening on this subject.

SELECTED TALES.

The Sexton of Cologne.

In the year 1571 there lived at Cologne a rich burgomaster, whose wife, Adelaide, then in the prime of her youth and beauty, fell sick and died. They had lived very happily together, and, throughout her fatal illness, the doating husband scarcely quitted her bedside for an instant. During the latter period of her sickness she did not suffer greatly; but the fainting fits grew more and more frequent, and of increasing duration, till at length they became incessant, and she finally sank under them.

The principal church in Cologne is the cathedral of St. Peter; and it was here that Adelaide was buried with great splendor. In the spirit of that age which had more feeling for the solid than real taste—more devotion and confidence than unbelieving fear—she was dressed as a bride in flowered silk, a motley garland upon her head, and her pale fingers covered with costly rings; in which Adelaide, in her splendid coffin, and her hand glittering with jewels that it could not grasp. "Of what use are diamonds to her now?" said he to himself. "Is there any sin in robbing the dead to give to the living? I would not do such a thing for myself if I were starving—no, Heaven forbid! But for my wife and child—ah! that's quite another matter."

Quieting his conscience as well as he could with this opiate, he hurried home to get the necessary implement; but by the time he reached his own door, his resolution began to waver. The sight however, of his wife's distress wrought him up again to the sticking-place; and having provided himself with a dark lantern, the church-keys, and a crow to break open the coffin, he set out for the cathedral. On his way, all manner of strange fancies crossed him: the earth seemed to shake beneath him—it was the tottering of his own limbs: a figure seemed to sign him back—it was a shade thrown from some column, that waved to and fro as the lamp-light flickered in the night-wind. But still the thought of home drove him on; and even the badness of the weather carried this consolation with it—he was more likely to find the streets clear, and escape detention.

He had now reached the cathedral. For a moment he paused on the steps, and then, taking heart, put the huge key into the lock. To his fancy, it had never opened with such readiness before. The bolt shot back at the light touch of the key, and he stood alone in the church, trembling from head to foot. Still it was requisite to close the door behind him, lest its being open should be noticed by any one passing by, and give rise to suspicion; and as he did so, the story came across his mind of the man who visited a church at midnight to show his courage. For a sign that he had really been there he was to stick his knife into a coffin; but, in his hurry and trepidation, he struck it through the skirt of his coat without being aware of it, and supposing himself held back by some supernatural agency, dropt down dead from terror.

Full of these unpleasant recollections, he tottered up the nave; and as the light successively flashed upon the sculptured marbles, it seemed as if the pale figures frowned ominously upon him.—But desperation supplied the place of courage.—He kept on his way to the choir—descended the steps—passed through the long, narrow passage, with the dead heaped on either side—opened Adelaide's chapel, and stood at once before her coffin. There she lay, stiff and pale—the wreath in her hair, and the jewels on her fingers, gleaming strangely in the dim lights of the lantern. He even fancied that he already smelt the pestilential breath of decay, though it was far early for corruption to have begun his work. A sickness seized him at the thought; and he leaned for support against one of the columns, with his eyes fixed on the coffin; when—was it real, or was it illusion?—a change came over the face of the dead! He started back; that change, so indescribable, had passed away in an instant, leaving a darker shadow on the features.

"If I had only time," he said to himself—"If I had only time, I would rather break open one of the other coffins, and leave the lady Adelaide in quiet. Age has destroyed all that is human in these mummies: they have lost that resemblance to life, which makes the dead so terrible, and I should no more mind handling them than so many dry bones. It's all nonsense, though; one is as harmless as the other, and since lady Adelaide's house is easiest for my work, I must e'en set about it."

But the coffin did not offer the facilities he reckoned upon with so much certainty. The glass-windows were secured inwardly with iron wire, leaving no space for the admission of the hand, so that he found himself obliged to break the lid to pieces, a task that, with his imperfect implements, cost both time and labor. As the wood splintered and cracked under the heavy blows of the iron, the cold perspiration poured in streams down his face; the sound assuring him more than all the rest that he was committing sacrilege. Before, it was only the place, with its dark associations that, had terrified him: now he began to be afraid of himself, and would, without doubt, have given up the business altogether, if the lid had not suddenly flown to pieces. Alarmed at his very success, he started round, as if expecting to see some one behind, watching his sacrilege, and ready to clutch him; and so strong had been the illusion, that when he found this was not the case, he fell upon his knees before the coffin, exclaiming, "forgive me, dear lady, if I take from you what is of no use to yourself, while a single diamond will make a poor family so happy. It is not for myself—Oh no!—it is for my wife and children."

He thought the dead looked more kindly at him as he spoke thus, and certainly the livid shadow had passed away from her face. Without more delay, he raised the cold hand to draw the rings from its finger; but what was his horror when the dead returned his grasp! his hand was clutched, aye firmly clutched, though that rigid face and form lay there as motionless as ever. With a cry of horror he burst away, not retaining so much presence of mind as to think of the light, which he left burning by the coffin. This, however, was of little consequence; fear can find its way in the dark, and he rushed through the vaulted passage, up the steps, through the choir, and would have found his way out, had he not in his hurry, forgotten the stone, called the Devil's Stone, which lies in the middle of the church, and which, according to the legend, was cast there by the Devil. Thus much is certain;—it has fallen from the arch, and they still show a hole above, through which it is said to have been hurled.

Against this stone the unlucky sexton stumbled, just as the turret-clock struck twelve, and immediately he fell to the earth in a deathlike swoon. The cold, however, soon brought him to himself, and on recovering his senses he again fled, winged by terror, and fully convinced that he had no hope of escaping the vengeance of the dead, except by the confession of his crime, and gaining the forgiveness of the family. With this view he hurried across the market-place to the Burgomaster's house, where he had to knock long before he could attract any notice. The whole household lay in a profound sleep, with the exception of the unhappy Adolph, who was sitting alone on the same sofa where he had so often sat with his Adelaide. Her picture hung on the wall opposite to him, though it might rather be said to feed his grief than to afford him any consolation. And yet, as most would do under such circumstances, he dwelt upon it the more intently from the pain it gave, and it was not till the sexton had knocked repeatedly that he awoke from his melancholy dreams. Roused at last he opened the window and inquired who it was that disturbed him at such an unseasonable hour?—"It is only I, Mr. Burgomaster," was the answer. —"And who are you?" again asked Adolph. "Bolt, the sexton of St. Peter's, Mr. Burgomaster; I have a thing of the utmost importance to discover to you."—Naturally associating the idea of Adelaide with the sexton of the church where she was buried, Adolph was immediately anxious to know something more of the matter, and, taking up a wax-light, he hastened down stairs, and himself opened the door to Bolt.

"What have you to say to me?" he exclaimed —"Not here, Mr. Burgomaster," replied the anxious sexton;—"not here; we may be overheard."

Adolph, though wondering at this affectation of mystery, motioned him in and closed the door; when Bolt, throwing himself at his feet, confessed all that had happened. The anger of Adolph was mixed with compassion as he listened to the strange recital; nor could he refuse to Bolt the absolution which the poor fellow deemed so essential to his security from the vengeance of the dead.—At the same time, he cautioned him to maintain a profound silence on the subject towards every one else, as otherwise the sacrilege might be attended with serious consequences—it not being likely that the ecclesiastics, to whom the judgement of such matters belonged, would view his fault with equal indulgence. He even resolved to go himself to the church with Bolt, that he might investigate the affair more thoroughly. But to this proposition the sexton gave a prompt and positive denial.—"I would rather," he exclaimed,—"I would rather be dragged to the scaffold than again disturb the repose of the dead." This declaration, so ill-timed, confounded Adolph. On the one hand, he felt an undefined curiosity to look more narrowly into this mysterious business; on the other, he could not help feeling compassion for the sexton, who, it was evident, was labouring under the influence of a delusion which he was utterly unable to subdue. The poor fellow trembled all over, as if shaked by an ague fit, and painted the situation of his wife and his pressing poverty with such a pale face and such despair in his eyes, that he himself might have passed for a church-yard spectre. The burgomaster again admonished him to be silent for fear of the consequences, and giving him a couple of dollars to relieve his imediate wants, sent him home to his wife and family.

Being thus deprived of his most natural ally on this occasion, Adolph summoned an old and confidential servant, of whose secrecy he could have no doubt. To his question of—"Do you fear the dead?"—Hans stoutly replied, "They are not half so dangerous as the living."

"Indeed!" said the Burgomaster. "Do you think, then, that you have courage enough to go into the church at night"—"In the way of my duty, yes," replied Hans; "not otherwise. It is not right to trifle with holy matters."

"Do you believe in ghosts, Hans?" continued Adolph.—"Yes, Mr. Burgomaster."

"Do you fear them?"—"No, Mr. Burgomaster,—I hold by God, and he holds up me; and God is the strongest."

"Will you go with me to the cathedral, Hans? I have had a strange dream to-night: it seemed to me as if my deceased wife called to me from the steeple window."—"I see how it is," answered Hans! "the sexton has been with you, and put this whim into your head, Mr. Burgomaster. These grave-diggers are always seeing ghosts."

"Put a light in your lantern," said Adolph, avoiding a direct reply to this observation of the old man. "Be silent, and follow me."—"If you bid me," said Hans, "I must of course obey; for you are my magistrate as well as my master."

Herewith he lit the candle in the lantern, and followed his master without farther opposition.

Adolph hurried into the church with hasty steps, but the old man, who went before him to show the way, delayed him with his reflections—so that their progress was but slow. Even at the threshold he stopped, and fixing the light of his lantern upon the gilder rods over the door, to which it is a custom to add a fresh one every year, that people may know how long the reigning elector has lived.

"That is an excellent custom," said Hans; "one has only to count those staves, and one learns immediately how long the gracious elector has governed us simple men." Not a monument would he pass without first stopping to examine it by the lantern-light, and requesting the Burgomaster to explain its inscription, although he had spent his three-and-sixty years in Cologne, and during that period, had been in the habit of frequenting it almost daily.

Adolph, who well knew that no representations would avail him, submitted patiently to the humors of his old servant, contenting himself with answering his questions as briefly as possible; and in this way they at last got to the high altar. Here Hans made a sudden stop, and was not to be brought any farther.

"Quick!" exclaimed the Burgomaster, who was beginning to lose his patience, for his heart throbbed with expectation.

"Heaven and all good angels defend us!" muttered Hans, through his chattering teeth, while he in vain felt for his rosary, which yet hung as usual at his girdle.

"What is the matter now?" cried Adolphe.

"Do you see who sits there?" replied Hans.

"Where?" exclaimed his master.

"I see nothing; hold up the lantern."

"Heaven shield us!" cried the old man, there sits our deceased lady, on the altar, in a long white veil, and drinks out of the sacramental cup!"

With a trembling hand he held up the lantern in the direction to which he pointed. It was, indeed, as he had said. There she sat, with the paleness of death upon her face—her white garments waving heavily in the night wind, that rushed though the aisles of the church—and holding the silver goblet to her lips with long, bony arms, wasted by protracted illness. Even Adolph's courage began to waver.—"Adelaide," he cried," I conjure you in the name of the blessed Trinity, answer me—is it thy living self, or but thy shadow?"

"Ah!" replied a faint voice," you buried me alive, and but for this wine, I had perished from exhaustion. Come up to me, dear Adolph; I am no shadow—but I shall soon be with shadows, unless I receive your speedy succour."

"Go not near her!" said Hans;"it is the Evil One, that has assumed the blessed shape of my lady to destroy you."

"Away, old man!" exclaims Adolph, bursting from the feeble grasp of the servant, and rushing up the steps of the altar.

It was indeed Adelaide that he held in his eager embrace—the warm and living Adelaide!—who had been buried for dead in her long trance and had only escaped from the grave by the sacrilegious daring of—The Sexton of Cologne.

DANVERS COURIER.

SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 5, 1845.

FINANCES OF THE TOWN.

Our citizens will be called upon to act on this important subject, at the adjournment of the town meeting on Monday next. The annual statement of the auditors did not exhibit this department in a very flattering condition. This arises from the many extraordinary expenses to which the town has been subjected; and the State and County tax do much to swell the amount.

The whole subject has been placed in the hands of a committee, who have the unwelcome task of recommending a plan of finance to the town.—We hope these gentlemen will look the matter full in the face, and propose measures which will place the treasury in such circumstances as to provide for an annual reduction of the debt. Such a course, although it may at first be burdensome to our tax-paying citizens, we believe would readily be borne, and more satisfactory than a load of debt, with no provision for its payment.

While on this subject, we wish to say a word in relation to the assessment of taxes. It is many years since a thorough investigation with a view to finding taxable polls and property has been made, and in no year was such an examination more required than the present. We hope assistant assessors will be chosen, or the present board be authorized to procure such assistance for this purpose as they may need, at the expense of the town.

We make these remarks in no spirit of dictation, but to prepare the minds of our citizens for such an increase of taxation as must inevitably be borne.

LAW MAKING.

Many years ago the inhabitants of our good town undertook to frame a code of By-Laws for the protection of the town from danger by fire.—One of the Articles provided that "No person should carry fire from place to place except in an old broken vessel with a cover to the same." Any person, therefore, who should carry fire in a new or a whole vessel, if it was ever so safe, would be liable to the penalty.

This reminds us of a municipal law of the town of Boston previous to the Revolution, which obliged all negroes who appeared in the streets in the evening, to carry a lantern. This was faithfully complied with, but the negroes put no candles in their lanterns. Another law was then made that they should carry a lantern with a candle in it.—This was also obeyed, but Sambo put in his candle without lighting it. These wise legislators then provided that the lantern should have a lighted candle in it, and by this third enactment expressed more plainly their first intention.

To Readers and Correspondents. We would call the attention of our readers, and especially our musical friends, to the article on the Oratorio of Sampson. It is written by an Amateur, and one on whose musical skill and taste the utmost reliance may be placed. It will well repay an attentive perusal.

We have received a beautifully written original sketch, "A sad Tale, but True," which will appear next week.

The stanzas "To April" will have a place next Saturday.

DEDICATION.

The new and elegant hall in Mr. Andrew Lunt's building in Lowell St. was opened for the first time on Wednesday evening by a grand civic ball which was kept up until the "small hours" of the next morning. We understand it was a brilliant affair and went off to the satisfaction of all concerned.

FIRE IN SALEM.

About 3 o'clock on Thursday morning a fire was discovered in the Second Baptist Church in Salem, and it was only by the prompt attendance of the Firemen with their engines that the building was saved in a very damaged condition. It was no doubt the work of an incendiary. The alarm did not reach Danvers except the easterly portion of Main St. The Volunteer Engine was consequently the only one at the fire from this place and she did good service, playing directly on the fire receiving water from No. 2, from Beverly.

PROFESSOR BUSH.

Our readers will perceive by an advertisement in another column, that this eminent Biblical scholar, is to give a course of Lectures in this place.

His reputation is so widely extended and the desire to hear him so strong with the religious public of whatever faith, that it is hardly necessary to do more then make the announcement. A rich and highly intellectual treat is in reserve for those of our citizens who will partake of it.

ORDER OF RECHABITES.

There has recently been organized in this place, a branch of this Society, called the Howard Tent. We learn that this Order is very popular and flourishing in other places, and is fast gaining accessions to its numbers. It is formed on high moral and social principles.

RESIGNATION. We understand that Rev. Dr. Bigelow has resigned the pastoral charge of the Unitarian society in this place. Dr. B. has been among us a little more than two years, and by his learning, urbanity, enlarged views and pleasing social qualities, has won the respect and esteem of all our citizens. It is seldom that we witness the expression of feelings of regret more general than at his anticipated departure from our village, and wherever his lot in future may be cast, he will be attended by the blessings and best wishes of our townsmen.

REV. MR. BRAMAN. We learn that the Ecclesiastical Council to which was submitted this gentleman's resignation of the pastoral charge of the 1st church and society, have decided against a separation. We rejoice in this result, not only because this eminent divine is retained among us, but we regard the decision as a rebuke to that spirit of restlessness and change which has too often separated parishes from their teachers without adequate cause.

CLERICAL DELEGATES.

Rev. Drs. Sharp, Parkman and Codman sailed in the Cambria for England, and will represent several of our benevolent societies in the great meetings in that country. They are all highly distinguished as learned Divines of their several denominations, and will do honor abroad to the American pulpit.

THE BEST LICENSE LAW YET. At the annual town meeting in Augusta Me., it was voted by a very large majority that the selectmen shall appoint two persons to sell alcoholic liquors for mechanical and medicinal purposes only, to keep a record of all they sell, the persons to whom sold, the quantities delivered, the purposes used for, and give the profits to the town,—they being allowed a reasonable compensation for their trouble. wants of the public being thus provided for.

We think this is the best law that has been proposed upon this subject, and we wish that regulations to a similar effect might be adopted in every place.

REV. DR. BAIRD'S LECTURES.

Dr. Baird's course of lectures in Salem, on Europe, closed on Monday evening last by an extra lecture on the advances in civilization on the continent of Europe, the last century. This he maintained had been rapid as seen by its internal improvements, its literature, the costume and domestic habits of the population, the fusion of languages, the consolidation of the smaller states into larger empires, and lastly in its RELIGIOUS advancement. Dr. Baird's lectures have been much admired and well attended, some from this town having attended the whole course. A resolution of thanks was passed at the close of the last lecture, Chief Justice Wells being in the Chair, and Dr. B. Cox Secretary of the meeting.

REMARKABLE CURE.

We have heard of a patient being cured by a prescription so remarkably simple and efficacious that we feel prompted by the duty we owe to the cause of humanity to make the case public, It is unnecessary to describe in detail the ills and miseries endured by the unhappy sufferer. We would not harrow up the feelings of the reader by a minute account of the manner with which he was afflicted with loss of appetite, dizziness, impurity of blood, depression of spirits and general debility. It is sufficient for us to make known to the community the remarkable remedy by which his cure was effected and that it was completely effected our readers may be assured as we have seen the patient, strong and active and in full enjoyment of of vigorous health. Suffering under a complication of diseases the very names of which were unknown to the medical faculty, the sufferer sought relief in vain at their hands. He was equally unsuccessful with the Homœopathic, Hydropathic and Thomsonian practitioners. He next applied to the North American College of Health and to Dr. Brandreth with the same want of success. It was truly lamentable to witness the condition to which he was reduced and relief seemed almost hopeless! In vain had he taken Sand's Sarsaparilla and Swaim's Panacea,—Old Parr's Life Pills and Sherman's Lozenges,—Pease's Candy and Tomato Bitters—Indian Vegetable Pills and Dandelion Pills. His condition was so desperate that he would sooner or later have come to his grave had he not been induced by the advice of a friend to take—a newspaper!

☞The genuine article may be had at this office.

LIBERALITY.

We understand that the Essex County Teacher's Association have received a gift of $100 from that distinguished friend and advocate of free schools, Hon. Edmund Dwight. Accustomed as we are to witness the parsimony of the wealthy in regard to the instruction of the young, it is really refreshing to record such an instance of enlightened liberality. It shows that some at least know the true value of wealth, and that it is more rational to use property for the purpose of instructing and elevating the rising generation, than to hoard it to be squandered by and perhaps cause the ruin of their own children.

HISTORY OF NEWBURY. We had last week the pleasure of looking over the proof sheet of a large portion of the history of Newbury as prepared by Joshua Coffin Esq. and now nearly ready to be issued from the press. It is a very valuable work, and of intrinsic interest to all inhabitants of the town who are connected with it. Mr C. has been a long time preparing this work, and in completeness and accuracy we think it will surpass any town history yet published. Newbury is a very old town, it was settled in 1635, and then included within its limits the present town of Newbury, West Newbury and Newburyport. We shall give a more extended notice of the history when published.

Bulwer, in his "Conversations with an ambitious student," with a great deal of truth says, The true spirit of conversation consists in building on another man's observation, not overturning it. Thus the wit says, "apropos of your remark" and the disagreeable man exclaims, 'I cannot agree with you."

NUMBERING THE STREETS. We have often heard the suggestion that it would be a great convenience to our citizens to have the houses and stores on the streets in the most populous parts of the town, numbered. The advantages are so obvious and the expense so trifling, that we hope to see in the warrant for the next town meeting a clause to effect this object.

FREE LABOR SUGAR.

We notice that provision is made in Sir Robert Peel's new Tariff for a discrimination in favor of free labor sugar and some other articles, with the professed object of discouraging the slave trade, by depriving of a market those countries which still countenance that traffic. Sugar from the United States is however admitted under the low duty.—It must be exceedingly gratifying to the slaves who are toiling under the compulsion of taskmasters in the cane brakes of Lousiana, to learn that they are free laborers.

DIVIDEND—The Warren Bank of this town make a dividend of 3 per cent.

Oratorio of Samson will be given by the Boston Handel & Haydn Society, on Sunday evening next, at the Melodeon. The great favor with which this piece has been received, is a gratifying proof that a love for that which is really good and intrinsically excellent music still exists with the public. The H. & Haydn Society, in bringing it out, have done much towards the overthrow of the musical humbuggery of the day, and for the encouragement of a purer taste.

We learn that an extra train will leave this city at five o'clock on Sunday evening, to return at the close of the performance.—Salem Gazette.

NORTH BROOKFIELD.

We find in an exchange paper, the following account of this thriving little town The firm there alluded to is well known here, and the individuals composing it, enjoy a high reputation for uprightness and integrity. They have one of the largest shoe establishments in the country, and have had dealings to a large amount with our citizens, of whom much of their stock is purchased.

North Brookfield is about twenty miles on the western Rail Road from Worcester. Until within a very few years almost exclusively a farming Town—not, one of the busiest hives in this busiest of all States. The Town contains a population of about 1600 souls. Shoes, of the coarser kinds, are made here to the amount of nearly half a million of dollars annually. One firm has employed about three hundred hands, constantly. I was curious to learn the mode of operation by which large, heavy shoes are made and sold at from fifty to eighty-seven cents per pair. The firm spoken of has first a shop four stories high, used only for storage, cutting, and packing. About a dozen hands are employed in cutting uppers. One man with his machine, cuts the soles, and another with his assortment of machinery cuts the heels. The uppers when cut are sent away to be closed and then to be pegged, then nailed, then strung, then packed, and they are ready for market. The prices for the different parts of the work are nearly the following. For cutting soles and heels, perhaps a dollar a thousand; for cutting and pasting uppers, say fifty cents a hundred; for closing, (done by females) three cents a pair; for putting on the bottoms, ten cents a pair; for nailing, twenty to fifty cents a hundred pairs. Thus you see shoes are made cheap—too cheap. The workmen complain, not of their employers, but of the business, that it does not yield a fair remuneration.

A most atrocious murder was committed in the town of Manchester, N.H., on the evening of the 26th inst. The body of Jonas L. Parker, the town collector of taxes, was found about two hundred rods from the main street of that place, with his throat cut from ear to ear, his head cut in several places, and stabbed also in various other parts. He was robbed of a large amount of money belonging to the town. The town's money he carried in a large pocket book, which is gone. A smaller one was found upon his person, containing his own money, about $1700, which was overlooked by the murderer. No clue has yet been found to the parties guilty of the horrid crime.

FOR THE COURIER.

CANINE SAGACITY.

A dog remarkable for his sagacity formerly lived in Boston street in Salem, and was attached to an engine company, having been adopted by the members for his faithful services. He was of middling size, of the breed called the smooth terrier, and was called Marcus. No member of the company was more constant in attending the meetings at the engine house, or more vigilant at an alarm of fire than Marcus. At the very first alarm he was always seen bounding towards the engine house, and seizing the end of the rope in his mouth, he would lead off the long string of men and boys who conveyed to its destination. He was frequently the first to arrive at the engine house and at such times he showed the greatest anxiety and impatience by loud barking and scratching at the door until some of the members came. His hearing was very acute and he would be the first to catch the sound of a distant bell in the night time and would then alarm the neighbors by his loud, rapid barking as he ran up and down the street.

He was, of course, a great favorite with the firemen and one time he met with an accident while going to a fire by which he was severely injured and their care for his welfare led them to lock him into a room to hasten his cure. That very night he was awakened by an alarm of fire and the firemen who first arrived at the engine house were surprised to see Marcus, all lame and bloody, limping towards the engine. He had released himself from his confinement by leaping through a glass window, carrying away the sash and alighting on the ground. He seemed to have lost all thought of injury to himself in his eagerness to perform his duties at the engine, a recklessness of personal danger which has so often distinguished our devoted firemen in the hour of peril.

TRAY.

FOR THE DANVERS COURIER.

A SCHOOL VISIT AT SALEM.

A few weeks since I dropped into the Salem Lyceum at the time the first classes of the several schools were under examination. The platform and the seats adjacent were occupied by the School Committe and the teachers and pupils.—The remaining parts of the room were crowded with parents, brothers and sisters of the scholars and others who felt an interest in the intellectual improvement of the rising generation. Classes of bright, intelligent looking boys with their slates, successively occupied the platform and each individual read to a large audience his composition and delivered his slate to the committe. Then came the classes of girls, interesting young ladies of modest demeanor, who also read in a clear and distinct voice from their slates. I was told that the subject was given out that morning and their writing was of course almost impromptu. The theme given at this time was "Our favorite occupation or amusements." This simple subject was treated with various degrees of ability and on the whole very well. I noticed that the boys generally avowed their preference for seating and sliding down hill, the only exceptions being two or three who preferred fishing and picking berries. The girls seemed to have more variety in their amusements, such as reading, music, walking and riding; I noticed that one little miss was so independent as to avow her choice to be dancing.—Another young lady read a beautiful composition describing a visit to Harmony Grove. After the compositions were read, the young ladies were required to parse the words and give the reasons for the construction of their sentences, and in this exercise they acquitted themselves with much credit to both teachers and pupils.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Gen McCalla, of Kentucky, the villainous slanderer of Mr. Clay, has been appointed Second Auditor of the Treasury, in the place of W. B. Lewis, removed; and R. H. Gillett, of New York, Register of the Treasury, in the place of Thomas L. Smith, removed.

It is understood that Mr. Benton's influence was used in vain to retain Mr. Smith in office, he being connected by marriage with Benton's family.

The correspondent of the N.Y. Herald says: This morning a special messenger left the city to proceed to Pensacola, whence he will be despatched by steamer to Vera Cruz and thence to Mexico.

It is supposed that he has been instructed to learn how the passage of the Annexation Resolution has been received in Mexico. If he finds any hostile intentions entertained there, both he and Mr. Shannon will have to return immediately to the United States.

Correspondence of the Express.

Washington is at present in a state of the highest excitement. the recent uncalled-for removals, and many others that are sure to follow, have thrown the town into a ferment. The gratuitous falsehood of which the President has been guilty, adds a new feature to his proscription. He pledged himself to conspicuous members of both parties not to make precipitate removals. But the inquisitive malice of the Cabinet has reached the humble clerk at his desk; where, wholly immersed in official cares, he was earning his scanty pittance, and has cast him upon the world penniless and desperate. Nay, the cold-blooded policy of the Postmaster-General has pursued a faithful negro, who for many years has served as a capable, honest and popular messenger, and proscribed him for a favorite of his own!

Lists have been made out, embracing every city and village of the Union, of the predestined victims. A general scoop of all incumbents will take place, with the exception of a few too powerful, or too insignificant, for vindictive observation.—The Tyler men will be the earliest victims.

And this infamous system of proscription is not to be confined to domestic offices; it is destined to reach all other important and various foreign appointments. The evils of this system at home are sufficiently disastrous. Abroad, they will be fatal to the reputation and interest of the country.—Blatant and hungry democracy vociferates and demands whatever of official pap the Treasury can afford. It is like a wild beast, and will not be quieted until it is fully gorged.

[From the Salem Gazette]

As the session of the Legislatre is now closed, before whom the agitation of this subject commenced, it may be useful to call to mind some of the incidents that have occurred, in relation to the road proposed from Danvers to Boston. Not that we now intend to enter upon a discussion of the merits of this question, or to express any opinion of the propriety of the conclusions at which the Committee arrived, the whole subject being referred, by the courtesy of the Senate, to the next General Court, when it may or may not be re-examined; but simply for the purpose of inquiring whether the petitioners were treated with fairness and impartiality, by the tribunal to whom their claim was presented. It cannot be denied, that there was a very general expression of opinion in the County of Essex, in favor of the proposed road; and that those who asked liberty to build it, were able and willing to do so, in case the prayer of their petition had been granted. It has been said and we think there are many facts incapable of explanation upon any other theory, that the standing Committee on Railways had so far predetermined the question before the hearing commenced, that they were not disposed to give attention to what might be offered in favor of the petitions.—That the leading members of the Committee, at least, were so thoroughly imbued with the notions of the managers of existing roads, in relation to their vested and acquired rights, that their minds were not open to the contemplation of any other view of the subject.

The following facts are worthy of being remembered, and if capable of any other explanation than is here suggested, we trust those who have the power to explain will give it:—

1. The notices on the petition of D. Pingree and others, were made returnable on the 27th of January, among the very first cases to which the attention of the Committee was called, and notwithstanding the petitioners were solicitous to be heard without delay, they were not permitted to commence the hearing until the middle of February.

2. After the hearing was commenced, it was prolonged for the period of twenty days or more, by the intervention of other cases, much to the inconvenience of the petitioners when it might have been perfectly well completed in one-third part of the time.

3. After the Committee had agreed upon their Report, it was kept back and not permitted to be brought before the Legislature, for the purpose of giving time to the remonstrants to publish their arguments of Counsel, and ex parte statements, (many of which had never come to the knowledge of the petitioners,) and to distribute the same in the seats of members, with a view of influencing their opinions on the subject.

4. The Report of the Committee was not brought into the Legislature until about the close of the session, when it was perfectly well known by those who controlled these matters, that it would not be possible, if ever so much desired, to take any definitive action in favor of the petitioners.

In view of these facts, which we know to be true, and many others which might be enumerated, we cannot resist the conclusion that the 5000 petitioners from the Counties of Suffolk and Essex, who honestly came forward claiming what they had a right to ask, and what no one had a right to deny, have by means of the officious influence of the EASTERN RAILROAD CORPORATION, been shoved one side, without anything like a fair and impartial hearing. We would not complain of our position, or have that fair and impartial hearing which we have a right to expect from the Legislature of Massachusetts. EXAMINER.

SHAVINGS.

A correspondent of the Richmond Democrat says that there is now living in that city a man, who, with his sons, sons-in-law, grandsons, and grandsons-in-law, number 31 voters, all Whigs, and all teetotal temperance men.

Cost of Intemperance. The report of the Secretary of State of New York has shown that out of the $500,000 spent annually in New York for the support of the poor, one half of this enormous tax can be traced to intemperance.

Advantage of low Fares.—The Concord and Lowell Railroad are reaping a golden harvest from reduction of fares, and would be still greater gainers if a further reduction were made, without any compulsion from competing roads. There have been sales of Concord stock at 40 per cent. in advance, and it is not easily obtained at that rate.—Boston Post.

Young ladies who are accustomed to read newspapers are always observed to possess winning ways, most amiable dipositions, invariably make good wives, and always select good husbands.

Discontinuance.—The new Postmaster General has discontinued the Government Express to New Orleans, established by his predecessor, Mr Wickliffe, and intends the regular mail shall make the trip within the same time that it was performed by the express, which was eight days.

☞Hon. H. Foster, late Senator in congress, has been nominated for Governor of Tennessee, by the Whig State Convention, which assembled at Nashville on the 20th inst.

☞East Boston is said now to have a population of 5900—twelve years ago there was only one family on the Island.

FOREIGN MISSIONS. The receipts into the treasury of the American Board during the month of February were $21,560 28, including legacies of $1000 each from John Damon, late of Reading, Mass., and John Francis, late of Royalton, Vt., and also a legacy of $3000, from the late Mrs. Eunice Haskell, of Ipswich, Mass. Among the donations we observe one of $50 from a lady at the Sandwich Islands.

☞Two hundred and nineteen persons, men women and babes, had their names changed by the Legislature, at the recent session

THE INDIAN WAR. We learn from the Arkansas Intelligence that disturbances of the Indians appear for the present to be settled but from the "talk" of one of the Greek Chiefs we may again expect that the Pawnee Mahas will attack the Greeks.

MR. FAIRCHILD ACQUITTED. The trial of Rev Joy H. Fairchild, for Adultery, was concluded on Saturday. The jury retired at quarter past 10 A M, after an able charge from Judge Washburn, and at 10 minutes past 6 P M, as we learn from the Evening Gazette returned a verdict of Not Guilty. There was some expression of feeling in Court when it was announced, coinciding with the verdict.

Mr Fanning attended public worship on Sunday at the Methodist Episcopal Church, South Boston, was invited by the clergyman into the pulpit, and offered the concluding prayer, and read a hymn.

Rhode Island Etedion. We learn that this has resulted in the choice of Jackson, Gubernatorial candidate in favor of the unconditional liberation of Dorr. The Legislature is Whig and a Whig member of Congress is elected.

Atrocious Conduct. The Piscataqui Farmer states that a band of men disguised as Indians, a few days since forced the doors of a "Miller" meeting in Atkinson, and seized and carried off several persons not supposed to belong to the town, and threatened to tar and feather the adventists it they held any more meetings.

A machine has been invented at Chicago, which promises to supersede the use of spades. By the assistance of two yoke of oxen and two men, it will cut a ditch 2 feet by 3 fee t at the top, and 18 inches at the bottom, at the rate of 290 tons per day.

California. The Paris "Presse" contains the following paragraph:

"The fall of Santa Anna has exposed one of the vastest projects which the undermining ambition of Great Britain ever conceived. It appears from the correspondence of the Ex-President of Mexico with the British Minister, that the former for a sum of 25,000,000 piastres of which he had reserved for himself a considerable portion, was on the eve of ceding absolutely to Great Britain, the magnificent province of California, considered so valuable both by Great Britain and the United States, that the latter, in the year 1837, offered $5,000,000 for the harbor of San Francisco alone."

Boston Ice Crop.— It is stated that 150,000 tons of ice have been packed at Boston from Fresh Pond this season for exportation. With us the crop promised fair in the fall, but before spring was winter killed.—Chicago Jour.

The Lowell Courier says that Hon. Linus Child has accepted the appointment of Agent of the Boott Mills in that city. He will enter upon the duties about the 1st of May.

Mr Dallas returned to his home in Philadelphia last Friday from Washington, having finished his first tour of duty in the Senate, and is now attending the courts as usual in the exercise of his profession.—Pennsylvanian.

Collector and Surveyor of Boston.—The Hon. Marcus Morton has been appointed by the president, collector of the port of Boston, in the place of Lemuel Williams, removed. Gen. John McNeill has also been appointed surveyor in place of Major Graftan, removed.—Boston Times.

War with Mexico.—Gen. Almonte has received advices from his government since the overthrow of his particular friend Santa Anna. The ambassador has been recognized by the new government, but will, nevertheless, return the resolutions for the annexation of Texas were passed by so very small a majority, the Mexican government will not think it necessary to disturb the friendly relations now existing between the two nations.—Jour. of Com.

Senator Dickinson, in his late speech, represents Texas as a "dark-haired, black-eyed damsel," full of virgin beauty and innocence, and ready to spring into the outstretched arms of Uncle Sam, a vigorous old wooer. The late news however, shows that although young, she is accomplished with the arts of the sex, and is determined to indulge in a little coquetry. Perhaps she is only holding off to test the old gentleman's affection. Should she refuse entirely, we don't think he would break his heart or commit suicide.—Roch. Bem.

BRIGHTON MARKET—Monday, March 31.

[From the Boston Daily Advertiser.]

At market 465 Beef Cattle 40 pairs Working Oxen, 275 Sheep, and 2340 Swine. 30 Beef Cattle unsold.

Prices—Beef Cattle—An advance was effected.—Extra 5 75 a 5 88; first quality $5 25 a 5 50; second quality $5 a 5 25; third quality 4 50 a $5.

Working Oxen—Sales at $62, 67, 70, 85, and 95.

Sheep—Sales from 3 50 to $4.

Swine—Lots to peddle 4 1-2c for Sows, 5 1-2c for Barrows; a lot old Hogs, 5, 5 1-8 and 5 1-4c. At retail, 5 1-2 and 6 1-2c.

MARRIAGES.

At Salem, Mr Victor Debacher to Miss Mary M. Ford. Mr Willard H. Brown to Miss Hannah Procter.

At Beverly, Mr John Forniss to Miss Margaret Greely.

At Lynn, Mr Freeman F. Myrick to Miss Frances M. Smith.

In Topsfield, Mr. Elbridge F. Perkins to Mrs Rebecca P. Dodge.

DEATHS.

In this town, Mrs Mary Ann, wife of Mr Augustus Hammond, aged 39.

On Wednesday, George Gove, son of William and Caroline M. Osborne, aged 6 months and 21 days.

Mrs Sarah Gloyd, aged 97.

In Salem, Miss Clarissa Janes, aged 45. Mrs Teressa Cleaves, widow of the late Capt. Nath'l Cleaves, aged 63. Albert, son of Mr. Benj. S. Newhall, aged 4 years.

In Marblehead, Mrs Ann, wife of Jason Chamberlain, Esq., aged 54.

In Manchester, on Thursday, John W., eldest son of Mr. John W. Mann, aged 18.

PORT OF DANVERS.

Friday, March 28th.

ARRIVED.

Sloop Abigal, Abbott, Boston.

Saturday, 29th.

SAILED.

Sch. Despatch, Segee, Belfast.

Sunday, 30th.

Sloop Abigail, Abbott, Boston, with bricks.

Schr. Victoria, Allen, New York.

Monday, 31st.

ARRIVED.

Sloop Leader, Adams, Boston.

Tuesday, April 1st.

Sch. Duroc, Baker, Manchester

Wednesday, 2nd.

SAILED.

Sloop Leader, Adams, Boston, with bricks.

LECTURES BY PROF. BUSH.

PROF. BUSH, of New York, proposes to deliver in Danvers, a brief course of FOUR LECTURES, on subjects connected with the Scriptural Doctrine of the Resurrection and the Future Life

Two on the Nature of The Soul, as developed by the language of Scripture; and two on the Resurrection of Christ; showing that he rose in a spiritual and celestial, instead of a material body.

The First Lecture will be delivered at half past 7 o'clock, on TUESDAY EVENING, April 8th at Upton's Hall.

Tickets 12 1-2 cts. each Lecture, to be had at the door. april 5

TEMPERANCE EXHIBITION.

At Upton's Hall,

SATURDAY EVENING, April 5TH, 1845,

FOR ONE NIGHT ONLY.

THE Great Western Temperance Company, comprising 11 persons, Messrs. Hough & Scoville, and associates, will give Illustrations of the Life and Career of the Drunkard at the above place.

For particulars see small bills.

Admission only 12 1-2 cts. apr 5

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

JONATHAN W. OSBORNE has taken into Copartnership MICHAEL L. WHIDDEN, and they will continue the

Painting, Glazing & Papering

business, at the old Stand, No 10 Park Street, under the firm of

OSBORNE & WHIDDEN,

Particular attention to

SIGN PAINTING,

IMITATIONS OF WOOD, MARBLE, BRONRE, GROUND GLASS, &c.

mch 29 1y

Ploughs & Cultivators,

MANUFACTURED BY

RUGGLES, NOURSE & MASON,

And other Agricultural Tools,

FOR SALE BY

DANIEL RICHARDS,

Danvers Plains, March 29, 1845.

DANCING SCHOOL.

MR. R. J. DAVIS, Professor of Dancing from Salem, would respectfully inform the Ladies and Gentlemen of Danvers, that he purposes opening a School, at MR. LUNT'S NEW HALL, on SATURDAY AFTERNOON, April 19th, commencing at 5 o'clock, P. M., for the instruction of young Misses and Masters in this highly pleasing and useful accomplishment. Those who are in favor, are invited to call at the hall on the above afternoon, and learn the terms. apr 5

Dissolution of Co-Partnership.

THE Co-partnership heretofore existing under the firm of

PERKINS, WELCH & CO.,

is this day dissolved by mutual consent.

I. PERKINS,
P. D. PERKINS,
SAMUEL WELCH.

South Danvers, March 24th, 1845.

The business will be continued at the old stand, Central street, by

PERKINS & CO.,

who are authorized to settle all accounts of the late firm. They will keep constantly on hand a good assortment of

Broadcloths, Cassimeres & Vestings

which will sell on the most reasonable terms. A share of patronage is respectfully solicited. mch 29

PERIODICALS, PAPERS, &c.

LUTHER CHANDLER, General Agent for the sale of all the principal Periodicals, Newspapers, &c., and will furnish them to all persons who may wish to subscribe; among which are

Graham's Magazine,	Harper's Pictorial Bible,
Ladies' National do,	Verplanck's Shakspeare,
Arthur's Lady's do,	Phil Saturday Courier,
Christian Family Mag.,	Neal's Gazette,
Gentlemen's Magazine,	New York Mirror,
Godey's Lady's Book,	Frost's Pictorial World,

The above and all the principal periodicals and papers will be furnished promptly.

☞BOOKS BOUND at the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

Orders may be left at J. SHED'S, opposite the Monument, South Danvers. 1y mch 29

POOLE & STEDMAN,

MAKERS OF

CARRIAGES, HARNESSES, TRUNKS, &c.

THE subscribers having formed a Co-partnership under the above firm; are ready to attend to any orders in their line.

Particular attention paid to repairing.

S. A. POOLE,
G. B. STEDMAN.

N. B. Valises, Ladies' Satchels, Carpet Bags, &c. constantly on hand and for sale cheap.

Corner of Grove and Main Streets.

Danvers, March 15.

CHARLES H. MANNING,

CABINET MAKER,

Near the Sign of the Lamb, Main Sreet,

DANVERS, Mass.

FURNITURE manufactured on the most reasonable terms. Also—CURRIER'S TABLES made and repaired cheap.

SHOE-MAKERS' PEGGING BENCHES made as above. oct 15

EASY SHAVING AND

HAIR CUTTING.

B. B. WILLIAMS respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has removed to the store formerly occupied by Lambert & Merrill, (under the Courier Office,) which he has fitted up in a neat manner, and is now prepared to wait upon those who believe that

"Man wants but little beard below,
Nor wants that little long."

Champooing, Hair Cutting and Shaving is performed to the satisfaction of all who may favor him with their patronage.

Danvers, March 15, 1845. tf

S. R. BOTT,

DRAPER & TAILOR,

No. 148 Essex Street, Salem,

TAKES this method of informing the public of Danvers and vicinity that he has for sale one of the richest and BEST selected assortments of

Broadcloths, Cassimeres & Vestings

ever before offered in Salem. The Stock is of the latest Spring and Summer styles, and cannot be surpassed by any establishment in the city, which will be sold by the yard, or made into Garments, in a style that CANNOT be surpassed in this or any other city.

☞Strangers from the country would do well to call at this establishment, as they select their Goods with the most perfect confidence, that each article is as good in quality, and as low in price as can be obtained at any other store.

N. B. The report of Fashions received every month.

Salem, March 15, 1845.

LYNDE PLACE.

THE subscribers would respectfully inform the citizens of Danvers and vicinity, that they have just received and are now opening a full and complete assortment of

DRY GOODS,

adapted to the present season, comprising a splendid assortment of SHAWLS, embracing every quality and price.

DRESS GOODS,

in great variety, consisting of Corded Cashmeres-Mousseline de Laines; Crape do do; Cashmere do; CALICOES of every description.

WHITE GOODS, LINENS, DOMESTICS, WOOLEN GOODS, etc. etc.

S. A. FARNSWORTH & CO.,

apr 5 1m 147 Essex street, Salem.

NECK STOCKS, SCARFS, CRAVATS, TIES, ITALIAN CRAVATS.

A GOOD assortment of the above just reeeived

EDWARDS'S,

apr 5 14 Front staeet, Salem.

GENTLEMEN'S SHIRTS, BOSOMS & DICKEYS.

A GOOD variety now opening at EDWARDS'S,

apr 6 14 Front street, Salem.

THE

Massachusetts Mechanic Association

HAVING AWARDED TO

GOVE, LOCKE & CO.,

and no one else, a DIPLOMA for specimens of

The Best Ready Made Clothing!

Exhibited by them at the Mechanics' Fair in September last, must satisfy the community that the location of an establisnment is of but little importance, and that the idea of being confined to a particular section of the city, in order to obtain a

GENTEEL GARMENT,

has been rendered obsolete, by the above named award, as without prejudice the award was made to those who deserved it Being convinced themselves, that their CUSTOM WORK has not been surpassed in any point of view, still they have been obliged to stem the current against the strongest prejudices, and have, by unremitted attention to the tastes and desires of their patrons, to a very considerable extent, overcome them, resulting in a successful trade, and encouraging them to prosecute the NEW ENGLAND BRANCH OF THEIR BUSINESS, with renewed vigor, and to devote a large share of their attention the present season, to the

Highest Grade of Custom Work!

Being now prepared with every facility adapted to the various classes in the community, they can furnish any style of Garment which their notion or fancy may dictate—aiming

In point of Style and Fashion,

to be in advance of any other

CLOTHING ESTABLISHMENT!

and being at all times supplied with materials of every description, they are prepared to turn out at the shortest notice

AS GOOD AND AS GENTEEL A GARMENT,

as can be obtained in the United States, and have entire confidence in making the assertion, having Cutters constantly

ENGAGED ON CUSTOM WORK:

who are inferior to none in this region, enabling them to assure those who have favored them with their patronage, that no pains will be spared, to deserve a confidence in a Clothing Establishment, because it is situated on

COMMERCIAL STREET,

they would say that a specimen of their work can be seen in nearly every section of the city, particularly on the backs of

THE MOST GENTEEL PEOPLE!

and to them they refer, in relation not only to the treatment which is universally tendered to them by all concerned in the

COMMERCIAL ARCADE!

but more especially in regard to the price as the Proprietors have by experience ascertained that they can furnish a

FIRST RATE GARMENT!

at a medium price, equal in every respect to those furnished up in town, at an exhorbitant one. Their Stock of Clothing, adapted to the

SPRING SALES!

is far superior to any previous year, and the patronage of the public is respectfully invited, whether in pursuit of a single garment or otherwise, as their stock embraces every article essential or requisite to the wardrobe of a gentleman, while its magnitude enables them to supply COUNTRY DEALERS in any quantity at the shortest notice, and on the best terms.

WHOSESALE DEALERS!

located any where from Maine to Georgia, or even in Texas, can find at this concern an assortment of Wearing Apparel adapted to their sales, and are invited before concluding their

SPRING PURCHASES!

—TO CALL—

At No. 60 Commercial street,

BOSTON,

Sign of the Monument,—and visit the proprietors of

COMMERCIAL ARCADE,

GOVE, LOCKE & COMPANY.

Boston, March 29, 1845. 3m

G. W. & E. CRAFTS,

BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURERS AND STATIONERS,

174 ESSEX STREET, SALEM,

HAVE constantly on hand, and will manufacture to order, all kinds of Blank Books, from the best paper, ruled to any pattern, and bound in a neat and substantial manner.

FINE STATIONERY,

of almost ever description, adapted for counting rooms and schools, comprising in part, Letter and Writing Papers, ruled and plain; Drawing Papers; Note. Tissue and Wrapping Papers; Wafers; Sealing Wax; Seals and Steel Pens of every variety; Quills of every description; wafer Cups; sand boxes; writing fluids and inks; penknives; razors, &c.

PRINTING, RULING AND BINDING.

Printing of shop bills, cards, bill heads, catalogues, &c. executed in the neatest manner and on the best terms. Ruling, to any pattern desired, at short notice. Binding, of every description, executed with despatch.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

A constant supply of school books, of the best editions, together with every kind of School Stationery. Also, all kinds of miscellaneous books furnished at the lowest rates. mch 15

REMOVAL.

SHEPARD & BURLEY—Auctioneers—respectfully inform their friends and the public that they have removed to the spacious store recently occupied by Geo. C. Varney & Co., No 34 Lawrence Place, Front street, where they will continue a General Auction and Commission Business.

Regular sales of Clothing, Dry and Fancy Goods, every Wednesday and Saturday.

Consignments of merchandize respectfully solicited.

Salem, March 15. 1m

Great Bargains

ARE NOW BEING HAD AT THE

Washington Street Clothing Store, Salem.

GARMENTS of all description may be obtained at prices which cannot fail to give entire satisfaction.

Great care has been taken in the getting up of every garment, all of which is warranted equal, if not superior to any Clothing in the city.

The subscriber continues to take measures as formerly, and all Garments bespoken, will be made according to the wishes of the customer, and will guarantee both the style and fit.

☞BOY WANTED, as an Apprentice.

S. CHAMBERLAIN, Jr.

Salem, March, 15. tf

SPRING FASHIONS

JUST RECEIVED.

THE subscriber has just received a large and fashionable stock of Spring Goods, consisting of French, English and American

BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES AND DOESKINS.

Also—A rich assortment of VESTINGS, of the latest patterns, which will be made into Garments in the most fashionable style, on reasonable terms.

Also received—a nice lot of GENTLEMEN'S SCARFS and STOCKS of the latest styles.

Also—GLOVES, SUSPENDERS, SHIRT BOSOMS and COLLARS.

Also—Gentlemen's DRESSING GOWNS constantly on hand. JOHN DOLAN,

mch 15 275 Essex street, Salem.

BENJAMIN EDWARDS

DRAPER & TAILOR,

No. 14 FRONT STREET, SALEM.

GARMENTS Cut and Made to order, and Fashionably, and warranted to give entire satisfaction.

Constantly on hand, a good assortment of

BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES, AND VESTINGS.

Also—Neck Stocks Italian Cravats, Scarfs, Shirt Bosoms, Collars, Feetings, Braces, Umbrellas, Hair and Clothes Brushes, Cologne Water, Wallets,

and other articles necessary for Gentlemen's use.

Grateful for the very liberal patronage which has heretofore been bestowed upon the establisment, he hopes by care and attention to business to merit a continuance.

Any order for Goods in the Tailoring Line, attended to with fidelity and despatch.

All Garments Repaired and Cleansed Cheap.

Any of the above articles if not on hand when called for, will be furnished at short notice.

mch 15 tf

REMOVAL.

SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

Rich Jewelry and Fancy Goods.

HAVE removed to the New Store, No. 291 Essex street, (next above Mechanic Hall) where they will keep constantly for sale Gold Finger Rings, Breast Pins, Bracelets, Lockets, Keys, Gold and Silver Pencil Cases, Silver Thimbles, Silver and Plated Table and Tea Spoons, Butter Knives, Silver Plated and Brittania Ware, Shell, Horn, and Ivory Combs, Pocket Books, Wallets, Purses, Port Monnaies, Gold Pens and Pencils, Steel Pens, Penholders, Watch Keys, Guards, Chains, Seals, Keys, Watch Glasses, Main Springs, Jewelry repaired in a superior manner and warranted, Old Gold or Jewelry, made over or exchanged for new.

S. & C. having acquired a thorough knowledge of the business in New York, as well as our success for the past five years in this city, will, we feel assured, enable us to execute with approbation any orders entrusted to our care.

☞Thankful for past patronage, we solicit a continuance of the same. tf March 15.

☞PAPER HANGINGS.☜

THE subscriber has made such an extensive arrangement with the principal manufacturers of Paper Hangings that he is enabled to sell them at the lowest prices, wholesale and retail. New patterns will be received every week as soon as they are out.

2800 rolls of new styles for the Spring trade have been received within a few days. Unusual inducements are thus offered to purchasers of House Paper of all descriptions, from the highest finished Satin to the most common Paper, (call and see for yourselves.) Country dealers supplied on the most reasonable terms. SAMUEL B. FOSTER,

30 Lawrence Place,

Near the Railroad Station. Be sure and enquire for Foster, 30 Lawrence Place, Salem. mch 15

HARRISON'S REMEDY

FOR THE PILES.

THIS is an ointment prepared by the undersigned, and has been so thoroughly tested in so many different cases that I never hesitate to warrant relief to those who will give it a fair trial, observing the directions around each box which give a plain treatise on the disease and full instructions as to diet mode of cure, &c. One application at night never fails to relieve the greatest pain and anguish. I am ready to refer to numerous individuals who have proved this Remedy to be the safest, surest, speediest and cheapest

CURE FOR THE PILES.

My agent in Exeter writes thus: "the Pile Remedy which you left me is all sold, please send me soon a further supply, as a number of persons in this town think very highly of it. N. GILMAN"

MORE TESTIMONY.

Salem, Aug. 6. Mr. Harrison: The box of ointment which I had from you has worked like a charm—I have used it only one night, and I am cured. I had used Hays' Liniment as I stated to you, with no benefit but rather was worse, it causing more inflammation. Yrs, J. W.

BLEEDING PILES CURED.

Mr. Harrison—Having given your Peristaltic Lozenges and Pile Remedy a fair trial, I have the satisfaction to inform you that they have operated wonderfully in my case. I had not been able for months to do any work at my trade, owing to exhaustion from bleeding, but I now feel myself cured. The severe pain which I had in my stomach is gone, and my strength is fast returning. I had used various remedies to no purpose, until I tried your medicine. I can also state that Capt. Benj. Ireson of this town has also experienced great benefit from your Remedy. I cheerfully recommend the medicine to all suffering with that distressing complaint—the Piles.

Edward H. Lewis.

Lynn, Sept. 27, 1844.

For sale at 256 Essex street, by the Proprietor,

J. S. HARRISON Jr.,

Agents—in Danvers, S. Proctor, Jr.; Marblehead—E. Arnold; Lynn—Ladd, and Holder; Beverly—Clarke; Newburyport—C. Whipple; Andover—Amos Abbott; Topsfield—Bixby and Merriam, Haverhill—Nichol; Boston—Ransom & Stevens, Tompkins, Southers and Powle.

mch 15 6m

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

Office in Felton (late Osborne's Building)

Danvers, March 29th. tf

AUCTIONS.

ASSIGNEE'S SALE.

Will be sold at Auction on FRIDAY, the 11th day of April current, at 2 o'clock, P. M,

The Messuage on the corner of Sewall and Washington streets, in Danvers, being the estate formerly owned by Jos. Spaulding. Likewise the Messuage on Holton street, now occupied by Hicks Pinkham.

A Carpenter's Shop, now occupied by said Pinkham, standing on land adjoining the last named lot, will be sold at the same time.

Also—Pew No. 23 in the Universalist Meeting House.

Sale will commence at the house on Washington st.

Terms of sale will be cash, or a short credit on payment of one half the purchase money.

JOHN B. PEIRCE,
GEO. WHEATLAND, } Assignees of the estate of Hicks Pinkham.

Danvers, April 5, 1845.

LEATHER SALE.

BY DOWLEY & WHALL,

[Store Nos 21 and 22 Pearl street, Boston.]

On SATURDAY, April 12, at 10 1-2 o'clock, at store, without reserve, 2500 SIDES of Sole Leather, and a general assortment of Shoe Stock.

DOWLEY & WHALL,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, AND

AUCTIONEERS,

FOR THE SALE OF

Boots, Shoes, Leather and all kinds of Shoe Stock, at Private and Auction Sale,

Nos. 21 and 22 Pearl Street,

Levi A. Dowley,
Joseph B. Whall, } BOSTON.

Cash liberally advanced on Boots, Shoes and Shoe Stock, for private and public sales.

—References—

Messrs. Jos. Whitney & Co.,	Boston.
" Josiah M. Jones, Esq.,
" Spofford, Tileston, & Co.,	New York.
" Shepard Knapp, Esq.,
" C. M. Leupp & Co.,
" Haddock, Hazletine & Reed,	Philadelphia.
" Poland, Jenkins & Co.,	Baltimore.
" Friend, Humphrey & Co.,	Albany.

mch 29 1m

A FARM FOR SALE.

SITUATED in Byfield Parish, Newbury, 4 1-2 miles from Newburyport, 1 1-4 miles from the meeting-house, 1-4 mile from Dummer Academy, and 3 1-2 miles from the Rowley depot, and is on the stage road from Newburyport to Georgetown, Andover and Lowell, containing 81 acres of Land, enclosed by a good stone wall, in good repair.

The buildings consist of a good Dwelling House, 2 stories high, containing 5 lower rooms, 8 chambers a milk room, a brick milk cellar, with a good cellar under the whole house. Also, a Wood House and Grain Chamber attached to the house. It has 2 good Barns in good repair, a Chaise and Waggon House, and Work Shop, with a Store Chamber.

There is on the Farm a great variety of Apple Trees, consisting of Baldwins, Russets, Greenings, Gardner Sweetings, &c., from which was gathered over 250 bbls the last season. Half an acre is enclosed for a Garden, containing a choice collection of peach, pear and plum trees, red and white Currants,

Water is conducted into the house by a pipe from a never-failing spring of soft water, precluding the necessity of a cistern.

Also, a large Ox Waggon and Cart, both of which have Iron axletrees, and every kind of farming utensil, together with the stock of said farm. For further particulars inquire on the premises of

EBENEZER STEDMAN, or

mch 29 tf W. D. NORTHEND, Danvers.

Eales Cathartic, or Vegetable PURGATIVE LOZENGES.

THOUGH prepared from a great many Vegetable substances, are as palateable and pleasant to eat as any other Confectionary Compound.

This preparation is decidedly the best among all the known purgative preparations; for while its operation is as sure as Salts, Castor Oil, Calomel and Julop, or any other cathartic medicine, it has the advantage over all in being pleasant to eat, while other cathartics are generally disagreeable to take. Price, 25 cents per box with full directions, and may be found at the Depository, No 96 Commercial street Boston.

EALES' WORM LOZENGES,

Are a safe and sure remedy for worms. Children love them. They act like a charm in removing the symptoms such as starting in sleep, grating the teeth paleness about the mouth and nose, occasional sickness at stomach, precarious appetite, swelled bowels, and general feverish habit, The child falls into a quiet sleep, and the worms are stupified and expelled, and the child, as far as heard from, in every instance has been cured. Price, 25 cents per box, with full directions; sold at Commercial street, Boston;

EALES' COUGH LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common Colds and Coughs, Whooping Cough, Inflamation of the Throat and Lungs, in the Croup or Hives, and more certain to act satisfactory than the celebrated Hive Syrup. The most happy effect is obtained in a few moments; the symptoms disappear and the disease is broken up by the magical effect of these Lozenges. Full directions accompany each box, are found at the Depository, 96 Commercial street, Boston.

EALES' DYSENTERY LOZENGES,

Are a safe and agreeable remedy for Dysentery, Diarrhœa and Bowel Complaints of children. Particular attention must be paid to the directions which are on each box.

EALES' CAMPHOR LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common and sick head ache, and where there is a sense of tightness or weight over the eyes, in erruptive diseases, such as Measles and Small Pox. Also in Mania, Epilepsy, Melancholy, Hysteria, in St Vitus Dance, and in all cases of languor and oppession of the Vital powers, may be taken with safety by women and children in all conditions. Full directions accompany each box.

EALES' CYPRIAN HAIR TONIC,

Is now so extensively known and justly celebrated that further comment upon it will be useless, we can say, however, that among the many thousands who have purchassed the Tonic in this and other countries, none have returned with complaints, while thousands have expressed not only their approbation, but their wonder and admiration on beholding its effects. A few bottles only can be had at 96 Commercial street, Boston.

CLEAR OUT YOUR RATS.

The gnawing and antics of these destructive creatures can be hushed forever in your house and store, if you will procure a box of the genuine.

MADAGASCAR RAT EXTERMINATOR, and use it according to direction. You cannot depend upon it unless obtained at J. J. EALES' No. 96 Commercial street Boston.

—Agents—

Salem, J. S. Harrison, J. Stone, jr., H. Whipple, S Badger jr.; Lynn, J. Mouton jr., Geo. Lummus, Wm. Cogswell, Wm. L Ladd; Swampscot, W. Thompson; Marblehead, E. Arnold, Wm. Stacey; Danvers, S. W. Proctor, Jos Shed, New Mills, H. S Pope, A. P Perley & Co; S. Simonds, Calder & Foster; Topsfield, B. P. Adams; Beverly, A N Clark. 1epom mch 29

MISCELLANY.

FLORENCE WILLESDEN.

A TALE OF REAL LIFE.

'Tis a common tale,
An ordinary sorrow of man's life;
A tale of silent suffering, hardly clothed
In bodily form. WORDSWORTH.

A village in the south of England is one of the loveliest sights in nature; and it is what is seems, the very nestling place of poetry, love, and happiness. It glitters, with its white-washed cottages and garden walls, among the green trees 'mid which it is embowered, the golden fruits of Spain, peeping from beneath the rich foliage that does but partially conceal them. Its meadows, its stream, its tapering church-spire; its hedge-rows, its lanes of sweetbriar and wild-rose: its lattices, with their bee-hives; its orchards, with their odoriferous blossoms; above all its simple, yet cheerful inhabitants, ignorant of the great world, and unwilling to have that ignorance enlightened; all combine to render a village in the south of England the most delightful spot in the universe. How sweet to retire from the world to such a heaven of repose; and to cultivate only the purer affections of one's nature, and keep the soul divided, by a rainbow zone, from the grosser atmosphere of common existence. There are many little paradises of the kind I speak of and I should be contented with any one of them; although, if I had my choice, I should perhaps fix upon Woodburn, in preference to all the rest. My predilection is the more singular, as all my associations connected with the recollection of that village are of a peculiarly melancholy cast. Even there the spoiler, sorrow, had found an entrance; and his victims were not unknown to me. I will endeavor to recall their story; it is a simple one; but it suits well the mournful temper of my mind, and I shall therefore avail myself of this opportunity to narrate it.

Let me paint her as I saw her. It was in her cottage garden, on a bright summer morning, when the dew was still sparkling on the flowers. She held a book in her hand, but she was not reading. She stood wrapped in a delightful reverie with her eyes fixed on two young rose-bushes. I knew not then that she was my old friend's only child, yet I stopped involuntarily to gaze upon her. I had never before seen aught so beautiful; and that too, without the shadow of pretence. I cannot describe her features, but their combined effect was irresistible. There was a world of expression—an unfathomable depth of feeling, in her dark blue eye. I saw a tear start into it; but the thought that called it up was merely transient, for a smile gathered upon her lips immediately afterwards, and chased away with its light the little harbinger of sorrow. At that moment, the gate was thrown open, and a youth entered. He was her lover; I knew it at a glance. A deeper crimson spread itself over her cheek, and her smile kindled into one of more intense delight. They stood together; England could not have produced a nobler pair. They seated themselves in the sunshine; the youth took the book and read aloud. It was a poetic page over which they hung.—She leant her white arm on her lover's shoulder, and looked over with breathless attention. Who is it that has said there is no happiness on earth? Had he seen Edmund and Florence on that calm, blue morning, he would have confessed the absurdity of his creed.

Edmund was the eldest son of the village rector;—a man "to all the country dear." Florence was the daughter of an old, respected soldier, who had served in many a campaign, and who now lived in retirement, upon the small pension which was given him by the government, as the reward of his long and valuable services. She had lost her mother almost before she knew her, and all her filial affection was centered in her only surviving parent; her heart she had bestowed upon Edmund, and he was by no means insensible of the value of the gift. They had been companions from their infancy. All their recollections of times past were the same, for all their amusements and studies had been similar. But Edmund had made considerably more progress than Florence. Nature had heaped upon him all those mental endowments that constitute genius. She had given him a mind capable of the profoundest aspirations; a heart that could feel more deeply, a fancy that could wing a bolder flight than those of most other youths of his age. He, as yet, knew nothing of the state of society beyond the limits of Woodburn. He had never been more than twenty miles from home during his whole life.

But he was now eighteen, and Florence was only a year younger. They had ceased to be boy and girl. She, indeed would have been contented to have continued as she was for ever, blest with her father's and her lover's affection; more than happy in the discharge of her domestic duties; in her summer evening rambles, in her books, her bees, her fruits, and her flowers. But Edmund, although he loved her with all the enthusiasm of a first love, had more ambition in his nature. He wished to mingle in the crowd, in the pursuit of glory; and he had hopes that he might outstrip at least some of his competitors. Beside, he was not possessed of an independent fortune; and exertion, therefore, became a duty.

His resolution was at once formed; he determined to fix his residence in London, for at least a couple of years, and ascertain whether, in truth, ability was there its own reward.—It was sad news to Florence; but on reflection on the advantages which Edmund might derive from the execution of the scheme, she looked upon her grief as selfish, and endeavored to restrain it. The evening before he left Woodburn, they took a farewell walk together, in her father's garden. Florence had succeeded in keeping up a show of cheerfulness during the day; but as the yellow beams of the setting sun came streaming in through the poplars and elms that lined the wall, and as she thought how often they had seen the sun set before, and how long it would be ere they should see it set again, a chord was touched which vibrated through her heart, and she could no longer restrain her tears. Edmund besought her, with the utmost tenderness of manner, not to give way to emotions so violent; but she only locked his hand more firmly in her own, and amid the convulsive sobs, repeated again and again—"Edmund! we shall never meet more! I am not superstitious, but I know that I am right;—we shall never meet more!" Her lover had resource to every soothing argument he could think of; but though she at length became calm, a gloomy presentiment of future evil seemed to have taken possession of her mind.

A year had elapsed, and Edmund's early dream had been more than realized. He had risen into fame at once; his reputation as a man of genius was acknowledged throughout his native land. His fortune was secured, and his name had already become illustrious. Every where was his society courted, and his opinions listened to with deference and admiration. There seemed to be no honors to which he might not hope to attain. His ardent spirit, and his growing ambition, became only the more insatiable. Every difficulty had yielded before him; he had flown on upon the wings of success: his life had hitherto been a brillant dream—a dream from which he saw no prospect of immediate awakening.

It was evening, and he was alone in her splendid drawing-room, with the loveliest woman in London—the daughter of a viscount. A hundred lamps, reflected by a hundred mirrors, shone around them. There was to be a magnificent entertainment, but the company had not yet arrived. Edmund, and the lady Matilda, would not have cared had they never arrived at all.

They sat near each other, and talked in low soft tones, of all that youth and beauty love best to talk about. Edmund had never felt so vain in his life before: for there were hundreds in the metropolis, blest with all the advantages of rank and birth, who would have given both their titles and their fortunes to have secured one of those smiles which the proud maiden now lavished upon him. And she—she had read his works, she thought of his fame, she looked upon his elegant form and handsome features, and forgot the hundred scions of nobility who had offered up their incense at her shrine. A carriage was heard to stop, and they were soon to be interrupted. "I have taken a fancy to that emerald ring of yours," said the lady Matilda, "will you exchange it for one of mine?" She took a glittering diamond from her finger, and put it on Edmund's: and at the same time his emerald became one of the ornaments of the prettiest hand in the world. It was a ring which Florence had given him, the very morning he left Woodburn.

The two years he was to be away had expired. "Florence," said her father to her one morning, "I never saw you looking so well, your cheeks are all roses, my sweet girl: have you been watching the sun rise?" Florence a burning tear from her eye, and then answered cheerfully to her unsuspecting father, that she had seen the sun rise. There was not a person in Woodburn, except her father, who had not observed how dreadfully Florence was altered—not in her manners, nor habits, nor conversation; but in her looks. Her cheek, it is true, was red, but it was the hot flush of fever: her eye was bright, but it was the clearness of an insidious malady.

She had heard of Edmund's success, and there was not a heart in the world that beat so proudly at the intelligence: but she soon heard of more than his success, and his letters became fewer, shorter and colder. When her father was from home, she would sit for hours in her garden, by herself, listening, as she said, to the chirping of the birds, but weeping bitterly all the while.

"I have not heard you speak of Edmund lately," said her father to her one day, about the beginning of June. "I do not think of him the less," answered Florence, with a faint smile. The old man knew nothing of his apostacy. "I have good news for you," said he: "I saw the rector to day, and Edmund is to be in Woodburn by the end of the week." Florence grew pale: she tried to speak, but could not: a mist swam before her eyes: she held out her hand, and threw herself into her father's arms.

It was Saturday evening, and she knew that Edmund had arrived early on the previous day, but she had not seen him. She was sitting in the summer house of her father's garden when she heard a step on the gravel walk; she looked through the willows and honeysuckle; it was he! he himself—in all the bloom and beauty of dawning manhood. A strange shivering passed over her whole frame, and her color went and came with fearful rapidity Yet she retained her self-possession, and with apparent calmness, rose to receive him when he entered. The change in her appearance, however, struck him immediately. "Good God! have you been ill! you are altered, sadly altered, since I saw you last." "Does that strike you as so very wonderful, Edmund?" said Florence gravely; "are you not altered too?" "Oh, Florence! I have behaved to you like a villain! I see it now, cruelly, fatally do I see it!" "Edmund, that I did love you, your setting sun, which shone upon us when last we parted, can still attest, for it was the witness of my grief It has been the witness, too, of the tears I have shed in my solitude, tears which have been revealed to no earthly eye; and it shall be the witness, even yet," she continued, an almost heavenly smile illuminating her pale countenance, "of our reconciliation, for the wanderer has returned, and his errors are forgiven." She held out her hand to him as she spoke, but he shrunk back; "I dare not—I dare not take it! It is too late! Florence, I am married!" There was not a sound escaped her lips, but her cheeks grew deadly pale; her eyes became as fixed as stone, and she fell on the ground like a marble statue.

Her grave is in the church-yard of Woodburn; she lies beside her father. There is no urn nor monumental tablet to mark the spot, but I should know it among a thousand. Edmund's fame has travelled into other countries, and men have looked up to him as a demi-god. Florence Willesden was never heard of beyond the limits of Woodburn till now.

AGRICULTURAL.

FOR THE DANVERS COURIER.

In a variable climate like New England, where the spring is cold and wet, it would seem necessary and desirable, that we should avail ourselves of all artificial aid we can obtain, in the forcing and forwarding valuable vegetables. And I have long felt the want of hand glasses for my early plants, to give them heat, and protect them from late spring frosts and insects, whether taken early from the hot bed, or planted in the open ground. And one great reason why they have not come into more general use, has been their expense, and their not being often found to any extent at our seed stores. Feeling their need in my garden, and not knowing where to procure them, I have, with the assistance of a tin plate worker, made several of different forms, which I send you. They can be furnished at prices from 50 to 62 1-2 cts. apiece by David Mead jun., New Mills.

SAMUEL P. FOWLER.

Danvers, March 1845.

CULTIVATION OF STRAWBERRIES.

The following mode of cultivating Strawberries is similar to that practised at the House of industry in South Boston, the most extenssve we have ever noticed. A Correspondent of the New York Farmer says:

I have for several years practised the following method with my Strawberry beds, and am therefore induced to offer it for publication in your paper.

The beds are to be formed in the usual manner, three feet in width and marked by lines running lengthwise and transversely, the former being one and the latter from two to four feet apart; the plants to be set at the intersections.

If Hovey's Seedling, Methuen, Downton, or other variety requiring fertilizers be cultivated, two or three of them are sufficient for a bed, and should be kept trimmed of their runners. Now commence raking the bed as often as necessary, and not only get out the weeds and grass but keep them out. When the runners begin to grow, they are to be turned by the rake or hand to form rows one foot apart lengthwise of the beds.

The rake should be of light construction, about 10 inches wide, and the teeth an inch and a half long, and an inch apart. Towards the close of the season when the rows are full if plants are wanted for new beds, the runners may be allowed to take root in the intermediate spaces and the raking be discontinued. They must, however, be taken out of the way early in the succeeding spring. If not wanted for this purpose, they should be taken off by the rake or other more convenient instrument, and the spaces between the rows kept entirely clean. Late in the fall, or very early in the following spring, (according to soil and climate,) the beds should be slightly covered with litter of some kind for protection during the winter, if necessary, or at least to keep the berries from the ground. After bearing, the litter should be immediately taken off, and the rake put in operation, which, with very little labor seasonably applied, will keep the bed in excellent order. After two or three years, when it becomes necessary to renew the beds, it can be done by hoeing out all but a few of the plants, and turning the runners into the rows according to the process previously described. If there be occasion to apply manure to them, it can easily be worked in with a spade between the rows.

A DROVER DOG.—The editor of the N. Y. True Sun, noticing a specimen of the cattle or drover dog, says that this animal with the assistance of one man on horseback, will drive and control the movements of five or six hundred cattle in a drove. It perfectly understands its business, and seem to like it very much. The stories told of these drover dogs are very curious. They are easily trained, and—what is very singular—soon learn to divide a drove into sections, which they drive into different directions, as required. If any individual of the drove gets into the wrong section, the dog will find it out and bring the animal back. In sheep driving, the dogs will never bite the skin, or even tear a lock of wool. They have a peculiar way of communicating their object by their bark. The drover's dog never attacks the throat of the animal it is seizing. It invariably snaps at the heels, and at one or the other according to the direction it wishes the animal to go.

TOBACCO AROUND PEACH TREES. In the latter part of spring or early part of summer, scrape the earth from around the body of the tree, to the depth of one to three inches, being particularly careful not to injure the crown of the roots; fill the cup thus formed with trash tobacco from the shops, and envelope the bail of the tree to the height of three or four inches with the stems or leaves. I do not offer this as a means to renovate a diseased tree, but as a preventive, the efficiency of which has been tested for nineteen years by Samuel Wood, one of the most approved nurseryman and extensive fruit growers in this section of country; and also by other practical farmers with unfailing success.—[Southern Planter.

The Wheat Crop.—The appearance at present presented by the growing crops of wheat, could not be more promising. They possess all the cheerful verdure and vigor which is usually distinguished at the close of the present month, and unless retarded in growth, we may calculate upon one of the finest crops we have ever had. [Hagerstown (Md.) Torchlight.

REMOVAL.

BOWDOIN'S DAGUERROTYPE ROOMS removed from Mechanic Hall to the adjoining building above, 298 Essex street, where he has rooms built expressly for the purpose of taking Miniatures in any weather.

Mr. B. tenders his sincere thanks to his friends and the public, for their liberal patronage the past year, and respectfully solicits the continuance of public favor. He has recently purchased a large Achromatic instrument for the purpose of taking GROUPS and LARGE PICTURES, which enables him to give pictures of all sizes, equal to those taken in New York or Boston He has formed a connexion with an establishment in New York, from whence he receives all the new improvements, and materials connected with the Art, which will enable him to give better pictures for less prices than can be obtained in Boston.

Miniatures set in every variety of Lockets, Frames, Cases, &c.

☞Persons visiting Salem, and those about going to sea, can have a perfect likeness completed in a few minutes' time.

 Miniatures set in a neat Morocco Case for $1 50. Exhibition rooms open to visiters through the day.

Salem, March 15. tf

MICKLEFIELD & CO.,
KEEP CONSTANTLY ON HAND AT THE
CITY MILLS, SALEM,
Nos. 31, 33, 35, 37, 39 Mill Street,
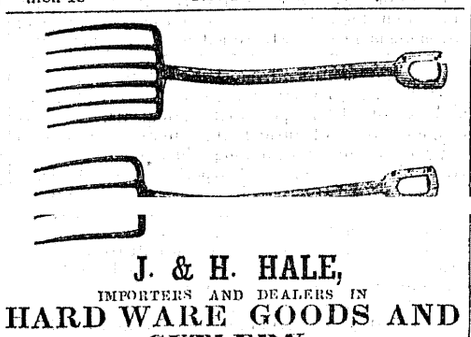
BRANCH, MOTTLED AND PLAIN
VENEERS,
CEDAR AND MAHOGANY
Boards, Plank and Joist.
ALSO—GRAIN AND MEAL.
Wholesale and Retail on the most reasonable terms, for Cash or approved credit.
Also—CIRCULAR, VENEER AND OTHER
Sawing and Turnin.
☞They also GRIND all kinds of Grain.
All orders entrusted to their care will be attended to with punctuality and care.
JOHN JEWETT,
T. H. PRIME,
mch 15 J. A. KENNY.



ADAMS & RICHARDSON,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
HARDWARE.
MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS FOR THE SALE OF
Cut Nails, White Lead, Sheet Lead and Lead Pipe,
NO. 207 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
Joseph Adams,
C. M. Richardson,
march 15 tf

GRASS SEED.

3000 POUNDS CLOVER SEED;
50 bags Red Top Seed;
150 bushels Herds Grass Seed;
Orchard Grass and White Clover Seed—for sale by S. CHAMBERLAIN & SON, march 15 Front Street, Salem.

WANTED.

10 GOOD COATMAKERS wanted immediately, to whom steady employment and good wages will be given.
Also—A BOY as an APPRENTICE, by
S. R. BOTT,
mch 15 No. 148 Essex Street, Salem.

J. & H. HALE,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
HARD WARE GOODS AND CUTLERY,
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
HOUSE KEEPING ARTICLES AND FANCY GOODS,
Agricultural Tools and Ploughs,
PLOUGH CASTINGS, FRICTION ROLLERS AND CRANKS,
Iron and Copper Pumps and Lead Pipe,
WINDOW GLASS,
CAMPHENE,
CAMPHENE LAMPS, HANGING, SIDE AND ASTRAL—A GREAT VARIETY OF STYLES,
Cut Glass, Britannia, Brass, Bronze and Mantle Lamps,
CARPENTER'S TOOLS,
HOUSE TRIMMINGS,
Shoe Makers' Tools, Nails, Thread and Pegs,
BOILER DOORS AND OVEN MOUTHS,
Furnaces, Cast Iron Hollow Ware, Tubs, Pails, Mats, Cut Nails, Emery, Zinc, Lead, &c.
No. 215 Essex Street, SALEM, Mass.
march 15 tf

EDWARDS' LINIMENT.

For Sprains, Cuts, Bruises, Stiffened or Swelled Joints, Chilblains, Chapped Hands, Numbness and Rheumatism.

THIS invaluable artidle is now for the first time offered to the public, after having been in use for twenty years, with unusual and astonishing success within the circle of the proprietor's immediate influence. It has received the unqualified approbation of some eminent Physicians, and also Mariners and Mechanics.

It is also recommended, and more than a thousand cases might be cited, when it has been used for Horses in cases of lameness or when galled, &c. &c.

The public are assured that in offering the above we do recommend that which has not the least semblance of QUACKERY, but on the contrary it has done great and lasting good in its efficacious power and healing qualities.

As this medicine has been so long known in Salem and its vicinity, and as there are many that would avail themselves of it if they knew where it could be obtained, therefore the subsciber would now offer it to the public. It will be found always on hand and prepared by the subscriber.

BENJ EDWARDS,
No. 14 Front street, Salem, Mass.

Wanted—trusty and worthy AGENTS in the neighboring towns and vicinity.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENTS.
DANIELS, POOR & CO., Danvers, Mass.
Benjamin F. Browne, Salem Mass.
Smith & Fowle, Boston, "
H. F. Skerry, Bangor, Me.
Charles Whipple, Bookseller, Newburyport.
Wm. R. Preston, Portsmouth, N. H.
John S. Caldwell, Belfast. Me.
Wm. H. Palmer, Lynnfield.
Joseph Edmards, jr., Lynn.
Charles Edwards, Marblehead.
Wm. Edwards, Beverly.
March 15, 1845. tf

EASTERN RAILROAD.
WINTER ARRANGMENT.

ON and after Dec. 4th, 1844, Trains leave daily, (Sundays excepted,)
Boston for Portland, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P. M.
" Portsmouth, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 4 1-2 P.M.
" Somersworth, Great Falls, 7 1-4 A.M. 2 1-2 P.M.
" for Newburyport, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 4 1-2 P.M.
" for Salem, 7 1-4 9, 11 3-4 A.M., 2 1-2 3 1-4, 4 1-2, 6 P.M.
Salem for Portland, 8 A.M., 3 1-4 P.M.
Salem for Portsmouth and Newburyport, 8 A.M. 3 1-4, 5 1-4 P.M.
Portland for Boston, 7 1-2 A.M., 3 P.M.
Saco for Boston, 8 A.M., 3 1-2 P.M.
Somersworth, Great Falls for Boston, 9 A.M.; 4 1-4 P.M.
Portsmouth for Boston, 7 1-4, 10,* A.M., 5 1-2* P.M.
Newburyport for Boston, 8, 10 3-4* A.M. 6 1-4* P.M.
Salem for Boston, 7 3-4, 9 1-4, 10 1-2 A.M., 12,* 2, 5, 7,* P.M.
*Or on their arrival from the East.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.
Trains leave Marblehead for Salem, at 7 1-2, 10 1-4 A.M.; 1 3-4, 3 1-2, 4 3-4, 6 1-2, P.M.
Leave Salem for Marblehead, at 8, 9 3-4 A.M., 12 1-2, 3 1-4, 4, 5 1-4, 6 3-4 P.M.

A Merchandize Train will leave Boston, Portland and all intermediate places every day.
Freight Office in Boston, No. 17 Merchants Row, and on the line of the road at the several Depots.
JOHN KINSMAN,
mch 15 Master of Transportation.

Winter Arrangement of the
DANVERS AND SALEM
HOURLY COACHES

THE Danvers and Salem Hourly Coaches will in connection with the Eastern Railroad, leave Danvers and Salem at the following hours, viz:

Leave Danvers at	7 1-4	A.M.	Leave Salem at	8	A.M.
" "	8 3-4		" "	9 1-2
" "	10		" "	11
" "	11 1-2		" "	12 1-4
" "	1 1-2	P.M.	" "	2	P.M.
" "	3		" "	3 3-4
" "	4 1-2		" "	5
" "	6		" "	6 1-2
" "	7		" "	8

For seats apply at Macintire's Hotel, or at Joseph G. Shed's store in Danvers, and at the Essex House and Salem Hotel in Salem.

Railroad passengers taken at the depot on the arrival of the cars from Boston and the East.

☞Extra Coaches furnished at any hour on reasonable terms. SYMONDS & TEEL.
march 15 tf

REMOVAL.
DR. J. A. ROBINSON,
SURGEON DENTIST,
SALEM,

WOULD respectfully give notice that he has removed from his old stand, opposite the City Hall, to No. 20 Washington street, recently occupied by A. E. Phillips, where he is ready to perform all operation, in Dentistry, in a most thorough and workmanlike manner.

His experience and success in inserting whole sets either by atmospheric pressure or springs, enables him to furnish them at rates which cannot fail to suit those in want of an article of superior quality.

His method of inserting Teeth, both singly and on plate, with or without Gums, has been found to be satisfactory and successful as combining beauty of finish and adaptation, with all the requisites of mastication and articulation.

Particular attention paid to filling Teeth so as to the regulation of Children's Teeth.

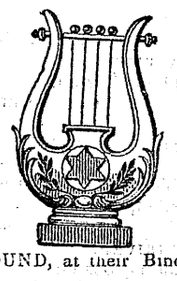
N. B. For sale as above, a first rate article of TOOTH POWDER. 6m mch 15

HENRY WHIPPLE,
At his Book, Chart and Stationery Store,
No. 190 ESSEX STREET,

HAS for sale a general assortment of Books, in the various branches of Literature, all of which he offers for sale on the most reasonable terms.

PERIODICALS—Nearly all that are published in the United States, are regularly received.

H. W. is agent for Sherman's Cough, Camphor, and Worm Lozenges; Scarpa's Kresoote, Acoustic Oil, for the cure of Deafness, $2 00; Dr. Scudder's Genuine Acoustic Oil, for Deafness $1; Phelps's Tomato Pills; Woodbury's Vegetable Pills; Dean's Rheumatic Pills; Hedge's Rheumatic Plaster; Dyott's Anti-Bilious Pills; Gordak's Jelly of Pomegranate; Matthew's Unrivalled Corn Salve; Dr. Robertson's Vegetable Nervous Cordial; Dr. Robertson's Stomatic Elixir of Health, and various other medicines.



PAPER HANGINGS.

In a few days will be received as above a large assortment of new patterns of Papers, from 12 cts to 25 cts. a roll and new patterns of Philadelphia Papers and Borders. Salem, March 15.

Book, Stationery & Music Store.
JOHN P. JEWETT & CO.,
[Successors of Ives & Jewett.]
Opposite the Mansion House, No. 193 Essex Street,—SALEM.
HAVE CONSTANTLY ON HAND,

A COMPLETE assortment of Standard and Miscellaneous Books.
BLANK BOOKS, of every description.
Fine STATIONERY, Paper, Quills, &c.
Steel Pens, Ink, &c.
Parallel Rules, Wafers, &c.
SCHOOL BOOKS.—Traders from the country and School Committees, furnished with School Books, by the hundred or dozen, at the lowest prices.
All the popular School Books in quantities, on hand.
NEW PUBLICATIONS received as they issue from the press.
Ruled and Plain CAP and POT PAPERS, Ruled and Plain LETTER PAPER, Wrapping and Cartridge Paper, by the ream.

VIOLINS, FLUTES, CLARINETS, FIFES, &c. BASS VIOL and VIOLIN STRINGS,

for sale by the bundle or single, at New York prices. Together with a complete assortment of Musical Instruments.

BOOKS REBOUND, at their Bindery Establishment. march 15

JOB PRINTING,
OF ALL KINDS
EXECUTED AT THE COURIER OFFICE.

DANVERS COURIER.

VOL. 1. DANVERS, (MASS.) SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 12, 1845. NUMBER 4.

THE DANVERS COURIER
IS PUBLISHED BY
GEORGE R. CARLTON,
EVERY SATURDAY MORNING,
A few doors North of Mackintire's Hotel,
CENTRAL ST.—SOUTH DANVERS.

Terms—$1 50 if paid in advance, or $2 00, if not paid within one month of the time of subscribing.

The carriers are not allowed to sell any copies of the Courier. Single copies may be obtained at the office, at 5 cents each.

Advertisements will be inserted on favorable terms.

CALENDAR OF COURTS

TO BE HELD IN THE COUNTY OF ESSEX IN THE YEAR 1845.

April 1—Probate,—Salem.
" 2 " Marblehead.
" 8—County Commissioners,—Ipswich.
" 15—Probate,—Haverhill.
" 29—Supreme Judicial,—Ipswich.
May 6—Probate,—Ipswich.
" 13 " Gloucester.
" 20 " Salem.
June 3 " Ipswich.
" 10 " Newburyport.
" 16—Common Pleas,—Ipswich.
July 1—Probate,—Salem.
" 2 " Lynn.
" 8—County Commissioners,—Salem.
" 15—Probate,—Andover, S. P.
August 5 " Ipswich.
" 19 " Salem.
Sept. 2 " Ipswich.
" 9 " Newburyport.
" 15—Common Pleas,—Newburyport.
Oct. 7—Probate,—Salem.
" 8 " Marblehead.
" 14—County Commissioners.—Newburyp't.
" 21—Probate,—Haverhill.
Nov. 4—Supreme Judicial,—Salem.
" 4—Probate,—Ipswich.
" 11 " Gloucester.
" 18 " Salem.
Dec. 2 " Ipswich.
" 9 " Newburyport.
" 15—Common Pleas, Ipswich.
" 23—County Commissioners,—at such place as ordered at the preceding term.

POETRY.

FOR THE DANVERS COURIER.

TO APRIL.

BY JAMES CARLTON.

April—wayward month—I love thy fickle reign,
Success and disappointment, joy and pain,
Mingled with happiness—alternate strife,
And with our blessings—pangs: yet hopes remain,
Bright as when past thy storms, sunshine glads the plain.

Ungentle as thou art—thy very freaks
Show thee a child of promise and of strength,
For in thy storms the voice of nature speaks,
And thou dost bring the protracted length,
The morning cloud with thee more lovely breaks,
And growing Spring rejoices in thy weeks.

Brought forth as thou art betwixt March and May,
March, Winter's heir, and May, the bride of Spring,
What wonder shouldest thou in moods betray
Thy brother's frowns, or that to thee should cling
Some of thy sister's smiles thou dost display,
The fields all emerald green, the leafing Hawthorn spray.

Then welcome April, thee I will not spurn,
Wayward and many featured as thou art;
Thou to adorn the earth shalt long return,
I from the tribes of earth must soon depart:
Then o'er my grave the summer sun shall burn,
Spring smiles with wonted warmth and winter's dirges mourn.

Danvers, April 2nd 1845.

ORIGINAL.

A SAD TALE BUT TRUE.

BY JULIAN.

"Canst thou not minister to a mind diseased,
Pluck from the memory a rooted sorrow;
Raze out the written troubles of the brain;
And with some sweet oblivious antidote,
Cleanse the stuffed bosom of that perilous stuff,
Which weighs upon the heart?"

Reader—in the following tale I give you a brief history of one, who for a while lived in the enjoyment of all that could make her happy. Whose every wish was gratified, and whose life was like some gentle stream, which flows tranquilly on mid scenes of gaiety and happiness, until at length its sparkling waters are dashed down the precipice, never again to retrace their former course.

I first saw her at school. She was beautiful in mind and person. Her dark blue eye shone with a peculiar lustre, and had an expression which I cannot describe, nor forget. She was loved and favored by all. She was the bright particular star on all juvenile occasions. Every youthful associate had a particular regard for her, without even thinking why. Among the male portion of these, was one, whose happy situation was coveted by many, who less fortunate themselves, would have given worlds for half the smiles and kind regards bestowed on him by Fanny. There was a feeling in their young hearts which neither seemed to understand; a faint youthful flame, which was destined to increase until every other feeling was enveloped within it; and to go not out, until the lamp of life itself was extinguished.

How happy those hours glided by with them, while on some holiday the school repaired to the shady grove to enjoy the purely scented air, to hear the sweet music of the birds, and cull the wildwood flowers—and some perhaps with rod and line to draw from the murmuring stream the tiny fish. What youthful dreams of happiness fill the minds of our young couple, as they wander through the wooded vale, and beside the singing brook showing each other in every word and look, the strength of their affection. How sad the feelings created, by looking at this lovely pair, and reflecting that they too must meet with care and trouble, and deeply feel the pangs of sorrow. But such is life.

* * * * *

Four long years have passed. One month more and he is to leave these happy scenes for his native, sunny South. We will pass over the many interviews he had with Fanny, in which, although they knew they must part at some future time, they still wished and hoped that some unforseen event would place the day far distant.

We find them seated one evening beside the gentle stream where they were often wont to walk, happy and joyous; but now the pale light of the moon showing in their countenances the marks of deep and heartfelt sorrow. Before the rising of the morrow's sun, Henry was to leave for home. He had been showing Fanny a letter from his father, which informed him when he wished him to return. He had kept it a week to himself dreading to let her peruse it. But now she knows it all. With tearful eyes they make their vows of love and constancy, sealed by the kiss of pure affection. He promising to write often, and in one year to be by her side again. The first of these promises he fulfilled for months—the last was doomed to be broken. Although very secret about his letters, his sister had ascertained to whom they were directed, and watchfully observed his melancholy appearance, occasioned by being so distant from the object of his affections.

Fanny in the meantime had been at the Office whenever she found the object of her mission.—

One day we find her returning, after being disappointed nearly a month, with a paper in her hands. She appears half joyous, half sad; fearful of—she knows nor what. The handwriting upon the outside seems not like his; yet, might she not be mistaken? She opens it, and finds a newspaper,—she glances rapidly over its pages, and reads the following enclosed by a few marks of a pen.—'Died in C—— Township, of consumption, Henry, son of Mr. James M—— aged 19 years."

Fanny was never seen to smile again. Oh! how dreary and desolate she appeared from that time. She would often sit for hours, regardless of every thing around her, sometimes even of the comforting words of her kind mother. From that day she withered like the culled rose, no longer nurtured by its parent bush. A fearful sadness dried up the fountain of those tears which are expressive of lesser sorrow.

* * * * *

Months have passed. The Spring time has come again, and with it the green fields, the birds and flowers.

'Tis evening.—The full silvery moon shed her pale rays over the face of nature. The warm south wind comes gently sweeping along, giving warmth and softness to the scene. Fanny sits by the same stream, where last she saw him who was dearer to her than life itself. Her eyes, now resting upon the flowing waters at her feet, and now upturned to the giant oaks and elms, beneath whose shade she had such happy hours passed, and to the green hills which had so often echoed back her merry laugh. And now, like a marble statue she sits unmoved. The waving branches rustle in the breeze, and the singing frogs in mournful harmony chant their melancholy music. She hears it not. Her weary spirit has fled. A victim to "that silent grief that knows no vent."

SELECTED TALES.

HIDE AND SEEK.

Among the innumerable lovers of the scenery of Devonshire, there are many who have never seen, or heard of, the Castle of Berry-Pomeroy. Its situation is so retired, so undiscoverable without a guide that no wonder if many a party of tourists has passed its very entrance without being aware that an object so well worthy their attention was at hand. The situation of the ruin is as singular as it is beautiful. At a short distance from Totness, a narrow lane diverges from the main road, at the extremity of which is a gate and palisade, so high, as to prevent the visitor from forming any idea of what is to be seen beyond. Entrance being afforded by the gate-keeper, the traveller descends a steep path, which winds between two wooded hills, till he finds himself at the bottom of a deep dell, circular as a basin the sides of which are feathered with every variety of foliage up to their very summits. In the centre of this dell rises an insulated conical hill, and on its top towers the majestic ruins of the Castle of Berry-Pomeroy.—So deep is the valley, that the highest pinnacle of the ruin is beneath the level of the high road. The harmony of tint between the ruin and the foliage, which surrounds and overspreads it, is exquisite. Dark masses of ivy, and the lighter verdure of the ash and the birch, contrast finely with the grey hue of the mouldering walls. The spacious apartments, which were once the abode of comfort and luxury, are now unable to afford a shelter from the storms of the sky. The long trailing weed, and the clustering ivy, are the only hangings the wall can now boast; the stars are their midnight lamps:—the winds of heaven their only music. The ground is carpeted by soft and verdant turf; and the wood anemone springs in profusion on every side. A fine stream of water runs round the base of the hill, and on it is a water-mill, placed as if purposely to contrast its humble comfort with the mouldering grandeur of the ruin which towers above it. The right time to behold this scene is just before sun-set, when the lower part of the dell is enveloped in the shadow of evening, and the castle alone stands radiant in the sunlight.—Then, while the birds are yet singing their even-song, and the brook makes music with them, the miller may be seen with his horse, descending the steep path which leads to his dwelling; and his daughter, graceful and beautiful as evening, is tending her flowers, in the garden which slopes down to the stream; or her voice may be heard, echoing up the hill, to warn the children who are at play among the ruins, that the sun is setting and it is time to come home. Never was situation more retired than this; for there is no access to it but by the gate, of which the miller keeps the key. Yet, as parties of strangers sometimes visit the castle, and as on these occasions the beautiful girl I have mentioned is sometimes obliged to act as guide, she had accquired an address free from awkward shyness, and as graceful as it is modest. As a child, Mary was the gayest of the gay; and her parents let her run wild, and amuse her little life as she would. But when she was about seventeen, a sudden and remarkable change took place.—She loved and was beloved;—but being somewhat spoiled by indulgence, and too young and giddy to make a right use of her power, she trifled with her lover, offended him, and while boasting of her influence and meditating some new exertion of it, she was struck dumb by receiving a letter from her lover, announcing his departure from Dartmouth as a sailor, and bidding her farewell. Mary never got over the shock. She never complained, for she knew that she had brought her sorrow on herself; she never mentioned his name, nor did her parents speak of him; they tried by fresh indulheart. But Mary no longer liked, or would accept indulgence. She was humbled; and she seemed to find comfort in being as unlike as possible to what she had formerly been. She became industrious, grave and womanly. She took care of the little ones; she assisted her mother; and the only amusement she cared for, was to set the children to play hide-and-seek at the castle. In vain did her parents sigh for the sound of her light laughter: she was gentle; but it was plain that she could no longer be gay.

One day, a large party arrived to view the castle. The miller was gone to Totness, and his wife was busy: Mary took the key and acted as guide. She left the gate open, as she thought her father might return while she was in the ruin. He did return, and impatiently sought his wife; and with a countenance of astonishment asked who had arrived, and where Mary was. Being told that she was with a party of strangers at the castle, and that no remarkable visitor was among them, he related an extraordinary tale. He was descending the path just above the mill, when he heard a rustling among the leaves, and looking that way, he saw a man stealing along behind the trees evidently wishing to avoid notice. The miller called; but no answer being returned, he jumped from his horse and pursued the intruder, who once turned his head, and then fled faster than the miller could pursue. Yet the glimpse which he had obtained of the face, urged the good man to greater speed; for it seemed the face of Mary's lover. After a fruitless chase, the miller paused and thought it best to hasten home to ask his wife's advice. She felt certain of her husband's having mistaken the identity of the persons; for George was not to return these many months; and as for his having a sailor's jacket on, so many sailors came up from Dartmouth, that that fact told nothing. However, the dear child must not be left to be alarmed by any trespasser, and her husband must make as much haste as he could up the hill. The miller was still breathless, but he delayed no longer than to agree with his wife that not a syllable should be said to Mary of the adventure. He kept a sharp look out, as he followed the winding path up the hill. Once he thought, but he could not be sure, that he saw a man standing in the shadow of the ruin: but when he reached the spot, no one was there. Then he heard the tone of a gruff voice very near. The miller turned quickly round an angle of the building, and seized on a man who stood with his back to him. It proved to be a gentleman of the party, and the good man was obliged to apologize, again and again, in the best words he could find; and to make the most of his certainty of a trespasser being at hand. Luckily, his daughter was not present to witness so unusual an exertion of the good man's energies. When she came up with the rest of the party, she offered the keys to her father, saying, her mother wanted her; but to her surprise, the miller forbade her to leave him. The mysterious stranger appeared no more that day; and the only effect of the apparition was, to make Mary's parents determine never to lose sight of her, never to allow her to ascend the hill herself, till they should hear some certain intelligence of George. It was no difficult task to keep Mary in sight, without her being aware that she was watched. For many days no strangers arrived, and Mary was fully occupied at home, and found in her pretty garden all the relaxation she wanted. Then rainy weather came, and there was no temptation to go out.

The first fine day, after a week of rain, was market day at Totness, and the miller's wife mounted her horse to go to the town. She had never believed that the appafition, which had troubled her husband, was George himself. She was far from being convinced that he had seen any one; or, if he had, it was either some servant belonging to the strangers, or a sailor, who chose to see the ruin without seeing the gate keeper. Whoever it might be, the danger seemed over, as he had never returned. So the good dame did not trouble herself to tell her husband the hour of her departure; but, leaving Mary plenty of employment, she trotted off unnoticed by the mills. Mary sat down to her work, but was soon interrupted by the children.

"Mary! you have not played with us ever since the day the last company came: do take us up to the castle."

"I am busy, my dears, but you may go by yourselves. Here, John, take the key, you can unlock the great door."

"But you can do your work this afternoon when the sun is gone down; and we have not had such a fine day as this for a week."

"Very true," said Mary; "and I will go with you just for half an hour."

So she tied on her bounet, and carried the youngest child up the steep hill, while the others ran on before. The children were full of play: they climbed the broken walls, and called to their sister to jump them down again. They laughed at their own little feats, and when they looked in Mary's face, she smiled kindly at them; but then she remembered the time when she was as merry as they, and she sighed. When she and the children were tired of climbing and jumping, they sat down and the little ones pulled off her bonnet and stuck it all round with wood anemones: and then she remembered who had done the same thing, in the same place, a year before, and the tears came into her eyes. After a while, the children besought her to play hide-and-seek with them, and she did so. She hid herself with all proper caution, and burst from her hiding place with due eagerness to catch her little playmates, whose shouts of glee echoed though the building.

"And now I must go," said she, at last, "I am sure I have been more than half an hour with you."

"O, don't go yet, Mary," cried little John, "I am to hide this time, and you must stay till I have had my turn."

"Well, just one turn more, and then I must go."

So the children hid themselves; and Mary, having given notice to them to keep close, began her cautious search. She had by this time caught the spirit of the game, and was almost as intent upon it as her little brothers. She kept a watchful eye on all sides; she listened for every little noise; and trod as softly, as if there was any fear of a step so children had chosen to hide in a different part of the building from that where they had previously played, though equally near to the goal. That way she turned, and presently she saw, behind a corner the flap of a coat. She gave notice of having seen it, and ran to the goal, but no one followed. She called again, but no one came out: she thought she had been mistaken, and again began her search, amidst the most profound stillness.—With stealthy pace she approached the corner, ready to spring away at the first alarm. No alarm was given, and the coat flap was no longer visible. She drew nearer and nearer, touched the wall, and, pushing back her bonnet, bent her head forward and forwarder, and at length fairly turned the corner. She caught some one, but it was not John or Charles: no: it was George himself.—Mary screamed, and sank on the ground. The children flew from their hiding places, and her lover raised her, and soothed her startled spirits with his words of tenderness,

He loved her more than ever. He had heard of the change which had taken place in her after his departure: he determined to see and judge for himself, before he ventured to subject himself again to the heart breaking caprices of one he could not cease to love. For this purpose he had trespassed again and again, though he had only been once observed: for this purpose he had overlooked her garden from the top of a neighboring tree: for this purpose he had flitted through the thickets on the side of the hill, and concealed himself in the ruin. He had seen the tears start to her eyes this day, and her sigh was not lost upon him. It determined him to seek her that very day, and he only waited her departure from the castle to follow her home and renew his suit. It was not his intention to startle her as he had done, but she was so bent on searching the corner where he had concealed himself, that there was no escape.—No harm was done: she soon recovered sufficiently to send the children down, and to follow with no other support than the arm of her lover.

Her fond mother has again been gladdened by her merry laugh, and her father is often heard to appeal to Mary's judgment, whether, of all the sports that ever were invented, there is one that can compare with Hide-and-Seek.

THE SHIP GLIDE.

We have been permitted to make a short extract from the journal of one of the crew of the ill fated ship Glide, which, it will be recollected was wrecked several years since at the Fegee Islands, and the crew exposed to all the dangers and hardships of wrecked mariners among a barbarous people. Several of the crew were from this town. This extract is not selected as of particular interest but as exhibiting the first impressions of the crew on landing among a savage race. We may in future numbers make further extracts;

After having doubled the Cape of Good Hope we experienced a succession of westerly gales and storms which lasted with but little cessation until the 31st of August, when we saw Van Diemans land (a high barren island south of New Holland,) from whence we steered to the northern end of the island of New Zealand. Th wind and weather proved favourable and o the 14th of September we saw the land. Afte some difficulty in finding the port, on the 17t

we anchored in the Bay of Islands, 117 day from Salem with one man sick. We found i this place three English whale ships and a mer chant brig who put in here for supplies. Th natives although engaged in wars and fightin among themselves, treated us very well, an sold us hogs and vegetables, for muskets, pow der, tools and cloth, of which they were ver fond, and for which they sell their provision readily and cheap.

Many of these nations are very fierce an savage, though some are considerably civilize by the labors of missionaries. We were gene ally very well pleased with their behaviour o board, although they showed a propensity steal whenever an opportunity offered. The are well formed and and wear a covering mad of a sort of flax which resembles a cloak.

They display considerable ingenuity in th formation of their canoes, houses and weapon
The island is but little cultivated, the nativ getting their support in a great measure fro the sea. The principal vegetable eaten by t natives is the Fern root which is baked in oven and is preferred to anything else. Th English Mission has a large establishment this place guarded by a fort and they have su ceeded well in civilizing and in informing t natives, particularly in preventing the horr practice of eating the enemies that they ta in battles. Many of the natives cultivate t land and are instructed to read and write missionaries.

We purchased from a chief six of the nativ whom we intended to employ in procuring o cargo. After getting a small supply of sto &c, on the 24th of September we sailed fro this port and steered north-west intending touch at the Friendly Islands in order to lay a good stock of vegetables, &c., they being greater plenty at these islands than at Ne Zealand.

After leaving the land we found the weath boisterous for a few days until we reached t south of the south-east trades, when it prov mild and pleasant and on the 6th of Octob pe saw one of the friendly Islands called Tar ataboo the principal of the group.

It being fine weather we ran in near to shore and hove the ship too, while the nati of both sexes came along side in their canoe bringing great quantities of cocoa nuts, pla tains, yams, hogs, fowls &c., all of which th readily exchanged for cloth, beads and oth articles.

We found no difficulty in trading with the we soon succeeded in procuring a good sup of fruits, vegetables and live stock. These lands are a cluster in the South Pacific Oce situated about in the latitude of 20 south, 1 east. The climate is mild and beautiful, soil very fertile, producing all the vegetab found in a tropical climate, in great abundan especially the bread fruit and cocoa nut tr

The natives are of an olive complexion, generally elegantly formed, possessing v handsome features, kind and amiable disp tions and were very pleasing in their manne

They were nearly naked, wearing onl small piece of cloth made from the bark o tree, and a few ornaments round their ne and in their ears.

On the 8th of October we sailed from th islands and steered to the north west for group called the Fegee Islands, where we tended to obtain our cargo, and among wh we expected to be detained some time, as t were but little known; but few vessels ever h ing visited them, and the navigation being cult and the natives extremely fierce and age.

The Fegees are a cluster of islands, situa in the South Pacific Ocean. They very m resemble the West Indies, being fertile and ducing all the vegetables found in those isla and being situated between the tropics the mate is much the same. Mountains of con erable size are to be found in these islands.

Although situated in the immediate vici of the trade winds, the wind does not b from any particular point, but is generally v variable, and subject to frequent changes.

The soil is very fertile, producing in a dance all the vegetables common to a warm mate. Many kinds of valuable trees are to found in the forests, particularly a specie iron wood, which grows to a great heigh which the natives build their canoes, and m
many of their weapons of war, also the coc nut tree from which the natives not only cure a great article of food, but also frames covering to their houses, ropes &c.

These islands abound with hogs, dogs fowls and some smaller animals. Various k of excellent fish are found near the sh which form a principal article of food fo natives.

They are inhabited by a race of people differ very much from the uncivilized natio
the South Pacific Ocean in their customs, guage and particularly in their comple
which is very dark, and approaches very to the negroes.

In stature they are larger than most E peans, and like other Indians, they are straight and well built, and we have seen sons of an elegant figure. The men are ne naked, and always go armed with club spears, and are very savage and fierce, quently at war with each other, and are addicted to the horrid practice of eating dead bodies of their enemies when killed in tle. The women are employed in ma cloth, catching fish and most of the labo employments; while the men are learning art of war, building their canoes and es.

DANVERS COURIER.

SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 12, 1845.

TOWN MEETING.

The Town Meeting on Monday last was well attended. Several important subjects affecting the financial interests of the town were acted on and some were referred to the adjournment on Monday next. The project of grading Liberty street was rejected by a decisive vote, Mr. E. S. Upton the chairman of the committee and Dr. Hunt advocating the measure, and Messrs Elias Putman, J. W. Proctor and Winthrop Andrews opposing it,—the latter in a speech characterized by his own peculiar style of eloquence. Mr. Levi Preston jr. was chosen collector, and ten of the twelve members of the School Committee were also chosen. There was no choice of Selectman and Assessor. These vacancies are to be filled at the adjournment.

At this meeting the report of the School Committee was read by Rev. Mr. Field. It was a very able document, showing a highly gratifying state of the schools, and was listened to with much attention by the meeting. It was accepted and ordered to be printed for the use of the inhabitants of the town.

After this meeting had adjourned, another meeting was organized, the warrant read, and it being late, this meeting was also adjourned to Monday next.

LIBERTY STREET.

At the town meeting last Monday the report of the Committee in favour of grading and repairing this important throughfare was not accepted. The importance of the improvement proposed by the committee can hardly be over estimated. To a place comprised as this is, of several distinct villages, good oads are of incalculable value as means of facilitating intercourse between citizens of different sections of the town. They are to the town what rail roads are to the country, a bond of union uniting all the parts into one great whole.

Perhaps the time has not yet arrived for the removal of this great barrier to the business and social interests of our citizens. Still we regard the rejection of the recommendation of the committee in no other light than as a postponement of what will one day be accomplished. The remark of one gentleman who opposed the adoption of the Report is no doubt true, that when the work is done it should be done in an effective and thorough manner. This would no doubt involve great expense which the present state of the finances seem not to warrant, but at a more favourable time we may hope to see this great thoroughfare an easy and well thronged avenue from village to village, so that all parts of our town may thus

"Like kindred drops be mingled into one."

SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

We observe that the new City Government of Salem have elected several clergymen on their School Committee. It will be recollected that this having been elected to that office. It seems to us peculiarly appropriate that those having the care of the religious interests of our parishes should also have a share in the oversight of the schools.—It has always been the practice in this town to place the clergymen on this important committee and it has been usually on these members that the principal labor has devolved. It has also sometimes been a matter of regret that ministers have been incligible from the short time they have been in town, and in one case at least, a public invitation by vote of the town was given, to act with the committe, in their visitations to the several schools.

TEACHERS' MEETING.

The semi-anual meeting of our County Teachers' Association will be held at Marblehead on Friday and Saturday 25th and 26th inst. This we believe is the oldest institution of the kind in our State and its operations have elicited the commendation of some of the most distinguished friends of education. Its reputation is such that one gentleman—a citizen of another county has voluntarily placed $100 at the disposal of the association.—Believing, as we do, that its influence has done much for the cause of education within the county, we most earnestly commend it to the friends of popular instruction, and hope they will manifest their interest by attending the approaching meetings.

We learn that Messrs. E. S. Stearns and W. Read of Newburyport, C. Bradbury of Amesbury. S. S. Greene and J. F. Shepard of Boston, E. Hussey of Lynn and Rev. Mr. Sessions of Salem are engaged as Lecturers.

THE YOUTH OF BOWDITCH.

It is well known that the father of the late Dr. Bowditch lived at one time in Danvers at the head of Central street near the spot known as the Pine tree. At this time Nathaniel was a small boy and there are those now living who remember his kind disposition, and how intently in the evening the future philosopher used to watch the moon and the stars. The house is still standing where he lived and we have lately seen an English work which has a fine steel engraving of this house for its frontispiece. The reputation of Dr. Bowditch is confined to no national boundary, but wherever there are admirers of true science and exalted worth he is known and honored.

DEATH OF MR. COLMAN. The Albany Daily Advertiser announces the death of Mr. Colman, well khown for his improvement on the pianoforte, at Saratoga, on Saturday last.

SHADE TREES.

Now is the season to plant these pleasing and ornamental objects to improve the appearance of our streets and enclosures. Strangers have often expressed their admiration of the fine ranges of trees on Main street and we observe with pleasure that Washington and Chestnut streets have fine rows of elms in a thrifty condition. With these pleasant appendages our streets present a cheerful aspect, while without them they look barren and desolate.

While on this subject we wish to suggest to the proprietors of Walnut Grove Cemetery, that their beautiful grounds would have a more pleasant and cheerful appearance, if they should plant their lots with firs and other evergreens. It has been found at Harmony Grove that the Norway spruce has proved a safe and hardy tree to cultivate, while its thick and dark foliage in winter presents a favourable contrast to the general appearance of desolation.

HOGREEVES.

The practice of choosing this dignitary has long been discontinued, but in this place at the first town meeting after the separation from Salem, nine persons were chosen to this office. This large number was probably in accordance with a custom still existing in some country towns of placing in this respectable office all young men suspected of a design to commit matrimony, as it was most ungallantly supposed that these persons were best qualified to restrain swine from going at large. Whether this restraint was effected by placing rings in the noses or on the fingers, history does not inform us.

FAIR IN SALEM.

We learn that a Fair will be held in Mechanic Hall, (lower room) on Thursday next. Its object is a benevolent one, being designed to assist the colored population to maintain public worship in their church in South Salem. This Fair is under the direction of the female members of that society who have made great preparations for an attractive display of useful and ornamental articles, and we hope our citizens will feel disposed to visit the Fair and aid the Society in their praiseworthy object.

MAIN STREET.

This street in former times was very crooked. Its course as laid out, was from Mr. W. W. Little's house a south-westerly direction to Foster street, when it passed near I. and T. Hardy's shop and came out on the present line of road near Mr. Asa Sawyer's. It was laid out as it now is about the year 1650 and the first house built on the new road is that of Mr. John Goldthwait who now has possession of the Deed of land given in 1660.

EXPLANATORY. In the remarks last week in relation to the result of the Ecclesiastical council in the north parish we intended our strictures for general application to the prevailing want of permanency in the pastoral office. The ecclesiastical history of that society shows but three or four ordinations, in the space of a century, while in many societies at the present day [illegible] occur in a dozen years.

PROFESSOR BUSH'S FIRST LECTURE.

This was delivered last Wednesday evening, at Upton's Hall. He was heard with strict attention by a very respectable audience, and treated the great and sublime themes announced as his subject with the learning and critical ability for which he is so much distinguished. He gives another lecture on Tuesday evening next, on the Resurrection of Christ, at the same place, and, as his engagements elsewhere will prevent his remaining in this vicinity, we hope our citizens will avail themselves of the opportunity now offered to listen to this eminent Biblical scholar.

NEW YORK CITY ELECTION.—The election in the city of New York has resulted favourably to the locos. Haveymeyer, the loco candidate for mayor is elected by plurality, lacking about 2000 votes of a majority.

THE ENGLISH CHURCH.

Some of the beauties of an Established Church are seen in the following paragraph which we take from a late English paper. It will serve to illustrate the demoralizing influence of clerical establishments dependent on and upheld by secular authority.

A parson, advertising for a curate in the Ecclesiastical Gazette for January, says:—"Any clergyman will do, who is willing to purchase, on very reasonable terms, a good family house annexed."

It is of no consequence what the curate is—whether Puseyite or Protestant—lax or strict—pious or profane—"any clergyman will do," so that he only buys the parson's house! In the advertisement next but one (we quote the Liverpool Albion,) an incumbent modestly offers £50 per annum to any one who will undertake his parish with "1300 souls, so scattered as to require the curate to keep a horse." Fifty pounds a year for a man and a horse is little better than midshipman's half pay. Two advertisements farther on a curate, "with a powerful voice" is wanted. In this case, it is vox et praterea nihil. He is neither required "to buy a house," "keep a horse," nor be of evangelical doctrine." Lungs is the only criterion here mentioned. Six advertisements farther, we meet with a very lazy gentleman, who wants to purchase a stock of sermons, from some fellow laborer. This is the very ne plus ultra of indolence. He is not only too idle to make his own sermons but even too idle to copy them; he wishes to obtain them, prepared for preaching," in a fair and legible hand." We will mention one more instance of the comicalities of clerical advertising. It is the case of a munificent Devonshire incumbent, who offers no money, but, "for the services of a siugle or married clergyman without young children, will give the use of his kitchen fire, garden produce, &c, in March and April!"

FOR THE DANVERS COURIER.

BUILDINGS IN DANVERS.

Mr. Editor—Having been a resident of Danvers for the last eight years, I have had the "curiosity" to ascertain the number of dwelling houses that have been erected within that period. Thinking the result may be interesting to many of your readers, I herewith send you the same. I ought however, to state that my "reckoning" pertains only to "South Danvers" extending about one mile from the South church in each direction.

On Main and Lowell streets,	22
" Walnut & branches,	29
" Washington,	14
" Holten,	13
" Elm & branches,	15
" Franklin,	9
" Chesnut,	10
" Central, Andover & Liberty,	13
" streets not named,	11
Total,	136

It should be understood that the above account relates exclusively to dwelling houses, and does not include those that have been erected on ground laid waste by the conflagration of 1843. Many of the houses erected are large and well constructed. I may also add that they are all fully occupied and that a "host" of candidates for occupancy appear whenever a house is vacated.

In addition to the above the churches occupied by the South, the Baptist and Methodist Societies have been built.

There have also been erected several stores and numerous buildings connected with the extensive tannery of Mr. Southwick.

Within the same period the street leading from Main street to Harmony Grove has been opened and is now mostly occupied by various buildings owned, principally, by Gen. Sutton.

As a whole I think we may challenge the state to produce a town which shall furnish so much evidence of real thrift and prosperity as may be found in Danvers.

Can our friends of North Danvers give some statistics respecting the increase of their flourishing village within a few years past?

ALIQUIS.

SHAKERS.

Certain charges having been made in the New Yoak Senate by one of the members respecting this community, that sect have petitioned for an investigation. After the presentation of the memorial the Senator renewed his charges and made explanations of a most horrible nature which will have the effect at least to enable that singular community to deny in a public manner these imputations of secret vices which have been charged upon them.

NEWSPAPER BRAGGING.

The following from the London Punch is a very fair hit at those editors and publishers who are always boasting of their vast business, great circulation, and distingnished contributors until the public is fairly nauseated with their continual brag:

"The Punch has fifteen hundred first-rate writers constantly employed upon it. They are paid at an enormous rate, and are kept in stalls or cages, near the printing-office, during the day time; but at night they are driven out into the suburbs.

Each of the principal contributors has forty pounds a week (£2,000 a year,) and as much ink as he can consume gratis. The chief artists are on the same footing. There is an enormous corps of small jokers, at salaries averaging about three hundred a year each; but they are obliged to act as a sort of joke police, constantly on the lookout to take up any ferocious subject they may meet with, and bring it to be dealt with by one or the other of the principal contributors.

"The merely mechanical part of the arrangements is also exceedingly costly. There are several hundred compositors, who relieve one another constanly, as they successively boil over with indignation, or are convulsed with laughter at the manuscript they are putting into type. There are several boys at the engine, to prevent the chases, in which the type is placed, from splitting their sides, which they have been known to do, with the pressure of an unusually rich caricature or article. But the hardest work of all is performed by the publisher, who sometimes sinks down in a state of exhaustion, and is always wrapped up in blankets, and carried away from the office, after the exertion of having taken the money on the publishing day."

We are happy to lay before our readers the following letter from DANIEL WEBSTER, in reply to one announcing that he had been elected an honorary member of the Baltimore Sabbath Association. It is a favorable testimony to the Sabbath, from a source entitled to high consideration.—Register.

WASHINGON, March 3, 1845.

Dear Sir,—I feel greatly honored by your communication, which I received on my return to this city from the North, on Saturday, and am sincerely obliged to my friend, Mr Williams, for causing me to be made a member of the Baltimore Sabbath Association.

The longer I live, the more highly do I estimate the importance of a proper observance of the Christian Sabbath, and the more grateful do I feel towards those who take pains to impress a sense of this inportance on the community. The Lord's day is the day on which the Gospel is preached! it is the day of public worship in the Christian world. And altho' we live in a reading age, and in a reading community, yet the preaching of the Gospel is the form in which human agency has been, and is still, most efficaciously employed for the spiritual improvement of men. That the poor had the gospel preached to them, was an evidences of his mission, which the Author of Christianity himself proclaimed. And to the public worship of the Deity, and the preaching of the Gospel, the observance of the Sabbath is obviously essential.

I am, dear sir, with much regard,
your obedicut servant,
DANIEL WEBSTER.

Charles W. Ridgely.

Fearful Disaster on the Hudson. The Steamboat Swallow which left Albany on Monday evening, for New York, with more than three hundred passengers on board, struck on a rock between Hudson and Athens, several miles below Albany, with such force as to lift the bow entirely out of the water, break the boat in two and render her a complete wreck. The disaster occurred about 3 o'clock in the midst of a snow storm, and the confusion and distress were extreme. Many of her passengers were taken up by the steamboats Rochester and Express, and others by boats from the shore. It is not ascertained certainly whether any lives were lost, yet it seems hardly possible that all were saved. Rev. H. F. Harrington who was on board, gives an appalling account of the scene in a letter to the Tribune. After the alarm had communicated to the shore, the church bells were rung and the river was soon covered with torches waving in the fleet of boats that put off to give assistance. In the course of an hour all were taken off who remained. Several females were drawn out of their State rooms by dashing in the window, and from the Ladies' Cabin by cutting through the floor—they had sustained themselves on settees with only a few inches of breathing room for their faces. Many jumped overboard; several were seen to be washed off, and it is feared that all could not have escaped from the cabin. Register.

The awful scene exhibited to the self-possessed observer many striking traits of human nature.—In the very height of the confusion and dismay, on the upper deck, when all was darkness, the snow falling fast, the boat sinking rapidly, wives shrieking for husbands, sisters for brothers, and children for parents, and the accents of prayer best befitted the lips, the voice of a strong-hearted ruffian was heard even above the tumult, pouring volleys of oaths at the poor agonized females around him, because of the emotion they exhibited.

A gentleman was hurrying up from the lower cabin, with difficulty escaping the pursuit of the waters, and when he reached the saloon he saw a husband hasten from a state-room beside him closely hugging a valise, while his wife, with an infant in her arms and another little child by her side, shrieked to him as he rushed away, never turning his head to view their fate.—"Husband! husband! in God's name, drop your valise and save your wife and children!" But he disappeared unheeding! He probably prefered the miserable gold in his valise to his wife and children! A gentleman, although he had apparently lost everything, except the clothing on his back, did not make an effort for himself until he had secured the safety of that family. We rejoice to be able to offset so fiendish an exhibition of selfishness, with the energy of disinterested generosity.

DARING HIGHWAY ROBBERY. A young man from Newburyport, (Mass.) named William Henry Cleaveland, arrived in this city last Saturday, and put up at the Western Hotel. On Sunday evening he attended worship at the Mariners' Bethel, in Water street, above Walnut, and as he was leaving the church, he asked two men the direction to Market street. The men pretended to show him the way, but after walking with him a few yards, one of them caught him behind by the collar of his coat and pulled him down. The villains then stuffed paper into his mouth to keep him from hallooing, and rifled his pockets of his silver watch and about $50 in money. The daring robbers escaped.—Philadelphia paper.

MR. FAIRCHILD IN EXETER. On Monday, the Society of the First Congregational Church in Exetet N.H., invited, by a unanimous vote, the Rev Joy H. Fairchilh to preach among them for the time being. He will not settle himself in any place for the present, says the Boston Times.

The Saco Democrat says that on Sunday last, Mr F. preached in the House of the First Parish, evening, to a crowded and admiring audience. In the evening, it thinks at least 1200 were present.

His discourses were very appropriate, and the fixed attention of his auditory indicated the deep interest which they excited throughout the large assembly.

SUSPICION UNDER EXCITEMENT.—The following paragraph from the Manchester Democrat serves to show the slight grounds upon which an innocent man may be wronged while a community is laboring under an undue state of excitement.

Mr. Jeremiah Carter of Kingston was described in the handbill as the supposed murderer from the facts that Mr. Carter has lost a thumb of one hand, and a person thus maimed was seen rolling in the saloon on Monday or Tuesday, but more especially—that persons were ready to swear that they "saw and shook hands" with said Carter of Kingston, in Manchester on the day of the murder, and a person was ready to testify to the identity of the knife found by the murdered man, with one seen and used in Carter's family. Well, Mr. Sheriff Moulton went to Kingston, and found by irrefragable evidence from some of the best men in Kingston, that Carter had been at Kingston for the week, that on Wednesday afternoon he was engaged in constructing a Stage for an Exhibition, and that he attended the exhibition in the evening, and was there about the time of the murder in Manchester!—[Bee.

MR. TORREY.—A clergyman, who lately passed through Baltimore, writes to the Zion's Herald that he had solicited and obtained an interview with Mr Torrey, in the penitentiary. He is kindly treated, comfortable in bodily circumstances and happy in mind. His labor is light and easily got through by three o'clock, P. M., after which he employs himself in reading the Bible. His friends may visit him on making proper application; and to clergymen the doors are freely opened.

DUEL. An affair of honor came off at 6 o'clock this morning, in the vicinity of Bladensburgh, between Mr B. Powell, of Philadelphia, son of Col. J H Powell, and Mr Francis Harley, of the same place. They fought with pistols at ten paces; and after exchanging two shots without effect, the difficulty was amicably adjusted by the friends of the parties. Mr E. Ash was second to Mr Powell. Mr. Thomas Maslin second to Mr. Harley. We have not ascertained the cause of the difficulty. All parties engaged in this little affectionate affair are from the city of brotherly love. They reached Baltimore this morning on their way home. [Balt. Patriot, Tuesday.

The Governor of Mississippi has appointed the Hon. Jacob Thompson to fill the vacancy in the United States Senate occasioned by the resignation of the Hon. Robert J. Walker.

FOR THE DANVERS COURIER.

When a man undertakes an enterprize calculated to advance the interests of the public, and prosecutes his undertaking with a judgment and vigor deserving of success, it seems but right that he should receive the encouragement of those for whom he labors and upon whose approval and support he must depend for the issue of his experiment.

The town of Danvers has long needed a newspaper of high tone and character, conducted with a spirit and ability commensurate with the extent and prosperity of her various branches of industry, and able to enlighten and instruct while it should reflect honor upon, her large and thriving community. The Courier has as yet issued but three numbers, but if we can judge of the whole from a part—ex pede Herculem—our wants are now well supplied. I think I am speaking the general voice, when I express my own unqualified approbation of the good taste, sound sense and able management which has thus far characterized our new paper.

But my object, Mr. Courier, in thus writing, is not only to address a word of encouragement to you personally, but to urge upon all the townsmen into whose hands your sheet may fall, the importance and duty of sustaining your well directed efforts. In the first place, a widely circulated paper affords to them, as traders, mechanics and manufacturers, the best medium of advertizing—a habit of business whose value cannot be too highly estimated. Then, its columns become the most convenient and favorable place for discussing such questions of domestic policy as may at times spring up to interest the town, and these are neither few in number nor trifling in their result. And moreover, besides giving us all matters of foreign and local news, its pages may contain a variety of delightful reading and popular instruction to enliven and improve the family fireside, quickening with a throb of pleasure the feeble pulse of age, calming and elevating the mind of the man of business with pure and lofty thoughts, whispering to the deep heart of woman of sweet sentiments and holy duties, and awakening in the mind of reckless yet easily moulded youth, faculties and talents, which, rightly guided, may lead to adorn lives of usefulness and honor.

All this, indeed, may be said of any paper, or in support of the system of newspapers generally,—but it is emphatically true as respects a paper of our own. We peruse such a publication, conducted and supported by ourselves, with an attention we yield to no other, and for the very reason that it is our own organ and representative. A lesson imparted, a story told, a moral pointed, a hint given by one with whom we daily associate, one of "our own folks," is sure to be read with avidity, and if it be wholesome food, it cannot fail to give us nourishment; at least, not for lack of having it thoroughly digested.

And then again, we should feel some pride in this matter; we live in a large and thriving town, rapidly increasing in wealth and population, and we ought to be able to add, in moral influence and power among her neighbours in the Commonwealth. But it is rather to be apprehended that while we are everywhere known as an industrious, thrifty, money-getting people, we are at the same time regarded as parsimonious, narrow-minded, and behind the age in social and intellectual culture. This should not, must not be so. If it is untrue, we should prove it to be so—if it is a just impression, we should immediately set about to remove the grounds of it, and to gain a better character and reputation. In either case, there is no surer, more feasible way, than the cordial support of a good family news-paper, conducted in such a manner that it may at once liberalize and enlighten our minds and elevate our morals, and at the same time acquire for us credit and towns.

I have made no allusion, Mr. Courier, to the political bias of your sheet, because, in this connection, I deem it of no consequence. For if, as you have given us reason to suppose, you intend to make your paper a fair and dispassionate, though firm organ of a particular party, so that opponents as well as friends may read without losing their tempers, and derive profit therefrom, it certainly can be no objection to the honest and candid of those who happen to think differently from you in politics, or weigh for a moment against the many and strong considerations which urge upon them the duty of becoming your subscribers. It should be a matter of principle as good citizens of whatever party, and a matter of laudable pride as well-wishers for the fair name of our town and home, to give to your enterprize a hearty and generous support. And that such will be the case, I have not a doubt, else I have entirely mistaken the temper of the good people of Danvers. Go on, then, Mr. Courier, in the way you have begun, and may abundant success crown your labors.

Q. R.

SHAVINGS.

ORATORIO OF DAVID. The Boston Handel & Haydn Society will perform the beautiful Oratorio of "DAVID," on Sunday evening next. The part of Saul is to be sustained by the celebrated vocalist, Mr. Henry Phillips. The orchestra will be under the direction of that prince of Leaders and Violinists, Mr. Herwig, whose performances have been so justly admired by the thousands who have recently heard the splendid Oratorio of Samson.

EXTENSIVE ROBBERY. The Poughkeepsie N.Y. Telegraph of yesterday, says:—

"On the arrival of the barge Clinton at this place yesterday morning from New York, it was found that the iron safe in the Captain's office had been unlocked, and several packages in money taken from it, amounting in all, as near as can be ascertained, to about $23,000.

We learn from the N. E. Puritan, that Rev. William M. Rogers, of the Central Church in this city, has, in consequence of somewhat impaired health, and the claims of a large congregation, requested the assistance of a colleague; that the church have voted to comply with his request; and that a co-pastor will be settled as soon as an acceptable one can be procured. Mr Rogers, we learn, intends soon to make a voyage to Europe.—Boston Mail.

☞A gang of horse thieves, who have infested the State of Ohio for some years, has been broken up through the exertions of Martial Saffin, of Cincinnati. It is thought that from 50 to 75 horses have been stolen during the last three months in that vicinity. A chief mode of operation was to station a boat at some favorable point on the canal, on board which the horses were driven and placed under concealment. The coal was then moved to some other point to avoid all traces of the horses, which were speedily driven to distant parts of the State and sold.

Meeting.—A meeting of the friends of this gentleman was held at the Malbro' Chapel, on Saturday evening, which was fully attended Deacon J Bates, of Rev. Mr Jenks' church was called to the chair, and H. N. Carine Esq., appointed secretary. J. A. Bolles, Esq., stated in full the object of the meeting, and submitted a series of resolutions which were adopted. A committee was appointed to collect subscriptions for his aid, who commenced operations in the hall, and collected upwards of two hundred dollars from those in attendance at the meeting. —Transcript.

Western and South-western Abolition Convention. The Cincinnati Herald of Monday, the organ of the Ohio Abolitionists, says:

"It is in contemplation to hold a convention of the friends of freedom in the Southwestern and Western States, at Cincinnati, on the 14th June. Circular letters, we learn, have been addressed to various persons residing in those sections. The great object seems to be to promote a healthful and efficient public sentiment against slavery."

Four Children Burnt to Death. On the night of the 19th or 20th ult. the house of M'Carty, of Beauharnois, took fire. None of the inmates being aware of the danger which they were in, four children were burnt to death; and the father and mother had a narrow escape from the same dreadful fate; they were, however considerably injured. They lost every thing the house contained.

Fire at Cincinnati. The large foundry on Front street, west of Western Row and owned by Jabez Reynolds, was entirely consumed by fire on Sunday last. He had on hand a large number of jobs; there was also the largest number of patterns in the West, a small part only of these were saved. Mr Reynolds had no insurance; loss will be over $12,000.

In a drunken affray near Fort Gibson, a short time since, a mixed blood Cherokee, stabbed several United States soldiers, and wounded one of them mortally.

Abby Kelley was very impolitely pelted with rotten eggs while delivering a lecture in Harrisburg, Pa., a few days since; one of them struck her in the face.

There has been a great spring flood on Niagara river. Within a mile of the Falls, on the 3d, the ice was 40 feet high. Every thing on the wharves at Queenstown and Lewiston was swept off. At Youngstown, all the houses near the steam flour mill were carried away. Damage $100,000. On the 4th, ice and water 40 feet above low water mark, and still rising.

Eastern Railroad. The Bost. Courier says the fares upon this road have been reduced as follows: From Boston to Lynn 25 cents; to Salem 40; to Marblehead and Beverly 45; to Ipswich 70 cents; and to Newburyport $1. The season tickets are also proportionably reduced. No reduction is made in the fare to Portsmouth, the contract with the upper road preventing any commutation at present.

This day is the anniversary of the birth of Henry Clay. He is now 68 years of age.

Narrow Escape. A few days since, Mr Gardner Brewer, of this city, fell into one of the vats of his distillery (we are unacquainted with the technicalities of business,) the gas of which is instantly fatal to animal life. Most fortunately, he caught by his arms on the sides, and was rescued before descending far enough to inhale the poison. Mr. B. was somewhat bruised, but is again abroad.—Bos. Post.

☞A Mr. Morse of Salem, attempted to commit suicide a few days since. He has since confessed, we understand, that he set fire to the Second Baptist meeting house in that city, last week.

The Madisonian has been discontinued, and a paper called the Constellation is issued from the same office, edited by J. E. Dow, and Theopilus Fisk.

BRIGHTON MARKET—Monday. March 31.
[From the Boston Daily Advertiser.]

At market 510 Beef Cattle 25 pairs Working Oxen, 760 Sheep, and 3150 Swine.

Prices—Beef Cattle—Sales quick at an advance. Extra $6 a 6 25; first quality $5 50 a 5 75, second quality $5 25 a 5 50; third quality 4 75 a $5

Working Oxen.—Sales at 65, 72, 80, and $84.

Sheep—Sales from 3 to $5. A few cosset Wethers at 6 25.

Swine—Lots to peddle 4 1-2c for Sows, 5 1-2c for Barrows; two lots of large Barrows $5 1-4; Ohio Hogs 4 1-4 and 5 1-4c. At retail, 5 1-2 and 6 1-2c.

MARRIAGES.

In Salem on Sunday evening last, by Rev. Day K. Lee, Mr Henry Clement to Miss Elizabeth Smith.

In Beverly Mr Joseph H. Bowditch, of North Carolina, (formerly of Salem) to Miss Elizabeth B. Abbott, daughter of Capt George Abbott.

In South Reading, Benjamin F. Abbott, Esq., to Mrs Mary B. Hartshorn, both of South Reading.

In Thomastown, Conn., on Fast evening, Mr Asa W. Sawyer, of this town, to Miss Hannah Wellman, of Salem.

DEATHS.

In this town, on Tuesday Mrs Charlotte S., wife of Mr Nath'l W. Carlton, aged 49.

In Salem, Mrs Betsy, wife of Mr James Harris, aged 52. Mr Henry Berry, aged 25. Mrs Elizabeth Buffinton, aged 88 years.

In Portsmouth, 3d inst., Hon William Ham, aged 86—for many years a Senator in the State Legislature.

In Lexington, Me., Mr Jonathan Albee, aged 100, a revolutionary soldier.

In New York on Tuesday evening Rev James Milner, D D, Rector of St George's Church, aged 70.

PORT OF DANVERS.

Saturday, April 5th.

SAILED.

Sch. Duroc, Baker, New Bedford, with bricks.

Sunday, 6th.

ARRIVED.

Sch. Superior, Harding, Manchester,

Monday 7th.

Sch. Victor, Gould, New York, flour and grain.
Sloop Abigail, Abbott, Boston.

Tuesday, 8th.

SAILED.

Sch. Superior, Harding Newport; with bricks.
Sloop Abigail, Abbott, Boston. "

Wednesday, 9th.

Sch. Victor, Gould, New York.

NOTICE.

The regular meetings of Monument Division, No. 5, Sons of Temperance, held at Sanger's Hall, are changed from Wednesday to Monday evening, at 7 1-2 o'clock. Members of the order are respectfully invited to attend.

Danvers, April 12. Moses Merrill, R. S.

M. TELYEA,

MERCHANT TAILOR,

MAIN STREET,

WOULD respectfully inform his friends and the public generally, that he has just returned from Boston with a select stock of

BROADCLOTHS,

such as German blue-black and English blue-black, brown and olive, and a very nice Tweed for Sack Coats or Pants.

German and English CASSIMERES AND DOESKINS of all kinds for Pants.

VESTINGS,

such as Satin and fine Cassimere, uncut Velvet, and Fancy and many other varieties of vestings.

The above will be sold Cheap for Cash and for Cash only.

M. T. as above, continues to make garments to order a short notice, and warranted as good a fit as can be obtained at any other establishment in Salem or Boston or in any of these diggins any way you can fix it.

Grateful for past favors, a continuance of public patronage is respectfully solicited.

The Spring Fashions just received from New York.

apr 12

LAMP BLACK.

1000 POUNDS of Lamp Black, warranted a prime article.

3000 Madras Goat Skins, in crust. Goat and Sheep Morocco. Kid, Linings, and Bindings.

For sale by W. & M. BLACK Jr.,
apr 12 New Mills, Danvers.

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

JONATHAN W. OSBORNE has taken into Co-partnership MICHAEL L. WHIDDEN, and they will continue the

Painting, Glazing & Papering

business. at the old Stand, No 10 Park Street, under the firm of

OSBORNE & WHIDDEN.

Particular attention to

SIGN PAINTING,

IMITATIONS OF WOOD, MARBLE, BRONZE, GROUND GLASS, &c.

mch 29 1y

Ploughs & Cultivators,

MANUFACTURED BY

RUGGLES, NOURSE & MASON,

And other Agricultural Tools.

FOR SALE BY

DANIEL RICHARDS,

Danvers Plains, March 29, 1845.

DANCING SCHOOL.

MR. R. J. DAVIS, Professor of Dancing from Salem, would respectfully inform the Ladies and Gentlemen of Danvers, that he purposes opening a School, at MR. LUNT'S NEW HALL, on SATURDAY AFTERNOON, April 19th, commencing at 5 o'clock, P. M., for the instruction of young Misses and Masters in this highly pleasing and useful accomplishment. Those who are in favor, are invited to call at the hall on the above afternoon, and learn the terms. apr 5

Dissolution of Co-Partnership.

The firm of

PERKINS, WELCH & CO.

is this day dissolved by mutual consent.

I. PERKINS,
P. D. PERKINS,
SAMUEL WELCH.

South Danvers, March 24th, 1845.

The business will be continued at the old stand, Central street, by

PERKINS & CO.,

who are authorized to settle all accounts of the late firm. They will keep constantly on hand a good assortment of the BEST GROCERIES which they will sell on the most reasonable terms. A share of patronage is respectfully solicited. mch 29

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

Office in Felton (late Osborne's Building,)

Danvers, March 29th. tf

CHARLES H. MANNING,

CABINET MAKER,

Near the Sign of the Lamb, Main Street,

DANVERS, Mass.

FURNITURE manufactured on the most reasonable terms. Also—CURRIER'S TABLES made and repaired cheap.

SHOE-MAKERS' PEGGING BENCHES made as above. oct 15

POOLE & STEDMAN,

MAKERS OF

CARRIAGES, HARNESSES, TRUNKS, &c.

THE subscribers having formed a Co-partnership under the above firm, are ready to attend to any orders in their line.

Particular attention paid to repairing.

S. A. POOLE,
G. B. STEDMAN.

N. B. Valises, Ladies' Satchels, Carpet Bags, &c. constantly on hand and for sale cheap.

Corner of Grove and Main Streets.

Danvers, March 15.

PERIODICALS, PAPERS, &c.

LUTHER CHANDLER, General Agent for the sale of all the principal Periodicals, Newspapers, &c., and will furnish them to all persons who may wish to subscribe; among which are

Graham's Magazine,	Harper's Pictorial Bible,
Ladies' National do,	Verplanck's Shakspeare,
Arthur's Lady's do,	Phil Saturday Courier,
Christian Family Mag.,	Neal's Gazette,
Gentlemen's Magazine,	New York Mirror,
Godey's Lady's Book,	Frost's Pictorial World,

The above and all the principal periodicals and papers will be furnished promptly.

☞BOOKS BOUND at the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

Orders may be left at J. SHED'S, opposite the Monument, South Danvers. 1y mch 29

EASY SHAVING AND HAIR CUTTING.

B. B. WILLIAMS respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has removed to the store formerly occupied by Lambert & Merrill, (under the Courier Office,) which he has fitted up in a neat manner, and is now prepared to wait upon those who believe that

"Man wants but little beard below,
Nor wants that little long."

Champooing, Hair Cutting and Shaving is performed to the satisfaction of all who may favor him with their patronage.

Danvers, March 15, 1845. tf

New Furniture Store.

SALEM FURNITURE & FEATHER WARE-HOUSE.

205 1-2 ESSEX STREET. 205 1-2

(Two Doors East from the Market,)

JOSEPH WALLIS would respectfully inform his friends and the public that he has taken the rooms recently occupied by T. Needham, Esq., where he will keep constantly on hand and for sale an extensive and well selected assortment of which he will sell at the lowest cash prices, among which may be found,

CABINET FURNITURE,

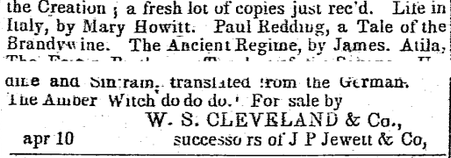
Sofas, Sofa Beds; Windlass, Cot Trundle and common Bedsteads; Secretaries; Bureaus; Mahogany, Card, Work, Centre and Dining Tables;—Mahogany, Cane-seat and common Chairs; Mahogany, Cane-back and common Rocking Chairs;—Children's Toy, Rocking and Dining Chairs; Settees and Settee Cradles; Cribs; Grecian and common Wash Stands; Portable Sinks; Portable and Gentleman's Writing Desks, Toilet, Dining and common Pine Tables; Looking Glasses; Swing and Toilet Glasses. Fancy Boxes, a great variety;—Mattresses; and every article usually found in his line of business.

CLOCKS.

J. W. intends keeping on hand a large and well selected assortment of Wood and Brass Clocks from the best of manufacturers—all of which we can feel confident in warranting. Those about purchasing this article will do well to call.

FEATHERS.

Live Geese and common Feathers; a great variety.



N B. J. W. will still continue to Manufacture FURNITURE at the Old Stand, No 29 Lafayette, corner of Ward street, where he will keep on hand assortment of

Cabinet Furniture, Feathers, Looking Glasses and Clocks.

Salem, April 12, 1845.

EASTERN RAILROAD.

SUMMER ARRANGMENT.

ON and after April 4th, 1845, Trains leave daily, (Sundays excepted,)

Boston for Portland, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P. M.
" Portsmouth, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 5 1-2 P.M.
" Somersworth, Great Falls, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 P.M.
" for Newburyport, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 and 5 1-2 P.M.
" for Salem, 7 1-4, 9, A.M., 12 1-4 2 1-2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2, 7 1-2 P.M.

Salem for Portland, 8 A.M., 3 1-4 P.M.
Salem for Portsmouth and Newburyport, 8 A.M., 3 1-4, 6 1-4 P.M.
Portland for Boston, 7 1-2 A.M., 3 P.M.
Saco for Boston, 8 A.M., 3 1-2 P.M.
Somersworth, Great Falls for Boston, 8 3-4 A.M.; 4 1-4 P.M.
South Berwick lot Boston, 9 1-4 A M, 4 3-4 P.M.
Portsmouth for Boston, 6 1-2, 10,* A.M., 5 1-2* P.M.
Newburyp't for Boston, 8 1-4, 10 3-4* AM. 6 1-4* PM.
Salem for Boston, 7 -2, 8 1-2, 10 1-4 11 3-4,* A.M.; 2 1-4, 5, 7,* P.M.
*Or on their arrival from the East.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Trains leave Marblehead for Salem, at 7 1-4, 8 1-4, 10, A.M.; 2, 4, 4 3-4, 7, P.M.
Leave Salem for Marblehead, at 8, 9 3-4 A. M., 1, 3 1-4, 4 1-4, 61-4, 8 1-4 P.M.

A Merchandize Train will leave Boston, Portland and all intermediate places every day.

Freight Office in Boston, No. 17 Merchants Row, and on the line of the road at the several Depots.

JOHN KINSMAN,
apr 12 Master of Transportation.

Harpers's Pictorial Bible.

NO 23, just rec'd by W S CLEVELAND & Co, apr 10 193 Essex st.

New Books.

PROESTANTISM in Italy, past and present, including the histoy and present state of the Waldenses—by Robert Baird. Vestiges of the Natural History of the Creation; a fresh lot of copies just rec'd. Life in Italy, by Mary Howitt. Paul Redding, a Tale of the Brandywine. The Ancient Regime, by James. Atila, The Amber Witch do do do. For sale by

W. S. CLEVELAND & Co.,
apr 10 successors of J P Jewett & Co,

Julian's Studies of Heads.

AN additional supply of the above beautiful Engravings just rec'd by

W. S. CLEVELAND & Co,
apr 12 193 Essex St., Salem.

The Psalmist.

The Psalmist, a collection of Hymns for the use of the Baptist Churches, by Baron Stow and S. F. Smith. A fresh supply of the above in neat and substantial bindings, just received and for sale by

W. S. CLEVELAND & Co
apr 12 Booksellers 193 Essex street Salem.

NECK STOCKS, SCARFS, CRAVATS, TIES, ITALIAN CRAVATS.

A GOOD assortment of the above just reeeived
EDWARDS'S,
apr 5 14 Front staeet, Salem.

POOLE & JACOBS,

MANUFACTURERS OF

Boot and Shoe Linings, Skivers,

AND BINDINGS,

AND DEALERS IN

WOOL,

MAIN ST., DANVERS, MASS.

REMOVAL.

BOWDOIN'S DAGUERROTYPE ROOMS removed from Mechanic Hall, to the adjoining building above, 298 Essex street, where he has rooms built expressly for the purpose of taking Miniatures in any weather.

Mr. B. tenders his sincere thanks to his friends and the public, for their liberal patronage the past year, and respectfully solicits the continuance of public favor. He has recently purchased a large Achromatic instrument for the purpose of taking GROUPS and LARGE PICTURES, which enable him to give pictures of all sizes, equal to those taken in New York or Boston He has formed a connexion with an establishment in New York, from whence he receives all the new improvements, and materials connected with the Art, which will enable him to give better pictures for less prices than can be obtained in Boston.

Miniatures set in every variety of Lockets, Frames, Cases, &c.

☞Persons visiting Salem, and those about going to sea, can have a perfect likeness completed in a few minutes' time.

 Miniatures set in a neat Morocco Case for $1 50. Exhibition rooms open to visiters through the day.

Salem, March 15. tf

☞PAPER HANGINGS.☜

THE subscriber has made such an extensive arrangement with the principal manufacturers of Paper Hangings that he is enabled to sell them at the lowest prices, wholesale and retail. New patterns will be received every week as soon as they are out.

2800 rolls of new styles for the Spring trade have been received within a few days. Unusual inducements are thus offered to purchasers of House Paper of all descriptions, from the highest finished Satin to the most common Paper, (call and see for yourselves.) Country dealers supplied on the most reasonable terms. SAMUEL B. FOSTER,
30 Lawrence Place,

Near the Railroad Station. Be sure and enquire for Foster, 30 Lawrence Place, Salem. mch 15

LYNDE PLACE.

THE subscribers would respectfully inform the citizens of Danvers and vicinity, that they have just received and are now opening a full and complete assortment of

DRY GOODS,

adapted to the present season, comprising a splendid assortment of SHAWLS, embracing every quality and price.

DRESS GOODS,

in great variety, consisting of Corded Cashmeres Mousseline de Laines; Crape do do; Cashmere do; CALICOES of every description.

WHITE GOODS, LINENS, DOMESTICS, WOOLEN GOODS, etc. etc.

S. A. FARNSWORTH & CO.,
apr 5 1m 147 Essex street, Salem.

THE

Massachusetts Mechanic Association

HAVING AWARDED TO

GOVE, LOCKE & CO.,

and no one else, a Diploma for specimens of

The Best Ready Made Clothing!

Exhibited by them at the Mechanics' Fair in September last, must satisfy the community that the location of an establishment is of but little importance, and that the idea of being confined to a particular section of the city, in order to obtain a

GENTEEL GARMENT,

has been rendered obsolete, by the above named award, as without prejudice the award was made to those who deserved it Being convinced themselves, that their CUSTOM WORK has not been surpassed in any point of view, still they have been obliged to stem the current against the strongest prejudices, and have, by unremitted attention to the tastes and desires of their patrons, to a very considerable extent, overcome them, resulting in a successful trade, and encouraging them to prosecute the NEW ENGLAND BRANCH OF THEIR BUSINESS, with renewed vigor, and to devote a large share of their attention the present season, to the

Highest Grade of Custom Work!

Being now prepared with every facility adapted to the various classes in the community, they can furnish any style of Garment which their notion or fancy may dictate—aiming

to be in advance of any other

CLOTHING ESTABLISHMENT!

and being at all times supplied with materials of every description, they are prepared to turn out at the shortest notice

AS GOOD AND AS GENTEEL A GARMENT,

as can be obtained in the United States, and have entire confidence in making the assertion, having Cutters constantly

ENGAGED ON CUSTOM WORK:

who are inferior to none in this region, enabling them to assure those who have favored them with their patronage, that no pains will be spared to deserve a continuance of their support—and to those who lack confidence in a Clothing Establishment, because it is situated on

COMMERCIAL STREET,

they would say that a specimen of their work can be seen in nearly every section of the city, particularly on the backs of

THE MOST GENTEEL PEOPLE!

and to them they refer, in relation not only to the treatment which is universally tendered to them by all concerned in the

COMMERCIAL ARCADE!

but more especially in regard to the price as the Proprietors have by experience ascertained that they can furnish a

FIRST RATE GARMENT!

at a medium price, equal in every respect to those furnished up in town, at an exborbitant one. Their Stock of Clothing, adapted to the

SPRING SALES!

is far superior to any previous year, and the patronage of the public is respectfully invited, whether in pursuit of a single garment or otherwise, as their stock embraces every article essential or requisite to the wardrobe of a gentleman, while its magnitude enables them to supply COUNTRY DEALERS in any quantity at the shortest notice, and on the best terms.

WHOLESALE DEALERS!

located any where from Maine to Georgia, or even in Texas, can find at this concern an assortment of Wearing Apparel adapted to their sales, and are invited before concluding their

SPRING PURCHASES!

—TO CALL—

At No. 60 Commercial street,

BOSTON,

Sign of the Monument,—and visit the proprietors of

COMMERCIAL ARCADE,

GOVE, LOCKE & COMPANY.

Boston, March 29, 1845. 3m

WANTED.

10 GOOD COATMAKERS wanted immediately, to whom steady employment and good wages will be given.

Also—A BOY as an APPRENTICE, by

S. R. BOTT,
mch 15 No. 148 Essex Street, Salem.

GRASS SEED.

3000 POUNDS CLOVER SEED;
50 bags Red Top Seed;
150 bushels Herds Grass Seed;
Orchard Grass and White Clover Seed—for sale by

S. CHAMBERLAIN & SON,
march 15 Front Street, Salem.

GENTLEMEN'S SHIRTS, BOSOMS & DICKEYS.

A GOOD variety now opening at EDWARDS'S,
apr 6 14 Front street, Salem.

AUCTIONS.

LEATHER SALE.

BY DOWLEY & WHALL,

[Store Nos 21 and 22 Pearl street, Boston.]

THIS DAY April 12, at 10 1-2 o'clock, at store, without reserve.

2500 SIDES of Sole Leather, and a general assortment of Shoe Stock.

DOWLEY & WHALL,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, AND

AUCTIONEERS,

FOR THE SALE OF

Boots, Shoes, Leather and all kinds of Shoe Stock, at Private and Auction Sale,

Nos. 21 and 22 Pearl Street,

Levi A. Dowley, Joseph B. Whall, } BOSTON.

Cash liberally advanced on Boots, Shoes and Shoe Stock, for private and public sales.

—References—

Messrs. Jos. Whitney & Co., Josiah M. Jones, Esq., Spofford, Tileston, & Co., } Boston.
" Shepard Knapp, Esq., C. M. Leupp & Co., } New York.
" Haddock, Hazletine & Reed, Philadelphia
" Poland, Jenkins & Co., Baltimore.
" Friend, Humphrey & Co., Albany.

mch 29 1y

Great Bargains

ARE NOW BEING HAD AT THE

Washington Street Clothing Store, Salem.

GARMENTS of all description may be obtained at prices which cannot fail to give entire satisfaction.

Great care has been taken in the getting up of every garment, all of which is warranted equal, if not superior to any Clothing in the city.

The subscriber continues to take measures as formerly, and all Garments bespoken, will be made according to the wishes of the customer, and will guarantee both the style and fit.

☞BOY WANTED, as an Apprentice.

S. CHAMBERLAIN, Jr.

Salem, March, 15. tf

G W & E. CRAFTS,

BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURERS AND STATIONERS,

174 ESSEX STREET, SALEM,

HAVE constantly on hand, and will manufacture to order, all kinds of Blank Books, from the best paper, ruled to any pattern, and bound in a neat and substantial manner.

FINE STATIONERY,

of almost ever description, adapted for counting rooms and schools, comprising in part, Letter and Writing Papers, ruled and plain; Drawing Papers; Note Tissue and Wrapping Papers; Wafers; Sealing Wax; Seals and Steel Pens of every variety; Quills of every description; water Cups; sand boxes; writing fluids and inks; penknives; razors, &c.

PRINTING, RULING AND BINDING,

Printing of shop bills, cards, bill heads, catalogues, &c. executed in the neatest manner and on the best terms. Ruling, to any pattern desired, at short notice. Binding, of every description, executed with despatch.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

A constant supply of school books, of the best editions, together with every kind of School Stationery. Also, all kinds of miscellaneous books furnished at the lowest rates. mch 15

SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

Rich Jewelry and Fancy Goods,

HAVE removed to the New Store, No. 291 Essex street, (next above Mechanic Hall) where they will keep constantly for sale Gold Finger Rings, Breast Pins, Bracelets, Lockets, Keys, Gold and Silver Pencil Cases, Silver Thimbles, Silver and Plated Table and Tea Spoons, Butter Knives, Silver Plated and Brittania Ware, Shell, Horn, and Ivory Combs, Pocket Books, Purses, &c., &c.

N. B. All kinds of Jewelry repaired in a superior manner and warranted. Old Gold or Jewelry, made over or exchanged for new.

S. & C. having acquired a thorough knowledge of the business in New York, as well as our success for the past five years in this city, will, we feel assured, enable us to execute with approbation any orders entrusted to our care.

☞Thankful for past patronage, we solicit a continuance of the same. tf March 15.

HARRISON'S REMEDY

FOR THE PILES.

THIS is an ointment prepared by the undersigned, and has been so thoroughly tested in so many different cases that I never hesitate to warrant relief to those who will give it a fair trial, observing the directions around each box which give a plain treatise on the disease and full instructions as to diet mode of cure, &c. One application at night never fails to relieve the greatest pain and anguish. I am ready to refer to numerous individuals who have proved this Remedy to be the safest, surest, speediest and cheapest

CURE FOR THE PILES.

My agent in Exeter writes thus: "the Pile Remedy which you left me is all sold, please send me soon a further supply, as a number of persons in this town think very highly of it. N. GILMAN"

MORE TESTIMONY.

Salem, Aug. 6. Mr. Harrison: The box of ointment which I had from you has worked like a charm—I have used it only one night, and I am cured I had used Hays' Liniment as I stated to you, with no benefit but rather was worse, it causing more inflammation. Yrs, J. W.

BLEEDING PILES CURED.

Mr. Harrison—Having given your Peristaltic Lozenges and Pile Remedy a fair trial, I have the satisfaction to inform you that they have operated wonderfully in my case. I had not been able for months to do any work at my trade, owing to exhaustion from bleeding, but I now feel myself cured. The severe pain which I had in my stomach is gone, and my strength is fast returning. I had used various remedies to no purpose, until I tried your medicine. I can also state that Capt. Benj. Ireson of this town has also experienced great benefit from your Remedy. I cheerfully recommend the medicine to all suffering with that distressing complaint—the Piles.

Edward H. Lewis.

Lynn, Sept. 27, 1844.

For sale at 256 Essex street, by the Proprietor,

J. S. HARRISON Jr.

Agents—in Danvers, S. PROCTOR, Jr., Marblehead—E. Arnold; Lynn—Ladd and Holder; Beverly—Clarke; Newburyport—C. Whipple; Andover—Amos Abbott; Topsfield—Bixby and Merriam; Haverhill—Nichol; Boston—Ransom & Stevens, Tompkins, Southers and Fowle.

mch 15 6m

JOB PRINTING,

OF ALL KINDS

EXECUTED AT THE COURIER OFFICE,

WITH DESPATCH,

And on the most favourable Terms.

THE BEST COWS.

You cannot be absolutely certain, when you purchase heifers, that you will have good cows; but by close attention, you may acquire the art of judging pretty accurately whether they will prove good. The first point is the udder; if this is not capacious, or if it has not the power of becoming so, she will never be a great milker. Then the colour of the skin is important, if you would have rich milk; it should be yellow, or rather a mahogany-colour; large teats, not standing close together, are a good sign. These are the most important points.

As to the form of the cow, you will not choose a large head and horns, for it costs too much to support them; nor long legs, to make you hold the pail up from the ground, and to require high fences. Long legs require too much support; they are not good even for travelling. Choose short legged animals, whenever you have the choice, whether cows oxen, horses or hogs. Choose slender necks and tapering tails; straight backs and broad brisk ets, for such feed better, and are less liable to diseases. The cow's body should be large in comparison with her head and limbs but it is not an object to keep very large cows or oxen or horses on our farms, as a general rule.—Middle-sized cows and those below it, you will almost always find better milkers than large cows are.

In regard to the colour of the body, a red or yellow, or yellow-brindle is as indicative as any of a good rich milker. You cannot always determine, by any external marks whether your heifer will prove a good cow. After trying her one Summer, you can tell better, and you can then turn her off for beef if you choose. On purchasing you will have some regard to colour as a matter of fancy. Nobody wants a black or a white one; and though parti-coloured cows are endurable, no wise man buys a skunk coloured horse for his own keeping.

Mild and gentle cows are better than irritable animals, and will be more ready to yield their milk. By close scrutiny you can determine in some degree by the countenance and the motions of a young heifer, whether she is naturally docile; yet very much depends on her breaking, her treatment and education during the first season. Vicious treatment will make any animal vicious; still there is a difference of character independent of education. Examine the eye and the face of the heifer; a large mild eye, with a yellow circle or hole around it, is a good indication. The face should nor be large, and the bones should all chest is evidence of good lungs and of a hardy animal. The hips should be well spread, for obvious reasons.

By proper attention to selecting and breeding we may just as well have a race of cows that will yield ten pounds of butter per week as five pounds. We know of no stock superior of our Devon cattle; such as we meet with in all parts of New England.—[Ploughman.

BUTTER MAKING.

One word on butter-making, if you please. Well do I remember what a task it was to churn, when I was a boy. It was my lot to churn, and one cold day in winter I was pounding away at the churn, and sweating as I had for many a time before. 'Poor boy,' said my mother,' let me take hold, it is too hard work. I wish some way could be devised to make our butter come quicker.' My father came along, and, hearing it, observed—'Sarah, it is too hard work, indeed; and I have heard something about scalding milk, as a good plan:—let us try it after this.' And so scalding was agreed upon. My mother was particular and never missed to do it. The cream rolled over, thick as sole-leather, and when we came to the churning, it was, comparatively, nothing at all. About fifteen minutes would generally complete the business. Ever after this our milk was scalded, both winter and summer. But what is very strange, although my father, and my mother and all the family told of our good success not a soul of a farmer around us would try the plan; nay, all seemed to disbelieve its truth, and followed on in the old way of tugging for hours and hours to fetch their butter, white indeed as lard; while my mother's was rich, delicios and of a good color; and I have never failed to practice the above mode of butter-making since I kept house myself, and the agitation necesssry to bring the butter is always of short duration.

Watering Fruit Trees. There is great danger in over-watering. The newly transplanted tree will generally, from its innate vigor, push its leaves well, and until they are fully expanded, retain their freeness; then they call for a greater supply of moisture than the atmosphere usually furnishes, and in such cases copious watering of the roots is usually resorted to, which excites them to over-action, followed, of course, by a corresponding debility. The proper way is to water over the top two or three times a day with a watering pot or syringe.—[Western Farmer and Gardener.

MISCELLANY.

From a French Writer.

INTELLIGENCE OF BIRDS.

"In autumn, at the time when myriads of birds quit the north to approach nearer to the sun, let your bark skim the surface of the Mississippi. When you see on the banks of the river, two trees, the tops of which are higher than the rest, raise your eyes, the eagle is there, perched on the summit of one of them; his eye sparkles and seems to burn like fire, he contemplates attentively all the visible extent of the waters, he observes, waits and listens to all the noises which are heard and destinguishes them. The sound of the antelope, which scarcely touches the leaves does not escape him. On the opposite tree the female sits as a sentinel; every now and then her cry is heard, as if exhorting the male to have patience; he answers by flapping his wings, a general movement of his body, and a screeching of which the noise and the discordance resembles the laugh of a maniac. Then he again becomes quiet; from his immobility and silence you might think him a statue. Ducks and water fowls of all kinds, fly in compact crowds, the eagle scorns any such prey, and this disdain saves them from death. A sound which the wind brings down the stream at length strikes the ear of the two robbers; it is the swan. The female warns the male by a cry composed of two notes; the whole body of the eagle trembles, he is about to set off. The swan advances like a vessel floating in the air, its snow white neck extended forward; its eyes sparkling with anxiety, the quickened movement of its wings hardly suffice to sustain the weight of its body. It approaches slowly, a devoted victim.

A war cry is heard, the engle darts off with the rapidity of a falling star, the swan sees its executioner, lowers its neck, makes a half circle, and manoeuvres in the agony of its fear to escape from death. One only chance remains for it, that of plunging into the stream; but the eagle foresees the stratagem, he forces his prey to remain in the air by keeping himself constanly below it, and threatening to strike it in the belly, or beneath the wings. The depth of combination, which man might envy, never fails to attain its end; the swan becomes weakened and loses all hope of safety, but her enemy then fears that she will fall into the river and by a blow of his, talons, strikes his victim beneath the wings, and casts it obliquely upon the bank.

"So much power, address, activity, and prudence have achieved the conquest. You could not see without horror the triumph of the eagle; he dances upon the body, of the dying swan, he flaps his wings, he screeches with joy; the last convulsions of the bird intoxicate him, he raises his bald head towards the sky, and his eyes inflamed with triumph are as red as blood; the female joins him, together they turn the swan over, with their beaks and gorge themselves with its blood."

In this terrible drama intelligence is united to instinct; it is impossible not to recognise here attention, observation, and reflection; a foresight which arises from experience, combinations which suppose a memory, an intelligence which satisfies a passion, a language which awakens ideas, and a will which directs them.

PEDLARS.

The following, from the Mercantile Journal, is calculated for the meridian of Boston, but will answer without much variation for all the New England States:

The Pedlars have Come! As the streets become passable and the walking improves, the city becomes the resort of unnumbered peripatetic merchants, [with packs on their backs,] whose small trade is an annoyance immeasurably great, especially in washing and ironing days, when the help are called from wringing their clothes to ringing door-bell to receive some nostrum cure-all, some gilded pill or gilded frame, or a neat packet of pins, needles, wax, or—or—or—directed "to the Lady of the House, and to be called for"—thus making assurance doubly sure of another pulling of the wires and leaving of the wash-tub. It is too bad! that these itinerants, who pay no printer for advertising, no shop or stall rent,—who do not ever foot up a poll-tax here,—should thus tax Boston.

Home Affections.—The heart has memories that cannot die. The rough rubs of the world cannot obliterate them. They are memories of home—early home. There is magic in the very sound. There is the old tree under which the light hearted boy swung on many a summer day—yonder the river in which he learned to swim—there the house in which he knew a parent's love and found a parents protection! Now there is the room in which he romped with brother or sister long since, alas! laid in the grave to which he must soon be gathered, overshadowed by yon old church, whither with a joyous troop like himself he has often followed his parents to worship with and hear the good old man who gave him to God in baptism. Why even the very school-house, associated in youthful days with thoughts of ferule and task, now comes back to bring pleasant remembrances of many an attachment there formed—many an occasion that called forth generous exhibitions of the traits of human nature. There he learned some of his heart's best emotions. There, perchance, he first met the being, who by her love and tenderness in after life has made home happier even than that which his childhood knew.—There certain feeling of humanity—and those too among the best that can find an appropriate place for their exercise only by one's one own fire-side. There is a sacredness in the privacy of the spot, which it were a species of desecration to violate. He who seeks wantonly to invade it, is neither more nor less than a villian: and hence there exists no surer test of the debasement of morals in a commtnity, than the dispositon to tolerate, in any mode, the man who disregards the sanctities of private life. In the turmoils of the world, let there be at least one spot where the poor man may find affection that is disinterested—where he may indulge a confidence that is not likely to be abused!

Mr Henry Smith, a respectable farmer of Duplin county, N C. was murdered by one of his slaves on the 27th ult. The slave attacked him in a field, and beat in his skull with a club. The murderer is now in jail at Kenansville.

LAWS OF MASSACHUSETTS.

An Act concerning Bail in Criminal Cases

Be it enacted, &c as follows:—Sec. 1. Whenever any person under indictment for any offence bailable by law, shall be arrested after the adjournment of the court in which the same is triable, any justice of court, or any standing or special commissioner, appointed for such purpose by the same court, shall be authorized to fix the amount of bail and receive bail, in the same manner as the court in which the indictment is pending might do.

Sec. 2. Whenever any court or magistrate shall, in pursuance of law, take any recognisance of any person, either, with or without surety, binding such person to appear at any term of any court, to answer to any charge against him, or to prosecute any appeal or bill of exceptions, it shall be the duty of such court or magistrate so to frame the condition of such recognizance as to bind such person, not only personally to appear at the term of the court so exbressed, and abide the order and sentence of the court, but also, that he will in like manner personally appear at any subsequent term of said court, to which the same may be continued, if not previously surrendered and discharged, and so from term to term until the final decree, sentence or order of the court thereon, and shall abide such final sentence, order or decree of the court and not depart without leave.

Sec. 3. When any person under recognizance in any criminal prosecution, either to appear and answer, or to prosecute an appeal or bill of exceptions, shall fail to appear for either of the purposes aforesaid, either at the term at which the said recognizance, is returnable or at any adjournment thereof, or at any succeeding term of said court, to which such case may be lawfully continued, his default may be recorded, and the obligation of such person, and his sureties, shall be deemed forfeited by such failure, and the like proceedings may be had thereon as in other cases for the recovery of the penalty of recognizances taken in criminal cases.

Approved by the Governor, March 20, 1845.

Resolve concerning the Transmission of State Documents.

Resolved, That the secretary of the commonwealth be, and he is hereby instructed, under the direction of his excellency the governor, to obtain and forward books and other documents containing information respecting the literary, charitable and other institutions of that commonwealth, as applications for the same are received from time to time from the authorities of other States, or of foreign countries.

Approved by the Governor, March 20, 1845.

Fales' Cathartic, or Vegetable PURGATIVE LOZENGES.

Though prepared from a great many Vegetable substances, are as palateable and pleasant to eat as any other Confectionary Compound.

This preparation is decidedly the best among all the known purgative preparations; for while its operation is as sure as Salts, Castor Oil, Calomel and Julop, or any other cathartic medicine, it has the advantage over all in being pleasant to eat, while other cathartics are generally disagreeable to take. Price, 25 cents per box with full directions, and may be found at the Depository. No. 96 Commercial street, Boston.

FALES' WORM LOZENGES,

Are a safe and sure remedy for worms. Children love them. They act like a charm in removing the symptoms such as starting in sleep, grating the teeth paleness about the mouth and nose, occasional sickness at stomach, precarious appetite, swelled bowels, and general feverish habit, The child falls into a quiet sleep, and the worms are stupified and expelled, and the child, as far as heard from, in every instance directions; sold at Commercial street, Boston,

FALES' COUGH LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common Colds and Coughs, Whooping Cough, Inflamation of the Throat and Lungs, in the Croup or Hives, and more certain to act satisfactory than the celebrated Hive Syrup. The most happy effect is obtained in a few moments, the symptoms disappear and the disease is broken up by the magical effect of these Lozenges. Full directions accompany each box, are found at the Depositopy, 96 Commercial staeel, Boston.

FALES' DYSENTERY LOZENGES,

Are a safe and agreeble temedy for Dysentery, Diarrhœa and Bowel Complaints of children. Particular attention must be paid to the directions which are on each box.

FALES' CAMPHOR LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common and sick head ache, and where there is a sense of tightness or weight over the eyes, in erruptive diseases, such as Measles and Small Pox. Also in Mania, Epilepsy, Melancholy, Hysteria, in St. Vitus Dance, and in all eases of languor and oppession of the Vital powers, may be taken with safety by women and children in all conditions. Full directions accompany each box.

FALES' CYPRIAN HAIR TONIC,

Is now so extensively known and justly celebrated that further comment upon it will be useless, we can say, however, that among the many thousands who have purchassed the Tonic, in this and other countries, none have returned with complaints, while thousands have expressed not only their approbation, but their wonder and admiration on beholding its effects. A few bottles only can be had at 96 Commercial street, Boston.

CLEAR OUT YOUR RATS.

The gnawing and antics of these destructive creatures can be hushed forever in your house and store, if you will procure a box of the genuine.

MADAGASCAR RAT EXTERMINATOR,

and use it according to direction. You cannot depend upon it unless obtained at J. J. FALES' No. 96 Commercial street Boston.

—Agents—

Salem, J. S. Harrison, J. Stone, jr., H. Whipple, S Badger, jr; Lynn, J. Moulton jr., Geo. Lummus, Wm. Cogswell, Wm. L Ladd; Swampscot, W. Thompson; Marblehead, E. Arnold. Wm. Stacey; Danvers, S. Proctor, Jos Shed, New Mills, H. S Pope, A. P Perley & Co, C. Simonds, Calder & Foster; Topsfield, B. P. Adams; Beverly. A N Clark. ep6m mch 29

SPRING FASHIONS

JUST RECEIVED.

The subscriber has just received a large and fashionable stock of Spring Goods, consisting of French, English and American

BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES AND DOESKINS.

Also—A rich assortment of VESTINGS, of the latest patterns, which will be made into Garments in the most fashionable style, on reasonable terms.

Also received—a nice lot of GENTLEMEN'S SCARFS and STOCKS of the latest styles.

Also—GLOVES, SUSPENDERS, SHIRT BOSOMS and COLLARS.

Also—Gentlemen's DRESSING GOWNS constantly on hand. JOHN DOLAN,

mch 15 275 Essex street, Salem.

MICKLEFIELD & CO.,

KEEP CONSTANTLY ON HAND AT THE

CITY MILLS, SALEM,

Nos. 31, 33, 35, 37, 39 Mill Street,

BRANCH, MOTTLED AND PLAIN

VENEERS,

CEDAR AND MAHOGANY

Boards, Plank and Joist.

Also—GRAIN and MEAL.

Wholesale and Retail on the most reasonable terms, for Cash or approved credit.

Also—Circular, Veneer and other

Sawing and Turning.

They also GRIND all kinds of Grain.

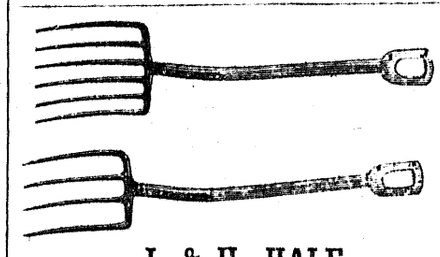
All orders entrusted to their care will be attended to with punctuality and care.

JOHN JEWETT,
T. H. PRIME,
mch 15 J. A. KENNY.

ADAMS & RICHARDSON,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC



HARDWARE.

Manufacturers' Agents for the Sale of

Cut Nails, White Lead, Sheet Lead and Lead Pipe.

NO. 207 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.

Joseph Adams,
C. M. Richardson,
march 15 tf

J. & H. HALE,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

HARD WARE GOODS AND CUTLERY,

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC

HOUSE KEEPING ARTICLES AND FANCY GOODS,

Agricultural Tools and Ploughs,

PLOUGH CASTINGS, FRICTION ROLLERS AND CRANKS.

Iron and Copper Pumps and Lead Pipe,

WINDOW GLASS,

CAMPHENE,

CAMPHENE LAMPS, HANGING, SIDE AND ASTRAL—A GREAT VARIETY OF STYLES,

Cut Glass, Britannia, Brass, Bronze and Mantle Lamps.

CARPENTER'S TOOLS,

HOUSE TRIMMINGS,

Shoe Makers' Tools, Nails, Thread and Pegs

BOILER DOORS AND OVEN MOUTHS,

Furnaces, Cast Iron Hollow Ware, Tubs, Pails, Mats, Cut Nails, Emery, Zinc, Lead, &c.

No. 215 Essex Street, SALEM, Mass.

march 15 tf

EDWARDS' LINIMENT.

For Sprains, Cuts, Bruises, Stiffened or Swelled Joints, Chilblains, Chapped Hands Numbness and Rheumatism.

This invaluable artidle is now for the first time offered to the public, after having been in use for twenty years, with unusual and astonishing success within the circle of the proprietor's immediate influence. It has received the unqualified approbation of some eminent Physicians, and also Mariners and Mechanics.

It is also recommended, and more than a thousand cases might be cited, when it has been used for Horses in cases of lameness or when galled, &c. &c.

The public are assured that in offering the above we of quackery, but on the contrary it has done great and lasting good in its efficacious power and healing qualities.

As this medicine has been so long known in Salem and its vicinity, and as there are many that would avail themselves of it if they knew where it could be obtained, therefore the subscriber would now offer it to the public. It will be found always on hand and prepared by the subscriber.

BENJ EDWARDS,
No. 14 Front street, Salem, Mass.

Wanted—trusty and worthy Agents in the neighboring towns and vicinity.

Wholesale and Retail Agents.

DANIELS, POOR & CO., Danvers, Mass.
Benjamin F. Browne, Salem Mass.
Smith & Fowle, Boston, "
H. F. Skerry, Bangor, Me.
Charles Whipple, Bookseller, Newburyport.
Wm. R. Preston, Portsmouth, N. H.
John S. Caldwell, Belfast. Me.
Wm. H. Palmer, Lynnfield.
Joseph Edwards, jr., Lynn.
Charles Edwards, Marblehead.
Wm. Edwards, Beverly.
March 15, 1845. tf

A FARM FOR SALE.

Situated in Byfield Parish, Newbury, 4 1-2 miles from Newburyport, 1 1-4 miles from the meeting-house, 1-4 mile from Dummer Academy, and 3 1-2 miles from the Rowley depot, and is on the stage road from Newburyport to Georgetown, Andover and Lowell, containing 81 acres of Land, enclosed by a good stone wall, in good repair.

The buildings consist of a good Dwelling House, 2 stories high, containing 5 lower rooms, 8 chambers a milk room, a brick milk cellar, with a good cellar under the whole house. Also, a Wood House and Grain Chamber attached to the house. It has 2 good Barns, in good repair, a Chaise and Waggon House, and Work Shop, with a Store Chamber.

There is on the Farm a great variety of Apple Trees, consisting of Baldwins, Russets, Greenings, Gardner Sweetings, &c., from which was gathered over 250 bbls the last season. Half an acre is enclosed for a Garden, containing a choice collection of peach, pear and plum trees, red and white Currants, Grape Vines, Strawberry and Quince Bushes.

Water is conducted into the house by a pipe from a never-failing spring of soft water, precluding the necessity of a cistern.

Also, a large Ox Waggon and Cart, both of which have Iron axletrees, and every kind of farming utensil, together with the stock of said farm. For further particulars inquire on the premises of

EBENEZER STEDMAN, or
mch 29 tf W. D. NORTHEND, Danvers.

REMOVAL.

Shepard & Burley—Auctioneers—respectfully inform their friends and the public that they have removed to the spacious store recently occupied by Geo. C. Varney & Co., No. 31 Lawrence Place, Front street, where they will continue a General Auction and Commission Business.

Regular sales of Clothing, Dry and Fancy Goods, every Wednesday and Saturday.

Consignments of merchandize respectfully solicited

Salem, March 15. 1m

REMOVAL.

DR. J. A. ROBINSON,

SURGEON DENTIST,

SALEM,

Would respectfully give notice that he has removed from his old stand, opposite the City Hall, to No. 20 Washington street, recently occupied by A. E. Phillips, where he is ready to perform all operation, in Dentistry, in a most thorough and workmanlike manner.

His experience and success in inserting whole sets either by atmospheric pressure or springs, enables him to furnish them at rates which cannot fail to suit those in want of an article of superior quality.

His method of inserting Teeth, both singly and on plate, with or without Gums, has been found to be satisfactory and successful as combining beauty of finish and adaptation, with all the requisites of insastication and articulation.

Particular attention paid to filling Teeth so as to render them serviceable for many years, and also to the regulation of Children's Teeth.

N. B. For sale as above, a first rate article of TOOTH POWDER. 6m mch 15

HENRY WHIPPLE,

At his Book, Chart and Stationery Store,
No. 190 Essex Street,

Has for sale a general assortment of Books, in the various branches of Literature, all of which he offers for sale on the most reasonable terms.

PERIODICALS—Nearly all that are published in the United States, are regularly received.

H. W. is agent for Sherman's Cough, Camphor, and Worm Lozenges; Scarpa's Kresoote, Acoustic Oil, for the cure of Deafness, $2 00; Dr. Scudder's Genuine Acoustic Oil, for Deafness $1; Phelps's Tomato Pills; Woodbury's Vegetable Pills; Dean's Rheumatic Pills; Hedge's Rheumatic Plaster; Dyott's Anti-Bilious Pills; Gordak's Jelly of Pomegranate; Matthew's Unrivalled Corn Salve; Dr. Robertson's Vegetable Nervous Cordial; Dr. Robertson's Stomatic Elixir of Health, and various other medicines.

PAPER HANGINGS.

In a few days will be received as above a large assortment of new patterns of Papers, from 12 cts to 25 cts. a roll and new patterns of Philadelphia Papers and Borders. Salem, March 15.

Book, Stationery & Music Store.

WM. S. CLEVELAND & CO.,

[Successors of John P. Jewett, & Co.]

Opposite the Mansion House, No. 193 Essex Street,—SALEM.

HAVE CONSTANTLY ON HAND,

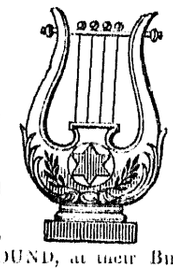
A COMPLETE assortment of Standard and Miscellaneous Books.

BLANK BOOKS, of every description.

Fine STATIONERY, Paper, Quills, &c.

Steel Pens, Ink, &c.

Parallel Rules, Wafers, &c.



SCHOOL BOOKS.—Traders from the country and School Committees, furnished with School Books, by the hundred or dozen, at the lowest prices.

All the popular School Books in quantities, on hand.

NEW PUBLICATIONS received as they issue from the press.

Ruled and Plain CAP and POT PAPERS, Ruled and Plain LETTER PAPER, Wrapping and Cartridge Paper, by the ream.

VIOLINS, FLUTES,
CLARINETS,
FIFES, &c.
Bass Viol and Violin Strings,

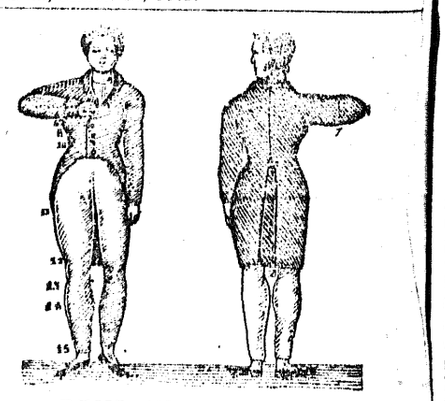
for sale by the bundle or single, at New York prices. Together with a complete assortment of Musical Instruments.

BOOKS REBOUND, at their Bindery Establishment. march 15

S. R. BOTT,

DRAPER & TAILOR,



No. 148 Essex Street, Salem,

Takes this method of informing the public of Danvers and vicinity that he has for sale one of the richest and BEST selected assortments of Broadcloths, Cassimeres & Vestings ever before offered in Salem. The Stock is of the latest Spring and Summer styles, and cannot be surpassed by any establishment in the city, which will be sold by the yard, or made into Garments, in a style that CANNOT be surpassed in this or any other city.

Strangers from the country would do well to call at this establishment, as they select their Goods with the most perfect confidence, that each article is as good in quality, and as low in price as can be obtained at any other store.

N. B. The report of Fashions received every month.

Salem, March 15, 1845.

BENJAMIN EDWARDS,

DRAPER & TAILOR,

No. 14 FRONT STREET, SALEM.

Garments Cut and Made to order, and Fashionably, and warranted to give entire satisfaction

Constantly on hand, a good assortment of

BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES, AND VESTINGS.

Also—Neck Stocks, Italian Cravats, Scarfs, Shirt Bosoms, Collars, Feetings, Braces, Umbrellas, Hair and Clothes Brushes, Cologne Water, Wallets,

and other articles necessary for Gentlemen's use.

Grateful for the very liberal patronage which has heretofore been bestowed upon the establisment, he hopes by care and attention to business to merit a continuance.

Any order for Goods in the Tailoring Line, attended to with fidelity and despatch.

All Garments Repaired and Cleansed Cheap.

Any of the above articles if not on hand when called for, will be furnished at short notice.

mch 15 tf

DANVERS COURIER.

VOL. 1. DANVERS, (Mass.) SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 19, 1845. NUMBER 5.

THE DANVERS COURIER
IS PUBLISHED BY
GEORGE R. CARLTON,
EVERY SATURDAY MORNING,
A few doors North of Mackintire's Hotel,
CENTRAL ST.—SOUTH DANVERS.

Terms—$1 50 if paid in advance, or $2 00, if not paid within one month of the time of subscribing.

The carriers are not allowed to sell any copies of the Courier. Single copies may be obtained at the office, at 5 cents each.

Advertisements will be inserted on favorable terms.

POETRY.

FOR THE COURIER.

TO A DYING FRIEND.

Loved one, thou art passing away from this earth,
To a brighter land, and a holier birth;
Away from these shores thou art taking thy flight,
To the spirit's home, the far regions of light.

But, wilt thou not stoop from those fair, fadeless bowers,
And smile on the scenes of thy youth's rosy hours?
O wilt thou not think on the home ye now love,
When thou leav'st it to dwell with bright angels above?

Beloved, if thy spirit may still linger nigh,
When pulseless thy heart, and death-sealed is thine eye,—
When plumed for its flight is thy soul's spotless wing.
Then hover o'er me, and thy freedom notes sing.

I'll watch thy cold form when its essence has fled,
And sit by thee still when thou'rt named with the dead:
I'll kiss thy pale lips and cold passionless brow;
O smile on me then, as thou smil'st on me now.

And when thy dear dust is from hence borne away,
And love's last look rests on thy cold, soulless clay;
When we give thee to earth, and hope even weeps,
O tell me that hour that thy dust only sleeps.

For Oh! I'd not think, though all joyous above,
That death e'en can break the strong tie of our love;
When I mourn thee, and shed o'er thy mem'ry grief's tear,
O then let me feel thou art lingering near.

I'll look for thy form, when the day's blushing dawn
Tints with roseate hue the sky, ocean and lawn:
I'll list thy soft voice, when the sweet-scented gale
Sighs through the dark wood with sad, low moaning wail.

When twilight shades fall, O then leave the bright band,
And whisper to me of the bless'd spirit land:
At eve's dewy hour, tune thy golden-stringed lyre,
And sing me some song of the Seraphim choir.

When closed are the eyes of the children of men,
I'll visit thy grave if thou'lt speak with me then;
I'll kneel by, o'er thy dust, when the stars only see,
If bending from high thou'lt hold converse with me.

Yet if thus we meet not, then come while I sleep,
Thy angel wing spread, and love's bless'd vigils keep;
In dreams let me fancy my hand clasped in thine,
Again round my form then thy arms fondly twine.

But O if indeed thou art known no more here,
When for aye close thine eyes on all thou hold'st dear:
Yet remember me there, when I come to that shore
Where the lov'd ever dwell, by death severed no more.

LIZETTE.

COMMUNICATION.

Mr. Courier,—I am a man somewhat advanced in years, of quiet countenance and manners, and if there is any such thing as realizing the time-honored injunction "gnothi seanton," I may add, of a temper which has little poison in it.—I am not much known to the bustling world around me, and take but little active part in what most disturbs the tranquility of people in general. So that although I feel a philosophical interest in temporal affairs, my neighbours never think of asking my advice, or of being influenced by any of my opinions. I am a lone man, Mr. Courier, with no wife and children to plague and delight me. I have not even a single crony with whom I can chat away an idle hour, and to whom I can impart any of my thoughts or feelings. If murder must out, I am an old bachelor. Now, although a misjudging world is inclined to think that this species of humanity is what, in the play, Achilles called Thersites, "the cone of envy and the crusty batch of nature," believe me, this same world, "the picture of what it seemest and the idol of idiot worshippers," (for so Thersites retorted upon the Grecian hero,) most grossly lies. For all that I am a bachelor, and know not the mysteries of matrimony, nor am disturbed of nights by sick babies, nor have taken lessons in the disciplinary school of house-keeping; I am still a good sort of man as the world goes, have a kindly heart, take to little children and domestic animals, delight in reading poetry and going an angling, adore "good goddess Nature," and wish well to all my fellow creatures.

Thus situated and so constituted, I often, as you may well suppose, feel the want of some one to gossip with, some one to whom I can confide, with an anticipation of sympathy, whatever pleasant thought or sweet sentiment happens to tickle my brain or cheer my heart. For you must know that a happy idea or grateful emotion loses half its point and charm if you feel that it is to be kept locked up in your own breast. So far as respects this unwillingness to keep a good thing to one's self, all mankind are women. The difference between the sexes in the matter of secrets generally, I take to be, that women find it more difficult to keep a secret which involves in itself anything bad, or as we usually phrase it, slander. It may be, for God save me from undervaluing "the last, best gift!—" it may be that this apparent peculiarity results, not from their keener relish for naughty discourse, but because their "eyes and ears,

Two traded pilots 'twixt the dangerous shores
Of will and judgement,"

are so much keener and greedier than those of men, that they perforce hear and see more of evil as well as good, so that if they keep afloat a proportionately equal share of the former, it is enough to fasten upon them as a sex the name of scandal-mongers.

But, Mr. Courier, I am losing the thread of my epistle. I was telling you how I felt the want of some one to talk to and with, some intellectual confidante. Now this and what went before it, was but the bow before the speech, the tuning of the instrument preliminary to the playing of the music. Or to speak in plain words, for I have a most feline way of trifling with an idea before I pounce upon it, I want to ask you, good Mr. Courier, to be my intellectual Pythias. If you shall accede to my proposal, I intend occasionally, as the humor strikes me, to give you such of my notions as express a wish to leave their cerebral habitation and take an airing in the world. I design no set essays, no formal lectures, but to write in a rambling, gossiping way of whatever happens to float on the passing current of my thoughts.

As I have already taxed your patience, I will now only say a few words about the weather, as is the wont of strangers when first introduced to each other, and then leave you till another time. As I sit writing in my snug little parlor, on the eighth day of April, in this good year of our Lord, with my dog Ginger and my tabby cat snoring away at opposite ends of the hearth-rug and respectively dreaming of rabbits and rats, a wintry wind is howling dismally up the chimney, and the storm and snow are beating with bitter fury against my casement. God help the poor little robin-redbreasts whose gushing song, as it greeted ne'yester-morning, seemed sent up in praise to him who called them into being. His hand, which tempers the wind to the shorn lamb, can alone shelter them from the biting blast. And so this is the Spring.—Milton must have been joking when he wrote about "The frolic wind, that breathes the Spring, Zephyr, with Aurora playing," otherwise this same very frolicksome wind should have figured in Il Penseroso rather than in L'Allegro. And what in the Deuce could Gray have been dreaming about when he wrote his beautiful ode to Spring.

"Lo where the rosy bosomed hours,
Fair Venus' train appear,
Disclose the long expected flowers
And wake the purple year.
* * * * *
While, whispering pleasure as they fly,
Cool Zephyrs through the clear blue sky
Their gathered fragrance fling."

North-Easters are "cool zephyrs" with a vengeance, and snow and sleet are hardly what we understand by "gathered fragrance." I think, Mr. Courier, that our ideas of the months and seasons, derived from English poetry, are more a matter of fancy than of fact. And in England too as well as here, there seems to exist on this point a great discrepancy between living, real Nature, and Nature as described in the verses of her worshippers. I am inclined to think that in these modern times the seasons have grown "backward," I mean, of course, the warm seasons—that the panting Horses of the Sun, wearied in their never-ceasing race, begin to lag, and the Spring and Summer come now with tardier steps than was their wont three hundred years ago. Of a certainty, in this day, and at this time of the year, the flowers bloom less brightly, and less gayly sing the birds upon the banks of gentle Avon, than when Will Shakespeare wrote of "well-apparel'd April"

"coming so sweet
To show how costy Summer was at hand."

Nor is the month of May, and May morning with its posies, what once they were, when all the lads and lassies of Merry England frolicked and danced around "the painted pole" and played St. George and the Dragon. To recur for a moment to April, I think Iris in the Tempest hit the right nail on the head, when this "many colour'd messenger" talked of "Spongy April." I suppose by "Spongy" was meant what Sam Slick calls "juicy." But I am running on at too great length, and must draw to a close. Hoping that Providence will watch over the poor and houseless through this dismal night, I subscribe myself, Mr. Courier,

Yours to command,
NEWMAN NOGGS.

ORIGINAL.

THE HAUNTED STEEPLE.

BY W. L. M.

There existed many years ago in a quiet little village in the eastern part of Massachusetts, an old meeting-house to which was attached a tower and steeple. It happened that this old house was built not many years after the Witchcraft delusion, and the minds of the simple-hearted villagers were strongly tinctured with both the love and fear of the marvellous. There were some strange circumstances attending the erection of the house and steeple,—for they were not built at the same time,—which were calculated to awaken superstitious fears among such a population. At the time appointed for raising the tower a sudden tempest arose, and so powerful was it, that it scattered about the lighter materials of the building, and sent the men of the village back to their homes. Another day was appointed, and their work was hardly begun before a tremendous thunder-storm, attended by hail and rain, again interrupted their labors—and again they were forced to abandon the work. It was on this afternoon too, that the minister's cow was found dead in the field, having been struck by lightning while under a tree for shelter. But at length the steeple was raised. It however, was still unfinished, when one of the carpenters fell from its top to the ground, a ghastly and mangled corpse! A deep gloom for a long time hung over the village in consequence of this event, but still the work went on, and at last it was finished.

As years passed on, these events appeared to occupy the minds of the people, and as they dwelt constantly on each sad particular, they always connected it with the raising of the steeple, which was in this manner fast gaining a bad reputation wholly aside from any fault of its own. Strange noises had also been heard, and flashes of red light had been seen in the tower.

Subsequent events served to awaken further suspicions against this unfortunate structure, as will be seen by attending to a conversation which took place many years after in the cottage of Joseph Stacy.

But before the conversation is related, we must first inform the reader who Jo. Stacy was and where he resided, with such other particulars as will serve to elucidate our story.

The meeting-house we have been speaking of was situated on a plat of land bounded on two sides by two roads, and a small stream of water running on the other two sides, marked the remaining boundary. On this spot of land, which seemed to belong to nobody in particular, there also stood a small school house—a gun-house containing two brass sixpounders belonging to an artillery company, a blacksmith's shop, and lastly, the little cottage and barn of Joseph Stacy. The land where the cottage stood, as we have before intimated, did not belong to him or to any body else but he seemed to belong to the land and took the care of everything upon it. It was his duty to take care of the meeting-house and ring the bell, as he was the sexton of the parish. He also swept the school room and made the fires in the winter, and twice a year, at May trainings and fall muster, scoured the brass pieces of cannon in the gun-house. It was in the blacksmith's shop that he performed his daily labor and he lived in the cottage.

It was on a dark and cloudy evening in November that Stacy entered his house and took his accustomed chair by the fire. The supper things were on the table; and the tea kettle was singing merrily in the fire place while Dame Stacy was busily employed in placing the best cakes and chocolate before her husband. Stacy was evidently in a melancholy mood and his wife would have found it out if she had not been too busily employed in providing for his comfort, to spend time to look into his face. As it was, the first intimation she had of it was when she handed him his chocolate he waved it away with his hand and said "he did not want anything."

"Why, Joseph!—not want any chocolate?"

"No, don't want anything—said he with a melancholy shake of the head."

"Not want anything after working hard in the shop all the forenoon and then going up almost three miles to bury old Straikes that weighed 230 pounds, when he was alive and died sudden too—what ails ye Jo?"

"Nothing."

"I dont believe that,—dont you feel well? or has old Denham dun'd you again for the iron?"

"It aint that."

"What is it then? wont Gorham pay you for shoeing his oxen? or what is it?"

"Nothing,"—and he compressed his lips, as much as to say "that's all you'll get out of me."

Dame Stacy had now made up her mind to be obstinate too and let him wait his own time to be communicative. She now set herself at work to clear the things from the table which she did with more haste and much more clattering than usual. Having done this she took a half knit stocking and sat down in a chair by the fire knitting away most vigorously. A long silence now ensued which was first broken by the husband.

"I wont be sexton any longer!"

The wife dropped her knitting work in an instant and exclaimed in rather a soothing tone "you dont say so, Joseph."

"Yes I do, and I'll let the committee know it tomorrow."

"Now dont be rash Joseph,"—says the relenting wife—"you don't always have to go so far and bury such great corpses as old Straikes, and besides business may be better by and by and then you'll be sorry for it. You remember that year when the typus was about and how fast the money came in then. It wont always be so healthy as it is now, and you may have good times again if you hold on.

"It aint the buryin', I like that part well enough, it's the meetin'us."

The wife's countenance fell at this anouncement. The worthy couple had often talked over the various legends connected with the haunted steeple and at each rehaersal, with sadder hearts and more fearful forebodings.

"I dont blame you Joe for not wanting to have anything to do with the steeple or the house either, for I dont believe it's all right about the pulpit. Last Sabbath day I was looking at the sonnding board and if it didn't shake and tremble right over the minister's head I couldn't see—that's all. All this comes of having Socinians and Armenians in the pulpit. If Parson Morrill goes into our desk again I expect to see that sounding board come right down on his head,—and it would be just upon him." Having been delivered of this charitable sentiment she continued—"And there was the tongue of the bell you know that was missed when you went to toll for the funeral of Widow Stakely,—it was that very night that the flesh and the grey hair was found in the box floating in the pond. Then there was the old iron vane that blew down just two and fifty years after the man was killed by falling from the steeple. I remember it, for I heard the minister tell of it when he preached the sermon about Peter's denying his master, the Sabbath after the new weather-cock was put up, and he said this was an emblem of St. Peter's old rooster to remind us"—

The loquacious dame was here interupted by her partner who was evidently troubled and uneasy at the revival of these melancholy incidents and he desired her to hand him a stiff dose of gin toddy from the cupboard; we must here remind the reader that Stacy did not belong to any Temperance society, such aids to good resolutions not having been then in existence. He took a liberal draught from the pewter can, and set it on the table. It was the allusion to the missing clapper of the bell which were calculated to awaken superstitious fears among such a population. At the time appointed for raising the tower a sudden tempest arose, and so powerful was it, that it scattered about the lighter materials of the building, and sent the men of the village back to their homes. Another day was appointed, and their work was hardly begun before a tremendous thunder-storm, attended by hail and rain, again interrupted their labors—and again they were forced to abandon the work. It was on this afternoon too, that the minister's cow was found dead in the field, having been struck by lightning while under a tree for shelter. But at length the steeple was raised. It however, was still unfinished, when one of the carpenters fell from its top to the ground, a ghastly and mangled corpse! A deep gloom for a long time hung over the village in consequence of this event, but still the work went on, and at last it was finished.

As years passed on, these events appeared to occupy the minds of the people, and as they dwelt constantly on each sad particular, they always connected it with the raising of the steeple, which was in this manner fast gaining a bad reputation wholly aside from any fault of its own. Strange noises had also been heard, and flashes of red light had been seen in the tower.

Subsequent events served to awaken further suspicions against this unfortunate structure, as will be seen by attending to a conversation which took place many years after in the cottage of Joseph Stacy.

But before the conversation is related, we must first inform the reader who Jo. Stacy was and where he resided, with such other particulars as will serve to elucidate our story.

The meeting-house we have been speaking of was situated on a plat of land bounded on two sides by two roads, and a small stream of water running on the other two sides, marked the remaining boundary. On this spot of land, which seemed to belong to nobody in particular, there also stood a small school house—a gun-house containing two brass sixpounders belonging to an artillery company, a blacksmith's shop, and lastly, the little cottage and barn of Joseph Stacy. The land where the cottage stood, as we have before intimated, did not belong to him or to any body else but he seemed to belong to the land and took the care of everything upon it. It was his duty to take care of the meeting-house and ring the bell, as he was the sexton of the parish. He also swept the school room and made the fires in the winter, and twice a year, at May trainings and fall muster, scoured the brass pieces of cannon in the gun-house. It was in the blacksmith's shop that he performed his daily labor and he lived in the cottage.

It was on a dark and cloudy evening in November that Stacy entered his house and took his accustomed chair by the fire. The supper things were on the table; and the tea kettle was singing merrily in the fire place while Dame Stacy was busily employed in placing the best cakes and chocolate before her husband. Stacy was evidently in a melancholy mood and his wife would have found it out if she had not been too busily employed in providing for his comfort, to spend time to look into his face. As it was, the first intimation she had of it was when she handed him his chocolate he waved it away with his hand and said "he did not want anything."

"Why, Joseph!—not want any chocolate?"

"No, don't want anything—said he with a melancholy shake of the head."

"Not want anything after working hard in the shop all the forenoon and then going up almost three miles to bury old Straikes that weighed 230 pounds, when he was alive and died sudden too—what ails ye Jo?"

"Nothing."

"I dont believe that,—dont you feel well? or has old Denham dun'd you again for the iron?"

"It aint that."

"What is it then? wont Gorham pay you for shoeing his oxen? or what is it?"

"Nothing,"—and he compressed his lips, as much as to say "that's all you'll get out of me."

Dame Stacy had now made up her mind to be obstinate too and let him wait his own time to be communicative. She now set herself at work to clear the things from the table which she did with more haste and much more clattering than usual. Having done this she took a half knit stocking and sat down in a chair by the fire knitting away most vigorously. A long silence now ensued which was first broken by the husband.

"I wont be sexton any longer!"

The wife dropped her knitting work in an instant and exclaimed in rather a soothing tone "you dont say so, Joseph."

"Yes I do, and I'll let the committee know it tomorrow."

"Now dont be rash Joseph,"—says the relenting wife—"you don't always have to go so far and bury such great corpses as old Straikes, and besides business may be better by and by and then you'll be sorry for it. You remember that year when the typus was about and how fast the money came in then. It wont always be so healthy as it is now, and you may have good times again if you hold on.

"It aint the buryin', I like that part well enough, it's the meetin'us."

The wife's countenance fell at this anouncement. The worthy couple had often talked over the various legends connected with the haunted steeple and at each rehaersal, with sadder hearts and more fearful forebodings.

"I dont blame you Joe for not wanting to have anything to do with the steeple or the house either, for I dont believe it's all right about the pulpit. Last Sabbath day I was looking at the sonnding board and if it didn't shake and tremble right over the minister's head I couldn't see—that's all. All this comes of having Socinians and Armenians in the pulpit. If Parson Morrill goes into our desk again I expect to see that sounding board come right down on his head,—and it would be just upon him." Having been delivered of this charitable sentiment she continued—"And there was the tongue of the bell you know that was missed when you went to toll for the funeral of Widow Stakely,—it was that very night that the flesh and the grey hair was found in the box floating in the pond. Then there was the old iron vane that blew down just two and fifty years after the man was killed by falling from the steeple. I remember it, for I heard the minister tell of it when he preached the sermon about Peter's denying his master, the Sabbath after the new weather-cock was put up, and he said this was an emblem of St. Peter's old rooster to remind us"—

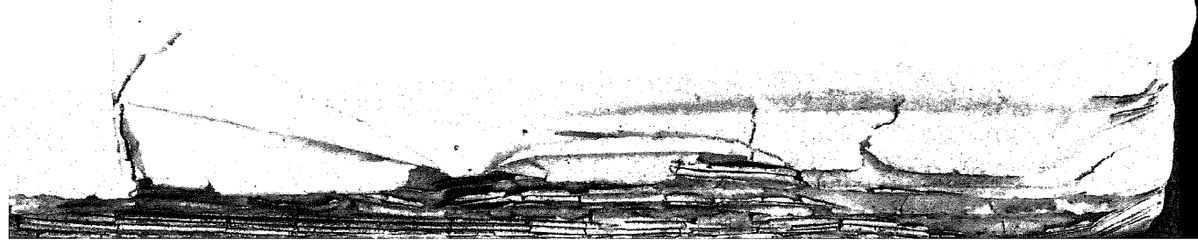
The loquacious dame was here interupted by her partner who was evidently troubled and uneasy at the revival of these melancholy incidents and he desired her to hand him a stiff dose of gin toddy from the cupboard; we must here remind the reader that Stacy did not belong to any Temperance society, such aids to good resolutions not having been then in existence. He took a liberal draught from the pewter can, and set it on the table. It was the allusion to the missing clapper of the bell nest entreaties of his wife he had consented to supply a new tongue and he had secured it in the strongest manner, from danger of removal by mere mortal hands. Notwithstanding this precaution he had that afternoon received the appalling intelligence that this too was missing and that the bell of the haunted tower was again dumb! It was this that caused his melancholy. He felt now fully assured that it had been spirited away by supernatural means, strange fears crept over him and he at once resolved not to hold his office another day. He at first dreaded to make the disclosure to his wife, but his courage gradually rose as the contents of the can continued to fall. He not only gave up his first purpose of resigning his office but after repeated libations from the can he began to boast of his future deeds of daring. "What," says he, shall Joseph Stacy a member of the Artillery, with a good sword and belt, a good red coat and buff leather breeches and gaiters, having charge of two brass six pound field pieces be afraid to meet a cowardly ghost that steals away bell clappers in the night? Not he. As sexton of the parish I have faced death too many times for that." With this eloquent speech he drank off the remaining contents the vessel and avowed his intention to put on his regimentals and watch in the tower that very night.

Let us follow as he finds his way to the door of the tower. He enters and with a bold yet careful step he ascends the well known flight of stairs.—He arrives on a level with the gallery. He hears a sighing noise in the great open church; it is the wind, and an occasional gust shakes the windows with doleful clattering. He ascends another flight, he is on a level with the ceiling. Something strikes him with violence on his head; it is a bat, one of them ten thousand with which the roof is inhabited. He goes on, up—up—up the narrow stairway, now this way and now that, among timbers and braces, until he arrives almost to the deck of the tower and finds the trap door wide open.—He looks up and sees a strange waving light, like a luminous cloud hanging over the bell deck.—He watches it attentively through the opening and sees it assume various colors and shapes, now a bell, now a spade, then a coffin and again a brass cannon with its muzzle pointed directly at him!—No wonder that terror seized the poor sexton to see his own implements thus turned against him. He now had seen enough and wished to make his escape but he could not withdraw his eyes from the aperture above him.

At length those appearances passed away and the cloud assumed a shadowy, waving form as when he first saw it. Stacy now felt much relieved and watched the cloud for new formations. It soon became more luminous and then a dark line appeared to form, then another, and spread themselves out into the shape of well formed legs and arms then a body partly, human was affixed and lastly a head, if that may be called a head which was only a glowing ball of fire.

Our hero, (albeit a hero no longer) witnessed this last change with greater terror then the former, but when he saw the figure take up the tongueless bell and quietly place it on his head for a covering, the red light streaming down from under it, and two flaming holes burning through it, his knees smote together with terror, and his hair stood erect. He turned from it and commenced a rapid descent over the narrow flights of stairs, and to his extreme horror he heard the bell-fiend following after him!

Stacy was well acquainted with the stair-ways and devious passages and arrived in good time at the head of the flight leaving his pursuer, far behind. A thought here struck him that he could elude his tormentor. He therefore turned into the gallery of the house, and ran behind the singer's seats to the women's gallery and just as he decended the stair-way in the corner, a sudden flash of light filled the house, and to his utmost dismay he saw that the fiend had entered the gallery door! A rapid glance at the figure served to show him that in size and proportions, its body and limbs were the exact counterpart of those of the man he had buried that very afternoon three miles off! In each hand the spectre held an iron tongue which Stacy recognized as the very ones which had been stolen. These he would occasionally strike on the bell which covered his head and which emitted unearthly sounds.



Our fugitive did not tarry to make these observations but they passed through his mind in an instant while the fiend was tramping through the gallery, crushing the old bass viol under his heavy tread, and he himself was escaping to the door whose double bolts were soon withdrawn and he found himself in the open air. It was a night of Egyptian darkness—near and heavy thunders and vivid lightnings were heard and seen, but those were only common occurences. The sexton was guided by the latter but he knew not whither.—He had taken a direction different from that which led to his own house, whose portals were protected from supernatural beings by the horse-shoe talisman. He saw his error and turning to remedy it, witnessed the bell demon emerging from the church door his two eyes flaming through the side of the bell with more intensity than ever. Stacy found that it was now too late to retrace his steps. He ran as if for life, and in order to facilitate his speed he threw off his sword, belt and breast-plate.

He knew these trappings were of no use to oppose spectral beings, and he discarded them. He had just passed a small bridge when he heard two successive splashes in the water behind him, by which he knew that his pursuer was also lightening himself for the race. He had thrown the iron clappers into the water and was now in full pursuit. For some time the race was doubtful.—They both ran with almost lightning speed, passing the old pine tree and on—on they went until the fugitive turned again suddenly to the left and ran up a long hill then called Hog hill, but by modern refinement known as "swine eminence." Still the demon followed him, but Stacy kept him a good distance behind, and hoped to reach his home and his wife in safety. They had now reached the main road and their course was turned toward the cottage.

Hope was now added to the impulse of fear, and the sexton exerted himself with all his might.—But his limbs were now weary from exhaustion, and his breath grew shorter. Dreadful were his feelings as the spectre approached him and he heard a stifled demoniac laugh behind! He renewed his efforts to escape, but the light grew more intense and the laughter more loud. He even thought he felt the hot breath of the demon on the back of his neck! He was now in sight of his quiet cottage, from which he reproached himself that he had strayed. He strained to reach it, for he saw by the demon light that the protecting horse-shoe was still over the door which was wide open for his admission. But alas! for poor Stacy—his limbs failed him—faintness seized him—he felt the scalding breath—the laugh became a yell—and, horror of horrors—he felt a hand grasp him by his shoulder—he shuddered—he awoke!

The hand that grasped him was his wife's! She, kind woman had witnessed the troubled sleep of her husband, who had not left his chair since draining the pewter can, and thus by shaking him gently by the shoulder, awoke him from his slumber.

It was some time before Joseph could comprehend how he came into his cottage. The events of the dream seemed real, and his present condition a happy vision. By the assistance of his good dame he at length understood the whole matter and resolved in future to discard all superstition and gin toddy. A new and larger bell soon swung in the old steeple, and Joseph Stacy continued for many years the sexton of the parish, and when he was gathered to his fathers the newspapers of that day said of him, that "he lived respected and died lamented."

DANVERS COURIER.

SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 19, 1845.

SELF MADE MEN.

If there are any persons in the community deserving of especial praise they are the noble few who, without the external advantages of education and friends, have worked their way to eminence and station. Who, born perhaps in poverty and wretchedness, have felt the workings of a soul within them calling to something higher and better, and who obeying such dictates, by laboring with diligence during the day at the plough or the anvil, have found means to support themselves and obtain time and books and by the midnight lamp, or perhaps by the dim light of the fire to lay broad and deep the foundations of knowledge.

Such are noblemen of nature's stamp. Taught to rely upon themselves in everything. Practical and solid in their acquirements, the necessary result of the manner in which these acquirements are attained, they are men who can be relied upon at all times. Constantly mingling with the world and acquainted with the habits and prejudices of mankind, their judgment in all matters can be depended upon. Brought up in the rough school of adversity, they have a heart to pity the unfortunate and unsuccessful. They are men who stand all tests, who are the same under all circumstances. Their light is not that of the meteor which surprises the admiring spectator with its brilliancy, but a steady calm effulgence which continually illumines all within its influence. Such men, toiling, persevering and strong men, inevitably succeed in life. The history of this country is full of examples of such men. Where do we find individuals with more imperishable names than Benjamin Franklin and Roger Sherman, the one a printers boy, and the other an apprentice to a shoemaker. They were both emphatically self made men, and owed all their success to their own persevering efforts. Scarcely a week passes but we hear of some distinguished individual who by his own industry has risen to affluence and honor. Instances like the following are frequent, of a man who some twenty years since packed up his little store of goods, and with his axe on his shoulder and his wife by his side started for the far west determined that "God willing" he would be something in the world. The same man was two years ago one of the most respected members of our national assembly. Such examples offer noble inducements for young men to determine to rise in the world by their own efforts. The maxim "aim high, go high" is an excellent one and replete with truth.—If a young man sets his standard of acquirements high, he may not reach it but he will go higher than if he had set it lower. Let every young man then determine to be something in the world.—Let him not fear to set his standard high and he may depend upon it, if he has application and perseverance, he will succeed beyond his most

A NAME FOR THE UNITED STATES.

We see by the New York papers that a name has been proposed for our Republic by a committee of the N. Y. Historical Society. We like this.—Our Country about which we boast so much is at present without a name. The term United States merely implies that a number of countries are confederated together, and there are United States in South America as well as in the North.

Already, our people are know only as Americans, a term that applies as well to the people of the whole continent as to ourselves,—to Canadians Mexicans, Peruvians, and Patagonians as to United Statesians. The only name that has particular application to us is Yankees and this we apply only to New Englanders. If we wish to have a distinctive name, at present we must submit to be called by the local nicknames of the different states, and we are accordingly spoken of as Yankees Buckeyes, Suckers, Wolverines and Hoosiers. If this evil is to be remedied and we are to have a name, what shall it be? Columbia is undoubtedly the most appropriate, and ought to have been adopted, but now it is too late as it has been appropriated by a sister republic in South America. We see no valid objection to the name proposed by the N.Y. Historical, Society's committee, viz. ALLEGANIA. It is associated with one of the great natural features, the very back bone of the country. It is musical in sound, and it would designate by an easy and familiar term the people of the country.

☞It is said that documents written with steel pens have become illegible after a short time, and even that the traces of the writing have entirely disappeared. This dangerous inconvenience is probably to be attributed to the rust which is detached from the pen and deposited in the ink. This deserves serious attention.

A NEW CITY.

Another manufacturing city is to be built on the Merrimack, having greater advantages of water power than Lowell. This new city is to be in our own county, and will comprise a part of the territory of both Andover and Methuen. Already have the enterprising capitalists of Boston made their purchase of sufficient land to lay out the plans of the proposed improvement, and soon hundreds of mechanics will be busily engaged in raising up a city where other hunreds and thousands will find constant and profitable employment.

The site of the future city is now a level plain with here and there a solitary farm-house; but within a few years, we shall probably witness this now quiet spot, covered with immense factories, brick blocks of stores and paved streets, thronged with a busy population.

The name of the new city when incorporated will probably be LAWRENCEVILLE. A worthy tribute to an honorable name.

DR. THOMAS SEWALL.

The recent decease of this distinguished member of the medical profession has, it appears by the Washington papers, cast a gloom over that city. He was brother in law of Hon. Rufus Choate, and was formerly established in his profession at Essex in this county, and, left that place in consequence of a great excitement among the people caused by the discovery that dead bodies had been frequently removed from the burial ground, it was supposed for dissection. Dr. Sewall was a skilful anatomist, and was appointed to the Professorship of Anatomy in Columbia College at Washington, where he remained until his death. His labors as a christian philanthropist were known in Europe as well as in this country. His reputation, his learning and abilities were directed to designs of good to his fellow men. He was enthusiastic in the cause of Temperance, in a region where this reform was always attended with unpopularity to its advocates. The grief of the community where he died, was manifested by a large attendance of the most respectable citizens of Washington at his funeral.

ESSEX COUNTY.

This is the most populous County, having the same extent of territory, in the union. It has a city containing 16,000 inhabitants and seven large towns each having a population of 5 to 10,000,

All of these and some others are active manufactoring towns and the produce of the labor of the people of this county is more than that of the great empire of South Carolina.

Two Rail Roads traverse the whole length of its territory and another will soon be built. Essex, like populous Belgium, will ere long be covered with a net work of Rail-ways joining together by iron bands all her populous towns. The absurd doctrine attempted to be forced on the people, that interior towns have no right to direct rail road communication with each other, lest passengers should find some other route to Boston than the existing roads will soon be repudiated, by the people.

There are those now living who will go by rail way direct from Newburyport to Haverhill, from Haverhill to Georgetown, and from Georgetown north to Amesbury, and south to Danvers. Salem will have direct communication with Andover and meet there a Rail Road from Lowell. Like the Rail Roads in Belgium too, the fares will be low, and the amount of travel so great as to amply remunerate the Stockholders of all these thoroughfares.

ROOM PAPERS.

We would call the attention of our patrons to the advertisement, in another column, of Room Papers by the Messrs. Ives of Salem. Having seen their assortment and list of prices, we confidently recommend any in want of the article to call upon them, believing they will sell as good an article and as cheap as "can be bought in Boston or elsewhere."

THE NINTH DISTRICT. The election for member of Congress in the ninth district takes place on the 28th inst. A Whig Convention was held at Bridgewater on Thursday of last week, which was well attended, and from the zeal manifested, strong hopes are entertained that their candidate, Mr. Hale, will be elected, and thus Massachusetts appear upon the floor of the House with a full front, to battle against Texas and Slavery.

TO READERS AND CORRESPONDENTS.

We call attention to the original articles on our first page. The communication from our venerable friend Newman Noggs will remind the, reader of the style of the author of "Twice Told Tales" when in his happiest mood. We hope to hear further from our new correspondent.

"John Langdon and his Colt" is under consideration.

The article by Adrian will have a place in a future number.

BRICKS. Whoever reads our Marine Journal under the head of "Port of Danvers," cannot fail to notice the large quantities of bricks which are shipped to be sent abroad. The Danvers faced or pressed bricks have a high reputation with builders in Boston, Providence, and other cities where they are sent from our brick yards.

TANNING IN DANVERS. The first tanning done in this town was on the spot now occupied by the tannery of Mr. P. R. Southwick. At that time the business was carried on by the grandfather of the present proprietor, in two hogshead tubs in which he tanned calf and sheep skins. He afterwards enlarged his business by adding to his tannery an old boat in which he was enabled to tan ox hides and occasionally the hide of some old horse which happened to die in the neighborhood. Since that time there has been some increase in the business in that place as well as in other parts of the town.

ARRIVAL OF THE GREAT WESTERN.

Twenty-one days later from England.

The Great Western arrived at New York on Wednesday. The following is the summary of the most important English news brought by her.

Parliament had adjourned for the Easter holidays.

The duty on cotton had been repealed.

Cotton had declined just about to the extent of the reduction of duty and the market was heavy from an enlarged impression about new crops.

The new Tariff, as brought forward by Sir Robert Peel, had gone into operation. The only change from what he proposed, was some slight alteration in the standard for sugars.

The news of the passage by Congress of the resolutions for the Annexation of Texas, had created considerable sensation in England, and also the paragraph of President Polk's Inaugural Address relating to Oregon.

General "Tom Thumb" had the honor of being received on Sunday by the King and Queen of the French, and other members of the royal family. They were all delighted with the "little man" who remained in the royal presence upwards of an hour and a half.

It is said, but we know not with what degree of truth, that the government is again about to attempt to put down the repeal agitation.

GREAT FIRE IN PITTSBURG.

One of the most disastrous conflagrations that ever devastated any city on this continent occurred at Pittsburg, Pa. A great portion of that busy and populous town is in ruins! More houses have been destroyed by this horrible conflagration, than have been consumed by all the fires that have ever occurred in that city before.

From the Pittsburg Gazette.

We have traversed the burnt district this morning throughout its entire extent, the calamity is as wide spread and as awful as can be conceived. The district burnt is about as we have described above. The whole of South Ward, one of the most populous in the city, is destroyed, with the exception of two or three houses, one of them, by a singular fatality, a frame! The largest part of Pipe town is destroyed, a few frame buildings having escaped. The principal part of the Gas Works are uninjured.

Among the public buildings destroyed, are the Pittsburg Bank, the Pittsburg Insurance offices, the Monongahela House, the Merchants' Hotel the American Hotel, the Dravo House, the second Associate Presbyterian Church the first Baptist Church, the Front street African Church, the University Buildings, &c. &c. Also the Monongahela Bridge all entirely destroyed

The number of houses destroyed is between one and two thousand! but it is impossible to ascertain exactly, without more strict examination. A great number of manufacturing establishments are destroyed; among them the Kensington Rolling Mill, a very extensive establishment, belonging to Messrs Freeman & Co.—The greatest loss, however, is in the goods and warehouses on Second, Front and Water streets, and on Wood, Market and Smithfield.

In this region were comprehended our largest warehouses, which were full of goods, groceries and Pittsburg manufactures. The loss is variously estimated at from five to ten millions! By to-morrow we shall be able to give more definite intelligence, but it will take some days to give all the particulars. The only lives we have heard of lost, was a poor woman in Third street.

Extract of a letter from a Pittsburgh Merchant to Messrs Hampton & Co., Merchants in Philadelphia.

PITTSBURGH, April 10, 1845.

The loss cannot be less than from 8 to 12 millions. Some compute it higher, and it will be a long time ere we recover from it.

Among the heaviest losers, perhaps, is our friend Mr Crossan proprietor of the Monongahela House, who saved nothing, we are told, not even the money in the [illegible] instantaneous was the destruction.

Among the painful news from Pittsburg, is that of the death of Michael Tiernan, Esq, a gentleman extensively known, and whereever known, respected for his sterling integrity, and enlarged liberality. His loss will produce a deep pang in his affectionate family, and among his relatives be felt keenly in the city of his residence, at a time when public calamity makes all look around for some strong heart upon which to rely for relief, encouragement, and the means and measures of resuscitation.—[Phil. U. S. Gazette, Monday.

SHAVINGS.

DARING HIGHWAY ROBBERY. A young man from Newburyport, (Mass.) named William Henry Cleaveland, arrived in this city last Saturday, and put up at the Western Hotel. On Sunday evening he attended worship at the Mariners' Bethel, in Water street, above Walnut, and as he was leaving the church, he asked two men the direction to Market street. The men pretended to show him the right way, but after walking with him a few yards, one of them caught him behind by the collar of his coat and pulled him down. The villains then stuffed paper into his mouth to keep him from hallooing, and rifled his pockets of his silver watch and about $50 in money. The daring robbers escaped.—Philadelphia paper.

POLLY BODINE CONVICTED. A little after 4 o'clock P. M. on Saturday, the jury in the case of Polly Bodine, at New York, came in with a verdict of "Guilty of Murder in the first degree."

CONNECTICUT ELECTION. The vote of Connecticut at the recent election was, Whig 27,077, Loco 22,761, Abolition 1795. The vote is smaller than that for Governor last spring, the Whig vote having fallen off 3,172, Loco 5,212, and Abolition 145.

Dr. Sewall.—Dr. Thomas Sewall, formerly of this State, but for many years past a physican at Washington of distinguished reputation, died on Thursday last, after two or three weeks severe illness, of pneumonia. He was extensively known and most highly esteemed for his benevolence and his devotedness to his friends and to the cause of humanity.

CUTE ENOUGH—THE LATEST YANKEE TRICK. The Lowell Courier tells the story of a shoemaker in Connecticut who bought a large quantity of shoe pegs at a very cheap rate. They looked well enough; but when he came to use them, he found they were made of rotten wood, and entirely valueless. What did the Yankee son of St. Crispin do, on ascertaining that he had been taken in, but sharpen the other end of the pegs with his knife, and sell them back to the man of whom he had first purchased for oats!

Balances. The Postmaster General has advertised for proposals for furnishing 15,000 balances for the Department, constructed on the best plan for ascertaining the weight of letters, &c.

THE CHEESE TRADE.—During the year 1844 there arrived at Albany, by way of the New York canals, 26,674,500 pounds of cheese valued at more than one million and a half of dollars.

A MASSACHUSETTS VILLAGE.—Mr Wilson, (who was known in hard cider times as the Natick Cobbler,) in his speech in favor of the Framingham branch of the Fitchburg railroad, describes the growth of his own place, from the time that the Worcester railroad was run through the centre of the village:—

"That little village, so small when the road was built that it was a question whether a depot should be built in it, was now one of the most prosperous and flourishing in the State, and last year exported nearly as much, the product of their own industry, as was imported by the great nation of Texas, some were so anxious to secure."

☞The whole number of passengers known to have been on board the Swallow is 254, viz.: lost and bodies recovered 13; ascertained to have been saved 194; unaccounted for by name 46.

Capital Trial.—We learn that William W. Goldsmith, charged with the murder of Mr. Hildreth, in Stow, is to be tried in this city at the June term of the Supreme Court.—Lowell Cour.

The Governor of Pennsylvania, on the receipt of the news of the fire at Pittsburgh, sent a Message on the subject to the Legislature, and the House on receipt of the message passed unanimously a joint resolution voting $50,000 to the distressed city of Pittsburg, and releasing the stricken citizens from taxes and licenses.

War with Mexico.—A rumor was quite current in Washington, on Saturday, that official advices had been received by the Government, that Mexico had made a declaration of war, or had committed acts, such as confiscating American property within her borders, seizing of vessels merchandize, &c. as must be construed into such a declaration. Whether there was any good foundation for the rumor does not appear, although sufficient time has elapsed since the passage of the Annexation resolutions, for the news to reach Mexico, and a reply to be received. Should it prove true, the President will be compelled to issue his proclamation forthwith convening an extra session of Congress, as no provision whatever was made for such a contingency at the session which recently transpired.—Bost. Atlas.

☞The Mexican War rumors from Washington are said to be a hoax. They appear to have excited a good deal of feeling in all the cities.—Bost. Mail.

New York Town Elections.—The Tribune gives returns of the town elections in 51 counties of New York compared with those of last year.—These have gone 446 Whig, 378 Democratic, and 7 Birney and Native. As between the Whig and Democrats the Whigs have 68 the most.—Last year the Democrat had 25 the most. The Tribune says:—

"Local causes operated largely in New York, Kings and Rennsselaer to prevent the choice of Supervisors affording any test of party strength on National Questions. But for this, the Whig majority of Supervisors would have been nearly, and the Whig gain over, one hundred."

Marblehead. We are gratified to learn that our friends in Marblehead have every reason to expect the speedy establishment of their projected steam cotton factory. It will be of unquestionable benefit to their town, and we trust they will suffer no slight obstacles to disappoint them.

The town of Marblehed voted, on Friday last, to demolish the old poor-house, and to build another more comfortable and [illegible] and in a more sheltered position.—Gaz.

The Hon. Leverett Saltonstall is seriously ill, at his residence in Salem.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The Annual Report submitted by a committee of the firewards shows this department to be in a very efficient condition. It now consists of seven Engine Companies besides Sail, Hook and Ladder men. It has charge of eight Engines which have connected with them 2400 feet of leading hose, all in fair and good condition except 125 feet which is returned as bad. The Engines are all represented to be in good condition. Nos. 1, 2 and 3—Niagara, Erie and Torrent are all about the same capacity and were built by W. C. Hunneman of Roxbury. Nos. 4 and 5—Eagle and Gen. Putnam, were built by S. Huse of Newburyport. Nos. 6 and 7—Ocean and Gen. Foster were also built at Newburyport by E. S. Leslie and are beautiful Engines.

The eighth engine is located in engine house No.1 and is a large and powerful machine. The Report says "the Committee have pleasure in stating that Gen. Sutton, with that public spirit and generosity which have so often distinguished him has given this engine to the town for ten years on the condition that it shall remain in its present location and that the town shall attach to the engine 200 feet of leading hose." The committee then strongly recommend compliance with this condition and the report was unanimously accepted. The town voted that the firemen be paid by the hour instead of a fixed compensation as formerly. A years trial will probably be sufficient to test the expediency of this experiment.

The town also voted to have a reservoir near Washington St. and authorised the Selectmen to build it. Also one in Central St. if the Selectmen think it expedient.

We do not understand why the construction of these cisterns should be left to the Selectmen any more than to the School Committee or the Board of Health. It is plainly the business of the Firewards as much as the care of the engines. They better understand the subject than any other board can and it appears to show a want of confidence in the Board of Firewards which we are convinced is not felt by our citizens. We hope in future that the business of the town will be refered to those boards to which it appropriately belongs.

AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS IN DANVERS.

We believe many of our own citizens are not aware of the large amount of produce obtained from the land in this town. By the statistics returned while prosecuting our claims before the Rail Road Committee, it appeared that there are annually raised of one article—onions, more than 20,000 barrels! If we add to this the produce of our orchards and the immense amount of vegetables raised to supply the markets of Salem, Lynn and Boston, the aggregate would reach an amount that would astonish even those who are engaged in the business of farming and gardening. We believe there are many plats of land of five or six acres which yield to their cultivators more net profit than farms in the country of several hundred acres.

CONNECTICUT ELECTION.

The result of the election in Old Connecticut, shows in what light that State regards the Texas iniquity. Her Locofoco Texas Representatives have the unqualified consent of a large majority in the State to stay at home, and their places are supplied with good staunch Whig, Anti-Texas men. We should not wonder if many other Locofoco Representatives from the North should find their Texas zeal a little dampened by being "tipped out of the tail of the cart," in the same summary manner by their constituents, upon whose party warmth they have presumed a little too much; and it is not impossible that the next House of Representatives will be Whig, or the Locofoco majority so small that Texas "can't come in" even if she wants to.

GREAT FIRE IN MILWAUKIE.

We learn from our exchanges that there has been a most disastrous fire in Milwaukie, (Wisconsin.) The fire commenced in a small wooden building, and spread with fearful rapidity, until two whole squares were consumed. The amount of property destroyed is estimated at $80,000.

THE ORATORIO OF SAMSON is to be repeated this and to-morrow evenings. If a sufficient number of passengers should be made up, an extra train of cars will leave Salem.

CUSHING'S MANUAL. We have received from Messrs. W. S Cleveland & Co. of Salem, a copy of the above valuable work. It is the most complete book of the kind we have ever seen and should be in the hands of all. There are few who are not called upon at some time in life to preside over, or address an assembly, and to such this work is invaluable. It is unnecessary to state that this supersedes all previous manuals upon parliamentary rule, and that in it all will be found that is necessary to be known in conducting public meetings.

Mr. Braman's Election Sermon.—Mr. L. Chandler has a few more copies of this valuable discourse for sale. Every freeman should have one.

"BRING FLOWERS, BRING FLOWERS," There was a fine show of flowers at Union Hall on Thursday last. They looked all the brighter in contrast with the unfavorable weather out of doors. Why cannot we have a Natural History Society in this place? At any rate we hope Mr. Joplin will receive encouragement to repeat his exhibition, and afford our ladies an opportunity to embellish their houses and enclosures with these tasteful ornaments. A sight of the exhibition, which our people have for nothing, is worth a good admittance fee.

BRIGHTON MARKET—Monday, April 14.
[From the Boston Daily Advertiser.]

At market 520 Beef Cattle 20 pairs Working Oxen 420 Sheep, and 2175 Swine. 75 Beef cattle remained unsold.

PRICES—BEEF Cattle—Last week's prices were fully sustained Extra $6 25; first quality $5 75 a $6; second quality $5 50 a 5 75; third quality 4 75 a $5 25.

WORKING OXEN—Sales at $62, 70, 75, and 78, and 90.

SHEEP—Sales from $3 to 5.

SWINE—Lots to peddle 4 1-2c for Sows, 5 1-2c for Barrows; Ohio Hogs, 4 1-2 and 5 a 5 1-4c. At retail, 5 1-2 and 6 1-2c.

DEATHS.

In Salem Mr George D. Arrington, of Boston, to Miss Mary Ellen Redding, of Salem. Mr John F. Prince to Miss Susan S. Hodgdon. Mr Stephen L. Doret to Miss Hannah W. Bartlett. Mr John Jackson to Miss Hannah Dowst.

In Lynn, Mr Moses B. Allen to Miss Hannah C. Sargent.

In Newbury, Mr John B. Pritchard to Miss Lydia E. Young.

In this town, Mr Daniel Marsh, aged 70.

In Salem, Mrs Abigail W. Archer widow of Benj Archer, aged 75. Thomas L., son of Mr Daniel Boardman, aged 6 months. George Foster, son of Mr George A. Dix, aged 3 years. Miss Louisa Fenno, aged 51. Mr Jeremiah Hanson, aged 43; Mr Charles Atkinson, aged 64.

In Monson, 3d inst., Mr Ezra Tucker, aged 95 years and 2 months, formerly of North Brookfield, a revolutionary pensioner.

PORT OF DANVERS.

Monday April 14th

ARRIVED.

Sch. Ann Maria, Barenson, New York with flour and grain.

Tuesday 15th

Sch Pioneer, Nickerson, New York with flour and grain.

Sloop Abigal. Abbot, Boston.

Wednesday 16th

SAILED.

Sch. Ann Maria,

ARRIVED.

Sloop Stranger, Packard, Boston,

Sloop Leader, Adams, Boston,

Thursday 17th

Sch Packet, Hatch, Pembroke, with wood and bark,

NOTICE.

The regular meetings of Monument Division, No. 5, SONS OF TEMPERANCE, held at Sanger's Hall, are changed from Wednesday to Monday evening, at 8 o'clock. Members of the order are respectfully invited to attend.

MOSES MERRILL, R. S.

Danvers, April 12.

DANCING SCHOOL.

M. R. E. J. DAVIS, Professor of Dancing from Salem, would respectfully inform the Ladies and Gentlemen of Danvers, that he purposes opening a School, at MR. LUNT'S NEW HALL, on SATURDAY AFTERNOON, April 19th, commencing at 5 o'clock, P. M., for the instruction of young Misses and Masters in this highly pleasing and useful accomplishment. Those who are in favor, are invited to call at the hall on the above afternoon, and learn the terms. apr 5

RETAIL BOOT AND SHOE STORE, AT THE PLAINS.

THE subscriber keeps constantly on hand at his store, on Maple street, near the Village Bank, A full supply of

Men's Calf and Seal Boots, of all qualities ;
Men's Calf, Goat and Kip Shoes, and pumps.
Boy's do do Downings.

THE LADIES will find a complete assortment of Fine and Common Kid Slippers ;
Paris and Village Ties ;
Gaiter Boots and Shoes ;
Misses' and Children's shoes of all descriptions ;

The above articles he is constantly receiving from the best manufacturers in the state, which will enable him to satisfy all who are in want of good articles in this line—at very reasonable prices.

JOSHUA SILVESTER.

North Danvers April 19, 1845.

Flour, Corn, Oats, Shorts, &c.

Landing from schr Pioneer,
200 BARRELS Genesee Flour ;
20 1-2 do do do
500 bushels Mealing Corn ;
500 do Yellow do
500 do Shorts ;
20 bbls Pea Beans ;
4 bbls Marrowfat Peas ;
100 bags Fine Salt ;
—Also, in store—
100 bushels Killam Oats, for seed ;
100 do Herds Grass Seed ;
100 do Red Top do do ;
500 do Clover do ; (Northern ;
For sale by DANIEL RICHARDS,
At the old and well known stand on the Plains.
North Danvers, April 19, 1845.

Witch Hazle, for Beds.

A FIRST rate article just received and for sale by CARTER & BATCHELDER.
April 19

FOR SALE.

A two story house and lot of land on Holten street. The House is convenient for two families and will be sold at a great bargain. Inquire of HIRAM GRANT.

Danvers, April 19, 1845,

Danvers Express and Baggage Waggon

LEAVES Danvers and Boston, daily (Sundays excepted.)

All orders left at McIntire's Hotel, or Poole & Jacobs' store Danvers, No. 14 Blackstone, and No. 1 Fulton streets, Boston, will be promptly attended to.

Goods handled with care.

S. F. TOWN.

April 19, 1845. 1 y

Summer Arrangement of the
DANVERS AND SALEM
HOURLY COACHES

THE Danvers and Salem Hourly Coaches will in connection with the Eastern Railroad, leave Danvers and Salem at the following hours,

Leave Danvers at	7	A M.	Leave Salem at	8	A-M.
" "	8		" "	9	1-2
" "	9 3-4		" "	11	1-2
" "	11 1-4		" "	12	3-4
" "	1 3-4	P M.	" "	3	P.M
" "	2 3-4		" "	4
" "	4 1-2		" "	6
" "	6 1-2		" "	8

For seats apply at Macintire's Hotel, or at Joseph G Sheds store in Danvers, and at the Essex House and Salem Hotel in Salem.

Railroad passengers taken at the depot on the arrival of the cars from Boston and the East.

☞ Extra Coaches furnished at any hour on reasonable terms

SYMONDS & TEEL.

apr 19 tf

ROOM PAPERS.

☞ 2000 ROLLS. ☜

OF the newest and most desirable patterns of Philanelphia and New York Room PAPERS, selected with great care from the different manufacturers in Philadelphia and New York.

Also 8000 rolls of almost every variety of patterns of FRENCH and AMERICAN manufacture of the best and cheapest patterns.

The above having been bought for cash will be sold at a small advance on the cost,—as cheap or cheaper than can be bought in Boston or elsewhere.

☞ Please call and examine at the Bookstore of W. & S. B. IVES Stearns' Building.

Salem April 18, 1845. 2 m.

PARCHMENT MEMO. BOOKS. W. S. CLEVELAND & Co. have just received from the manufacturers a large and superior assortment of Memorandum Books, made of good parchment, various sizes and patterns, with pockets for money or papers. Also, a new style of Illuminated Wallet—a very neat article—together with a full supply of Calf and Morocco Wallets and large size Pocket Books with or without clasps or strap—all prices.

apr 17 Opposite the Mansion House. Salem.

NEW BOOKS. RURAL ECONOMY in its relation with Chemistry, Physics and Meteorology ; or Chemistry applied to Agriculture, by J. B. Boussingault, member of the Institute of France, &c &c, translated by George Law, Agriculturist—1 Vol., full cloth.

The works of Sydney Smith—3 Vols, full cloth, and Froissart's Chronicles of England, France, and Spain, cheap edition, in One Vol., very neat— just received and for sale at No. 193 Essex st,

New Works by Leigh Hunt.—Imagination and Fancy, or selections from the English Poets, containing an Essay in answer to the question, "What is Poetry," by Leigh Hunt, just published.

Library of Chaice Reading.—Wiley and Putnam's Library of Choice Reading, No 1. Eothen ; No 2. The Amber Witch ; No 3. Undine ; No 4. Imagination and Fancy, by Leigh Hunt, at the book-store of

W. S. CLEVELAND & Co., 193 Essex St.

apr 19 193 Essex street, Salem.

A FRESH supply of Vestiges of Creation, also of Interior or Hidden Life, by Prof. Upham, and Taylor's Holy Living and Dying, received and for sale by W S CLEVELAND & Co, apl 19 opposite the Mansion House.

New Furniture Store.

SALEM FURNITURE & FEATHER WARE-HOUSE.

205 1-2 ESSEX STREET. 205 1-2

(Two Doors East from the Market,.)

JOSEPH WALLIS would respectfully inform his friends and the public that he has taken the rooms recently occupied by T. Needham, Esq., where he will keep constantly on hand and for sale an extensive and well selected assortment of which he will sell at the lowest cash prices, among which may be found,

CABINET FURNITURE,

Sofas, Sofa Beds ; Windlass, Cot Trundle and common Bedsteads ; Secretaries ; Bureaus ; Mahogany, Card, Work, Centre and Dining Tables ;—Mahogany, Cane-seat and common Chairs ; Mahogany, Cane-back and common Rocking Chairs ;—Children's Toy, Rocking and Dining Chairs ; Settees and Settee Cradles ; Cribs ; Grecian and common Wash Stands ; Portable Sinks ; Portable and Gentleman's Writing Desks, Toilet, Dining and common Pine Tables; Looking Glasses ; Swing and Toilet Glasses. Fancy Boxes, a great variety;—Mattresses ; and every article usually found in his line of business.

CLOCKS.

J. W. intends keeping on hand a large and well selected assortment of Wood and Brass Clocks from the best of manufacturers—all of which we can feel confident in warranting. Those about purchasing this article will do well to call.

FEATHERS.

Live Geese and common Feathers ; a great variety.

N B. J. W. will still continue to Manufacture FURNITURE at the Old Stand, No 29 Lafayette, corner of Ward street, where he will keep on hand a good assortment of

Cabinet Furniture, Feathers, Looking Glasses and Clocks.

Salem, April 12, 1845.

LAMP BLACK.

1000 POUNDS of Lamp Black, warranted a prime article.

3000 Madras Goat Skins, in crust. Goat and Sheep Morocco. Kid, Linings, and Bindings.

For sale by W. & M. BLACK Jr.,
apr 12 New Mills, Danvers.

Ploughs & Cultivators,

MANUFACTURED BY
RUGGLES, NOURSE & MASON,
And other Agricultural Tools,
FOR SALE BY
DANIEL RICHARDS,
Danvers Plains, March 29, 1845.

Opening of Spring!

Magnificent, Chaste and Original Designs for Remodeling

"OAK HALL!"

FOR SPRING TRADE !

OPENING OF "OAK HALL" FOR THREE MONTHS!

Advice to Professianol Men, Merchants, Clerks with moderate Salaries, Farmers, Mechanics, Seamen, Firemen and others, VISIT OAK HALL!

ARRIVAL OF SPRING GOODS!
To Wholesale Dealers.

THE OPENING

This Morning, for Three Months !

I would again most respectfully inform the citizens of Boston, and strangers visiting the city, (after a delay of six weeks, during which time I have not been idle,) I have completed my arrangements on the most

MAGNIFICENT SCALE,

greatly surpassing my former arrangements. The Hall is splendidly decorated with almost

MAGIC ELEGANCE !

The architecture being Gothic, has given the artist an opportunity to display his taste to advantage. The paintings which adorn the walls are so perfectly chaste and appropriate, that every one will be fully compensated the trouble of visiting it. The design and effect of the interior, especially when

ILLUMINATED IN THE EVENING,

Is unequalled in any store this side of the Atlantic. Much praise is due to the artist, for his share in beautifying this Establishment. I flatter myself that the good taste of my fellow citizens and townsmen will fully appreciate all I have done, as my Establishment was the FIRST and ONLY ONE that adopted the

DARING LOW PRICE SYSTEM,

Before "OAK HALL" was in existence, it was not an uncommon thing thing for a gentleman to pay from $45 to $50 for a suit of clothes. For one half of this sum or less. a perfect and entire suit can be obtained at this Establishment, cut and made with that ease and grace, that distinguish my garments from others. From this

EMPORIUM OF FASHION

first originated the Gothic style of architecture in Boston, and Oak Painting, &c. now so much in fashion. To those who have not visited this great

PLACE OF RESORT,

on account of the name of the street, I would most respectfully say, that where my establishment is located was once the Court end of Boston, and at this time is visited and patronized by the most influential and respectable individuals. Man, not unlike the fields, and Trees, once covered with a beautiful suit of Green is now breaking from its Coat of Ice and Snow and, having its rusty suit of nature soon to be warmed into animation, and renew its beautiful suit of Green, So with Man—wrapped up in his Overcoat, he now on the opening of Spring, finds his under suit rusty and shabby, and is not suitable to wear. The next thing is to find a good place to fit out at a

REASONABLE PRICE,

and to be sure and have a GOOD FITTING SUIT, that will set upon the form with ease, grace and gentility.

FIVE GOOD REASONS

Why you can purchase at OAK HALL less than at any other Establishment in the United States :

FIRST—You do not pay me for YOUR suit, and the INDIVIDUAL'S that did not pay previous to you, as MY business is Cash on delivery.

SECOND—If any Garment made to order is not pleasing in every particular, it is no inconvenience to take it back and make another, as Ready Made Garments are directly in my line.

THIRD—I purchase my Goods in large lots, extremely cheap, and give my customers the benefit, by selling them at the smallest advances,

Fourth—I go by the motto.

LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS,

OR AS SOME SAY,

"NO PROFITS AT ALL."

That I'll leave with my customer to decide.

FIFTH—My facilities are such at this time doing a

LARGE BUSINESS,

that I can afford to sell at

VEVY LOW PRICES !

BOYS' CLOTHING.

I have lately added to my already extensive manufactory of Boys' Clothing, rooms for the manufacture of Boys' Clothing, and shall keep a large supply of every variety and kind, always on hand.

TO WHOLESALE DEALERS.

You will find the greatest variety of every style of Fresh Manufactured Clothihg, adapted for Spring, to your different Trades, and will be sold extremely low in large lots !

AT RETAIL.

One of the largest and, best selected Stock of Fresh Spring Goods ever in "OAK HALL," and will be sold at the following low prices.—

PANTALOONS.

2500 pair of Fancy Spring patterns of Satinet Pants, at	1 75 to 2 50
3000 pair Steel Mixt Pants,	1 62 to 3 00
2200 do Sheeps Grey Pants	1 75 to 3 00
2500 do Canada Gray do,	1 75 to 3 00
3000 do Black Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 50
5000 do Lavender Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 00
2200 do Super black do Pants, with fancy stripe,	4 00 to 5 00
1500 Super blue Broadcloth and Cassimere Pants	3 50 to 4 50

THIN COATS.

3500 Coats and Sacks, American Gingham,	75 to 1 00
5000 Coats and Sacks, Scotch Gingham,	1 25 to 1 75
4800 Coats and Sacks Scotch Gingham, satin figure,	1 50 to 1 75
2700 Coats and Sacks, Webster Check	75 to 1 25
3750 Coats and Sacks, London Plaids,	1 25 to 175
4000 Coats and Sacks, of Linen and other goods,	1 00 to 1 75

THIN PANTS.

8000 pair thin Pants of every quality of Goods at low prices, say from 50 cents to $2 50 per pair.

VESTS.

300 light Vests, a very pretty affair for Spring,	50c to 1 00
4500 Dark Valencia,	75 to 1 50
5500 Fine Valencia, dark and light	1 50 to 2 50
2700 Satin Vests, figured and plain,	2 00 to 3 00

DRESS AND FROCK COATS.

5000 super Dress Coats, all colors, green, blue, black, olive, &c. from $4 to $15.

1750 super Frock Coats, all colors, Mullberry, browns, etc. from $6 to $16.

All the above cut in the latest style, and made up expressly for Spring Trade.

500 Business Coats, at low prices, say from $2 to $5.

2200 Tweed Coats, water proof, from $3,75 to $5.

FURNISHING DEPARTMENT.

Great Display of Furnishing Goods at the following low prices, vis :

150	dozen White Shirts—Linen Bosoms, Collars and Ribands.	75c to 1 25 each
100	do White Shirts, plain.	50c to 75c do
150	do Fancy Shirts,	62 1-2 to 87 1-2
200	do Twilled Shirts,	50 to 62 1-2 do
25	do Rich Figured Satin Scarfs,	Low prices.
20	do do do do do
50	do do do do do
50	do Spring Pattern Cravats,	12 1-2 to 75c
25	do Rich Fig'd Satin do.	75c to 1 25
50	do Stocks, of every description, such as Satin Bombazine, &c. and made in the latest Spring Style, 1845	37 1-2 to 1 50
10	do Brussells Carpet Bags, and others,	1 00 to 2 75
75	do Smoking Caps,	12 1-2 to 25c
200	do Braces of every description,	12 1-2 to 50c
25	do Thread do	25 to 50c
20	do Silk do	50 to 75c
100	do Linen Bosoms—all kinds,	25 to 75c
300	do do Collars, latest pattern,	10 to 25c
250	do Canes,	17c to 1 00
325	do Umbrellas,	50c to 1 50
50	do Glazed Silk Caps,	1 00 to 1 25
100	do do do	25 to 37c
505	do Silk Pocket Hdkfs	25 to 75c

An endless variety of Fancy Articles, such as Gold and Fancy Studs—Hair Brushes—Clothes do—Pocket Combs—Dressing do—Tooth Brshes—Cologne—Bosom Pins—Fancy Soaps—Silk Purses—Guard Chains—Pant Straps, &c. &c.

A LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO THE TRADE.

My furnishing Goods are purchased from first rate hands, at low prices, and will be sold at small advance to the trade at my

EXTENSIVE LONG ROOMS,
OAK HALL BUILDING,

GEORGE W. SIMMONS,
General Tailor, Draper and Outfitter,
32, 34, 36, and 38 Ann street,
Opposite Merchant's Row—BOSTON.

apr 19 3m

DOWLEY & WHALL,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, AND
AUCTIONEERS,
FOR THE SALE OF
Boots, Shoes, Leather and all kinds of Shoe Stock, at Private and Auction Sale,
Nos. 21 and 22 PEARL Street,
Levi A. Dowley, } BOSTON.
Joseph B. Whall, }

Cash liberally advanced on Boots, Shoes and Shoe Stock, for private and public sales.

—References—

Messrs. Jos. Whitney & Co., } Boston.
" Josiah M. Jones, Esq., }
" Spofford, Tileston, & Co., }
" Shepard Knapp, Esq., } New York.
" C. M. Leupp & Co., }
" Haddock, Hazletine & Reed, Philadelphia
" Poland, Jenkins & Co., Baltimore.
" Friend, Humphrey & Co., Albany.

mch 29 1y

GENTLEMEN'S SHIRTS, BOSOMS & DICKEYS.

A GOOD variety now opening at EDWARDS'S,
apr 6 14 Front street, Salem.

VIOLINS.—A fresh supply of Violins, cheap and good, just received. Also, on hand, and procured to order, Accordions, with and without semitones, Flutes, Clarionets Strings, and Music merchandize of every description. New Music is received daily.—Music bound at short notice.

ap 17 W S CLEVELAND & Co, 193 Essex st.

NECK STOCKS, SCARFS, CRAVATS, TIES, ITALIAN CRAVATS.

A GOOD assortment of the above just received
EDWARDS'S,
apr 5 14 Front street, Salem.

M. TELYEA,

MERCHANT TAILOR,
MAIN STREET.

WOULD respectfully inform his friends and the public generally, that he has just returned from Boston with a select stock of

BROADCLOTHS,

such as German blue-black and English blue-black, brown and olive, and a very nice Tweed for Sack Coats or Pants.

German and English CASSIMERES AND DOESKINS of all kinds for Pants

VESTINGS,

such as Satin and fine Cassimere, uncut Velvet, and Fancy and many other varieties of vestings.

The above will be sold Cheap for Cash and for Cash only.

M. T. as above, continues to make garments to order at short notice, and warranted as good a fit as can be obtained at any other establishment in Salem or Boston or in any of these diggins any way you can fix it.

Grateful for past favors, a continuance of public patronage is respectfully solicited.

The Spring Fashions just received from New York.

apr 12

Dissolution of Co-Partnership.

THE Co-partnership heretofore existing under the firm of

PERKINS, WELCH & CO.,

is this day dissolved by mutual consent.

I. PERKINS,
P. D. PERKINS,
SAMUEL WELCH.

South Danvers, March 24th, 1845.

The business will be continued at the old stand, Central street, by

PERKINS & CO.,

who are authorized to settle all accounts of the late firm. They will keep constantly on hand a good assortment of the BEST GROCERIES which they will sell on the most reasonable terms. A share of patronage is respectfully solicited. mch 29

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

JONATHAN W. OSBORNE has taken into Co-partnership MICHAEL L. WHIDDEN, and they will continue the

Painting, Glazing & Papering

business, at the old Stand, No 10 PARK STREET, under the firm of

OSBORNE & WHIDDEN.

Particular attention to

SIGN PAINTING,

IMITATIONS OF WOOD, MARBLE, BRONZE, GROUND GLASS, &c.

mch 29 1y

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
OFFICE IN FELTON (late Osborne's Building,)
Danvers, March 29th. tf

CHARLES H. MANNING,
CABINET MAKER,

Near the Sign of the Lamb, Main Street,
DANVERS, MASS.

FURNITURE manufactured on the most reasonable terms. Also—CURRIER'S TABLES made and repaired cheap.

SHOE-MAKERS' PEGGING BENCHES made as above. oct 15

EASY SHAVING AND HAIR CUTTING.

B. B. WILLIAMS respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has removed to the store formerly occupied by Lambert & Merrill, (under the Courier Office,) which he has fitted up in a neat manner, and is now prepared to wait upon those who believe that

"Man wants but little beard below,
Nor wants that little long."

Champooing, Hair Cutting and Shaving is performed to the satisfaction of all who may favor him with a call.

Danvers, March 15, 1845. tf

POOLE & STEDMAN,
MAKERS OF
CARRIAGES, HARNESSES, TRUNKS, &c.

THE subscribers having formed a Co-partnership under the above firm, are ready to attend to any orders in their line.

Particular attention paid to repairing.

S. A. POOLE,
G. B. STEDMAN.

N. B. Valises, Ladies' Satchels, Carpet Bags, &c. constantly on hand and for sale cheap.

Corner of Grove and Main Streets.

Danvers, March 15.

PERIODICALS, PAPERS, &c.

LUTHER CHANDLER, GENERAL AGENT for the sale of all the principal Periodicals, Newspapers, &c., and will furnish them to all persons who may wish to subscribe; among which are

Graham's Magazine,	Harper's Pictorial Bible,
Ladies' National do,	Verplanck's Shakspeare,
Arthur's Lady's do,	Phil Saturday Courier,
Christian Family Mag.,	Neal's Gazette,
Gentlemen's Magazine,	New York Mirror,
Godey's Lady's Book,	Frost's Pictorial World,

The above and all the principal periodicals and papers will be furnished promptly.

☞ BOOKS BOUND at the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

Orders may be left at J. SHED'S, opposite the Monument, South Danvers. 1y mch 29

Great Bargains

ARE NOW BEING HAD AT THE

Washington Street Clothing Store, Salem.

GARMENTS of all description may be obtained at prices which cannot fail to give entire satisfaction.

Great care has been taken in the getting up of every garment, all of which is warranted equal, if not superior to any Clothing in the city.

The subscriber continues to take measures as formerly, and all Garments bespoken, will be made according to the wishes of the customer, and will guarantee both the style and fit.

☞ BOY WANTED, as an Apprentice.

S. CHAMBERLAIN, JR.

Salem, March, 15. tf

☞ PAPER HANGINGS. ☜

THE subscriber has made such an extensive arrangement with the principal manufacturers of Paper Hangings that he is enabled to sell them at the lowest prices, wholesale and retail. New patterns will be received every week as soon as they are out.

2800 rolls of new styles for the Spring trade have been received within a few days. Unusual inducements are thus offered to purchasers of House Paper of all descriptions, from the highest finished Satin to the most common Paper, (call and see for yourselves.) Country dealers supplied on the most reasonable terms. SAMUEL B. FOSTER

30 Lawrence [illegible]

Near the Railroad Station. Be sure and [illegible] place, Foster, 30 Lawrence Place, Salem. enquire for

mch 15

AUCTIONS.

BY DOWLEY & WHALL,

[Store Nos 21 and 22 Pearl street, Boston.]

Monthly Sale of Boots, Shoes, and Brogans.

On WEDNESDAY, April 23, at 9 o'clock, at store.

300 CASES of Boots, Shoes and Brogans, comprising an assortment of seasonable goods.

Cash advanced on goods, for this and the Semi-Annual Sale ; which takes place in July, or for any of our Monthly sales.

On SATURDAY, May 3d, at 12 1-2 o'clock, at stor e

Sole Leather and Shoe Stock.

2500 SIDES of Sole Leather, and a general assortment of Shoe Stock.

LYNDE PLACE.

THE subscribers would respectfully inform the citizens of Danvers and vicinity, that they have just received and are now opening a full and complete assortment of

DRY GOODS,

adapted to the present season. comprising a splendid assortment of SHAWLS, embracing every quality and price.

DRESS GOODS,

in great variety, consisting of Corded Cashmeres Mousseline de Laines; Crape do do; Cashmere do; CALICOES of every description.

WHITE GOODS, LINENS, DOMESTICS, WOOLEN GOODS, etc. etc.

J. A. FARNSWORTH & CO.,

apr 5 1m 147 Essex street, Salem.

THE
Massachusetts Mechanic Association
HAVING AWARDED TO
GOVE, LOCKE & CO.,

and no one else, a DIPLOMA for specimens of

The Best Ready Made Clothing !

Exhibited by them at the Mechanics' Fair in September last, must satisfy the community that the location of an establishment is of but little importance, and that the idea of being confined to a particular section of the city, in order to obtain a

GENTEEL GARMENT,

has been rendered obsolete, by the above named award, as without prejudice the award was made to those who deserved it Being convinced themselves, that their CUSTOM WORK has not been surpassed in any point of view, still they have been obliged to stem the current against the strongest prejudices, and have, by unremitted attention to the tastes and desires of their patrons, to a very considerable extent, overcome them, resulting in a successful trade, and encouraging them to prosecute the NEW ENGLAND BRANCH OF THEIR BUSINESS, with renewed vigor, and to devote a large share of their attention the present season, to the

Highest Grade of Custom Work !

Being now prepared with every facility adapted to the various classes in the community, they can furnish any style of Garment which their notion or fancy may dictate—aiming

In point of Style and Fashion,
to be in advance of any other
CLOTHING ESTABLISHMENT !

and being at all times supplied with materials of every description, they are prepared to turn out at the shortest notice

AS GOOD AND AS GENTEEL A GARMENT,

as can be obtained in the United States, and have entire confidence in making the assertion, having Cutters constantly

ENGAGED ON CUSTOM WORK:

who are inferior to none in this region, enabling them to assure those who have favored them with their patronage, that no pains will be spared to deserve a continuance of their support—and to those who lack confidence in a Clothing Establishment, because it is situated on

COMMERCIAL STREET,

they would say that a specimen of their work can be seen in nearly every section of the city, particularly on the backs of

THE MOST GENTEEL PEOPLE !

and to them they refer, in relation not only to the treatment which is universally tendered to them by all concerned in the

COMMERCIAL ARCADE !

but more especially in regard to the price as the Proprietors have by experience ascertained that they can furnish a

FIRST RATE GARMENT !

at a medium price, equal in every respect to those furnished up in town, at an exhorbitant one. Their Stock of Clothing, adapted to the

SPRING SALES !

is far superior to any previous year, and the patronage of the public is respectfully invited, whether in pursuit of a single garment or otherwise, as their stock embraces every article essential or requisite to the wardrobe of a gentleman, while its magnitude enables them to supply COUNTRY DEALERS in any quantity at the shortest notice, and on the best terms.

WHOSESALE DEALERS !

located any where from Maine to Georgia, or even in Texas, can find at this concern an assortment of Wearing Apparel adapted to their sales, and are invited before concluding their

SPRING PURCHASES !

—TO CALL—

At No. 60 Commercial street.

BOSTON,

Sign of the Monument,—and visit the proprietors of

COMMERCIAL ARCADE,
GOVE, LOCKE & COMPANY.

Boston, March 29, 1845. 3m

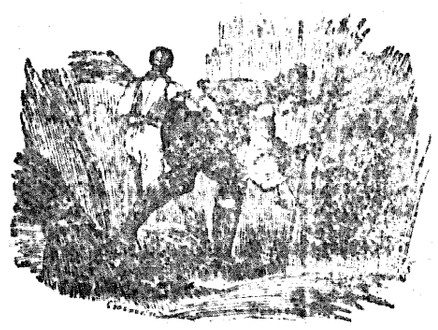
REMOVAL.

SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

Rich Jewelry and Fancy Goods,

HAVE removed to the New Store, No. 291 Essex street, (next above Mechanic Hall) where they will keep constantly for sale Gold Finger Rings, Breast Pins, Bracelets, Lockets, Keys, Gold and Silver Pencil Cases, Silver Thimbles, Silver and Plated Table and Tea Spoons, Butter Knives, Silver Plated and Brittania Ware, Shell, Horn, and Ivory Combs, Pocket Books, Purses, &c., &c.



N. B. All kinds of Jewelry repaired in a superior manner and warranted. Old Gold or [illegible] Jewelry, made over or exchanged for new.

S. & C. having acquired a th[illegible] knowledge of the business in New York, [illegible] as well as our success for the past five years in th[illegible] city, will, we feel assured, enable us to execute [illegible] with approbation any orders entrusted to our care.

☞ Thankful [illegible] for past patronage, we solicit a continuance of the same. tf March 15.

GRASS SEED.

3000 POUNDS CLOVER SEED ;
50 bags Red Top Seed ;
150 bushels Herds Grass Seed ;
Orchard Grass and White Clover Seed—for sale by S. CHAMBERLAIN & SON,
march 15 Front Street, Salem.

Ploughing in Clover.—Among other questions which ought to be (and may be) decided, is that of the relative advantage of ploughing in or pasturing clover. It seems to be taken for granted by many, that ploughing is more beneficial to the land, and a more profitable course, than feeding it off by animals. But we do not think this point by any means established. In a conversation with Mr. Noble of Massillon, Ohio, he observed that, from his own experience he had been led to the conclusion that a much greater profit could be derived from pasturing clover with sheep, than from ploughing it in. He had found the wheat crop as good or better where the clover was pretty closely fed down by the sheep, as where that crop had been ploughed under; the land in both cases being similar. If this would be the general result, the additional profits would decide the case much in favor of pasturage.

In a late number of the New Genesee Farmer we find Mr. Wm. Gardut (a very judicious farmer) entertains similar ideas to those expressed. Mr. G. considers pasturing clover two years with sheep more profitable to the soil, and more beneficial to the wheat crop than ploughing it under.

We would suggest to agricultural societies the propriety of offering premiums for experiments to test this matter.—Selected.

Clean Quarters for Hogs.—A writer in the Farmer's Cabinet, says:—"The hog has the reputation of being a dirty fellow—but he likes to be dirty in his own way, and for his own pleasure: he neither prefers to live cold, nor always in filth; still less does he choose to be half fed Dr. Franklin's man said the hog was the only gentleman in England, because he alone was exonerated from labor; in America, where he does labor, and is none the less a gentleman, he surely deserves to be well fed and well housed."

New Species of Cabbage.—The Alabama Journal has been presented with a novel vegetable of the cabbage kind, from Belgium, raised by the Hon. H. W. Hilliard. This vegetable is about the size of a small hen's, egg, and is a perfect cabbage, firm and white; it is said to be a most delicate dish, and superior to any of the same family of plants. The seeds were sown in May and transplanted in August, as other cabbage plants are, each plant producing from thirty to forty of these beautiful little cabbage-heads.

Salt for Fruit Trees.—A writer in the Gardener's Chronicle says:—"I have a large handsome Bigarreau cherry tree, which blossomed and fruited, and then drooped. I cut from the turf, a triangular six inch trench round salt, and put the turf on again. I have had noble crops ever since, (seven years) but it makes little or no wood.

MISCELLANY.

THE GYASCUTUS.

As this very formidable animal is undoubtedly "loose," and as there is no knowing the amount of mischief he may occasion while roaming at large and disturbing the cogitations of those quiet people who know nothing about him—a statement of the particulars concerning his origin, and remarkable escape, will, no doubt, be thankfully received by an anxious public.

The story goes, that a couple of yankees traveling south, ran short of funds, and resolved themselves into a committee of ways and means for the purpose of effecting a "raise." They determined to take advantage of the passion for shows, which possessed our people in those days, when the elephant, and rhinoceros, and lions and monkeys, were being exhibited all over the country. One of these worthy couple, it was agreed between them, was to personate a rare beast, for which they invented the name of Gyascutus; while the other was to be keeper or "showman"—to exhibit the said Gyascutus to the curious spectators, stir him with a stick, throw him his food, discourse of his history, capture, qualities, &c.

Accordingly the advertisement was made at the next village, to the effect that a rare and interesting specimen of animated nature, called the Gyascutus, would that night be exhibited to the enlightened and generous public of that town and vicinity. This animal, it was set forth, "was captured on the disputed territory, where his species was found, roving in the wilds of the Aroostook, on the banks of the Penobscot, and over the circumjacent hills of the Passamaquoddy—more ferocious and terrible than the gnu, the hyena or ant eater of the African desert! Admittance 25 cents, children and servants half price."

Curiosity was on tiptoe. Everybody crowded the door at the appointed time, where Jonathan the showman gravely received their quarters and dimes, and politely bowed them in. Across a corner of the room was stretched a stout curtain, behind which was stationed Jonathan the Gyascutus. The curtain did not quite reach the ground, and beneath it the curiosity of the spectators was tempted, by a partial view of four horrible feet, which to less excited fancies would have borne a wonderful similitude to the feet and hands of a live yankee, with stripes of coonskin sewed to his wrists and ankles! With palpitating hearts they saw those big feet move and flap about, as the monster shook his chain and muttered his discontent in unearthly growls.

The designated moment for opening the exhibition arrived, and Jonathan having stowed a goodly amount of the shining spoil in the big pockets of his pepper-and-salt coat, he stepped deliberately up to the curtain, for the purpose of commencing the performance.

"Ladies and gentleman," said he, "the Gyascutus is not only remarkable for the singularity and ferocity of his appearance, but for the terrible tones of his voice. Before raising the curtain, I will proceed to stir him a little with this here stick, just to let you have a specimen of the music with which he makes his native wilds resound, when angry, or about to seize and run off with his unsuspecting prey." He accordingly disappeared—the stick was plied upon the Gyascutus—the beast gave a few premonitory grunts, but waxing in wrath, he began to rattle his chain like mad, and roar and growl in the most hideous sort, to the unspeakable delightful horror of all present. Expectation, mixed with a portion of apprehension, was wrought up to the highest pitch.—When just at this juncture, Jonathan leaped out with a bound—his eyes starting with fear—his limbs trembling in every joint—terror in all his looks—exclaiming, "Ladies and gentlemen—save yourselves!—the Gyascutus is loose!

Pell mell, hurly burly, fainting, screaming, leaping, crowding, the spectators rolled out; while Jonathan and the Gyascutus retired the back way, with all reasonable expedition, and are now, for aught we know, enjoying the rewards of their adventure among the circumjacent hills of the Passamaquoddy.

EDUCATION OF HUSBANDS.

The following is from a late number of the London Punch. The author must be one of the unhappy fraternity of old bachelors who are great adepts at making a virtue of necessity.

Husbands ought to be educated. We should like to have the following questions put to young and inexperienced "Persons about to Marry;"—

Are you aware, Sir, of the price of coals and candles?

Do you know which is more economical, the aitch-bone, or the round?

How far, young man, will a leg of mutton go in a small family?

How much dearer, now, is silver than Britannia?

Please to give the average price of Haddock and cod fish?

Declare, if you can, rash youth, the sum per annum, that chemisettes, pelerines, cardinals, bonnets, veils, ribbons, flowers, gloves, cuffs, and collars, would probably come to in the lump.

If unable to answer these inquiries, we would say to him, "Go back to school."

He that would be a husband should also undergo a training, physical and moral. He should be further examined thus:—

Can you read or write amid the yells of a nursery?

Can you wait any given time for breakfast?

Can you maintain your serenity during a

Can you cut your old friends?

Can you stand being contradicted in the face of all reason?

Can you do what you are told without being told why?

In a word, young Sir, have you the patience of Job?

If you can lay your hand upon your heart and answer "Yes," take your license and marry—not else.

A FAMILY.

A correspondent of the New Haven Courier, writing from the village of Leesville, gives the following account of a Connecticut family:

But the most interesting thing about Leesville is, that it is the birthplace of the 'fourteen daughters.' To say 'the fourteen daughters,' or one of the fourteen daughters,' would require no explanation here, or in any part of Middlesex country, but with you it may not be quite so plain. I will explain. In the largest and most commodious house in the village, resides a Mr Whitmore, (I forget his christian name,) who is the father of FOURTEEN daughters. He never had a son. Twelve of the daughters have been married and are now living. What is a little singular, every one of his daughters were married in regular rotation; that is, the oldest one first and so on. The father was heard jokingly to remark; 'I will have no picking in my family, you must take them as they come.' The daughters have ever sustained a high reputation for their many virtues and good qualifications, and make as exemplary wives as dutiful daughters. All the twelve married respectable worthy men, and have been peculiarly blest in the marriage relation. When the last child was born, Mr Whitmore was so disappointed that it was not a son, he wept like a child. Although the old gentleman was not blessed with a son, he has many GRANDSONS, and will probaby have scores of them. The two daughters that have died, quietly repose side by side in the neat burying-ground of the village. Over the grave of each the father has caused to be erected grave-stones, and on them are carved weeping willows, with fourteen branches to each. The first stone that was erected had one branch broken from the tree, which lay beneath; the second one, two branches.

To direct a wanderer in the right way, is to light another man's candle by one's own, which loses none of its light by what the other gains.

LAWS OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Resolves concerning the convicts in the state prison.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the treasury of the Commonwealth, to the Inspectors of the State Prison, the sum of one hundred dollars, to be expended by them in purchasing books for the use of the convicts in said prison, and that a warrant be drawn accordingly.

Resolved, That the books hereby authorized to be purchased be distributed among the convicts in such manner, and under such regulations as the inspectors may from time to time direct, and that the warden be authorized and required to furnish the convicts with such lights as will enable them to read until nine o'clock in the evening.

Approved by the Governor, March 11, 1845.

An Act concerning the prosecution and conviction of Forgers and other offenders.

Be it enacted &c., as follows:

The rewards provided for in the nineteenth section of the one hundred and twenty-seventh chapter of the Revised Statutes, may, at the discretion of the Governor, with the advice of the Council, be paid after conviction, and before sentence of the offenders therein named.

Approved by the Governor, March 18, 1845.

An Act authorizing Judges of Probate to appoint Trustees in certain cases.

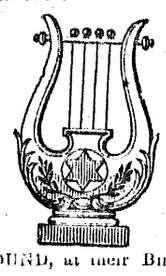
Be it enacted, &c., as follows:—If in any will creating a trust or trusts, the testator shall have omitted to appoint a trustee to carry the same into effect, the judge of probate may, after notice to all persons interested, appoint a trustee; and every trustee appointed by any judge of probate, by force of this act, shall have and exercise the same powers, rights and duties, as if he had been originally appointed by the testator, and the trust estate shall vest in him in like manner as it would have vested, if appointed by the testator.

Approved by the Governor, March 18, 1845.

CALENDAR OF COURTS

TO BE HELD IN THE COUNTY OF ESSEX IN THE YEAR 1845.

April	1	Probate,—Salem.
"	2	" Marblehead.
"	8	County Commissioners,—Ipswich.
"	15	Probate,—Haverhill.
"	29	Supreme Judicial,—Ipswich.
May	6	Probate,—Ipswich.
"	13	" Gloucester.
"	20	" Salem.
June	3	" Ipswich.
"	10	" Newburyport.
"	16	Common Pleas,—Ipswich.
July	1	Probate,—Salem.
"	2	" Lynn.
"	8	County Commissioners,—Salem.
"	15	Probate,—Andover, S. P.
August	5	" Ipswich.
"	12	" Salem.
Sept.	2	" Ipswich.
"	9	" Newburyport.
"	15	Common Pleas,—Newburyport.
Oct.	7	Probate,—Salem.
"	8	" Marblehead.
"	14	County Commissioners.—Newburyp't.
"	21	Probate,—Haverhill.
Nov.	4	Supreme Judicial,—Salem.
"	4	Probate,—Ipswich.
"	11	" Gloucester.
"	18	" Salem.
Dec.	2	" Ipswich.
"	9	" Newburyport.
"	15	Common Pleas, Ipswich.
"	23	County Commissioners,—at such place as ordered at the preceding term.



Book, Stationery & Music Store.

WM. S. CLEVELAND & CO.,

Opposite the Mansion House. No. 193 Essex Street,—SALEM.

HAVE CONSTANTLY ON HAND,

A COMPLETE assortment of Standard and Miscellaneous Books.
BLANK BOOKS, of every description.
Fine STATIONERY, Paper, Quills, &c.
Steel Pens, Ink, &c.
Parallel Rules, Wafers, &c.
SCHOOL BOOKS.—Traders from the country and School Committees, furnished with School Books, by the hundred or dozen, at the lowest prices.
All the popular School Books in quantities, on hand.
NEW PUBLICATIONS received as they issue from the press.
Ruled and Plain CAP and POT PAPERS, Ruled and Plain LETTER PAPER, Wrapping and Cartridge Paper, by the ream.

VIOLINS, FLUTES, CLARINETS, FIFES, &c. BASS VIOL and VIOLIN STRINGS, for sale by the bundle or single, at New York prices. Together with a complete assortment of Musical Instruments.

BOOKS REBOUND, at their Bindery Establishment. march 15

A FARM FOR SALE.

SITUATED in Byfield Parish, Newbury, 4 1-2 miles from Newburyport, 1 1-4 miles from the meeting-house, 1-1 mile from Dummer Academy, and 3 1-2 miles from the Rowley depot, and is on the stage road from Newburyport to Georgetown, Andover and Lowell, containing 81 acres of Land, enclosed by a good stone wall, in good repair.

The buildings consist of a good Dwelling House, 2 stories high, containing 5 lower rooms, 8 chambers a milk room, a brick milk cellar, with a good cellar under the whole house. Also, a Wood House and Grain Chamber attached to the house. It has 2 good Barns, in good repair, a Chaise and Waggon House, and Work Shop, with a Store Chamber.

There is on the Farm a great variety of Apple Trees, consisting of Baldwins, Russets, Greenings, Gardner Sweetings, &c., from which was gathered over 250 bbls the last season. Half an acre is enclosed for a Garden, containing a choice collection of peach, pear and plum trees, red and white Currants, Grape Vines, Strawberry and Quince Bushes.

Water is conducted into the house by a pipe from a never-failing spring of soft water, precluding the necessity of a cistern.

Also, a large Ox Waggon and Cart, both of which have Iron axletrees, and every kind of farming utensil, together with the stock of said farm. For further particulars inquire on the premises of

EBENEZER STEDMAN, or
mch 29 tf W. D. NORTHEND, Danvers.

EASTERN RAILRAOD.

SUMMER ARRANGMENT.

ON and after April 4th, 1845, Trains leave daily, (Sundays excepted.)

Boston for Portland, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P. M.
" Portsmouth, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 5 1-2 P.M.
" Somersworth, Great Falls, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 P.M.
" for Newburyport, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 and 5 1-2 P.M.
" for Salem, 7 1-4, 9, A.M., 12 1-4 2 1-2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2, 7 1-2 P.M.

Salem for Portland, 8 A.M., 3 1-4 P.M.
Salem for Portsmouth and Newburyport, 8 A.M., 3 1-4, 6 1-4 P.M.
Portland for Boston, 7 1-2 A.M., 3 P.M.
Saco for Boston, 8 A.M., 3 1-2 P.M.
Somersworth, Great Falls for Boston, 8 3-4 A.M.; 4 1-4 P.M.
South Berwick 1ot Boston, 9 1-4 A M, 4 3-4 P.M.
Portsmouth for Boston, 6 1-2, 10,* A.M., 5 1-2* P.M.
Newburyp't for Boston, 8 1-4, 10 3-4* AM. 6 1-4* P.M.
Salem for Boston, 7 -2, 8 1-2, 10 1-4 11 3-1,* A.M.; 2 1-4, 5, 7,* P.M.
*Or on their arrival from the East.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Trains leave Marblehead for Salem, at 7 1-4, 8 1-4, 10, A.M.; 2, 4, 4 3-4, 7, P M.
Leave Salem for Marblehead, at 8, 9 3-4 A. M., 1, 3 1-4, 4 1-4, 6 1-4, 8 1-4 P. M.

A Merchandize Train will leave Boston, Portland and all intermediate places every day.

Freight Office in Boston, No. 17 Merchants Row, and on the line of the road at the several Depots.

JOHN KINSMAN,
apr 12 Master of Transportation.

MICKLEFIELD & CO.,

KEEP CONSTANTLY ON HAND AT THE
CITY MILLS, SALEM,
Nos. 31, 33, 35, 37, 39 Mill Street,
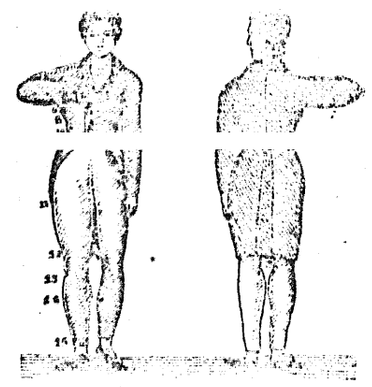
BRANCH, MOTTLED AND PLAIN
VENEERS,
CEDAR AND MAHOGANY
Boards. Plank and Joist.
ALSO—GRAIN AND MEAL.
Wholesale and Retail on the most reasonable terms, for Cash or approved credit.
Also—CIRCULAR, VENEER AND OTHER
Sawing and Turning.
☞They also GRIND all kinds of Grain.
All orders entrusted to their care will be attended to with punctuality and care.

JOHN JEWETT,
T. H. PRIME,
mch 15 J. A. KENNY.

S. R. BOTT,



DRAPER & TAILOR,
No. 148 Essex Street, Salem,

TAKES this method of informing the public of Danvers and vicinity that he has for sale one of the richest and BEST selected assortments of Broadcloths, Cassimeres & Vestings ever before offered in Salem. The Stock is of the latest Spring and Summer styles, and cannot be surpassed by any establishment in the city, which will be sold by the yard, or made into Garments, in a style that CANNOT be surpassed in this or any other city.

☞Strangers from the country would do well to call at this establishment, as they select their Goods with the most perfect confidence, that each article is as good in quality, and as low in price as can be obtained at any other store.

N. B. The report of Fashions received every month.

Salem, March 15, 1845.

BENJAMIN EDWARDS,
DRAPER & TAILOR,
No. 14 FRONT STREET, SALEM.

GARMENTS Cut and Made to order, and Fashionably, and warranted to give entire satisfaction

Constantly on hand, a good assortment of
BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES, AND VESTINGS.
Also—Neck Stocks Italian Cravats, Scarfs, Shirt Bosoms, Collars, Feelings, Braces, Umbrellas, Hair and Clothes Brushes, Cologne Water, Wallets,
and other articles necessary for Gentlemen's use.

Grateful for the very liberal patronage which has heretofore been bestowed upon the establishment, he hopes by care and attention to business to merit a continuance.

Any order for Goods in the TAILORING LINE, attended to with fidelity and despatch.

All Garments Repaired and Cleansed CHEAP.

Any of the above articles if not on hand when called for, will be furnished at short notice.

mch 15 tf

REMOVAL.

BOWDOIN'S DAGUERROTYPE ROOMS removed from Mechanic Hall, to the adjoining building above, 295 Essex street, where he has rooms built expressly for the purpose of taking Miniatures in any weather.

Mr. B. tenders his sincere thanks to his friends and the public, for their liberal patronage the past year, and respectfully solicits the continuance of public favor. He has recently purchased a large Achromatic instrument for the purpose of taking GROUPS and LARGE PICTURES, which enable him to give pictures of all sizes, equal to those taken in New York or Boston He has formed a connexion with an establishment in New York, from whence he receives all the new improvements, and materials connected with the Art, which will enable him to give better pictures for less prices than can be obtained in Boston.

Miniatures set in every variety of Lockets, Frames, Cases, &c.

☞Persons visiting Salem, and those about going to sea, can have a perfect likeness completed in a few minutes' time.

 Miniatures set in a neat Morocco Case for $1 50. Exhibition rooms open to visiters through the day.

Salem, March 15. tf

REMOVAL.

DR. J. A. ROBINSON,
SURGEON DENTIST,
SALEM,

WOULD respectfully give notice that he has removed from his old stand, opposite the City Hall, to No. 20 Washington street, recently occupied by A. E. Phillips, where he is ready to perform all operation, in Dentistry, in a most thorough and workmanlike manner.

His experience and success in inserting whole sets either by atmospheric pressure or springs, enable him to furnish them at rates which cannot fail to suit those in want of an article of superior quality.

His method of inserting Teeth, both singly and on plate, with or without Gums, has been found to be satisfactory and successful as combining beauty of finish and adaptation, with all the requisites of mastication and articulation.

Particular attention paid to filling Teeth so as to render them serviceable for many years, and also to the regulation of Children's Teeth.

N B. For sale as above, a first rate article of TOOTH POWDER. 6m mch 15

HENRY WHIPPLE,

At his Book, Chart and Stationery Store,
No. 190 ESSEX STREET,

HAS for sale a general assortment of Books, in the various branches of Literature, all of which he offers for sale on the most reasonable terms.

PERIODICALS—Nearly all that are published in the United States, are regularly received.

H. W. is agent for Sherman's Cough, Camphor, and Worm Lozenges; Scarpa's Kresoote, Acoustic Oil, for the cure of Deafness, $2 00; Dr. Scudder's Genuine Acoustic Oil, for Deafness $1; Phelps's Tomato Pills; Woodbury's Vegetable Pills; Dean's Rheumatic Pills; Hedge's Rheumatic Plaster; Dyott's Anti-Bilious Pills; Gordak's Jelly of Pomegranate; Matthew's Unrivalled Corn Salve; Dr. Robertson's Vegetable Nervous Cordial; Dr. Robertson's Stomatic Elixir of Health, and various other medicines.

PAPER HANGINGS.

In a few days will be received as above a large assortment of new patterns of Papers, from 12 cts to 25 cts. a roll and new patterns of Philadelphia Papers and Borders. Salem, March 15.

SPRING FASHIONS

JUST RECEIVED.

THE subscriber has just received a large and fashionable stock of Spring Goods, consisting of French, English and American

BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES AND DOESKINS.

Also—A rich assortment of VESTINGS, of the latest patterns, which will be made into Garments in the most fashionable style, on reasonable terms

Also received—a nice lot of GENTLEMEN'S SCARFS and STOCKS of the latest styles

Also—GLOVES, SUSPENDERS, SHIRT BOSOMS and COLLARS.

Also—Gentlemen's DRESSING GOWNS constantly on hand. JOHN DOLAN,
mch 15 275 Essex street, Salem.

ADAMS & RICHARDSON,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
HARDWARE.
MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS FOR THE SALE OF
Cut Nails, White Lead, Sheet Lead and Lead Pipe.
NO. 207 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
Joseph Adams, }
C. M. Richardson, }
march 15 tf

EDWARDS' LINIMENT.

For Sprains, Cuts, Bruises, Stiffened or Swelled Joints. Chilblains, Chapped Hands, Numbness and Rheumatism.

THIS invaluable article is now for the first time offered to the public, after having been in use for twenty years, with unusual and astonishing success within the circle of the proprietor's immediate influence. It has received the unqualified commendation of the Faculty, Clergy, Merchants and Mechanics.

It is also recommended, and more than a thousand cases might be cited, when it has been used for Horses in cases of lameness or when galled, &c. &c.

The public are assured that in offering the above we do recommend that which has not the least semblance of QUACKERY, but on the contrary it has done great and lasting good in its efficacious power and healing qualities.

As this medicine has been so long known in Salem and its vicinity, and as there are many that would avail themselves of it if they knew where it could be obtained, therefore the subscriber would now offer it to the public. It will be found always on hand and prepared by the subscriber.

BENJ. EDWARDS,
No. 14 Front street, Salem, Mass.

Wanted—trusty and worthy AGENTS in the neighboring towns and vicinity.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENTS.
DANIELS, POOR & CO., Danvers, Mass.
Benjamin F. Browne, Salem Mass.
Smith & Forde, Boston, "
H. E. Sherry, Bangor, Me.
Charles Whipple, Bookseller, Newburyport.
Wm. R. Preston, Portsmouth, N. H.
John S. Caldwell, Belfast, Me.
Wm. H. Palmer, Lynnfield.
Joseph Edwards, jr., Lynn.
Charles Edwards, Marblehead.
Wm. Edwards, Beverly.
March 15, 1845. tf

G. W & E. CRAFTS,
BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURERS AND STATIONERS,
174 ESSEX STREET, SALEM,

HAVE constantly on hand, and will manufacture to order, all kinds of Blank Books, from the best paper, ruled to any pattern, and bound in a neat and substantial manner.

FINE STATIONERY,

of almost ever description, adapted for counting rooms and schools, comprising in part, Letter and Writing Papers, ruled and plain; Drawing Papers; Note, Tissue and Wrapping Papers; Wafers; Sealing Wax; Seals and Steel Pens of every variety; Quills of every description; wafer Cups; sand boxes; writing fluids and inks; penknives; razors, &c.

PRINTING, RULING AND BINDING,

Printing of shop bills, cards, bill heads, catalogues, &c. executed in the neatest manner and on the best terms. Ruling, to any pattern desired, at short notice. Binding, of every description, executed with despatch.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

A constant supply of school books, of the best editions, together with every kind of School Stationery. Also, all kinds of miscellaneous books furnished at the lowest rates. mch 15

JOB PRINTING,

OF ALL KINDS
EXECUTED AT THE COURIER OFFICE,
WITH DESPATCH,
And on the most favourable Terms.

DANVERS COURIER.

VOL. 1. DANVERS, (MASS.) SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 26, 1845. NUMBER 6.

THE DANVERS COURIER
IS PUBLISHED BY
GEORGE R. CARLTON,
EVERY SATURDAY MORNING,
A few doors North of Mackintire's Hotel,
CENTRAL ST.—SOUTH DANVERS.

Terms—$1 50 if paid in advance, or $2 00, if not paid within one month of the time of subscribing.

The carriers are not allowed to sell any copies of the Courier. Single copies may be obtained at the office, at 5 cents each.

Advertisements will be inserted on favorable terms.

CALENDAR OF COURTS

TO BE HELD IN THE COUNTY OF ESSEX IN THE YEAR 1845.

April 29—Supreme Judicial,—Ipswich.
May 6—Probate,—Ipswich.
" 13 " Gloucester.
" 20 " Salem.
June 3 " Ipswich.
" 10 " Newburyport.
" 16—Common Pleas,—Ipswich.
July 1—Probate,—Salem.
" 2 " Lynn.
" 8—County Commissioners,—Salem.
" 15—Probate,—Andover, S. P.
August 5 " Ipswich.
" 19 " Salem.
Sept. 2 " Ipswich.
" 9 " Newburyport.
" 15—Common Pleas,—Newburyport.
Oct. 7—Probate,—Salem.
" 8 " Marblehead.
" 14—County Commissioners.—Newburyp't.
" 21—Probate,—Haverhill.
Nov. 4—Supreme Judicial,—Salem.
" 4—Probate,—Ipswich.
" 11 " Gloucester.
" 18 " Salem.
Dec. 2 " Ipswich.
" 9 " Newburyport.
" 15—Common Pleas, Ipswich.
" 23—County Commissioners,—at such place as ordered at the preceding term.

POETRY.

WILEY AND PUTNAM'S LIBRARY.

Imagination and Fancy, by Leigh Hunt is the title to the 4th number of Wiley and Putnam's "Library of choice reading." The scenes, thus far, are spoken of by reviewers in the highest terms. They seem to supply a vacuum which has existed between solid and light reading; and if they continue in interest as they have commenced, they will form an invaluable acquisition to every library. They are truly, in the words of "Lamb which are quoted on the covers," "Books which are books."

The volume before us commences with an excellent article on "An answer to the question, what is poetry?" from different poets, from Spenser down to Keats, with notes, and the passages which particularly pleased the Editor, italicised. The selections are very fine. We will give a few extracts, but hardly know where to leave off, they are all so excellent. The following is from Spenser, with the editor's italicising.

HOPE.

With him went hope in rank a handsome maid,
Of cheerful look, and lovely to behold:
In silken samite she was light array'd,
And her fair locks were woven up in gold.
She always smiled;—and in her hand did hold
An holy water sprinkle dipp'd in dew,
With which she sprinkled favors manifold
On whom she list and did great liking shew;
Great liking unto many, but true love to few.

The "Vision of Helen" by Marlowe is a beautiful piece. We extract the following couplet addressed to Helen.

Oh though art fairer than the evening air,
Clad in the beauty of a thousand stars.

The following beautiful extract is from Shakspere's Cymbeline. It is from the description of Imogene sleeping.

'Tis her breathing that
Perfumes the chamber thus:—the flame o' the taper
Bows towards her; and would underpeep her lids,
To see the enclosed lights; now canopied
Under those windows, white and azure, lac'd
With blue of heavens's own tint.

The next and last I shall quote, are a few verses from that beautiful piece by Coleridge upon

LOVE FOR GENEVIEVE.

She wept with pity and delight,
She blushed with love and virgin shame,
And like the murmur of a dream,
I heard her breathe my name.

Her bosom heav'd—she stept aside,
As conscious of my look she stept—
Then suddenly, with timo. ous eye,
She fled to me and wept.

She half enclos'd me in her arms,
She press'd me with a meek embrace;
And bending back her head, look'ed up,
And gazed upon my face.

T'was partly love and partly fear,
And partly 'twas a bashful art
That I might rather feel than see
The swelling of her heart.

I calmed her fears, and she was calm,
And told her love with virgin pride,
And so I won my Genevieve,
My own, my beauteous bride.

We should be glad to quote more extracts, but our space will not allow us. The series, one or all, can be had of W. S. Cleveland & Co. The typography and paper are excellent.

SELECTED TALE.

From Graham's Magazine.

THE CHIEF'S DAUGHTER.

Strange that powerful states should sometimes direct all their mighty engineery against a simple individual, whose weakness should be a protection! Strange that civilized men raise a Juggernaut to crush a butterfly! Strange that the shrinking wild-flower of its own native green wood, the timid bud unfolding by the hearth-stone of an American savage, striking its roots down into his strong heart, and caring for no other soil, could not escape the calculating eye of a great and a refined nation! Thurensera, the beautiful Day-Dawn, the daughter of the noblest sachem among all the Iroquois, the proud, peerless princess of the wilderness, whom the chivalry of the United, Nations delighted to honor, to be duped at last! Ay! such is the fate of beauty and royalty; and the Indian maiden was far from being an isolated victim. In the glittering suite of Queen Anne, in the luxurious palaces of Louis, in the courts of Spain and Italy, and among the republican aristocracy of Germany, wherever power dwelt, wherever a field for intrigue existed, hardened men, and may be hardened women to, were making throbbing hearts the stepping stones to their projects.

It was the influence of Col. Schuyler alone that bound the Five Nations to the English colonies, at a time when her majesty's dominions on this side the water owed their entire safety to these powerful allies. It therefore became a serious study with the French how to counteract this influence, and no means were left unemployed. Agents, undermining and entrapping, were sent out in every direction; and while they were mostly regarded as "birds that sing falsely," sometimes they met with a transient success that encouraged renewed effort. The consideration which Father Le Moyne gained among the Onondegas is matter of history; but Jesuitism was not the only lever which it was thought proper to place beneath the integrity of the Iroquois. Avarice, ambition, love—all the human passions which become such powerful weapons in the hands of the diplomatic courtier—were here employed, and if less successfully the fault was to be attributed to the unpliant material, rather than to the crafty and zealous workmen.

Rumors of the wonderful beauty of Thurensera (the only child of an influencial sachem; who had accompanied Col. Schuyler to England, and returned drunk with the splendor she had witnessed,) had reached the French Provinces; and it had also been told that the child grew so closely to her father's heart as to close up every other avenue. Thurensura, too, loved the English; for the immaculate "Guider" was her sponsor; and the ladies of the English court had not forgotten the beautiful Indian princess in the presents with which they had loaded the chieftains on their return. It was therefore no slight undertaking to attempt to bind the forest brave by a chain that was to reach through his child's heart, when that child was already prepossessed in favour of another nation and another him who should accomplish the project, which, together with hints concerning the power of the Pope over matrimonial shackles, induced a dssiolute young nobleman in want of means to repair his shattered fortune, to set out upon the expedition.—

Du Valle was no indifferent Lothario; even among the fair dames of civilized Europe he had been flattered and caressed; and, as he had once had just enough of honor to learn its language, and was now too entirely divested of it to be troubled with any useless scrupulosities, the young Day-Dawn could scarce have had a more dangerous wooer. He met her first in her native woods, and laid his tribute of game at her feet. Again he saw her, and, notwithstanding her shyness, he managed to stay beside her long enough to weave a wreath of wild-flowers, though he was not allowed to place it on her head. But the wily Frenchman lingered in a neighboring copse to see it adjusted among her black braids by her own hands, and to see with what an air of untaught coquetry she turned from the mirror of the river, and tripped away like a glad bird to her own thicket. At a third meeting he had a bauble for her arm more beautiful than any she possessed; and when he saw her hide it carefully beneath a strip of wampum his eyes sparkled, for he knew by this that his safety was cared for, and, better still, that the Indian maiden had a secret from her father and the paternal Hollander. And now the young Frenchman sped rapidly in his wooing. They had but few words in common, but they conversed by more dangerous signals. When in a humor particularly idle, the Frank would sit for hours upon the grass, giving a subtle language to every flower, and a peculiar hidden meaning to each birdnote, and talking of the mysterious intercommunion of the spirit of the breeze with the spirit of the woodland, and the strange influence of these subtle essences over the thoughts of men, while the large astonished eyes of the maiden were now raised to his in earnest heedfulness, and now drooped confusedly beneath a meaning glance which gave the love she was drinking in a personal application.

The Day-Dawn had but one confidante, (a young girl that was with her when she first met Du Valle,) and this was worse than none, for Ertel was a romancer of the wildest order. She not only encouraged the sachem's daughter in her first deception, but devoted her little ingenious head to promoting in every way what she considered an amusing adventure which promised to end in nothing more unpleasant than a wedding. So time passed on. Du Valle had now but little doubt of success, for he had felt, as far as he was capable of feeling any thing, the fascinating influence of the sloe-eyed maiden, and he believed that the hatred of the old warrior for his nation must yield to her soft subdued pleadings.

The moon had risen and was slivering the crowns of the old trees that had waved for centuries within sound of the Hudson's murmur, and bathing the banks, and casting upon the river, points of light that danced on the crisping waves like watery spirts come out for a summer night's revel. The wild duck had nestled down among the sedges, with its head behind its wing; the partridge had ceased its drumming in the wood, and gone to its nest in quiet; the songsters of the day were hushed, and the woodman's axe and the huntsman's rifle no longer challenged the echoes with their sharp, shrill voices. The sturgeon now and then leaped up at the shivered tip of a moon-ray, dropping back large silver beads upon the wave, and the owl hooted triumphantly from the distant battlement of his own oaken castle, as if in proud consciousness of the dignity of thus reigning solitary sovereign of the night. There was a step within the shadow of the woodland—a light, hurried step like the bounding of a fawn, venturing timidly from its covert, and a scarce perceptible stirring of foliage, making a faint rustle that, scared at its own self, died instantly away. And then a slender creature, airy, and graceful as a young antelope, sprang out into the moonlight and stood lightly poised with one foot advanced, resting on its tip, head bent forward, and lips parted in eager breathlessness. Her right arm, gleaming with jewels, lay across her breast; half buried in the folds of a crimson mantle fringed with silver, while the left was raised, the forefinger slightly curved, and the others nestled in the yielding palm. In her dilated eye there was a strong liquid light, and on her cheek a rich heart-wrought coloring unmistakable by the most casual observer. There she stood in her glorious beauty—that forest queen—her very heart hushed, if perchance her quick ear might catch the dip of the traitorous Frenchman's oar. It came not, and the maiden still extended her slight swan-like neck and still peered eagerly up the river, to where an abrupt break in the moonlight, cast all the west in a shadow. Suddenly her initiated ear seemed to have caught a sound, for her eyes flashed joyously, and her parted lips were wreathed in smiles. Then dropping on one knee, she bent her ear to the ground, until the small ruby-tipped arrow that confined her glossy braids, was jeweled over with dew-drops. This was enough. He was coming—and springing to her feet with a smothered exclamation of delight, the Indian maiden clapped her hands joyously, and darted back to her covert. In a moment, however, she returned, and kneeling by the river's brink, gazed down into the liquid mirror, and smiled and nodded gaily to the beautiful vision that looked up and smiled and nodded back again, as though the shadowy thing could appreciate the tumult within, that was the keystone to all the movements of its earth-born twin. The plume that feathered her arrow had been bent, and her hand was now raised to straighten it—the heavy midnight braids binding her fine head, were smoothed and carefully adjusted, and she opened and half-closed her eyes, again and again, and smiled to mark how lovely they were with the lids drooping over them, as she knew the intensity of his gaze always made it droop, when her white lover was near. Then her hand was pass ed over her full round arm retouching the curve of the bended wrist with true girlish vanity, and her small moccasined foot was thrust for a moment from beneath the silvery fringe, while she clasped the bracelet more firmly on the taper ancle—her attention all the while divided between herself and a dark speck that seemed suspended in the water at a distance. It drew nearer, and Thurensera, casting a parting glance upon her rustic mirror, hastily retired, as though too proud to be found waiting. At length the light canoe leaped upon the sand, and its occupant, springing upon the moonlit bank, proceeded leisurely to tie it to a tree, looking about him as he did so, as though disappointed at not seeing her he sought.

"If she should play me false after all this trouble," he muttered "by the powers of hell—"

He started. "Ha! my pretty doe, art here?" and flinging his mantle and chapeau into a clump of bushes, he led the half-timid, half-delighted girl to a seat on the smooth, mossy bank which she had but a moment before occupied. Long and low was the conference, relating evidently to the old chief's prejudices, and the best mode of eradicating them. Sometimes, at an unguarded word from the young Frank, the bosom of the Indian girl would swell, and her eyes brim over; but he had the power of soothing instantaneously; and before a tear had time to drop, it was stayed by the smile that came to thank his slightest attention. An hour went by, and the shadows were deepened on the bank, and the moon had passed behind a cluster of clouds, leaving the river in entire darkness. Two or three times Thurensera had bent her ear to the ground, when of a sudden she started to her feet, her hands clenched, and her large eyes gleaming with intense fear. Before she had time to shape her apprehensions into words, there was a quick crackling in the brittle underbrush, and Ertel sprang upon the bank, every limb quivering and terror depicted on every feature.

"Fly! fly! The Rose has been a snake in the lodge of the Day-Dawn. Her tongue was stolen away while she slept, and a cloud of warriors are seeking for the blue-eyed roebuck of the north."

"Fly! fly!" repeated Thurensera, as the poor girl darted away in an opposite direction, "it is night upon the water, for the Great Spirit has spread his wing before the moon."

For the first time probably since boyhood, a generous sentiment found its way to the heart of Du Valle, and he lingered, even after the trembling fingers of the girl had untied the cord that fastened his canoe.

"Nay, take the paddle thyself, my pretty doe, keep close to the bank, and I will plunge into the forest, double on our pursuers, and meet thee above. Go!go! and he attempted to lift her into the canoe. But Thurensera shook his hand from her shoulder and drew back impatiently. The light tread upon the the ground, and the rustling of leaves above, convinced her that their pursuers were close upon them; and, assuring him by a single word of her safety, she pointed at the canoe and leaped into the thicket, just as an arrow whizzed through the air and spent itself upon the water. Another, and another, followed, but the maiden caught a glimpse of the little canoe gliding close to the bank, under the shadow of the trees, and she knew that her lover was yet undiscovered. For a moment now the party paused, and held a hasty consultation. It was believed that the Frenchman had escaped; and if they at once proceeded up the river they might intercept him. As the maiden comprehended their intention, a cry of horror burst from her lips; and before one could interpret its meaning, or discover its source, her resolution was taken. Wrapping the mantle of her lover, which yet lay in the thicket, about her, and placing the chapeau upon her head, she stepped out from her concealment, and stood close upon the verge of the river, a mark for a dozen arrows. Instantly every bow was bent, a shaft from every string went quivering through the air; and the chieftain's daughter sank beneath the waters of the Hudson—not forever. In the morning a lifeless body was found drifted upon the sand with the cloak of a Frenchman still about it, pinned by an arrow to the heart. By personating her lover the generous girl had prevented a pursuit which must have proved fatal; but in her sacrifice she wrecked another. The brave old sachem never again looked up as he had been wont to look; and ere nine moons had waned they seated him in his grave, and slew beside it the steed that was to bear him to the spirit-land.

MISCELLANY.

FOR THE DANVERS COURIER.

Translated from the German.

THE ROSE.

I see all the flowers about me wither and die,
And yet man always, calls me alone the fading
The fast perishing rose. Ungrateful man! do I not make my existence sufficiently agreeable to you? yea even in my death I prepare sweet perfume for your sepulchre's medicine and ointment all comforting and strengthening. And yet I always hear you sing and say "alas the fading the fast perishing rose."

Thus complained the queen of flowers upon her throne, even now in the first sensation of her waning beauty. A maiden who was standing before her, heard her complaint and replied, "complain not at us sweet little one, call not that ungrateful which is higher love—the wish only of tender affection. We see all the flowers round about us perish and think it to be the fade of flowers, but you their queen, you alone we wish and think, to be worthy of immortality."
When we see ourselves disappointed in our hopes then permit us our lamentation with which we mourn for thee. All beauty, youth and joy of our lives we compare with thee and as they like you fade away, so sing and say we ever "alas the fading the fast perishing rose."

THE HUMAN HEART.

The human heart has no more bitter grief than that which springs from the recollection of unkindness toward those who, loving us when living, are now, by the barriers of the grave, placed forever beyond the reach of remorseful recollection. But love—whether it be love of kindred, or the wilder, warmer passion, that more generally bears that name—is ever hum-ject. The heart then forgets the frailties that may at times have shaken its esteem; it softens in a degree the faults which have so severely tried its regard, that it cannot but remember, them; it pardons every offending quality that may often have tasked its forbearance, and threatened even the continuance of its tenderness; it imputes to itself all the blame that it has ever attached to the beloved object; and finds an excuse for each caprice of the one who may have trifled with it, in its own unworthiness to inspire true affection.—HOFFMAN.

MECHANICS, WIVES.

Speaking of the middle ranks of life, a good writer observes: "There we behold woman in all her glory; not a puppet to be flattered by profane adoration, reverenced to-day, and discarded to-morrow; jostled out of the place which nature and society would assign her, by sensuality or by contempt; admired, but not respected, desired, but not esteemed; ru-ing by passion, not affections; imparting her weakness, not her constancy, to the sex she would exalt; the source and mirror of vanity;
we see her as a wife, partaking the cares and cheering the anxiety of a husband, dividing his toils by her domestic diligence, spreading cheerfulness around her for his sake, sharing the decent refinements of the world without being vain of them, placing all her joys and happiness in the man she loves. As a mother, we find her the affectionate, the ardent instruc-tress of the children she has tended from infancy, training them up to thought and virtue, to piety and benevolence; addressing them as rational beings, and preparing them to become men and women in their turn. Mechanics, daughters make the best wives in the world."

A TREASURE TROVE.—Mr. H., formerly an employe in one of the government offices, had become so straitened in his affairs through some family lawsuits, which he had stood the brunt for the last four years, that he could not pay the rent of his apartments in the Barriere des Martyrs, and his landlord became very impatient, threatening him almost daily with forcible ejectment. On Wednesday the landlord had again called upon his tenant to remonstrate with him about the arrears of rent, and in the course of conversation renewed his threats of ejectment.

Mr. H. prayed him to have patience; he should doubtless soon gain his suit, and would then be able to pay him all that he owed. The landlord was, however, inexorable, would hear nothing in extenuation of the delay, and at length said—

"I have already obtained judgment against you, and if you do not pay me I will put it into execution."

This threat put the poor man into a most furious rage.

"If you take my things," said he, "the shall not be of much use to you; for I will set fire to them or beat them in pieces, rather than you shall treat me so harshly."

Suiting the action to the word, he seized a candlestick from the mantel-piece and dashed it at the looking-glass, which shivered it in thousand pieces. But what was the surprise and joy of both angry men [angry no longer] to see a perfect rain of gold pieces pouring from the fracturing glass frame!

They hastily gathered them up from the floor and upon counting them found that there were no less than two hundred and twenty old gold coins, of 48 francs each, and 50 Napoleons. Their quarrel was then suddenly put a stop to and Mons. H. paid his landlord his rent, and heartily thanked him into the bargain for having put him into a passion. He then proceeded to examine the glass frame, and found that the back of it had an opening with a groove and slide. A note, in the handwriting of his deceased wife, explained the mystery. The money consisted of savings which she had put for "a rainy day," without letting her spouse into the secret.—French paper.

THE PHILOSOPHER AND THE FERRYMAN.—A philosopher stepped on board a ferry-boat, to cross a stream. On his passage he inquired of the ferryman if he understood arithmetic. The man looked astonished.

"Arithmetic? No, sir! I never heard of it before."

The philosopher replied, "I am very sorry for one quarter of your life is gone."

A few minutes after, he asked the ferryman "Do you know anything of mathematics?"

The boatman again replied, "No."

"Well, then," said the philosopher, "another quarter of your life is lost."

A third question was asked the ferryman "Do you understand astronomy?"

"Oh! no sir, never heard of such a thing."

"Well, my friend, then another quarter of your life is lost."

Just at this moment, the boat ran on a shoal and was sinking, when the ferryman jumped up, pulled off his coat, and asked the philosopher, with great earnestness of manner, "Can you swim?"

"No," said the philosopher.

"Well, then," said the ferryman, "the whole life is lost, for the boat's going to

AN IMPUDENT RASCAL. A fellow broke jail in Maryland last week. He left behind him a letter expressing his gratitude to the jailor and his wife for their kind treatment and regretting that his health would not permit him to remain longer in their agreeable society. He felt himself growing unwell from confinement, and tore himself away from them, confident that the climate of the State did not agree with him.

LAWS OF MASSACHUSETTS.

AN ACT requiring Constables to give bonds in certain cases.

Section 1. The Selectmen of any town may require that any person who may be chosen Constable, shall give bonds to the inhabitants of said town, with sureties, to be approved by the Selectmen, in a penal sum not less than five hundred dollars, with condition for the faithful performance of his duties as Constable, in the service of all civil processes which may be committed to him; and any person injured by any breach of the condition of said bond may, in his own expense, institute a suit thereon in the name of said inhabitants, and prosecute the same to final judgment and execution.

Section 2. In such suit the writ shall be indorsed by the persons for whose benefit the suit is brought, and in case neither of the said persons is an inhabitant of this Commonwealth, it shall be endorsed by some other responsible indorser residing within this Commonwealth; and the like proceedings shall be had thereon as in final judgment, as in a suit by a creditor on administration bonds.

Section 3. If judgment in such case shall be for the defendants, execution shall issue for costs against such an indorser or indorsers in like manner as if they were plaintiffs of record in such suit.

Section 4. No Constable of whom such bonds shall be required shall be competent to serve any civil process till such bonds shall be duly executed, approved and filed in the Town Clerk's office; and no person of whom such bond shall be required as aforesaid, shall be liable to any fine for the non acceptance of the office of Constable.

Section 5. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Approved by the Governor, Feb. 24, 18

AN ACT concerning Limited Partnerships.

Be it enacted, &c., as follows:

From and after the passage of this Act the portion of the Seventh Section of the Thirty-fourth Chapter of the Revised Statutes shall be so constructed, as to require any firm to have all the names of the general partners in the style of the firm, when a firm shall consist of more than three general partners.

Approved by the Governor, Feb. 13, 18

DANVERS COURIER.

SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 26, 1845.

THE GREAT POLITICAL PARTIES.

The great excitement of the Presidential election has entirely subsided, and the new administration is fairly organized and under weigh. To say nothing of the causes, and commingling of factions which put the dominant party in power, it becomes an interesting enquiry, How do the parties stand now?

"Now the hurly burly 's done,
Now the battle 's lost and won."

In what condition are the opposing legions? To begin with the Whig party. We think its prospects never looked better after a defeat than they do now. The majority for Polk was so small, and the causes of his success so easily traced, that there was nothing disheartening in the defeat. The disappointment felt at the result was indeed severe and bitter, but instead of discouraging the party, only nerved them to greater unity and efforts.—This is evident from the calm and unimpassioned manner in which the defeat was met, which showed more of the deep sorrow of disappointment at the result to the country, than the chagrin of party defeat. It is also evident from their universal success in the elections since, sweeping as they have, every thing before them in New York and Connecticut, and even bearding the lion in his den among the Granite hills. Beside this, the Whig party were never more united than they were at the last election, and have been since. And they seem now to await with noble firmness for an opportunity to again muster for the battle, in defence of the noble principles and measures they are pledged to support.

The Democratic party, on the other hand, presents the picture of success, with the greatest uncertainty as to the extent of it. By this temporary banding together of the different powerful and jealous factions of that party, upon a man who belonged to no faction, and by a singular and bold manœuvre, joining issues by which they secured the votes of the radical slaveholders at the South, and the radical anti-slavery men of the North, they succeeded beyond their most sanguine expectations.

But this union lasted no longer than the campaign. Each faction immediately demanded of the new President supremacy in his councils, and the disposition of the "spoils," and each was as signally doomed to disappointment. The President by an independent stand has separated himself forever from all such control,—and in his Cabinet, in the selection of his official organ, and his course in the removal of officers, has shown a determination to be his own master, without any attempt to reconcile the adverse portions of the party. The result of this is not yet fully seen, but it can but serve to widen the breaches in the party, more and more.

With this division in their ranks, and the change of public opinion upon the questions at issue in the last election, it is extremely doubtful whether either of their great measures can be carried. It is certain that upon the question of annexation, the party cannot agree upon the terms, and in regard to the tariff, there is considerable division. How Mr. Polk will control the diverse elements by which he is surrounded, remains to be seen. Every thing looks stormy. The muttering thunder of the discontented factions is beginning to be heard, and it would not be at all surprising [illegible] support of either branch of Congress. The Senate is about equally divided, and the character of the house is not yet certain: so far as elections have been held, there have been 78 Democrats chosen to 62 Whigs. There are 79 more to be chosen. Of these the Democrats will probably have a majority. But it will require a larger majority than they will probably get, to make a working majority.

Such, we consider to be the situation of the two great political parties now. And in view of these facts we think the Whigs have everything to encourage them, and we feel the greatest confidence that if they cannot direct the policy of the General government for the next four years, they can in a great measure control it, and preserve the country from the disastrous effects which would follow if the dominant party should succeed in inflicting their measures upon the country.

LOW FARES. The fare on the Worcester Rail Road from Boston to Newton, 10 miles, is only one shilling,—less than 2 cents per mile.

THE SEA SERPENT. This lengthy gentleman has recently made his appearance off Cape Island, below Philadelphia. He is reported to be sixty or seventy feet long, and eight feet in diameter in its largest part. The "gentleman of veracity" who gives the description, is quite certain it is not a whale.

THE GLOBE. The Globe established at Washington, has passed into the hands of Mr. Ritchie of the Richmond Enquirer. He is to edit the official organ which is to be called the "Washington Enquirer" into which the Globe is to be merged. Many of his party have misgivings as to his success. Mr. Ritchie though for many years the editor of one of the leading Locofoco papers in Virginia, is said to be in poor circumstances.

☞The appointment of Minister to England has been offered to Mr Elmore of South Carolina, and he has declined it on account of other engagements requiring his personal attention in South Carolina.

LEATHER.

Much anxiety is felt by the holders and manufacturers of this article to learn the fate of Sir Robert Peel's Tariff Bill. This Bill proposes among other thing a great reduction or total abolition of the duty on leather. Such a measure, it will be seen at once, will be fatal to the tanning interest in that country, and will of course be opposed with much zeal. The cost of tanning leather in England, is very great, as a large part of their bark has to be imported from the continent and from Ireland, which enhances the price of the manufactured article.

If the passage of this Bill should have the effect to throw open the English market to American leather, it will create a vast denand, and must inevitably advance the price. The advantage any country may have to manufacture this article, depends mainly on its cheap supply of bark, as the supply of the raw hide is about the same in all parts of the civilized world. In our country there are immense forests of oak and hemlock timber from which bark may be obtained at the cost of the labor of procuring it, for a century to come.—Our own citizens are largely engaged in the leather business, and would be glad to see an extended market for their staple manufacture.

POTTERIES.—This town was formerly celebrated for the manufacture of coarse earthen ware which business was formerly carried on to much greater extent than at present. Dr. Morse in his Gazetteer printed about 40 years ago speaks of this business as the principal manufacture of the place.—The business is now confined to the making of the larger and coarser articles of kitchen ware and for some manufacturing purposes, although during the last war with Great Britain, cups and saucers and other dishes needed in families, but which at that time bore a high price, were made of "Danvers China."

Pottery is a very ancient occupation as appears by frequent allusions to it in scripture. In the Apocryphal book of Eclesiasticus, the manner of making the ware is mentioned from which we should infer that the manufacture at that ancient time was quite similar to the present mode. In the 38th chap. and 29th and 30th vs. is the following:

"So doth the potter sitting at his work and turning the wheel about with his feet, who is carefully set at his work, and maketh all his work by number."

"He fashioneth the clay with his arm, and boweth down his strength before his feet, he applieth himself to lead it over, and he is diligent to make clean his furnace."

STATISTICS OF DANVERS.

The law of the last session of the Legislature makes it obligatory for the Assessors of each town to make returns of the quantity and value of almost every description of property and if faithfully complied with, cannot fail to result in the accumulation of a vast amount of valuable information to the people at large as well as to the political economist.

We hope to see from the gentlemen having charge of this matter in our own town a full report of the business statistics of Danvers and we have no doubt from the knowledge we have of those into whose hands this laborious duty has fallen that such a report will be accurate and satisfactory.

OREGON. The Texas question seems to be swallowed up, in England, by the Oregon question. Mr Polk's message furnishes the text for a good deal of eloquence upon the rights of great Britain to that territory; and from the decisive tone of the leaders in parliament and the war spirit of the principal newspapers, we do not see how difficulties can be prevented, unless Mr. Polk shall say that he meant nothing by his vaporing upon this subject. Sir Robert Peele discourses upon it as follows.

"We have rights respecting this territory of Oregon which are clear and irresistible. We trust still to arrive at an amicable adjustment of our claim; but, having exhausted every effort to effect that settlement, if our rights shall be invaded, we are resolved—and we are prepared to maintain them.'

LAYING OUT STREETS. We hope that those who have the agency in laying out streets and roads will see to it that they are wide, straight and in the right location. The custom of our fathers of laying out roads on the cow paths of the parish has made much trouble for their descendents.—Many are the unsightly corners and crooked lanes which disfigure the map of the town and cause expense to our tax paying citizens. Where these evils now exist, the sooner a remedy is provided the better, as every year enhances the cost.

REV. DR. BIGELOW. We learn by the Boston papers that this gentleman has accepted the invitation of the "Fraternity of Churches," to officiate as minister at large, in that city. The duties of this office require the incumbent to preach on the Sabbath, and visit among the poor of the city.—Dr. Bigelow, we have reason to believe, would be eminently useful in such a ministry, and his benevolent heart would prompt him to a most faithful discharge of the pastoral duties of this important station. Dr. B. succeeds Rev. R. C. Waterston.

AMHERST COLLEGE. Professor Hitchcock was inaugurated as President of Amherst College on Tuesday the 15th inst. A farewell discourse was delivered by Dr. Humphrey, also an address by President Hitchcock. A correspondent of the Register speaks of both as powerful performances.

TO SUBSCRIBERS AND CORRESPONDENTS. We find that there has been some irregularity in the delivery of the Courier to subscribers, and we pledge ourselves that in future every effort will be made to have the paper delivered early on the morning of its publication. In the early starting of a paper, these irregularities will almost unavoidably happen and we wish our patrons to make known to us at the office, any mistake of the carriers and it will be corrected.

Newman Noggs and The New Comedy of Errors will appear next week. They were received too late for this number.

STEAM COTTON FACTORY IN SALEM.

We learn that the subscription to the stock of the Naumkeag Cotton Factory has exceeded the amount at first proposed as the Capital. The Bostonians have, with their characteristic enterprise, subscribed largely to this undertaking, so important to the business interests of Salem.—

May full and complete success attend it.

MAD DOG. A woman in Dundas, Canada, was bitten by a dog in a rabid state, and has died in a most horrifying condition. The magistrates have taken prompt measures to prevent a recurrence of so dreadful a calamity, and ordered that all dogs are to be muzzled or chained up, and if found at large to be destroyed.

If our magistrates should be as dog-matical there would be here, judging from the number of dogs in our streets, a great rise in the price of muzzles or a very large supply of sausage meat.

PUBLIC AMUSEMENTS.

The Essex County Whig has an excellent article on this subject entitled "The disease and its remedy" which would be well adapted to our meridian but it is too long to transfer to our colums. The writer sees in the prevailing taste for low and vulgar exhibition and amusements, a practical illustration of the old adage, that "Evil communications corrupt good manners." He sees among the evils of these vain and frivolous amusements, a growing spirit of rowdyism and calls on the Selectmen, as the constituted guardians of the public weal to be cautious in granting licenses for these low and demoralizing exhibitions.

We would be the last to dispose with all public amusements and would even retain some of a mirth exciting character, but we would not encourage every company of wandering strollers, comic negro singers and other like exhibitions to entice the young to spend their money and time, and gratify a depraved taste. Every good citizen should endeavor to correct the public taste and give a new and better direction to the curiosity of our citizens.

IMPROVEMENT OF MORSE'S TELEGRAPH.

By the following paragraph which we take from an exchange paper we learn that an important improvement has been made in telegraphic communication.

TALKING TELEGRAPH.—Professor Locke, of Cincinnati, has made an amusing modification of Professor Morse's Telegraph, by which it articulates sounds or the elements of words as well as records the letter. The letters used are those of Morse, and they are made audible by a pipe sounding in monotone during the time of a dot or line executed by the proper Morse Telegraph; but interrupted during the blank or space part of the letter. Indeed, the Telegraph exhibited will register the words on paper at the same time that the pipe is sounding them, the pipe being open and continuing to sound while the style is marking the revolving fillet. Thus it will [illegible] siders this invention only as an amusing modification of Morse's Telegraph, by which the communications may be made currently intelligible to a large audience, provided they understand the alphabet, which becomes a kind of monotone music; the short lines or dots being represented by short notes, and the longer ones by tones more protracted.

When this improvement by articulate sounds is perfected we may expect to see announcements like the following.

☞Prof. SILLIMAN, of New Haven, will deliver a lecture on geology next week on five successive evenings—by telegraph—to audiences in Portland, Boston; Philadelphia, Cincinnati and New Orleans. By this arrangement there will be no interference with his duties at the college at New Haven.

☞Prof. LIEBIG has arrived at the Astor house and taken lodgings for one month, during which time he will address audiences in all the principal cities. He lectures this evening in Montreal, Canada, from the Telegraphic station and tomorrow evening to an audience in St. Charles Theatre N. Orleans.

☞DISAPPOINTMENT. We hear with much regret that Hon. S. S. Prentiss of Natchez Miss. will be unable to come to Boston to address our citizens on the political condition and prospects of the country, but we also learn that he has consented to address them by telegraph on Monday evening next at Faneuil Hall.

☞President Polk's message was listened to with much attention by a large crowd in State street yesterday at the moment of its delivery at Washington. The telegraphic apparatus was in excellent condition, and the articulation loud and distinct.

A PRODIGY. Henry T. Safford, son of Mr. Truman Safford, of Royalton, Vermont, only nine years old, is said to be as great a prodigy in the way of mastering difficult arithmetical questions by mental calculation, as the celebrated Zerah Colburn. It does not seem, however, to be the result of intuition, but of study and reasoning.

He multiplies hundreds with great ease and rapidity. His constitution is weak, and physical powers feeble.

THE SARCOPHAGUS AGAIN. Gen. Jackson has written a letter to the Commodore, declining the honor of being deposited in the coffin of the Roman Emperor. He thanks Com. Elliott for the honor intended, but says he cannot consent that his mortal body shall be laid in a repository prepared for an emperor or a king. We confess we like the taste of the old hero, and pity the Commodore, hoping that he will be able to find a suitable tenant for his old sarcophagus. The following is the concluding part of Gen. Jackson's letter.

For these reasons I cannot accept the honor you and the president and directors of the National Institute intended to bestow. I cannot permit my remains to be the first in these United States to be deposited in a sarcophagus made for an emperor or king. I again repeat, please accept for yourself, and convey to the president and directors of the National Institute, my most profound respects for the honor you and they intended to bestow.

I have prepared a humble depository for my mortal body beside that wherein lies my beloved wife, where, without any pomp, I have requested when my God calls me to sleep with my fathers, to be laid; for both of us there to remain until the last trumpet sounds to call the dead to judgment, when we, I hope, shall rise together, clothed with that heavenly body promised to all who believe in our glorious Redeemer who died for us that we might live, and by whose atonement I hope for a blessed immortality.

I am, with great respect,
Your friend and fellow citizen,
ANDREW JACKSON

To Com J. D. ELLIOTT,
United States Navy.

ROWDYISM. We regret to hear of sundry acts of outrage committed by a set of graceless scamps who nightly prowl our streets. We hope these "fellows of the baser sort" will be promptly detected and made to pay a severe penalty for their crimes.

MISSIONARY INTELLIGENCE.—From the Missionary Herald and other sources, we learn that the American mission in Nestoria still presents a discouraging aspect. In Syria the Greek Church displays a persecuting disposition, and seeks to quell the spirit of inquiry which had been awakened by the missionaries. Nevertheless progress is made.

At the foot of Mount Hermon, a band of hardy mountaineers, between seventy and eighty in number, have recently voluntarily signed a bond or covenant to be faithful in the profession of the Gospel, and to stand by each other in the persecution which awaits them.

In the Sandwich Islands the mission prospects are to some extent clouded by the present unsettled state of affairs. This is more particularly the case at Honolulu, where, the Missionary says, the congregations are falling off in numbers. On another island sixty candidates for admission to Church membership were proposed at the date of last advices. At another station, in charge of Mr. Clark the native converts were about to organize for the support of their own minister and Gospel institutions. Mr. Armstrong, from another station, reports that the people had already raised one hundred and twenty-five dollars toward his support.—N. Y. Commercial.

GREAT FIRE IN ROXBURY.

About one o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, a fire broke out in the extensive Cordage Manufactory of Messrs John Webber & Son, on Webber street.

It commenced in the room over the steam engine but soon spread with fearful rapidity, destroying the ropewalk and tar house, together with two large wooden dwelling houses occupied by twenty two families.

The flames then seized upon a block of small houses and nearly destroyed them, and spread to the opposite side of the street and almost burnt down a dwelling house occupied by Mr Brown, and owned by the Boston Patent Leather Company. [illegible] houses, and consumed three of them owned by Mr Winslow Lewis, and occupied by several German families. Messrs Webber & Son's loss is estimated at $30,000, and covered by an insurance of $13,000. Mail.

We learn from the Atlas that a woman, with an infant in her arms, jumped out of the third story of the building on the corner of Plymouth and Webber streets. The infant was killed, and the woman considerably injured. Two children, belonging to families who lived in this same house, were missing, yesterday afternoon. The fire spread with such awful rapidity that several of the inmates of the houses were badly burnt, in endeavoring to save something of their little all.

SHAVINGS.

PRESENCE OF MIND. The wife of the Sheriff of Pittsburg, by her promptness, presence of mind and energy saved the jail, and it is thought the Court-house, from being destroyed during the late conflagration. The Gazette says—Sheriff Travillo was absent conveying a prisoner to the House of Refuge in Philadelphia, the Deputy was also absent on business, and when the fire got up into that neighborhood, Mrs Travillo had the whole burden on her own shoulders. At the very height of the danger she called all the prisoners who were not in the cells to the grate, and by name let all the vagrants out. That done she set them to work to carry water up to the top, and this only saved it, as the roof was on fire several times. The prisoners worked like good fellows. It is thus by the promptness of a lady, that, in all probability, near $300,000, besides human life, were saved.

A WINDFALL TO FANNY WRIGHT. Quite a windfall has come to Fanny Wright. An uncle in Scotland has recently died, and left her a property worth 100,000*l*. She is now in Jersey City, and will remain in this country for a few weeks, for the purpose of taking certain necessary legal steps preliminary to taking possession of this munificient legacy.

AMERICAN BOARD OF MISSIONS. The receipts for the present financial year, are $20,000 greater than they were last year at this time.

Two hundred and nineteen persons had their names changed by the legislature, at the recent session.

PARDONS BY GOVERNOR WRIGHT. We learn with surprise, says the New York Commercial Advertiser, that George Potter, the notorious pickpocket, who made such strenuous efforts to evade the penalty of his crimes, and offered $1000 to one of the deputy keepers of the city prison to permit his escape, was pardoned by Governor Wright on the 17th inst. And that Honora Shephard, who was deeply involved in passing counterfeit money, was also pardoned by his Excellency. A very fair beginning.—Reg.

We learn, says the Norfolk Courier, from a friend who has received a letter from New York, that the clergy of the Diocese of New York are about to raise $2800 a year for Bishop Onderdonk, until matters in his case can be settled, provided he does not resign, which he will not do.

Shocking State of Affairs in Philadelphia.—The Philadelphia Post of Monday, has the following:

From all appearances a system of burking is now being carried on in our city, which is unparalled in the history of this or any other country.

A few days ago we recorded the sudden disappearance of Mr Wildash, of Wayne Co., and now are called upon to state another case of similar nature. Mr John T. Kirk, who came to the city, from Wilmington, on business, on Saturday evening a week since, left the house of Wm. A Gingder, in Southwark to go to Jenks' foundry, in Kensington, and since then has never been heard of. He was known to have about $700 with him.

AWFUL MURDER IN MISSISSIPPI. A Yazoo paper of 5th inst., states that the wife of John Dixon having taken refuge in the house of her father, Lewis Lot, her husband armed with a loaded gun, pursued her, and in attempting to enter the dwelling by force Mr. Lot, at the earnest request of all present shot him dead upon the spot, and immediately repaired to Yazoo and gave himself up to the authorities. He was tried a few days after and acquitted.

GEN. JACKSON. Information has been received from the Hermitage that, on the 11th instant, General Jackson was prostrated by a severe attack of his disease. To use his own words—'I am wasting away like a taper—but this morning I lay at the last gasp.'

Merchandize is now sent from Boston over the Western Railroad to Albany, and thence to Baltimore, for eight dollars per one hundred lbs. The time occupied in the transit is five days.

The rewards now offered for the conviction of the murderer or murderers of Mr. Parker, in Manchester, N. H., amount to $2000.

☞Iowa has rejected her State Constitution by about 2500 majority. She will remain a Territory until she can secure the Mississippi river as her western boundary.

Heavy Failures.—It is said that within the last six weeks there has been in this city a suspension of payment by six large mercantile houses for from $100,000 to $500,000 each—N. Y. Mirror.

Death instead of a Wedding.—Mrs Catharine P. Parker, widow of the late Milton Parker, of Utica, (late Miss Tracey,) who was among the passengers lost with the Swallow, was on her way to New York, to prepare for the fulfillment of an engagement with Dr. Whitney, of New Haven. She was endowed with uncommon personal charms. Her brother, Chas Tracy, Esq. of the Utica bar, was present at the coroner's inquest, greatly afflicted, and called loudly upon the jury to bring in a verdict of murder against the pilot.—N. Y. Adv.

Emigration.—The tide of emigration never flowed with greater vigor to the United States than at present, in proof of which Messrs. Harnden & Co, Waterloo road, have shipped the following number this month: By the Yorkshire, which sailed on the 18th of March, 400; by the Governor Davis, on the 13th March, 300; by the Cambridge, on the 16th March, 318—Gore's Liverpool Adv.

The Court of Common Pleas for the County of Essex, Chief Justice Wells presiding, closed its March term yesterday; having been in session in this city nearly six weeks. In addition to the criminal business, there have been twenty-five civil trials, in twenty of which, verdicts [illegible] for the defendant: there were also two or three trials in which the Jury did not agree.—Gazette.

PILOT OF THE SWALLOW. We learn that William Burnett, the pilot of the Swallow, was arrested yesterday, and this morning was admitted to bail in the sum of ten thousand dollars at the U. S. commissioner's office.

Magnetic Affection.—It is said that Professor Morse has been electro-magnetized by a beautiful daughter of commissioner Ellsworth; and that a telegraphic communication has been established between the parties, which is likely to result in a copartnership.—Balt. Pat.

BRIGHTON MARKET—Monday, April 21.

[From the Boston Daily Advertiser.]

At market 580 Beef Cattle 15 pairs Working Oxen, 350 Sheep, and 2250 Swine. 100 Beef cattle remained unsold.

PRICES—BEEF CATTLE—Last week's prices were not sustained and we reduce our quotations A few Extra 36; first quality 5 50 a 5 75; second quality 5 25 a 5 50; third quality 4 50 a $5.

WORKING OXEN—Sales at $62, 75, and 88.

SHEEP—A lot sheared, $2 58; a lot not sheared 4 75 a $5.

SWINE—Lots to peddle, 4 1-2 a 4 5-8c for Sows, 5 1-2 a 5 5-8c for Barrows; Old Hogs, selected, 5 1-4 a 5 1-2c. At retail, 5 1-2 and 6 1-2c.

MARRIAGES.

In this town, Mr John Abbot, jr., to Miss Joanna S. Graves.

In Salem, on Thursday evening, by Rev Mr Thompson, Mr Robert Brookhouse, jr., to Miss Anna O. Sutton, daughter of Gen. Wm, Sutton.

On Tuesday evening, by Rev J. Prince, of this town, Mr Edward H. Judkins, of this town, to Miss Mary J. Price of Salem.

In Roxbury, Mr Charles S. Nichols, of Salem, to Miss Amelia A. Ainsworth, of R.

DEATHS.

In this town, April 23d, Mrs Mary Upton, relict of the late John Upton, aged 75.

No more fatigue, no more distress,
Nor sin, nor shame shall reach the place;
No groans shall mingle with the songs
That warble from immortal tongues.

In Salem, Mr Samuel Leach, aged 32.

Harriet, daughter of Mr Edward Putman, aged 5 weeks.

In Boston, J. Mason, youngest child of Dr. J. M. Warren, aged 24 months.

At Haverhill N H, Mr Elias Stearns, 92, formerly of Westminster, a soldier of the revolution.

NOTICE.

Frederick Douglass will lecture in Union Hall on Sunday (tomorrow) evening, at 7 1-2 o'clock.

NOTICE.

The regular meetings of Monument Division, No. 5, SONS OF TEMPERANCE, held at Sanger's Hall, are changed from Wednesday to Monday evening, at 8 o'clock. Members of the order are respectfully invited to attend.

Danvers, April 12. MOSES MERRILL, R. S.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS

SECRETARY'S OFFICE, Boston, April 12, 1845. By a Resolve of the General Court, at its recent session, the Secratary was "authorized and directed to receive such Muster Rolls, and other evidences of service in the war of the Revolution, as it may be in his power to obtain by gift or loan from the present possessors."

Numerous Muster Rolls, and other papers furnishing evidence of revolutionary service, have been collected in the Secratary's office, where they are bound and indexed, and are constantly under examination for the purpose of establishing claims under the Pension Laws of the United States. They are also valuable historical documents, and, in the custody of this office, will be kept securely, and, by means of the full indexes here prepared, may be conveniently consulted.

The collection in the public archives, is however, incomplete. It is believed that that there are, in different parts of the Commonwealth, many Muster Rolls, and other like papers, in the possession of the families of deceased officers, and in other private hands. In this situation they are of little utility, besides being liable to be lost, while frequently, by their means, if placed in this office, old soldiers and their families, now suffering in age and poverty, would be able to establish claims to valuable pensions.

Persons having such documents in their possession, and willing to give or loan them to the Commonwealth, are respectfully requested to forward a brief description of them to the subscriber, who will send for them, unless they prove to be duplicates of rolls already here.

apr 26 JOHN G. PALFREY.

Cheap Fire-Board Patterns

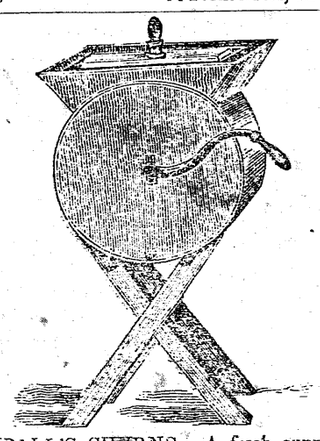
A BEATIFUL selection, consisting of Lithographs, with views of the Swiss Tower, Underwalden, Horse Drinking, Washington, H. Clay's birthplace, &c.

SPLENDID column paper, for Halls, Entries, &c., Philadelphia manufacture—the most beautiful article for this purpose in the market.

Those in want of such Papers, and who wish to see the style, would do well to take a look at Mr Russel's new house in Brown street.

For sale by W. & S. B. Ives,
apr 26 Stearns Building, Salem.

NEW BOOKS. Life of Gough, written by himself.
Dames Sermons, cheap ed. in 3 vols.
Man at Arms, by G P R James.
No 5 Library of choice reading. Dairy of Lady Willoughby, being the 5th number of Wiley and Putnam's popular series of Books.
No 2 Temperence Offering, just published.
The Town Officer.—A Digest of the Laws of Massachusetts in relation to the powers, duties and liabilites of Towns, and of Town Officers, with the necessary forms, by B F Thomas, Counsellor at Law
Littell's Living Age, No 49, received by
W S. CLEVELAND & CO.,
apr 26 193 Essex street, Salem.



NEW MUSIC. Sweet, O sweet are the days as, sung by Madame Caradori Allan; the Beethoven Waltz, No 2, by Clementi; the Lawrence Waltz, by H. Lemoine;—My Mother Dear, a favourite Ballad, by S. Lover; Poor Louise; The Bloom is on the Rye, March; Aileen Mavourneen; Liberty for me; Tink a Tink; The Cenerentola Waltz; Amilia Grand March; Diamond Quick Step The Alpine Air; The Caledonian Hunt, a Scotch Dance; All shall be thine; The Old Mill Stream; Zampa Grand Waltz; Come Come Away; Oh think not I can say farewell; Just received at W S. CLEVELAND & CO'S.
apr 26 193 Essex street.

SILVER SPRIG NOTE PAPER.

A BEAUTIFUL article, just received. Also, the celebrated Lucifer, or self-igniting Sealing Wax —for sale by W. S. CLEVELAND & CO., apr 26 193 Essex street.

Overhauls.

A GOOD assortment will be constantly kept on hand, at EDWARDS',
apr 26 14 Front street, Salem.

KENDALL'S CHURNS.—A fresh supply of the various sizes, also, the different sizes of the SHAKER CHURNS, for sale at apr 26 J. & H. HALE'S, 215 Essex st.

GRINDSTONES, of superior quality, of various sizes; also, Cranks and Rolers, at
apr 26 J. & H. HALE'S, 215 Essex st.

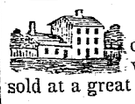
HOW TO GET RICH. Keep exact accounts, and pay your debts. WM. S. CLEVELAND & Co. have on hand and manufacture to order, Cash Books, Ledgers and Day Books, of all sizes, prices, and forms in common use, which they will sell on as favorable terms as can be obtained elsewhere. Call and see at the old stand;
apr 26 193 Essex srteet,

ENGLISH STATIONERY.

A LARGE and very superior assortment of the various articles of beautiful Stationery, Pencils, Paper, Rubber, Paints, Bristol Board, Inkstands, &c.

VANDENHOFF'S ELOCUTION.—A plain system of Elocution, or Logical and Musical Reading and Declamation, &c., by G Vandenhoff.

HARPER'S BIBLE.—No 24 of this superb Bible—just received and for sale by W. & S. B. IVES,
apr 26 232 Essex street.,



POOLE & JACOBS,
MANUFACTURERS OF
Boot and Shoe Linings, Skivers,
AND BINDINGS,
AND DEALERS IN WOOD,
MAIN ST., DANVERS, MASS.

RETAIL
Boot and Shoe Store,
AT THE PLAINS.

THE subscriber keeps constantly on hand at his store, on Maple street, near the Village Bank, A full supply of
Men's Calf and Seal Boots, of all qualities;
Men's Calf, Goat and Kip Shoes, and pumps.
Boy's do do Downings.
THE LADIES will find a complete assortment of Fine and Common Kid Slippers;
Paris and Village Ties;
Gaiter Boots and Shoes;
Misses' and Children's shoes of all descriptions;
The above articles he is constantly receiving from the best manufacturers in the state, which will enable him to satisfy all who are in want of good articles in his line—at very reasonable prices.

JOSHUA SILVESTER.
North Danvers April 19, 1845.

FOR SALE.

A two story house and lot of land on Holten street. The House is convenient for two families and will be sold at a great bargain. Inquire of
HIRAM GRANT.
Danvers, April 19, 1845,

Danvers Express and Baggage Waggon

LEAVES Danvers and Boston, daily (Sundays excepted.)

All orders left at McIntire's Hotel, or Poole & Jacobs' store Danvers, No. 14 Blackstone, and No. 1 Fulton streets, Boston, will be promptly attended to.

Goods handled with care.

S. F. TOWN.
April 19, 1845. 1 y

Flour, Corn, Oats, Shorts, &c.

Landing from schr Pioneer,
200 BARRELS Genesee Flour;
20 1-2 do do do
500 bushels Mealing Corn;
500 do Yellow do
500 do Shorts;
20 bbls Pea Beans;
4 bbls Marrowfat Peas;
100 bags Fine Salt;
—Also, in store—
100 bushels Killam Oats, for seed;
100 do Herds Grass Seed;
100 do Red Top do do;
500 do Clover do; (Northern;
For sale by DANIEL RICHARDS,
At the old and well known stand on the Plains.
North Danvers, April 19, 1845.

Witch Hazle, for Beds.

A FIRST rate article just received and for sale by CARTER & BATCHELDER.
April 19

LAMP BLACK.

1000 POUNDS of Lamp Black, warranted a prime article.
3000 Madras Goat Skins, in crust. Goat and Sheep Morocco. Kid, Linings, and Bindings.
For sale by W. & M. BLACK Jr.,
apr 12 New Mills, Danvers.

Ploughs & Cultivators,

MANUFACTURED BY
RUGGLES, NOURSE & MASON,
And other Agricultural Tools,
FOR SALE BY
DANIEL RICHARDS,
Danvers Plains, March 29, 1845.

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

JONATHAN W. OSBORNE has taken into Copartnership MICHAEL L. WHIDDEN, and store, on Maple street, near the Village Bank, business. at the old Stand, No 10 PARK STREET, under the firm of

OSBORNE & WHIDDEN.

Particular attention to

SIGN PAINTING,

IMITATIONS OF WOOD, MARBLE, BRONZE, GROUND GLASS, &c.
mch 29 1y

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
OFFICE IN FELTON (late Osborne's Building,)
Danvers, March 29th. tf

PERIODICALS, PAPERS, &c.

LUTHER CHANDLER, GENERAL AGENT for the sale of all the principal Periodicals, Newspapers, &c., and will furnish them to all persons who may wish to subscribe; among which are

Graham's Magazine,	Harper's Pictorial Bible,
Ladies' National do,	Verplanck's Shakspeare,
Arthur's Lady's do,	Phil Saturday Courier,
Christian Family Mag.,	Neal's Gazette,
Gentlemen's Magazine,	New York Mirror,
Godey's Lady's Book,	Frost's Pictorial World,

The above and all the principal periodicals and papers will be furnished promptly.

☞BOOKS BOUND at the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

Orders may be left at J. SHED'S, opposite the Monument, South Danvers. 1y mch 29

Great Bargains

ARE NOW BEING HAD AT THE
Washington Street Clothing Store, Salem.

GARMENTS of all description may be obtained at prices which cannot fail to give entire satisfaction.

Great care has been taken in the getting up of every garment, all of which is warranted equal, if not superior to any Clothing in the city.

The subscriber continues to take measures as formerly, and all Garments bespoken, will be made according to the wishes of the customer, and will guarantee both the style and fit.

☞BOY WANTED, as an Apprentice.

S. CHAMBERLAIN, JR.
Salem, March, 15. tf

☞PAPER HANGINGS.☜

THE subscriber has made such an extensive arrangement with the principal manufacturers of Paper Hangings that he is enabled to sell them at the lowest prices, wholesale and retail. New patterns will be received every week as soon as they are out.

2800 rolls of new styles for the Spring trade have been received within a few days. Unusual inducements are thus offered to purchasers of House Paper of all descriptions, from the highest finished Satin to the most common Paper, (call and see for yourselves.) Country dealers supplied on the most reasonable terms. SAMUEL B. FOSTER,
30 Lawrence Place,
Near the Railroad Station. Be sure and enquire for Foster, 30 Lawrence Place, Salem. mch 15

GRASS SEED.

3000 POUNDS CLOVER SEED;
50 bags Red Top Seed;
150 bushels Herds Grass Seed;
Orchard Grass and White Clover Seed—for sale by S. CHAMBERLAIN & SON, march 15 Front Street, Salem.

ROOM PAPERS.

☞2000 ROLLS.☜

OF the newest and most desirable patterns of Philanelphia and New York Room PAPERS, selected with great care from the different manufacturers in Philadelphia and New York.

Also 8000 rolls of almost every variety of patterns of FRENCH and AMERICAN manufacture of the best and cheapest patterns.

The above having been bought for cash will be sold at a small advance on the cost,—as cheap or cheaper than can be bought in Boston or elsewhere.

☞Please call and examine at the Bookstore of W. & S. B. IVES Stearns' Building.
Salem April 18, 1845. 2 m.

Opening of Spring!

Magnificent, Chaste and Original Designs for Remodeling

"OAK HALL!"

FOR SPRING TRADE!

OPENING OF "OAK HALL" FOR THREE MONTHS!

Advice to Professional Men, Merchants, Clerks with moderate Salaries, Farmers, Mechanics, Seamen, Firemen and others, VISIT OAK HALL!

ARRIVAL OF SPRING GOODS!
To Wholesale Dealers.

THE OPENING
This Morning, for Three Months!

I would again most respectfully inform the citizens of Boston, and strangers visiting the city, (after a delay of six weeks, during which time I have not been idle,) I have completed my arrangements on the most

MAGNIFICENT SCALE,

greatly surpassing my former arrangements. The Hall is splendidly decorated with almost

MAGIC ELEGANCE!

The architecture being Gothic, has given the artist an opportunity to display his taste to advantage. The paintings which adorn the walls are so perfectly chaste and appropriate, that every one will be fully compensated the trouble of visiting it. The design and effect of the interior, especially when

ILLUMINATED IN THE EVENING,

Is unequalled in any store this side of the Atlantic. Much praise is due to the artist, for his share in beautifying this Establishment. I flatter myself that the good taste of my fellow citizens and townsmen will fully appreciate all I have done, as my Establishment was the FIRST and ONLY ONE that adopted the

"EXTREME LOW PRICE SYSTEM,"

Before "OAK HALL" was in existence it was not a very uncommon thing for a gentleman to pay from $45 to $50 for a suit of clothes. For one half of this sum or less, a perfect and entire suit can be obtained at this Establishment, cut and made with that ease and grace, that distinguish my garments from others. From this

EMPORIUM OF FASHION

first originated the Gothic style of architecture in Boston, and Oak Painting, &c. now so much in fashion. To those who have not visited this great

PLACE OF RESORT,

on account of the name of the street, I would most respectfully say, that where my establishment is located was once the Court end of Boston, and at this time is visited and patronized by the most influential and respectable individuals. Man, not unlike the fields, is now breaking from its Coat of Ice and Snow and, having its dusty suit of nature soon to be warmed into animation, and renew its beautiful suit of Green, So with Man—wrapped up in his Overcoat, he now on the opening of Spring, finds his under suit rusty and shabby, and is not suitable to wear. The next thing is to find a good place to fit out at a

REASONABLE PRICE,

and to be sure and have a GOOD FITTING SUIT, that will set upon the form with ease, grace and gentility.

FIVE GOOD REASONS

Why you can purchase at OAK HALL less than at any other Establishment in the United States:

FIRST—You do not pay me for YOUR suit, and the INDIVIDUAL'S that did not pay previous to you, as MY business is Cash on delivery.

SECOND—If any Garment made to order is not pleasing in every particular, it is no inconvenience to take it back and make another, as Ready Made Garments are directly in my line.

THIRD—I purchase my Goods in large lots, extremely cheap, and give my customers the benefit, by selling them at the smallest advances,

Fourth—I go by the motto.

LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS

OR AS SOME SAY,

"NO PROFITS AT ALL."

That I'll leave with my customer to decide.

FIFTH—My facilities are such at this time doing a

LARGE BUSINESS,

that I can afford to sell at

VERY LOW PRICES!

BOYS' CLOTHING.

I have lately added to my already extensive manufactory of Boys' Clothing, rooms for the manufacture of Boys' Clothing, and shall keep a large supply of every variety and kind, always on hand.

TO WHOLESALE DEALERS.

You will find the greatest variety of every style of Fresh Manufactured Clothing, adapted for Spring, to your different Trades, and will be sold extremely low in large lots!

AT RETAIL.

One of the largest and, best selected Stock of Fresh Spring Goods ever in "OAK HALL," and will be sold at the following low prices.—

PANTALOONS.

2500 pair of Fancy Spring patterns of Satinet Pants, at	1 75 to 2 50
3000 pair Steel Mixt Pants,	1 62 to 3 00
2200 do Sheeps Grey Pants	1 75 to 3 00
2500 do Canada Grey do,	1 75 to 3 00
3000 do Black Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 50
5000 do Lavender Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 00
2200 do Super black do Pants, with fancy stripe,	4 00 to 5 00
1500 Super blue Broadcloth and Cassimere Pants	3 50 to 4 50

THIN COATS.

3500 Coats and Sacks, American Gingham,	75 to 1 00
5000 Coats and Sacks, Scotch Gingham,	1 25 to 1 75
4800 Coats and Sacks Scotch Gingham, satin figure,	1 50 to 1 75
2700 Coats and Sacks, Webster Check	75 to 1 25
3750 Coats and Sacks, London Plaids,	1 25 to 175
4000 Coats and Sacks, of Linen and other goods,	1 00 to 1 75

THIN PANTS.

8000 pair thin Pants of every quality of Goods at low prices, say from 50 cents to $2 50 per pair.

VESTS.

300 light Vests, a very pretty affair for Spring,	50c to 1 00
4500 Dark Valencia,	75 to 1 50
5500 Fine Valencia, dark and light	1 50 to 2 50
2700 Satin Vests, figured and plain,	2 00 to 3 00

DRESS AND FROCK COATS.

5000 super Dress Coats, all colors, green, blue, black, olive, &c. from $4 to $15.
1750 super Frock Coats, all colors, Mulberry, browns, etc. from $6 to $16.
All the above cut in the latest style, and made up expressly for Spring Trade.
500 Business Coats, at low prices, say from $2 to $5.
2200 Tweed Coats, water proof, from $3,75 to $5.

FURNISHING DEPARTMENT.

Great Display of Furnishing Goods at the following low prices, viz:

150 dozen	White Shirts—Linen Bosoms, Collars and R b ands,	75c to 1 25 each
100 do	White Shirts, plain.	50c to 75c do
150 do	Fancy Shirts,	62 1-2 to 87 1-2
200 do	Twilled Shirts,	50 to 62 1-2 do
25 do	Rich Figured Satin Scarfs,	Low prices.
20 do	do do do do
50 do	do do do do
50 do	Spring Pattern Cravats,	12 1-2 to 75c
25 do	Rich Fig'd Satin do.	75c to 1 25
50 do	Stocks, of every descrpition, such as Satin Bombazine, &c. and made in the latest Spring Style 1845	37 1-2 to 1 50
10 do	Brussells Carpet Bags, and others,	1 00 to 2 75
75 do	Smoking Caps,	12 1-2 to 25c
200 do	Braces of every description,	12 1-2 to 50c
20 do	best Kid Gloves,	50c to 1 00
25 do	Thread do	25 to 50c
20 do	Silk do	50 to 75c
100 do	Linen Bosoms—all kinds,	25 to 75c
300 do	do Collars, latest pattern,	10 to 25c
250 do	Canes,	17c to 1 00
325 do	Umbrellas,	50c to 1 50
50 do	Glazed Silk Caps,	1 00 to 1 25
100 do	do do	25 to 37c
505 do	Silk Pocket Hdkfs	25 to 75c

An endless variety of Fancy Articles, such as Gold and Fancy Studs—Hair Brushes—Clothes do—Pocket Combs—Dressing do—Tooth Brshes—Cologne—Bosom Pins—Fancy Soaps—Silk Purses—Guard Chains—Pant Straps, &c. &c.

A LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO THE TRADE.

My furnishing Goods are purchased from first rate hands, at low prices, and will be sold at small advance to the trade at my

EXTENSIVE LONG ROOMS,
OAK HALL BUILDING,

GEORGE W. SIMMONS,
General Tailor, Draper and Outfitter,
32, 34, 36 and 38 Ann street.
Opposite Merchant's Row—BOSTON.
apr 19 3m

LYNDE PLACE.

THE subscribers would respectfully inform the citizens of Danvers and vicinity, that they have just received and are now opening a full and complete assortment of

DRY GOODS,

adapted to the present season, comprising a splendid assortment of SHAWLS, embracing every quality and price.

DRESS GOODS,

in great variety, consisting of Corded Cashmeres· Mousseline de Laines; Crape do do; Cashmere do; CALICOES of every description.

WHITE GOODS, LINENS, DOMESTICS, WOOLEN GOODS, etc. etc.

J. A. FARNSWORTH & CO.,
apr 5 1m 147 Essex street, Salem.

MERCHANT TAILOR,

MAIN STREET.

WOULD respectfully inform his friends and the public generally, that he has just returned from Boston with a select stock of

BROADCLOTHS,

such as German blue-black and English blue-black, brown and olive, and a very nice Tweed for Sack Coats or Pants.

German and English CASSIMERES AND DOESKINS of all kinds for Pants

VESTINGS,

such as Satin and fine Cassimere, uncut Velvet, and Fancy and many other varieties of vestings.

The above will be sold Cheap for Cash and for Cash only.

M. T. as above, continues to make garments to order at short notice, and warranted as good a fit as can be obtained at any other establishment in Salem or Boston or in any of these diggins any way you can fix it.

Grateful for past favors, a continuance of public patronage is respectfully solicited.

The Spring Fashions just received from New York.
apr 12

HARRISON'S REMEDY
FOR THE PILES.

THIS is an ointment prepared by the undersigned, and has been so thoroughly tested in so many different cases that I never hesitate to warrant relief to those who will give it a fair trial, observing the directions around each box which give a plain treatise on the disease and full instructions as to diet mode of cure, &c. One application at night never fails to relieve the greatest pain and anguish. I am ready to refer to numerous individuals who have proved this Remedy to be the safest, surest, speediest and cheapest

CURE FOR THE PILES.

My agent in Exeter writes thus: "the Pile Remedy which you left me is all sold, please send me soon a farther supply, as a number of persons in this town think very highly of it. N. GILMAN"

MORE TESTIMONY.

Salem, Aug. 6. Mr. Harrison: The box of ointment which I had from you has worked like a charm —I have used it only one night, and I am cured. I had used Hays' Liniment as I stated to you, with no benefit but rather was worse, it causing more inflammation. Yrs, J. W.

BLEEDING PILES CURED.

Mr. Harrison—Having given your Peristaltic Lozenges and Pile Remedy a fair trial, I have the satisfaction to inform you that they have operated wonderfully in my case. I had not been able for months to do any work at my trade, owing to exhaustion from bleeding, but I now feel myself cured. The severe pain which I had in my stomach is gone, and my strength is fast returning. I had used various remedies to no purpose, until I tried your medicine. I can also state that Capt. Benj. Ireson of this town has also experienced great benefit from your Remedy. I cheerfully recommend the medicine to all suffering with that distressing complaint—the Piles.

EDWARD H. LEWIS.

Lynn, Sept. 27, 1844.

For sale at 256 Essex street, by the Proprietor,
J. S. HARRISON JR.,

Agents—in Danvers, S. PROCTOR, Jr.; Marblehead—E. Arnold; Lynn—Ladd, and Holder; Beverly—Clarke; Newburyport—C. Whipple; Andover—Amos Abbott; Topsfield—Bixby and Merriam, Haverhill—Nichol: Boston—Ransom & Stevens Tompkins, Southers and Fowle.
mch 15 6m

AUCTIONS.

BY DOWLEY & WHALL,
[Store Nos 21 and 22 Pearl street, Boston.]
On SATURDAY, May 3d, at 12 1-2 o'clock, at store
Sole Leather and Shoe Stock.
2500 SIDES of Sole Leather, and a general assortment of Shoe Stock.

THE
Massachusetts Mechanic Association
HAVING AWARDED TO
GOVE, LOCKE & CO.,
and no one else, a DIPLOMA for specimens of
The Best Ready Made Clothing

Exhibited by them at the Mechanics' Fair in September last, must satisfy the community that the location of an establishment is of but little importance, and that the idea of being confined to a particular section of the city, in order to obtain a

GENTEEL GARMENT,

has been rendered obsolete, by the above named award, as without prejudice the award was made to those who deserved it Being convinced themselves, that their CUSTOM WORK has not been surpassed in any point of view, still they have been obliged to stem the current against the strongest prejudices, and have, by unremitted attention to the tastes and desires of their patrons, to a very considerable extent, overcome them, resulting in a successful trade, and encouraging them to prosecute the NEW ENGLAND BRANCH OF THEIR BUSINESS, with renewed vigor, and to devote a large share of their attention the present season, to the

Highest Grade of Custom Work!

Being now prepared with every facility adapted to the various classes in the community, they can furnish any style of Garment which their notion or fancy may dictate—aiming

In point of Style and Fashion,
to be in advance of any other

CLOTHING ESTABLISHMENT!

and being at all times supplied with materials of every description, they are prepared to turn out at the shortest notice

AS GOOD AND AS GENTEEL A GARMENT,

as can be obtained in the United States, and have entire confidence in making the assertion, having Cutters constantly

ENGAGED ON CUSTOM WORK:

who are inferior to none in this region, enabling them to assure those who have favored them with their patronage, that no pains will be spared to deserve a continuance of their support—and to those who lack confidence in a Clothing Establishment, because it is situated on

COMMERCIAL STREET,

they would say that a specimen of their work can be seen in nearly everysection of the city, particularly on the backs of

THE MOST GENTEEL PEOPLE!

and to them they refer, in relation not only to the treatment which is universally tendered to them by all concerned in the

COMMERCIAL ARCADE!

but more especially in regard to the price as the Proprietors have by experience ascertained that they can furnish a

FIRST RATE GARMENT!

at a medium price, equal in every respect to those furnished up in town, at an exhorbitant one. Their Stock of Clothing, adapted to the

SPRING SALES!

is far superior to any previous year, and the patronage of the public is respectfully invited, whether in pursuit of a single garment or otherwise, as their stock embraces every article essential or requisite to the

WHOLESALE DEALERS!

bles them to supply COUNTRY DEALERS in any quantity at the shortest notice, and on the best terms.

WHOLESALE DEALERS!

located any where from Maine to Georgia, or even in Texas, can find at this concern an assortment of Wearing Apparel adapted to their sales, and are invited before concluding their

SPRING PURCHASES!

—TO CALL—

At No. 60 Commercial street,
BOSTON,

Sign of the Monument,—and visit the proprietors of

COMMERCIAL ARCADE,
GOVE, LOCKE & COMPANY.
Boston, March 29, 1845. 3m

REMOVAL.

SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN
Rich Jewelry and Fancy Goods.

HAVE removed to the New Store, No. 291 Essex street, (next above Mechanic Hall) where they will keep constantly for sale Gold Finger Rings, Breast Pins, Bracelets, Lockets, Keys, Gold and Silver Pencil Cases, Silver Thimbles, Silver and Plated Table and Tea Spoons, Butter Knives. Silver Plated and Brittania Ware, Shell, Horn, and Ivory Combs, Pocket Books, Purses, &c., &c.

N. B. All kinds of Jewelry repaired in a superior manner and warranted. Old Gold or Jewelry, made over or exchanged for new.

S. & C. having acquired a thorough knowledge of the business in New York, as well as our success for the past five years in this city, will, we feel assured, enable us to execute with approbation any orders entrusted to our care.

☞Thankful for past patronage, we solicit a continuance of the same. tf March 15.

DOWLEY & WHALL,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, AND
AUCTIONEERS,
FOR THE SALE OF
Boots, Shoes, Leather and all kinds of Shoe Stock, at Private and Auction Sale,
Nos. 21 and 22 PEARL Street,
Levi A. Dowley, } BOSTON.
Joseph B. Whall, }
Cash liberally advanced on Boots, Shoes and Shoe Stock, for private and public sales.

—References—

Messrs. Jos. Whitney & Co.,	}	Boston.
" Josiah M. Jones, Esq.,
" Spofford, Tileston, & Co.,	}	New York.
" Shepard Knapp, Esq.,
" C. M. Leupp & Co.,
" Haddock, Hazletine & Reed,		Philadelphia
" Poland, Jenkins & Co.,		Baltimore.
" Friend, Humphrey & Co.,		Albany.

mch 29 1y

ADAMS & RICHARDSON,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
HARDWARE.
MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS FOR THE SALE OF
Cut Nails, White Lead, Sheet Lead and Lead Pipe.
NO. 207 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
Joseph Adams. }
C. M. Richardson, }
march 15 tf

TIME FOR TRANSPLANTING.

The sooner trees, shrubbery, &c., are taken up the better, after the frost is out of the ground, in order that vegetation may be checked, otherwise they will soon begin to put forth buds leaves and blossoms, after which, removing will of course check them. It is not of importance to set them out immediately, on the contrary, if the ground that is to receive them is wet, it is better to delay till it can be worked to advantage. Meantime the trees may remain packed, if that is their condition, and they are well packed, so as to be kept moist. Or if not packed, they may be laid in by the heels, which is covering their roots and the lower part of the stems in soil, which should not be done where it is very wet and cold, and if the tops are protected from the sun it will be better. In this way, or in the package, trees may remain safely a week or two or if necessary, two or three weeks before setting, though it is better to set soon if the ground be dry enough to be worked.—[Boston Cultivator.

PRODUCTIVE COWS.

A correspondent at Norwich (Mass.) informs us that "Mr Joseph Kirkland of that town, has kept on his farm the last year, six cows; three of them calved near the first of March, the other the last of May. From their milk he has made 981 lbs. of butter; at 14 cents per lb., the price at which the most of it was sold, it would amount to $137.34; to which add the value of the skim milk, $3,11 per cow, and the calves which were all raised at $3 a-piece, at the time of weaning, and it amounts to $ 174,00, which will give to each cow on an average the value of her product for one year, the sum of $29. The cows were raised on the farm, and are from 3 to 6 years old; their keeping has been grass and hay. One cow gave, during the first week in June, on one day, 40 lbs. of milk, and on the next day 38 lbs., from which was made 4 lbs. of butter, or 2 lbs. each day; her milk was weighed several times in the months of July and August, and was found to weigh from 35 to 37 lbs. a day." Albany Cultivator.

COMPARATIVE VALUE OF THE POTATO. One hundred pounds of mealy potatoes are equal, for nutriment to—

Meat without bone,	25 lbs.
Beans,	28 "
Wheat bread,	35 "
Parsnips and carrots,	190 "
Turnips	300 "
Cabbage,	400 "

The experiments of Berry & Herring establish the fact that 3 lbs. of potatoes are equal for nourishment to 12 ounces of bread and 5 ounces of meat.—[Amer. Agricult.

OLDEN TIME.—In 1669, the constables in the [illegible] all persons who slept in church, and report their names to the General Court. If such a law were in force in these days, constables would have their hands full of business and be precluded from many a comfortable nap themselves.

In the year 1664, a law was enacted by the colony court of Eastham, Massachusetts, that "all persons who should stand outside the meeting house during the time of divine service, should be set in the stocks."

By the recent census, Paris is found to contain 1,000,000 inhabitants.

NED NORWAY

Who believes that without Money there is no Liberty.

Ned Norway was found by the police one Thursday night in that state which in a literal language, is styled "beautifully blue."

"What are you?" said the watchman, poking him with his stave beneath the fourth and fifth ribs.

"I'm a slave," said Ned—"the slave of necessity."

"Then you hain't no vote?" said the watchman.

"Yes, I have, though," said Ned; "but what of that?—voting don't do no good to no body but the President, and Governor, and members of Congress, and sich like folks: a feller can't run his face at the tavern because he has a vote—votin' don't pay the washer woman, nor foot up a tailor's bill. I tells you what it is, old feller, votin' 's a bore—it don't even get a feller liquor, 'cept it be at'lection times."

"But ain't you at liberty to go where you please, and to do as you please?" said the watchman.

"Not a bit of it," said Ned; "because, I tell you again, I'm a slave—and so is every one that hain't money. It's all very well to tell folks about freedom, liberty, and all that sort of thing—it looks remarkably well in Fourth of July speeches—but I tell you, like New England rum, it don't bear analyzing. You just go into a restaurat down town, tell the landlord you're a freeman and voted for President Polk, that you want a dinner, but hain't got no money to give him for it: just see if he don't "parlez vous" and "sacre Mon Dieu" you! I tell you again that this here liberty without money is like the trimmin' without the leg of mutton—like the nut shell without the kernel—like——"

That'll do," said the watchman—for by this time they had got to the calaboose—"that'll do for the present; you can get into the calaboose without money—though I reckon you can't get out without jail-fees."

Ned was put in for the night, and whether he should pay jail-fees or not—not having the money—was left an open question, to be decided next morning by the Recorder.—Picayune.

Railway and Steam Power 3600 years ago.—The lost arts of the ancient Egyptians. If the Thebans, 1800 years before Christ, knew less in some departments of knowledge than ourselves, they also in others knew more. They possessed the art of tempeirng copper tools so as to cut the hardest granite with the most minute and brilliant precision. This art we have lost. Again, what mechanical means had they to raise and fix the enormous imposts on the lintels of their temples at Karnac? Architects now confess that they could not raise them by the usual mechanical powers. Those means must, therefore, be put to the account of the 'lost arts.' That they were familiar with the principle of Artesian wells has been lately proved by engineering investigations carried on while boring for water in the Great Oasis. That they were acquainted with the principle of the railroad, is obvious, that is to say, they had artificial causeways, levelled, direct and grooved, (the grooves being anointed with oil) for the conveyance from great distance, of enormous block of stone, entire stone temples, and colossal statues of half the height of the monument. Remnants of iron, it is said, have lately been found in these grooves. Finally, M. Arago has argued, that they not only possessed a knowledge of steam power, which they employed in the cavern mysteries of their Pagan free-masonry, (the oldest in the world, of which the pyramids were the lodges,) but that the modern steam engine is derived, through Solomon de Caus, the predecessor of Worcester, from the invention of Hero, the Egyptian engineer. Westminster Review.

Fales' Cathartic, or Vegetable PURGATIVE LOZENGES.

ARE the best and most popular medicines for people of ages, countries, and climates, and in every condition of life. They are compounded of the essences of vegetables from many nations. Their taste is inexpressibly delightful. They cause no pain in their operations, but the first change of feeling after taking them is, that of pleasure, and they cleanse the stomach and bowels more perfectly than any other purgative medicines.

The most wonderful and surprising cures have been effected by them in different parts of the earth. How these purgative lozenges do speedily purify the blood, and substitute health for sickness, is a mystery to the most eminent members of the healing art. Such purgative medicines must become universal, and supersede the use of all other purgative compounds, and as long as disease continues to afflict people, so long will these Lozenges remain unrivalled in all coming time throughout the world. Every person who travels should carry them—every family should keep them—and every sick man, woman, or child should take them.

FALES' WORM LOZENGES,

Are a safe and sure remedy for worms. Children love them. They act like a charm in removing the symptoms such as starting in sleep, grating the teeth paleness about the mouth and nose, occasional sickness at stomach, precarious appetite, swelled bowels, and general feverish habit, The child falls into a quiet sleep, and the worms are stupified and expelled, and the child, as far as heard from, in every instance has been cured. Price, 25 cents per box, with full directions; sold at Commercial street, Boston,

FALES' COUGH LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common Colds and Coughs, Whooping Cough, Inflamatiou of the Throat and Lungs, in the Croup or Hives, and more certain to act satisfactory than the celebrated Hive Syrup. The most happy effect is obtained in a few moments; the symptoms disappear and the disease is broken up by the magical effect of these Lozenges. Full directions accompany each box, are found at the Depositopy, [illegible] Boston.

FALES' DYSENTERY [illegible]

Are a safe and agreeble temedy for Dysentery, Diarrhea and Bowel Complaints of children. Particular attention must be paid to the directions which are on each box.

FALES' CAMPHOR LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common and sick head ache, and where there is a sense of tightness or weight over the eyes, in erruptive diseases, such as Measles and Small Pox. Also in Mania, Epilepsy, Melancholy, Hysteria, in St. Vitus Dance, and in all eases of languor and oppession of the Vital powers, may be taken with safety by women and children in all conditions. Full directions accompany each box.

FALES' CYPRIAN HAIR TONIC,

Is now so extensively known and justly celebrated that further comment upon it will be useless, we can say, however, that among the many thousands who have purchassed the Tonic, in this and other countries, none have returned with complaints, while thousands have expressed not only their approbation, but their wonder and admiration on beholding its effects. A few bottles only can be had at 96 Commercial street, Boston.

CLEAR OUT YOUR RATS.

The gnawing and antics of these destructive creatures can be hushed forever in your house and store, if you will procure a box of the genuine.

MADAGASCAR RAT EXTERMINATOR,

and use it according to directionf. You cannot depend upon it unless obtained at J. J. FALES' No. 96 Commercial street Boston.

—AGENTS—

Salem, J. S. HARRISON, J. Stone, jr., H. Whipple, S Badger, jr; Lynn, J. Moulton jr., Geo. Lummus, Wm. Cogswell, Wm. L Ladd; Swampscot, W. Thompson; Marblehead, E. Arnold Wm. Stacey; Danvers, S. Proctor, Jos Shed, New Mills, H. S Pope, A. P Perley & Co, C. Simonds, Calder & Foster; Topsfield, B. P. Adams; Beverly. A N Clark. ep6m mch 29

SPRING FASHIONS.

JUST RECEIVED.

THE subscriber has just received a large and fashionable stock of Spring Goods, consisting of French, English and American

BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES AND DOESKINS.

Also—A rich assortment of VESTINGS, of the latest patterns, which will be made into Garments in the most fashionable style, on reasonable terms.

Also received—a nice lot of GENTLEMEN'S SCARFS and STOCKS of the latest styles.

Also—GLOVES, SUSPENDERS, SHIRT BOSOMS and COLLARS.

Also—Gentlemen's DRESSING GOWNS constantly on hand. JOHN DOLAN,

mch 15 275 Essex street, Salem.

JOB PRINTING,

OF ALL KINDS

EXECUTED AT THE COURIER OFFICE,

WITH DESPATCH,

And on the most favourable Terms.

New Furniture Store.

SALEM FURNITURE & FEATHER WARE-HOUSE.

205 1-2 ESSEX STREET. 205 1-2

(Two Doors East from the Market,)

JOSEPH WALLIS would respectfully inform his friends and the public that he has taken the rooms recently occupied by T. Needham, Esq., where he will keep constantly on hand and for sale an extensive and well selected assortment of which he will sell at the lowest cash prices, among which may be found,

CABINET FURNITURE,

Sofas, Sofa Beds; Windlass, Cot Trundle and common Bedsteads; Secretaries; Bureaus; Mahogany, Card, Work, Centre and Dining Tables;—Mahogany, Cane-seat and common Chairs; Mahogany, Cane-back and common Rocking Chairs;—Children's Toy, Rocking and Dining Chairs; Settees and Settee Cradles; Cribs; Grecian and common Wash Stands; Portable Sinks; Portable and Gentleman's Writing Desks, Toilet, Dining and common Pine Tables; Looking Glasses; Swing and Toilet Glasses. Fancy Boxes, a great variety;—Mattresses; and every article usually found in his line of business.

CLOCKS.

J. W. intends keeping on hand a large and well selected assortmeni of Wood and Brass Clocks from the best of manufacturers—all of which we can feel confident in warranting. Those about purchasing this article will do well to call.

FEATHERS.

Live Geese and common Feathers; a great variety.

N B. J. W. will still continue to Manufacture FURNITURE at the Old Stand, No 29 Lafayette, corner of Ward street, where he will keep on hand a good assortment of

Cabinet Furniture, Feathers, Looking Glasses and Clocks.

Salem, April 12, 1845.

EDWARDS' LINIMENT.

For Sprains, Cuts, Bruises, Stiffened or Swelled Joints, Chilblains, Chapped Hands, Numbness and Rheumatism.

THIS invaluable artidle is now for the first time offered to the public, after having been in use for twenty years, with unusual and astonishing success within the circle of the proprietor's immediate influence. It has received the unqualified approbation of some eminent Physicians, and also Mariners and Mechanics.

It is also recommended, and more than a thousand cases might be cited, when it has been used for Horses in cases of lameness or when galled, &c. &c.

The public are assured that in offering the above we do recommend that which has not the least semblance of QUACKERY, but on the contrary it has done great and lasting good in its efficacious power and healing qualities.

As this medicine has been so long known in Salem and its vicinity, and as there are many that would avail themselves of it if they knew where it could be obtained, therefore the subsciber would now offer it to the public. It will be found always on hand and prepared by the subscriber.

BENJ EDWARDS,

No. 14 Front street, Salem, Mass.

Wanted—trusty and worthy AGENTS in the neighboring towns and vicinity.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENTS.

DANIELS, POOR & CO., Danvers, Mass.
Benjamin F. Browne, Salem Mass.
Smith & Fowle, Boston, "
H. F. Sherry, Bangor, Me.
Charles Whipple, Bookseller, Newburyport.
Wm. R. Preston, Portsmouth, N. H.
John S. Caldwell, Belfast. Me.
Wm. H. Palmer, Lynnfield.
Joseph Edwards, jr., Lynn.
Charles Edwards, Marblehead.
Wm. Edwards, Beverly.

March 15, 1845. tf

G. W & E. CRAFTS,

BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURERS AND STATIONERS,

174 ESSEX STREET, SALEM,

HAVE constantly on hand, and will manufacture to order, all kinds of Blank Books, from the best paper, ruled to any pattern, and bound in a neat and substantial manner,

FINE STATIONERY,

of almost ever description, adapted for counting rooms and schools, comprising in part, Letter and Writing Papers, ruled and plain; Drawing Papers; Note, Tissue and Wrapping Papers; Wafers; Sealing Wax; Seals and Steel Pens of every variety; Quills of every description; wafer Cups; sand boxes; writing fluids and inks; penknives; razors, &c.

PRINTING, RULING AND BINDING,

Printing of shop bills, cards, bill heads, catalogues, &c. executed in the neatest manner and on the best terms. Ruling, to any pattern desired, at short notice. Binding, of every description, executed with despatch.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

A constant supply of school books, of the best editions, together with every kind of School Stationery. [illegible] books furnished at the lowest rates.

HENRY WHIPPLE,

At his Book, Chart and Stationery Store,

No. 190 ESSEX STREET,

HAS for sale a general assortment of Books, in the various branches of Literature, all of which he offers for sale on the most reasonable terms.

PERIODICALS—Nearly all that are published in the United States, are regularly received.

H. W. is agent for Sherman's Cough, Camphor, and Worm Lozenges; Scarpa's Kresoote, Acoustic Oil, for the cure of Deafness, $2 00; Dr. Scudder's Genuine Acoustic Oil, for Deafness $1; Phelps's Tomato Pills; Woodbury's Vegetable Pills; Dean's Rheumatic Pills; Hedge's Rheumatic Plaster; Dyott's Anti-Bilious Pills; Gordak's Jelly of Pomegranate; Matthew's Unrivalled Corn Salve; Dr. Robertson's Vegetable Nervous Cordial; Dr. Robertson's Stomatic Elixir of Health, and various other medicines.

PAPER HANGINGS.

In a few days will be received as above a large assortment of new patterns of Papers, from 12 cts to 25 cts. a roll and new patterns of Philadelphia Papers and Borders. Salem, March 15.

MICKLEFIELD & CO.,

KEEP CONSTANTLY ON HAND AT THE

CITY MILLS, SALEM,

Nos. 31, 33, 35, 37, 39 Mill Street,

BRANCH, MOTTLED AND PLAIN

VENEERS,

CEDAR AND MAHOGANY

Boards, Plank and Joist.

ALSO—GRAIN AND MEAL.

Wholesale and Retail on the most reasonable terms, for Cash or approved credit.

Also—CIRCULAR, VENEER AND OTHER

Sawing and Turning.

☞They also GRIND all kinds of Grain.

All orders entrusted to their care will be attended to with punctuality and care.

JOHN JEWETT,
T. H. PRIME,
J. A. KENNY.

mch 15

POOLE & STEDMAN,

MAKERS OF

CARRIAGES, HARNESSES, TRUNKS, &c.

THE subscribers having formed a Co-partnership under the above firm, are ready to attend to any orders in their line.

Particular attention paid to repairing.

S. A. POOLE,
G. B. STEDMAN.

N. B. Valises, Ladies' Satchels, Carpet Bags, &c. constantly on hand and for sale cheap.

Corner of Grove and Main Streets.

Danvers, March 15.

CHARLES H. MANNING,

CABINET MAKER,

Near the Sign of the Lamb, Main Street,

DANVERS, MASS.

FURNITURE manufactured on the most reasonable terms. Also—CURRIER'S TABLES made and repaired cheap.

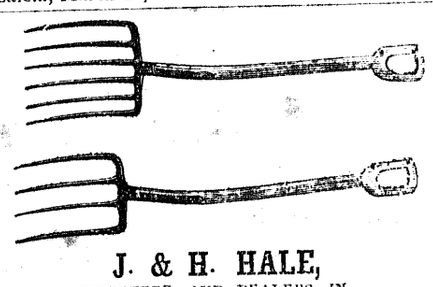
SHOE-MAKERS' PEGGING BENCHES made as above. oct 15

S. R. BOTT,

DRAPR & TAILOR,

No. 148 Essex Street, Salem,

TAKES this method of informing the public of Danvers and vicinity that he has for sale one of the richest and BEST selected assortments of



Broadcloths, Cassimeres & Vestings

ever before offered in Salem. The Stock is of the latest Spring and Summer styles, and cannot be surpassed by any establishment in the city, which will be sold by the yard, or made into Garments, in a style that CANNOT be surpassed in this or any other city.

☞Strangers from the country would do well to call at this establishment, as they select their Goods with the most perfect confidence, that each article is as good in quality, and as low in price as can be obtained at any other store.

N. B. The report of Fashions received every month.

Salem, March 15, 1845.

J. & H. HALE,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

HARD WARE GOODS AND CUTLERY,

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC

HOUSE KEEPING ARTICLES AND FANCY GOODS,

Agricultural Tools and Ploughs,

PLOUGH CASTINGS, FRICTION ROLLERS AND CRANKS,

Iron and Copper Pumps and Lead Pipe,

WINDOW GLASS,

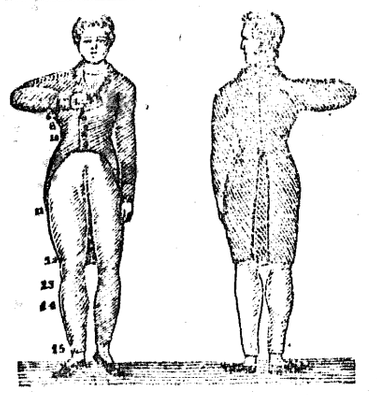
CAMPHENE,

CAMPHENE LAMPS, HANGING, SIDE AND ASTRAL—A GREAT VARIETY OF STYLES,

Cut Glass, Britannia, Brass, Bronze and Mantle Lamps,

CARPENTER'S TOOLS,

HOUSE TRIMMINGS,



Shoe Makers' Tools, Nails, Thread and Pegs,

BOILER DOORS AND OVEN MOUTHS,

Furnaces, Cast Iron Hollow Ware, Tubs, Pails,

No. 215 Essex Street, SALEM, Mass.

march 15 tf

BENJAMIN EDWARDS,

DRAPER & TAILOR,

No. 14 FRONT STREET, SALEM.

GARMENTS Cut and Made to order, and Fashionably, and warranted to give entire satisfaction

Constantly on hand, a good assortment of

BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES, AND VESTINGS.

Also—Neck Stocks Italian Cravats, Scarfs, Shirt Bosoms, Collars, Feetings, Braces, Umbrellas, Hair and Clothes Brushes, Cologne Water, Wallets,

and other articles necessary for Gentlemen's use.

Grateful for the very liberal patronage which has heretofore been bestowed upon the establisment, he hopes by care and attention to business to merit a continuance.

Any order for Goods in the TAILORING LINE, attended to with fidelity and despatch.

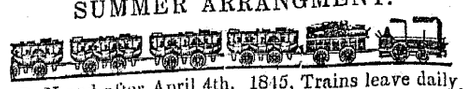
All Garments Repaired and Cleansed CHEAP.

Any of the above articles if not on hand when called for, will be furnished at short notice.

mch 15 tf

GENTLEMEN'S SHIRTS, BOSOMS & DICKEYS.

A GOOD variety now opening at EDWARDS'S,



apr 6 14 Front street, Salem.

VIOLINS.—A fresh supply of Violins, cheap and good, just received. Also, on hand, and procured to order, Accordions, with and without semitones, Flutes, Clarionets Strings, and Music merchandize of every description. New Music is received daily.—Music bound at short notice.

ap 17 W S CLEVELAND & Co, 193 Essex st.

EASTERN RAILROAD.

SUMMER ARRANGMENT.

ON and after April 4th, 1845, Trains leave daily, (Sundays excepted,)

Boston for Portland, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P. M.
" Portsmouth, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 5 1-2 P.M.
" Somersworth, Great Falls, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 P.M.
" for Newburyport, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 and 5 1-2 P.M.
" for Salem, 7 1-4, 9, A.M., 12 1-4 2 1-2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2, 7 1-2 P.M.

Salem for Portland, 8 A.M., 3 1-4 P.M.

Salem for Portsmouth and Newburyport, 8 A.M., 3 1-4, 6 1-4 P.M.

Portland for Boston, 7 1-2 A.M., 3 P.M.

Saco for Boston, 8 A.M., 3 1-2 P.M.

Somersworth, Great Falls for Boston, 8 3-4 A.M.; 4 1-4 P.M.

South Berwick lot Boston, 9 1-4 A M, 4 3-4 P.M.

Portsmouth for Boston, 6 1-2, 10,* A.M., 5 1-2* P.M.

Newburyp't for Boston, 8 1-4, 10 3-4* AM. 6 1-4* PM.

Salem for Boston, 7 -2, 8 1-2, 10 1-4 11 3-4,* A.M.; 2 1-4, 5, 7,* P.M.

*Or on their arrival from the East.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH:

Trains leave Marblehead for Salem, at 7 1-4, 8 1-4, 10, A.M.; 2, 4, 4 3-4, 7, P.M.

Leave Salem for Marblehead, at 8, 9 3-4 A. M., 1, 3 1-4, 4 1-4, 6 1-4, 8 1-4 P. M.

A Merchandize Train will leave Boston, Portland and all intermediate places every day.

Freight Office in Boston, No. 17 Merchants Row, and on the line of the road at the several Depots.

JOHN KINSMAN,

apr 12 Master of Transportation.

Summer Arrangement of the

DANVERS AND SALEM

HOURLY COACHES

THE Danvers and Salem Hourly Coaches will in connection with the Eastern Railroad, leave Danvers and Salem at the following hours,

viz:

Leave Danvers at	7	A M.	Leave Salem at	8	A.M.
" "	8		" "	9	1-2
" "	9 3-4		" "	11	1-2
" "	11 1-4		" "	12	3-4
" "	1 3-4	P M.	" "	3	P.M.
" "	2 3-4		" "	4
" "	4 1-2		" "	6
" "	6 1-2		" "	8

For sents apply at Macintire's Hotel, or at Joseph G Shed's store in Danvers, and at the Essex House and Salem Hotel in Salem.

Railroad passengers taken at the depot on the arrival of the cars from Boston and the East.

☞Extra Coaches furnished at any hour on reasonable terms. SYMONDS & TEEL.

apr 19 tf

REMOVAL.

DR. J. A ROBINSON,

SURGEON DENTIST,

SALEM,

WOULD respectfully give notice that he has removed from his old stand, opposite the City Hall, to No. 20 Washington street, recently occupied by A. E. Phillips, where he is ready to perform all operation, in Dentistry, in a most thorough and workmanlike manner.

His experience and success in inserting whole sets either by atmospheric pressure or springs, enables him to furnish them at rates which cannot fail to suit those in want of an article of superior quality.

His method of inserting Teeth, both singly and on plate, with or without Gums, has been found to be satisfactory and successful as combining beauty of finish and adaptation, with all the requisites of mastication and articulation.

Particular attention paid to filling Teeth so as to render them serviceable for many years, and also to the regulation of Children's Teeth.

N B. For sale as above, a first rate article of TOOTH POWDER. 6m mch 15

REMOVAL.

BOWDOIN'S DAGUERROTYPE ROOMS removed from Mechanic Hall, to the adjoining building above, 298 Essex street, where he has rooms built expressly for the purpose of taking Miniatures in any weather.

Mr. B tenders his sincere thanks to his friends and [illegible] and respectfully solicits the continuance of public favor. He has recently purchased a large Achromatic instrument for the purpose of taking GROUPS and LARGE PICTURES, which enable him to give pictures of all sizes, equal to those taken in New York or Boston He has formed a connexion with an establishment in New York, from whence he receives all the new improvements, and materials connected with the Art, which will enable him to give better pictures for less prices than can be obtained in Boston.

Miniatures set in every variety of Lockets; Frames, Cases, &c.

☞Persons visiting Salem, and those about going to sea, can have a perfect likeness completed in a few minutes' time.

 Miniatures set in a neat Morocco Case for $1 50. Exhibition rooms open to visiters through the day.

Salem, March 15. tf

EASY SHAVING AND HAIR CUTTING.

B. B. WILLIAMS respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has removed to the store formerly occupied by Lambert & Merrill, (under the Courier Office,) which he has fitted up in a neat manner, and is now prepared to wait upon those who believe that

"Man wants but little beard below,
Nor wants that little long."

Champooing, Hair Cutting and Shaving is performed to the satisfaction of all who may favor him with their patronage.

Danvers, March 15, 1845. tf

Dissolution of Co-Partnership.

THE Co-partnershiy heretofore existing under the firm of

PERKINS, WELCH & CO.,

is this day dissolved by mutual consent.

I. PERKINS,
P. D. PERKINS,
SAMUEL WELCH.

South Danvers, March 24th, 1845.

The business will be continued at the old stand, Central street, by

PERKINS & CO.,

who are authorized to settle all accounts of the late firm. They will keep constantly on hand a good assortment of the BEST GROCERIES which they will sell on the most reasonable terms. A share of patronage is respectfully solicited. mch 29

NECK STOCKS, SCARFS, CRAVATS, TIES, ITALIAN CRAVATS.

A GOOD assortment of the above just received

EDWARDS'S,

apr 5 14 Front street, Salem.

DANVERS COURIER.

VOL. 1. DANVERS, (MASS.) SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 3, 1845. NUMBER 7.

THE DANVERS COURIER
IS PUBLISHED BY
GEORGE R. CARLTON,
EVERY SATURDAY MORNING,
A few doors North of Mackintire's Hotel,
CENTRAL ST.—SOUTH DANVERS.

Terms—$1 50 if paid in advance, or $2 00, if not paid within one month of the time of subscribing.

The carriers are not allowed to sell any copies of the Courier. Single copies may be obtained at the office, at 5 cents each.

Advertisements will be inserted on favorable terms.

CALENDAR OF COURTS

TO BE HELD IN THE COUNTY OF ESSEX IN THE YEAR 1845.

April 29—Supreme Judicial,—Ipswich.
May 6—Probate,—Ipswich.
" 13 " Gloucester.
" 20 " Salem.
June 3 " Ipswich.
" 10 " Newburyport.
" 16—Common Pleas,—Ipswich.
July 1—Probate,—Salem.
" 2 " Lynn.
" 8—County Commissioners,—Salem.
" 15—Probate,—Andover, S. P.
August 5 " Ipswich.
" 19 " Salem.
Sept. 2 " Ipswich.
" 9 " Newburyport.
" 15—Common Pleas,—Newburyport.
Oct. 7—Probate,—Salem.
" 8 " Marblehead.
" 14—County Commissioners.—Newburyp't.
" 21—Probate,—Haverhill.
Nov. 4—Supreme Judicial,—Salem.
" 4—Probate,—Ipswich.
" 11 " Gloucester.
" 18 " Salem.
Dec. 2 " Ipswich.
" 9 " Newburyport.
" 15—Common Pleas, Ipswich.
" 23—County Commissioners,—at such place as ordered at the preceding term.

POETRY.

A PATHETIC BALLAD.

'Twas in the middle of the night,
To sleep young William tried,
When Mary's ghost came stealing in,
And stood by his bed-side.

O William dear! O William dear!
My rest eternal ceases;
Alas! my everlasting peace
I thought the last of all my cares
Would end with my last minute,
But though I went to my long home,
I didn't stay long in it.

The body-snatchers they have come,
And made a snatch at me;
It's very hard them kind of men,
Won't let a body be.

The arm that used to take your arm
Is took to Dr. Vyse;
And both my legs are gone to walk
The Hospital at Guy's.

I vowed that you should have my hand,
But fate gives us denial;
You'll find it there at Dr. Bell's,
In spirits and a phial.

As for my feet, the little feet,
You used to call so pretty,
There's one I know in Bedford row,
The other's in the city.

I cant tell where my head is gone,
But Dr. Carp can guess,
As for my trunk 'tis all packed up,
To go by Hall's express.

I wish you'd go to Mr. Hall,
And save me such a ride;
I dont half like the outside place,
They've took for my inside.

The cock it crows—I must be goue,
My William we must part!
But I'll be yours in death, although Sir Astley has my heart.

Dont go to weep upon my grave,
And think that there I be;
They haven't left an atom there,
Of my anatomie.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Mr Courier.—Since I last wrote to you, the equilibrium of my life has been somewhat disturbed by a few twinges of the gout, and a consequent fit of what young men style "the blues"—or, as Democritus Junior calls it, "melancholy"—

"O sad and odious name! a name so fell,
Is this of melancholy, brat of hell—
Where born of hellish darkness doth it dwell—
The Furies brought it up, Magœra's teat,
Alecto gave it bitter milk to eat;
And all conspired a bane to mortal men
To bring this devil out of that black den."

Thus with his quaint pen does old Burton, in his anatomy, do into vernacular the latin of Lucian. This Lucian, you will remember, is the same fellow who was torn to pieces by dogs for his impiety in ridiculing the religion of Christ—and would that a like fate waited upon all such wicked men now-a-days. In repeating to myself the above lines while I was writing them down, it seemed as though they had a family likeness to something in my memory—and now I think, it is the beginning of Milton's charming L'Allegro—

"Hence, loathed melancholy,
Of Gerberus and blackest midnight born,
In Stygian cave forlorn
'Mongst horrid shapes, and shrieks, and sights, Unholy! &c."

On comparing these two passages, I mean if you take the original of Lucian, you cannot fail being struck with the coincidence of language and thought—it seems as though Milton must have drawn from Lucian—and yet, who would think of saying that John Milton was a plagiarist? now this is the moral I draw—the folly of those gnat-straining critics who never mark a resemblance in the ideas and expressions of different writers without instantly charging one of them with intentional theft. There has lately been quite a controversy in the New Mirror about some alleged parallelisms in two beautiful pieces of poetry, one written by Hood, and the other by our countryman Aldrich—why, my dear Sir, I rarely read away my evening hour without seeing in some delicate figure or choice thoughts the lineaments of a face which has beamed upon me before. To my mind it only proves the unity of the poetical Divinity. It only shows that as two painters may dip their pencils in the radiant colors which the sunset sky spreads out alike to all, or two sculptors throw the same graceful drapery around the ideal form which always lives in every artist's soul—so two poets, drawing their inspiration from the one adored and beneficent nature, may embalm in their verse the same forms and images of her beauty, and offer in their delectable worship the same prayers which must eternally swell every true poet's heart.

But if you please, Mr Courier, I will turn from this subject and talk of something else—you are probably not aware, Sir, that your humble servant is a great pedestrian; not that I excel in speed, though I have much of what the jockies call bottom—but I walk a good deal, and with my measured jog get over considerable ground. This loitering about the country is a famous thing, Sir, I learn more in this way than from all my printed pages—when Shakespere told about

"Tongues in trees, books in the running brooks, Sermons in stones and good in everything,"

He did more than write mere poetry. I never go out and saunter off, without seeing or meeting with something to quicken my mind or move my heart.

As I was taking a stroll the other day, to observe the progress of the Season and find what wild-flowers had ventured to open their cups to the fickle sky, at a turn of the lane which I had entered, I came upon an old man, who, by the help of crutches, was hobbling back and forth before his cottage door. He was hoping, perhaps, to measure out his span of life, by breathing a little of the fresh Spring air, and warming himself once more in the rays of that Sun which had rolled for many a year over his head, but whose light would soon be quenched for him in the darkness of the grave. I dont know how it is—whether it be an admonition of nature to warn me that my old age is drawing nigh, or a shudder of the nerves, sympathetic with that of the mind as it reflects upon the mournful decay which is the condition of our mortal existence—but I never thus meet with one of these aged men without a sort of chill creep over my whole frame. It may be that this sensation is the natural offspring of the sentiment of reverence—one of the symptoms of that moral quality which those who map out our craniums locate on the top of the skull and call veneration—at any rate, at such times my hat always comes off, and my head bows down as naturally as does that of the Persian before the rising Sun. Even my dog Ginger seems to have caught, by long companionship, the feelings of his master—his ears and tail suddenly drop, all the spice and pungency of his character disappear, and he trots along as demurely as though there was breaking upon his canine soul some idea of his lengthened years and "thoughts of the last bitter hour."

And so this is the story of life—Youth with its dewy morn of pleasure and bright hopes of happiness—manhood whose experience dispels the cunning vision, bears disappointment and sorrow and staggers faith in humanity and heaven—and dreary, desolate, pinching, selfish old age. How does the prospect of becoming an old man affect you, Mr. Courier? as for me, though it is a part of my religion to believe that every cloud has its silver lining and that to all of life there is a sunny side, yet do what I may, I cannot hardly resist the feeling of sadness which steals over me whenever I think of the "second childhood." It is not that age palsies the arm, freezes the warm current of the blood, and dims the light in the eye—or even, that it writes troubles on the brain and makes the reason tremble—but it is the dread of that blight of the heart, we so often see—that withering of the affections, that drying up of all the sweet sympathies, that canker selfishness which eats away the blossoms and fruits of kindly nature. And yet reason tells me that my fear is weakness—that though this is too oft the mournful truth, it need not be so—that life indeed has many a painted bubble and many a stern and sad reality, still human happiness is not a fiction, and calm philosophy may find some good in every seeming ill—that innocent content and consciousness of well-spent days may smooth out many a wrinkle, quicken with generous throb the feeble pulse, and "give the crutch the cradled infancy—" Yes! I myself have known old men who bore the frosts of fourscore years and whose limbs were trembling on the verge of death, with hearts which had retained the freshness of their youth and were as full of gentleness and love as "life's young day." Old age then, need not be an object of such dread, With ourselves it rests to say whether it prove a blessing or a curse, we can at least give color to its hours—we are the rulers of our own spirits—"the mind is its own place." As for me Mr Courier, I am resolved never more to dread growing old, or rather, I am determined never to grow old, I will strive to possess myself of the Poet's feelings, so that when wrinkled and hoary I may say in his words,

"O Youth! for years so many and sweet,
'Tis known that thou and I were one,
I'll think it but a fond conceit—
It cannot be that thou art gone!
Thy vesper-bell hath not yet toll'd;—
And thou wert aye a masker bold!
What strange disguise hast now put on
To make believe that thou art gone?
I see these locks in silvery slips,
This drooping gait, this altered size;
But spring-tide blossoms on thy lips,
And tears take sunshine from thine eyes!
Life is but thought; so think I will
That youth and I are house-mates still—"

I and my dog kept on my way, Mr Courier, but the few shrinking flowers I found during the rest of my walk read a deeper lesson than those I had gathered before. As I looked on them I could not but exclaim and pray with gentle Horace Smith.

"Floral apostles! that in dewy splendor
Weep without wo, and blush without a crime!
O may I deeply learn and ne'er surrender
Your love sublime.

I hope you will pardon me, Mr Courier, for moralizing so much and long—but the fit was on me, and I could not, if I would, have written in any other strain. The next time I talk to you it shall be from a different corner of my mouth. Till then, I remain,

Your obedient servant,
NEWMAN NOGGS.

FOR THE COURIER.

A NEW COMEDY OF ERRORS.

There is sometimes a striking general resemblance between individuals' in form, size, movement and features of the countenance, by which even intimate friends of the parties are for the moment deceived as to their identity. Something of this kind happened recently in this place during the visit of Rev. Prof. Bush, on the occasion of delivering his course of Biblical Lectures. This it will be recollected, was just previous to the departure of the Unitarian clergyman, Rev. Dr. Bigelow, from this town. There is a strange resemblance between these gentlemen, which at a first glance and until dissipated, close observation would be likely to deceive the acquantances of either.—

Both are gentlemen of the old school in their manners, are about the same age, learned, courteous, and of free conversational powers. They are both tall and slender, alike in form and gait, with mouths, and moreover they wear the same pattern of gold bowed spectacles, and at the time of which we speak, their dress was alike, even to the silk bandanna handkerchief which each tied around his neck, when abroad for protection from the raw blasts of our New England spring.

We do not intend to record all the little mistakes which arose from this singular resemblance of these two individuals, but a few of them may be worthy of mention.

Upon the first appearance of the learned Professor in our village, he was accosted by a young urchin who it appears was a messenger from the clerk of the School Committee.

"Please sir, meet this afternoon in Town Room and examine a young ledly what's goin' to keep in No. 6?"

Having delivered his message he ran away in the happy consciousness that one duty of the day had been performed, the Professor in the mean time suspecting the mistake of the lad, but wholly unable to imagine for whom he was substituted.

Expecting some letters by mail he went to the Post Office. No sooner had he entered the door than a lad in attendance sprang to Box 39 and threw on the counter a large bunch of pamphlets, letters and newspapers, with, "that's all to day sir" and retired as quick as he came. The Professor looked at the direction and found they were all addressed to "Rev. Andrew Bigelow D.D." Here was a clue to the mistake of the School Committee's messenger. He then told the attendant that the papers were not for him.

"Sir?"

"Those are not intended for me."

"They are all charged to your Box, sir."

"You are mistaken in the person young man, I wish to know if there is a letter here for George Bush."

The astonished boy gave him a long, incredulous stare, and then sought for the letter which he produced, saying "charge it to 39? Ten cents."

The Professor again assured him that he was not Dr. Bigelow, and paid for the letter, the young man muttering as he went out "I aint so easily gummed as all that. I aint so green as he thinks I am."

While here, Prof. Bush was invited into the pulpit of a church of his own sect, (if a man of his enlarged views can be said to belong to any sect) and preached one of his most logical and powerful sermons. Although most of the congregation were aware to whom they were listening, those from remote parts of the parish were quite astonished to see, as they thought, Dr. Bigelow in the pulpit. Among these, various were the opinions expressed of the character of the discourse—some admitting that it was very good, others, looking through the optics of their prejudices, pronouncing it unsound in doctrine, but all seemed willing to allow that the preacher had a good knowledge of the Bible—for a unitarian.

Dr. Bigelow was not without his annoyances.—About this time Rev. Dr. Baird was giving his Lectures on Europe at Lyceum Hall in Salem, and some from this place regularly attended his course. The next evening after the concluding lecture, Dr. Bigelow being in company among others with several of those who had attended in Salem, his opinion was asked of the lecture, as one who, having travelled in the countries described, was best qualified to judge of it. The Doctor replied that he could give no opinion, not having heard the lecturer. "But I saw you there," said the querist' "and I," "and I," said half a dozen others, "you sat on the right of the lecturer near the platform." The Dr. persisted in his denial, the others in their assertion, and he was obliged at last to call on his friends to prove an alibi, not being willing to be argued out of his own identity.

On another occasion a lady accosted him in a familiar manner with a complimentary remark on his last lecture. As Dr. Bigelow had a weekly lecture in his own vestry, the remark led to a discussion of theological topics, in which the Doctor is an adept. The lady afterwards expressed in the highest terms her admiration of the learning and sound views of Prof. Bush, neither having discovered the mistake of the lady until after parting.

When Prof. Bush was about leaving town, he stepped into the coach office to engage a seat for Salem, giving no farther direction, as he expected to be at the starting place. At the time appointed the coach drove to Dr. Bigelow's house, the door was thrown open and down came the steps. The driver then gave a violent pull at the bell, which soon brought the Doctor in his study gown and slippers, to the door.

Coach ready," said the driver, "Any body for Salem?"

"Nobody here," said the Doctor.

"Some mistake then, your name was on the slate."

And away drove the coach, but had not proceeded far before the astonished driver picked up another Dr. Bigelow, and delivered him safe at the Railroad Station in Salem.

SELECTED TALE.

TRICK OF A GERMAN STUDENT.

Rolf, having no remittance from home, and being in want of a good dinner, sauntered about the market-place of the town in which he resided.—The busy throng had dispersed. A few stragglers only remained, who, with hungry eyes, were viewing the tempting morsels. A sudden thought struck Rolf.—He boldly advanced, and, taking one of the people aside, whispered to him that he was sent at that quiet hour by the celebrated Dr. Addlebrain, to purchase the tail and the two hind hoofs of on ox, as that learned physcian had discovered that, by calcining these substances with the backbone of an ass, he might obtain a powder which would be an infallible cure for the gout, palsy, pestilence,—in short, a complete panacea. Before taking out a patent for this wonderful discovery, the doctor wished to make a final experiment, and for that purpose had sent him to purchase the necessary articles. As the butcher was well aware that a gout-extirpating powder would be in great demand, he was overjoyed at the news, and handled the before despised hoofs as if they were shod with gold and studded with nails of silver.—He lugged out the whole assortment of tails, and entreated Rolf to take his choice.

With a countenance of immovable gravity, Rolf examined and criticised them, and at length chose one of a jet-black hue, with hoofs to suit. The rejected tails were laid carefully aside; Rolf's offered payment was declined; and the butcher, slipping a dollar into his hand, begged his interest with Dr. Addlebrain. Rolf gave him a patronising nod; and, having packed his purchase, he took it up, drew his cloak over it, and walked deliberately away.

Sounds of mirth and revelry were still heard in the inn of the Golden Eagle, when Rolf knocked loudly at the door, and the noise brought out the portly landlord and some of his satellites. The noble bearing of the student, his free and manly air, impressed his host with the conviction that this new guest was one of Fortune's favored sons, and already in imagination he fingered the ducats which he hoped would soon be transferred from the stranger's pocket into his own. Snatching up two wax candles, he stepped with officious zeal before the youth, and ushering him into a handsome apartment, offered to disencumber him of his cloak. Rolf waved him off with a haughty air, and in a deep and solemn tone, pronounced the word supper.

The obsequious landlord disappeared, and soon after returned, bearing a lordly dish of smoking viands, and followed by two domestics loaded with other delicacies. While the servants arranged the repast, Rolf patted his dog, bestowing on him one or two muttered monosyllables of notice; and when all was announced to be ready, he placed himself at table, waved his hand, and said, sternly, "Begone!" Boniface looked at the servants, and the servants at him; but there could be no disputing with one who seemed accustomed to command, and without loss of time they all retired.

As soon as the room was cleared, Rolf directed his attention to the repast, to which he did ample justice; he then gaily quaffed the generous wine, and finished this first act of the farce with smoking a cigar. At the first sound of the bell the obedient landlord started into the room. Rolf gave a long loud yawn, which was enough for the observant Boniface, who, taking up a pair of candles, marshalled his silent guest into a commodious bedchamber. Rolf flung himself carelessly on a couch without noticing that the useful personage called Boots stood ready to receive his commands. As his humour was by this time well known through the whole house, when he threw out a leg Boots thought it a signal for him to do his duty and so anxious was he to show his zeal, that Rolf's boot was half off before he seemed to know anything of the matter. The moment, however, he was aware of the transaction, he gave the man such a hearty cuff, as sent him reeling to the other side of the room, and a single stamp of his foot cleared it of all intruders. Having fastened the door, he indulged himself in an extravagant fit of laughter. Loud and long were the peals, which contrasting so strangly with his previous taciturnity froze the blood of every man, woman, and child within the precincts of the Golden Eagle.

Rolf then went to bed, and slept soundly till a late hour, when he arose and equipped himself for the second act of the farce. Having unfastened the door, he jumped again into bed, and rang the bell violently. When a servant entered the room Rolf threw one leg out of bed, and called out "breakfast." As soon as the appalling sight met his eyes, the horror-struck domestic rushed downstairs, nor paused till he found himself in the kitchen, the door of which he bolted.—"What, in the name of wonder," exclaimed the landlady, "is the meaning of this uproar? You come tumbling in here as if Number-Nip were at your heels."—"Talk not of heels!" ejaculated the servant; "I say he has hoofs!"——Who has hoofs, blockhead, demanded the enraged landlady. "Hast thou been at the bottle already, sot? I must beat this evil practice out of you—a drunkard neglects everything. Up, booby, and see what the strange gentleman wants—don't you hear how furiously he is ringing? No one rings in the Golden Eagle in that manner without paying for it."—"I will not hold converse with the enemy," said the terrified domestic.—"Dolt! fool! you shall be well punished for this freak. Go up instantly," she bawled to another servant, "and ask what the gentleman wants."—The man obeyed; but by this time Rolf had both legs hanging out of the bed, and his dog growled from beneath it. The servant ran back yelling with affright.—"I think you are all possessed this morning; such conduct is enough to drive a woman to distraction. Call in my husband."

Boniface appeared, and the matter was laid before him. The equanimity of any host in the city to find a pair of unseemly hoofs in his very best bed; and, accordingly, his disapprobation showed itself in his bristling hair, pale cheek, and chattering teeth.—"Heaven grant me patience!" exclaimed the wife "Are you also frightened by a bug-bear? Go up this moment, or——"—"I am going, my love; I am going, I only wait to change my coat, and put on a vest, and——"—',Do you hear that, nincompoop?" cried the wife, as another peal rang in their ears. Off with you this instant, before we are all deafened with the noise."—"I am going sweetest, but I must have all the servants with me. If our guest is the person I suspect him to be, he has been accustomed to many attendants." Accordingly the whole posse was mustered. Boniface in the humility of his heart, wished to resign the post of honor; but his troop used such pressing arguments to induce him to be their leader, that it was quite impossible to resist them. He, therefore stepped slowly on, followed by the three waiters the hostler, the stable-boy, and the scullion, all holding by each other's coats. The party paused at the back of the door to take breath, and there came another furious peal. They were just on the point of running down stairs, when the hostess thundered out, "What are you about there?" Boniface cast a rueful glance at his followers which was much as to say, "That will never do." A general groan attested their apprehension of their weighty arguments, and, driven to despair, the landlord boldly threw open the door.

The stranger had now thrust out of the bed not only two hoofs, but a long black tail, which he whisked about in a paroxysm of rage; and had anything been wanting to complete their consternation, it was supplied by Number-Nip, who, counterfeiting the utmost degree of canine vociferation sprang toward the door. It was too much—the whole troop faced about, and in their flight Bone face fell upon the waiters, they on the hostlers the hostlers on the stable-boy, who overset the scullion and they all rolled down stairs fighting and scuffling who should get first into the kitchen. Three stuck in the door-way, but were quickly dislodged by their compeers behind and they all bolted into the kitchen and barricaded the door.

Consternation reigned in the inn, from the cellar to the garret. The guests were all ringing to know the cause of the uproar. The landlady railed at the servants, who refused to leave their entrenchment; and Boniface prudently counterfeited a swoon, from which all the kicks and cuffs bestowed on him by his active spouse failed to recal him.—At length snatching up a tray, and exclaiming, "Should he be the devil himself he shall have his breakfast, if he pays for it," this termagant boldly marched up stairs.

On reaching the apartment, she found her guest seated at the table waiting for breakfast, who after paying her the compliments of the morning with grave courtesy, motioned her to set down the repast. She obeyed, and, in doing so, glanced under the table; but nothing was to be seen there except a pair of very handsome unbooted legs. Under pretext of adjusting the window curtains, she made a detour to the rear, but with no better success; and she then walked down stairs, thoroughly persuaded that all those marvellous stories had originated in the effect of ale.

Rolf having finished breakfast, slowly descended the stair, and, at the same moment, the carriage of the proud and rich baroness Liebenstein drove up to the door. Instantly all was bustle within the Golden Eagle. Out rushed the landlady, the waiters, and the hostlers; and into the kitchen stepped Rolf, with purse in hand. Boniface stood trembling before him. His proffered payment was timidly rejected; and in a voice almost inaudible from agitation, Boniface begged him to accept his poor entertainment, adding, that he considered the honor of his company sufficient compensation. "Nay, nay," quoth Rolf, advancing as the other retreated, "this must not be. At least accept this purse—you know not how much it will oblige me." "Heaven forbid! Tempt me not! Avaunt! I say," cried the horrors truck landlord.—On observing our hero's well-feigned astonishment, dropping on his knees, he added, "Your excellency must excuse me; I am under a vow not to touch money this blessed day."—"Nay then, there is no help for it," said Rolf with the utmost urbanity; "but henceforth you may rely on my patronage;" saying which, he gaily bade good-morning, and left the house.

DANVERS COURIER.

SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 3, 1845.

THE NORTH AND TEXAS.

The election of last fall proved in an alarming degree, the truth, that a great portion of the people are actuated more by party motives than by a love of country, or respect for principle. Had the question been put to each and every voter of the north at that election, Are you willing by your vote to strengthen the system of slavery in the United States? how many would answer in the affirmative? Yet these self same men who would not vote to extend the system, voted for the adoption of a measure which has for its direct object the very thing they so much objected to. They did all in their power, and it depended upon them whether it should be done, to effect the annexation of Texas to the United States. And if the object for which that annexation was desired, was ever hid from any such voter it certainly was not at the time he cast his vote. The cloven foot had long before that time been shown, Slavery had openly demanded the annexation for its own support. The different despatches of Mr. Upshur to Mr. Murphy are full of it. The following extract from the letter of Mr. Upshur of Jan. 16, 1844, is pretty plain upon the subject.

"But this is not all. If Texas should refuse to come into our Union, measures will instantly be taken to fill her territory with emigrants from Europe. * * These will bring with them European feelings and European opinions. Emigration from the U. States will cease; at all events the people of the Southern States will not run the hazard of subjecting their slave property to the control of a population who are anxious to abolish slavery. Texas will soon cease to be an American State. Her population, her politics and her manners will stamp her as European. This fact alone will destroy the sympathy which now exists between that country and this."

Can there be any doubt in regard to the meaning of this? Has the influx of European population into the great cities of the United States ever been a cause for apprehension among these lovers of their country? It is only in Texas, the promised land, that there is danger from such an influx; and then the fear expressed that such a result will destroy the sympathy which exists between this country and Texas is approaching somewhat near the ludicrous, unless by this country is meant the Slave States. The official correspondence of the last two years is full of matter to the same point. Read the following extract of a letter from Benj. E. Green of May 23, 1844, to Mr. Bocaneggra the Mexican Secretary of State.

the Mexican government that this step was forced upon the Government of the United States in self defiance, in consequence of the policy adopted by Great Britain in reference to the abolition of slavery in Texas. It was impossible for the United States to witness with indifference the efforts of Great Britain to abolish slavery in that territory. They could not but see that she had the means in her power, in the actual condition of Texas, to accomplish the objects of her policy, unless prevented by the most efficient measures; and that, if accomplished, it would lead to a state of things dangerous in the extreme to the adjacent States, and to the union itself.

Thus these would be honest, voters have cast their votes in favor of the annexation of Texas, through the fear expressed to them, that Great Britain would effect the abolition of Slavery in that territory, and the hope that if it should be joined to the United States, slavery would be allowed, and would assist to perpetuate "the institution" in the United States.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT.

The following gentlemen were drawn as Jurors for the U. S. Court, at a meeting of the Selectmen on Wednesday last. These men are taken from their business and families to spend several weeks in Boston, and only receive $1, 25 per day, scarcely enough to pay their absolutely necessary expences. Uncle Sam is very unequal in the wages he pays to his workmen.

Grand Jurors, Benjamin Porter and Abel Nichols. Petit Jurors, Joshua Buxton, Perley Goodale and James G. Phelps.

CHAMPOOING. This operation is performed in the best manner, by B. B. Williams, Central St., and we would advise all lovers of comfort and cleanliness, to call there and enjoy this luxury.—We feel assured that they will derive much benefit from it, as it tends to strengthen the roots of the hair and prevent it from falling out. Persons afflicted with the headache will also find relief by it.

LIBERALITY. The New York Express states that Isaac C. Pray, Esq., of Boston, in the name of the "Brady's Bend Iron Company," the location of which is about fifty miles from Pittsburg, and which is owned chiefly here, has sent a check for a thousand dollars to aid the relief fund in Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG.

We are enabled to present our readers to day, with an engraving of this unfortunate city, from a sketch taken previous to the late disastrous conflagration. This city is the capital of western Pensylvania, and is next in size and importance to Philadelphia. It is built on a regular plan, at the junction of the Alleghany and Monongahela rivers, which here take the name of Ohio. It is from the last named river that the above view was taken, the river on the left being the Alleghany, and that on the right, the Monongahela. The great fire was on the Monongahela side of the city, and the bridge connecting Pittsburg to Birmingham was burned. This city is much celebrated for its various manufactories of iron, glass, and woolen and cotton goods. The surrounding country is exceedingly rich in bituminous coal, the constant use of which causes a perpetual cloud of smoke to hang over the place, making it look at all times as you approach it, like a burning city. Here are more than 300 manufacturing establishments, almost all of which are driven by steam power and their annual products exceed in amount 15,000,000 of dollars.

It is believed, that notwithstanding the great extent of the burnt district, it will soon be rebuilt and the busy hum of traffic and manufacturing industry take the place of its desolation. The large contributions now in course of collection in the different large cities do much to relieve present suffering and encourage the loosers to renewed effort.

REV. DR. EMERSON OF SALEM.—This venerable and much esteemed clergyman, we understand, delivered his fortieth Anniversary discourse to his people last Sunday. We learn that it was very able and interesting, as all his occasional discourses are, and it is certainly highly creditable to him and his society, that they have dwelt together in harmony and mutual exchanges of good offices for so many years, while other parishes have been subject to frequent changes and ruptured by unhappy divisions. May he live to deliver many more anniversary discourses to a united and happy people.

Dr. Emerson has long been the senior clergyman of Salem, and as such it devolves on him, by an immemorial custom of the place, to give notice of the change in the hour of opening public worship in Spring and Autumn. Notice has already been given that service will commence in the afternoon at 3 o'clock next Sabbath and onward until farther notice. Rev. Dr. Prince was, for many years previous to his death, the senior clergyman of the town and city.

☞See the original articles on our first page. Newman Noggs is as racy and sedate as usual and we think our readers will be anxious to enjoy a weekly chat with their old Pickwickian friend.

We rather suspect that the writer of the article entitled A new Comedy of Errors, has drawn on his fancy for some of his facts. We can however testify to the striking resemblance of the two Reverend gentlemen.

NEW BOOKS. We have received the first number of "Popular Lectures on Science and Art" by Dr. Lardner.

This number treats of "THE PLURALITY OF WORDS," "THE SUN," "ECLIPSES," "AURORA BOREALIS" and ELECTRICITY." It is to be followed by others embracing a variety of topics in the Physical Sciences in their application to the arts of life. [illegible] heard the Lectures as delivered by the learned author will be pleased to have an opportunity to revive the agreeable impressions then received, and those who have not heard him will find new and most valuable lessons in useful knowledge. The work may be had of Mr. Luther Chandler who is the Agent for this town. Each part 25 cents.

ST. PATRICKS EVE, by Samuel Lover is for sale by the same. Price 6 cents.

LITTEL'S LIVING AGE. No 51 is rec'd and for sale by L. Chandler. This is a cheap and rich work containing all the cream of the English Magazines. We shall probably select from it in our next. In the mean time we advise our readers to purchase it, Only 12 1-2 cts. per No.

We are indebted to Hon. D. P. King for a copy of the Annual Report of the Commissioner of Patents for the year 1844.

FIRE. A fire broke out on Monday last in the house of Mr. R. W. Merrill at about 11 o'clock in the forenoon but was soon subdued by the exertions of the fireman after destroying the furniture and the whole interior of several rooms. The house is owned by T. Deland Esq. of Salem, and was insured at the Salem Mutual Office. The furniture and wearing apparel was insured at the Holyoke Office.

The house was fortunately saved after the fire, had made great progress, by the prompt use of the Volunteer engine, which drew her water from the aqueduct cistern, and played on the fire in a very few minutes after it broke out. This is the second building saved from destruction by the fortunate location of this engine. The other was the shop of Messrs. Blaney & Wilkins, at the fire in Grove St.

The other engines were on the spot and ready for duty in a very short time after the alarm was given. Two or three from Salem were also there and one Sail Company.

☞The Portsmouth Journal states that two dollars eighty-seven and a half cents were paid into the Custom-house of that town, on Monday last, being the first and only money received there for duties, since Jan'y 1, 1845.

RAIL ROADS AS A MEANS OF NATIONAL DEFENCE.

The frequent rumors of apprehended war, and the uncertainty which exists as to the duration of the present pacific state of the civilized world, in connection with the entangled condition of some of our foreign relations,—render the subject of national defence at the present time one of much interest.

The great extent of our sea coast, as well as that of our inland frontier at the time of the last war with Great Britain, rendered our territory easy of access to an invading foe, and a long time was required to concentrate a sufficient force to drive him from our soil. Since that time, Rail Road communication has been established between the most important places, and a force sufficient to repel almost any invading army that could be brought at once to our shores, could easily and suddenly be assembled at almost any given point.

In what an incredibly short space of time could an army of 20, or 30 000 men be assembled at Boston!—and how much longer would it take to convey this army with all its ammunition and stores to Portland, Providence, Stonington or Norwich? In this view, Rail Roads are of more importance as means of defence, than all the fortifications that have been built by government since the late war,—and without a dollar of charge to the national treasury.

The coast of Maine is as yet unprotected by this means of rapid transportation, and it may be a question, whether it would not be good policy on the part of the National and State governments, to encourage in some suitable manner, the establishment of such cheap and useful means of defence at all exposed points. Could the enemy in the last war have retained quiet possession of that large tract of country east of the Penobscot, if a line of Rail Roads had then been established from Boston to Eastport? We think not.

If a Rail Road should now be built on the same coast, no foreign soldiery would ever again find a footing on that soil.

TOWN SCHOOL FUND.

The following extract from the Report of the Trustees of this fund—Messrs Elias Putnam, D. P. King and H. Cook—shows the proportion that may be semi-annually drawn by each School District. This money may be appropriated by the several Districts in any manner they may think proper, no restriction having been provided by the deed of conveyance to the Trustees. It may therefore be appropriated for the incidental expenses of the District, for the payment of Teachers or for aiding in building or repairs of school houses.—Several of the Districts are much in need of funds from some source for the latter purpose.

"The first dividend of interest has now been paid by the Treasurer, amounting to $276 60, and is deposited in the Village Bank, ready to be paid over to the several Districts, or their agents duly authorized to receive it, in proportion to their number of scholars on the first day of May, 1844. The whole number of scholars in town on that day between the ages of 4 and 16 years, as returned by the prudential committee men, was 1540. Each scholar's proportion of the above sum would be 17 and 961-1000ths of a cent. The number of scholars in each District, and the amount of each District's proportion of the $276 60, are as follows:"

District,	No. Scholars.	Dividend.
No. 1	220	$39 51
" 2	176	31 61
" 3	43	7 74
" 4	45	8 08
" 5	109	19 58
" 6	165	29 64
" 7	72	12 93
" 8	94	16 88
" 9	33	5 93
" 10	77	13 83
" 11	247	44 36
" 12	143	25 68
" 13	116	20 83
	1540	$276 60

Ordination.—Mr. R. T. Searle, of Andover, will be Ordained and Installed pastor over the Evangelical Congregational Church and Society in Middleton, on Thursday, the 8th inst. Services will commence at 2 o'clock, P. M.—Sermon by Rev. Jeremiah Searle, of Coxsackie, N. Y.

AMERICAN MANUFACTURES. We always like to see recorded such instances as the following, of the skill and enterprise of our manufacturers and artizans. Every new article of export to England, whether of agricultural produce or manufactures, whether it be cheese or wooden clocks—leather or furniture; adds so much to our ability to pay the heavy debt we are always contracting by our importations from that country and does something to retain the balance of trade in our favor.

AMERICAN FURNITURE IN ENGLAND. There are now but few articles of American manufacture, whether of ornament or utility, which are not exported to England. But furniture, we did not suppose, was sent abroad, when even moderately ambitious folks, here, cannot "begin the world" without something from beyond the water. Messrs. Meekes, cabinet manufacturers, adjoining the Astor House, are constantly sending furniture to England. For months this firm has not been without orders from abroad. It would be no mean ambition for even the English nobility to use articles, such as these gentlemen have in their extensive warehouse, especially the beautiful patterns of ornamental work, after the "Elizabethan" style, which is super carved wood. The reason why furniture is manufactured here at prices which admit of importation into England, notwithstanding the 20 per cent. duty, is the raw material, the ornamental wood used, is cheaper here than on the other side of the Atlantic. Then again, it is said, that two American mechanics will accomplish more than three English artizans. This is the experience as well as testimony of gentlemen who understand its truth, and no higher compliment could be paid to American skill than the use of New York furniture in the dwellings of the English aristocracy. N. Y. Express.

FOR THE COURIER.

A SHORT SERMON.

BY DOMINIE SAMPSON.

Text—GO TO MEETING.

Will our readers indulge us while we say a few words to them on the importance of being regular attendants at church. We are in favor of short sermons, therefore our heads shall be few and our discourse brief.

1stly. By attending constantly at church we are doing good to ourselves. He must be a dull hearer or sit under a very incompetent preacher, who can hear religious and moral truths inculcated from the pulpit fifty two days in the year, and not imbibe much that will prompt to good resolutions and have a salutary influence on his life and conduct. Go to church.

2dly. We shall do good to others. We shall do this not only by the encouragement our example affords other church-going people, but it will exert a silent and salutary effect on those who habitualy stay at home. They will see that we respect the Christian Sabbath, and be induced to look on this sacred Institution with more of reverence the more they see others disposed to enjoy its calm and holy hours. If you would exhibit a good example to your family and your neighbors—go to church.

3dly. You will encourage your minister.

He is always expected to be ready for the performance of his duty in the pulpit, and why should not you perform yours by being always found at your proper place in the pew? He labors through the week to prepare to communicate instruction to you on the Sabbath. Why then should you not be present to hear it? How chilling and unpleasant must it be to him after heating his poor brain for arguments, and motives to offer his people for their own improvement and welfare, to find vacant seats when he had a right to see attentive hearers. If you would encourage the heart of your minister and lighten his labors, be sure and go to church.

Improvement. 1st. When you go to church, conduct reverently, hear candidly and resolve sincerely. Be not faultfinding, and fret not if the precept or doctrine run counter to your own settled opinions. Remember that he who is in the desk has a perfect right to his opinion and feels it his duty to assert it. Complain not if he be sometimes dull. He cannot always be equally eloquent or [illegible]

2d. Do what you can to induce others to go to church. Let not the stranger stand waiting in the entrance, but invite him to your pew. Encourage the laborer and the apprentice to put on their Sunday apparel and occupy their seat in the house of worship. Inform the man of family where he can hire his seat or his pew and encourage him to do it, you will then confer a favor on him as well as do something for the support of christian institutions.

3d. Do all without too much sectarian zeal. You may love your religious sect, but you ought to love the good of society more. Be courteous and kind to all—be diligent—avoid covetousness—remember the poor, and go to church. I might add other and higher motives to this duty but I must refer you, my dear friends, to those which will be afforded from your several pulpits tomorrow. Farewell.

Melancholy and fatal accident at Haverhill. We lament to publish the melancholy and sudden deaths of Mr. Thomas Gaffield, of Boston, and Mr William Edwards, jr. of this town. After taking early tea last evening, they started in Mr. Gaffield's buggy to take a ride for pleasure. On passing the hill near the Great Pond about two miles from the village, on the road leading to Newton, by some mysterious cause, the horse, as appears from the tracks, sheered, and backed them violently over a stone wall and down the steep bank of an orchard, some ten feet. No one witnessed the calamity. They were both found dead about an hour after they started from the village. From the variety of reports and conjectures, we are unable to specify the precise mode in which they met their unexpected fate. The buggy was stove to pieces, and all three were found lying in the buggy together, the horse lying upon them, but uninjured. One of our physicians who happened to be passing the place of the accident shortly after they were discovered, pronounced them both dead, the necks of one or both being broken, and that they must have been dead half an hour or more before discovered. They were esteemed and highly respected. Mr. Edwards was a native of this town, where he has always resided and sustained an unblemished and honorable reputation. His loss will be severely felt by his family, and business community, of which he was one of its most active members.—Mr Gaffield had taken up his country residence in this village, for the benefit of his wife's health.—By his liberality and social qualities he had gained the affections of many of our citizens. This event has thrown a gloom over our quiet village.—The suddenness of the death of persons so generally known and honored, collected crowds of anxious and sympathizing friends together last evening. How clearly verified are the words—"In the midst of life we are in death."—Haverhill Banner Extra, of Tuesday, April 29.

SHAVINGS.

STEALING DEAD BODIES. The Boston Daily Journal says:—Colonel Hatch is informed by his Rochester correspondent that Dr. Southworth of Rochester and Mr. Sparrow, a medical student, were arrested and taken before Kimball Perry, Esq., on Friday, for examination, charged with having unlawfully disinterred the body of Luke Hall, a town pauper, for the purpose of dissection. They were ordered to recognize severally in the sums of $500 and $300, to take their trial at the next Court of Common Pleas for Plymouth county. Dr. Jones of Rochester, was also arrested on the same charge, and recognized to appear for examination, but forfeited his recognizance. J. H. W. Page, Esq. of New Bedford, appeared for the defence, and J. H. Kassau of New Bedford, for the Commonwealth. The circumstance created quite an excitement in Rochester.

The Bowery Theatre in New York Burnt for the fourth time—About 6 o'clock on Friday afternoon, a fire broke out in the carpenter's shop of the Bowery Theatre, which extended, with astonishing rapidity, to the main portion of the house, and in less than thirty minutes every part of the extensive building, with its splendid scenery and properties, were involved in one vast mass of flame.

The Theatre was owned by a company, in which Mr Hamblin was the largest stockholder. Little or none of it was insured.

This makes the fourth time which the Bowery Theatre has been burnt. The first was in 1828, and the last, previous to this, in 1837. We understand it is to be immediately re-erected.

☞John Buckley, tailor, of Blackstone, has been committed to Providence jail, for imposing a mock marriage upon a respectable girl of 17, belonging to Woonsocket.

☞Mr Thomas B. Watts, a merchant of Funkstown was robbed on Wednesday last, he supposes at the Pratt street depot, Baltimore, of about $3300, which was contained in his pocket book.

☞Solomon B. Scott has been held to bail in $400 at Lowell, for bigamy. He was married there on Fast day to Miss Ellen Partridge, and has a wife and three children in Ulster county, N. Y.

Rumors Contradicted. The National Intelligencer contradicts, in the most positive terms, the rumors which have been set afloat in respect to an Extra Session of Congress on account of the Oregon question.

☞The Kentucky Yeoman says Mr Clay has recently received rich presents from his friends. His debt to John J. Astor of $20,000 and to the Lexington, Ky. Bank, of $5000, have been paid for him.

A Rich Haul.—Some fellows yesterday undertook to supply themselves with fish, by drawing a seine in the canal—wading some 30 rods in performing the operation. The first haul resulted in bringing to light a cart load, or so, of sticks, hoops and brush. The second produced two suckers and one perch. The third and final haul yielded one tin pan, the worse for wear, one "driver's" hat; two joints of stove-pipe; three shiners and a dead dog! Was not this fisherman's luck?—Rochester Adv., 29th.

Mr. Barnum of the Boston museum, it is said, has sent home $14,000, as the proceeds of but six weeks exhibition of Tom Thumb. The aggregate of profits made by him out of his exhibition is not far from a hundred thousand dollars.

Emigration Westward.—Wallingford, in Connecticut, near New Haven, is about to send a small colony of twenty persons of both sexes to Iowa.

☞An attempt to raise the wreck of the steamer Swallow was unsuccesful, after all. One of the chains gave way, and she was let down into [illegible]

Ninth District—No choice. The ballot on Monday for Member of Congress from the 9th district, again no choice. There appears to be a slight gain for Halo (whig) but not enough to elect him.

MARRIAGES.

In Salem, Mr Maurice B. Conant to Miss Martha A. Coffin. Mr George W. H. Davis to Miss Elizabeth R. Wingate, both of Salem.

In Beverly (North Parish) Mr Josiah H. Dodge to Miss Lucinda Day, both of Beverly.

DEATHS.

In this town, John, only son of John and Eliza Hendley, aged 5 years.

In Salem, Mr Richard Austin, aged 46. William C. son of Benj and Lydia Lander, aged 7 months.

At Billerica, 31st ult, Mrs Lucy Bowman, 94. She was a woman of remarkable energy, activity and judgment, and affectionate in all the relations of domestic life. The war of the revolution was distinctly recollected by her, and many of the measures which preceded and led to that event.—She had 8 children, 35 grand-children, and 45 great-grand-children, the larger part of whom survive.

At Fairfield, Me, 3d inst, Abel Hoxie, a distinguished member of the Society of Friends, 76.—He sat down to supper as usual, but remaining a long time in silence, some of the family looked up at him, and found him dying; he lived but a few minutes. Mr H was formerly of Sandwich, Ms.

At Keene, N H, 4th inst, David Carpenter, Esq, 86. He was one of "the guard" at the execution of Major Andre; was at the battle of Saratoga, and the taking of Burgoyne, and engaged in various important services in behalf of his country. After the war he engaged extensively in agricultural pursuits, in which he became possessed of a large estate.

In Littleton, Apr, 23d. Esther A Dodge, daughter of Barnabas Dodge, aged 22. By this event the church of Christ is deprived of one of its brightest ornaments; parents of an affectionate and dutiful daughter; brothers and sisters of one who was ever ready to sympathize with them in all their joys and sorrows. Her numerous relatives and friends have the consolation of feeling, that she was prepared and desired to depart and be with Jesus whom she loved and served on earth. While they mourn her loss, she rejoices in that world where no sorrow or sighing can enter, where all tears are wiped from off all faces.

BRIGHTON MARKET—Monday. April 28.

[From the Boston Daily Advertiser.]

At market 125 Beef Cattle 18 pairs Working Oxen, 500 Sheep, and 2000 Swine. 40 Beef cattle remained unsold.

PRICES—Beef Cattle—Prices have further declined. Extra $5 75 a 6; first quality 5 50; second quality 5 a 5 25; third quality 4 25 a $4 75.

WORKING OXEN—Very fewsales noticed $68, 72, and 85.

SHEEP—Sales from 2 50 to $5.

SWINE—Lots to peddle, 4 1-2 a 5 1-2c; several lots to close 4 1-4 and 4 1-2. At retail, 4 1-2 and 5 1-2.

NOTICE.

The regular meetings of Monument Division, No. 5, SONS OF TEMPERANCE, held at Sanger's Hall, are changed from Wednesday to Monday evening, at 8 o'clock. Members of the order are respectfully invited to attend.

Danvers, April 12. MOSES MERRILL, R. S.

W. D. JOPLIN,
Draper and Tailor.

NEARLY opposite the Monument, keeps for sale at the lowest prices,

Broadcloths, Cassimeres and Vestings and Trimmings.

Also—A good assortment of READY MADE CLOTHING.

PANTS from 1 to 4 dollars;
VESTS from 75 cents to 2 00.
Green Jackets, Overhauls, Thin Clothing, Hats, Suspenders, &c. may 3

Witch Hazle, for Beds.

A FIRST rate article just received and for sale by CARTER & BATCHELDER.
April 19

DOESKINS AND CASSIMERES.

A NEW lot Stripes, Plaids and Clouded Doeskins. Black, Blue Black, and Lavender Cassimeres, just received at EDWARDS'S,
may 3 14 Front street.

NEW BOOKS. Imagination and Fancy by Leigh Hunt; Drama of Exile and other poems, by Elizabeth B. Barrett; Vestiges of Creation, a fresh supply; Sparks' American Biography, life of Roger Williams; A plain system of Elocution, by G. Vandenhoff; Elementary Elocution, by J. E. Murdoch and Wm. Russell; Fragments of Voyages, etc. by Capt Basil Hall.

Life of Judge Smith. Life of the Hon. Jeremiah, Smith, LLD, member of Congress during Washington's anministration, Judge of the U. S. Circuit Court, Chief Justice of New Hampshire, etc. by John H. Morrison.

Stuart on the Apocalypse. A commentary on the Apocalypse, by Moses Stuart, Prof. of sacred literature in the Theological Seminary at Andover, Ms. 2 vols—a fresh supply of the above valuable work just received.

Hazlet's Table Talk, part 1st, being No 6, "Library of Select Reading.

Cruden's Concordance.—New, improved, and cheap edition.

D'Aubigne's History of the Reformation, in 2 vols, with a plate in each. Price 1 00. New edition.

Just received and for sale by may 3 W. S. CLEVELAND & CO.

EMANUEL SWEDENBORG The Life of Swedenborg, with some account of his Writings—by Nath'l Hobart. Second edition, enlarged—concerning HEAVEN and its wonders, and concerning HELL, from things heard and seen: Translated from the Latin of Emanuel Swedenborg.

An appeal in behalf of the views of the eternal world and state, and the doctrines of faith and life held by the body of christians, who believe that a New Church is signified by the New Jerusalem; embracing answers to all principal objections—by the Rev. S. Noble. 2nd edition enlarged. Just Published and for sale by may 3 W. & S. B. IVES, Salem.

JUVENILE WORKS. I will be a Gentleman, a book for Boys, by Mrs. Tuthill; I will be a Lady, a book for Girls, by do do, Five years of Youth, by Harriet Martineau. At W. S. CLEVELAND & Co.'s 193 Essex street, Salem. may 3

FELT'S ASTRONOMY.—A system of Astronomy, on the copernican or true principle; with tables, containing the mean right ascension of Sun, and the right ascension and declination of the stars, corrected to January, 1844, accompanied with a map, upon the globular and Mercator projection, on which is delineated the situation of the principal part of the stars of the first; with a portion of the second and third magnitude; and showing at one sight the rising and coming to the meridian of each month in the year—Also showing the places ef the planets for June 30th, 1844; and the paths of the Moon, Planet, Venus, and Sun, also the direct path of the Comet of 1843. Illustrated and made plain to the learner, by J. P. Felt.—Just published and for sale wholesale and retail by
W. & S. B. IVES,
May 3 232 Essex street Salem.

GERMAN CLOTHS—A lot of Superb German Twilled Blue Black Broadcloths for Dress Coats, just received and selling cheap at
May 3 EDWARDS'S, 14 Front st.

JUST received a full assortment of the celebrated EAGLE PLOUGH, imp roved. Also, Garden Rakes & Partridge's celebrated Manure Forks, Rakes, Hoes, and Castings for repairing the various parts of almost all kinds of Ploughs now in use.
J. & H. HALE, 215 Essex st. Salem.
May 3

IMPROVED CULITVATORS,
A complete assortment now on hand, at
J. & H. HALE'S,
May 3. tf 215 Essex street Salem.

ADAMS & RICHARDSON,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
HARDWARE.
MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS FOR THE SALE OF
Cut Nails, White Lead, Sheet Lead and Lead Pipe,
NO. 207 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
Joseph Adams,
C. M. Richardson,
march 15 tf

RETAIL
Boot and Shoe Store,
AT THE PLAINS.

THE subscriber keeps constantly on hand at his store, on Maple street, near the Village Bank, A full supply of

Men's Calf and Seal Boots, of all qualities;
Men's Calf, Goat and Kip Shoes, and pumps.
Boy's do do Downings.
THE LADIES will find a complete assortment of Fine and Common Kid Slippers;
Paris and Village Ties;
Gaiter Boots and Shoes;
Misses' and Children's shoes of all descriptions;

The above articles he is constantly receiving from the best manufacturers in the state, which will enable him to satisfy all who are in want of good articles in his line—at very reasonable prices.

JOSHUA SILVESTER.
North Danvers April 19, 1845.

Flour, Corn, Oats, Shorts, &c.

Landing from schr Pioneer,
200 BARRELS Genesee Flour;
20 1-2 do do do
500 bushels Mealing Corn;
500 do Yellow do
500 do Shorts;
20 bbls Pea Beans;
4 bbls Marrowfat Peas;
100 bags Fine Salt;
—Also, in store—
100 bushels Killam Oats, for seed;
100 do Herds Grass Seed;
100 do Red Top do do;
500 do Clover do; (Northern;
For sale by DANIEL RICHARDS,
At the old and well known stand on the Plains.
North Danvers, April 19, 1845.

M. TELYEA,
MERCHANT TAILOR,
MAIN STREET,

WOULD respectfully inform his friends and the public generally, that he has just returned from Boston with a select stock of

BROADCLOTHS,

such as German blue-black andEnglish blue-black, brown and olive, and a very nice Tweed for Sack Coats or Pants.

German and English CASSIMERES AND DOESKINS of all kinds for Pants.

VESTINGS,

such as Satin and fine Cassimere, uncut Velvet, and Fancy and many other varieties of vestings.

The above will be sold Cheap for Cash and for Cash only.

M. T. as above, continues to make garments to order at short notice, and warranted as good a fit as can be obtained at any other establishment in Salem or Boston or in any of these diggins any way you can fix it.

Grateful for past favors, a continuance of public patronage is respectfully solicited.

The Spring Fashions just received from New York.
apr 12

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law.
OFFICE IN FELTON'S (late Osborne's) Building,
Danvers, March 29th. tf

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

JONATHAN W. OSBORNE has taken into Co-partnership MICHAEL L. WHIDDEN, and they will continue the

Painting, Glazing & Papering

the firm of

OSBORNE & WHIDDEN.

Particular attention to

SIGN PAINTING,
IMITATIONS OF WOOD, MARBLE, BRONZE, GROUND GLASS, &c.
mch 29 1y

FOR SALE.

A two story house and lot of land on Holten street. The House is convenient for two families and will be sold at a great bargain. Inquire of
HIRAM GRANT.
Danvers, April 19, 1845,

LAMP BLACK.

1000 POUNDS of Lamp Black, warranted a prime article.

3000 Madras Goat Skins, in crust. Goat and Sheep Morocco. Kid, Linings, and Bindings.
For sale by W. & M. BLACK Jr.,
apr 12 New Mills, Danvers.

Ploughs & Cultivators,
MANUFACTURED BY
RUGGLES, NOURSE & MASON,
And other Agricultural Tools,
FOR SALE BY
DANIEL RICHARDS,
Danvers Plains, March 29, 1845.

Danvers Express and Baggage Waggon

LEAVES Danvers and Boston, daily (Sundays excepted.)

All orders left at McIntire's Hotel, or Poole & Jacobs' store Danvers, No. 14 Blackstone, and No. 1 Fulton streets, Boston, will be promptly attended to.

Goods handled with care,
April 19, 1845. S. F. TOWN.
1 y

Great Bargains

ARE NOW BEING HAD AT THE
Washington Street Clothing Store, Salem.

GARMENTS of all description may be obtained at prices which cannot fail to give entire satisfaction.

Great care has been taken in the getting up of every garment, all of which is warranted equal, if not superior to any Clothing in the city.

The subscriber continues to take measures as formerly, and all Garments bespoken, will be made according to the wishes of the customer, and will guarantee both the style and fit.

☞BOY WANTED, as an Apprentice.
S. CHAMBERLAIN, JR.
Salem, March, 15. tf

LYNDE PLACE.

THE subscribers would respectfully inform the citizens of Danvers and vicinity, that they have just received and are now opening a full and complete assortment of

DRY GOODS,

adapted to the present season, comprising a splendid assortment of SHAWLS, embracing every quality and price.

DRESS GOODS,

in great variety, consisting of Corded Cashmeres· Mousseline de Laines; Crape do do; Cashmere do; CALICOES of every description.

WHITE GOODS, LINENS, DOMESTICS, WOOLEN GOODS, etc. etc.

J. A. FARNSWORTH & CO.,
apr 5 1m 147 Essex street, Salem.

Opening of Spring!

Magnificent, Chaste and Original Designs for Remodeling

"OAK HALL!"

FOR SPRING TRADE!
OPENING OF "OAK HALL" FOR THREE MONTHS!

Advice to Professional Men, Merchants, Clerks with moderate Salaries, Farmers, Mechanics, Seamen, Firemen and others, VISIT OAK HALL!

ARRIVAL OF SPRING GOODS!
To Wholesale Dealers.

THE OPENING
This Morning, for Three Months!

I would again most respectfully inform the citizens of Boston, and strangers visiting the city, (after a delay of six weeks, during which time I have not been idle,) I have completed my arrangements on the most

MAGNIFICENT SCALE,

greatly surpassing my former arrangements. The Hall is splendidly decorated with almost

MAGIC ELEGANCE!

The architecture being Gothic, has given the artist an opportunity to display his taste to advantage. The paintings which adorn the walls are so perfectly chaste and appropriate, that every one will be fully compensated the trouble of visiting it. The design and effect of the interior, especially when

ILLUMINATED IN THE EVENING,

Is unequalled in any store this side of the Atlantic Much praise is due to the artist, for his share in beautifying this Establishment. I flatter myself that the good taste of my fellow citizens and townsmen will fully appreciate all I have done, as my Establishment was the FIRST and ONLY ONE that adopted the

"EXTREME LOW PRICE SYSTEM,"

Before "OAK HALL" was in existence, it was not a very uncommon thing for a gentleman to pay from $45 to $50 for a suit of clothes. For one half of this sum or less, a perfect and entire suit can be obtained at this Establishment, cut and made with that ease and grace, that distinguish my garments from others. From this

EMPORIUM OF FASHION

first originated the Gothic style of architecture in Boston, and Oak Painting, &c. now so much in fashion. To those who have not visited this great

PLACE OF RESORT,

on account of the name of the street, I would most respectfully say, that where my establishment is located was once the Court end of Boston, and at this time is visited and patronized by the most influential and respectable individuals. Man, not unlike the fields and Trees, once covered with a beautiful suit of Green is now breaking from its Coat of Ice and Snow and, having its Sesty suit of nature soon to be warmed into animation, and renew its beautiful suit of Green. So with Man—wrapped up in his Overcoat, he now on the opening of Spring, finds his under suit rusty and shabby, and is not suitable to wear. The next thing is to find a good place to fit out at a

REASONABLE PRICE,

and to be sure and have a GOOD FITTING SUIT, that will set upon the form with ease, grace and gen-

FIVE GOOD REASONS

Why you can purchase at OAK HALL less than at any other Establishment in the United States:

FIRST—You do not pay me for YOUR suit, and the INDIVIDUAL'S that did not pay previous to you, as MY business is Cash on delivery.

SECOND—If any Garment made to order is not pleasing in every particular, it is no inconvenience to take it back and make another, as Ready Made Garments are directly in my line.

THIRD—I purchase my Goods in large lots, extremely cheap, and give my customers the benefit, by selling them at the smallest advances,

Fourth—I go by the motto.

LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS
OR AS SOME SAY,
"NO PROFITS AT ALL."

That I'll leave with my customer to decide.

FIFTH—My facilities are such at this time doing a

LARGE BUSINESS,
that I can afford to sell at

VERY LOW PRICES!

BOYS' CLOTHING.

I have lately added to my already extensive manufactory of Boys' Clothing, rooms for the manufacture of Boys' Clothing, and shall keep a large supply of every variety and kind, always on hand.

TO WHOLESALE DEALERS.

You will find the greatest variety of every style of Fresh Manufactured Clothing, adapted for Spring, to your different Trades, and will be sold extremely low in large lots!

AT RETAIL.

One of the largest and, best selected Stock of Fresh Spring Goods ever in "OAK HALL," and will be sold at the following low prices.—

PANTALOONS.

2500 pair of Fancy Spring patterns of Satinet Pants, at	1 75 to 2 50
3000 pair Steel Mixt Pants,	1 62 to 3 00
2200 do Sheeps Grey Pants	1 75 to 3 00
2500 do Canada Grey do,	1 75 to 3 00
3000 do Black Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 50
5000 do Lavender Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 00
2200 do Super black do Pants, with fancy stripe,	4 00 to 5 00
1500 Super blue Broadcloth and Cassimere Pants	3 50 to 4 50

THIN COATS.

3500 Coats and Sacks, American Gingham,	75 to 1 00
5000 Coats and Sacks, Scotch Gingham,	1 25 to 1 75
4800 Coats and Sacks Scotch Gingham, satin figure,	1 50 to 1 75
2700 Coats and Sacks, Webster Check	75 to 1 25
3750 Coats and Sacks, London Plaids,	1 25 to 175
4000 Coats and Sacks, of Linen and other goods,	1 00 to 1 75

THIN PANTS,

8000 pair thin Pants of every quality of Goods at low prices, say from 50 cents to $2 50 per pair.

VESTS.

300 light Vests, a very pretty affair for Spring,	50c to 1 00
4500 Dark Valencia,	75 to 1 50
5500 Fine Valencia, dark and light	1 50 to 2 50
2700 Satin Vests, figured and plain,	2 00 to 3 00

DRESS AND FROCK COATS.

5000 super Dress Coats, all colors, green, blue, black, olive, &c. from $4 to $15.

1750 super Frock Coats, all colors, Mulberry, browns, etc. from $6 to $16.

All the above cut in the latest style, and made up expressly for Spring Trade.

500 Business Coats, at low prices, say from $2 to $5.

2200 Tweed Coats, water proof, from $3,75 to $5.

FURNISHING DEPARTMENT.

Great Display of Furnishing Goods at the following low prices, vis:

150 dozen	White Shirts—Linen Bosoms, Collars and R bands.	75c to 1 25 each
100 do	White Shirts, plain.	50c to 75c do
150 do	Fancy Shirts,	62 1-2 to 87 1-2 do
200 do	Twilled Shirts,	50 to 62 1-2 do
25 do	Rich Figured Satin Scarfs,	Low prices.
20 do	do do do do
50 do	do do do do
50 do	Spring Pattern Cravats,	12 1-2 to 75c
25 do	Rich Fig'd Satin do.	75c to 1 25
50 do	Stocks, of every description, such as Satin Bombazine, &c. and made in the latest Spring Style 1845	37 1-2 to 1 50.
10 do	Brussells Carpet Bags, and others,	1 00 to 2 75
75 do	Smoking Caps,	12 1-2 to 25c
200 do	Braces of every description,	12 1-2 to 50c
20 do	best Kid Gloves,	50c to 1 00
25 do	Thread do	25 to 50c
20 do	Silk do	50 to 75c
100 do	Linen Bosoms—all kinds,	25 to 75c
300 do	do Collars, latest pattern,	10 to 25c
250 do	Canes,	17c to 1 00
325 do	Umbrellas,	50c to 1 50
50 do	Glazed Silk Caps,	1 00 to 1 25
100 do	do do	25 to 37c
505 do	Silk Pocket Hdkfs	25 to 75c

An endless variety of Fancy Articles, such as Gold and Fancy Studs—Hair Brushes—Clothes do—Pocket Combs—Dressing do—Tooth Brshes—Cologne—Bosom Pins—Fancy Soaps—Silk Purses—Guard Chains—Pant Straps, &c. &c.

A LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO THE TRADE.

My furnishing Goods are purchased from first rate hands, at low prices, and will be sold at small advance to the trade at my

EXTENSIVE LONG ROOMS,
OAK HALL BUILDING,

GEORGE W. SIMMONS,
General Tailor, Draper and Outfitter,
32. 34. 36. and 38 Ann street,
Opposite Merchant's Row—BOSTON.
apr 19 3m

THE
Massachusetts Mechanic Association
HAVING AWARDED TO
GOVE, LOCKE & CO.,
and no one else, a DIPLOMA for specimens of
The Best Ready Made Clothing
Exhibited by them at the Mechanics' Fair in September last, must satisfy the community that the location of an establishment is of but little importance, and that the idea of being confined to a particular section of the city, in order to obtain a

GENTEEL GARMENT,

has been rendered obsolete, by the above named award, as without prejudice the award was made to those who deserved it Being convinced themselves, that their CUSTOM WORK has not been surpassed in any point of view, still they have been obliged to stem the current against the strongest prejudices, and have, by unremitted attention to the tastes and desires of their patrons, to a very considerable extent, overcome them, resulting in a successful trade, and encouraging them to prosecute the NEW ENGLAND BRANCH OF THEIR BUSINESS, with renewed vigor, and to devote a large share of their attention the present season, to the

Highest Grade of Custom Work!

Being now prepared with every facility adapted to the various classes in the community, they can furnish any style of Garment which their notion or fancy may dictate—aiming

In point of Style and Fashion,
to be in advance of any other

CLOTHING ESTABLISHMENT!

and being at all times supplied with materials of every description, they are prepared to turn out at the shortest notice

AS GOOD AND AS GENTEEL A GARMENT,

as can be obtained in the United States, and have entire confidence in making the assertion, having Cutters constantly

ENGAGED ON CUSTOM WORK:

who are inferior to none in this region, enabling them to assure those who have favored them with their patronage, that no pains will be spared to deserve a continuance of their support—and to those who lack confidence in a Clothing Establishment, because it is situated on

COMMERCIAL STREET,

they would say that a specimen of their work can be seen in nearly everysection of the city, particularly on the backs of

THE MOST GENTEEL PEOPLE!

and to them they refer, in relation not only to the treatment which is universally tendered to them by all concerned in the

COMMERCIAL ARCADE!

but more especially in regard to the price as the Proprietors have by experience ascertained that they can furnish a

FIRST RATE GARMENT!

at a medium price, equal in every respect to those furnished up in town, at an exhorbitant one. Their Stock of Clothing, adapted to the

SPRING SALES!

is far superior to any previous year, and the patronage of the public is respectfully invited, whether in pursuit of a single garment or otherwise, as their stock embraces every article essential or requisite to the wardrobe of a gentleman, while its magnitude enables them to supply COUNTRY DEALERS in any quantity at the shortest notice, and on the best terms.

WHOSESALE DEALERS!

located any where from Maine to Georgia, or even in Texas, can find at this concern an assortment of Wearing Apparel adapted to their sales, and are invited before concluding their

SPRING PURCHASES!
—TO CALL—
At No. 60 Commercial street,
BOSTON,
Sign of the Monument,—and visit the proprietors of
COMMERCIAL ARCADE,
GOVE, LOCKE & COMPANY.
Boston, March 29, 1845. 3m

DOWLEY & WHALL,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, AND
AUCTIONEERS,
FOR THE SALE OF
Boots, Shoes, Leather and all kinds of Shoe Stock, at Private and Auction Sale,
Nos. 21 and 22 PEARL Street,
Levi A. Dowley, Joseph B. Whall, } BOSTON.
Cash liberally advanced on Boots, Shoes and Shoe Stock, for private and public sales.
—References—
Messrs. Jos. Whitney & Co., Josiah M. Jones, Esq., } Boston.
" Spofford, Tileston, & Co., Shepard Knapp, Esq., } New York.
" C. M. Leupp & Co.,
" Haddock, Hazletine & Reed, Philadelphia
" Poland, Jenkins & Co., Baltimore.
" Friend, Humphrey & Co., Albany.
mch 29 1y

AUCTIONS.

BY DOWLEY & WHALL,
[Store Nos 21 and 22 Pearl street, Boston.]
On SATURDAY, May 3d, at 12 1-2 o'clock, at store
Sole Leather and Shoe Stock.
2500 SIDES of Sole Leather, and a general assortment of Shoe Stock.

REMOVAL.
SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN,
MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN
Rich Jewelry and Fancy Goods,

HAVE removed to the New Store, No. 291 Essex street, (next above Mechanic Hall) where they will keep constantly for sale Gold Finger Rings, Breast Pins, Bracelets, Lockets, Keys, Gold and Silver Pencil Cases, Silver Thimbles, Silver and Plated Table and Tea Spoons, Butter Knives, Silver Plated and Brittania Ware, Shell, Horn, and Ivory Combs, Pocket Books, Purses, &c., &c.

N. B. All kinds of Jewelry repaired in a superior manner and warranted. Old Gold or Jewelry, made over or exchanged for new.

S. & C. having acquired a thorough knowledge of the business in New York, as well as our success for the past five years in this city, will, we feel assured, enable us to execute with approbation any orders entrusted to our care.

☞Thankful for past patronage, we solicit a continuance of the same. tf March 15.

ROOM PAPERS.
☞2000 ROLLS.☜

OF the newest and most desirable patterns of Philanelphia and New York Room PAPERS, selected with great care from the different manufacturers in Philadelphia and New York.

Also 8000 rolls of almost every variety of patterns of FRENCH and AMERICAN manufacture of the best and cheapest patterns.

The above having been bought for cash will be sold at a small advance on the cost,—as cheap or cheaper than can be bought in Boston or elsewhere.

☞Please call and examine at the Bookstore of
W. & S. B. IVES Stearns' Building,
Salem April 18, 1845. 2 m.

SCHOOL PEN. A fresh lot of the celebrated School Pen, decidedly the best pen used for common purposes. The pattern was furnished by one of the first writing masters in the United States, and manufactured by Gillott. Received and for sale, wholesale and retail, by W. S. CLEVELAND & CO, 193 Essex street, Salem. may 3

PERIODICALS, PAPERS, &c.

LUTHER CHANDLER, GENERAL AGENT for the sale of all the principal Periodicals, Newspapers, &c., and will furnish them to all persons who may wish to subscribe; among which are

Graham's Magazine,	Harper's Pictorial Bible,
Ladies' National do,	Verplanck's Shakspeare,
Arthur's Lady's do,	Phil Saturday Courier,
Christian Family Mag.,	Neal's Gazette,
Gentlemen's Magazine,	New York Mirror,
Godey's Lady's Book,	Frost's Pictorial World,

The above and all the principal periodicals and papers will be furnished promptly.

☞BOOKS BOUND at the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

Orders may be left at J. SHED'S, opposite the Monument, South Danvers. 1y mch 29

HARRISON'S REMEDY
FOR THE PILES.

THIS is an ointment prepared by the undersigned, and has been so thoroughly tested in so many different cases that I never hesitate to warrant relief to those who will give it a fair trial, observing the directions around each box which give a plain treatise on the disease and full instructions as to diet mode of cure, &c. One application at night never fails to relieve the greatest pain and anguish. I am ready to refer to numerous individuals who have proved this Remedy to be the safest, surest, speediest and cheapest

CURE FOR THE PILES.

My agent in Exeter writes thus: "the Pile Remedy which you left me is all sold, please send me soon a further supply, as a number of persons in this town think very highly of it. N. GILMAN"

MORE TESTIMONY.

Salem, Aug. 6. Mr. Harrison: The box of ointment which I had from you has worked like a charm—I have used it only one night, and I am cured I had used Hays' Liniment as I stated to you, with no benefit but rather was worse, it causing more inflammation. Yrs, J. W.

BLEEDING PILES CURED.

Mr. Harrison—Having given your Peristaltic Lozenges and Pile Remedy a fair trial, I have the satisfaction to inform yon that they have operated wonderfully in my case. I had not been able for months to do any work at my trade, owing to exhaustion from bleeding, but I now feel myself cured. The severe pain which I had in my stomach is gone, and my strength is fast returning. I had used various remedies to no purpose, until I tried your medicine. I can also state that Capt. Benj. Ireson of this town has also experienced great benefit from your Remedy. I cheerfully recommend the medicine to all suffering with that distressing complaint—the Piles.

EDWARD H. LEWIS.

Lynn, Sept. 27, 1844.

For sale at 256 Essex street, by the Proprietor,
J. S. HARRISON JR.,

Agents—in Danvers, S. PROCTOR, Jr.; Marblehead—E. Arnold; Lynn—Ladd, and Holder; Beverly—Clarke; Newburyport—C. Whipple; Andover—Amos Abbott; Topsfield—Bixby and Merriam, Haverhill—Nichol; Boston—Ransom & Stevens, Tompkins, Southers and Fowle.
mch 15 6m

☞PAPER HANGINGS.☜

THE subscriber has made such an extensive arrangement with the principal manufacturers of Paper Hangings that he is enabled to sell them at the lowest prices, wholesale and retail. New patterns will be received every week as soon as they are out.

2800 rolls of new styles for the Spring trade have been received within a few days. Unusual inducements are thus offered to purchasers of House Paper of all descriptions, from the highest finished Satin to the most common Paper, (call and see for yourselves.) Country dealers supplied on the most reasonable terms. SAMUEL B. FOSTER,
30 Lawrence Place,
Near the Railroad Station, Be sure and enquire for Foster, 30 Lawrence Place, Salem. mch 15

NECK STOCKS. SCARFS, CRAVATS, TIES, ITALIAN CRAVATS.

A GOOD assortment of the above just received
EDWARDS'S,
apr 5 14 Front street, Salem.

GRASS SEED.

3000 POUNDS CLOVER SEED;
50 bags Red Top Seed;
150 bushels Herds Grass Seed;
Orchard Grass and White Clover Seed—for sale by S. CHAMBERLAIN & SON.
march 15 Front Street, Salem.

KENDALL'S CHURNS.—A fresh supply of the various sizes, also, the different sizes of the SHAKER CHURNS, for sale at
apr 26 J. & H. HALE'S, 215 Essex st.

PROFIT OF HENS.

The Woonsocket Patriot, a paper always trying to find something useful as well as entertaining, has a letter from a brother typo, now turned farmer, Mr. Todd of Smithfield, who has taken pains to ascertain biddy's expenses and profits, and he thinks the profit on 25 hens is equal to that of a good cow. He says,

I used to contend that a hen would consume more value in corn, than her eggs would fetch at the common market price. But in order to satisfy myself whether there was, or was not, any profit in keeping hens, I have kept a pretty accurate account of what I have fed out, and the eggs sold in market. Examine this result:—From the 1st day of April, 1844, to April, 1845, my hens---twenty-five in number—have consumed 25 bushels of corn, valued a 75 cents per bushel, which amounts to $19.55; during which time I have sold in market, 212 dozen of eggs averaging 15 cents per dozen, which amounts to $36.30—no account being made of those used in the family. I have also sold $4 worth of chickens amounting in all to $40.30. Here, then, I have left $20,75 clear profit.

A New Step in Horticulture,—The Paresian scientific correspondent of the New York Courier des Etats Unis, mentions a new discovery of a way to produce cherries without stones.—Early in the Spring, before the sap is in full, flow, a young bearing tree is divided in two down to the branches of the roots, the pith carefully removed with a wooden spatula the parts again united, the air being excluded by an application of potter's clay the whole length of the opening, and bound together by woolen cord. The sap soon reunites the severed parts, and in two years the tree will produce cherries of the best kind and having in their centre, instead of the usual kernel, a thin soft pellicle.

RIVAL LANDLORDS HOAXED.

After the defeat of the French at the battle of Leipsic, that city became full of a mixed medley of soldiers, of all arms, and of all nations; of course a great variety of coin was in circulation there.—A British private who was attached to the rocket brigade, and who had picked up a little broken French and German, went to the largest hotel in Leipsic, and displaying an English shilling to the landlord, inquired if this piece of coin was current there. "Oh, yes," replied he, "you may have whatever the house affords for that money, it passes current here at present."

Our fortunate Bardolph, finding himself in such compliant quarters, called about him the house could afford, washed down by bottles of the most expensive wines, were dispatched without ceremony. On going away, he tendered at the bar the single identical shilling, which the landlord had inadvertently led him to expect was to perform such wonders. The stare, the shrug, and the exclamation excited from "mine host of the garter," by such a tender, may be more easily conceived than expressed. An explanation much to the dissatisfaction of the landlord, took place, who quickly found, not only that nothing more was likely to be got, but also the laugh would be tremendously against him. This part of the profits he had a very christian wish to divide with his neighbor. Taking his guest to the street-door of the hotel, he requested him to look over the way. "Do you see," said he, "the large hotel opposite? That fellow, the landlord of it, is my sworn rival, and nothing can keep this story from his ears, in which case I shall never hear the last of it. Now, my good fellow, you are not only welcome to your entertainment, but I will instantly give you a five franc piece into the bargain, if you will promise, on the word of a soldier, to attempt the trick with him to-morrow, that succeeded with me so well to day." Our veteran took the money, and accepted the conditions; but having buttoned up the silver very securely, in his pocket, he took his leave of the landlord, with the following speech and a bow, that did no discredit to Leipsic;—"Sir, I deem myself in honor bound to use my utmost endeavors to put your wishes in execution. I shall certainly do all that I can, but must candidly inform you, that I fear I shall not succeed, since I played the very same trick on that gentleman yester day, and it is to his particular advice alone that you are indebted for the honor of my company to day."

LAWS OF MASSACHUSETTS.

AN ACT relating to Returns of Clerks of Manufacturing Corporations.

Be it enacted, &c., as follows:

Sec 1. Every Clerk of any Manufacturing Corporation, in the return required to be made by him, by virtue of the first section of the ninety-eighth chapter of the Statutes, passed in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty three, entitled, "An Act for the more equal assessment of taxes," shall state the whole amount of the capital stock of such Corporation, and the amount of real estate and machinery which was assessed to the said Corporation, in each Corporation is situated.

[illegible] assessment of the city, or [illegible]ration, in each Corporation is situated.
[illegible]ved by the Governor, March 24, 1845.

AN ACT concerning the laying out turnpike roads as Common Highways.

Be it enacted, &c., as follows:

Sect. 1. So much of the sixteenth section of the thirty-ninth chapter of the Revised Statutes as requires, that before any turnpike road or part thereof, shall be laid out by the County Commissioners in any County, as a common highway, or any alteration shall be made therein, the several towns, within whose limits such turnpike road may be, shall assent to the same, is hereby repealed.

Sect. 2. No town shall be liable, or holden to refund to any County Treasurer, more than one third part of the amount paid by the County, to any turnpike corporation, as damages for taking any turnpike road for a highway.

Approved by the Governor, March 25, 1845.

AN ACT to punish Abduction.

Be it enacted, &c., as follows:

Sect 1. Any person who shall fraudulently and deceitfully entice, or take away any unmarried woman, of a chaste life and conversation, from her father's house, or wheresoever else she may be found, for the purpose of prostitution at a house of ill fame, assignation or elsewhere, and every person who shall aid and assist in such abduction for such purpose, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by confinement to hard labor in the State Prison, for a term not exceeding three years, or by imprisonment in the common jail, for a term not exceeding one year, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment in the common jail, for a term not exceeding one year, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment in the common jail, in the discretion of the Court.

Sect. 2. All prosecutions under the provisions of this Act, shall be commenced within two years from the commission of the offence, and not afterwards.

Approved by the Governor, March 25, 1845.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

SECRETARY'S OFFICE, Boston, April 12, 1845. By a Resolve of the General Court, at its recent session, the Secratary was "authorized and directed to receive such Muster Rolls, and other evidences of service in the war of the Revolution, as it may be in his power to obtain by gift or loan from the present possessors."

Numerous Muster Rolls, and other papers furnishing evidence of revolutionary service, have been collected in the Secratary's office, where they are bound and indexed, and are constantly under examination for the purpose of establishing claims under the Pension Laws of the United States. They are also valuable historical documents, and, in the custody of this office, will be kept securely, and, by means of the full indexes here prepared, may be conveniently consulted.

The collection in the public archives, is however, incomplete. It is believed that that there are, in different parts of the Commonwealth, many Muster Rolls, and other like papers, in the possession of the families of deceased officers, and in other private hands. In this situation they are of little utility, besides being liable to be lost, while frequently, by their means, if placed in this office, old soldiers and their families, now suffering in age and poverty, would be able to establish claims to valuable pensions.

Persons having [illegible] tion, and willing to give or loan them to the Commonwealth, are respectfully requested to forward a brief description of them to the subscriber, who will send for them, unless they prove to be duplicates of rolls already here.

apr 26 JOHN G. PALFREY.

EDWARDS' LINIMENT.

For Sprains, Cuts, Bruises, Stiffened or Swelled Joints, Chilblains, Chapped Hands, Numbness and Rheumatism.

THIS invaluable artidle is now for the first time offered to the public, after having been in use for twenty years, with unusual and astonishing success within the circle of the proprietor's immediate influence. It has received the unqualified approbation of some eminent Physicians, and also Mariners and Mechanics.

It is also recommended, and more than a thousand cases might be cited, when it has been used for Horses in cases of lameness or when galled, &c. &c.

The public are assured that in offering the above we do recommend that which has not the least semblance of QUACKERY, but on the contrary it has done great and lasting good in its efficacious power and healing qualities.

As this medicine has been so long known in Salem and its vicinity, and as there are many that would avail themselves of it if they knew where it could be obtained, therefore the subsciber would now offer it to the public. It will be found always on hand and prepared by the subscriber.

BENJ EDWARDS,
No. 14 Front street, Salem, Mass.

Wanted—trusty and worthy AGENTS in the neighboring towns and vicinity.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENTS.
DANIELS, POOR & CO., Danvers, Mass.
Benjamin F. Browne, Salem Mass.
Smith & Fowle, Boston, "
H. F. Skerry, Bangor, Me.
Charles Whipple, Bookseller, Newburyport.
Wm. R. Preston, Portsmouth, N. H.
John S. Caldwell, Belfast. Me.
Wm. H. Palmer, Lynnfield.
Joseph Edwards, jr., Lynn.
Charles Edwards, Marblehead.
Wm. Edwards, Beverly.
March 15, 1845. tf

EASY SHAVING AND HAIR CUTTING.

B. B. WILLIAMS respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has removed to the store formerly occupied by Lambert & Merrill, (under the Courier Office,) which he has fitted up in a neat manner, and is now prepared to wait upon those who believe that

"Man wants but little beard below,
Nor wants that little long."

Champooing, Hair Cutting and Shaving is performed to the satisfaction of all who may favor him with their patronage.

Danvers, March 15, 1845. tf

New Furniture Store.

SALEM FURNITURE & FEATHER WARE-HOUSE.

205 1-2 ESSEX STREET. 205 1-2

(Two Doors East from the Market,)

JOSEPH WALLIS would respectfully inform his friends and the public that he has taken the rooms recently occupied by T. Needham, Esq., where he will keep constantly on hand and for sale an extensive and well selected assortment of which he will sell at the lowest cash prices, among which may be found,

CABINET FURNITURE,

Sofas, Sofa Beds; Windlass, Cot Trundle and common Bedsteads; Secretaries; Bureaus; Mahogany, Card, Work, Centre and Dining Tables;—Mahogany, Cane-seat and common Chairs; Mahogany, Cane-back and common Rocking Chairs;—Children's Toy, Rocking and Dining Chairs; Settees and Settee Cradles; Cribs; Grecian and common Wash Stands; Portable Sinks; Portable and Gentleman's Writing Desks, Toilet, Dining and common Pine Tables; Looking Glasses; Swing and Toilet Glasses. Fancy Boxes, a great variety;—Mattresses; and every article usually found in his line of business.

CLOCKS.

J. W. intends keeping on hand a large and well selected assortment of Wood and Brass Clocks from the best of manufacturers—all of which we can feel confident in warranting. Those about purchasing this article will do well to call.

FEATHERS.

Live Geese and common Feathers; a great variety.

N B. J. W. will still continue to Manufacture FURNITURE at the Old Stand, No 29 Lafayette, corner of Ward street, where he will keep on hand a good assortment of

Cabinet Furniture, Feathers, Looking Glasses and Clocks.

Salem, April 12, 1845.

Fales Cathartic, or Vegetable PURGATIVE LOZENGES.

ARE the best and most popular medicines for people of all ages, country, and climates, and in every condition of life. They are compounded of the essences of vegetables from many nations. Their taste is inexpressibly delightful. They cause no pain in their operations, but the first change of feeling after taking them is, that of pleasure, and they cleanse the stomach and bowels more perfectly than any other purgative medicines.

The most wonderful and surprising cures have been effected by them in different parts of the earth. How these purgative lozenges do speedily purify the blood, and substitute health for sickness, is a mystery to the most eminent members of the healing art. Such purgative medicines must become universal, and supersede the use of all other purgative compounds and as long as disease continues to afflict people, so long will these Lozenges remain unrivalled in all coming time throughout the world. Every person who travels should carry them—every family should keep them—and every sick man, woman, or childt should take them.

FALES' WORM LOZENGES,

Are a safe and sure remedy for worms. Children love them. They act like a charm in removing the symptoms such as starting in sleep, grating the teeth paleness about the mouth and nose, occasional sickness at stomach, precarious appetite, swelled bowels, and general feverish habit, The child falls into a quiet sleep, and the worms are stupified and expelled, and the child, as far as heard from, in every instance has been cured. Price, 25 cents per box, with full directions; sold at Commercial street, Boston,

FALES' COUGH LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common Colds and Coughs, Whooping Cough, Inflamation of the Throat and Lungs, in the Croup or Hives, and more certain to act satisfactory than the celebrated Hive Syrup. The most happy effect is obtained in a few moments; the symptoms disappear and the disease is broken up by the magical effect of these Lozenges. Full directions accompany each box, are found at the Depositopy, 96 Commercial staeet, Boston.

FALES' DYSENTERY LOZENGES,

Are a safe and agreeble temedy for Dysentery, Diarrhœa and Bowel Complaints of children. Particular attention must be paid to the directions which are on each box.

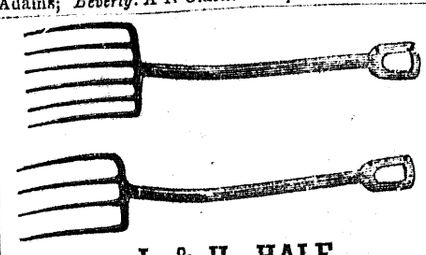
FALES' CAMPHOR LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common and sick head ache, and where there is a sense of tightness or weight over the eyes, in erruptive diseases, such as Measles and Small Pox. Also in Mania, Epilepsy, Melancholy, Hysteria, in St. Vitus Dance, and in all cases of languor and oppession of the Vital powers, may be taken with safety by women and children in all conditions. Full directions accompany each box.

FALES' CYPRIAN HAIR TONIC,

Is now so extsnsively known and justly celebrated that further comment upon it will be useless, we can say, however, that among the many thousands who have purchassed the Tonic, in this and other countries, none have returned with complaints, while thousands have expressed their wonder and admiration on beholding its effects. A few bottles only can be had at 96 Commercial street, Boston.

CLEAR OUT YOUR RATS.



The gnawing and antics of these destructive creatures can be hushed forever in your house and store, if you will procure a box of the genuine.

MADAGASCAR RAT EXTERMINATOR,

and use it according to directionf. You cannot depend upon it unless obtained at J. J. FALES' No. 96 Commercial street Boston.

—AGENTS—

Salem, J. S. HARRISON, J. Stone, jr., H. Whipple, S Badger, jr; Lynn, J. Moulton jr., Geo. Lummus, Wm. Cogswell, Wm. L Ladd; Swampscot, W. Thompson; Marblehead, E. Arnold, Wm. Stacey; Danvers, S. Proctor, Jos Shed, New Mills, H. S Pope, A. P Perley & Co, C. Simonds, Calder & Foster; Topsfield, B. P. Adams; Beverly. A N Clark. ep6m mch 29

J. & H. HALE,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

HARD WARE GOODS AND CUTLERY,

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC

HOUSE KEEPING ARTICLES AND FANCY GOODS,

Agricultural Tools and Ploughs,

PLOUGH CASTINGS, FRICTION ROLLERS AND CRANKS,

Iron and Copper Pumps and Lead Pipe,

WINDOW GLASS,

CAMPHENE,

CAMPHENE LAMPS, HANGING, SIDE AND ASTRAL—A GREAT VARIETY OF STYLES,

Cut Glass, Britannia, Brass, Bronze and Mantle Lamps,

CARPENTER'S TOOLS,

HOUSE TRIMMINGS,

Shoe Makers' Tools, Nails, Thread and Pegs,

BOILER DOORS AND OVEN MOUTHS,

Furnaces, Cast Iron Hollow Ware, Tubs, Pails, Mats, Cut Nails, Emery, Zinc, Lead, &c.

No. 215 Essex Street, SALEM, Mass.

march 15 tf

WANTED.

10 GOOD COATMAKERS wanted immediately, to whom steady employment and good wages will be given.

Also—A BOY as an APPRENTICE, by

S. R. BOTT,

mch 15 No. 148 Essex Street, Salem.

POOLE & STEDMAN,

MAKERS OF

CARRIAGES, HARNESSES, TRUNKS, &c.

THE subscribers having formed a Co-partnership under the above firm, are ready to attend to any orders in their line.

Particular attention paid to repairing.

S. A. POOLE,
G. B. STEDMAN.

N. B. Valises, Ladies' Satchels, Carpet Bags, &c. constantly on hand and for sale cheap.

Corner of Grove and Main Streets.

Danvers, March 15.

CHARLES H. MANNING,

CABINET MAKER,

Near the Sign of the Lamb, Main Street,

DANVERS, MASS.

FURNITURE manufactured on the most reasonable terms. Also—CURRIER'S TABLES made and repaired cheap.

SHOE-MAKERS' PEGGING BENCHES made as above. oct 15

S. R. BOTT,

DRAPER & TAILOR,

No. 148 Essex Street, Salem,

TAKES this method of informing the public of Danvers and vicinity that he has for sale one of the richest and BEST selected assortments of

Broadcloths, Cassimeres & Vestings

ever before offered in Salem. The Stock is of the latest Spring and Summer styles, and cannot be surpassed by any establishment in the city, which will be sold by the yard, or made into Garments, in a style that CANNOT be surpassed in this or any other city.

☞Strangers from the country would do well to call at this establishment, as they select their Goods with the most perfect confidence, that each article is as good in quality, and as low in price as can be obtained at any other store.

N. B. The report of Fashions received every month.

Salem, March 15, 1845.

G. W & E. CRAFTS,

BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURERS AND STATIONERS,

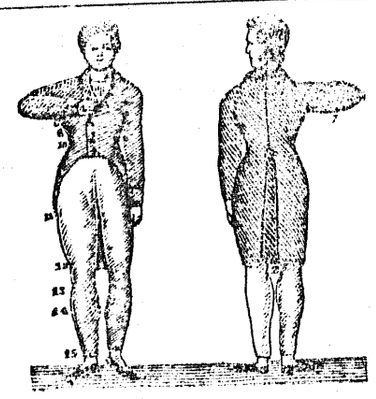
174 ESSEX STREET, SALEM,

HAVE constantly on hand, and will manufacture to order, all kinds of Blank Books, from the best paper, ruled to any pattern, and bound in a neat and substantial manner.

FINE STATIONERY,



of almost ever description, adapted for counting rooms and schools, comprising in part, Letter and Writing Papers, ruled and plain; Drawing Papers; Note, Tissue and Wrapping Papers; Wafers; Sealing Wax; Seals and Steel Pens of every variety; Quills of every description; wafer Cups; sand boxes; writing fluids and inks; penknives; razors, &c.

PRINTING, RULING AND BINDING,

&c. executed in the neatest manner, at short notice. Ruling, to any pattern desired, at short notice. Binding, of every description, executed with despatch.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

A constant supply of school books, of the best editions, together with every kind of School Stationery Also, all kinds of miscellaneous books furnished at the lowest rates. mch 15

BENJAMIN EDWARDS,

DRAPER & TAILOR,

No. 14 FRONT STREET, SALEM.

GARMENTS Cut and Made to order, and Fashionably, and warranted to give entire satisfaction

Constantly on hand, a good assortment of

BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES, AND VESTINGS.

Also—Neck Stocks, Italian Cravats, Scarfs, Shirt Bosoms, Collars, Feetings, Braces, Umbrellas, Hair and Clothes Brushes, Cologne Water, Wallets,

and other articles necessary for Gentlemen's use.

Grateful for the very liberal patronage which has heretofore been bestowed upon the establisment, he hopes by care and attention to business to merit a continuance.

Any order for Goods in the TAILORING LINE, attended to with fidelity and despatch.

All Garments Repaired and Cleansed CHEAP.

Any of the above articles if not on hand when called for, will be furnished at short notice.

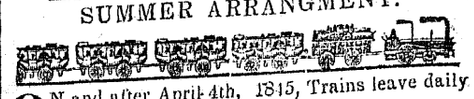
mch 15 tf

POOLE & JACOBS,

MANUFACTURERS OF

Boot and Shoe Linings, Skivers,

AND BINDINGS,



AND DEALERS IN

WOOL,

MAIN ST., DANVERS, MASS.

EASTERN RAILRAOD.

SUMMER ARRANGMENT.

ON and after April 4th, 1845, Trains leave daily (Sundays excepted,)

Boston for Portland, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P. M.
" Portsmouth, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 5 1-2 P.M.
" Somersworth, Great Falls, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 P.M.
" for Newburyport, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 and 5 1-2 P.M.
" for Salem, 7 1-4, 9, A.M., 12 1-4 2 1-2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2, 7 1-2 P.M.

Salem for Portland, 8 A.M., 3 1-4 P.M.
Salem for Portsmouth and Newburyport, 8 A.M., 3 1-4, 6 1-4 P.M.
Portland for Boston, 7 1-2 A.M., 3 P.M.
Saco for Boston, 8 A.M., 3 1-2 P.M.
Somersworth, Great Falls for Boston, 8 3-4 A.M.; 4 1-4 P.M.
South Berwick lot Boston, 9 1-4 A M, 4 3-4 P.M.
Portsmouth for Boston, 6 1-2, 10,* A.M., 5 1-2* P.M.
Newburyp't for Boston, 8 1-4, 10 3-4* AM. 6 1-4* PM.
Salem for Boston, 7 -2, 8 1-2, 10 1-4 11 3-4,* A.M.; 2 1-4, 5, 7,* P.M.

*Or on their arrival from the East.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Trains leave Marblehead for Salem, at 7 1-4, 8 1-4, 10, A.M.; 2, 4, 4 3-4, 7, P.M.

Leave Salem for Marblehead, at 8, 9 3-4 A.M., 1, 3 1-4, 4 1-4, 6 1-4, 8 1-4 P.M.

A Merchandize Train will leave Boston, Portland and all intermediate places every day.

Freight Office in Boston, No. 17 Merchants Row, and on the line of the road at the several Depots.

JOHN KINSMAN,
apr 12 Master of Transportation.

Summer Arrangement of the

DANVERS AND SALEM HOURLY COACHES

THE Danvers and Salem Hourly Coaches will in connection with the Eastern Railroad, leave Danvers and Salem at the following hours, viz:

Leave Danvers at	7	A.M.	Leave Salem at	8	A.M.
" "	8		" "	9	1-2
" "	9	3-4	" "	11	1-2
" "	11	1-4	" "	12	3-4
" "	1	3-4 P.M.	" "	3	P.M.
" "	2	3-4	" "	4
" "	4	1-2	" "	6
" "	6	1-2	" "	8

For seats apply at Macintire's Hotel, or at Joseph G Shed's store in Danvers, and at the Essex House and Salem Hotel in Salem.

Railroad passengers taken at the depot on the arrival of the cars from Boston and the East.

☞Extra Coaches furnished at any hour on reasonable terms. SYMONDS & TEEL.

apr 19 tf

REMOVAL.

DR. J. A. ROBINSON,

SURGEON DENTIST,

SALEM,

WOULD respectfully give notice that he has removed from his old stand, opposite the City Hall, to No. 20 Washington street, recently occupied by A. E. Phillips, where he is ready to perform all operation, in Dentistry, in a most thorough and workmanlike manner.

His experience and success in inserting whole sets either by atmospheric pressure or springs, enables him to furnish them at rates which cannot fail to suit those in want of an article of superior quality.

His method of inserting Teeth, both singly and on plate, with or without Gums, has been found to be satisfactory and successful as combining beauty of finish and adaptation, with all the requisites of mastication and articulation.

Particular attention paid to filling Teeth so as to render them serviceable for many years, and also to the regulation of Children's Teeth.

N. B. For sale as above, a first rate article of TOOTH POWDER. 6m mch 15

SPRING FASHIONS.

JUST RECEIVED.

THE subscriber has just received a large and [illegible] stock of Spring Goods, consisting of French, English and American

BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES AND DOESKINS.

Also—A rich assortment of VESTINGS, of the latest patterns, which will be made into Garments in the most fashionable style, on reasonable terms.

Also received—a nice lot of GENTLEMEN'S SCARFS and STOCKS of the latest styles.

Also—GLOVES, SUSPENDERS, SHIRT BOSOMS and COLLARS.

Also—Gentlemen's DRESSING GOWNS constantly on hand. JOHN DOLAN, mch 15 275 Essex street, Salem.

REMOVAL.

BOWDOIN'S DAGUERROTYPE ROOMS removed from Mechanic Hall, to the adjoining building above, 298 Essex street, where he has rooms built expressly for the purpose of taking Miniatures in any weather.

Mr. B. tenders his sincere thanks to his friends and the public, for their liberal patronage the past year, and respectfully solicits the continuance of public favor. He has recently purchased a large Achromatic instrument for the purpose of taking GROUPS and LARGE PICTURES, which enable him to give pictures of all sizes, equal to those taken in New York or Boston He has formed a connexion with an establishment in New York, from whence he receives all the new improvements, and materials connected with the Art, which will enable him to give better pictures for less prices than can be obtained in Boston.

Miniatures set in every variety of Lockets, Frames, Cases, &c.

☞Persons visiting Salem, and those about going to sea, can have a perfect likeness completed in a few minutes' time.

 Miniatures set in a neat Morocco Case for $1 50. Exhibition rooms open to visiters through the day.

Salem, March 15. tf

ENGLISH STATIONERY.

A LARGE and very superior assortment of the various articles of beautiful Stationery, Pencils, Paper, Rubber, Paints, Bristol Board, Inkstands, &c.

VANDENHOFF'S ELOCUTION,—A plain system of Elocution, or Logical and Musical Reading and Declamation, &c., by G. Vandenhoff.

HARPER'S BIBLE.—No 24 of this superb Bible—just received and for sale by W. & S. B. IVES,
apr 26 232 Essex street.

GENTLEMEN'S SHIRTS, BOSOMS & DICKEYS.

A GOOD variety now opening at EDWARDS'S,
apr 6 14 Front street, Salem.

JOB PRINTING,

OF ALL KINDS

EXECUTED AT THE COURIER OFFICE,

WITH DESPATCH,

And on the most favourable Terms.

DANVERS COURIER.

VOL. 1. DANVERS, (MASS.) SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 10, 1845. NUMBER 8.

THE DANVERS COURIER
IS PUBLISHED BY
GEORGE R. CARLTON,
EVERY SATURDAY MORNING,
A few doors North of Mackintire's Hotel,
CENTRAL ST.—SOUTH DANVERS.

Terms—$1 50 if paid in advance, or $2 00, if not paid within one month of the time of subscribing.

The carriers are not allowed to sell any copies of the Courier. Single copies may be obtained at the office, at 5 cents each.

Advertisements will be inserted on favorable terms.

CALENDAR OF COURTS

TO BE HELD IN THE COUNTY OF ESSEX IN THE YEAR 1845.

"	13	" Gloucester.
"	20	" Salem.
June	3	" Ipswich.
"	10	" Newburyport.
"	16—Common Pleas,—Ipswich.
July	1—Probate,—Salem.
"	2	" Lynn.
"	8—County Commissioners,—Salem.
"	15—Probate,—Andover, S. P.
August	5	" Ipswich.
"	19	" Salem.
Sept.	2	" Ipswich.
"	9	" Newburyport.
"	15—Common Pleas,—Newburyport.
Oct.	7—Probate,—Salem.
"	8	" Marblehead.
"	14—County Commissioners.—Newburyp't.
"	21—Probate,—Haverhill.
Nov.	4—Supreme Judicial,—Salem.
"	4—Probate,—Ipswich.
"	11	" Gloucester.
"	18	" Salem.
Dec.	2	" Ipswich.
"	9	" Newburyport.
"	15—Common Pleas, Ipswich.
"	23—County Commissioners,—at such place as ordered at the preceding term.

POETRY.

"CHAMBER SCENE."

(An exquisite picture in the studio of a young artist at Rome.)

She rose from her untroubled sleep,
And put away her soft brown hair,
And, in a tone so low and deep
As love's first whisper, breathed a prayer—
Her snow-white hands together press'd,
Just swelling with the charms it hid—
And from her long and flowing dress
Escaped a bare and slender foot,
Whose shape upon the earth did press
Like a new snow-flake, white and "mute;"
And there, from slumber pure and warm,
Like a young spirit fresh from heaven,
She bow'd her slight and graceful form,
And humbly prayed to be forgiven.

O God! if souls unsoil'd as these Need daily mercy from thy throne—
If she upon her bended knees—
Our loveliest and our purest one—
She, with a face so clear and bright
We deem her some stray child of light—
If she, with those soft eyes in tears,
Day after day in her first years,
Must kneel and pray for grace from thee—
What far, far deeper need have we?
How hardly, if she win not heaven,
Will our errors be forgiven.

FOR THE COURIER.

COLUMBUS.

From the German of Schiller.

Steer on bold Sailor, wit may laugh to scorn
And sink with weariness the helmsman's hand;
Steer ever, ever West from morn to morn,
For in thy clear mind's eye, there lies the land.

Trust God, and follow o'er the silent sea
His guidance—new worlds yet shall rise to view,
Nature and Genius never disagree
But what this promises that proves most true

COMMUNICATIONS.

Mr. Courier.—I've got a bone to pick with you. Do you remember that when you first introduced me to your patrons you styled me "our venerable friend?" Now I should like to know what on earth you meant by this? Because a man is a bachelor, and has about given up all ideas of matrimony, or because he has a quiet turn, and don't choose to meddle with every body's business, or because one wears spectacles, walks with a staff in his hand and a dog at his heels, and isn't willing to change the cut of his coat with every change of the wind,—must he therefore be thought lame, halt, and blind, or as you sugarly call it, venerable? Must he be held up before the eyes of all respectable women as one groaning under the weight of years, whose heart can no longer feel a tender emotion, and whose claims upon the interest of this world and of the sex are clean gone? No Sir! I scorn your words! Perhaps I may never see forty again—but what of that? I still delight in the blue sky, tinted flowers, the singing of birds, and the summer twilight, as much as any youthful poet. I yet worship with more fervor than any "furnace breathing heart" of a lover, the maiden's budding beauty, and the deep majestic charm of womanhood—and I should like to see the man, be he young or old, who revels more than I do in a sweet sentiment or gentle fancy—neither is my person entirely faded and decayed—"nec sum adeo informis!" Many a fellow of thirty-five has more crow's-feet around his eyes, and less color in his cheeks. I may have an occasional twinge of the gout—that's owing to Port—but there are no chalkstones on my fingers, and (I should like to know what juvenile beau can say as much?) no corns on my toes—I can go down a country dance or through a quadrille with the best of them. I wear my own hair, and (I know I am touching up on a delicate subject) eat with my own teeth.—I sit well in my saddle, and never think of striding any but a trotting horse. And then to see me, with a fishing-rod on my shoulder, following up a stream for the day together and searching out the shaded pools where the speckled trout most love to haunt. Venerable, hey! I'm not angry, Sir.—But to be labelled and put in the same catalogue with old furniture, three-cornered hats, and hooped petticoats, it is too bad. 'Tis enough to stir the blood of any man who has a grain of quicksilver left in his veins. But let it pass, Sir. Perhaps I should'nt have mentioned it at all, hadn't it been that the East winds had made me a trifle uneasy. An East wind, you must know, is my worst earthly enemy. It tries my temper more than the toothache. The very mention of it

"Touches the nerve where agony is born."

Thereisbut one thing in the world sooner shakes the balance of my mind—and that is, when a visitor at my hearth sacreligiously undertakes to stir up my fire with those tongs which no one but myself should ever put finger on. I consider that craving, itching desire to handle the tongs and poke the fire of another which besets universal humanity to be the most plausible argument in proof of the doctrine of total depravity. But next to the pains I suffer from the infliction of this calamity, standsthe terrible effect of an East wind. You may consider this a weakness, but I am not ashamed to acknowledge it. Such a rough, stern man as Dr. Johnson may boast of his immunity from "skyey influences," but if when the raw air from the sea was making goose-flesh of my skin, I should meet a friend, my first greeting would certainly be in the words of honest Burns,

"How stan' you this blae eastlin wind,
That's like to blaw a body blind?
For me my faculties are frozen."

Mind you, Mr Courier, you are not to draw from this acknowledgement of susceptibility to the weather any silly inference of physical infirmity, and thus, after all, prove me a dried up (venerable) old man, by making me eat my own words—Understand me, Sir. I feel bitterly the foul East wind, but I am equally sensitive to the influence of a favorable breeze. Be it the bland breath of the West of a summer's night when the sleeping flowers drink in the dew, and lovers whisper their vows beneath the moon light, or be it the sharp, icy north wind of a winter's morning when the frost snaps and crackles and the clear cold air rings like a bell. I revel in the one and rejoice in the other, as much as I shrink and shudder when the weathercock points to the East. You remember how Virgil, in the third book of the Georgics, describes

"avidis ubi subita flamma medullis:
Vere magis, quia vere calor redit ossibus."

Well, there's not the colt &c.

Thus you see that this antipathy to the east wind is no infirmity of age, but a peculiarity of physical temperament. The same thing, or something analogous, runs through my whole nature—a delicacy of taste makes me equally sensible to beauty and deformity, so that the latter disgusts as much as the former delights me—and a delicacy of passion makes me alike sensible to joy and sorrow, so that either is no partial, moderate feeling, but in its turn perfect extacy or anguish. If one could have this nice sense of taste by itself, 'twould be indeed a blessing—for nature furnishes the principal objects of our contemplation, and nature, to the right-seeing eye, always shapes her works in perfect moulds. But as this is ever, in point of fact, accompanied by the corresponding exquisite sense of passion, and inasmuch as life oftener affords cause for pain than pleasure, the world being a vale of tears, the balance must necessarily be on the wrong side—and therefore could I lose the constitutional delicacy of passion, I would cheerfully yield along with it the delicacy of taste. And yet the memory of hours in my life, in which dwelt the happiness of long years, flashes upon my mind and gives the lie to my philosphy. The truth is, all speculation as to how, with different mental and moral natures we might have been happier and better men, is idleness and folly, For He who made us, no doubt fashioned us in that way most fitted to answer the true ends of our being, and the mysterious designs of his providence—I am constrained to say to myself in the words of Hamlet,

" There are more things in heaevn and earth, Horatio,
Than are dreamt of in your philosophy."

I find, Mr. Courier, that I have talked about almost everything, and nearly filled up my usual limits, and yet have in fact accomplished nothing. It was on my mind to have discoursed to you a little of the planet Mercury, which a few evenings ago was visible to the naked eye, near the western horizon, appearing like a gem in the brilliant twilight. You know that this sight, even by the aid of art, is a rare event, occurring but once in a great many years; and that a well-defined picture of this planet's form has never been obtained by the most powerful telescope, owing to his nearness to the sun. The great Copernicus lamented on his death-bed that he had never had an opportunity of seeing Mercury during his whole life. The light which falls on this planet is about seven times greater than that which falls upon the earth; for the proportion of their distances from the sun is nearly as three to eight, and the quantity of light diffused from a luminous body is as the square of the distance from that body. (I am astonished at this, for me, astonishing display of mathematical profundity—but I am more impressed in reflecting with what gout the natives of Mercury can say with the Psalmist, "the light is good, and a pleasant thing it is to behold the light of the sun.") As the apparent diameter of the sun is likewise in proportion to the square of the distance, the inhabitants of Mercury will behold in their sky a luminous orb, seven times larger than the Sun appears to us, and every object on their surface will be illuminated with a brilliancy seven-fold that which surrounds us on a fine summer's day. The splendor thus reflected from every point, is in all probability associated with colors of a most vivid and gorgeous description.—Imagine what a sunset must glow there! What a morning must walk o'er the dew of the high eastern hills! What a rainbow must arch the sky! What tints to the flowers and the plumage of the birds!—and then, reasoning by analogy, infer what must be the sublimated nature of the denizens of such a land, those dwellers in light, the Mercurians!

I know little of Astronomy as a science, but it is an unfailing source of poetry and religion.—Not that I would assume, Mr. Courier, that I am either poetical or pious. But whatever of passion for beauty and power I may have, the sight and contemplation of the 'Earth-treading stars, that make dark heaven light,'

never fail to kindle and cherish it—and whatever portion I possess of that natural religion inherent to some extent in every man's nature, this always wells up from my heart whenever I look at the rolling worlds which in reason's ear proclaim their great Creator,

"Forever singing as they shine,
The hand that made us is divine."

I am aware that many distinguished natural philosophers have been notorious sceptics. But of all the strange phenomena of mind, this is to me the strangest. Above all, that an astronomer should doubt! Well might the poet say,

"The undevout astronomer is mad!"

But I find, Mr. Courier, that I have run away from my text—being as flighty as was the winged messenger of the Gods, for whom the planet Mercury was named. So, not being able to say with Nick Bottom, "Good master Mustard-seed, I know your patience well," I hasten to write myself,

Your obedient servant,
NEWMAN NOGGS.

ORIGINAL.

FOR THE COURIER.

Mike Langdon and his Colt.

It was the day before the ordination of Rev. Mr. Holt and while active preparations were going forward for that event, that our story begins.—Every body in the village was busy in preparation. the booths and tents were already erected about the meeting-house for the sale of gingerbread, cake and other more solid edibles together with flip, eggnog, ale and even stronger stimulants. The fiddler had also been engaged for the evening ball which in those days always followed an ordination, The Council dinner was also in course of preparation and many were the birds, beasts and creeping things which were that day slaughtered for the bodily comfort of the officiating divines.

In the midst of all this preparation the committee made the discovery that the invitation addressed to one of the Council, by some mistake had not been forwarded. This was regarded as a very unfortunate omission, as the gentleman was one to whom an important part in the ordination had been assigned. The clergyman lived in Andover to which place there was no regular conveyance and a special messenger must be procured as the letter must go that evening.

The question now arose who should be this Envoy Extraordanary? It was decided by appointing one Mike Langdon, an old hanger-on at the Bell Tavern, and the proud proprietor of a spavined horse, blind of one eye, lame, vicious and as broad as he was long. This horse Mike imagined to be perfectly sound, and he always called him, from the power of early associations, his colt. The two had grown up and lived together in the utmost harmony for a quarter of a century, and as the discipline of the beast had been altogether after the modern system of moral suasion, the colt always felt at liberty to do just as he pleased, without regard to the will of his master.

It was late in the afternoon that Langdon mounted his charger, having first taken a strong potation with the host of the inn. Being inwardly refreshed he commenced his journey with the intention of delivering his message that night, and returning the next morning in season for the solemnities and festivities of the day. He now jogged on as fast as his heavy beast was pleased to carry him.—After a few miles had been travelled, Mike began to be thirsty and was anxious to arrive in good season at the next inn, which was in Middleton. He endeavored to coax the colt, but the beast had arrived to years of discretion, and chose not to quicken his pace. On the contrary, seeing some nice herbage on the side of the road, he concluded, without consulting his master, to partake of it, which he did in a manner as leisurely as if the journey was of no kind of consequence. His master, kuowing it was of no use to urge him against his will, patiently dismounted and sat down to see him crop his food. At last the beast seemed satisfied, was again mounted by his master, and they jogged on.

The colt had been so long taking his refreshment, that they arrived late at the tavern in Middleton. The beast proceeded directly to the stable, and Langdon to the bar-room, which was of small dimensions, and low ceiling, black with smoke, and smelling strong of peat and the fumes of rum and tobacco smoke. Our messenger here found companions suited to his taste, and joined them in their libations at the bar. He kept no account of the mugs of flip which were emptied by the company in the bar-room, as his companions settled the bill with the landlord, in consideration of the intelligence he brought from the village. At length he thought of his errand, and ordered his horse to the door. He attempted to mount, but the horse-block seemed affected with a kind of St. Vitus' dance, and he found it difficult to gain the top of it. He requested the landlord to hold it still, as unless he could reach the top of the block, he never could find his way to the back of the colt. At last he was safely vaulted into the saddle, and once more resumed his journey. Even before he started he thought the colt was going with a pretty smart canter, but making no progress forward. When they were fairly on the road, he thought he never had travelled with such lightning speed.—Trees, houses and fences were all in full motion. At one time he saw a farm house in full chase after a barn, which, however, went with such speed as to keep just so far in advance of its pursuer. Trees were dashing along at a furious rate, and all the fences appeared to be playing at hide-and-seek. Two moons were visible in the heavens, and these were dancing a jig together. Notwithstanding this rapid rate of travelling, it seemed to him that he never should arrive at the end of his journey. Andover, he thought, must be a great way off. Still the colt, contrary to his usual custom, kept right on, and never offered to stop. Langdon thought he not only never went so fast, but that he never travelled so easy. There was a gentle, undulating motion that was quite delightful to him. At last he observed the same phenomenon that he had noticed at the tavern in Middleton, namely, the easy canter, without any onward progress. He looked up and saw a barn, then a house, and near it a sign post with something swinging like a tavern sign at its top. A confused notion now came into his head that he had arrived at his journey's end. He then dismounted and entered the inn, full of importance as special messenger, and bearer of despatches to the minister at Andover. No sooner had he entered than he threw his letter missive on the table that very night. He then ordered his colt to be well cared for, and called for a stiff mug of flip for himself. But what was his surprise to see that one of his townsmen had arrived there before him; and he, no less a personage than the landlord of the Bell tavern! and behind the bar too! He then looked about him and observed a wonderful resemblance to the tap room of the Bell tavern itself. There was the old fire place, the same old chairs, benches, and loggerheads that he had left in the tavern at home. Then there was the landlord himself,—how did he get there? Poor Longford was confounded!—but the truth was, and our readers have before this suspected it, that the colt on leaving the tavern in Middleton, preferring his stable at home to the long road to Andover, had conveyed his unconscious master back to his starting place. The consequence was, that the Andover elergyman did not attend the ordination, and the part assigned to him was given to another.

MISCELLANY.

MRS. CAUDLE'S CURTAIN LECTURES.

Mr. Caudle has lent an acquaintance the family umbrella—Mrs. Caudle lectures thereon.

"Bah! That's the third umbrella gone since Christmas. What were you to do? Why, let him go home in the rain, to be sure. I'm very certain there was nothing about him that would spoil. Take cold indeed! Doesn't look like one of the sort to take cold. Besides he'd have better taken cold than our only umbrella. Do you hear the rain, Mr. CAUDLE? I say, do you hear the rain? And, as I'm alive, if it isn't Saint Swinthin's day! Do you hear it against the windows? Nonsense; you don't impose upon me.—You can't be asleep with such a shower as that! Do you hear it, I say? Oh' you do hear it! Well, that's a pretty flood, I think, to last for six weeks; and no stirring all the time out of the house.—Don't think me a fool, Mr. Caudle. Don't insult me. He return the umbrella! Anybody would think you were born yesterday. As if anybody ever did return an umbrella? There—do you hear it? Worse and worse! Cats and dogs, and for six weeks—always six weeks. And no umbrella!

I should like to know how the children are to get to school to-morrow. They shan't go through such weather, I am determined. No: they shall stop at home and never learn anything—the blessed creatures!—sooner than go and get wet.—And when they are grown up, I wonder who they'll have to thank for knowing nothing—who, indeed, but their father? People who can't feel for their own children ought never to be fathers.

But I know why you lent the umbrella. Oh, yes; I was going out to tea, at dear mother's to-morrow,—you knew that; and you did it on purpose Don't tell me; you hate to have me to go there, and take every mean advantage to hinder me.—But don't you think it, Mr Caudle. No, sir; if it comes down in buckets full, I'll go all the more. No, and I won't have a cab! Where do you think the money's to come from? You've got nice high notions in that club of yours! A cab, indeed!—Cost me sixpence at least— sixteen!— two-and-eight pence, for there's back again! Cabs, indeed! I should like to know who's to pay for 'em. I can't pay for 'em; and I'm sure you can't if you go on as you do; throwing away your property, and beggaring your children—buying umbrellas!

Do you hear the rain, Mr. Caudle? I say, do you hear it? But I don't care—I'll go to mother's to-morrow: I will; and what's more, I'll walk every step of the way,—and you know that will give me my death. Don't call me a foolish woman, it's you that's the foolish man. You know that I can't wear clogs; and with the umbrella, that's sure to give a cold—it always does. But what do you care for that? Nothing at all. I may be laid up for what you care, as I dare say I shall—and a pretty doctor's bill there'll be. I hope there will! It will teach you to lend your umbrellas again. I shouldn't wonder if I caught my death; yes, and that's what you lent the umbrella for. Of course.

Nice clothes, I shall get too, trapesing through weather like this. My gown and bonnet will be spoilt quite. Need n't I wear 'em then? Indeed, Mr. Caudle, I shall wear 'em. No, sir, I'm not going out a dowdy to please you or anybody else. Gracious knows! it is n't often that I step over the threshold; indeed I might as well be a slave at once,—better, I should say. But when I do go out, Mr. Caudle, I choose to go as a lady. Oh! that rain—if it isn't enough to break in the windows.

Ugh! I do look forward with dread for tomorrow! How I am to go to mother's I'm sure I can't tell. But if I die, I'll do it. No sir; I won't borrow an umbrella. No; and you shan't buy one. (With great emphasis.) Mr. Caudle, if you bring home another umbrella, I'll throw it in the street, I'll have my own umbrella or none at all.

Ha! and it was only last week I had a new nozzle put to that umbrella. I'm sure if I'd known as much as I do now, it might have gone without one for me. Paying for new nozzles, for other people to laugh at you. Oh, it's all very well for you—you can't go to sleep. You've no thought of your patient wife, and your own dear children. You think of nothing but lending umbrellas!

Men, indeed!—call themselves lords of creation!—pretty lords when they can't take care of an umbrella!

I know that walk tomorrow will be the death of me. But that's what you want—then you may go to your club, and do as you like—and then nicely my poor dear children will be used—but then, sir, then you will be happy. Oh, don't tell me! I know you will. Else you'd never have

You have to go on Thursday about that summons; and of course, you can't go. No, indeed you don't go without the umbrella. You may lose the debt for what I care—it won't be so much as spoiling your clothes—better lose it; people deserve to lose debts who lend umbrellas,

And I should like to know how I'm to go to mother's without the umbrella. Oh, don't tell me that I said I would go—that's nothing to do with it; nothing at all. She'll think I'm neglecting her, and the little money we were to have, we shan't have at all—because we have no umbrella.

The children, too! Dear things! They'll be sopping wet; for they shan't stop at home—they shan't lose their learning; it's all their father will leave 'em, I'm sure. But they shall go to school. Don't tell me I said they shouldn't: you are so aggravating, Caudle; you'd spoil the temper of an angel. They shall go to school; mark that. And if they get their deaths of cold, it's not my fault—I didn't lend the umbrella.

"Here," says Caudle in his MS, "I fell asleep and dreampt that the sky was turned into green calico, with whalebone ribs; that, in fact, the whole world revolved under a tremendous umbrella.

TOUCHING. A poor editor, out west somewhere falling into the hands of the Philistines, breaks forth in the following gizzard-stirring appeal:

Sheriff, spare that press!
Touch not a single type;
Don't put me in distress,
To stick to me thro' life!
'Tis all in all to me,
If lost, what shall I do?
Then why not let it be,
Oh, Sheriff!—boo—hoo—hoo!

Elopement, Folly and Crime—A letter in the New York Tribune, dated at Troy, N. Y., says

A few days ago, a young man in this city by the name of S. Vanderheyden came into possession of about $12.000 cash on the day he attained his majority, and the same evening ran away with another man's wife. The woman Mrs Wetmore—she is about 21 years old, and has been married five or six years, She is a handsome creature—an accomplished singer and pianist—is very respectably connected, and has moved in good society. The young man has heretofore borne a good character, is said to have been an obedient and affectionate son the pride and hope of a widowed mother. He is the victim of seduction; he has fallen a prey to the wiles and acts of a wicked woman. She will probably fawn upon him till his money is gone, and then sell her charms to a rich lover

ANTICIPATED DISTURBANCES AT NAUVOO. It is feared from present appearances, that there will be a serious disturbance between the Mormons and their enemies, before long, again. It appears that the Governor of Illinois has received intelligence from two authentic sources, that some anti-Mormon forged an order in the name of Gen. Deming, for a piece of artillery in McDonough county, and that the same has been conveyed on the authority of this forgery to the "Carthage Grays," in whose possession it now is. The Governor has sent to Carthage to take possession of all the state arms in the hands of these incipient rioters.

DANVERS COURIER.

SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 10, 1845.

DEATH OF HON. LEVERETT SALTONSTALL.

With feelings of deep and heartfelt sorrow, we announce the death of this distinguished and respected citizen, and we feel assured that his decease will awaken in the bosoms of a large circle of his fellow citizens, a sincere and inconsolable grief.

The deceased possessed in an unusual degree, those qualities which win the affections and confidence of all. Even his political enemies saw much in his private character worthy of love and imitation.

The confidence and favor of his fellow citizens have been frequently manifested by calling him at an early period of his life, to fill important offices in the State and National Legislatures, in which bodies, his eloquence, his clear sighted views of national policy, and his unsuspected integrity gained for him a high reputation among the distinguished men of the nation. Mr. S. was a graduate of Harvard University, of the class of 1802, and had been for many years President of the Essex bar and was at the time of his decease the eldest member.

A meeting of the bar was held on Thursday, and a very appropriate and affecting address was delivered by Benj. Merrill, Esq. to the bar. His death was also announced in the Supreme Court by Mr. Merrill in a brief but impressive eulogium.

The Court passed an order that the proceedings be recorded on their record as a memorial to future times of the respect in which Mr. Saltonstall was held, and then adjourned.

AGRICULTURAL EDUCATION

We have been very much gratified in reading that part of Mr. Colman's 3d report on agriculture, which relates to agricultural education. This is a subject which we have always considered to be of very great importance. We believe attempts have been made at different times and places, in this country to establish departments in schools with reference to this branch, but do not recollect of any which have met with much success. It seems to be different in Great Btitain, and schools there in considerable numbers, have been established for that purpose, which are deservedly popular, and will undoubtedly effect a great amount of good.

Even if youth do not intend to follow farming as an avocation, it is extremely important that whilst pursuing their studies they should be accustomed to a degree of agricultural labor, daily.—We say agricultural, because there is no other kind of labor so well adapted for the promotion of health, and which gives such good exercise to the limbs. How often is it that we meet with professional men, for instance, who are partially or totally incapacitated for the performance of their duties on account of ill health. And how many are the youth of noble intellects, who have stood in the first rank as scholars, who have descended to a premature grave, from the effect of a constitution debilitated by want of physical exercise.

But in addition to its beneficial effects upon the health, the study of the sciences connected with agriculture, is extremely useful to the student.—There are needed in our literary institutions, [illegible] store their minds with classical learning which is in its place important, but that they should know how to apply what they may have acquired.

We wish and hope to see this subject attended to in this country, and a full experiment made.—Such an education would tend to strengthen the constitutions of scholars, and give them proper ideas of the practical. And to those who intend to devote their life to agricultural pursuits, it must be of the greatest importance to connect their education with their business, and by being under the direction of experienced agriculturalists, to learn the best methods of farming. We subjoin a few extracts from Mr. Colman's account of the regulations of the Templemoyle school, which he visited,

1. As the great object is to make the boys practical farmers, one half of them will be at all times on the farm, where they will be employed in manual labor, and receive from the head such instructions, reasons and explanations, as will render the mode of proceeding, in all the various operations performed on the farm, sufficiently intelligible to them.

4. The head farmer will deliver evening lectures to the pupils on the theory and practice of agriculture, explaining his reasons for adopting any crop, or any particular rotation of crops, as well as the most suitable soil, and the most approved modes of cultivating for each; the proper management and treatment of working, feeding, and dairy stock; the most approved breeds, and their adaptation to different soils. He will point out the best method of reclaiming, draining, and improving land; and will direct attention to the most recent inventions in agricultural implements, detailing the respective merits of each.

The other regulations detail more fully the arrangements of the school, but the above extracts will give a bird's eye view of it. Mr. Colman gives in this Number, a plan for an agricultural school and earnestly recommends its trial. There are several well endowed academies in this state which could well afford such an experiment, and we trust, philanthropists enough among those who have the care of them, who will exert themselves to effect it.

Table Talk. Part 1, by William Hazlitt, is the title of the sixth No. of Wiley and Putnam's Library of choice Reading. It is the most celebrated work of Hazlitt, written in a pleasant and easy style and full of instructive truths. It is for sale by W. S. Cleveland & Co for 37 1-2 cents per copy.

ENGLISH LEATHER.

The prospect of the admission of foreign leather into the ports of Great Britain has led to some curiosity among tanners here to know their mode of manufacturing, cost, &c.

Sole Leather in England is always tanned with oak bark and always in cold liquors. The hides are much more carefully worked and cleansed there than by our tanners. They are never sweated to remove the hair but limed carefully and drenched low, every care being taken to work out all impurities and make a clean and handsome grain. It is much more thoroughly tanned than our leather, requiring from a year and a half to four years to fit it for market.

In tanning upper leather still more care is used and every effort made to produce a clear and even grain. Not only oak bark but the bark of the Scotch Larch, Sumac and Valerian are much used to give a handsome color to the hide or skin.—Leather, either upper or sole, as we make it would find no sale in England. Their sole leather is so well and thoroughly filled with bark that it is nearly impervious to water, while ours will absorb it like a sponge. Our leather is believed to be more durable than theirs but not so useful while it lasts. Even if it is as good in all respects it would have to encounter the prejudice of John Bull against every thing he does not make himself. If Brother Jonathan is to supply John with shoe leather he must make it in the English mode. We must have English tanners to learn us the art as there practiced, just as we were obliged to import English butchers to pack our pork before their countrymen would buy it

The cost of tanning is of course much more in England than here. The great length of time, the additional labor and the high cost of bark requires a great price for the leather. Sole leather is usually from 33 to 40 cts pr lb. The bark costs from $35 to$60 per ton and is brought in a ground state from the Baltic and the Mediterranean as well as from her own forests. Hemlock tanned or red leather is unknown in England.

The following advertisement from a late English paper will give some idea of a Tannery in that country.

Also all that TAN YARD, with entrances from Foregate Street and the Canal; a three-stalled Stable, loft over a large bark bay, capable of holding 100 tons and upwards; with a TANNERY containing 32 Pitts, under cover, and Leather Drying Rooms over; a Mill Room, Weighing Room, Office adjoining, and Drying Room over; a Tool room, and Room over; two Sheds at the bottom of the yard, 48 Open Pitts, 7 Lime Pitts, Cisterns, &c.

SPECIAL SESSION OF THE CONGRESS OF TEXAS.

A proclamation has been made by the President of Texas, convening a special Session of Congress on the 16th of June next, to take into consideration the proposition made for annexation by the United States. There seems yet to be some uncertainty as to the popular feeling upon the subject, but it is supposed by some that the course Mexico is pursuing, in making advances for recognizing the independence of the "lone star" republic, may have considerable effect in determining the result. It is expected that the final propositions from the Mexican government will be received there by the middle of June, or by the 1st of July.

REV. JOHN PIERPONT.

This eloquent and persevering champion of Temperance, Humanity and the independence of the Pulpit, took his final leave of his church in Hollis street, Boston, on Sunday last, by a farewell discourse which is said to have been characterized by that peculiar style of vigorous thought and expression which has made this preacher so distinguished.

Mr. Pierpont has been settled over that Society about 27 years. Early in the great Temperance reform he took strong ground with its advocates and by his plain speaking and powerful denunciation, mortally offended many of his own society who, it happened, were actively engaged in distilling liquid poison. These persons formed a strong party against him and used every effort to eject him from the pulpit. They obtained a majority of votes as proprietors by buying up pews, although most of them attended other churches. An Ecclesiastical Council was called, charges were brought, an able defence was made, and Mr. Pierpont came off victorious here as well as from all former attacks upon him. Many devoted parishioners adhered to him in all his trials, but the Society witheld the payment of his salary. Still he continued to preach and preach independently, relying for his support on the kindness of personal friends and such income as he might obtain from lecturing before Lyceums, &c. Some time since, by the advice of friends, he attached the old church in Hollis street for arrears of salary amounting to about $14 000, which he will recover, and this will enable him to repay those friends who have advanced money for his support. The church and land are said to be worth about $45 000.

☞Ladies who visit Salem, to obtain any article of Linen, Lace or Millinery, should not fail to call at Keith & Mason's, who have a splendid assortment of the above goods. See advertisement in another column.

German Emigration. The average number of individuals who for the last few years have annually emigrated from Germany, (chiefly to the United States,) is about 30 000, and they carry with them at least a capital of three and one third millions of dollars, United States currency.

TO OUR PATRONS.

We are happy to receive assurances from our friends that our efforts thus far have met with their approval and hope our future exertions will be equally satisfactory. We would express our thanks to those who have aided and encouraged our undertaking and solicit a continuance of their good offices. We are fully satisfied that such a paper was called for, and will receive the support of those who value the good name and respectability of our thriving settlement. Still it must be admitted that our subscription list needs large accession to enable us to place the establishment on that solid and permanent foundation which it should maintain. We therefore call on our friends for such aid as they may be able to afford, either by a good word in our behalf or by more active effort.

☞We have been induced to allow farther time to our early subscribers to take advantage of the favorable terms of advance payment offered in our prospectus, and all who settle their subscription during the present month will be entitled to the discount.

Ambreine Soap. We have tried this soap, and can safely say it is the best we have ever used.—It makes an abundant and permanent lather, and what is not common in celebrated soaps is excellent for its beneficial effects upon the skin. It is sold at the low price of 37 1-2 cents per bottle, and we hope none who value the luxury of shaving with ease will fail to give it a trial.

It is for sale by Henry Whipple, Salem.

Snow. A correspondent of the Mail states that spots of snow yet remain on the hills of New Hampshire, even in Hillsborough county, and that there is probably good sleighing in the northern part of the State. This will account for some of the chilly winds we have had recently.

Under Beds.—Would you have good under bed filled with a material that will endure? Then give up the old notion of filling them with straw, which soon becomes worn down to chaff, and requires replenishing once or twice a year. This is not the greatest evil. Whole families have sometimes been afflicted with irritating blotches by some diminutive insects in the straw. Witch Hazel is an excellent article for under beds and matrasses, clean, durable and cheap. It may be had at the store of Carter & Batchelder.—See Advertisement.

Ventilation of Cellars Now is the time to throw open your cellar doors and windows to admit the pure air in exchange for the foul vapor that has been there confined during the winter.—The air of cellars often becomes highly deleterious to health, and the sickness of families may frequently be traced to the stagnant and noisome vapor of these under ground apartments. It is a good plan to have an opening into the principal chimney of the house, to enable the noxious air more or less generated in the cellar to escape.

Fire in Lynn. The house occupied by A. Oliver and D. M. Hildreth, in Summer street, Lynn was consumed by fire on Sunday morning. The families escaped with difficulty. House insured at the Lynn Mutual.

Pure Water in Boston. The Bostonians are holding meetings preparatory to carrying into operation the Water act passed at the last Session of the Legislature.

O' Connell. This distinguished individual intimates very plainly that if England will get into a war with the United States, the Irishmen will aid her to put down the rebellious Yankees.—Consistency is a jewel, but Daniel O' Connell has never been able to discover it.

New Books. Mrs Caudle's Curtain Lectures by Punch, with Illustrations by Leech. We present our readers, on the first page, with a specimen of these Lectures which have gained a wide celebrity, and we think all who peruse this specimen will wish to see the remainder. There are ten Lectures, part of them written by the late unfortunate but witty writer Laman Blanchard, the residue, by another hand. This work is illustrated by a frontispiece representing Mrs. Caudle in the act of delivering a lecture, while her only auditor, her patient spouse, lies cosily by her side, his night cap pulled over his ears in the vain attempt to find repose. This amusing little work may be had of L. Chandler.

A Real Irishman. In the adventures of the Exploring Expedition, Capt. Wilkes states that on arriving at one of the farthest and most undesirable of the Fejee Islands, where pig's flesh is a luxury, and human flesh a high holiday food, had a visit from a host of oil-bedaubed and clay-cavered inhabitants, whom he addressed through an interpreter, and whose wands, in the way of Jackknives, beads, and glass, he supplied. One of the inhabitants gently pressed aside the interpreter, and, to the question of what he wanted, replied, that "his honor should give him a hatchet for the childers." Great was the astonishment of the captain to ascertain that beneath the bushy head and oiled skin before him, beat the heart of an Irishman, who to the question of what he was doing there, replied, "raising pigs, hens and children." The pigs and hens did not multiply rapidly, but Patrick was the happy father of "Forty-Eight Children," and was living in the hopes of two more that very year.—But alas, the hopes of this Priam of the Fejees were blasted; not in the failure of his plans, but in the termination of his life. He died in a few months afterwards.

☞The lot of land, formerly the site of Concert Hall, Salem, was sold recently, by George Nichols, for $2400.

The following, from the Independent Democrat is an extract from the speech of John P. Hale, at Exeter, a short time since. He has been unceremoniously thrown overboard by his party, for the independent stand he took in opposition to the Texas iniquity. His remarks are noble and manly, and the would be Democracy find they roused a Lion, when they put themselves in array against him. By his course he has probably lost his re-election to Congress, but the consciousness of having performed his duty upon so momentous a question, and the respect and esteem of thousands all over the North, must be more gratifying to him than any political distinction.

In respect to the guaranties of the Constitution, he was in favor of a faithful observance of them, so long as the Constitution remained unchanged. Till then, let the southern chattels, bought and sold in the slave market, stand on the ground of northern freeman: let them have a representation on the floor of Congress—let the accursed institution be tolerated within the limits permitted to it by the Constitution. But let it not reach forth its powers into the north. Let it beware of the day when it arouses the spirit of religion, of truth, of true democracy, by summoning the nation to protect, extend and perpetuate the greatest calamity, with which earth is cursed.

Lock jaw cured by Electricity. The New York Journal of Commerce records the cure of a young woman afflicted with the Lock jaw, by the application of electricity. His jaws had been closed five days.

Criminal Assaults. We learn that a young man charged with the commission of a personal outrage of a very serious character, was this week examined before Justice Shed, and committed for trial at the next term of the Court of Common Pleas. We withold further remarks on this painful affair, in the hope that the various rumors afloat concerning it are doing injustice to the person implicated.

Great Fire at Portsmouth, N. H. We learn from Portsmouth, that at an early hour on Sunday morning, (half past 12 o'clock,) a fire broke out in the centre of the business part of the town, which destroyed a large number of buildings, and property, valued at $120,000.

We are indebted to the Mercury of that place, for an extra giving the particulars. The fire broke out in a small wooden building in the rear of Knight's hat store, West side of Market street, and the wind blowing fresh, it spread rapidly in three directions. Market street is all destroyed on the West side from the store of Nehemiah Moses, to the McIntire Block, both inclusive: and on the East side, from Samuel Row's store to Penhallow street. Also, the brick block on the last named street, occupied by C. Daley and J. G. Rand, and three wooden dwelling houses on Hanover street.

Among the buildings burnt on Market street, are the brick block owned by Cheever & Kimball; brick store, by Benjamin Cheever; part of brick block, by John Haven; brick block occupied by D. Knight & Co. and Hill & Carr; brick block, by N. Moses: Waldron's brick block occupied by six tenants; Wm. Rice's brick store, and M'Intire's brick buildings, occupied by several tenants.

Such was the rapid and alarming progress of the fire, that a locomotive train was despatched to Newburyport, for aid, a distance of 20 miles, which returned with three companies who promptly turned out with their engines. Fortunately the fire was checked before their arrival.—Boston Daily Adv.

Tired of Flirting! The Boston Atlas has an article giving a very interesting account of the struggles and hair-breadth escapes of Miss Cornelia Platt, of Detroit, on the terrible night of the destruction of the Swallow.

We learn by private advices from Detroit that Miss Platt had eloped from Detroit, to place herself in a nunnery. She is the daughter of J. Platt, Esq., formerly Attorney General of Michigan, and was in all the bloom of belle-hood, and the acknowledged belle of the city. She is beautiful, fascinating in her manners and of a highly cultivated mind.

Those who have been in the habit of party going at Detroit within the last few years, can have but pleasing recollections of the charming Miss Cornelia Platt. Her elopement was connived at by the Catholic Bishop, Le Fevre, who furnished her with money and wardrobe. She took nothing whatever from her father's house. Our correspondent gives as a reason for this conduct "that she was tired to death of flirtation."

Whether her cold, dark bath in the Hudson will cool her devotion and win her back to the world, remains to be seen. [Brattleboro' Phen.

ARRIVAL OF THE HIBERNIA

FIFTEEN DAYS LATER FROM ENGLAND.

The steamship Hibernia arrived at her wharf in East Boston about 8 o'clock yesterday morning. She has been somewhat longer than usual on her passage, owing to head winds, &c.

Blood has been spilled in Switzerland between the rival Protestant and Catholic factions.

In France a long debate on the abolition of slavery in the colonies belonging to that country has taken place. The Peers have passed a law by which the slave can purchase his freedom. The question had not been taken in the Chamber of Deputies.

Dr. Wolff has arrived in England, and has published a sketch of his mission.

A rumor prevails in London that several regiments would be drawn from Ireland, and that 8000 troops are to be sent to Canada.

The London Times has an article in relation to Mexico and the United States, in which a sage attempt is made to show that the former is better prepared for war than the latter, and intimates that she could make a successful resistance to this country. It also holds fast to the doctrine that Mexico should not acknowledge the independence of Texas unless she binds herself to remain distinct from this Union.

Cheering erom Pittsburg.—The burnt district will shortly be entirely rebuilt. In every section of the city burnt over, animation prevails: stores and dwelling houses are already going up with extraordinary activity. Contracts have been made for the immediate erection of about 300 buildings.

SHAVINGS.

Handsomely Done. A Letter from Lexington, Ky., to a gentleman in Tennessee, speaking of Mr. Clay says—"He, (Mr. Clay,) has been largely in debt, but within the last week his entire indebtedness, amounting to near $30,000, was cancelled, and his notes delivered to him from bank. The great man was deeply affected and asked who had done this thing. "We know not," was the reply, "the money was deposited to your credit. It need not concern you who did it; it was not your enemies."

As this matter has been the subject of invidious comment in journals hostile to Mr. Clay, we shall not violate any confidence by stating the facts more clearly. The truth is this: Mr. Clay who has not for many years, incurred or owed a debt on his own account, had involved himself by endorsing for a relative who became deeply embarrassed and failed. The debts came upon Mr. Clay to such an extent that his property must have been swept away to pay them. The circumstances came to the knowledge of some of Mr. Clay's political friends and admirers, (few of whom knew him personally,) and they quietly subscribed the sum necessary to relieve him from embarrassment. The first intimation he had of it was by the return of his cancelled notes.—Tribune.

☞Our business people have had enough to do since our navigation has opened. Between one and two hundred vessels have been loaded and sent off within the last ten days. There is a fair freshet in our river. There is a good degree of confidence among our business men.—Many strangers have visited the city on business. Manufactures are on the increase.—There is a real difficulty felt on account of the scarcity of dwellings. It is really important that the number of houses should be increased and our capitalists could not do a more acceptable service to the city and ultimately to themselves than appropriating a portion of their capital in the eaection of neat snug houses.—Bangor Courier.

Pittsburg. The contributions from Philadelphia amount to $25,000—from Baltimore, $11,000; from New York, $25,000; from Boston, not yet ascertained, but probably equal to either of the other cities.

☞The population of Manchester, N. H., as appears by the census, just taken, is 8,017; increase since last year, 1,931. Manchester is now the largest town in the State, and at the present rate of increase will in a few years rival Lowell.

☞The Maryland Examiner says the crops have never been so forward at this season of the year as at present. The wheat is fine and heavy, and the rye is already in the head.—The prospect could not be more favorable.

A respectable young man of Dracut, named Richardson, left home on Sunday to go over the river to Lowell, to attend church, has not been heard of since. He is a worthy youth, and his parents are much distressed for him.

☞Rene Godard, one of the oldest merchants of Charlestown, S. C. died in that city on Saturday. He had been a resident for forty years, and for sixteen years past president of the Union Bank. He was 85 years of age.

☞Capt. Warren Gould, a native of Beverly, while passing on board a vessel lying at Lewis wharf, Boston, on Sunday evening last, slipped and fell overboard, and when taken up was dead.

Change.—In 1818 the message of the governor of New York was 13 days in reaching Rochester from Albany. The last message arrived at Rochester in 10 1-2 hours.

Fire in the Mountains. The woods in the vicinity of the Catskill Mountain House have been on fire for several days, and at the time, serious apprehensions were felt for the safety of that edifice. The extent of injury must be great. There have also been extensive fires in the woods in different parts of New Jersey.

The New York Sun has a report, that a thousand or fifteen hundred armed Mexicans have been ordered to the Texian frontiers.

The Swallow. It was expected that this vessel would be raised on Wednesday last.

The Anti Rent outrages still continue in New York. A paper devoted to the cause has been started, and we fear serious difficulties will ensue.

MARRIAGES.

In this town, by Rev. Mr. Prince, Mr. Miles O. Stanley to Miss Ednah F. Wheeler

In Salem, Mr. Wm. H. Perley to Miss Margaret D. B. Brown. Mr. Samuel Very to Miss Mary Barker.

In Lynn, Mr. Thos. W. Vining to Miss Mary E. Lee.

In Beverly, Mr. Joseph Smith to Miss Sally Andrews. Mr. John E. Porter to Miss Ann Bell.

DEATHS.

In this town, North Parish, Mrs. Eliza Jane wife of Elisha G. Hyde.

In Salem on Thursday, Hon. Leverett Saltonstall, aged 61. Mr. Wm. Greenough, aged 47. Mr. Paul Kehew, aged 47. Mrs. Elizabeth Carlin, aged 54.

In Lynn, Rev. Timothy Merritt, aged 71.

In Beverly, Miss Emeline Wallis, aged 24.

In Manchester, Mr. Samuel Kinsman, aged 57.

Near Louisville, Ky., Mr. Thomas Holmes Ropes, aged 40, formerly of Salem.

PORT OF DANVERS

Saturday May 3.

ARRIVED.

Schr Emerald, Kelley, Thomaston, lime.

Sloop Boston Packet, Wheelwright, Wells, with wood.

Sunday May 4

ARRIVED.

Schr Gladiator, Newcomb, Norfolk, with corn.

Schr Abeona, Dodge, Bangor, with lumber.

SAILED.

Sch Boston Packet, Weelwright, Wells.

Sch Emerald, Kelley, Thomaston.

Sloop Abigail, Abbott, Boston, with bricks.

Monday, May 5

ARRIVED.

Sch Swan, Tewksbury, Boston.

Sch E H Herrick, Clarence, New York, with corn.

Tuesday May 6

SAILED.

Sch E H Herrick, Clarence, Salem.

Wednesday May 7

ARRIVED.

Sch Atlantic, Cook, Norfolk, with grain.

SAILED.

Sch Abeona, Dodge, Bangor.

Thursday May 8

SAILED.

Sch Swan, Tewksbury, Boston, with bricks.

Friday May 9

SAILED.

Sch Gladiator, Newcomb, Providence, with bricks.

BRIGHTON MARKET—Monday. April 28.

[From the Boston Daily Advertiser.]

At market 660 Beef Cattle 15 pairs Working Oxen, 1400 Sheep, and 20 25Swine. 125 Beef cattle remained unsold.

PRICES—Beef Cattle—Last week's prices were hard ly sustained. Extra $5 75 a 6; first quality 5 50; second quality 5 a 5 25; third quality 4 a $4 75.

WORKING OXEN—Sales at $55, 70, 87, 95 and 110.

SHEEP—Sales from 1 50 to $3; a few fine Wethers at 3 5.

SWINE—Lots to peddle, 4 1-2c for Sows, and 5 1-2c for Barrows; two lots selected 4 5-8 a 5 5-8 old Hogs from 4 1-4 to 5c. At retail, 5 and 6 1-2

NOTICE.

The regular meetings of Monument Division, No. 5, SONS OF TEMPERANCE, held at Sanger's Hall, are changed from Wednesday to Monday evening, at 8 o'clock. Members of the order are respectfully invited to attend.

Danvers, April 12. MOSES MERRILL, R. S.

New Spring Hosiery.

WILL be opened this morning, at R. H. CHAMBERLAIN'S Hosiery and Glove Store, No 236 Essex Street, Salem.

400 dozen of Spring and Summer Hosiery and Gloves, comprising every variety, style, size and quality, for Ladies, Gents, Misses and Children's wear.

Also, new styles of Mouseline de Laines, Cashmeres, Muslin, Ginghams, Printed Lawns, Balzorines, Prints, Patches; White and Col'd Cambrics; Plaid; Striped and Figured Cambrics; Plain, Plaid, Striped and Lace Muslins; Corded and Victoria Robes; Bleached, Unbleached and Colored Table Covers; Domestic Goods in great variety; Shirts; Bosoms; Collars; Dickeys; Cravats; Scarfs; Suspenders, Under Shirts and Drawers; Pocket Hdkfs, etc.

N. B. R. H. C. keeps constantly on hand a large supply of the American Improved Curtain Fixture,

a far superior article to any now in use, and not so liable to get out of order, a model of the same can be seen at the above store. Dealers in want of the article, can be supplied in any quantities, at the manufacturer's price.

Salem, May 10th, 1845. tf

NEW LUMBER WHARF.

THE subscriber having taken the wharf, called the WEST wharf, near the Bridge, in South Salem, would take this opportunity to inform his friends and the public generally, that he intends to keep for sale an assortment of BOARDS, JOIST, CLAPBOARDS, SHINGLES, PICKETS, LATHS, &c. &c., of as good quality as can be found in the city.

He has now on hand 300,000 dry Boards and Plank for sale, and all wishing to purchase, are respectfully invited to call and examine for themselves.

He has also made arrangements at the Eastward for furnishing Dimension Frames, and filling orders of every description, at short notice.

Having been a practical builder for the last fifteen years, the subscriber flatters himself that his knowledge of the business, and the Lumber trade generally, will enable him to give satisfaction to those who may favor him with their patronage.

As he will be at the Eastward part of the time, he will be able to give his personal attention to the purchasing of Lumber, &c. He has made arrangements with Mr. A. F. CLARK to be on the wharf during business hours, who will wait upon those who may favor him with a call.

Salem, May 10, 1845. tf H. B. WARD.

Flour, Corn, Oats, Shorts, &c.

Landing from schr Pioneer,

200 BARRELS Genesee Flour;
20 1-2 do do do
500 bushels Mealing Corn;
500 do Yellow do
500 do Shorts;
20 bbls Pea Beans;
4 bbls Marrowfat Peas;
100 bags Fine Salt;

—Also, in store—

100 bushels Kullam Oats, for seed;
100 do Red Top do do;
500 do Clover do; (Northern;

For sale by DANIEL RICHARDS,

At the old and well known stand on the Plains.

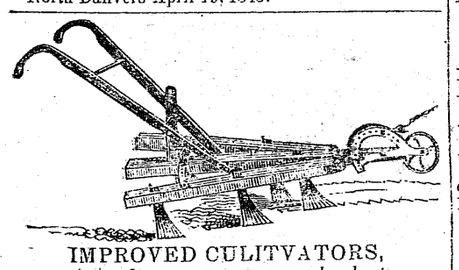
North Danvers, April 19, 1845.

RETAIL

Boot and Shoe Store,

AT THE PLAINS.

THE subscriber keeps constantly on hand at his store, on Maple street, near the Village Bank, A full supply of



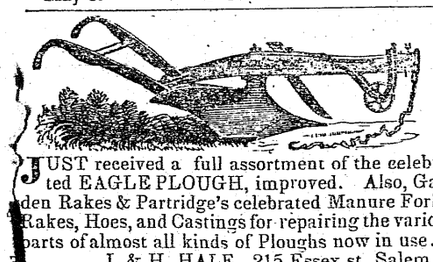
Men's Calf and Seal Boots, of all qualities;
Men's Calf, Goat and Kip Shoes, and pumps.
Boy's do do Downings.

THE LADIES will find a complete assortment of Fine and Common Kid Slippers;
Paris and Village Ties;
Gaiter Boots and Shoes;
Misses' and Children's shoes of all descriptions;

The above articles he is constantly receiving from the best manufacturers in the state, which will enable him to satisfy all who are in want of good articles in his line—at very reasonable prices.

JOSHUA SILVESTER.

North Danvers April 19, 1845.



IMPROVED CULITVATORS,

A complete assortment now on hand, at

J. & H. HALE'S,

May 3. tf 215 Essex street Salem.

JUST received a full assortment of the celebrated EAGLE PLOUGH, improved. Also, Garden Rakes & Partridge's celebrated Manure Forks, Rakes, Hoes, and Castings for repairing the various parts of almost all kinds of Ploughs now in use.

J. & H. HALE, 215 Essex st. Salem.

May 3

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law

OFFICE IN FELTON'S (late Osborne's) Building,

Danvers, March 29th. tf

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

JONATHAN W. OSBORNE has taken into Co-partnership MICHAEL L. WHIDDEN, and they will continue the

Painting, Glazing & Papering

business, at the old Stand, No 10 PARK STREET, under the firm of

OSBORNE & WHIDDEN.

Particular attention to

SIGN PAINTING,

IMITATIONS OF WOOD, MARBLE, BRONZE, GROUND GLASS, &c.

mch 29 1y

NEW BOOKS.

MRS. CHILD'S LETTERS—2d series. Letter from New York, 2d series, by L. Maria Child.

U. S. Exploring Expedition. Narrative of the U. S Exploring Expedition, by Charles Wilkes, U. S. N., Commander of the Expedition—with illustrations and maps.

Library of Choice Reading, &c. The Amber Witch Undine and Sintram, bound in one vol. Also, all the numbers separately. Table Talk. Vestiges of Creation, 2d edition. For sale at 193 Essex street, Salem, by W. S. CLEVELAND & CO. may 10

NEW BOOKS.

WAVERLY NOVELS—Parkers edition. 27 vols, in extra binding, revised and corrected, with a general preface, an introduction to each novel, and notes, historical and illustrative, by the author.

No. 25 Harper's Pictorial Bible.

Exploring Expedition. Narrative of the U. S. Exploring Expedition, during the years 1838, '39, '40, '41 and '42 by Charles Wilkes, U. S. N., with illustrations and maps—in 5 vols. 1st Vol. just out.

Hawser Martingale. New ed. of Tales of the Ocean, by the editor of the Boston Merc. Journal. Also—Life on the Ocean, 3d ed., by George Little.

Cruden's Concordance. A new and condensed ed., with an introduction, by the Rev David King, LL.D.

Letters from New York—second series, by L. Maria Child, author of the Girl's Book, Mother's Book, etc.

A new Drawing Book of American Scenery, containing Thirty-four views from nature, with instructions for beginners in Landscape.

Also—Abbott's new series of Drawing Cards, a fine collection of subjects—just rec'd by W. & S. B. IVES, 232 Essex street, Salem. may 10

COMMERCIAL STEEL PEN INK, manufactured by Hoyan & Thompson, Philadelphia. This Ink has been produced by the Chemical combination of a new material with Gallate of Iron. It is fluid in its nature and permanent in color, flows freely from the steel pen, and therefore supplies what has hitherto been the desideratum to the uses of that instrument. By its combining readily with paper of any surface, it is suited to free and rapid writing, and may be used with any kind of metallic or quill pen. A large supply of the various sizes just received and for sale by

W. & S. B. IVES 232 Essex street, Salem.

TOPOGRAPHICAL MAP OF PALESTINE by J. H. Colton. Compiled principally from the observations of Messrs Robinson and Smith. The religious Press and many of the secular papers have spoken in high terms of this map. For sale by G. W. & E. CRAFTS. 174 Essex St. Salem.

GOLD PENS. A superior article just received and for sale cheap by G. W. & E. CRAFTS. 174 Essex St. Salem.

ROWLAND'S KALYDOR, etc. Rowlands Kalydor; Genuine Macassar Oil; Farina Cologne, best quality; Genuine Kesan Soap, etc. A fresh supply of the above articles, just received and for sale by W. S. CLEVELAND & CO. 193 Essex st. may 10 Salem

HUTCHINSON FAMILY MUSIC. Excelsior, a song by Longfellow; Cot where we were born; Mother's Bible; Axes to Grind; We are Happy and Free; Go call the Doctor, or Anti-Calomel; Cape Ann: Soldier's Funeral; Vulture of the Alps; We're a Cutting; Our Father's Hearth; Napoleon's Grave; The Snow storm; The Old Granite State, etc., For sale at W. S CLEVELAND & CO'S Book and Music Store, 193 Essex street Salem. may 10

A NEW SUPPLY

OF that very superb and elegant ☞ COLUMN ENTRY PAPER, large size, in double rolls.—Also, a fresh supply of the smaller Column, with Caps, Bases, and Border to match. Just received at Stearns' Building, Salem. may 10

TWEED COATS. Another lot of Tweed Coats, just received and selling cheaper than the last lot may 10 at EDWARDS', 14 Front street Salem.

GREEN JACKETS. A good assortment of Green Jacbets, just made and for sale at EDWARDS', 14 Front street Salem. may 10

CAPS. An assortment of Cloth Caps just rec'd and selling very cheap at EDWARDS', may 10 14 Front street, Salem.

TAILORS' CRAYONS. A new lot of Tailors' Crayons, manufactured to my order, just received and for sale at EDWARDS', 14 Front street, may 10 Salem.

KENDALL'S CHURNS.—A fresh supply of the various sizes, also, the different sizes of the SHAKER CHURNS, for sale at

apr 26 J. & H. HALE'S, 215 Essex st.

Ploughs & Cultivators,

MANUFACTURED BY

RUGGLES, NOURSE & MASON,

And other Agricultural Tools,

FOR SALE BY

DANIEL RICHARDS,

Danvers Plains, March 29, 1845.

Danvers Express and Baggage Waggon

LEAVES Danvers and Boston, daily (Sundays excepted.)

All orders left at McIntire's Hotel, or Poole & Jacobs' store Danvers, No. 14 Blackstone, and No. 1 Fulton streets, Boston, will be promptly attended to.

Goods handled with care.

S. F. TOWN.

April 19, 1845. 1 y

LAMP BLACK.

1000 POUNDS of Lamp Black, warranted a prime article.

3000 Madras Goat Skins, in crust. Goat and Sheep Morocco. Kid, Linings, and Bindings.

For sale by W. & M. BLACK Jr.,

apr 12 New Mills, Danvers.

FOR SALE.

A two story house and lot of land on Holten street. The House is convenient for two families and will be sold at a great bargain. Inquire of

HIRAM GRANT.

Danvers, April 19, 1845,

W. D. JOPLIN,

Draper and Tailor.

NEARLY opposite the Monument, keeps for sale at the lowest prices,

Broadcloths, Cassimeres and Vestings and Trimmings.

Also— A good assortment of READY MADE CLOTHING.

PANTS from 1 to 4 dollars;
VESTS from 75 cents to 2 00.
Green Jackets, Overhauls, Thin Clothing, Hats, Suspenders, &c. may 3

POOLE & JACOBS,

MANUFACTURERS OF

Boot and Shoe Linings, Skivers,

AND BINDINGS,

AND DEALERS IN

WOOD,

MAIN ST., DANVERS, MASS.

Spring Goods.

THE subscribers would inform the ladies of Danvers and vicinity that are now receiving the best assortment of Goods in their line, adapted to the Spring Trade, to which they invite particular attention. We give below a catalogue of Goods which we have recently received.

WHITE GOODS.

Plain Cambric and Cambric Muslins of every quality;
Plaid, striped and fig'd do do do;
Plain, Plaid and Striped Swiss Muslins;
Plain Book, Sacarilla and Tarlatan Muslins;
Muslins for Curtains in stripes and figures;
Bleached Cottons, of the best manufactures.

LINEN GOODS.

Linen Sheetings; Pillow Case Linen; Linen Shirtings; Superfine Linens for Bosoms and Collars; Linen Damask, by the yard; Damask Table Covers, of all qualities, sizes and prices; Damask Napkins; Doylies; Towels; Linen Diaper; Huckaback and Crash.

All Linens sold at this store are guaranteed free from any mixture of Cotton.

LACE GOODS.

Thread Edgings, of every width and price; Lisle, Gimpeur, Meline, Ashburton, Polka, Smyrna and Dentilla Laces, at prices varying from 1 cent to $2 per yd. Plain and Fig'd Blond, Brussels, Bobbinett and Polka Laces, for Caps, Capes, etc.

MILLINERY GOODS.

50 different styles of Bonnet Ribbons, many of which have been purchased at Auction, and can be sold at decided bargains. Straw Bonnets; Flowers; Tabs; Ruches; Bonnet Crowns; Bonnet Wire; Foundation Muslin; Crown Linings; Crapes, etc.

EMBROIDERIES.

New style Emb'd Inside Hdkfs, with and without collars, at prices varying from 58 cents to $5 00. Embroidered Muslin Collars, from 37 1-2c to $2. do Under Sleeves and Cuffs.

HOSIERY AND GLOVES.

Our assortment of Hosiery consists of nearly 300 dozen of every style of Bleached and Brown Cotton Hose; Black and Mode colored Cotton Hose;
English Lisle Thread Hose;
Raw Silk Hose and 1-2 Hose;
Blk and White Spun Silk do;
Misses Hosiery in great variety.

100 dozen Kid Gloves, in White, black, Lavender and Mode colors;
Lisle Thread Gloves for Ladies and Children;
Raw Silk do do do;
White and colored Silk for Gentlemen;
Picnic and Mohair Gloves and Mitts;

THREAD AND FANCY GOODS.

German and Zephy Worsteds; Needles; Pins;
Yarns and Knitting Worsteds; Oiled Silks;
Steel Beads; Purse Ornaments; Purse Twists;
Bag and Mat Cords; Twists; Braids; and a thousand things which we have not room to mention.

☞ The Ladies are invited, when desirous of purchasing or examining any of the above named Goods, to call at

No. 24 Washington Street, Salem, near Railroad Depot.

may 10 KEITH & MASON.

Opening of Spring!

Magnificent, Chaste and Original Designs for Remodeling

"OAK HALL!"

FOR SPRING TRADE!

OPENING OF "OAK HALL" FOR THREE MONTHS!

Advice to Professional Men, Merchants, Clerks with moderate Salaries, Farmers, Mechanics, Seamen, Firemen and others, VISIT OAK HALL!

ARRIVAL OF SPRING GOODS!

To Wholesale Dealers.

THE OPENIG

This Morning, for Three Months!

I would again most respectfully inform the citizens of Boston, and strangers visiting the city, (after a delay of six weeks, during which time I have not been idle,) I have completed my arrangements on the most

MAGNIFICENT SCALE,

greatly surpassing my former arrangements. The Hall is splendidly decorated with almost

MAGIC ELEGANCE!

The architecture being Gothic, has given the artist an opportunity to display his taste to advantage. The paintings which adorn the walls are so perfectly chaste and appropriate, that every one will be fully compensated the trouble of visiting it. The design and effect of the interior, especially when

ILLUMINATED IN THE EVENING,

Is unequalled in any store this side of the Atlantic. Satisfying this Establishment. I flatter myself that the good taste of my fellow citizens and townsmen will fully appreciate all I have done, as my Establishment was the FIRST and ONLY ONE that adopted the

"EXTREME LOW PRICE SYSTEM,"

Before "OAK HALL" was in existence, it was not a very uncommon thing for a gentleman to pay from $45 to $50 for a suit of clothes. For one half of this sum or less, a perfect and entire suit can be obtained at this Establishment, cut and made with that ease and grace, that distinguish my garments from others. From this

EMPORIUM OF FASHION

first originated the Gothic style of architecture in Boston, and Oak Painting, &c. now so much in fashion. To those who have not visited this great

PLACE OF RESORT,

on account of the name of the street, I would most respectfully say, that where my establishment is located was once the Court end of Boston, and at this time is visited and patronized by the most influential and respectable individuals. Man, not unlike the fields, and Trees, once covered with a beautiful suit of Green is now breaking from its Coat of Ice and Snow and, having its Sesty suit of nature soon to be warmed into animation, and renew its beautiful suit of Green, So with Man—wrapped up in his Overcoat, he now on the opening of Spring, finds his under suit rusty and shabby, and is not suitable to wear. The next thing is to find a good place to fit out at a

REASONABLE PRICE,

and to be sure and have a GOOD FITTING SUIT, that will set upon the form with ease, grace and gentility.

FIVE GOOD REASONS

Why you can purchase at OAK HALL less than at any other Establishment in the United States:

FIRST—You do not pay me for YOUR suit, and the INDIVIDUAL'S that did not pay previous to you, as MY business is Cash on delivery.

SECOND—If any Garment made to order is not pleasing in every particular, it is no inconvenience to take it back and make another, as Ready Made Garments are directly in my line.

THIRD—I purchase my Goods in large lots, extremely cheap, and give my customers the benefit, by selling them at the smallest advances,

Fourth—I go by the motto.

LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS

OR AS SOME SAY,

"NO PROFITS AT ALL."

That I'll leave with my customer to decide.

FIFTH—My facilities are such at this time doing a

LARGE BUSINESS,

that I can afford to sell at

VERY LOW PRICES!

BOYS' CLOTHING.

I have lately added to my already extensive manufactory of Boys' Clothing, rooms for the manufacture of Boys' Clothing, and shall keep a large supply of every variety and kind, always on hand.

TO WHOLESALE DEALERS.

You will find the greatest variety of every style of Fresh Manufactured Clothing, adapted for Spring, to your different Trades, and will be sold extremely low in large lots!

AT RETAIL.

One of the largest and, best selected Stock of Fresh Spring Goods ever in "OAK HALL," and will be sold at the following low prices.—

PANTALOONS.

2500 pair of Fancy Spring patterns of Satinet Pants, at	1 75 to 2 50
3000 pair Steel Mixt Pants,	1 62 to 3 00
2200 do Sheeps Grey Pants	1 75 to 3 00
2500 do Canada Grey do,	1 75 to 3 00
3000 do Black Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 50
5000 do Lavender Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 00
2200 do Super black do Pants, with fancy stripe,	4 00 to 5 00
1500 Super blue Broadcloth and Cassimere Pants	3 50 to 4 50

THIN COATS.

3500 Coats and Sacks, American Gingham,	75 to 1 00
5000 Coats and Sacks, Scotch Gingham,	1 25 to 1 75
4800 Coats and Sacks Scotch Gingham, satin figure,	1 50 to 1 75
2700 Coats and Sacks, Webster Check	75 to 1 25
3750 Coats and Sacks, London Plaids,	1 25 to 175
4000 Coats and Sacks, of Linen and other goods,	1 00 to 1 75

THIN PANTS.

8000 pair thin Pants of every quality of Goods at low prices, say from 50 cents to $2 50 per pair.

VESTS.

300 light Vests, a very pretty affair for Spring,	50c to 1 00
4500 Dark Valencia,	75 to 1 50
5500 Fine Valencia, dark and light	1 50 to 2 50
2700 Satin Vests, figured and plain,	2 00 to 3 00

DRESS AND FROCK COATS.

5000 super Dress Coats, all colors, green, blue, black, olive, &c. from $4 to $15.

1750 super Frock Coats, all colors, Mulberry, browns, etc. from $6 to $16.

All the above cut in the latest style, and made up expressly for Spring Trade.

500 Business Coats, at low prices, say from $2 to $5.

2200 Tweed Coats, water proof, from $3,75 to $5.

FURNISHING DEPARTMENT.

Great Display of Furnishing Goods at the following low prices, vis:

150 dozen White Shirts—Linen Bosoms, Collars and R bands.	75c to 1 25 each
100 do White Shirts, plain.	50c to 75c do
150 do Fancy Shirts.	62 1-2 to 87 1-2
25 do Rich Figured Satin Scarfs,	Low prices.
20 do do do do do
50 do do do do do
50 do Spring Pattern Cravats,	12 1-2 to 75c
25 do Rich Fig'd Satin do.	75c to 1 25
50 do Stocks, of every description, such as Satin Bombazine, &c. and made in the latest Spring Style 1845	37 1-2 to 1 50,
10 do Brussells Carpet Bags, and others,	1 00 to 2 75
75 do Smoking Caps,	12 1-2 to 25c
200 do Braces of every description,	12 1-2 to 50c
20 do best Kid Gloves,	50c to 1 00
25 do Thread do	25 to 50c
20 do Silk do	50 to 75c
100 do Linen Bosoms—all kinds,	25 to 75c
300 do do Collars, latest pattern,	10 to 25c
250 do Canes,	17c to 1 00
325 do Umbrellas,	50c to 1 50
50 do Glazed Silk Caps,	1 00 to 1 25
100 do do do	25 to 37c
505 do Silk Pocket Hdkfs	25 to 75c

An endless variety of Fancy Articles, such as Gold and Fancy Studs—Hair Brushes—Clothes do—Pocket Combs—Dressing do—Tooth Brshes—Cologne—Bosom Pins—Fancy Soaps—Silk Purses—Guard Chains—Pant Straps, &c. &c.

A LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO THE TRADE.

My furnishing Goods are purchased from first rate hands, at low prices, and will be sold at small advance to the trade at my

EXTENSIVE LONG ROOMS,

OAK HALL BUILDING,

GEORGE W. SIMMONS,

General Tailor, Draper and Outfitter,

32, 34, 36, and 38 Ann street,

Opposite Merchant's Row—BOSTON.

apr 19 3m

M. TELYEA,

MERCHANT TAILOR,

MAIN STREET,

WOULD respectfully inform his friends and the public generally, that he has just returned from Boston with a select stock of

BROADCLOTHS,

such as German blue-black and English blue-black, brown and olive, and a very nice Tweed for Sack Coats or Pants.

German and English CASSIMERES AND DOESKINS of all kinds for Pants.

VESTINGS,

such as Satin and fine Cassimere, uncut Velvet, and Fancy and many other varieties of vestings.

The above will be sold Cheap for Cash and for Cash only.

M. T. as above, continues to make garments to order at short notice, and warranted as good a fit as can be obtained at any other establishment in Salem or Boston or in any of these diggins any way you can fix it.

Grateful for past favors, a continuance of public patronage is respectfully solicited.

The Spring Fashions just received from New York.

apr 12

NECK STOCKS, SCARFS, CRAVATS, TIES, ITALIAN CRAVATS.

A GOOD assortment of the above, just received EDWARDS'S,

apr 5 14 Front street. Salem

DOESKINS AND CASSIMERES.

A NEW lot Stripes, Plaids and Clouded Doeskins. Black, Blue Black, and Lavender Cassimeres, just received at EDWARDS'S,

may 3 14 Front street

AUCTIONS.

BY DOWLEY & WHALL,

[Store Nos 21 and 22 Pearl street, Boston.]

Sole Leather and Shoe Stock.

On SATURDAY, May 17, at 10 1-2 o'clock, at store,

2000 SIDES of Sole Leather, and a general assortment of Shoe Stock.

N. B. Liberal cash advances made on shoes or shoe stock for any of our monthly sales, or for private sale.

THE

Massachusetts Mechanic Association

HAVING AWARDED TO

GOVE, LOCKE & CO.,

and no one else, a DIPLOMA for specimens of

The Best Ready Made Clothing

Exhibited by them at the Mechanics' Fair in September last, must satisfy the community that the location of an establishment is of but little importance, and that the idea of being confined to a particular section of the city, in order to obtain a

GENTEEL GARMENT,

has been rendered obsolete, by the above named award, as without prejudice the award was made to those who deserved it Being convinced themselves, that their CUSTOM WORK has not been surpassed in any point of view, still they have been obliged to stem the current against the strongest prejudices, and have, by unremitted attention to the tastes and desires of their patrons, to a very considerable extent, overcome them, resulting in a successful trade, and encouraging them to prosecute the NEW ENGLAND BRANCH OF THEIR BUSINESS, with renewed vigor, and to devote a large share of their attention the present season, to the

Highest Grade of Custom Work!

Being now prepared with every facility adapted to the various classes in the community, they can furnish any style of Garment which their notion or fancy may dictate—aiming

In point of Style and Fashion,

to be in advance of any other

CLOTHING ESTABLISHMENT!

and being at all times supplied with materials of every description, they are prepared to turn out at the shortest notice

AS GOOD AND AS GENTEEL A GARMENT,

as can be obtained in the United States, and have entire confidence in making the assertion, having Cutters constantly

ENGAGED ON CUSTOM WORK:

who are inferior to none in this region, enabling them to assure those who have favored them with their patronage, that no pains will be spared to deserve a continuance of their support—and to those who lack confidence in a Clothing Establishment, because it is situated on

COMMERCIAL STREET,

they would say that a specimen of their work can be seen in nearly everysection of the city, particularly on the backs of

THE MOST GENTEEL PEOPLE!

and to them they refer, in relation not only to the treatment which is universally tendered to them by all concerned in the

COMMERCIAL ARCADE!

but more especially in regard to the price as the Proprietors have by experience ascertained that they can furnish a

FIRST RATE GARMENT!

at a medium price, equal in every respect to those Stock of Clothing, adapted to the

SPRING SALES!

is far superior to any previous year, and the patronage of the public is respectfully invited, whether in pursuit of a single garment or otherwise, as their stock embraces every article essential or requisite to the wardrobe of a gentleman, while its magnitude enables them to supply COUNTRY DEALERS in any quantity at the shortest notice, and on the best terms.

WHOLESALE DEALERS!

located any where from Maine to Georgia, or even in Texas, can find at this concern an assortment of Wearing Apparel adapted to their sales, and are invited before concluding their

SPRING PURCHASES!

—TO CALL—

At No. 60 Commercial street,

BOSTON,

Sign of the Monument,—and visit the proprietors of

COMMERCIAL ARCADE,

GOVE, LOCKE & COMPANY.

Boston, March 29, 1845. 3m

Witch Hazle, for Beds.

A FIRST rate article just received and for sale by CARTER & BATCHELDER.

April 19

REMOVAL.

DR. J. A. ROBINSON,

SURGEON DENTIST,

SALEM,

WOULD respectfully give notice that he has removed from his old stand, opposite the City Hall, to No. 20 Washington street, recently occupied by A. E. Phillips, where he is ready to perform all operation, in Dentistry, in a most thorough and workmanlike manner.

His experience and success in inserting whole sets either by atmospheric pressure or springs, enables him to furnish them at rates which cannot fail to suit those in want of an article of superior quality.

His method of inserting Teeth, both singly and on plate, with or without Gums, has been found to be satisfactory and successful as combining beauty of finish and adaptation, with all the requisites of mastication and articulation.

Particular attention paid to filling Teeth so as to render them serviceable for many years, and also to the regulation of Children's Teeth.

N. B. For sale as above, a first rate article of TOOTH POWDER. 6m mch 15

REMOVAL.

SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

Rich Jewelry and Fancy Goods,

HAVE removed to the New Store, No. 291 Essex street, (next above Mechanic Hall) where they will keep constantly for sale Gold Finger Rings, Breast Pins, Bracelets, Lockets, Keys, Gold and Silver Pencil Cases, Silver Thimbles, Silver and Plated Table and Tea Spoons, Butter Knives, Silver Plated and Brittania Ware, Shell, Horn, and Ivory Combs, Pocket Books, Purses, &c., &c.

N. B. All kinds of Jewelry repaired in a superior manner and warranted. Old Gold or Jewelry, made over or exchanged for new.

S. & C. having acquired a thorough knowledge of the business in New York, as well as our success for the past five years in this city, will, we feel assured, enable us to execute with approbation any orders entrusted to our care.

☞ Thankful for past patronage, we solicit a continuance of the same. tf March 15.

STATE LAWS.

AN ACT in addition to the several Acts concerning Husband and Wife.

Be it enacted, &c., as follows :

Sect. 1. At any time before a marriage shall be solemnized, the parties may enter into a contract in writing declaring their consent that, after the marriage shall have been solemnized, the wife shall continue to hold either the whole or any designated part of the real or personal estate, or the right of action, of which she may be seized or possessed, at the time of the marriage, to her sole and separate use, free from the interference and control of her husband.—Such contract may limit to the wife an estate for life in the whole or any part of the property, and designate any other limitations not repugnant to the laws of the Commonwealth; and all such limitations shall take effect, at the time of the marriage, in like manner as if they had been contained in a deed conveying to the wife the property so limited.

Sect. 2. There shall be annexed to such contract a schedule of all the property intended to be affected thereby, which schedule shall contain a description of the property sufficiently clear to enable any creditor of the husband to distinguish it from all other property, and such contract, together with such schedule, shall, either before the marriage, or within ninety days thereafter, be recorded in the registry of deeds for the county in which the husband resides at the time of such record, or, if he be not a resident within this Commonwealth, then in the registry of deeds for the county in which the wife resides at the time of such record, if such record be made before the marriage, or in which she last resided if made after the marriage, and, if not so recorded, said contract shall be void.

Sect. 3. Any person capable in law of making a deed or will, may convey, devise or bequeath to any married woman, any property or estate to be held by her, without the intervention of a trustee, to her sole and separate use, free from the interference or control of her husband. Such conveyance, devise or bequest may be of an absolute estate, of an estate for life, or for a less estate, with any lawful limitations after the termination of the estate so vested in such woman.

Sect. 4. Whenever any grant or conveyance shall be made, pursuant to the provisions of the foregoing section, the instrument whereby it is made, shall, within ninety days from the delivery thereof, be recorded in the registry of deeds for the county in which the husband shall reside at the time of such delivery, or, if he be not a resident of this Commonwealth, for the county in which the grantor shall then reside; and if such record be not made, any creditor of the husband may attach or seize on execution any of the property so conveyed, in like manner and with the same effect as if this had not been passed.

Sect. 5. Whenever any property shall be secured to the sole and separate use of a married woman, or conveyed, devised or bequeathed to her pursuant to any of the provisions herein before contained, such woman shall, in respect to all such property, have the same rights and powers, and be entitled to the same remedies, in her own name, at law and in equity, and be liable to be sued at law and in equity upon any contracts by her made or any wrong by her done before her marriage, in the same manner and with the same effect as if she were unmarried; and all such property may be attached in any such suit, and may be taken on execution, as if she had the same been unmarried. And the original writ by which any such action at law shall be commenced, shall contain the proper averments to shew that such action is brought upon some contract made, or wrong done in respect to property, held by such married woman to her separate use, or is brought upon some contract by her made or wrong by her done before her marriage; and such averments shall be traversable.

Sect. 6. Nothing contained in this act shall be construed to empower any husband to convey any of his property to his wife in any other manner or with any other effect, than if the same had not been passed.

Sect. 7. If any married woman, holding property to her separate use by virtue of this act, shall die intestate, all her right and interest in any personal property thus held shall vest in her husband, unless other provisin is made in relation therein by the terms of the contracts or conveyances herein before mentioned; and he shall be entitled to her estate by the courtesy in all lands and tenements held by his wife, as if this act had not been passed. Provided however, that in every such case it shall be necessary for the husband to take administration on the estate of the deceased wife, and he shall hold such personal property and all the interest of the wife in any real estate, saving his estate by the courtesy, subject to the payment of all debts incurred by her, either before or after the marriage.

Sect. 8. Upon the petition of any married woman holding property to her sole use, the Supreme Judicial Court may appoint a trustee or trustees, to hold the same in trust for her; and such petitioner may thereupon convey to such trustees, all property so held by her upon such trusts and to such uses as she may declare; and there afterwards such trustees or trustees may, in his or their own name or names, prosecute all actions commenced in relation to such property, and defend all actions brought against such woman, founded on any cause of action accruing before such conveyance. And all such property, so assigned, shall be liable in the hand of such trustee, or trustees, to be attached or taken on execution in any such action. And after such assignment to trustee or trustees, the rights and powers conferred upon such married woman, by the fifth section of this act, shall cease, and her rights, interests and powers shall depend on the trusts and uses declared in the instrument of conveyance to the trustee or trustees, or in other lawful declaration of trust.

Sec. 9. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to repeal any existing provisions of law respecting the recording of any deed of land in the county where such land lies.

Sec. 10. None of the property to be holden by any married woman, by virtue of the provisions of this act, shall be used or employed for the purposes of trade or commerce; but the same shall be invested in real estate in stocks of the United States, in State stocks, in coporation stocks, in personal securities, or in furniture in the actual use and occupation of said woman.

Approved by the Governor, March 25, 1845.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

SECRETARY'S OFFICE, Boston, April 12, 1845. By a Resolve of the General Court, at its recent session, the Secratary was "authorized and directed to receive such Muster Rolls, and other evidences of service in the war of the Revolution, as it may be in his power to obtain by gift or loan from the present possessors."

Numerous Muster Rolls, and other papers furnishing evidence of revolutionary service, have been collected in the Secratary's office, where they are bound and indexed, and are constantly under examination for the purpose of establishing claims under the Pension Laws of the United States. They are also valuable historical documents, and, in the custody of this office, will be kept securely, and, by means of the full indexes here prepared, may be conveniently consulted.

The collection in the public archives, is however, incomplete. It is believed that that there are, in different parts of the Commonwealth, many Muster Rolls, and other like papers, in the possession of the families of deceased officers, and in other private hands. In this situation they are of little utility, besides being liable to be lost, while frequently, by their means, if placed in this office, old soldiers and their families, now suffering in age and poverty, would be able to establish claims to valuable pensions.

Persons having such documents in their possession, and willing to give or loan them to the Commonwealth, are respectfully requested to forward a brief description of them to the subscriber, who will send for them, unless they prove to be duplicates of rolls already here.

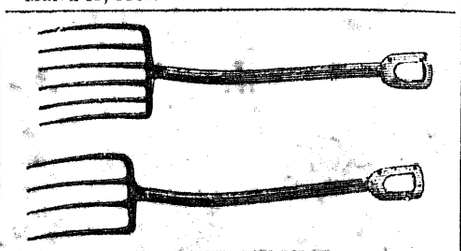
apr 26 JOHN G. PALFREY.

EDWARDS' LINIMENT.

For Sprains, Cuts, Bruises, Stiffened or Swelled Joints, Chilblains, Chapped Hands, Numbness and Rheumatism.

THIS invaluable artidle is now for the first time offered to the public, after having been in use for twenty years, with unusual and astonishing success within the circle of the proprietor's immediate influence. It has received the unqualified approbation of some eminent Physicians, and also Mariners and Mechanics.

It is also recommended, and more than a thousand cases might be cited, when it has been used for Horses in cases of lameness or when galled, &c. &c.



The public are assured that in offering the above we do recommend that which has not the least semblance of QUACKERY, but on the contrary it has done great and lasting good in its efficacious power and healing qualities.

As this medicine has been so long known in Salem and its vicinity, and as there are many that would avail themselves of it if they knew where it could be obtained, therefore the subscriber would now offer it to the public. It will be found always on hand and prepared by the subscriber.

BENJ. EDWARDS,
No. 14 Front street, Salem, Mass.

Wanted—trusty and worthy AGENTS in the neighboring towns and vicinity.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENTS.
DANIELS, POOR & CO., Danvers, Mass.
Benjamin F. Browne, Salem Mass.
Smith & Fowle, Boston, "
Charles Whipple, Bookseller, Newburyport.
Wm. R. Preston, Portsmouth, N. H.
John S. Caldwell, Belfast. Me.
Wm. H. Palmer, Lynnfield.
Joseph Edwards, jr., Lynn.
Charles Edwards, Marblehead.
Wm. Edwards, Beverly.
March 15, 1845. tf

J. & H. HALE,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

HARD WARE GOODS AND CUTLERY,

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC

HOUSE KEEPING ARTICLES AND FANCY GOODS,

Agricultural Tools and Ploughs

PLOUGH CASTINGS, FRICTION ROLLERS AND CRANKS,
Iron and Copper Pumps and Lead Pipe,
WINDOW GLASS,
CAMPHENE,
CAMPHENE LAMPS, HANGING, SIDE AND ASTRAL—A GREAT VARIETY OF STYLES,
Cut Glass, Britannia, Brass, Bronze and Mantle Lamps,
CARPENTER'S TOOLS,
HOUSE TRIMMINGS,
Shoe Makers' Tools, Nails, Thread and Pegs.
BOILER DOORS AND OVEN MOUTHS,
Furnaces, Cast Iron Hollow Ware, Tubs, Pails, Mats, Cut Nails, Emery, Zinc, Lead, &c.
No. 215 Essex Street, SALEM, Mass.
march 15 tf

ADAMS & RICHARDSON,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
H-A-R-D-W-A-R-E.
MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS FOR THE SALE OF
Cut Nails, White Lead, Sheet Lead and Lead Pipe,
NO. 207 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
Joseph Adams,
C. M. Richardson,
march 15 tf

New Furniture Store.

SALEM FURNITURE & FEATHER WARE-HOUSE.

205 1-2 ESSEX STREET. 205 1-2

(Two Doors East from the Market,.)

JOSEPH WALLIS would respectfully inform his friends and the public that he has taken the rooms recently occupied by T. Needham, Esq., where he will keep constantly on hand and for sale an extensive and well selected assortment of which he will sell at the lowest cash prices, among which may be found,

CABINET FURNITURE,

Sofas, Sofa Beds; Windlass, Cot Trundle and common Bedsteads; Secretaries; Bureaus; Mahogany, Card, Work, Centre and Dining Tables;—Mahogany, Cane-seat and common Chairs; Mahogany, Cane-back and common Rocking Chairs;—Children's Toy, Rocking and Dining Chairs; Settees and Settee Cradles; Cribs; Grecian and common Wash Stands; Portable Sinks; Portable and Gentleman's Writing Desks, Toilet, Dining and common Pine Tables; Looking Glasses; Swing and Toilet Glasses. Fancy Boxes, a great variety;—Mattresses; and every article usually found in his line of business.

CLOCKS.

J. W. intends keeping on hand a large and well selected assortmeni of Wood and Brass Clocks from the best of manufacturers—all of which we can feel confident in warranting. Those about purchasing this article will do well to call.

FEATHERS.

Live Geese and common Feathers; a great variety.

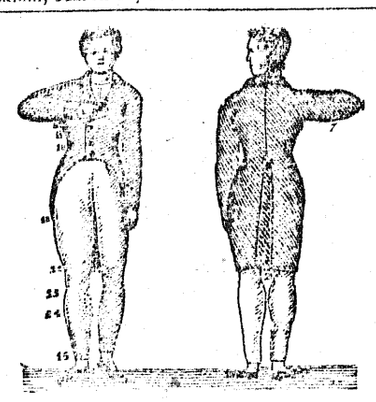
N B. J. W. will still continue to Manufacture FURNITURE at the Old Stand, No 29 Lafayette, corner of Ward street, where he will keep on hand a good assortment of

Cabinet Furniture, Feathers, Looking Glasses and Clocks.

Salem, April 12, 1845.

S. R. BOTT,

DRAPER & TAILOR,



No. 148 Essex Street, Salem,

TAKES this method of informing the public of Danvers and vicinity that he has for sale one of the richest and BEST selected assortments of Broadcloths, Cassimeres & Vestings ever before offered in Salem. The Stock is of the latest Spring and Summer styles, and cannot be surpassed by any establishment in the city, which will be sold by the yard, or made into Garments, in a style that CANNOT be surpassed in this or any other city.

☞ Strangers from the country would do well to call at this establishment, as they select their Goods with the most perfect confidence, that each article is as good in quality, and as low in price as can be obtained at any other store.

N. B. The report of Fashions received every month.

Salem, March 15, 1845.

BENJAMIN EDWARDS,

DRAPER & TAILOR,

No. 14 FRONT STREET, SALEM.

GARMENTS Cut and Made to order, and Fashionably, and warranted to give entire satisfaction

Constantly on hand, a good assortment of

BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES, AND VESTINGS.

Also—Neck Stocks, Italian Cravats, Scarfs, Shirt Bosoms, Collars, Feetings, Braces, Umbrellas, Hair and Clothes Brushes, Cologne Water, Wallets,

and other articles necessary for Gentlemen's use.

Grateful for the very liberal patronage which has heretofore been bestowed upon the establisment, he hopes by care and attention to business to merit a continuance.

Any order for Goods in the TAILORING LINE, attended to with fidelity and despatch.

All Garments Repaired and Cleansed CHEAP.

Any of the above articles if not on hand when called for will be procured at short notice.

mch 15 tf

G. W & E. CRAFTS,

BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURERS AND STATIONERS,

174 ESSEX STREET, SALEM,

HAVE constantly on hand, and will manufacture to order, all kinds of Blank Books, from the best paper, ruled to any pattern, and bound in a neat and substantial manner.

FINE STATIONERY,

of almost ever description, adapted for counting rooms and schools, comprising in part, Letter and Writing Papers, ruled and plain; Drawing Papers; Note, Tissue and Wrapping Papers; Wafers; Sealing Wax; Seals and Steel Pens of every variety; Quills of every description; wafer Cups; sand boxes; writing fluids and inks; penknives; razors, &c.

PRINTING, RULING AND BINDING.

Printing of shop bills, cards, bill heads, catalogues, &c. executed in the neatest manner and on the best terms. Ruling, to any pattern desired, at short notice. Binding, of every description, executed with despatch.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

A constant supply of school books, of the best editions, together with every kind of School Stationery. Also, all kinds of miscellaneous books furnished at the lowest rates. mch 15

EASY SHAVING AND HAIR CUTTING.

B. B. WILLIAMS respectfully informs hi friends and the public, that he has removed to the store formerly occupied by Lambert & Merrill, (under the Courier Office,) which he has fitted up in a neat manner, and is now prepared to wait upon those who believe that

"Man wants but little beard below,
Nor wants that little long."

Champooing, Hair Cutting and Shaving is performed to the satisfaction of all who may favor him with their patronage.

Danvers, March 15, 1845. tf

Cheap Fire-Board Patterns.

A BEATIFUL selection, consisting of Lithographs, with views of the Swiss Tower, Underwalden, Horse Drinking, Washington, H. Clay's birthplace, &c.

SPLENDID column paper, for Halls, Entries, &c., Philadelphia manufacture—the most beautiful article for this purpose in the market.

Those in want of such Papers, and who wish to see the style, would do well to take a look at Mr Russel's new house in Brown street.

For sale by W. & S. B. Ives,
apr 26 Stearns Building, Salem.

Overhauls.

A GOOD assortment will be constantly kept on hand, at EDWARDS',
apr 26 14 Front street, Salem.

POOLE & STEDMAN,

MAKERS OF

CARRIAGES, HARNESSES, TRUNKS, &c.

THE subscribers having formed a Co-partnership under the above firm, are ready to attend to any orders in their line.

Particular attention paid to repairing.

S. A. POOLE,
G. B. STEDMAN.

N. B. Valises, Ladies' Satchels, Carpet Bags, &c. constantly on hand and for sale cheap.

Corner of Grove and Main Streets.

Danvers, March 15.

PERIODICALS, PAPERS, &c.

LUTHER CHANDLER, GENERAL AGENT for the sale of all the principal Periodicals, Newspapers, &c., and will furnish them to all persons who may wish to subscribe; among which are

Graham's Magazine,	Harper's Pictorial Bible,
Ladies' National do,	Verplanck's Shakspeare,
Arthur's Lady's do,	Phil Saturday Courier,
Christian Family Mag.,	Neal's Gazette,
Gentlemen's Magazine,	New York Mirror,
Godey's Lady's Book,	Frost's Pictorial World,

The above and all the principal periodicals and papers will be furnished promptly.

☞ BOOKS BOUND at the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

Orders may be left at J. SHED'S, opposite the Monument, South Danvers. 1y mch 29

CHARLES H. MANNING,

CABINET MAKER,

Near the Sign of the Lamb, Main Street,

DANVERS, MASS.

FURNITURE manufactured on the most reasonable terms. Also—CURRIER'S TABLES made and repaired cheap.

SHOE-MAKERS' PEGGING BENCHES made as above. oct 15

Fales' Cathartic, or Vegetable PURGATIVE LOZENGES.

ARE the best and most popular medicines for peo pleo f all ages, country, and climates, and in every condition of life. They are compounded of the essences of vegetables from many nations. Their taste is inexpressibly delightful. They cause no pain in their operations, but the first change of feeling after taking them is, that of pleasure, and they cleanse the stomach and bowels more perfectly than any other purgative medicines.

The most wonderful and surprising cures have been effected by them in different parts of the earth. How these purgative lozenges do speedily purify the blood, and substitute health for sickness, is a mystery to the most eminent members of the healing art. Such purgative medicines must become universal, and supersede the use of all other purgative compounds; and as long as disease continues to afflict people, so long will these Lozenges remain unrivalled in all coming time throughout the world. Every person who travels should carry them—every family should keep them—and every sick man, woman, or child should take them.

FALES' WORM LOZENGES

Are a safe and sure remedy for worms. Children love them. They act like a charm in removing the symptoms such as starting in sleep, grating the teeth paleness about the mouth and nose, occasional sickness at stomach, precarious appetite, swelled bowels, and general feverish habit, The child falls into a quiet sleep, and the worms are stupified and expelled, and the child, as far as heard from, in every instance has been cured. Price, 25 cents per box, with full directions; sold at Commercial street, Boston,

FALES' COUGH LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common Colds and Coughs, Whooping Cough, Inflamatiou of the Throat and Lungs, in the Croup or Hives, and more certain to act sanisfactory than the celebrated Hive Syrup. The most happy effect is obtained in a few moments, the symptoms disappear and the disease is broken up by the magical effect of these Lozenges. Full directions accompany each box, are found at the Depositopy, 96 Commercial staeet, Boston.

FALES' DYSENTERY LOZENGES,

Are a safe and agreeable temedy for Dysentery, Diarhœa and Bowel Complaints of children. Particular attention must be paid to the directions which are on each box.

FALES' CAMPHOR LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common and sick head ache, and where there is a sense of tightness or weight over the eyes, in erruptive diseases, such as Measles and Small Pox. Also in Mania, Epilepsy, Melancholy, Hysteria, in St. Vitus Dance, and in all eases of languor and oppession of the Vital powers, may be taken with safety by women and children in all conditions. Full directions accompany each box.

FALES' CYPRIAN HAIR TONIC,

Is now so extsnsively known and justly celebrated that further comment upon it will be useless, we can say, however, that among the many thousands who have purchassed the Tonic, in this and other countries, none have returned with complaints, while thousands have expressed not only their approbation, but their wonder and admiration on beholding its effects. A few bottles only can be had at 96 Commercial street, Boston.

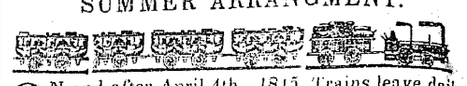
CLEAR OUT YOUR RATS.

The gnawing and antics of these destructive creatures can be hushed forever in your house and store, if you will procure a box of the genuine.

MADAGASCAR RAT EXTERMINATOR,

and use it according to directionf. You cannot depend upon it unless obtained at J. J. FALES' No. 96 Commercial street Boston.

—AGENTS—



Salem, J. S. HARRISON, J. Stone, jr., H. Whipple, S Badger, jr; Lynn, J. Moulton jr., Geo. Lummus, Wm. Cogswell, Wm. L Ladd; Swampscot, W. Thompson; Marblehead, E. Arnold Wm. Stacey; Danvers, S. Proctor, Jos Shed, New Mills, H. S Pope, A. P Perley & Co, C. Simonds, Calder & Foster; Topsfield, B. P. Adams; Beverly, A N Clark. ep6m mch 29

GENTLEMEN'S SHIRTS, BOSOMS & DICKEYS.

A GOOD variety now opening at EDWARDS'S,
apr 6 14 Front street, Salem.

EASTERN RAILRAOD.

SUMMER ARRANGMENT.

ON and after April 4th, 1845, Trains leave daily (Sundays excepted,)

Boston for Portland, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P. M.
" Portsmouth, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 5 1 2 P.M.
" Somersworth, Great Falls, 7 1-4 A.M. 2 1-2 P.M.
" for Newburyport, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 and 5 1-2 P.M.
" for Salem, 7 1-4, 9, A.M., 12 1-4 2 1-2 3 1-2, 5 1-2, 7 1-2 P.M.

Salem for Portland, 8 A.M., 3 1-4 P.M.
Salem for Portsmouth and Newburyport, 8 A.M., 3 1-4, 6 1-4 P.M.
Portland for Boston, 7 1-2 A.M., 3 P.M.
Saco for Boston, 8 A.M., 3 1-2 P.M.
Somersworth, Great Falls for Boston, 8 3-4 A.M.; 4 1-4 P.M.
South Berwick lot Boston, 9 1-4 A M, 4 3-4 P.M.
Portsmouth for Boston, 6 1-2, 10,* A.M., 5 1-2* P.M.
Newburyp't for Boston, 7 1-4, 10 3-4* AM. 6 1-4 PM.
Salem for Boston, 7 1-2, 8 1-2, 10 1-4 11 3-4,* A.M. 2 1-4, 5, 7,* P.M.

*Or on their arrival from the East.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Trains leave Marblehead for Salem, at 7 1-4, 8 1-4, 10, A.M.; 2, 4, 4 3-4, 7, P M.

Leave Salem for Marblehead, at 8, 9 3-4 A.M., 1, 3 1-4, 4 1-4, 61-4, 8 1-4 P.M.

A Merchandize Train will leave Boston, Portland and all intermediate places every day.

Freight Office in Boston, No. 17 Merchants Row, and on the line of the road at the several Depots.

JOHN KINSMAN,
apr 12 Master of Transportation.

Summer Arrangement of the

DANVERS AND SALEM

HOURLY COACHES

THE Danvers and Salem Hourly Coaches will in connection with the Eastern Railroad, leave Danvers and Salem at the following hours, viz:

Leave Danvers at	7	A.M.	Leave Salem at	8	A.M.
" "	8		" "	9	1-2
" "	9	3-4	" "	11	1-2
" "	11	1-4	" "	12	3-4
" "	1	3-4 P.M.	" "	3	P.M.
" "	2	3-4	" "	4
" "	4	1-2	" "	6
" "	6	1-2	" "	8

For seats apply at Macintire's Hotel, or at Joseph G Shed's store in Danvers, and at the Essex House and Salem Hotel in Salem.

Railroad passengers taken at the depot on the arrival of the cars from Boston and the East.

☞ Extra Coaches furnished at any hour on reasonable terms.

SYMONDS & TEEL.
apr 19 tf

REMOVAL.

BOWDOIN'S DAGUERROTYPE ROOMS removed from Mechanic Hall, to the adjoining building above, 298 Essex street, where he has rooms built expressly for the purpose of taking Miniatures in any weather.

Mr. B. tenders his sincere thanks to his friends and the public, for their liberal patronage the past year, and respectfully solicits the continuance of public favor. He has recently purchased a large Achromatic instrument for the purpose of taking GROUPS and LARGE PICTURES, which enable him to give pictures of all sizes, equal to those taken in New York or Boston He has formed a connexion with an establishment in New York, from whence he receives all the new improvements, and materials connected with the Art, which will enable him to give better pictures for less prices than can be obtained in Boston.

Miniatures set in every variety of Lockets, Frames, Cases, &c.

☞ Persons visiting Salem, and those about going to sea, can have a perfect likeness completed in a few minutes' time.

 Miniatures set in a neat Morocco Case for $1 50. Exhibition rooms open to visiters through the day.

Salem, March 15. tf

Great Bargains

ARE NOW BEING HAD AT THE

Washington Street Clothing Store, Salem.

GARMENTS of all description may be obtained at prices which cannot fail to give entire satisfaction.

Great care has been taken in the getting up of every garment, all of which is warranted equal, if not superior to any Clothing in the city.

The subscriber continues to take measures as formerly, and all Garments bespoken, will be made according to the wishes of the customer, and will guarantee both the style and fit.

☞ BOY WANTED, as an Apprentice.

S. CHAMBERLAIN, JR.
Salem, March, 15. tf

LYNDE PLACE.

THE subscribers would respectfully inform the citizens of Danvers and vicinity, that they have just received and are now opening a full and complete assortment of

DRY GOODS,

adapted to the present season, comprising a splendid assortment of SHAWLS, embracing every quality and price.

DRESS GOODS,

in great variety, consisting of Corded Cashmeres; Mousseline de Laines; Crape do do; Cashmere do; CALICOES of every description.

WHITE GOODS, LINENS, DOMESTIC WOOLEN GOODS, etc. etc.

J. A. FARNSWORTH & CO.,
apr 5 1m 147 Essex street, Salem.

ROOM PAPERS.

☞ 2000 ROLLS.

OF the newest and most desirable patterns Philanelphia and New York Room PAPER selected with great care from the different manufacturers in Philadelphia and New York.

Also 8000 rolls of almost every variety of patterns of FRENCH and AMERICAN manufacture the best and cheapest patterns.

The above having been bought for cash will be sold at a small advance on the cost,—as cheap or cheaper than can be bought in Boston or elsewhere.

☞ Please call and examine at the Bookstore of W. & S. B. IVES Stearns' Building.
Salem April 18, 1845. 2m.

SCHOOL PEN. A fresh lot of the celebrated School Pen, decidedly the best pen used for common purposes. The pattern was furnished by one of the first writing masters in the United States, and manufactured by Gillott. Received and for sale wholesale and retail by W. S. CLEVELAND & Co.
193 Essex street, Salem. m

GERMAN CLOTHS.—A lot of Superb German Twilled Blue Black Broadcloths for Dress Coats, just receive and selling cheap at
May 3 EDWARDS', 14 Front st.

DANVERS COURIER.

VOL. 1. DANVERS, (Mass.) SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 17, 1845. NUMBER 9.

THE DANVERS COURIER

IS PUBLISHED BY

GEORGE R. CARLTON,

EVERY SATURDAY MORNING,

A few doors North of Mackintire's Hotel,

CENTRAL ST.—SOUTH DANVERS.

Terms—$1 50 if paid in advance, or $2 00, if not paid within one month of the time of subscribing.

The carriers are not allowed to sell any copies of the Courier. Single copies may be obtained at the office, at 5 cents each.

Advertisements will be inserted on favorable terms.

CALENDAR OF COURTS

TO BE HELD IN THE COUNTY OF ESSEX IN THE YEAR 1845.

"	13	Probate, Gloucester.
"	20	" Salem.
June	3	" Ipswich.
"	10	" Newburyport.
"	16	—Common Pleas,—Ipswich.
July	1	—Probate,—Salem.
"	2	" Lynn.
"	8	—County Commissioners,—Salem.
"	15	—Probate,—Andover, S. P.
August	5	" Ipswich.
"	19	" Salem.
Sept.	2	" Ipswich.
"	9	" Newburyport.
"	15	—Common Pleas,—Newburyport.
Oct.	7	—Probate,—Salem.
"	8	" Marblehead.
"	14	—County Commissioners.—Newburyp't.
"	21	—Probate,—Haverhill.
Nov.	4	—Supreme Judicial,—Salem.
"	4	—Probate,—Ipswich.
"	11	" Gloucester.
"	18	" Salem.
Dec.	2	" Ipswich.
"	9	" Newburyport.
"	15	—Common Pleas, Ipswich.
"	23	—County Commissioners,—at such place as ordered at the preceding term.

POETRY.

TIME'S CHANGES.

I saw her once so freshly fair
That, like a blossom just unfolding,
She open'd to Life's cloudless air,
And Nature joyed to view its moulding:
Her smile it haunts my memory yet—
Her cheek's fine hue divinely glowing—
Her rosebud mouth—her eyes of jet—
Around on all their light bestowing:
Oh! who could look on such a form,
So nobly free, so softly tender,
And darkly dream that earthly storm
Should dim such sweet, delicious splendour!
For in her mien, and in her face,
And in her young step's fairy lightness,
But Beauty's glow, and Pleasure's brightness.

I saw her twice—an alter'd charm—
But still of magic richest, rarest,
Than girlhood's talisman less warm,
Though yet of earthly sights the fairest:
Upon her breast she held a child,
The very image of its mother;
Which ever to her smiling smiled,
They seem'd to live but in each other:—
But matron cares, or lurking woe,
Her thoughtless, sinless look had banish'd,
And from her cheek the roseate glow
Of girlhood's balmy morn had vanish'd;
Within her eyes, upon her brow,
Lay something softer, fonder, deeper,
As if in dreams some vision'd woe
Had broke the Elysium of the sleeper.

I saw her thrice—Fate's dark decree
In widow's garments had array'd her
Yet beautiful she seem'd to be,
As even my reveries portray'd her;
The glow, the glance had pass'd away,
The sunshine and the sparkling glitter;
Still, though I noted pale decay,
The retrospect was scarcely bitter;
For, in their place a calmness dwelt,
Serene, subduing, soothing, holy;
In feeling which, the bosom felt
That every louder mirth is folly—
A pensiveness—which is not grief,
A stillness—as of sunset streaming—
A fairy glow on flower and leaf,
Till earth looks like a landscape dreaming.

A last time—and unmoved she lay,
Beyond Life's dim, uncertain river,
A glorious mould of fading clay,
From whence the spark had fled forever!
I gazed—my breast was like to burst—
And as I thought of years departed,
The years wherein I saw her first,
When she a girl was lightsome hearted,—
And when I mused on later days,
As moved she in her matron duty,
A happy mother, in the blaze,
Of ripen'd hope and sunny beauty,—
I felt the chill—I turned aside—
Bleak desolation's cloud came o'er me,
And Being seem'd a troubled tide,
Whose wrecks in darkness swam before me!

STATE LAWS.

AN ACT in addition to the several Acts concerning the Militia.

Be it enacted, &c., as follows:

Section 1. The commanding officer of every company raised at large, in addition to the returns now required to be made to the commanding officers of regiments and battalions, shall, within twenty days after each of the days of inspection, trainings and review, required by law, make to the Adjutant General a return of the number of men belonging to his company, that appeared, armed, uniformed and equipped, and performed duty on any such day, together with the number of men belonging to his company that were absent—it being provided that not more than sixty-four in number shall be so returned as having done such duty.

Sect. 2. The Adjutant General shall, within ten days after the receipt of the last return provided for in the first section, make to the mayor and aldermen of any city, and the selectmen of any town, in which the company, armory, or place of assembling the company is situated, a return of the number of men, that, by the returns made to him under the first section of this Act, are entitled to the pay provided for in the first section of the Act concerning the Militia, passed in the year one thousand eight hnndred and forty-four, specifying the number of men returned under each parade, and the amounts respectively due therefor.

Sect. 3. The commanding officer of every company raised at large, shall, after each of the days of inspection, training and review required by law, make out an alphabetical roll of the persons, not exceeding sixty-four in number who shall have appeared, armed, uniformed, and equipped, and performed duty in his company, on each of said days, and within twenty days, annually, after the last parade, shall deliver the same, certified under his oath to be correct and true, to the mayor and aldermen of any city, or the selectmen of any town, in which the company, is situated; provided, however, that such roll shall contain the names of those persons only, who have performed the duty required by law,

Sect. 4. Each member of a Brigade Band shall be entitled to receive the sum of three dollars for each full day's service, and one half that sum for each half day's service, rendered in obedience to an order from the commanding officer of the brigade to which such band may belong, it being provided that such commanding officer shall not order out said band in full or in sections thereof, more than three times, taking the parades of both, in any one year.

Sect. 5. The master of every Brigade Band shall, within ten days after the parade thereof, or of any section thereof, made under order of the commanding officer of the brigade to which such band may belong, make, to the Adjutant General, an alphabetical return of the names of the men who appeared in uniform and performed duty in such band on any such day, the last return to be made on or before the tenth day of November, annullay; and the said return shall contain a certificate signed by the commanding officer, to whom said band, or any section thereof, was ordered to report itself for duty, setting forth that the duty was well and faithfully performed, in default of which the members of such band, or of any section thereof, shall forfeit the pay provided for in the fourth section.

Sect. 6. The master of such Brigade Band shall further make, after each day of the parade thereof, or of any section thereof, an alphabetical roll of the names of such members of the band as appeared in uniform and performed duty as set forth in the fourth section, and, within twenty days after the last parade, shall deliver the same, certified under his oath to be correct, to the mayor and aldermen of any city, or the selectmen of any town, within which aldermen of such city, and the selectmen of such town, shall proceed to provide for the pay of such members, and for the reimbursement thereof on the part of the Commonwealth, in the same manner as is provided for in the case of members of the volunteer companies of the militia: provided, that the Adjutant General shall have first certified to such mayor and aldermen, or such selectmen, that, from returns made to him, it appears that the members aforesaid have, well and faithfully performed the duties required of them.

Sect. 7. The commanding officer of each regiment and battalion, of the militia of the Commonwealth, shall, annually, within ten days after the autumnal inspection and review, make to the commanding officer of the brigade to which such regiment or battalion belongs, a certified roll of the names of the field and staff officers belonging to such regiment or battalion specifying the rank of each, who appeared, armed, uniformed and equipped, and performed duty on said day. And the commanding officer of each brigade shall, on or before the tenth day of November annually, make to the commanding officer of the division to which such brigade belongs, a certified roll of the names of all such field and staff officers within his brigade, specifying the rank of each, as have appeared armed, uniformed, and equipped and performed duty at the brigade, regimental, or battalion inspection and review.—And the commanding officer of each division shall, on or before the first day of December, annually, make to the Adjutant General a certified roll of all the field and staff officers within his division, specifying the rank of each, who have appeared, armed, uniformed, and equipped, and performed duty on the day of such autumnal inspection and review. And each and every officer who shall be so returned to the Adjutant General, shall be entitled to receive the sum of six dollars.

Sect. 8. The Adjutant General shall, on or before the twenty-fifth day of January, annually, make out a certified roll of the names of all the field and staff officers that appear, by returns thus made to him, to be entitled to the pay provided for in the seventh section, and submit the same to the Governor of the Commonwealth, who is authorized hereby to draw his warrant on the treasury of the Commonwealth for the payment thereof. And no officer, non-commissioned officer, musician or private, shall receive a greater sum than six dollars annually, this provision not being intended to apply to the allowance specially provided by law for the payment of division and brigade inspectors, and adjutants of regiments and battalions, members of brigade bands or for service on courts martial.

Sect. 9. If it shall be made to appear to the commander-in chief, on representation of the commanding officer of any division or brigade, that any company of cavalry, artillery, grenadiers, light infantry, or riflemen, within such division or brigade has failed to comply with the requisitions of the law in matters of uniform, equipment and discipline, so that it is incapacitated to discharge the duties required of it as a portion of the volunteer militia, such company may be disbanded by the commander in chief.

Sect. 10. Any city or town that shall neglect to make return to the Adjutant General, as is directed in the fifth section of the act concerning the militia, passed on the fourteenth day of March, in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty-four, shall forfeit it its right to be reimbursed by the State; and any commanding officer who shall neglect to make the returns required by this act, shall, for each offence, be liable to a penalty of thirty dollars, to be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction, for the use of the Commonwealth.

And any commanding officer of a company, who shall make to the Adjutant General a false return of the number of men belonging to his company, and their performance of duty, as required by the first section of this act: or who shall make and certify falsely an alphabetical roll of the names of the persons who shall have appeared, armed, uniformed and equipped, and performed duty in his company, in manner prescribed in the third section of this act: or shall include in such roll the name of any person who has not personally appeared, armed, uniformed and equipped, and performed duty as aforesaid, or the name of any person who has been excused for absence, or non-performance of such duty, shall be deemed to have been guilty of a misdemeanor, and may be prosecuted therefor by indictment in the Municipal Court of the city of Boston, if living in the County of Suffo'k, or in the Court of Common Pleas holden in either of the other counties of the Commonwealth, in which the officer so offending shall live, and upon conviction thereof, shall forfeit and pay, to the use of the Commonwealth, for each offence, a sum not less than fifty dollars, nor more than one hundred dollars, in the discretion of the Court before which suchconviction shall be.

Sect. 11. The Adjutant General shall cause a copy of this act to be sent to all the commissioned officers of the volunteer militia, and shall provide forms of the returns to be made to him by the cities and towns, and by the company commanding officers.

Sect. 12. The third, fourth and sixth sections of the act concerning the militia, passed on the fourteenth day of March, one thousand eight hundred and forty-four, and all acts, or parts of acts, to which this is an addition, inconsistent with the provisions of this act, are hereby repealed.

Approved by the Governor, March 26, 1845.

RESOLVE relative to the transmission of Military Documents.

Resolved, That the commanding officers of the several divisions, brigades, regiments and bat-and they are hereby authorised, to present whatever claims may accrue against the State, for money expended in the transmission of military documents, to and from the department of the Adjutant General, in the manner provided for in the one hundred and twenty-eighth section of the twelfth chapter of the Revised Statutes, to be by that officer examined certified and presented for allowance, to the Committee of the Legislature on Accounts, as is directed in said section.

Approved by the Governor, March 26, 1845.

SELECTED TALE.

THE REFEREE CASE.

AN OLD GENTLEMAN'S STORY.

The outlines of the following sketch were related to me, by an aged and honored member of a large family connection; a man who possesses an almost inexhaustible fund of legendary lore, and whose most interesting anecdotes and most comic tales are but recollections of past scenes, of which he can say, in the language of Æneas, "quorum magna pars fui."

"Many years ago," said Mr. E.——, "I happened to be one of the referees in a case which excited unusual interest in our courts, from the singular nature of the claim, and the strange story which it disclosed. The plaintiff, who was captain of a merchant ship which traded principally with England and the West Indies, had married quite early in life with every prospect of happiness. His wife was said to have been extremely beautiful, and no less lovely in character. After living with her in the most uninterrupted harmony for five years, during which time two daughters were added to his family, he suddenly resolved to resume his occupation, which he had relinquished on his marriage, and when his youngest child was but three weeks old, sailed once more for the West Indies. His wife, who was devotedly attached to him, sorrowed deeply at his absence, and found her only comfort in the society of her children and the hope of his return. But month after month passed away and he came not, nor did any letters, those insufficient but welcome substitutes, arrive to cheer her solitude. Months lengthened into years, yet no tidings were received of the absent husband; and, after long hoping against hope, the unhappy wife was compelled to believe that he had found a grave beneath the weltering ocean.

"Her sorrow was deep and heartfelt, but the evils of poverty were now added to her affliction, and the widow found herself obliged to resort to some employment in order to support her helpless children. Her needle was her only resource, and for ten years she labored early and late for the miserable pittance, which is ever grudgingly bestowed on the humble seam-stress. A merchant of New York, in moderate but prospering circumstances, accidentally became acquainted with her, and pleased with her gentle manners no less than her extreme beauty, endeavored to improve their acquaintance with friendship. After some months he offered her his hand, and was accepted. As the wife of a successful merchant, she soon found herself in the enjoyment of comforts and luxuries, such as she had never before possessed. Her children became his children, and received from him every advantage that wealth and affection could procure. Fifteen years passed away: the daughters married, and by their step-father were furnished with every comfort, requisite in their new avocation of house-keepers. But they had scarcely quitted his roof, when their mother was taken ill. She died after a few days' sickness, and from that time until the period of which I speak, the widower had resided with the youngest daughter.

"Now comes the strangest part of the story.—After an absence of thirty years, during which time no tidings had been received from him, the first husband returned as suddenly as he had departed. He had changed his ship, adopted another name, and spent the whole of that long period of time on the ocean, with only transient visits on shore while taking or discharging cargo; having been careful, also, never to come nearer home than New Orleans. Why he had acted in this unpardonable manner towards his family, no one could tell, and he obstinately refused all explanation. There were strange rumors of slave-trading and piracy afloat, but they were only whispers of conjecture rather than truth. Whatever might have been his motives for such conduct, he was certainly anything but indifferent to his family concerns when he returned. He raved like a madman when informed of his wife's second marriage and subsequent death, vowing vengeance upon his successor, and terrifying his daughters by the most awful threats, in case they refused to acknowledge his claims. He had returned wealthy, and one of those mean reptiles of the law, who are always to be found crawling about the halls of justice, advised him to bring a suit against the second husband, assuring him that he could recover heavy damages. The absurdity of instituting a claim for a wife, whom death had already released from the jurisdiction of earthly laws, was so manifest, that it was at length agreed by all parties to leave the matter to be adjudged by five referees.

"It was on a bright and beautiful afternoon in spring, that we first met to hear this singular case. The sunlight streamed through the dusty windows of the court room, and shed a halo around the long grey locks and broad forehead of the defendant; while the plaintiff's harsh features were thrown into still bolder relief, by the same beam which softened the placid countenance of his adversary. The plaintiff's lawyer made a most eloquent appeal for his client, and had we not been better informed about the matter, our hearts would have been melted by his touching description of the return of the desolate husband, and the agony with which he now beheld his household gods removed to consecrate a stranger's hearth.—The celebrated Aaron Burr was counsel for the defendant, and we anticipated from him a splendid display of oratory. I had never before seen him, and shall certainly never forget my surprise at his appearance. Small in person, but remarkably well-formed, with an eye as quick and brilliant as an eagle's, and a brow furrowed by care far more than time he seemed a very different being from the arch-traitor and murderer I had been accustomed to consider him. His voice was one of the finest I ever heard, and the skill with which he modulated it, the variety of its tones, and the melody of its cadences, were inimitable. But there was one peculiarity about him, that reminded me of the depths of darkness which lay beneath that fair surface. You will smile when I tell you, that the only thing I disliked was his step. He glided rather than walked: his foot had that quiet, stealthy movement, which involuntarily makes one think of treachery, and in the course of a long life I have never met with a frank and honorable man to whom such a step was habitual.

"Contrary to our expectations, however, Burr made no attempt to confute his opponent's oratory. He merely opened a book of statutes, and pointing with his thin fingers to one of the pages, desired the referees to read it, while he retired to bring in the principal witness. We had scarcely finished the section which fully decided the matter in our minds, when Burr re-entered with a tall and elegant female leaning on his arm. She was attired in a simple white dress, with a wreath of ivy leaves encircling her large straw bonnet, and a lace veil completely concealing her countenance. Burr whispered a few words, apparently encouraging her to advance, and then gracefully raising her veil, disclosed to us a face of proud, surpassing beauty. I recollect as well as if it had happened yesterday, how simultaneously the murmur of admiration burst from the lips of all present. Turning to the plaintiff, Burr asked in a cold, quiet tone, 'Do you know this lady?'

Answer. 'I do.'

Burr. 'Will you swear to that?'

Answer. 'I will; to the best of my knowledge and belief she is my daughter.'

Burr. 'Can you swear to her identity?'

Answer. 'I can.

Burr. 'What is her age?'

Answer. 'She was thirty years of age on the twentieth day of April.'

Burr. 'When did you last see her?

Answer. At her own house a fortnight since.

Burr. 'When did you last see her previous to that meeting?'

The plaintiff hesitated—a long pause ensued—the question was repeated, and the answer at length was, 'On the fourteenth day of May, 17—.'

'When she was just three weeks old,' added Burr. 'Gentlemen,' continued he, turning to us, 'I have brought this lady here as an important witness, and such, I think she is. The plaintiff's counsel has pleaded eloquently in behalf of the bereaved husband, who escaped the perils of the sea and returned only to find his home desolate.—But who will picture to you the lonely wife bending over her daily toil, devoting her best years to the drudgery of sordid poverty, supported only by the hope of her husband's return? Who will paint the slow progress of heart-sickness, the wasting anguish of hope deferred, and, finally, the overwhelming agony which came upon her when her last hope was extinguished, and she was compelled to believe herself indeed a widow? Who can depict all this without awakening in your hearts the warmest sympathy for the deserted wife, and the bitterest scorn for the mean, pitiful wretch, who could thus trample on the heart of her whom he had sworn to love and cherish?—We need not inquire into his motives for acting so base a part. Whether it was love of gain, or licentiousness, or selfish indifference, it matters not; he is too vile a thing to be judged by such laws as govern men. Let us ask the witness—she who now stands before us with the frank, fearless brow of a true-hearted woman—let us ask her which of these two has been to her a father.'

"Turning to the lady, in a tone whose sweetness was in strange contrast with the scornful accent that had just characterized his words, he besought her to relate briefly the recollections of her early life. A slight flush passed over her proud and beautiful face, as she replied,

'My first recollections are of a small, ill-furnished apartment, which my sister and myself shared with my mother. She used to carry out every Saturday evening the work which had occupied her during the week, and bring back employment for the following one. Saving that wearisome visit to her employer, and her regular attendance at church, she never left the house. She often spoke of our father, and of his anticipated return, but at length she ceased to mention him, though I observed she used to weep more frequently than ever. I then thought she wept because we were so poor, for it sometimes happened that our only supper was a bit of dry bread, and she was accustomed to see by the light of the chips which she kindled to warm her famishing children, because she could not afford to purchase a candle without depriving us of our morning meal. Such was our poverty when my mother contracted a second marriage, and the change to us was like a sudden entrance into Paradise. We found a home and a father.' She paused.

"'Would you excite my own child against me?' cried the plaintiff as he impatiently waved his hand for her to be silent.

"The eyes of the witness flashed fire, as he spoke. 'You are not my father,' exclaimed she vehemently. 'The law may deem you such, but I disclaim you utterly. What! call you my father?—you, who basely left your wife to toil, and your children to beggary? Never! never! Behold there my father,' pointing to the agitated defendent, 'there is the man who watched over my infancy—who was the sharer of my childish sports and the guardian of my inexperienced youth,—There is he who claims my affection, and shares my home; there is my father. For yonder selfish wretch, I know him not. The best years of his life have been spent in lawless freedom from social ties; let him seek elsewere for the companion of his decreptitude, nor dare insult the ashes of my mother by claiming the duties of kindred from

"She drew her veil hastily around her as she spoke, and giving her hand to Burr, moved as if to withdraw.

'Gentlemen,' said Burr, 'I have no more to say. The words of the law are expressed in the book before you; the voice of truth you have just heard from woman's pure lips; it is for you to decide according to the requisitions of nature and the decrees of justice.'

"I need hardly add that our decision was such as to overwhelm the plaintiff with well-merited shame."

EPITAPHS.

The gifted poetess, Miss H. F. Gould of Newburyport, once took it into her head to write epitaphs on many of her bachelor acquaintances.—The following was written by her on Hon. Caleb Cushing, who, as our readers know, is noted for his go-ahead disposition.

ON C. C.

Lay aside all ye dead,
For in the next bed,
Reposes the ashes of C——g!
He has crowded his way
Through the world as they say,
And perhaps, now he's dead, may be pushing!

Mr Cushing took this all in good part, but retorted by writing the following, which turned the tables on Miss Gould:

ON H. F. G.

Here lies one whose wit,
Without wounding, could hit;
And green be the turf that's above her!
Having sent every bean
To the regions below,
She herself has gone down——FOR A LOVER.

Old parson M. of ——, Worcester county, used sometimes to be absent on a missionary tour.—Once on a time, having just returned from one of these excursions, he found his congregation quite drowsy, and wishing to wake them up, he broke off in the midst of his sermon, and began to tell them of what wonderful things he had seen in York State. Among other wonders he said he had seen monstrous great musquitoes—so large that many of them would weigh a pound! The people were by this time wide awake. 'Yes,' continued parson M. 'and moreover they are often known to climb up on the trees, and bark!

The next day one of the deacons called upon him, telling him that many of the brethren were much scandalized at the big stories he told the day before. 'What stories?' said parson M.—Why sir, you said that the musquitoes in York state were so large that many of them would weigh a pound! Well, replied the minister, I do really think that a great many of them would weigh a pound. 'But,' continued the deacon, you also said they would climb up on the trees, and bark! Well sir, says parson M. as to their climbing up on the trees, I have seen them do that—have n't you Deacon? O yes. Well, how could they climb up on the trees and not climb on the bark? The Deacon was of course nonplussed.

If you have a good wife take care of her, if you have not, get one immediately.

DANVERS COURIER.

SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 17, 1845.

THE STATE NORMAL SCHOOL AT ALBANY.

We had the pleasure a few weeks since, of visiting the Normal School at Albany, which is now in the full tide of successful operation. There are now connected with the institution 185 pupils, of both sexes, preparing themselves for the profession of teaching. One hundred and twenty eight of these are chosen by the county superintendents throughout the State, who are expected to select youth of superior ability for receiving and imparting instruction. The remainder of the 185, are students, received only with the highest certificates of qualifications. No pupils admitted without previously signing an obligation to teach school for a specified time, after leaving the Institution. The teachers are paid by the State, and a certain sum is allowed each pupil for defraying the expenses of board.

The whole is under the direction of Mr. David P. Page, formerly of Newburyport in this State, where he sustained a very enviable reputation as a Teacher, assisted by several gentlemen well qualified for the situation. All the branches are taught which are deemed necessary to qualify youth to become good teachers. In addition to this, Lectures upon different subjects are frequently delivered by the Principal and others, generally with reference to the particular studies of the pupils; and every opportunity is improved to give such suggestions upon the best methods of teaching, as may occur to the teachers. There is also in connection with the Institution, a Model School, the object of which is to give the pupils an opportunity to become more practically acquainted with the duties of their profession.

We need not say that such a school is destined to effect a great amount of good. It has been a matter of serious injury to the schools in this State, as well as elsewhere, that teachers have been frequently employed, on the certificate of some perhaps irresponsible man, after a slight examination, who, upon trial have been found totally unqualified for the performance of the various duties devolving upon them. This is remedied by the operation of such a school. For no one is recommended as a teacher, unless the Principal is fully satisfied that his knowledge, and methods of instruction, will insure him success.

We were extremely well pleased on visiting the School, to observe the attention and zeal manifested on the part of the pupils, and to hear the recitations, which were remarkably correct, and showed a great amount of critical study. The pupils were with hardly an exception, bright, noble looking youth; and we feel confident that in general appearance the males would compare with advantage with the students of any college. The establishment of such a School is a noble undertaking, and the great and good effects which will result from it to every part of the State, will be a sufficient reward to those who have exerted their energies in its behalf.

NEW SCHOOL HOUSE

We notice that a new School house has just been erected in District. No 6, to accommodate the fast increasing population of that central part of the town. It is built of wood, but it appears to be the same in size as the other house which is of brick and has been regarded as the model school house of the town. The new house is situated near Tapleyville, whose inhabitants will be much accommodated by its location.

We hope the building of this house will not lead to a division of the district. The money received from the town can be expended with more economy and advantage in a large district than in two small ones. The Board of Education have strongly urged the importance of uniting several small districts, and the employment of female teachers, at the same time raising the standard of instructions in the masters' school. Several of our districts are now nearly large enough to sustain a good English High School, and this too without detriment to the instruction of the less advanced scholars.

Periodical Depot. Mr. L. Chandler has removed his Depot of cheap publications to the store at the corner of Washington and Norman streets, on the western side of the Rail Road Station in Salem.

Mr. Chandler's long acquaintance with the business and his connection with all the large book dealers enables him to sell cheaper than most others in the same line of business. He has received the June No of Graham, and No 53 of the living Age, both good numbers. He is Agent also for Sears' New monthly Family Magazine, only $2 per year.

The Weather—on Monday last was excessively hot, the thermometer at 92 in the shade. The "white Hat Regiment" was out ingreat force, and we understand many more recruits are expected to fill up its ranks the ensuing campaign.

The Oregon Question. An exposition of the views of the Administration of the United States upon our claims to Oregon, is soon we understand, to be made. Great Britain has through her officials intimated what she conceives to be her claims upon this territory, and we fear the views of the Administrations of both countries will be dissimilar upon the question; yet we cannot apprehend that there is danger of War, but that it will in time be amicably settled.

THE CHESHIRE RAIL ROAD.

This Rail Road, whose route is from Fitchburg through Keene to Vermont is in full tide of success. Its advantages over the elbow route by the way of Brattleboro, are so apparent that there is a perfect scramble for the stock on the line of road as well as in Boston. Meetings are already called for extending this road through Vermont to Burlington. This extension will one day be effected, and in that event the Cheshire Road must be a rich and productive investment to its stockholders.

Real Estate. There has been a gradual and steady rise in the value of real estate for the last twenty years in Danvers, and this is particularly noticeable in house lots on the principal streets. As these fill up, building lots advance in value on the new streets, and these will soon become as valuable as those on the old thoroughfares. A friend in whose judgement we place much reliance, estimates the average value of front land extending 100 feet deep, at $20 per foot the whole length of Main street, and extending to Mr. Asa Sawyer's on Lowell street, and to Benjamin Jacobs' in Central street.

He estimates the value of land on the most settled portions of Central, Chesnut, Lowell, Franklin, Foster, Washington, Walnut and Holten streets at from five to fifteen dollars per foot.—The value will vary of course with the situation in all cases.

Real estate, especially building lots have always been a safe investment in Danvers, and it is not often that an estate is offered for sale. A good opportunity now offers for a purchaser in Holten St. See Mr. Hiram Grant's advertisement.

☞Our readers will miss to day the usual contribution of Newman Noggs on the first page.—We hope our kind friend (we will not again call him venerable) has not taken in dudgeon our casual allusion to the possible ripeness of his age.—If he has we humbly ask his pardon. The truth is, we are so young ourselves and entertain so much real respect for advanced years that we are apt to regard as venerable any worthy gentleman who is ten or twenty years our senior. Neither are we yet satisfied that Mr. Noggs is as young as he would have us believe. His admission as to the gout, the crow's feet—the walking staff and the spectacles, to say nothing of his sensitiveness to the influence of the east wind,—all go to prove his title to the honorable application we gave him. Then we are suspicious that there may be something like evasion in his boast that he wears his own hair and eats with his own teeth. Many a bald headed Elijah in these days may claim to wear his own hair who likewise wear other peoples; and(although we admit the subject is a delicate one) some claim to eat with their own teeth wno also eat with Dr. Batchelder's or Dr. Fisk's. His quiet habits, his dread of any attack on his grate, his trim wardrobe, together with his ill concealed anxiety to keep on the sunny side of the gentle sex—these but a ven—— no, not venerable but a man who has arrived to that very definite period of life when he may be called a middle-aged-man.

POST OFFICE AT NEW MILLS.

We notice that this Office has been removed to a new building fitted up for the express purpose. This shows a due regard for the wishes and accomodation of the people, quite creditable to the officer having charge of that establishment.

We have had some complaints in regard to the Post Office in the South part of the town, but must decline publishing them, as we doubt not the Post master will be disposed to do all in his power for the convenience of those who have business at his Office.

INTOLERANCE IN ENGLAND.

The following letter from the vicar of an English Church to a parishioner aged 80, on the death of his wife, is illustrative of that kidd of liberality which exists in some of the clergy of the Establishment. It is but just, however, to say that the Bishop says his vicar "has exceeded his authority, and may be compelled to bury the deceased."

We extract the letter from a late number of the Christian Register.

The poor woman's 'awful and damnable heresy' is, that she is a dissentor from that Church of which the worthy Arthur Fane is a minister.

'Haynes, I understand your wife has died so awfully sudden as others of your family. She has died in an awful and damnable heresy, which renders it impossible for her to be buried in the churchyard. I refuse her burial there. If you choose to have her buried without any service you may do so—and (lest I should appear to deal harshly with you) I will pay the charge for her burial in the unconsecr ated ground at Townsend, but in the churchyard, with the burial service, she shall not be buried. I trust Almighty God may open your eyes to repentance, if such a thing may be, but I fear, Haynes, you have sold your Saviour for thirty pieces of silver. Warminister, March 8, 1845.—Arthur Fane.'

DISSOLUTION.

We understand that the connection between the Second Baptist Society in this town and Rev. Phineas Stow their Pastor, was recently dissolved and that the latter delivered his farewell discourse on Sunday the 3d Inst.

☞The U. S. brig Truxon, arrived at Boston on Wednesday, having in charge the Sch. Spitfire, of New Orleans, charged with being concerned in the African slave trade, and evidence so that effect has been obtained.

FOR THE COURIER.

THE BENCH AND THE BAR.

A Police trial on Tuesday evening last before Justice Shed originated in the question of the proprietorship of a Bench; whether that of the Supreme Court or the Court of Common Pleas—did not at first appear from the evidence. Subsequently, however, it came out that the candidates for this Bench were his Honor, Judge Ham, who is as portly, if not as learned, as Chief Justice Shaw himself, and who, moreover, is understood to be a most excellent Judge of horse-flesh. The other claimants were Associate Judges Sawyer & Basford, who clearly had the title of possession which in their opinion at least placed their claim on a stable foundation.

All the gentlemen above named are stablers, and the Bench in dispute at the time of the events of the trial was in the stable of Messrs Sawyer & Basford. Judge Ham, being about to hold a court, or for some other purpose sent his servant Trainer after the Bench which was then in the care of Moses Heath, Sawyer & Basford's servant.—Heath declined giving it up unless in due course of law. Trainer calls Heath a liar and other hard names which leads to a squabble as the witnesses term it, and then it appears there was a great deal of kicking in the stable (in which, however, the horses were not implicated) and the whole ended in Heath's ejecting Trainer from the building.

The action was brought by Trainer, in behalf of the Commonwealth against Heath for assault and battery. Morrill for the government and Proctor for the defendant. The principal witness for the defence was Master John W. Stevens, a lad about 12 years old who testified with great intelligence and apparent honesty. The evidence of Trainer was the principal reliance of the counsel for the government. His testimony was lastly contradicted by several of the others on both sides, which caused some trouble to his counsel. To show improper bias on the part of one of the defendant's witnesses, Mr. Basford, he was asked if he had ever had any difficulty with Trainer before this affair?

"Yes."

"What was it?"

"I had occasion to throw him down one day last winter."

"Where did you throw him?"

"Into a snow bank."

"Did you ever have occasion to strap him with a girt?"

"Not that I recollect."

"Are you sure you did not?"

"I don't remember that I ever did, but I should like to though."

After hearing all the evidence and the arguments of counsel on both sides the Justice decided that the case was not sustained by the government, and the defendant was accordingly discharged.

New Mail Contracts. The new Mail Contracts are said to be in general, at least fifty per cent to be ruinously low.

LAURA BRIDGEMAN.

The Report of Dr. Howe of the Institution for the Blind gives a very interesting account of this remarkable young lady who has been seven years under the instruction of the teachers at the Asylum. She is blind, deaf and dumb, but under all these discouraging circumstances, her mind is quick and impulsive, her curiosity is ever active, her desire to know is intense and her efforts to learn are unremitting. We extract the following from the Report of Dr. Howe.

"I might long ago have taught the Scriptures to Laura; she might have learned, as other children do, to repeat line upon line and precept upon precept; she might have been taught to imitate others in prayer; but her God must have been her own God, and formed out of the materials with which her mind had been stored. It was my wish to give her gradually such ideas of His power and love as would have enabled her to form the highest possible conception of His divine attributes. In doing this, it was necessary to guard, as much as I could, against conveying impressions which it would be hard to remove afterward, and to prevent her forming such notions as would seem unworthy to her more developed reason, lest the renouncement of them might impair her own belief.

But various causes have combined to prevent what seemed to me the natural and harmonious development of her religious nature; and now, like other children, she must take the consequences of the wise or unwise instruction given by others.—I did not long hold the only key to her mind; it would have been unkind and unjust to prevent her using her power of language as fast as she acquired it, in conversation with others, merely to carry out a theory of my own, and she was left to free communication with many persons even before my necessary separation from her of more than a year.

During my absence, and perhaps before, some persons more zealous than discreet, and more desirous to make a proselyte than to keep conscientiously their implied promise of not touching upon religious topics, some such persons talked to her of the Atonement, of the Redeemer, the Lamb of God, and of some very mystical points of mere speculative doctrine. These things were perhaps not farther beyond her comprehension than of those persons who assumed to talk to her about them; but they perplexed and troubled her, because, unlike such persons, she wished that every word should be the symbol of some clear and definite idea.

She could not understand metaphorical language: hence the Lamb of God was to her a bona fide animal, and she could not conceive why it should continue so long a lamb, and not grow old like others and be called a sheep.

I must be supposed to mention this only as her faithful chronicler, and to do it also in sorrow. If the poor child spoke inadvertently on such topics, it was without consciousness of it, and she was made to do so by undiscreet persons, not by any communication of mine or of her teacher; we shall never speak to her of Jesus Christ but in such a way as to impart a portion at least of our own reverence, gratitude and love.

During my absence in Europe, I received from her several letters, and among others the following;—

My very dear Dr. Howe: What can I first say to God when I am wrong? Would he send me good thoughts and forgive me when I am very sad for doing wrong? Why does he not love wrong people if they love him? Would he be very happy to have me think of Him and Heaven very often? Do you remember that you said I must think of God and Heaven? I want you to please to answer me to please me. I have learned about great many things to please you very much. Mrs. Harrington has got a new little baby eight days last Saturday. God was very generous and kind to give babes to many people. Miss Rogers's mother has got baby two months ago. I want to see you very much. I send much love to you. Is God ever ashamed? I think of God very often to love Him. Why did you say that I must think of God? You must answer me all about it, if you do not I shall be sad. Shall we know what to ask God to do? When will he let us go to see Him in Heaven? How did God tell people that lived in Heaven? How could he take care of folks in Heaven and why is he our Father? When can he let us go to Heaven? Why can not He let wrong people to go to live with him and be happy? Why should he not like to have us ask him to send us good thoughts if we are not very sad for doing wrong?

Destructive Fire in Boston.—Sunday afternoon, soon after half past two o'clock and just before the time for the second bell for divine service, the carpenter's shop of Mr George Nowell, at the foot of South Cedar street near the receiving basin of the Mill Dam Corporation, took fire, and the wind being fresh from the Westward, it speedily communicated to the adjoining buildings in that street and the foot of Piedmont street, and was not arrested until upwards of twentyfive dwelling houses, chiefly of wood, were destroyed. Some of the furniture of the occupants was removed several times, and some burnt in its last place of deposit.

The loss will not probably fall short of $30,000, and the amount of insurance is probably not over $10,000 or 12,000.

The Methodist Church, occupied by the Society under Rev. Mr Raymond, on Church street, and between South Cedar and Piedmont streets, was considerably injured in the roof and tower. Fortunately the fire did not cross Church street or the damage in the narrow streets beyond, would probably have been very great.

All the buildings on the southerly side of Piedmont street, to the Church, were destroyed, and several on the north side of the street, commencing about midway, and extending to the large brick dwelling house at the corner of Church street, which was badly injured.

Several of the houses were occupied by two or more families, chiefly poor persons, who have lost all or nearly all they possessed.

[The Atlas stares that the fire was caused by the carelessness of some small boys, who built a fire, and were roasting some clams, near the fence of the carpenter's shop, to which the fire communicated by means of shavings and like combustibles. Two of them were arrested by the police, but were discharged, as there was nothing to warrant their commitment. One of them was not more than 8 years old.]

At 3 o'clock this Monday morning a fire broke out in an unoccupied dwelling house, belonging to Dr. Bacon, and situated in Crescent Place; the building was consumed to the bare walls, and consumed. The fire was set in a pile of lumber lying by the house.

At 15 minutes to 4 o'clock this morning, still another alarm was raised; Trull's stable on Belknap street having been fired by means of combustibles placed against the outside without damage.

At 4 o'clock, a fire broke out in a carpenter's shop in the rear of Garden street, and before its progress could be stayed, fourteen buildings were cousumed. this also was the work of incendiaries.

We have heard of but two accidents endangering life or limb, in connection with all of these fires. A men whose name we did not learn, fell from a scuttle at the scene in Garden street, and broke his thigh by the fall; at the same fire, a man named Homer, fell down in a fit, and injured his head so badly that he was deprived of his senses at the last account of him. His residence is in Pitts street.

At the moment of going to press, our attention is called to another alarm coming from a schooner lying at Lincoln's wharf.

P. S. She was partially destroyed.—Bee.

SHAVINGS.

Prompt Liberality. Rev. Dr Kirk, at the meeting of the "Christian Alliance" on Thursday evening in New York, said that if $2000 were contributed, a Protestant Press should be established in Paris, which would penetrate Italy to its utmost confines. Almost immediately a gentleman sent a note to the desk, saying that he would be one of two hundred to raise that amount. In the course of the evening other sums were subscribed, and it is probable, before the week closes, the entire amount will be obtained.—Mail.

Suspected Murder. The New York Herald states that Mr. Abraham P. Scudder, a respectable citizen of Hoboken, died on Sunday last, from the effects of arsenic, which it is supposed was administered to him by his sister Mrs Punnoyer, who after his death, seized upon and concealed his watch and money. She has been committed to jail.

Alleged Abduction in Charlestown. The Eagle states on authority "which cannot be doubted," that while a young girl of excellent character, residing in the family of Mr Wilmot, in Bunker Hill street, was proceeding to discharge a bill at a grocery store, a short distance from his residence in Charlestown, she was seized in Hancock street, blindfolded, and her mouth covered, by two young ruffians, who hurried her into a carriage standing near by, and was driven across the bridge into the city, to a house of ill repute. Questions were thee put to her, but, through fright, no answers were given, when the woman of the house, presuming she was deaf and dumb, ordered the men to take her back. Having robbed her of the money on her person—$5,75—and again blindfolded her, they put her into the carriage, and conveyed her to Warren bridge, where she was allowed to depart.

Later from Father Matthew.—The New England Washingtonian publishes a letter from the venerable apostle of temperance in Ireland dated March 28, from which it would appear to be quite uncertain when we shall have the satisfaction of seeing him in this country. He says.—

As I lately commenced a visiting tour of Ireland, it is uncertain when I shall be disengaged, and privileged to cross the Atlantic. But I assure you I only wait for a favorable time. Future events the great God has kept to His own power, but I fondly hope to be soon permitted to enjoy happiness.

☞The building committee of the Naumkeag Steam Cotton Factory Company have advertised for proposals to contract for the erection of a suitable building, &c. The building, according to the plan proposed, will be the largest, and will contain the greatest number of spindles we understand, of any ever erected in the United States, for manufacturing purposes.

The first who moved in the business, so far as we have any knowledge, was Gen. Wm. Sutton, who placed a subscription paper for signatures in the Commercial Bank, some years ago. The attempt was not successful, at that time; but, subsequently, in 1842, the charter under which the Naumkeag Co, has been organized was granted to Wm. Sutton, Caleb Smith, and Joseph S. Leavitt, who were named as corporators, and have given much time and labor to the cause. These gentleman kept the project alive, the expenses of plans, surveys, &c, being defrayed by Gen. Sutton, until a fortunate concurrence of circumstances, with the efficient co-operation of David Pingree, Esq., and the active exertions of Messrs. Bryant, Waters, &c., brought it, within a few weeks, to a practical point, and the stock was taken up, on a large scale, and therefore more advantageous, than was at first proposed.—Gazette.

Dreadful Accident.—George A. Goddard, Esq. merchandise Broker in State St., Boston, was thrown from his chaise while driving through Harrison Avenue on Thursday afternoon, and almost instanly killed. His skull was found to be fractured and his head was severely bruised in many places.

☞B. F. Hallett of Boston has been appointed Judge Advocate of Court Martial which is to assemble at Washington, on the 2d of June, for the trial of Capt. Voorhees and others.

Long Island Railway Company Indicted.—The Sag Harbor Corrector of Saturday says that the Grand Jury of Suffolk have indicted the Long Island road as a nuisance, in consequence of the frequent fires which have been kindled in the woods by sparks from the locomotives traversing the road.

☞A large shoe manufactory is to be erected at Chelsea, with accommodations for ninety or a hundred workmen.

☞The Richmond Enquirer announces the death of Henry Roane. He was the son of the late Judge Spencer Roane, and the garndson of the immortal Patrick Henry.

Relations with England. There is a rumor from Washington, coming through channels likely to be correct, to the following purport, viz. that the Administration, in consequence of the new posture of our relations with England, contemplates sending out an Extraordinary Minister, charged with the Oregon negociation, and also to propose a treaty of reciprocal Tariffs; that the President desires that Mr. Calhoun should undertake this mission, and that it is with this knowledge, and the understanding that Mr. Calhoun would accept this special embassy, that Mr. Pickens has declined the place.—[Journal of Commerce.

In Jail in Earnest. In the Post last summer we gave an account of an astute swindler, who followed the business of writing begging letters, under the guise of being a poor but penitent prisoner, confined in jail. He was known by the names of Henry Van Zandt, Hannald, Rupert Prince Wallis, and numerous other aliases. Besides writing to many of our wealthy families in our principal cities, he is known to have sent over 200 similar letters to England, through the Boston post office.—Last winter he was arrested at Troy, N. Y., for forging a draft, and on Friday last he was sentenced to the Sing Sing prison for five years.—[Post.

We are under great obligation to our Boston correspondent, I. T. B., for the good opinion he expresses of our paper. We regret that it is not in our power to publish his very interesting letter, in toto, and hope soon to hear from him again.

MARRIAGES.

In this town, by Rev. Mr. Field, Mr Warren Wilson to Miss Caroline E. Merrill, daughter of Wingate Merrill, Esq.

In this town, Mr. Charles A. Nevers to Miss Hannah Copp. Mr. Malachi Haynes to Miss Dorcas B. Bartlett. At North Parish, by Rev. Mr. Braman, Mr. John S. Barr to Miss Mary F. Gile of Northfield, N. H.

In Salem, Mr. Moses C. Reynolds to Miss Betsy Varney. Mr. Frederick Oliver to Miss Eliza Heard. Capt. Edward Barnard to Mrs. Julia Ames, of Brooklin, N. Y.

In Marblehead, Mr. Charles Broughton of Lynn to Miss Martha H. R. Bartlett, of M.

In Ipswich, Mr. John Pindar, jr., to Miss Hannah Wade.

In Bradford, Mr. Charles Kimball, of Topsfield, to Miss Harriet Huntress, of B.

DEATHS.

In Salem, Mr. Elizaphen Dodge, aged 33. Mrs. Elizabeth, widow of the late Mr. Samuel Sweetser, aged 89. Widow Rachel Swasey, aged 84.

In North Reading, Mrs. Rachel Jeffry, aged 61.

In Bradford, Dr. Benjamin Parker, aged 85—a graduate of Harvard.

In Ellicottville, N. Y., Calista C. Lord, aged 29, wife of Mr. Azor D. Lord, formerly of Beverly.

In West Newbury, Mrs. Mary Dinsmore, aged 74.

PORT OF DANVERS.

Sunday May 11

ARRIVED.

Sch. Superior, Harding, Boston.
Sch. Packet, Hall, Pembroke.
Sch. Arenzimenda, Hatch Bangor.

Monday, 12.

Sch. Convoy, Augusta.
Sloop Stranger, Boston.

Wednesday, 14.

Sch. Despatch, Orcutt, Bangor.
Sch. Duroc, Colson, "

SAILED.

Sch. Superior, Harding, Boston.
Sch. Packet, Hall, Pembroke.
Sch. Convoy, Augusta.

Thursday 15.

ARRIVED.

Sloop Boston Packet, Wells.

BRIGHTON MARKET—Monday. April 28.

[From the Boston Daily Advertiser.]

At market 825 Beef Cattle 10 pairs Working Oxen, 840 Sheep, and 1920 Swine.

PRICES—Beef Cattle—Last week's prices were fully sustained. We quote extra $6; first quality $5 75; second do 5 25 a 5 50; third do 4 50 a $5 00.

WORKING OXEN—Sales at $65, $72, and $83.

SHEEP—Sales from 1 50 to $3; a lot Wethers unsold.

SWINE—Selected small Shoats 4 1-2 and 5 1-2c; ordinary lots, 4 1-8 and 5 1-8c; old Hogs 4, 4 1-2 and 5c. At retail from 5 to 6 1-2c.

☞Mr. FREDERICK DOUGLASS, of Lynn, will lecture before the Washingtonians of Danvers, TO-MORROW, (Sunday Evening,) at half past 5 o'clock, in the Universalist Church. The public generally are invited to attend. may 17

MASONIC NOTICE.

The next regular meeting of JORDAN LODGE, will be held on WEDNESDAY EVENING next, at Sanger's Hall, A general attendance is requested. Brothers of other Lodges are also invited. By order of the B. W. M.

N.P. C. PATTERSON, Sec.

Danvers, May 17th, A. L, 5845.

NOTICE.

The regular meetings of Monument Division, No. 5, Sons of Temperance, held at Sanger's Hall, are changed from Wednesday to Monday evening, at 8 o'clock. Members of the order are respectfully invited to attend.

Danvers, April 12. MOSES MERRILL, R. S.

New Tailoring Establishment.

ELLIOTT F. SMITH,

HAVING established himself in the TAILORING BUSINESS, a few doors above the Village Bank on Maple Street, would respectfully inform the citizens of North Danvers that he is ready to execute all orders in his line of business with fidelity and despatch.

He hopes by his punctuality and attention to the wishes of his customers, to merit and obtain a share of public patronage.

☞All Garments cut and made are warranted to suit. may 17

NEW BOOKS.

THE Dutchman's Fireside, a Tale by the author of "Letters from the South," "John Bull in America," "the Backwoodsman," &c—2 vols in one; price 25 cents.

Harpers' Illuminated and Pictorial Bible, No. 26.

The Book of the Indians; or, Biography and History of the Indians of North America, from its first discovery in the year 1841—by Samuel G. Drake, Fellow of the Royal Society of Northern Antiquaries, at Copenhagen, Honorary Member of the New Hampshire and New York Historical Societies—ninth edition, with large editions and corrections.

Just received by W. & S. B. IVES, may 17 Stearns's Building Salem.

STATIONERY. Silver Pencil Cases, a new assortment of the latest style, just received Rodgers' Pen and Pocket Knives, a fresh supply just received.

Ladies' Pencil Pen Holders, a beautiful article, just received at IVES'S, 223 Essex st., Salem. may 17

WRAPPING PAPER.—W. S. CLEVELAND & CO. have just recevied and will keep constantly on hand an assortment of Wrapping Paper, of different sizes, some of extra thickness and strength, at the old stand, lately occupied by J. P. Jewett & Co., No. 198 Essex street, Salem, which they will sell wholesale and retail, at the lowest market prices. may 17

NEW BOOKS.

HARPER'S Pictorial Bible, No. 26, just received.

Library of Choice Reading, No 7. Headlong Hall and Nightmare Abbey, continued in the 7th number of Wiley & Putnam's popular series of standard works. Just published and for sale by W. S. CLEVEAND & CO.,
may 17 193 Essex street, Salem.

Black Ink for Schools.

LYNN Ink, warranted to be a superior article, and well adapted for the use of Schools, being less likely to thicken than that of any other manufacture. Just rec'd, and for sale in quantities to suit purchasers, by may 17 W. S. CLEVELAND & CO.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY.

WOMEN to make Shirts, Thin Jackets, and Pants, at EDWARDS',
may 17 14 Front street.

PANTS. A lot of Men's cheap pants just received and for sale at EDWARDS'
may 17 14 Front street.

RICH SCARFS. Just received and for sale at EDWARDS'
14 Front street

New Spring Hosiery.

WILL be opened this morning, at R. H. CHAMBERLAIN'S Hosiery and Glove Store, No 236 Essex Street, Salem.

400 dozen of Spring and Summer Hosiery and Gloves, comprising every variety, style, size and quality, for Ladies, Gents, Misses and Children's wear.

Also, new styles of Mouseline de Laines, Cashmeres, Muslin, Ginghams, Printed Lawns, Balzorines, Prints, Patches; White and Col'd Cambrics; Plaid; Striped and Figured Cambrics; Plain, Plaid, Striped and Lace Muslins; Corded and Victoria Robes; Bleached, Unbleached and Colored Table Covers; Domestic Goods in great variety; Shirts; Bosoms; Collars; Dickeys; Cravats; Scarfs; Suspenders, Under Shirts and Drawers; Pocket Hdkfs, etc.

N. B. R. H. C. keeps constantly on hand a large supply of the American Improved Curtain Fixture,

a far superior article to any now in use, and not so liable to get out of order, a model of the same can be seen at the above store. Dealers in want of the article, can be supplied in any quantities, at the manufacturer's price.

Salem, May 10th, 1845. tf

NEW LUMBER WHARF.

THE subscriber having taken the wharf, called the WEST wharf, near the Bridge, in South Salem, would take this opportunity to inform his friends and the public generally, that he intends to keep for sale an assortment of BOARDS, JOIST, CLAPBOARDS, SHINGLES, PICKETS, LATHS, &c. &c., of as good quality as can be found in the city.

He has now on hand 300,000 dry Boards and Plank for sale, and all wishing to purchase, are respectfully invited to call and examine for themselves.

He has also made arrangements at the Eastward for furnishing Dimension Frames, and filling orders of every description, at short notice.

Having been a practical builder for the last fifteen years, the subscriber flatters himself that his knowledge of the business, and the Lumber trade generally, will enable him to give satisfaction to those who may favor him with their patronage.

As he will be at the Eastward part of the time, he will be able to give his personal attention to the purchasing of Lumber, &c. He has made arrangements with Mr. A. F. CLARK to be on the wharf during business hours, who will wait upon those who may favor him with a call.

Salem, May 10, 1845. tf H. B. WARD.

Flour, Corn, Oats, Shorts, &c.

Landing from schr Pioneer,

200 BARRELS Genesee Flour;
20 1-2 do do do
500 bushels Mealing Corn;
500 do Yellow do
500 do Shorts;
20 bbls Pea Beans;
4 bbls Marrowfat Peas;
100 bags Fine Salt;

—Also, in store—

100 bushels Killam Oats, for seed;
100 do Herds Grass Seed;
100 do Red Top do do;
500 do Clover do; (Northern;

For sale by DANIEL RICHARDS,

At the old and well known stand on the Plains. North Danvers, April 19, 1845.

RETAIL

Boot and Shoe Store,

AT THE PLAINS.

THE subscriber keeps constantly on hand at his store, on Maple street, near the Village Bank, A full supply of

Men's Calf and Seal Boots, of all qualities;
Men's Calf, Goat and Kip Shoes, and pumps.
Boy's do do Downings.

THE LADIES will find a complete assortment of Fine and Common Kid Slippers;
Paris and Village Ties;
Gaiter Boots and Shoes;
Misses' and Children's shoes of all descriptions;

The above articles he is constantly receiving from the best manufacturers in the state, which will enable him to satisfy all who are in want of good articles in his line—at very reasonable prices.

JOSHUA SILVESTER.

North Danvers April 19, 1845.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law

OFFICE IN FELTON'S (late Osborne's) Building,

Danvers, March 29th. tf

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

JONATHAN W. OSBORNE has taken into Co-partnership MICHAEL L. WHIDDEN, and they will continue the

Painting, Glazing & Papering

business, at the old Stand, No 10 PARK STREET, under the firm of

OSBORNE & WHIDDEN.

Particular attention to

SIGN PAINTING,

IMITATIONS OF WOOD, MARBLE, BRONZE, GROUND GLASS, &c.

mch 29 1y

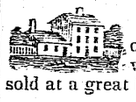
Ploughs & Cultivators,

MANUFACTURED BY

RUGGLES, NOURSE & MASON,

And other Agricultural Tools,

FOR SALE BY



DANIEL RICHARDS,

Danvers Plains, March 29, 1845.

GENTLEMEN'S SHIRTS, BOSOMS & DICKEYS.

A GOOD variety now opening at EDWARDS'S,
apr 6 14 Front street, Salem.

FOR SALE.

A two story house and lot of land on Holten street. The House is convenient for two families and will be sold at a great bargain. Inquire of

HIRAM GRANT.

Danvers, April 19, 1845,

W. D. JOPLIN,

Draper and Tailor,

NEARLY opposite the Monument, keeps for sale at the lowest prices,

Broadcloths, Cassimeres and Vestings and Trimmings.

Also— A good assortment of READY MADE CLOTHING.

PANTS from 1 to 4 dollars;
VESTS from 75 cents to 2 00.

Green Jackets, Overhauls, Thin Clothing, Hats, Suspenders, &c. may 3

EASY SHAVING AND HAIR CUTTING.

B. B. WILLIAMS respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has removed to the store formerly occupied by Lambert & Merrill, (under the Courier Office,) which he has fitted up in a neat manner, and is now prepared to wait upon those who believe that

"Man wants but little beard below,
Nor wants that little long."

Champooing, Hair Cutting and Shaving is performed to the satisfaction of all who may favor him with their patronage.

Danvers, March 15, 1845. tf

REMOVAL.

SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

Rich Jewelry and Fancy Goods.

HAVE removed to the New Store, No. 291 Essex street, (next above Mechanic Hall) where they will keep constantly for sale Gold Finger Rings. Breast Pins, Bracelets, Lockets, Keys, Gold and Silver Pencil Cases, Silver Thimbles, Silver and Plated Table and Tea Spoons, Butter Knives, Silver Plated and Brittania Ware, Shell, Horn, and Ivory Combs, Pocket Books, Purses, &c., &c.

N. B. All kinds of Jewelry repaired in a superior manner and warranted. Old Gold or Jewelry, made over or exchanged for new.

S. & C. having acquired a thorough knowledge of the business in New York, as well as our success for the past five years in this city, will, we feel assured, enable us to execute with approbation any orders entrusted to our care.

☞Thankful for past patronage, we solicit a continuance of the same. tf March 15.

REMOVAL.

DR. J. A. ROBINSON,

SURGEON DENTIST,

SALEM,

WOULD respectfully give notice that he has removed from his old stand, opposite the City Hall, to No. 20 Washington street, recently occupied by A. E. Phillips, where he is ready to perform all operation, in Dentistry, in a most thorough and workmanlike manner.

His experience and success in inserting whole sets either by atmospheric pressure or springs, enables him to furnish them at rates which cannot fail to suit those in want of an article of superior quality.

His method of inserting Teeth, both singly and on plate, with or without Gums, has been found to be satisfactory and successful as combining beauty of finish and adaptation, with all the requisites of mastication and articulation.

Particular attention paid to filling Teeth so as to render them serviceable for many years, and also to the regulation of Children's Teeth.

N. B. For sale as above, a first rate article of TOOTH POWDER. 6m mch 15

KENDALL'S CHURNS.—A fresh supply of the various sizes, also, the different sizes of the SHAKER CHURNS, for sale at
apr 26 J. & H. HALE'S, 215 Essex st.

Spring Goods.

THE subscribers would inform the ladies of Danvers and vicinity that are now receiving the best assortment of Goods in their line, adapted to the Spring Trade, to which they invite particular attention. We give below a catalogue of Goods which we have recently received.

WHITE GOODS.

Plain Cambric and Cambric Muslins of every quality;
Plaid, striped and fig'd do do do;
Plain, Plaid and Striped Swiss Muslins;
Plain Book, Sacarilla and Tarlatan Muslins;
Muslins for Curtains in stripes and figures;
Bleached Cottons, of the best manufactures.

LINEN GOODS.

Linen Sheetings; Pillow Case Linen; Linen Shirtings;
Superfine Linens for Bosoms and Collars;
Linen Damask, by the yard; Damask Table Covers, of all qualities, sizes and prices; Damask Napkins; Doylies Towels; Linen Diaper; Huckabuck and Crash.

All Linens sold at this store are guaranteed free from any mixture of Cotton.

LACE GOODS.

Thread Edgings, of every width and price;
Lisle, Gimpeur, Meline, Ashburton, Polka, Smyrna and Dentilla Laces, at prices varying from 1 cent to $2 per yd.
Plain and Fig'd Blond, Brussels, Bobbinett and Polka Laces, for Caps, Capes, etc.

MILLINERY GOODS.

50 different styles of Bonnet Ribbons, many of which have been purchased at Auction, and can be sold at decided bargains. Straw Bonnets; Flowers; Tabs; Ruches; Bonnet Crowns; Bonnet Wire; Foundation Muslin; Crown Linings; Crapes, etc.

EMBROIDERIES.

New style Emb'd Inside Hdkfs, with and without collars, at prices varying from 58 cents to $5 00.
Embroidered Muslin Collars, from 87 1-2c to $2.
do Under Sleeves and Cuffs.

HOSIERY AND GLOVES.

Our assortment of Hosiery consists of nearly 300 dozen of every style of Bleached and Brown Cotton Hose; Black and Mode colored Cotton Hose;
English Lisle Thread Hose;
Raw Silk Hose and 1-2 Hose;
Blk and White Spun Silk do;
Misses Hosiery in great variety.
100 dozen Kid Gloves, in White, black, Lavender and Mode colors;
Lisle Thread Gloves for Ladies and Children;
Raw Silk do do do;
White and colored Silk for Gentlemen;
Picnic and Mohair Gloves and Mitts;

THREAD AND FANCY GOODS.

German and Zephy Worsteds; Needles; Pins;
Yarns and Knitting Worsteds; Oiled Silks;
Steel Beads; Purse Ornaments; Purse Twists;
Bag and Mat Cords; Twists; Braids; and a thousand things which we have not room to mention.

☞The Ladies are invited, when desirous of purchasing or examining any of the above named Goods, to call at

No. 24 Washington Street, Salem, near Railroad Depot.

may 10 KEITH & MASON.

Opening of Spring!

Magnificent, Chaste and Original Designs for Remodeling

"OAK HALL!"

FOR SPRING TRADE!

OPENING OF "OAK HALL" FOR THREE MONTHS!

Advice to Professional Men, Merchants, Clerks with moderate Salaries, Farmers, Mechanics, Seamen, Firemen and others, VISIT OAK HALL!

ARRIVAL OF SPRING GOODS!

To Wholesale Dealers.

THE OPENIG

This Morning, for Three Months!

I would again most respectfully inform the citizens of Boston, and strangers visiting the city, (after a delay of six weeks, during which time I have not been idle,) I have completed my arrangements on the most

MAGNIFICENT SCALE,

greatly surpassing my former arrangements. The Hall is splendidly decorated with almost

MAGIC ELEGANCE!

The architecture being Gothic, has given the artist an opportunity to display his taste to advantage. The paintings which adorn the walls are so perfectly chaste and appropriate, that every one will be fully compensated the trouble of visiting it. The design and effect of the interior, especially when

ILLUMINATED IN THE EVENING,

Is unequalled in any store this side of the Atlantic. Much praise is due to the artist, for his display of his fine taste of my fellow citizens and townsmen will fully appreciate all I have done, as my Establishment was the FIRST and ONLY ONE that adopted the

"EXTREME LOW PRICE SYSTEM,"

Before "OAK HALL" was in existence, it was not a very uncommon thing for a gentleman to pay from $45 to $50 for a suit of clothes. For one half of this sum or less, a perfect and entire suit can be obtained at this Establishment, cut and made with that ease and grace, that distinguish my garments from others. From this

EMPORIUM OF FASHION

first originated the Gothic style of architecture in Boston, and Oak Painting, &c. now so much in fashion. To those who have not visited this great

PLACE OF RESORT,

on account of the name of the street, I would most respectfully say, that where my establishment is located was once the Court end of Boston, and at this time is visited and patronized by the most influential and respectable individuals. Man, not unlike the fields, and Trees, once covered with a beautiful suit of Green is now breaking from its Coat of Ice and Snow and, having its Sesty suit of nature soon to be warmed into animation, and renew its beautiful suit of Green, So with Man—wrapped up in his Overcoat, he now on the opening of Spring, finds his under suit rusty and shabby, and is not suitable to wear. The next thing is to find a good place to fit out at a

REASONABLE PRICE,

and to be sure and have a GOOD FITTING SUIT, that will set upon the form with ease, grace and gentility.

FIVE GOOD REASONS

Why you can purchase at OAK HALL less than at any other Establishment in the United States:

FIRST—You do not pay me for YOUR suit, and the INDIVIDUAL'S that did not pay previous to you, as MY business is Cash on delivery.

SECOND—If any Garment made to order is not pleasing in every particular, it is no inconvenience to take it back and make another, as Ready Made Garments are directly in my line.

THIRD—I purchase my Goods in large lots, extremely cheap, and give my customers the benefit, by selling them at the smallest advances,

Fourth—I go by the motto.

LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS

OR AS SOME SAY,

"NO PROFITS AT ALL."

That I'll leave with my customer to decide.

FIFTH—My facilities are such at this time doing a

LARGE BUSINESS,

that I can afford to sell at

VERY LOW PRICES!

BOYS' CLOTHING.

I have lately added to my already extensive manufactory of Boys' Clothing, rooms for the manufacture of Boys' Clothing, and shall keep a large supply of every variety and kind, always on hand.

TO WHOLESALE DEALERS.

You will find the greatest variety of every style of Fresh Manufactured Clothing, adapted for Spring, to your different Trades, and will be sold extremely low in large lots!

AT RETAIL.

One of the largest and, best selected Stock of Fresh Spring Goods ever in "OAK HALL," and will be sold at the following low prices.—

PANTALOONS.

2500 pair of Fancy Spring patterns of Satinet Pants, at 1 75 to 2 50
3000 pair Steel Mixt Pants, 1 62 to 3 00
2200 do Sheeps Grey Pants 1 75 to 3 00
2500 do Canada Grey do. 1 75 to 3 00
3000 do Black Cassimere Pants. 3 00 to 4 50
5000 do Lavender Cassimere Pants. 3 00 to 4 00
2200 do Super black do Pants, with fancy stripe, 4 00 to 5 00
1500 Super blue Broadcloth and Cassimere Pants 3 50 to 4 50

THIN COATS.

3500 Coats and Sacks, American Gingham, 75 to 1 00
5000 Coats and Sacks, Scotch Gingham, 1 25 to 1 75
4800 Coats and Sacks Scotch Gingham, satin figure, 1 50 to 1 75
2700 Coats and Sacks, Webster Check 75 to 1 25
3750 Coats and Sacks, London Plaids, 1 25 to 175
4000 Coats and Sacks, of Linen and other goods, 1 00 to 1 75

THIN PANTS.

8000 pair thin Pants of every quality of Goods at low prices, say from 50 cents to $2 50 per pair.

VESTS.

300 light Vests, a very pretty affair for Spring, 50c to 1 00
4500 Dark Valencia, 75 to 1 50
5500 Fine Valencia, dark and light 1 50 to 2 50
2700 Satin Vests, figured and plain, 2 00 to 3 00

DRESS AND FROCK COATS.

5000 super Dress Coats, all colors, green, blue, black, olive, &c. from $4 to $15.
1750 super Frock Coats, all colors, Mulberry, browns, etc. from $5 to $15.

All the above cut in the latest style, and made up expressly for Spring Trade.

500 Business Coats, at low prices, say from $2 to $5.
2200 Tweed Coats, water proof, from $3,75 to$5.

FURNISHING DEPARTMENT.

Great Display of Furnishing Goods at the following low prices, vis:

150 dozen White Shirts—Linen Bosoms, Collars and Bosoms, 75c to 1 25 each
100 do White Shirts, plain. 50c to 75c do
150 do Fancy Shirts 62 1-2 to $7 1-2 do
25 do Rich Figured Satin Scarfs,
20 do do do do do
50 do do do do do } Low. prices.
50 do Spring Pattern Cravats, 12 1-2 to 75c
25 do Rich Fig'd Satin do. 75c to 1 25
50 do Stocks, of every description, such as Satin Bombazine, &c. and made in the latest Spring Style 1845 37 1-2 to 1 50,
10 do Brussells Carpet Bags, and others, 1 00 to 2.75
75 do Smoking Caps, 12 1-2 to 25c
200 do Braces of every description, 12 1-2 to 50c
20 do best Kid Gloves, 50c to 1 00
25 do Thread do 25 to 50c
20 do Silk do 50 to 75c
100 do Linen Bosoms—all kinds, 25 to 75c
300 do do Collars, latest pattern, 10 to 25c
250 do Canes, 17c to 1 00
325 do Umbrellas, 50c to 1 50
50 do Glazed Silk Caps, 1 00 to 1 25
100 do do do 25 to 37c
505 do Silk Pocket Hdkfs 25 to 75c

An endless variety of Fancy Articles, such as Gold and Fancy Studs—Hair Brushes—Clothes do—Pocket Combs—Dressing do—Tooth Brshes—Cologne-Bosom Pins—Fancy Soaps—Silk Purses—Guard Chains—Pant Straps, &c. &c.

A LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO THE TRADE.

My furnishing Goods are purchased from first rate hands, at low prices, and will be sold at small advance to the trade at my

EXTENSIVE LONG ROOMS,

OAK HALL BUILDING,

GEORGE W. SIMMONS,

General Tailor, Draper and Outfitter,

32, 31, 36, and 38 Ann street,

Opposite Merchant's Row—BOSTON.

apr 19 3m

HARRISON'S REMEDY

FOR THE PILES.

THIS is an ointment prepared by the undersigned, and has been so thoroughly tested in so many different cases that I never hesitate to warrant relief to those who will give it a fair trial, observing the directions around each box which give a plain treatise on the disease and full instructions as to diet mode of cure, &c. One application at night never fails to relieve the greatest pain and anguish. I am ready to refer to numerous individuals who have proved this Remedy to be the safest, surest, speediest and cheapest

CURE FOR THE PILES.

My agent in Exeter writes thus: "the Pile Remedy which you left me is all sold, please send me soon a further supply, as a number of persons in this town think very highly of it. N. GILMAN"

MORE TESTIMONY.

Salem, Aug. 6. Mr. Harrison: The box of ointment which I had from you has worked like a charm—I have used it only one night, and I am cured. I had used Hays' Liniment as I stated to you, with no benefit but rather was worse, it causing more inflammation. Yrs, J. W.

☞For sale at 256 Essex street, by the Proprietor,

J. S. HARRISON Jr.,

Agents—in Danvers, S. PROCTOR, Jr.; Marblehead—E. Arnold; Lynn—Ladd, and Holder; Beverly—Clarke; Newburyport—C. Whipple; Andover—Amos Abbott; Topsfield—Bixby and Merriam, Haverhill—Nichol; Boston—Ransom & Stevens, Tompkins, Southers and Fowle.

mch 15 6m

LAMP BLACK.

1000 POUNDS of Lamp Black, warranted a prime article.

3000 Madras Goat Skins, in crust. Goat and Sheep Morocco. Kid, Linings, and Bindings.

For sale by W. & M. BLACK Jr.,
apr 12 New Mills, Danvers.

AUCTIONS.

BY DOWLEY & WHALL,

[Store Nos 21 and 22 Pearl street, Boston.]

Sole Leather and Shoe Stock.

On SATURDAY, May 17, at 10 1-2 o'clock, at store,

2000 SIDES of Sole Leather, and a general assortment of Shoe Stock.

N. B. Liberal cash advances made on shoes or shoe stock for any of our monthly sales, or for private sale.

THE

Massachusetts Mechanic Association

HAVING AWARDED TO

GOVE, LOCKE & CO.,

and no one else, a DIPLOMA for specimens of

The Best Ready Made Clothing

Exhibited by them at the Mechanics' Fair in September last, must satisfy the community that the location of an establisnment is of but little importance, and that the idea of being confined to a particular section of the city, in order to obtain a

GENTEEL GARMENT,

has been rendered obsolete, by the above named award, as without prejudice the award was made to those who deserved it Being convinced themselves, that their CUSTOM WORK has not been surpassed in any point of view, still they have been obliged to stem the current against the strongest prejudices, and have, by unremitted attention to the tastes and desires of their patrons, to a very considerable extent, overcome them, resulting in a successful trade, and encouraging them to prosecute the NEW ENGLAND BRANCH OF THEIR BUSINESS, with renewed vigor, and to devote a large share of their attention the present season, to the

Highest Grade of Custom Work!

Being now prepared with every facility adapted to the various classes in the community, they can furnish any style of Garment which their notion or fancy may dictate—aiming

In point of Style and Fashion,
to be in advance of any other
CLOTHING ESTABLISHMENT!

and being at all times supplied with materials of every description, they are prepared to turn out at the shortest notice

AS GOOD AND AS GENTEEL A GARMENT,

as can be obtained in the United States, and have entire confidence in making the assertion, having Cutters constantly

ENGAGED ON CUSTOM WORK:

who are inferior to none in this region, enabling them to assure those who have favored them with their patronage, that no pains will be spared to deserve a continuance of their support—and to those who lack confidence in a Clothing Establishment, because it is situated on

COMMERCIAL STREET,

they would say that a specimen of their work can be seen in nearly everysection of the city, particularly on the backs of

THE MOST GENTEEL PEOPLE!

and to them they refer, in relation not only to the treatment which is universally tendered to them by all concerned in the

COMMERCIAL ARCADE!

but more especially in regard to the price as the Proprietors have by experience ascertained that they can furnish a

FIRST RATE GARMENT!

furnished up in town, at an exhorbitant one. Their Stock of Clothing, adapted to the

SPRING SALES!

is far superior to any previous year, and the patronage of the public is respectfully invited, whether in pursuit of a single garment or otherwise, as their stock embraces every article essential or requisite to the wardrobe of a gentleman, while its magnitude enables them to supply COUNTRY DEALERS in any quantity at the shortest notice, and on the best terms.

WHOLESALE DEALERS!

located any where from Maine to Georgia, or even in Texas, can find at this concern an assortment of Wearing Apparel adapted to their sales, and are invited before concluding their

SPRING PURCHASES!

—TO CALL—

At No. 60 Commercial street,

BOSTON,

Sign of the Monument,—and visit the proprietors of

COMMERCIAL ARCADE,

GOVE, LOCKE & COMPANY.

Boston, March 29, 1845. 3m

Witch Hazle, for Beds.

A FIRST rate article just received and for sale by CARTER & BATCHELDER.
April 19

M. TELYEA,

MERCHANT TAILOR,

MAIN STREET,

WOULD respectfully inform his friends and the public generally, that he has just returned from Boston with a select stock of

BROADCLOTHS,

such as German blue-black and English blue-black, brown and olive, and a very nice Tweed for Sack Coats or Pants.

German and English CASSIMERES AND DOESKINS of all kinds for Pants.

VESTINGS,

such as Satin and fine Cassimere, uncut Velvet, and Fancy and many other varieties of vestings.

The above will be sold Cheap for Cash and for Cash only.

M. T. as above, continues to make garments to order at short notice, and warranted as good a fit as can be obtained at any other establishment in Salem or Boston or in any of these diggins any way you can fix it.

Grateful for past favors, a continuance of public patronage is respectfully solicited.

The Spring Fashions just received from New York.
apr 12

TOPOGRAPHICAL MAP OF PALESTINE, by J. H, Colton. Compiled principally from the observations of Messrs Robinson and Smith. The religious Press and many of the secular papers have spoken in high terms of this map. For sale by G. W. & E. CRAFTS.
174 Essex St. Salem.

GOLD PENS. A superior article just received and for sale cheap by G. W. & E. CRAFTS.
174 Essex St. Salem.

NECK STOCKS, SCARFS, CRAVATS, TIES, ITALIAN CRAVATS.

A GOOD assortment of the above just received EDWARDS'S,
apr 5 14 Front street, Salem.

TAILORS' CRAYONS. A new lot of Tailors' Crayons, manufactured to my order, just received and for sale at EDWARDS', 14 Front street, may 10 Salem.

From the London Punch.

MRS CAUDLE'S CURTAIN LECTURES.

Mr Caudle, having come home a little late, declares that henceforth "he will have a key."

Upon my word, Mr Caudle, I think it a waste of time to come to bed at all now! The cocks will be crowing in a minute. Keeping people up till past twelve. Oh yes! you're thought a man of very fine feelings out of doors, I dare say! It's a pity you haven't a little feeling for those belonging to you at home. A nice hour to keep people out of their beds! Why did I set up then? Because I chose to sit up—but that's my thanks. No, it's no use your talking, Caudle; I never will let the girl sit up for you, and there's an end. What do you say? —What's the use of two sitting up? That's my business. No, Caudle, it's no such thing. I don't sit up because I may have the pleasure of talking about it; and you're an ungrateful, unfeeling creature. to say so. I sit up because I choose it, and if you don't come home all the night long—and 'twill soon come to that, I've no doubt— still I'll never go to bed, so don't think it.

"Oh yes! the time runs away very pleasantly with you men at your clubs—selfish creatures! You can laugh and sing, and tell stories, and never think of the clock; never think there's such a person as a wife belonging to you. It's nothing to you that a poor woman's sitting up, and telling the minutes, and seeing all sorts of things in the fire—and sometimes thinking that something dreadful has happened to you—more fool she to care a straw about you! This is all nothing.—Oh no! when a woman's once married she's a slave—worse than a slave—and must bear it all!

"And what you men can find to talk about I onn't think; Instead of a man sitting every night at home with his wife, and going to bed at a Christian hour,—going to a club, to meet a set of people who don't care a button for him, it's monstrous; What do you say? You only go once a week? That's nothing at all to do with it; you might as well go every night; and I dare say you will soon. But if you do, you may get in as you can; I won't sit up for you, I can tell you.

"My health's being destroyed night after night and—oh, don't say it's only once a week; I tell you that's nothing to do with it—if you had any eyes, you would see how ill I am, but you've no eyes for any body belonging to you; oh no! your eyes are for people out of doors. It's very well for you to call me a foolish, aggravating woman; I should like to see the woman who'd sit up for you as I do. You didn't want me to sit up! Yes, yes; that's your thanks—that's your gratitude; I'm to ruin my health, and to be abused for it. Nice principles you've got at that club, Mr Caudle.

"But there's one comfort—one great comfort; it can't last long: I'm sinking; I feel it though I never say anything about it; but I know my own feelings, and I say it can't last long. And then I should like to know who'll sit up for you;—Then I should like to know how your second wife, what do I say? You'll never be troubled with another? Troubled, indeed! I never troubled you Caudle. No; it's you who've troubled me; and you know it; though like a foolish woman I've borne it all, and never said a word about it. But it can't last—that's one blessing!

"Oh, if a woman could only know what she'd have to suffer, before she was married; Don't tell me you want to go to sleep! if you want to go to sleep, you should come home at proper hours! It's time to get up, for what I know, now. Should n't wonder if you hear the milkman in five minutes; there's the sparrows up already; yes, I say the sparrows; and, Caudle, you ought to blush to hear 'em. You don't hear 'em? Ha! you won't hear 'em you mean; I hear 'em. No' Mr Caudle; it isn't the wind whistling in the key-hole; I'm not quite foolish, though you may think so. I hope I know wind from a sparrow.

"Ha! when I think what a man you were before we were married; but you're now another person; quite an altered creature. But I suppose you're all alike; I dare say every poor woman's troubled and put upon, though I should hope not so much staying out, and—

"What! You'll have a key? Will you! Not while I'm alive, Mr Caudle. I'm not going to bed with the door upon the latch for you or the best man breathing. You won't have a latch—you'll have a Chubb's lock? Will you? I'll have no Chubb here, I can tell you. What do you say? You'll have the lock put on to-morrow? Well, try it; that's all I say, Caudle, try it. I won't let you put me in a passion; but all I say is—try it.

"A respectable thing, that, for a married man to carry about with him—a street-door key! That tells a tale, I think. A nice thing for the father of a family! A key! What, to let yourself in and out when you please! To come in like a thief in the middle of the night, instead of knocking at the door like a decent person! Oh, don't tell me that you only want to prevent me sitting up—if I choose to sit up what's that to you?—Some wives, indeed, would make a noise about sitting up, but you're no reason to complain—goodness knows!

"Well, upon my word, I've lived to hear something. Carry the street-door key about with you! I've heard of such things with old good-for-nothing bachelors, with nobody to care what became of 'em: but for a married man to leave his wife and children in a house with the door upon the latch—don't talk to me about Chubbs, it's all the same—a great deal you must care for us. Yes it's very well for you to say, that you only want the key for peace and quietness—what's it to you, if I like to sit up?—You've no business to complain; it can't distress you. Now, it's no use your talking; all I say is this, Caudle; if you send a man to put on any lock here, I'll call in a policeman; as I'm your married wife, I will!

"No, I think when a man comes to have the street-door key. the sooner he turns bachelor again the better. I'm sure, Caudle, I don't want to be any clog upon you. Now, it's no use your telling me to hold my tongue, for I—What? I give you the headache, do I? No, I don't Caudle; it's your club that gives you the head-ache; it's your smoke, and your—well! if ever I knew such a man in all my life! there's no saying a word to you! You go out, and treat yourself like an emperor—and come home at twelve at night, or any hour, for what I know—and then you threaten to have a key, and—and—and—and——"

"I did get to sleep at last," says Caudle, "amidst the falling sentences of 'take children into a lodging,'—'separate maintenance,'—'won't be made a slave of,'—and so forth."

A bill has been introduced into Parliament providing that maliciously injuring rare articles in public museums shall be punished by imprisonment for two years, and if a male, to be once, twice, or thrice publicly whipped! Civilisation that.

If you have lost your credit: be industrous and you will gain it.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS

SECRETARY'S OFFICE, Boston, April 12, 1845. By a Resolve of the General Court, at its recent session, the Secratary was "authorized and directed to receive such Muster Rolls, and other evidences of service in the war of the Revolution, as it may be in his power to obtain by gift or loan from the present possessors."

Numerous Muster Rolls, and other papers furnishing evidence of revolutionary service, have been collected in the Secratary's office, where they are bound and indexed, and are constantly under examination for the purpose of establishing claims under the Pension Laws of the United States. They are also valuable historical documents, and, in the custody of this office, will be kept securely, and, by means of the full indexes here prepared, may be conveniently consulted.

The collection in the public archives, is however, incomplete. It is believed that that there are, in different parts of the Commonwealth, many Muster Rolls, and other like papers, in the possession of the families of deceased officers, and in other private hands. In this situation they are of little utility, besides being liable to be lost, while frequently, by their means, if placed in this office, old soldiers and their families, now suffering in age and poverty, would be able to establish claims to valuable pensions.

Persons having such documents in their possession, and willing to give or loan them to the Commonwealth, are respectfully requested to forward a brief description of them to the subscriber, who will send for them, unless they prove to be duplicates of rolls already here.

apr 26 JOHN G. PALFREY.

EDWARDS' LINIMENT.

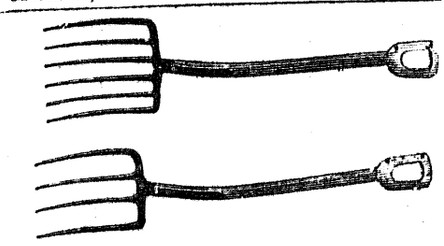
For Sprains, Cuts, Bruises, Stiffened or Swelled Joints, Chilblains, Chapped Hands, Numbness and Rheumatism.

THIS invaluable artidle is now for the first time offered to the public, after having been in use for twenty years, with unusual and astonishing success within the circle of the proprietor's immediate influence. It has received the unqualified approbation of some eminent Physicians, and also Mariners and Mechanics.

It is also recommended, and more than a thousand cases might be cited, when it has been used for Horses in cases of lameness or when galled, &c. &c.

The public are assured that in offering the above we do recommend that which has not the least semblance of QUACKERY, but on the contrary it has done great and lasting good in its efficacious power and healing qualities.

As this medicine has been so long known in Salem and its vicinity, and as there are many that would avail themselves of it if they knew where it could be obtained, therefore the subsciber would now offer it to the public. It will be found always on hand and prepared by the subscriber.



BENJ. EDWARDS,
No. 14 Front street, Salem, Mass.

Wanted—trusty and worthy AGENTS in the neighboring towns and vicinity.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENTS.

DANIELS, POOR & CO., Danvers, Mass.
Benjamin F. Browne, Salem Mass.
Smith & Fowle, Boston, "
H. F. Skerry, Bangor, Me.
Charles Whipple, Bookseller, Newburyport.
Wm. R. Preston, Portsmouth, N. H.
John S. Caldwell, Belfast. Me.
Wm. H. Palmer, Lynnfield.
Joseph Edwards, jr., Lynn.
Charles Edwards, Marblehead.
Wm. Edwards, Beverly.

March 15, 1845. tf

J. & H. HALE,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
HARD WARE GOODS AND CUTLERY,
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
HOUSE KEEPING ARTICLES AND FANCY GOODS,
Agricultural Tools and Ploughs
PLOUGH CASTINGS, FRICTION ROLLERS AND CRANKS,
Iron and Copper Pumps and Lead Pipe,
WINDOW GLASS,
CAMPHENE,
CAMPHENE LAMPS, HANGING, SIDE AND ASTRAL—A GREAT VARIETY OF STYLES,
Cut Glass, Britannia, Brass, Bronze and Mantle Lamps,
CARPENTER'S TOOLS,
HOUSE TRIMMINGS,
Shoe Makers' Tools, Nails, Thread and Pegs,
BOILER DOORS AND OVEN MOUTHS,
Furnaces, Cast Iron Hollow Ware, Tubs, Pails, Mats, Cut Nails, Emery, Zinc, Lead, &c.
No. 215 Essex Street, SALEM, Mass.

march 15 tf

G. W & E. CRAFTS,
BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURERS AND STATIONERS,
174 ESSEX STREET, SALEM,

HAVE constantly on hand, and will manufacture to order, all kinds of Blank Books, from the best paper, ruled to any pattern, and bound in a neat and substantial manner.

FINE STATIONERY,

of almost ever description, adapted for counting rooms and schools, comprising in part, Letter and Writing Papers, ruled and plain; Drawing Papers; Note. Tissue and Wrapping Papers; Wafers; Sealing Wax; Seals and Steel Pens of every variety; Quills of every description; wafer Cups; sand boxes; writing fluids and inks; penknives; razors, &c.

PRINTING, RULING AND BINDING.

Printing of shop bills, cards, bill heads, catalogues. &c. executed in the neatest manner and on the best terms. Ruling, to any pattern desired, at short notice. Binding, of every description, executed with despatch.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

A constant supply of school books, of the best editions, together with every kind of School Stationery. Also, all kinds of miscellaneous books furnished at the lowest rates. mch 15

ADAMS & RICHARDSON,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
HARDWARE.
MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS FOR THE SALE OF
Cut Nails, White Lead, Sheet Lead and Lead Pipe,
NO. 207 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.

Joseph Adams,
C. M. Richardson,
march 15 tf

New Furniture Store.

SALEM FURNITURE & FEATHER WARE-HOUSE.

205 1-2 ESSEX STREET. 205 1-2

(Two Doors East from the Market,)

JOSEPH WALLIS would respectfully inform his friends and the public that he has taken the rooms recently occupied by T. Needham, Esq., where he will keep constantly on hand and for sale an extensive and well selected assortment of which he will sell at the lowest cash prices, among which may be found,

CABINET FURNITURE,

Sofas, Sofa Beds; Windlass, Cot Trundle and common Bedsteads; Secretaries; Bureaus; Mahogany, Card, Work, Centre and Dining Tables;—Mahogany, Cane-seat and common Chairs; Mahogany, Cane-back and common Rocking Chairs;—Children's Toy, Rocking and Dining Chairs; Settees and Settee Cradles; Cribs; Grecian and common Wash Stands; Portable Sinks; Portable and Gentleman's Writing Desks, Toilet, Dining and common Pine Tables; Looking Glasses; Swing and Toilet Glasses. Fancy Boxes, a great variety;—Mattresses; and every article usually found in his line of business.

CLOCKS.

J. W. intends keeping on hand a large and well selected assortment of Wood and Brass Clocks from the best of manufacturers—all of which we can feel confident in warranting. Those about purchasing this article will do well to call.

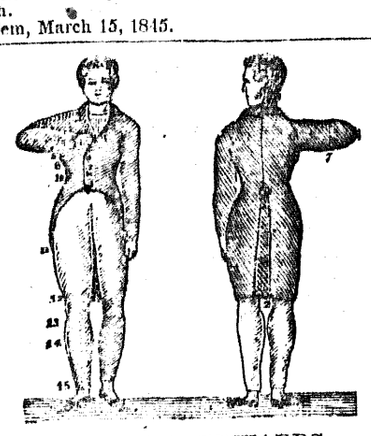
FEATHERS.

Live Geese and common Feathers; a great variety.

N B. J. W. will still continue to Manufacture FURNITURE at the Old Stand, No 29 Lafayette, corner of Ward street, where he will keep on hand a good assortment of

Cabinet Furniture, Feathers, Looking Glasses and Clocks.

Salem, April 12, 1845.



S. R. BOTT,
DRAPER & TAILOR,
No. 148 Essex Street, Salem,

TAKES this method of informing the public of Danvers and vicinity that he has for sale one of the richest and BEST selected assortments of Broadcloths, Cassimeres & Vestings ever before offered in Salem. The Stock is of the latest Spring and Summer styles, and cannot be surpassed by any establishment in the city, which will be sold by the yard, or made into Garments, in a style that CANNOT be surpassed in this or any other city.

☞Strangers from the country would do well to call at this establishment, as they select their Goods with the most perfect confidenee, that each article is as good in quality, and as low in price as can be obtained at any other store.

N. B. The report of Fashions received every month.

Salem, March 15, 1845.

BENJAMIN EDWARDS,
DRAPER & TAILOR,
No. 14 FRONT STREET, SALEM.

GARMENTS Cut and Made to order, and Fashionably, and warranted to give entire satisfaction

Constantly on hand, a good assortment of

BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES, AND VESTINGS.

Also—Neck Stocks, Italian Cravats, Scarfs, Shirt Bosoms, Collars, Feetings, Braces, Umbrellas, Hair and Clothes Brushes, Cologne Water, Wallets,

and other articles necessary for Gentlemen's use.

Grateful for the very liberal patronage which has heretofore been bestowed upon the establisment, he hopes by care and attention to business to merit a continuance.

Any order for Goods in the TAILORING LINE, attended to with fidelity and despatch.

Any of the above articles if not on hand when called for, will be furnished at short notice.

mch 15 tf

POOLE & STEDMAN,
MAKERS OF
CARRIAGES, HARNESSES, TRUNKS, &c.

THE subscribers having formed a Co-partnership under the above firm, are ready to attend to any orders in their line.

Particular attention paid to repairing.

S. A. POOLE,
G. B. STEDMAN.

N. B. Valises, Ladies' Satchels, Carpet Bags, &c. constantly on hand and for sale cheap.

Corner of Grove and Main Streets.

Danvers, March 15.

PERIODICALS, PAPERS, &c.

LUTHER CHANDLER, GENERAL AGENT for the sale of all the principal Periodicals, Newspapers, &c., and will furnish them to all persons who may wish to subscribe; among which are

Graham's Magazine,	Harper's Pictorial Bible,
Ladies' National do,	Verplanck's Shakspeare,
Arthur's Lady's do,	Phil Saturday Courier,
Christian Family Mag.,	Neal's Gazette,
Gentlemen's Magazine,	New York Mirror,
Godey's Lady's Book,	Frost's Pictorial World,

The above and all the principal periodicals and papers will be furnished promptly.

☞BOOKS BOUND at the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

Orders may be left at J. SHED'S, opposite the Monument, South Danvers. 1y mch 29

Danvers Express and Baggage Waggon

LEAVES Danvers and Boston, daily (Sundays excepted.)

All orders left at McIntire's Hotel, or Poole & Jacobs' store Danvers, No. 14 Blackstone, and No. 1 Fulton streets, Boston, will be promptly attended to.

Goods handled with care.

S. F. TOWN.

April 19, 1845. 1 y

POOLE & JACOBS,
MANUFACTURERS OF
Boot and Shoe Linings, Skivers,
AND BINDINGS,
AND DEALERS IN
WOOL,
MAIN ST., DANVERS, MASS.

GERMAN CLOTHS.—A lot of Superb German Twilled Blue Black Broadcloths for Dress Coats, just received and selling cheap at

May 3 EDWARDS'S, 14 Front st.

Overhauls.

A GOOD assortment will be constantly kept on hand, at EDWARDS',

apr 26 14 Front street, Salem.

TWEED COATS. Another lot of Tweed Coats, just received and selling cheaper than the last lot may 10 at EDWARDS', 14 Front street Salem.

Great Bargains

ARE NOW BEING HAD AT THE

Washington Street Clothing Store, Salem.

GARMENTS of all description may be obtained at prices which cannot fail to give entire satisfaction.

Great care has been taken in the getting up of every garment, all of which is warranted equal, if not superior to any Clothing in the city.

The subscriber continues to take measures as formerly, and all Garments bespoken, will be made according to the wishes of the customer, and will guarantee both the style and fit.

☞BOY WANTED, as an Apprentice.

S. CHAMBERLAIN, JR.

Salem, March, 15. tf

ROOM PAPERS.

☞2000 ROLLS.☜

OF the newest and most desirable patterns of Philanelphia and New York Room PAPERS, selected with great care from the different manufacturers in Philadelphia and New York.

Also 8000 rolls of almost every variety of patterns of FRENCH and AMERICAN manufacture of the best and cheapest patterns.

The above having been bought for cash will be sold at a small advance on the cost,—as cheap or cheaper than can be bought in Boston or elsewhere.

☞Please call and examine at the Bookstore of W. & S. B. IVES Stearns' Building.

Salem April 18, 1845. 2 m.

CHARLES H. MANNING,
CABINET MAKER,
Near the Sign of the Lamb, Main Street,
DANVERS, MASS.

FURNITURE manufactured on the most reasonable terms. Also—CURRIER'S TABLES made and repaired cheap.

SHOE-MAKERS' PEGGING BENCHES made as above. oct 15

Fales' Cathartic, or Vegetable
PURGATIVE LOZENGES.

ARE the best and most popular medicines for people of all ages, country, and climates, and in every condition of life. They are compounded of the essences of vegetables from many nations. Their taste is inexpressibly delightful. They cause no pain in their operations, but the first change of feeling after taking them is, that of pleasure, and they cleanse the stomach and bowels more perfectly than any other purgative medicines.

The most wonderful and surprising cures have been effected by them in different parts of the earth. How these purgative lozenges do speedily purify the blood, and substitute health for sickness, is a mystery to the most eminent members of the healing art. Such purgative medicines must become universal, and supersede the use of all other purgative compounds; and as long as disease continues to infest [illegible] long will these Lozenges remain unrivalled in all coming time throughout the world. Every person who travels should carry them—every family should keep them—and every sick man, woman, or child should take them.

FALES' WORM LOZENGES,

Are a safe and sure remedy for worms. Children love them. They act like a charm in removing the symptoms such as starting in sleep, grating the teeth paleness about the mouth and nose, occasional sickness at stomach, precarious appetite, swelled bowels, and general feverish habit, The child falls into a quiet sleep, and the worms are stupified and expelled, and the child, as far as heard from, in every instance has been cured. Price, 25 cents per box, with full directions; sold at Commercial street, Boston,

FALES' COUGH LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common Colds and Coughs, Whooping Cough, Inflamation of the Throat and Lungs, in the Croup or Hives, and more certain to act satisfactory than the celebrated Hive Syrup. The most happy effect is obtained in a few moments; the symptoms disappear and the disease is broken up by the magical effect of these Lozenges. Full directions accompany each box, are found at the Depositopy, 96 Commercial staeet, Boston.

FALES' DYSENTERY LOZENGES,

Are a safe and agreeble temedy for Dysentery, Diarhœa and Bowel Complaints of children. Particular attention must be paid to the directions which are on each box.

FALES' CAMPHOR LOZENGES,

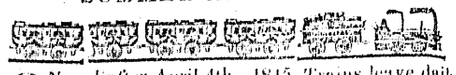
Are beneficial in all common and sick head ache, and where there is a sense of tightness or weight over the eyes, in erruptive diseases, such as Measles and Small Pox. Also in Mania, Epilepsy, Melancholy, Hysteria, in St. Vitus Dance, and in all cases of langnor and oppession of the Vital powers, may be taken with safety by women and children in all conditions. Full directions accompany each box.

FALES' CYPRIAN HAIR TONIC,

Is now so extsnsively known and justly celebrated that further comment upon it will be useless, we can say, however, that among the many thousands who have purchassed the Tonic, in this and other countries, none have returned with complaints, while thousands have expressed not only their approbation, but their wonder and admiration on beholding its effects. A few bottles only can be had at 96 Commercial street, Boston.

CLEAR OUT YOUR RATS.

The gnawing and antics of these destructive creatures can be hushed forever in your house and store, if you will procure a box of the genuine.



MADAGASCAR RAT EXTERMINATOR,

and use it according to direction. You cannot depend upon it unless obtained at J. J. FALES' No. 96 Commercial street Boston.

—AGENTS—

Salem, J. S. HARRISON, J. Stone, jr., H. Whipple, S Badger, jr; Lynn, J. Moulton jr., Geo. Lummus, Wm. Cogswell, Wm. L Ladd; Swampscot, W. Thompson; Marblehead, E. Arnold. Wm. Stacey; Danvers, S. Proctor, Jos Shed, New Mills, H. S Pope, A. P Perley & Co, C. Simonds, Calder & Foster; Topsfield, B. P. Adams; Beverly. A N Clark. ep6m mch 29

EASTERN RAILRAOD.
SUMMER ARRANGMENT.

ON and after April 4th, 1845, Trains leave daily (Sundays excepted.)

Boston for Portland, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P. M.
" Portsmouth, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 5 1-2 P.M.
" Somersworth, Great Falls, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P.M.
" for Newburyport, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 and 5 1-2 P.M.
" for Salem, 7 1-4, 9, A.M., 12 1-4 2 1-2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2, 7 1-2 P.M.

Salem for Portland, 8 A.M., 3 1-4 P.M.
Salem for Portsmouth and Newburyport, 8 A.M., 3 1-4, 6 1-4 P.M.
Portland for Boston, 7 1-2 A.M., 3 P.M.
Saco for Boston, 8 A.M., 3 1-2 P.M.
Somersworth, Great Falls for Boston, 8 3-4 A.M., 4 1-4 P.M.
South Berwick lot Boston, 9 1-4 A M, 4 3-4 P.M.
Portsmouth for Boston, 6 1-2, 10,* A.M., 5 1-2* P.M.
Newburyp't for Boston, 7 1-4, 10 3-4* AM. 6 1-4* P.M.
Salem for Boston, 7 1-2, 8 1-2, 10 1-4 11 3-4,* A.M. 2 1-4, 5, 7,* P.M.

*Or on their arrival from the East.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Trains leave Marblehead for Salem, at 7 1-4, 8 1-4, 10, A.M.; 2, 4, 4 3-4, 7, P.M.

Leave Salem for Marblehead, at 8, 9 3-4 A. M 1, 3 1-4, 4 1-4, 6 1-4, 8 1-4 P. M.

A Merchandize Train will leave Boston, Portland and all intermediate places every day.

Freight Office in Boston, No. 17 Merchants Row, and on the line of the road at the several Depots.

JOHN KINSMAN,
apr 12 Master of Transportation.

Summer Arrangement of the
DANVERS AND SALEM
HOURLY COACHES

THE Danvers and Salem Hourly Coaches will in connection with the Eastern Railroad, leave Danvers and Salem at the following hours, viz:

Leave Danvers at	7	A.M.	Leave Salem at	8	A.M.
" "	8		" "	9	1-2
" "	9 3-4		" "	11	1-2
" "	11 1-4		" "	12	3-4
" "	1 3-4	P M.	" "	3	P.M.
" "	2 3-4		" "	4
" "	4 1-2		" "	6
" "	6 1-2		" "	8

For seats apply at Macintire's Hotel, or at Joseph G Shed's store in Danvers, and at the Essex House and Salem Hotel in Salem.

Railroad passengers taken at the depot on the arrival of the cars from Boston and the East.

☞Extra Coaches furnished at any hour on reasonable terms

SYMONDS & TEEL.

apr 19 tf

☞PAPER HANGINGS.☜

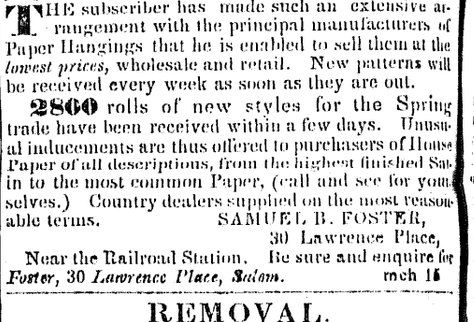
THE subscriber has made such an extensive arrangement with the principal manufacturers of Paper Hangings that he is enabled to sell them at the lowest prices, wholesale and retail. New patterns will be received every week as soon as they are out.

2800 rolls of new styles for the Spring trade have been received within a few days. Unusual inducements are thus offered to purchasers of House Paper of all descriptions, from the highest finished Satin to the most common Paper, (call and see for yourselves.) Country dealers supplied on the most reasonable terms. SAMUEL B. FOSTER,
30 Lawrence Place,

Near the Railroad Station. Be sure and enquire for Foster, 30 Lawrence Place, Salem. mch 15

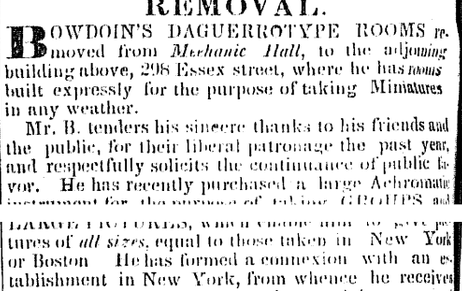
REMOVAL.

BOWDOIN'S DAGUERROTYPE ROOMS removed from Mechanic Hall, to the adjoining building above, 298 Essex street, where he has rooms built expressly for the purpose of taking Miniatures in any weather.



Mr. B. tenders his sincere thanks to his friends and the public, for their liberal patronage the past year, and respectfully solicits the continuance of public favor. He has recently purchased a large Achromatic instrument for the purpose of taking GROUPS and LARGE PICTURES, which enable him to give pictures of all sizes, equal to those taken in New York or Boston He has formed a connexion with an establishment in New York, from whence he receives all the new improvements, and materials connected with the Art, which will enable him to give better pictures for less prices than can be obtained in Boston.

Miniatures set in every variety of Lockets, Frames, Cases, &c.



☞Persons visiting Salem, and those about going to sea, can have a perfect likeness completed in a few minutes' time.

 Miniatures set in a neat Morocco Case for $1 50. Exhibition rooms open to visiters through the day.

Salem, March 15. tf

IMPROVED CULITVATORS,
A complete assortment now on hand, at
J. & H. HALE'S,
May 3. tf 215 Essex street Salem.

JUST received a full assortment of the celebrated EAGLE PLOUGH, improved. Also, Garden Rakes & Partridge's celebrated Manure Forks, Rakes, Hoes, and Castings for repairing the various parts of almost all kinds of Ploughs now in use.

J. & H. HALE, 215 Essex st. Salem.
May 3

WANTED.

10 GOOD COATMAKERS wanted immediately, to whom steady employment and good wages will be given.

Also—A BOY as an APPRENTICE, by
S. R. BOTT,
mch 15 No. 148 Essex Street. Salem.

GRASS SEED.

3000 POUNDS CLOVER SEED;
50 bags Red Top Seed;
150 bushels Herds Grass Seed;
Orchard Grass and White Clover Seed—for sale by
S. CHAMBERLAIN & SON,
march 15 Front Street, Salem.

DANVERS COURIER.

VOL. 1. DANVERS, (MASS.) SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 24, 1845. NUMBER 10.

THE DANVERS COURIER
IS PUBLISHED BY
GEORGE R. CARLTON,
EVERY SATURDAY MORNING,
A few doors North of Mackintire's Hotel,
CENTRAL ST.—SOUTH DANVERS.

Terms—$1 50 if paid in advance, or $2 00, if not paid within one month of the time of subscribing.

The carriers are not allowed to sell any copies of the Courier. Single copies may be obtained at the office, at 5 cents each.

Advertisements will be inserted on favorable terms.

POETRY.

FOR THE COURIER.

THE OCEAN.

Thou ever-moving—never-weary chain,
Whose deep unfathomed waste spreads far and wide;
From east to west in one continuous train,
Majestic waves roll o'er thy boundless tide.

E'er since Creation's dawn, thy constant reign
Man hath beheld, and heard thy billows roar;
As oft it spoke thy own immortal name,
And winds conveyed it to the bounding shore.

Oh—could we gaze within thy caverns deep,
What countless treasures should we there behold!
How many millions in thy bosom sleep,
O'er whom thy waters have for ages rolled.

Yes, far beneath thy dark and briny waves,
There sleep in gloom profound the graveless dead;
Where not an eye hath seen thy coral caves,
Where not a sun-beam ever yet was shed.

'Tis when my thoughts meet thy triumphant roll,
And in thy dark and mystic caverns leap,
That glowing Fancy paints upon my soul,
The magic wonders of the mighty Deep.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Mr. Courier—I am so old-fashioned in my notions that I think every thing of regularity and uniformity. When I have done the same thing in the same manner often or long enough to have it become a habit, if it be not against good morals, it seems to me a sort of impiety or jacobinism to cease doing it, or to do it in a new way. In this I follow nature—and I should as soon think of the eternal flow of their cycles or of one year having more or less days and nights in its round than another, as I should of wilfully changing my hour of going to bed, or the number of pipes I smoke between sunrise and sunset.—Nature, I may add, is regular as clockwork. To be sure, Leap-year forms a sort of exception to the uniform length of the annual revolution, but then this is no wanton variation, but an integral part of the fixed order—just as I always smoke one or two more pipes on Thanksgiving day, and one or two less on Fast day, or take an extra glass of Port at Christmas, and an additional mint-julep on the glorious Fourth of July. I am aware that people in general don't sympathize with me—that they are frivolous and fickle—and that every day brings forth some new fashion or freak, and consigns to oblivion some venerable and worthy custom. But it's wrong, Mr. Courier. There's neither rhyme nor reason in it. I'm not sure that this changeableness and change—this dancing in high-heeled boots instead of neat pumps and white silk stockings, this whirling along by steam instead of being drawn over the road in a good old lumbering coach, by horses undoubtedly made by Providence for the very purpose. I say I'm not sure that all this isn't sinful and wicked. I don't know what we're coming to. The innovating distemper, not content with sacrificing small-clothes and turnpikes, has even attacked the ancient, conservative business of agriculture. Folks now-a-days calmly talk of fertilizing their land by artificial electricity—as though the sunshine and rain of Heaven, with what lightning God chooses to send in thunder-storms, were not enough for all reasonable purposes.

"By my life, this day grows wondrous hot;
Some airy devil hovers in the sky."

What will turn up next I can't guess. Possibly some new way will be proposed of generating the species—some process like that which Proteus revealed to the shepherd Aristœus for reproducing the lost race of bees. Perhaps too, praying machines will be invented—something of the kind seems called for in these God-forsaken days—and instead of each one being obliged to say for himself, "Give us this day our daily bread," an automaton will supplicate the divine mercy and protection in behalf of a whole household; or perched aloft in the Church-tower, and there morning and night uttering its speech like the clock which chimes the hours, will satisfy the consciences and save the time of an entire village.

When I began my sheet, Mr. Courier, what I wanted to say, was, that as I had fallen into a habit of gossiping with you hebdomadally, I could not bear the thought of having missed even one week, and should not have done so if I could have helped it; and that this was the only motive-power which drove my quill at the present sitting, inasmuch as I still feel physically and mentally incapable of saying anything worthy of your perusal. The truth is, even Homer sometimes nods—and brisk bachelor as I am, hale and hearty and in good marriageable condition, I have yet had to bow to the mandate of disease and acknowledge myself an invalid. If pain and the infirmity of this poor miserable tabernacle of ours were all the consequence of sickness, I would laugh at fit and fever. But in the cunning mechanism of our natures, the delicate tissues of the mind and body are more or less interwoven with each other—and as for myself, whenever faintness comes upon my limbs, there is sure to fall a sickening blight upon my spirits. I won't acknowledge that I'm nervous, for that is a weakness of old ladies. I suppose I have a morbid fancy—and I'll tell you one way in which it disports itself. The author of Eothen, a wonderfully clever writer, in illustrating the effect produced upon one's mind by the mere vastness of the great Pyramid, speaks of a strange kind of mental disease of which he was the victim, when quite young and in delicate health. In a state of perfect consciousness, without the power of speech or motion, his brain was oppressed to distraction by the presence of a single and abstract idea, the idea of solid Immensity. Something like this has been my misfortune; and not only in childhood, but through life up to the present hour. It afflicts me occasionally when in seeming good health, but always when I'm unwell. I know not how to describe it so as to make you understand me, but instead of being a simple idea of immensity, it is an abstract idea of impressibility—of impressible matter—joined to the abstract idea of increase—of ever increasing size.—If you can remember the sensation you experience in pressing with your hand any yielding substance, a well-stuffed cushion or a bag of wool, and can imagine this substance gradually and continually swelling from its natural bulk into never-ending vastness, you may gain some faint notion of what it is impossible for me to describe or explain in any clearer way. But often, when under the very eye of the sun, as well as when I lie awake in the darkness of midnight, the horror of this visitation comes upon me and nearly crazes my brain. The whole world, the air, the earth, my own body, every object, seems to possess these peculiar qualities. Or rather, the abstract ideas of these qualities, wholly engross my soul and sense, and my mind can think of nothing, my eye can see, my hand can touch nothing, which is not affected by and endued with them. The physical effect is more akin to the feeling of suffocation than any thing else I can think of.—This is one of the creations of my "weak-hinged fancy," and from this, judge of the rest—ex uno disce omnes.

It seems hard and unnatural, Mr. Courier, that at this season of the year, when all nature is full of new life and beauty, when the earth has donned her brightest robes, and the sky wears a warmer tint, and the brooks leap along in laughter, and the birds sing in joy, and the flowers send up praise, in incense, it seems hard that at such a time disease should make us his victims and render our hours heavy and sad. Often during the last fortnight have I sat at my window and looked out upon the trees that shade my dwelling, the elms, the pale, mourning willow, and the chesnut with its fully shine buds swelling and bursting into foliage and flowers of a coloring touches of art, and I have seen the very leaves dance and quiver with delight; and stretching my eye over pleasant meadows and distant hills on which the sunlight was sleeping, I have seen the flocks and herds frisking and gambolling in joy, seeming to breathe new life in the warm gales and to rejoice in the luxury of very existence.—And yet, while thus all nature, animate and inanimate, was revelling in such happiness, my fevered hand could scarcely support my aching head, and my heart, sick and weary, was almost dying within me. Such is life, and such the contrasts of our common being—weaving side by side in its eventful web, threads of light and shade, now darkening with clouds the summer sunshine, now gilding the storm with the light of the rainbow.

I've tried the Doctors, Mr. Courier, but there's no use in it. Once I thought everything of the Medical Faculty, and was accustomed to answer the impertinence of Thomsonians, Homeopathists and all such characters, by saying I had rather be killed by science than cured by quackery. But now, like his Majesty in "All's well," I have abandoned my physicians, under whose practises I have persecuted time with hope; finding, like him, no other advantage in the process but only the losing of hope by time. So with Macbeth I say,

"Throw physic to the dogs, I'll none of it."

Unable to act upon the mind—"to minister to a mind diseased," through the body, I have tried to act upon the body through the mind,

"And with some sweet oblivious antidote,
Cleanse the stuff'd bosom of that perilous stuff
Which weighs upon the heart."

Among other ways, I have sought to amuse myself by studying the season and its products; and going from Nature to the works of her votaries, I have read all that the poets have written of Spring, selecting the most delicate passages, and weaving them into a sort of vernal anthology. But even this delightful employment, which ought to send a thrill of pleasure through a dead man's bones, has failed to make me well. As a last resort, a sort of pis-aller, I have tried to write to you, Mr. Courier; and though I have made out but poorly, it seems already as though it had done me some good. Should this prove to be the case, you shall soon receive an expression of my gratitude in the shape of another communication—and I trust it will contain something more than these ægria somnia vana, these silly dreams of a sick man. Meanwhile I remain as ever,

Your obedient servant,
NEWMAN NOGGS.

SELECTED TALE.

A NIGHT IN THE CLOUDS.

Translated for the Courier, from the French.

CHAPTER I.

It was a Sunday in the month of August; the day was almost ended, and the population of Mannheim were returning to the city in joyous crowds. All the temporary gardens formed on the sites of the ruined fortifications had become silent and deserted, save a single one, where resounded still the hum of voices, and the sound of instruments.

This was the Cottage Garden, then celebrated at Mannheim for its rural balls, carrousels, fire-works, and its captive balloons.

These last had for a long time especially attracted the crowd from their novelty. Although the admirable discovery of the Montgolfiers had already become old, it was a new idea to use it as a means of amusement; but its success had been so universal and rapid in Germany, that all public gardens were furnished with balloons, and an ascension had become a thing almost as simple and as little feared, as an excursion upon the Rhine.

It is true that these aerial voyages were short, and almost free from danger. Strongly fastened to the ground by cords that could be lengthened or shortened at will, the balloon could rise only to the height desired by the aeronauts, and seldom exceeded, in the most daring ascensions, the summits of the trees.

In the mean time the crowd had forsaken the outskirts of the garden, to collect in the great plain where the fire-works were prepared. The groves had been deserted for some time, when a man, perhaps forty years old, holding by the hand a young lady, appeared at the end of one of the most shady paths. Both seemed approaching the plain, but slowly, and as if pre-occupied with some serious idea.

After a long silence, the man said quickly, and with an energetic gesture;

'No, my sister, no,—while I live I cannot forgive Christian Loffman for having disputed with me the inheritance of his cousin! for God knows that this legacy is not a gift, but a payment of what was justly due to me by the deceased.'

'His will should have declared it then, Michel,' observed the young lady.

'And because it has not—I shall be despoiled of that which is due me, Florence! Because in the pangs of death he has neglected to say all, Michel Ritter will be accused of interested attentions by this Loffman!'

'Alas! he does not know us, my brother,' said the girl mildly; 'others have awakened in him these suspicions, and he has harbored them because it was his interest to do so."

'So,' replied Michel bitterly, 'the land that I have cultivated for twenty years, and acquired by my labor, will be taken from me by a stranger who has no other claim than the accident of birth.'

'The decision is not yet pronounced,' interrupted Florence.

'Ah! I expect but little,' said he; 'this Loffman is young, active—he has doubtless friends who will urge his claims.—Perhaps the judgement which despoils me is already pronounced.'

Florence sighed; Ritter observed it.

'Let us go,' said he with some effort, 'here am I, talking with you of this business, after having brought you here to drive it from your mind and to forget it. I wish for some striking spectacle, some novel sensation, which can snatch me from this harrassing contemplation.'

As he finished these words they reached a turn in the path, and found themselves at the entrance of a bower that they had not before perceived; it was the spot from which the ascents of the balloon were made. A captive balloon floated gracefully a few feet above their heads, and sustained an elegant car, which, in following its vibrations seemed to float gently upon the green.

Florence could not retain a cry of surprise and delight. Having lived far from the city, this was the first time that she had seen a balloon near, and in all its details. She drew near to it with her brother.

'Two seats more!' cried the guardian who attended to loosen the cords.

Michel looked at the car, in which a young man had just seated himself, with a travelling dress, and holding in his hands one of those pikes used in excursions on the mountains.

'Two seats!' repeated the man with a smile, and turning towards Florence; 'would not you like to take a journey above the trees?'

'Is there no danger?' asked Florence, doubtful what to do.

'No danger, my pretty miss,' said the guardian; 'I have already guided the voyage of more than ten thousand christians.'

'And can we descend when we please?'

'Only pull the bell-cord that you will find in the car.'

Florence seemed to hesitate. Although she felt a slight fear, the originality of such an excursion tempted her. Accustomed, too, to unite in all the acts of her brother, she told him in a moment, that she was ready to do as he pleased.

'Take a voyage in the air then,' said Michel.—And approaching to the car, he placed himself with Florence in it.

As soon as the guardian saw them seated, he loosened the cords gradually, and the balloon began slowly to rise.

As she felt herself ascending, Florence could not contain a cry, and became pale. The stranger, who was seated opposite her, reached his hand towards the string of the bell.

'Shall we return to the ground?' he asked with a smile.

'A thousand thanks, sir,' said Florence, who recovered her colour almost immediately; 'I shall become accustomed to this sensation.'

'Look, look then!" interrupted Michel: we are already above the trees.'

Florence glanced below her, and the singularity of the sight dissipated the remains of her fears.—The Cottage Garden appeared entire, and the eye could seize at the same time all its parts.

Immediately below the balloon extended the plain, covered with a dense crowd, whose confused murmurs scarcely reached the ears of our aerial travellers. The air—lighter, and charged for a moment with terrestrial perfumes, had an exciting freshness. Florence turned to her brother with a gleaming countenance.

'How grand and beautiful is everthing around us!' she exclaimed. 'Say, Michel, do you not feel a kind of intoxication, and are you not more tranquil here, more happy, than just now?'

'It is the truth,' aplied Ritter; 'the physical sensation passes even to the soul, and it seems to me that I hover above the iniquities of men, as above their dwellings. But what is in preparation now, and why does the crowd collect together upon the plain?'

'They expect the fire-works,' observed the stranger.

'In fact! see the first rockets,' said Florence.

'Why do they ascend so, one after another.'

'Ah! look, the staging which supports the principal pieces has just broken down.'

'It is all a failure.'

'Hear the cries too!'

'God forgive me! they are breaking down the railings that surround the flower beds.'

'It is a tumult of the students,' said the stranger, smiling; 'they are revenging themselves upon the garden for their disappointment.'

'How happy it is that we are not amid this tumult!' observed Florence.

'You are re-assured then,' inquired Ritter.

'Entirely.'

'Then we may ascend higher.'

He made the appointed signal; the ropes were relaxed, and the balloon rose again for some minutes, and then stopped.

The three travellers made almost at the same time a cry of admiration.

Beneath them was spread out, as far as the eye could reach, beautiful valleys sprinkled with forests, meadows, cultivated fields, and villages, whose varied forms and colors made a thousand fantastic figures. On the Wurtemberg side—the Black Forest, and the Rhine on the side of France, bounded this picture with an undulating line, while in the distance was seen the Neckar, covered with sails, and losing itself in the horizon.

'Happy country!' said the stranger as if speaking to himself, 'happy country, has where God given to man the fertile field, the navigable river and the wooded mountain!'

Michel sighed. 'Happy especially, if he had not permitted law-suits and false charges!' added he in a low voice.

The stranger turned towards Michel. 'Ah! no one knows it better than I do, sir,' said he.

'Are you then also compelled to defend your claims in the courts of justice?'

'Yes, and against an opponent who neglects no means of despoiling me,' replied the unknown.

'It is like my case,' said Michel; 'if he gains his cause, I shall lose all that I ever earned.

'And I shall lose all that the future promised.'

'The fruit of my toil will go to enrich a covetous man; said Ritter.

'All my expectation will be blasted to the profit of a hypocrite.'

'And I fear that the law will only conceal my right.'

'And I, that intrigue may overcome justice,' said the stranger.

'Ah! I see it sir,' exclaimed Michel,' our positions are the same; yon also plead against some Christian Loffman.'

'that is my own name.'

'Yours?'

'And my adversary is called Michel Ritter.'—

'And that is my name!'

The two men looked at each other with surprise, mingled with passion and hate; Florence seemed frightened.

'Let us descend, Michel,' said she, grasping the arm of her brother.

But he would not listen to it.

'What Mr. Loffman has just said of his opponent is a calumny!' he exclaimed, looking at the stranger with flashing eyes.

'And what Mr. Ritter has said of his, is a lie!' retorted the young man promptly.

'For Heaven's sake! let us descend,' said Florence, trembling.

'Well!' said Michel, 'the settlement of the affair will be easier upon the ground.'

'And I hope that it will be final,' added Loffman in a significant tone.

He had pulled the string of the bell, and the three travellers waited a moment in silence, but the balloon remained motionless. The young man rang a second time, then a third, with no better success.

'The guardian ought to hear us,' muttered Loffman as he pulled the cord again.

'The guardian is not there!' exclaimed Florence, who had leaned her head over the car.

'It is really so,' said Michel, looking down in his turn; 'the tumult continues, and must have struck him with fear. See that bonfire in which the mob are throwing the benches!'

'And that company of youth running through the paths and breaking the chandeliers.'

'Here they are under the balloon—God!'

'What are they doing?'

'They are letting go the cords!'—

'What?'

'Look!'—

The three travellers leaned out at the same time, as they raised a loud cry and waved their hands; but it was too late. Beleiveing the car empty, the students had cut the cords which confined it to the earth; and the balloon, rising with wonderful rapidity, soon disappeared in the mists of the evening.

CHAPTER II.

Our three travellers at first exhausted themselves in useless cries, and marks of affliction, but when they had lost from sight, first the Cottage Garden, and then the earth itself, a kind of calm, produced rather by trouble than by resignation, succeeded to their former despair.

All three remained motionless, silent, and without thought.

Their situation could not, in fact, be compared to any other. In most cases, the dangers to which a person is exposed have been anticipated by him; he is at least prepared for it by suppositions, by recitals, or by what he has read; but here all was unforeseen; nothing could be expected from one's own power, nor from the assistance of others.—Our three travellers were thus out of the sphere of man, without the least idea of the future, and condemned to that passive courage, which waits the approach of death without even the power of conjecturing the time.

Florence, almost insensible with terror, had hidden her face against the breast of her brother, who, himself vibrating between fear, surprise and grief, could find no encouragement to give her.

Christian Loffman, seated at the other end of the car, seemed less affected, and from time time to cast a glance of pity upon Michel Ritter and his sister: but the recollection of their hostillity and the reciprocal insults that had just been made, yet filled the hearts of both, and held them apart from each other, even in their common danger.

In the mean time the balloon, abandoned to the winds, sailed freely in the skies, now cleaving the air swiftly as a swallow returning to its nest, and now hovering like a vulture over the mountains. Sometimes Ritter and Loffman would lean over the edge of the car, and in the depth of darkness they could perceive a few trembling and confused lights, which indicated the siruation of the cities and villages. But by degrees these last traces of the earth had disappeared; the balloon had reached the more elevated regions, and the air grew rarer each moment. Our travellers began to feel oppressed. Deafening noises rang in their ears; sharp pains darted through their bodies; and the increasing cold chilled their benumbed limbs. Florence, whose powers were exhausted, fell down at the feet of her brother.

'What are you doing, Florence?' said he.

'I wish to sleep,' she murmured.

'Awake! awake!' said Michel, 'to sleep is to die. Sit up, Florence!'

But she remained without motion.

'Florence!' repeated Michel alarmed. 'Oh my God! she does not hear me; and no means of warming her.'—

'Take this cloak,' said a voice.

Michel raised his head, and saw Loffman,, who was relieving himself of a kind of furred robe in which he was enveloped.

'But yourself?'exclaimed Ritter, surprised and touched.

'It is for the strongest to suffer,' replied Christian, as he held up the cloak.

Michel assisted him in wrapping it about his sister; and as in doing this his hand touched that of the young man, he grasped it warmly.

'This kind act of yours,' said Michel, 'repays for all the rest, and I regret having used those words which must have offended you.'

'Regret nothing,' answered Loffman affected; 'for the greatest wrong has come from me.'

'Let us then be indulgent to each other,' said Michel. 'Each will soon have to justify before God his thoughts and his deeds; let us at least give up our ill-will before presenting ourselves to him.'

'I bear you ill-will no longer,' exclaimed Christian. 'Here is my hand, Michel Ritter, and it is the hand of a friend.'

'I accept it as such,' said Michel with tears.—'We have both been deceived, Loffman; each has believed the other had, merely because he had opposite interests, and we have slandered each other because we have not known one another. Alas! it is too often so among men; their hatreds are only from ignorance and misunderstandings. Let us both thank Providence for having united us at this hour, that we may present ourselves before God without malice in our hearts.'

'Ah! I wish to thank him with you, Michel,' said Florence, who had just revived.

'Let us pray,' said Ritter in embracing her; 'and may God forgive us as we forgive.'

At these words he uncovered his head, as also did Christian; and their hearts united in a common prayer.

As they concluded, a pale light suffused the east; it was dawn. The wind, which until then had wafted them to the upper regions, appeared suddenly to die away; the balloon began to descend gently, and a gleam of hope shone into their hearts.

The reconciliation had also re-animated their courage. Separated before by hate, each one had only himself for a comforter and support, while now there were three who could encourage and sustain each other.

The sun had now risen, and they could perceive the Badouise country. It was to them like a resurrection: they were no longer alone in that abyss of darkness, in the midst of which they had floated all the night; the sun was shining; the earth existed still! They saw it beneath them; they could perceive the rivers, the mountains, the towns; there were men, their fellow beings, whose looks followed them perhaps in the clouds, whose prayers called them back to earth.

The balloon continued to descend. At length they could distinguish the fields, the houses, the persons. Suddenly Michel raised an exclamation of joy. He had just recognized Loerrach, and farther off, upon the side of the hills, his village and his fields! The wind carried them in that direction, and they soon arrived above the meadows which bordered the hills.

Florence joined her hands and wept: she distinguished the roof of their dwelling, the grove of oaks where she was accustomed to sit and work, and the little brook which wound around the rocks. Michel himself wept. At this moment, the balloon, which had until then continued to descend, rose again slowly, borne up by a breeze.—Florence and her brother made an exclamation of despair, leaned over the edge of the car, and reached out their arms as if they would rush towards their home.

'Ah, my God! is there no way to descend?' cried Florence bathed in tears.

'There is one way,' replied Loffman, 'but it is a dangerous one.'

'Whatever it be, anything rather than this agony!' replied Ritter hastily. 'Think of this last night.'

'Yes,' said the young man; 'besides, it is our last resource.'

He raised himself upright carefully, took his pike, which he had always kept near him, and reaching it up, he tore the covering of the balloon.

When this was done, the balloon seemed to draw a heavy sigh, and shake convulsively, like an animated being which receives a wound. For a moment the uncertainty was terrible. The gas escaped furiously by the opening just made; the collapsed balloon fell with a frightful rapidity, as if it would bury itself in space. The three travellers closed their eyes, terrified and stunned.

Suddenly a loud crashing was heard, and was followed by a rude shock; they lifted their heads with terror: the balloon had just stopped in the last branches of a pine, and the car swung a few feet from the ground.

CHAPTER III.

Towards the end of the same day, Loffman and Ritter might be seen sitting at the window of a house upon the slope of a hill. It was the dwelling of Michel, who had brought his travelling companion thither, immediately after their common deliverance.

The brother and sister had thought at first only of rejoicing with him in their happiness, but the first transport of joy being over, Ritter felt awake within him the recollection of his interests so seriously threatened.

Leaning upon the wooden railing which served for a balcony, he had kept silent for some time, when Christian, whose looks wandered over the landscape, turned suddenly round and said:

'How far does your estate extend, Mr. Ritter?'

Michel started, as if this question had exposed to him the secret thought of his guest.

'Ah! you wish to report the quantity to be gained in your action,' said Ritter with some bitterness.

'Upon my soul, I did not think of it,' said Loffman, disconcerted.

'You need not blush for that,' said Ritter; 'each is confident of the justice of his own claim. I will show you the boundaries of the land.'

And he set himself to describing in succession, the woods, fields and pasture-land, which composed the estate.

'The land is remarkably well-managed,' observed Christian.

'And I have given to it all my time and attention,' replied the farmer. 'I hope still to make many improvements; but who knows how many days I shall spend here? perhaps this land has already ceased to belong to me.'

As he finished these words, Florence entered. She was troubled, and held in her hand a letter post-marked at Mannheim.

'Is it from Mr. Littoff?' asked Michel, turning pale.

'Yes,' replied Florence.

'Then the decision is pronounced, and we shall soon know——'

'He reached out, to take the letter, a trembling hand, but Florence seized it in hers, and threw a timid glance at Loffman.

'Ah! whatever happens,' said she, do not forget that you have renounced enmity.'

'That letter! give me that letter!' interrupted Michel, agitated.

Florence stepped back from him, and said more quickly, 'promise first to submit without anger to the decision.' And pointing with her finger to the pine at the foot of the hill, where the remains of the balloon were still hanging, she added:

'Recollect the night we passed above the clouds, and the vow that you made.'

Ritter and Loffman gazed at each other. There was a moment of hesitation, then both extended their hands.

'Yes,' exclaimed Michel, it shall not be said that danger only has opened our hearts to clemency. Saved by the goodness of God, let us show our gratitude by our submission. Christian Loffman, we have left our hostility in the clouds; let us not resume it again upon earth. Whatever this letter may announce, I declare that I will accept it without anger.'

'As for me, I will bless it for assuring me a friend,' added Christian, 'even should it announce the ruin of all my hopes.'

Florence then handed the letter to her brother, who opened it with a firm hand, looked it over, and turned slightly pale.

'You are in your own house, Mr. Loffman,' said Michel as he turned to the young man.

'Then the judges have decided in my favor!' exclaimed the latter joyfully.

'Here is the decision.'

Christian took the paper that Michel handed him.

'Henceforth,' continued the farmer, 'you are master of all which has belonged to your cousin; his estate is now yours.'

'An estate is not to be compared with the happiness of a friend!' interrupted Loffman as he tore the decree in pieces.

Ritter looked at him with astonishment. Florence clasped her hands.

'Yes,' resumed the young man, 'I came here as a guest, and I shall not remain here as an enemy. He who has received me so generously shall himself appoint an arbitrator to settle our claims.'

'Me?' said Ritter moved; 'ah! who shall I choose?'

Loffman turned upon Florence a glance full of tenderness, and said as he took the hand of Michel, 'It is for her who has formed the friendship, to fasten its bonds, and make the settlement between us easy.'

'How so?' asked Michel.

'By having the friends become brothers.'

Ritter looked at his sister with a smile, as if to question her by the glance, and Florence—embarassed, threw herself into his arms, and gave her hand to Loffman.

THE NEW POSTAGE BILL. For the information of our readers, we give, in a condensed form, the rates of postage upon letters, newspapers and pamphlets, as regulated by the new bill, by the last Congress which goes into operation on the first day of July next.

ON LETTERS.

Single letters, or any number of pieces not exceeding an ounce, 300 miles or less,	5 cts.
If over 300 miles,	10 "
Drop letters (not mailed)	2 "
For each additional half ounce or part thereof, add single postage thereto.

ON NEWSPAPERS.

Newspapers of 1,900 square inches or less, sent by editors or Publishers, from their offices of publication, any distance not exceeding 30 miles,	Free.
Over 30 miles and not exceeding 100,	1 ct.
Over 100 miles and out of the State,	1 1-2
All sizes over 1,900 square inches, postage same as pamphlets.

ON PAMPHLETS, &c.

Pamphlets, magazines and periodicals any distance, for one or less, each copy,	2 cts.
Each additional ounce, or fractional part thereof,	11-2

ON IRCULARS.

Quarto post, single cap, or paper not larger than single cap, folded, directed and unsealed, for every sheet,	2 cts

---

Factory in South Carolina.—A new cotton factory is being built by Daniel McCallough Jr., at the Falls of the Catawba River., Chester District, South Carolina.

DANVERS COURIER.

SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 24, 1845.

ASSOCIATION OF AMERICAN GEOLOGISTS AND NATURALISTS.

This learned body of distinguished savans, including in its ranks the most eminent Professors and men of keep scientific research from all parts of the country have just held a meeting at New Haven, and a full report of their proceedings has been published in the New York Tribune. This report is exceedingly interesting, not only to the man of science, but to the general reader, and would our limits permit we should be glad to extract largely from it. We must however be content with calling the attention of our readers to the subject, and assuring them that they will there find a rich mine of really useful knowledge.

At this Convention our townsman, Dr ANDREW NICHOLS, was elected a member of the Association.

During the session, literary soirees, after the manner of those in Paris, were given at their respective houses by Prof. Silliman and Mrs. Whitney, (the widow of the inventor of the Cotton Gin) which were conducted in a manner at once instructive and entertaining to the learned savans, as well as to the ladies who attended.

WILLISTON SEMINARY, EASTHAMPTON. This noble institution, although, we believe, only in its fourth year, bids fair to carry the palm from all its elder brethren in the State. With the high standard of qualifications, the thorough course of study pursued, and under the fostering care of its munificent founder, Hon. Samuel Williston, it cannot fail to advance the cause of education and acquire for itself a high reputation.

We have received an excellent address, by President Hitchcock of Amherst College, delivered upon the occasion of dedicating the new and beautiful Hall, just erected for the Seminary. The Address is a most excellent one, abounding in valuable suggestions, and taking an enlarged view of the subject of Academic education. There is much that we should like to copy, but can only give a short paragraph, which will apply with peculiar force to Common Schools.

"But really, if Americans do possess an unusual disposition for defacing and marring objects, it seems to me that it may in part be traced to the want of taste and neatness in our common school houses, and academies. Place a boy where every thing around him is rough and unsightly, and he will not easily restrain himself from depredations to increase the ugliness. But place him in a room where every thing is in good taste, and well finished, and he will find it hard, especially if a hint be given him, to commence the defacement. And if he learns in early life to respect public rooms and public buildings, he will be apt in later years to keep his knife and pencil in their proper places. Can any one, who knows what unsightly and filthy places most of our common school houses, and many of our Academies have been, think it strange, that they have so often been marred and even riddled!"

FREDERICK DOUGLASS.

This eloquent champion of the Anti-Slavery cause lectured last Sunday evening in Rev. Mr. Prince's church to a crowded audience on the subject of TEMPERANCE and shewed the zeal and energy in this cause that he has always exhibited in the great undertaking to which he has devoted himself.

He was followed by Mr. Buffum of Lynn who gave rather a dark picture of the state of morals and people at Washington. Mr. B. was there while Congress was in session, and acknowledged his indebtedness to our Representative, Mr. King, for facts and opportunities in relation to a knowledge of this subject.

At this meeting we were sorry to see a disposition among a part of the audience to be noisy in their approbation of the speakers. Such demonstrations of applause were not only repugnant to the express wishes of the speakers, but inconsistent with the sacred character of the day and the place.

To Readers and Correspondents. Our present number is rich in new matter. It will be seen hat we have a new poetical contributor, and we hope to hear often from the same source.—Mr. Noggs, too, it will be seen, in accordance with his regular habits, has taken his usual position and under the inspiration of the vernal season talks poetry, while he thinks he is only giving a prosaic narration of his own peculiar feelings.

In this connection we take the opportunity to acknowledge our obligations to the Christian Register, the Newburyport Herald and other journals for their very favorable notices of our little sheet. We must be pardoned the indulgence of a little vanity on receiving such commendations from sources so respectable.

A very spirited communication from Miss Julia, was received too late for this number, but shall appear in our next.

FIRES. The last year is unprecedented in the number of disastrous fires which have occurred in all parts of the country. It shows the necessity of large and well regulated fire departments, add arrangements for ample supplies of water, in every town.

Hon. David W. Dickinson, Member of Congress from Tennessee, died at his residence in Williamson Co, on the 27th ult.

☞MACON B. ALLEN, a colored man, has been admitted to the bar of Boston.

CORRECTING THE PRESS.

Few persons are aware of the labor and care required in correcting a newspaper press, although most people are but too ready to impute to carelessness, that which is really the result of unavoidable circumstances. When such reflect that the printer frequently copies from an almost illegible manuscript, that types will get into the wrong boxes, and the difficulty of reading correctly the little smutty letters on the ends of little bits of type metal, these complainers will have some charity for the printer and his devils.

It is ludicrous enough to see the blunders on a proof sheet, before it has passed the ordeal of a correction. The words omitted, the wrong spelling, turned letters, words wrongly divided at the end of the lines, and numerous other inaccuracies which are easily detected on paper, but difficultly in the type. It frequently happens that after the proof is corrected, the printer will overlook the corrections, and the mistakes will appear in the whole edition of the paper. The youngest apprentices, technically called the "devils" of the office, are of course the most liable to mistakes.—Nothing is more common in looking over the work of these imps, than to find such as the following; "Extraordinary cure for the goat." "In Cincinnati legs may be bought for 4 cents per doz." "Astronomers have discovered large spots on the son." &c.

It was but a short time since one of our typos was directed to set up a verse of one of Dr. Watts' hymns. His success will be shown by the following uncorrected proof of the two last lines, where it will be seen that the omission of one little letter and the exchange of another makes such nonsense and perversion of the meaning of the writer, as to scare away all the devotional feelings the lines were calculated to inspire.

"No groans shall mangle with the songs,
That warble from immoral tongues."

A still worse specimen follows of some lines sent in by a correspondent, but afterwards suppressed. The manuscript was badly written, and we think the author would aim to correct his penmanship as well as his poetry, if he had seen the proof sheet of his production. We first give the stanzas as they came from the author.

TO ANN.

3. Thy rose, my love, is withered now
The flower you plucked upon the road,
An omen bad! of plighted vow—
O, take away this heavy load!

1. My dearest Ann we soon must part
My swelling eyes betray my fears
My eyes but shame my beating heart
In vain I try to stop my tears.

2. O for a calm, a peaceful breast
Where sorrow's pang no more belongs
Where I may find a quiet rest
And joyful music with my songs.

We now exhibit the same stanzas as they appear without correction by the proof reader.

TO ANN.

3. Thy nose my love is withered uow
The plover you plucked upon the road
An onion bad! of frighted sow
O take away this heavy toad!

1. My dearest Ann, we soon must pant
My smelling eyes betray my ears
My eyes but sham my beating heart
In vain I try to stop my stears.

2. O for a clam, a peaceful beast
Where sorrows pang no more belongs
Where I may find a quiet nest
And joyful music with my tongs.

Errors in punctuation which affect the sense are often made, as writers are too apt to leave all punctuation to the printer. Words and parts of sentences will sometimes be omitted, and if the sense is not glaringly affected, the mistakes are apt to escape the proof reader, whose attention is usually more occupied in seeking for errors in letters and punctuation than in words and lines. These omissions are always more difficult of correction in type than misplaced letters, as the insertion of a few words will often alter the arrangement of a dozen lines. We hope our remarks will induce newspaper correspondents to be more particular in writing their communications, and less prone to lay the blame of typographical errors to us poor printers.

Daguerreotype Miniatures. We have had lately the pleasure of examining some beautiful specimens of this art, at the rooms of H. N. Macomber, in Washington street, and we think we may safely recommend those wishing to obtain a fac simile of themselves or friends, to call there and take the chair for a few seconds. His pictures are well executed, and seem to approach as near as is possible to animated life.

FOURTH OF JULY.

We notice that the Salem papers are discussing the expediency of having a City Celebration of the approaching Anniversary of Independence. Move quickly gentlemen, or we may get up a celebration in this town, that will draw your moving population on that day into our village.

Post Office Compensation—We observe by a recent article in the Salem Gazette, apparently from a reliable source,—that the compensation of Post masters is likely to be materially reduced after the new Post Office law shall go into effect. This, no doubt will be the effect of the law for the first year or two, but the compensation will increase with the increase of correspondence caused by the low rate of postage. We believe there is an erroneous impression abroad in relation to the compensation received by the Postmasters in this town, caused by the statements in the government 'Blue Book' which gives the amount received for two years and which has been understood by many to be the annual compensation.

☞A stock of Rye was plucked in head on the 10th inst, at the farm of Jona. Bavington, Bristol. Pa.

INSURE YOUR FURNITURE.

At the late fire in Main Street and also at the recent fire in Lynn we learn that the furniture of all the occupants of the houses was insured.—This is a good precaution and ought to be generally adopted. In the haste and confusion at a fire not much dependence can be placed on a safe removal of this kind of goods.

Our Danvers Mutual Office is debarred by its regulations from taking this kind of risks, but those wishing it may obtain insurance of their furniture by applying to Mr. A. Brooks, Sec'y of the Essex Mechanics' Ins. Co. in Salem, or to either of the Directors of the Company in Danvers, who, we understand are authorised to receive applications.

BURGLARY.

On Saturday night last some villain broke into the Barber's shop of our neighbor, Mr. B. B. Williams (directly under this Office) and carried off several articles of value. It seems he entered the back window by breaking a pane of glass and removing the fastening.

This is a State Prison offence, and the perpetrator will probably soon find himself in that Institution at hard labor and wearing the convict's uniform.

Boston Water Act—The vote on the Long Pond project on Monday last, resulted in its defeat by a majority of 308 against it.

☞John W. Hawkins is lecturing on temperance in New Orleans.

Incendiaries are busy in Hartford and have set fire in several places. The Hartford Times says, they are influenced by a desire for plunder.

A NEW PROCESS OF TANNING. A respectable gentleman of Ohio, a few days since, described to us a new method of tanning leather, for which he has taken out a patent here, and is now on his way to England to obtain a patent there also. As this new process is represented by practical men to possess many advantages over the process at present in use, it is worthy of public notice.

The invention consists in perforating the hide or skin to be tanned. This is done (after the skin is cleaned and ready to be put in the tan ooze) with fine steel points—as, for instance, a fine article of cotton-card combs, numbering from 15 to 18 teeth to the inch. These combs are placed side by side, and screwed firmly together, in a kind of iron box, with a handle on the top, which is struck with a mallet, on the grain side of some and the flesh side of other kinds of leather, sufficiently hard to send them through. This operation is performed when the skin is in the most relaxed and flexible state so that the fibres yield readily to the points, as scarcely any traces are observable after the leather is tanned, further than upon the grain or epidermis.

The above is taken from an exchange paper and is going the rounds. We copy it merely to say that the process seems to us very much like curing a man of the tooth-ache by cutting off his head. It may be a very effective process, but at the same time very destructive.

SHAVINGS.

PRINTER'S LANGUAGE.—Every profession has its technical terms, and, of course, the printers have a "small smattering," which is intelligible only to the craft. The following (says the Delaware Republican(is a specimen; it don't mean, however, as much as it would seem to the uninitiated:

"Jim, put General Washington on the galley, and then finish the murder of that young girl you commenced yesterday. Set up the ruins of Herculaneum; distribute the small pox; you paper of this week. Let the pie alone till after dinner, put up the barbecue to press, and then go to the devil, and he will tell you about the work for the morning."

Not much wonder that Dr. Faustus was burned for inventing such a diabolical art.

☞Examiners of the various models of letter scales for the use of the Post Office Department under the new law, have decided in favor of the pattern introduced by Messrs Holland & Tavis, of Boston.

The corner stone of a new Unitarian Society Meeting-House, was laid at Hartford, Ct., last week. It is the second Unitarian church in Connecticut.

☞The birth of two Tigers at the Menagerie in New York on Sunday, was the first event of the kind in the United States. The parents are pets of Mr Driesbach, the lion-tamer.

DE WITT CLINTON. The remains of this great man, and true friend of his State, have been deposited in the beautiful cemetery at Greenwood. Let no more costly or pretending cenotaph be erected over them than a durable stone to mark the spot. No monument that the wisdom of man could devise could be so proud a one as that which Clinton, in his lifetime, reared for himself.

CAUTION. The Atlas says, "within a day or two, we have seen altered bills from $1 to $10's of the Suffolk, Shoe and Leather Dealers, and Hingham Bank; and unless something be done, we know not what will be the result of this system of swindling.

Fire Annihilator.—At a meeting, lately of the British Polytechnic Institution, Dr Ryan delivered a lecture for the purpose of noticing an apparatus by Mr. Phillips, called the "fire annihilator." He pointed out the effects of volumes from nitrogen or from carbonic acid upon the flame or coal gas;—and after showing that combustion instantly ceased in an atmosphere containing but a small per centage of these gases, he proceeded to explain that Mr. Phillips used a mixture of coke, nitre, and sulphate of lime, with a little water. Dr. Ryan kindled a fire in an iron house, and as soon as the combustion was complete, he introduced a small apparatus, holding more than two ounces of material, and in half a minute, the fire was completely extinguished.

Look out for $1's Eagle Bank, Boston altered to fives, exceedingly well done.

☞Forty-five thousand dollars, old Spanish coin have recently been dug from the earth, at a place on the East bank of the Altamaha river, about five miles below the junction of the Ocmulgee and Oconee, in Tatnall county, Ga., and divided between the discoverer and his relative, a poor widow who owned the land.

By a late censue the town of Georgetown in this County, contains 1,950 inhabitants, being an increase of 400 since 1840.

The net proceeds at the sale of the Seamen's Widow and Orphan Association at the Town Hall, in Salem May 14th and 15th, was $825,22.

☞The Hall of the ESSEX COUNTY NATURAL HISTORY SOCIETY will be opened every Wednesday, in Salem, until further notice, for the exhibition of Fruits and Flowers. All interested are respectfully requested to contribute—and the public one and all are invited to visit the Hall during the hours of exhibition, which will be from 11 till 1.

A VILLAGE DESTROYED BY FIRE. Anderson, S. C. has been the scene of a destructive conflagration. The place has literally been laid in ashes and ruins, and almost swept from existence. Although with but three hundred inhabitants, white and black, its pecuniary loss is estimated at near $50,000.

☞A brother of the Hon. Levi Woodbury had his pocket picked of a wallet containing 200 dollars, while attending the races near N. York on Saturday. He resides in Missouri.

☞Mr Willis is about to revisit Europe for the purpose of corresponding with the Mirror. His letters will be read with interest.

☞Five hundred and eleven emigrants landed at Boston on Monday, from Liverpool.—They came out in the ship Trenton, barques Abbot Lord and Huron.

☞A person may now travel by steamboat, &c. from New York to Montreal, distance 401 miles, for the sum of $2,88.

☞The Hon. John M. Botts, the distinguished and devoted Whig, of the State of Virginia is now on a visit to Boston and has taken lodgings at the Tremont House.

Maj. T. L. Gaines has written a letter to the Recorder of the Land Office, at Washington, from Nashville, Tenn, stating, on the authority of a physician, that Gen. Jackson, on the 4th, was rapidly drawing near the grave. Symptoms of dropsy had appeared, his legs were swollen from his feet to his abdomen, and his breathing was feeble and very difficult. The Union says the intelligence is undoubtedly correct.

A COTTON FACTORY with 1100 spindles, and making 400 lbs. of yarn per day has been established at Woodville, Ind.

Information has been received at the Department of State from the consulate at Port Louis, Mauritius, of the death of Captain William H. Brown, of Ipswich, county of Essex, State of Massachusetts, master of the American brig Cecilia, of Boston. A copy of his last will and testament has been transmitted to that department.

BRIGHTON MARKET—Monday, May 19.
[From the Boston Daily Advertiser.]

At market 420 Beef Cattle 10 pairs Working Oxen, 700 Sheep, and 1225 Swine.

PRICES—BEEF Cattle—Sales were quick at an advance. We quote extra $6 25; first quality $ 6; second do 5 50 a 5 75; third do 5 a 5 25.

Working Oxen—Sales at 68, 75, and $85.

Sheep—Sales of common Sheep from 1 75 to $3.

Swine—Selected small Shoats 4 1-2 and 5 1-2c; large Shoats not selected, 4 a 4 1-4 and 5 a 5 1-4c; old Hogs 4 a 4 1-2 and 5c. At retail from 5 to 6 1-2c

---

MARRIAGES.

In Salem, Mr. William Colby to Miss Susan Roberts. Mr. George B. Jewett to Miss Mary J. Whipple. Mr Matthew Lyons to Miss Mary Ann Webber. Mr. Francis H. Wade to Miss Eliza Ann Grant. Mr. Henry J. Reed to Miss Martha Ellen Jelly. Gardner Leonard Chandler, Esq., of Boston, to Miss Elizabeth Hodges Cleveland, eldest daughter of the late George Cleveland, Esq. At the Episcopal Church on Wednesday, by Rev. Mr. Fitz, Mr. Josiah F. Kimball, (of the firm of Kimball and Butterfield, editors of the Essex County Whig) to Miss Lucy M. Wade, daughter of Wm. F. Wade, Esq. of Ipswich.

In Bruit Hill, Ohio, Hon. William Allen, U. S. Senator, to Miss Effie Cooms, daughter of the late Governor McArthur.

DEATHS.

In this town, (New Mills) Sunday morning, Mrs. Sarah Stimpson, aged 62.

In this town, 19th inst., Mrs. Mary I. Proctor, wife of John W. Proctor, Esq., aged 41.

It is with feelings of the deepest sorrow that we are called to record the death of Mrs. Proctor. Her interesting family, her relatives, her friends and acquaintances have all met with a loss which cannot be repaired, but they find their consolation in the memory of what she was, and their confidence that she has entered upon the rest that remaineth for the people of God.

Mrs. Proctor had, for a number of years, been a member of the South Church, in Danvers, and exhibited in all the relations of life, the spirit of a Christian. She was devoted to the good of her family, and endeavored, by precept and example, to instil the principles of religion into the minds of her children. She loved the services of the sanctuary, and would not willingly be absent, on the Sabbath, from the House of the Lord. The purity of her heart, her superior intelligence, and her thoughtfulness on subjects of deep and permanent interest, were manifest in her whole life and conversation. Being possessed of an exceedingly kind and amiable spirit, and having much of that charity which "thinketh no evil," she won the affections of all who knew her, and every tongue will speak her worth; and although she has gone from among us and we shall see her face no more on earth, her memory will never fade from the hearts of her friends.

The above just and faithful tribute to her memory is taken from the Salem Gazette of Tuesday last, and we should not have felt it necessary to add a word, had we not been forcibly impressed with her striking resemblance to another—a family connection*—whose name she bore, and whose character is thus portrayed by her biographer. "With personal attractions of no common order, domestic in her habits, with a kind and cheerful disposition, with affections which age never chilled, governed ever by the strictest religious principle, the wife and mother was devotedly attached to husband and children, sympathising in the pursuits of the one and guiding and diverting those of the other, making home the scene of the purest and most delightful influences and recollections, and associating with her presence in her life and her memory in death, the idea of a being whose every act and thought were balmeless."

---

*MARY INGERSOLL BOWDITCH, wife of the late Nath'l Bowditch, LL.D.

In Salem, Mrs. Elizabeth Cheney, aged 27 years.—Mrs. Sarah Beckford, 72. Miss Ruth Turner, 44. Mr. John P. S. Hall, 23. Mr. James Moody, 66. George W., son of Mr. Greenwood Sanborn, 4.

In Boston, Dea. Ward Jackson, 76: he was the only surviving member of Charles street Church, and has held the office of deacon during the whole of the time.

NOTICE.

The regular meetings of Monument Division, No. 5, Sons of Temperance, held at Sanger's Hall, are changed from Wednesday to Monday evening, at 8 o'clock. Members of the order are respectfully invited to attend.

Danvers, April 12. Moses Merrill, R. S.

JOSEPH SHED,

NOTARY PUBLIC AND ACTING MAGISTRATE,

Opposite the Monument.

All kinds of writing; conveyancing and Probate business attended to promptly.

☞A great variety of BLANKS constantly on hand, and for sale.

Danvers, May 24, 1845.

Periodical Depot!!

REMOVAL.

LUTHER CHANDLER, the Proprietor of the Depot for

PERIODICALS AND CHEAP PUBLICATIONS,

formerly kept at No. 3, (on the East side of Washington street, has removed to the store,

Corner of Washington and Norman Streets,

(Directly opposite the Old Stand,)

where he intends to keep a full supply of all the Periodicals and New Works, as well as the Daily and Weekly Newspapers, as soon as they appear from the press.

In removing from the old stand he confidently hopes to receive the continued patronage of those who have formerly received his publications and he pledges himself that he will use his best exertions to procure all New Works promptly and sell them at the lowest prices.

His long experience and extensive acquaintance with these publishers and others engaged largely in the Book Trade will enable him to answer orders for particular Works, with great promptness, and at the most favorable prices.

REFRESHMENTS,

such as are usually kept at Restaurateurs, and SODA AND MEAD, will be furnished at the new stand, by S. SAUNDERS.

REMEMBER—Corner of Washington and Norman Sts., near the Railroad Station, Salem.

may 24 3m

House and Land for Sale.

The subscriber offers for sale a long two story Dwelling House, on Holton street, convenient for two families, and in good repair. The said house now rents for $120 per annum, and will be sold low.

Terms of sale will be easy for the purchaser, as a large part of the amount may remain on mortgage. Apply to

may 24 tf WM. SUTTON.

NOTICE is hereby given that the subscriber has been duly appointed executor of the last will and testament of

MARY UPTON,

late of Danvers, in the County of Essex, widow, deceased, and has taken upon himself that trust, by giving bonds as the law directs: all persons having demand upon the estate of said deceased are required to exhibit the same; and all persons indebted to said estate are called upon to make payment to JOSEPH SHED, Executor.

Danvers, May 24, 1845.

NOTICE is hereby given that the subscriber has been duly appointed administrator, with the will annexed of the estate of

DANIEL KING,

late of Salem, in the county of Essex, yeoman, deceased, and has taken upon himself that trust, by giving bonds as the law directs. All persons having demands upon the estate of said deceased, are required to exhibit the same; and all persons indebted to said estate, are called upon to make payment to AMOS KING, Jr.,

Danvers, May 24, 1845. Adm'r with the will annexed.

THREE CASES

MORE of those splendid Philadelphia Room Papers, at half the French of the same quality are sold, and from 20 to 25 per cent cheaper than they are sold in Boston. Just opened at may 24 W. & S. B. IVES'S.

IF THOSE IN WANT

OF PAPER HANGINGS would look in upon [illegible] before purchasing elsewhere, we doubt not they would be satisfied, that for quality and price, they could not be better suited. At the Bookstore of

W. & S. B. IVES',
Stearns' Building.

W. D. JOPLIN,
Draper and Tailor.

NEARLY opposite the Monument, keeps for sale at the lowest prices,

Broadcloths, Cassimeres and Vestings and Trimmings.

Also— A good assortment of READY MADE CLOTHING.

PANTS from 1 to 4 dollars;
VESTS from 75 cents to 2 00.
Green Jackets, Overhauls, Thin Clothing, Hats, Suspenders, &c. may 3

NEW BOOKS.

NEW VOL. OF BARNES. Just published, Notes explanatory and practical, of the Epistles of Paul to the Ephesians, Philippians and Colossians. By Albert Barnes.

Edgeworth's Moral Tales, part 2d, new ed., illustrated, containing The Good Aunt, Mademoiselle Panache; The Club Room, and other Temperance Tales, by T. S. Arthur, just published; The Blind Girl, with other Tales, by Emma C. Embury; Michelet's History of France. No. 27 Harper's Illuminated Bible. For sale by

W. S. CLEAVELAND & CO.,
may 24 193 Essex street, Salem.

LETTER PAPER. A fresh supply of Hubbard's fine glazed ruled Letter Paper, an excellent article for business purposes, for sale cheap, wholesale or retail, by W. S. CLEAVELAND & Co.,

may 24 193 Essex street.

DEMPSTER'S MAY QUEEN, part 2'nd, and other new Music, viz; Will he be true? Georgiana Waltz. Sing then, O sing to me. Isabel Quick Step.—Lord Moira's Welcome to Scotland. Haydn's Favorite.—Do you ever think of me? Lord Wellington's Grand March. All around my hat, The Vesper Bell. The Combination Waltz, No 2. The Summer Evening. Sweetest come sing to me. The Scozzese Dance. Cotillions from Cinderella. Grand March in Puritani. Grand March in Tancredi. Remembrance. I've nothing else to do The Brignal Banks. Our Father Dear. Julia Waltz. Isabel, loved Isabel. Pret-Star of the Night, Grand Spanish March. Prussian Parade March. We can love no more. Grand March in Fidelio. Tarantella. Eliza e Claudio Quadrilles. The Cracovienne Dance. The Angel's Wing. The Gitana Dance. The Charming Young Man. Gondola Waltz. The Cachucha Dance. Quick Step in Gustavus. Tyrol Waltz. At morn upon the Beach I stood. Yellow haired laddie, with variations by Pleyel. Molly put the kettle on. In my Cottage near the Rhine. Oh sing to me one song of thine. The Garland of Love—and the Operatic Quadrilles—just received at the Book and Music Store, 193 Essex street, where the newest and most fashionable Music may always be had. Music procured to order, and Music bound at short notice —by WM. S. CLEAVELAND & CO.

may 24 193 Essex street.

School Books and Stationery.

CLEVELAND & CO. keep constanly on hand, all the School Books in use in Essex County, by the quanty or single copy. They have recently received

200 copies Common School Speller;
200 " Emerson's First Part;
50 " Olmstead's Rudiments;
50 " Willard's U. S. History, &c.

Also—A lot of Covered and Common Slates; Inks;—steel Pens; Writting Books, &c. All of which they offer for sale at the most reasonable prices.

Teachers and School Committees are respectfully invited to call at the Old Stand, 193 Essex street, may 19 Opposite the Mansion House.

GOLD PENS. A superior article just received and for sale cheap by G. W. & E. CRAFTS.

174 Essex St. Salem.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY.

WOMEN to make Shirts, Thin Jackets, and Pants, at EDWARDS',

may 17 14 Front street.

New Tailoring Establishment.

ELLIOTT F. SMITH,

HAVING established himself in the TAILORING BUSINESS, a few doors above the Village Bank on Maple Street, would respectfully inform the citizens of North Danvers that he is ready to execute all orders in his line of business with fidelity and despatch.

He hopes by his punctuality and attention to the wishes of his customers, to merit and obtain a share of public patronage.

☞All Garments cut and made are warranted to suit.

may 17

RETAIL

Boot and Shoe Store,

AT THE PLAINS.

THE subscriber keeps constantly on hand at his store, on Maple street, near the Village Bank, A full supply of

Men's Calf and Seal Boots, of all qualities;
Men's Calf, Goat and Kip Shoes, and pumps.
Boy's do do Downings.

THE LADIES will find a complete assortment of Fine and Common Kid Slippers;
Paris and Village Ties;
Gaiter Boots and Shoes;
Misses' and Children's shoes of all descriptions;

The above articles he is constantly receiving from the best manufacturers in the state, which will enable him to satisfy all who are in want of good articles in his line—at very reasonable prices.

JOSHUA SILVESTER.

North Danvers April 19, 1845.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law

Office in Felton's (late Osborne's) Building,

Danvers, March 29th. tf

☞New Spring Hosiery.☜

WILL be opened this morning, at R. H. CHAMBERLAIN'S Hosiery and Glove Store,

No 236 Essex Street, Salem.

400 dozen of Spring and Summer Hosiery and Gloves, comprising every variety, style, size and quality, for Ladies, Gents, Misses and Children's wear.

Also, new styles of Mouseline de Laines, Cashmeres. Muslin, Ginghams, Printed Lawns, Balzorines, Prints. Patches; White and Col'd Cambrics; Plaid; Striped and Figured Cambrics; Plain, Plaid, Striped and Lace Muslins; Corded and Victoria Robes; Bleached, Unbleached and Colored Table Covers; Domestic Goods in great variety; Shirts; Bosoms; Collars; Dickeys; Cravats; Scarfs; Suspenders, Under Shirts and Drawers; Pocket Hdkfs, etc.

N. B. R. H. C. keeps constantly on hand a large supply of the American Improved Curtain Fixture,

a far superior article to any now in use, and not so liable to get out of order, a model of the same can be seen at the above store. Dealers in want of the article, can be supplied in any quantities, at the manufacturer's price.

Salem, May 10th, 1845. tf

NEW LUMBER WHARF.

THE subscriber having taken the wharf, called the West wharf, near the Bridge, in South Salem, would take this opportunity to inform his friends and the public generally, that he intends to keep for sale an assortment of BOARDS, JOIST, CLAPBOARDS, SHINGLES, PICKETS, LATHS, &c. &c., of as good quality as can be found in the city.

He has now on hand 300,000 dry Boards and Plank for sale, and all wishing to purchase, are respectfully invited to call and examine for themselves.

He has also made arrangements at the Eastward for furnishing Dimension Frames, and filling orders of every description, at short notice.

Having been a practical builder for the last fifteen years, the subscriber flatters himself that his knowledge of the business, and the Lumber trade generally, will enable him to give satisfaction to those who may favor him with their patronage.

As he will be at the Eastward part of the time, he will be able to give his personal attention to the purchasing of Lumber, &c. He has made arrangements with Mr. A. F. Clark to be on the wharf during business hours, who will

Salem, May 10, 1845. tf H. B. WARD.

REMOVAL.

SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

Rich Jewelry and Fancy Goods,

HAVE removed to the New Store, No. 291 Essex street, (next above Mechanic Hall) where they will keep constantly for sale Gold Finger Rings. Breast Pins, Bracelets, Lockets, Keys, Gold and Silver Pencil Cases, Silver Thimbles, Silver and Plated Table and Tea Spoons, Butter Knives, Silver Plated and Brittania Ware, Shell, Horn, and Ivory Combs, Pocket Books, Purses, &c., &c.

N. B. All kinds of Jewelry repaired in a superior manner and warranted. Old Gold or Jewelry, made over or exchanged for new.

S. & C. having acquired a thorough knowledge of the business in New York, as well as our success for the past five years in this city, will, we feel assured, enable us to execute with approbation any orders entrusted to our care.

☞Thankful for past patronage, we solicit a continuance of the same. tf March 15.

HARRISON'S REMEDY

FOR THE PILES.

THIS is an ointment prepared by the undersigned, and has been so thoroughly tested in so many different cases that I never hesitate to warrant relief to those who will give it a fair trial, observing the directions around each box which give a plain treatise on the disease and full instructions as to diet mode of cure, &c. One application at night never fails to relieve the greatest pain and anguish. I am ready to refer to numerous individuals who have proved this Remedy to be the safest, surest, speediest and cheapest

CURE FOR THE PILES.

My agent in Exeter writes thus: "the Pile Remedy which you left me is all sold, please send me soon a further supply, as a number of persons in this town think very highly of it. N. GILMAN"

MORE TESTIMONY.

Salem, Aug. 6. Mr. Harrison: The box of ointment which I had from you has worked like a charm—I have used it only one night, and I am cured. I had used Hays' Liniment as I stated to you, with no benefit but rather was worse, it causing more inflammation. Yrs, J. W.

For sale at 256 Essex street, by the Proprietor,

J. S. HARRISON Jr.,

Agents—in Danvers, S. PROCTOR, Jr.; Marblehead—E. Arnold; Lynn—Ladd, and Holder; Beverly—Clarke; Newburyport—C. Whipple; Andover—Amos Abbott; Topsfield—Bixby and Merriam, Haverhill—Nichol; Boston—Ransom & Stevens, Tompkins, Southers and Fowle.

mch 15 6m

BLEEDING PILES CURED.

Mr. Harrison—Having given your Peristaltic Lozenges and Pile Remedy a fair trial, I have the satisfaction to inform you that they have operated wonderfully in my case. I had not been able for months to do any work at my trade, owing to exhaustion from bleeding, but I now feel myself cured. The severe pain which I had in my stomach is gone, and my strength is fast returning. I had used various remedies to no purpose, until I tried your medicine. I can also state that Capt. Benj. Ireson of this town has also experienced great benefit from your Remedy. I cheerfully recommend the medicine to all suffering with that distressing complaint—the Piles.

Edward H. Lewis.

Lynn, Sept. 27, 1844.

TOPOGRAPHICAL MAP OF PALESTINE by J. H. Colton. Compiled principally from the observations of Messrs Robinson and Smith. The religious Press and many of the secular papers have spoken in high terms of this map. For sale by G. W. & E. CRAFTS.

174 Essex St. Salem.

Spring Goods.

THE subscribers would inform the ladies of Danvers and vicinity that are now receiving the best assortment of Goods in their line, adapted to the Spring Trade, to which they invite particular attention. We give below a catalogue of Goods which we have recently received.

WHITE GOODS.

Plain Cambric and Cambric Muslins of every quality;
Plaid, striped and fig'd do do do;
Plain, Plaid and Striped Swiss Muslins;
Plain Book, Sacarilla and Tarlatan Muslins;
Muslins for Curtains in stripes and figures;
Bleached Cottons, of the best manufactures.

LINEN GOODS,

Linen Sheetings; Pillow Case Linen; Linen Shirtings; Superfine Linens for Bosoms and Collars; Linen Damask, by the yard; Damask Table Covers, of all qualities, sizes and prices; Damask Napkins; Doylies Towels; Linen Diaper; Huckaback and Crash.

All Linens sold at this store are guaranteed free from any mixture of Cotton.

LACE GOODS.

Thread Edgings, of every width and price; Lisle, Gimpeur, Meline, Ashburton, Polka, Smyrna and Dentilla Laces, at prices varying from 1 cent to $2 per yd. Plain and Fig'd Blond, Brussels, Bobbinett and Polka Laces, for Caps, Capes, etc.

MILLINERY GOODS.

50 different styles of Bonnet Ribbons, many of which have been purchased at Auction, and can be sold at decided bargains. Straw Bonnets; Flowers; Tabs; Ruches; Bonnet Crowns; Bonnet Wire; Foundation Muslin; Crown Linings; Crapes, etc.

EMBROIDERIES.

New style Emb'd Inside Hdkfs, with and without collars, at prices varying from 58 cents to $5 00. Embroidered Muslin Collars, from 37 1-2c to $2. do Under Sleeves and Cuffs.

HOSIERY AND GLOVES.

Our assortment of Hosiery consists of nearly 300 dozen of every style of Bleached and Brown Cotton Hose; Black and Mode colored Cotton Hose;
English Lisle Thread Hose;
Raw Silk Hose and 1-2 Hose;
Blk and White Spun Silk do;
Misses Hosiery in great variety.

100 dozen Kid Gloves, in White, black, Lavender and Mode colors;
Lisle Thread Gloves for Ladies and Children;
Raw Silk do do do;
White and colored Silk for Gentlemen;
Picnic and Mohair Gloves and Mitts;

THREAD AND FANCY GOODS.

German and Zephy Worsteds; Needles; Pins;
Yarns and Knitting Worsteds; Oiled Silks;
Steel Beads; Purse Ornaments; Purse Twists;
Bag and Mat Cords; Twists; Braids; and a thousand things which we have not room to mention.

☞The Ladies are invited, when desirous of purchasing or examining any of the above named Goods, to call at No. 24 Washington Street, Salem, near Railroad Depot.

may 10 KEITH & MASON.

Opening of Spring!

Magnificent, Chaste and Original Designs for Remodeling

"OAK HALL!"

FOR SPRING TRADE!

OPENING OF "OAK HALL" FOR THREE MONTHS!

Advice to Professional Men, Merchants Clerks with moderate Salaries, Farmers, Mechanics, Seamen, Firemen and others, VISIT OAK HALL!

ARRIVAL OF SPRING GOODS!

To Wholesale Dealers.

THE OPENING

This Morning, for Three Months!

I would again most respectfully inform the citizens of Boston, and strangers visiting the city, (after a delay of six weeks, during which time I have not been idle,) I have completed my arrangements on the most

MAGNIFICENT SCALE,

greatly surpassing my former arrangements. The Hall is splendidly decorated with almost

MAGIC ELEGANCE!

The architecture being Gothic, has given the artist an opportunity to display his taste to advantage. The paintings which adorn the walls are so perfectly chaste and appropriate, that every one will be fully compensated the trouble of visiting it. The design and effect of the interior, especially when

ILLUMINATED IN THE EVENING,

Is unequalled in any store this side of the Atlantic. Much praise is due to the artist, for his share in beautifying the Hall. I shall not presume that the good taste of my fellow citizens and townsmen will fully appreciate all I have done, as my Establishment was the FIRST and ONLY ONE that adopted the

"EXTREME LOW PRICE SYSTEM,"

Before "OAK HALL" was in existence, it was not a very uncommon thing for a gentleman to pay from $45 to $50 for a suit of clothes. For one half of this sum or less, a perfect and entire suit can be obtained at this Establishment, cut and made with that ease and grace, that distinguish my garments from others. From this

EMPORIUM OF FASHION

first originated the Gothic style of architecture in Boston, and Oak Painting, &c. now so much in fashion. To those who have not visited this great

PLACE OF RESORT,

on account of the name of the street, I would most respectfully say, that where my establishment is located was once the Court end of Boston, and at this time is visited and patronized by the most influential and respectable individuals. Man, not unlike the fields, and Trees, once covered with a beautiful suit of Green is now breaking from its Coat of Ice and Snow and, having its Testy suit of nature soon to be warmed into animation, and renew its beautiful suit of Green, So with Man—wrapped up in his Overcoat, he now on the opening of Spring, finds his under suit rusty and shabby, and is not suitable to wear. The next thing is to find a good place to fit out at a

REASONABLE PRICE,

and to be sure and have a GOOD FITTING SUIT, that will set upon the form with ease, grace and gentility.

FIVE GOOD REASONS

Why you can purchase at OAK HALL less than at any other Establishment in the United States:

FIRST—You do not pay me for YOUR suit, and the INDIVIDUAL'S that did not pay previous to you, as MY business is Cash on delivery.

SECOND—If any Garment made to order is not pleasing in every particular, it is no inconvenience to take it back and make another, as Ready Made Garments are directly in my line.

THIRD—I purchase my Goods in large lots, extremely cheap, and give my customers the benefit, by selling them at the smallest advances,

Fourth—I go by the motto.

LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS

OR AS SOME SAY,

"NO PROFITS AT ALL."

That I'll leave with my customer to decide.

FIFTH—My facilities are such at this time doing a

LARGE BUSINESS,

that I can afford to sell at

VERY LOW PRICES!

BOYS' CLOTHING.

I have lately added to my already extensive manufactory of Boys' Clothing, rooms for the manufacture of Boys' Clothing, and shall keep a large supply of every variety and kind, always on hand.

TO WHOLESALE DEALERS.

You will find the greatest variety of every style of Fresh Manufactured Clothing, adapted for Spring, to your different Trades, and will be sold extremely low in large lots!

AT RETAIL.

One of the largest and, best selected Stock of Fresh Spring Goods ever in "OAK HALL," and will be sold at the following low prices.—

PANTALOONS.

2500 pair of Fancy Spring patterns of Satinet Pants, at	1 75 to 2 50
3000 pair Steel Mixt Pants,	1 62 to 3 00
2200 do Sheeps Grey Pants	1 75 to 3 00
2500 do Canada Grey do,	1 75 to 3 00
3000 do Black Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 50
5000 do Lavender Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 00
2200 do Super black do Pants, with fancy stripe,	4 00 to 5 00
1500 Super blue Broadcloth and Cassimere Pants	3 50 to 4 50

THIN COATS.

3500 Coats and Sacks, American Gingham,	75 to 1 00
5000 Coats and Sacks Scotch Gingham,	1 25 to 1 75
4800 Coats and Sacks Scotch Gingham, satin figure,	1 50 to 1 75
2700 Coats and Sacks, Webster Check	75 to 1 25
3750 Coats and Sacks, London Plaids,	1 25 to 175
4000 Coats and Sacks, of Linen and other goods,	1 00 to 1 75

THIN PANTS.

8000 pair thin Pants of every quality of Goods at low prices, say from 50 cents to $2 50 per pair.

VESTS.

300 light Vests, a very pretty affair for Spring,	50c to 1 00
4500 Dark Valencia,	75 to 1 50
5500 Fine Valencia, dark and light	1 50 to 2 50
2700 Satin Vests, figured and plain,	2 00 to 3 00

DRESS AND FROCK COATS.

5000 super Dress Coats, all colors, green, blue, black, olive, &c. from $4 to $15.

1750 super Frock Coats, all colors, Mulberry, browns, etc. from $6 to $16.

All the above cut in the latest style, and made up expressly for Spring Trade.

500 Business Coats, at low prices, say from $2 to $5.

2200 Tweed Coats, water proof, from $3,75 to $5.

FURNISHING DEPARTMENT.

Great Display of Furnishing Goods at the following low prices, vis:

150 dozen White Shirts—Linen Bosoms, Collars and Ribbands.	75c to 1 25 each
100 do White Shirts, plain.	50c to 75c do
150 do Fancy Shirts,	62 1-2 to 87 1-2
25 do Rich Figured Satin Scarfs,	Low prices.
20 do do do do do
50 do do do do do
50 do Spring Pattern Cravats,	12 1-2 to 75c
25 do Rich Fig'd Satin do.	75c to 1 25
50 do Stocks, of every description, such as Satin Bombazine, &c. and made in the latest Spring Style, 1845	37 1-2 to 1 50
10 do Brussells Carpet Bags, and others,	1 00 to 2 75
75 do Smoking Caps,	12 1-2 to 25c
200 do Braces of every description,	12 1-2 to 50c
20 do best Kid Gloves,	50c to 1 00
25 do Thread do	25 to 50c
20 do Silk do	50 to 75c
100 do Linen Bosoms—all kinds,	25 to 75c
300 do do Collars, latest pattern,	10 to 25c
250 do Canes,	17c to 1 00
325 do Umbrellas,	50c to 1 50
50 do Glazed Silk Caps,	1 00 to 1 25
100 do do do	25 to 37c
505 do Silk Pocket Hdkfs	25 to 75c

An endless variety of Fancy Articles, such as Gold and Fancy Studs—Hair Brushes—Clothes do—Pocket Combs—Dressing do—Tooth Brshes—Cologne—Bosom Pins—Fancy Soaps—Silk Purses—Guard Chains—Pant Straps, &c. &c.

A LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO THE TRADE.

My furnishing Goods are purchased from first rate hands, at low prices, and will be sold at small advance to the trade at my

EXTENSIVE LONG ROOMS,

OAK HALL BUILDING,

GEORGE W. SIMMONS,

General Tailor, Draper and Outfitter,

32, 31, 36, and 38 Ann street.

Opposite Merchant's Row—BOSTON.

apr 19 3m

Flour, Corn, Oats, Shorts, &c.

Landing from schr Pioneer,

200 BARRELS Genesee Flour;
20 1-2 do do do
500 bushels Mealing Corn;
500 do Yellow do
500 do Shorts;
20 bbls Pea Beans;
4 bbls Marrowfat Peas;
100 bags Fine Salt;

—Also, in store—

100 bushels Killam Oats, for seed;
100 do Herds Grass Seed;
100 do Red Top do do;
500 do Clover do; (Northern;

For sale by DANIEL RICHARDS,

At the old and well known stand on the Plains.

North Danvers, April 19, 1845.

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

JONATHAN W. OSBORNE has taken into Copartnership MICHAEL L. WHIDDEN, and they will continue the

Painting, Glazing & Papering

business, at the old Stand, No 10 Park Street, under the firm of

OSBORNE & WHIDDEN.

Particular attention to

SIGN PAINTING,

IMITATIONS OF WOOD, MARBLE, BRONZE, GROUND GLASS, &c.

mch 29 1y

FOR SALE.

A two story house and lot of land on Holton street. The House is convenient for two families and will be sold at a great bargain. Inquire of

HIRAM GRANT.

Danvers, April 19, 1845.

AUCTIONS.

BY DOWLEY & WHALL,

[Store Nos 21 and 22 Pearl street, Boston.]

On ——, ——, June at 10 o'clock, at office.

BOOTS, SHOES AND BROGANS. 400 cas Boots, Shoes and Brogans.

On Tuesday, July 8th, at 10 o'clock, at office, BOOTS, SHOES AND BROGANS. 700 cases Bo Shoes and Brogans.

On Wednesday, July 23d, at 10 o'clock, at office, BOOTS, SHOES AND BROGANS. 2000 cases Bo Shoes and Brogans.

The above sales comprise a prime stock of goods, and ery case on the catalogues will be sold without the least serve.

At Private Sale,

Book Binders. 7 crates, (3000 pounds) Russet Linin pieces suitable for Book Binders, of good color.
Split Leather—2000 lbs light Slaughter Splits,
Kidd—50 dozen Madras Kid, No. 2,
Linings—200 dozen Cochineal and White Linings.
Wax Leather—300 sides prime Slaughter Wax.
African Kipp—1000 sides African Kip.
Grain Leather—500 sides oak and hemlock Grain.
Calf Skins—200 dozen light and heavy Calf Skins.
Linings, in crust—500 dozen White Linings in crust.
Baltimore Leather—200 sides light Slaughter Sole leath
New York Sole Leather—1100 sides light and middle w
Caroga Tannery.

THE

Massachusetts Mechanic Association

HAVING AWARDED TO

GOVE, LOCKE & CO.

and no one else, a DIPLOMA for specimens of

The Best Ready Made Clothing

Exhibited by them at the Mechanics' Fair in Septe ber last, must satisfy the community that the locatic of an establisnment is of but little importance, a that the idea of being confined to a particular sectic of the city, in order to obtain a

GENTEEL GARMENT,

has been rendered obsolete, by the above named ward, as without prejudice the award was made those who deserved it. Being convinced themselve that their CUSTOM WORK has not been surpasse in any point of view, still they have been obliged stem the current against the strongest prejudices, an have, by unremitted attention to the tastes and desire of their patrons, to a very considerable extent, ove come them, resulting in a successful trade, and en couraging them to prosecute the NEW ENGLAN BRANCH OF THEIR BUSINESS, with renewe vigor, and to devote a large share of their attentio the present season, to the

Highest Grade of Custom Work

Being now prepared with every facility adapted the various classes in the community, they can fu nish any style of Garment which their notion or fanc may dictate—aiming

In point of Style and Fashion,

to be in advance of any other

CLOTHING ESTABLISHMENT!

and being at all times supplied with materials of ev ery description, they are prepared to turn out at th shortest notice

AS GOOD AND AS GENTEEL A GARMENT

as can be obtained in the United States, and have en tire confidence in making the assertion, having Cu ters constantly

ENGAGED ON CUSTOM WORK:

who are inferior to none in this region, enabling them to assure those who have favored them with the patronage, that no pains will be spared to deserve continuance of their support—and to those who lac confidence in a Clothing Establishment, because it situated on they would say that a specimen of their work can b seen in nearly everysection of the city, particularly on the backs of

THE MOST GENTEEL PEOPLE!

and to them they refer, in relation not only to the treatment which is universally tendered to them by all concerned in the

COMMERCIAL ARCADE!

but more especially in regard to the price as the Pro prietors have by experience ascertained that they can furnish a

FIRST RATE GARMENT!

at a medium price, equal in every respect to those furnished up in town, at an exhorbitant one. Their Stock of Clothing, adapted to the

SPRING SALES!

is far superior to any previous year, and the patronage of the public is respectfully invited, whether in pursuit of a single garment or otherwise, as their stock embraces every article essential or requisite to the wardrobe of a gentleman, while its magnitude enables them to supply COUNTRY DEALERS in any quantity at the shortest notice, and on the best terms.

WHOLESALE DEALERS!

located any where from Maine to Georgia, or even in Texas, can find at this concern an assortment of Wearing Apparel adapted to their sales, and are invited before concluding their

SPRING PURCHASES!

—TO CALL—

At No. 69 Commercial street,

BOSTON,

Sign of the Monument,—and visit the proprietors of

COMMERCIAL ARCADE,

GOVE, LOCKE & COMPANY.

Boston, March 29, 1845. 3m

REMOVAL.

DR. J. A. ROBINSON,

SURGEON DENTIST,

SALEM,

WOULD respectfully give notice that he has removed from his old stand, opposite the City Hall, to No. 20 Washington street, recently occupied by A. E. Phillips, where he is ready to perform all operation, in Dentistry, in a most thorough and workmanlike manner.

His experience and success in inserting whole sets either by atmospheric pressure or springs, enables him to furnish them at rates which cannot fail to suit those in want of an article of superior quality.

His method of inserting Teeth, both singly and on plate, with or without Gums, has been found to be satisfactory and successful as combining beauty of finish and adaptation, with all the requisites of mastication and articulation.

Particular attention paid to filling Teeth so as to render them serviceable for many years, and also to the regulation of Children's Teeth.

N. B. For sale as above, a first rate article of TOOTH POWDER. 6m mch 15

Ploughs & Cultivators.

MANUFACTURED BY

RUGGLES, NOURSE & MASON.

And other Agricultural Tools,

FOR SALE BY

DANIEL RICHARDS,

Danvers Plains, March 29, 1845.

Witch Hazle, for Beds.

A FIRST rate article just received and for sale by CARTER & BATCHELDER,

April 19

STATE LAWS.

AN ACT regulating the use of Steam Engines and Furnaces.

Be it enacted, &c., as follows:

Section 1. No furnace for melting of iron or stationary steam engine, designed for use in any mill for the planing or sawing of boards or turning of wood in any form, or when any other fuel than coal is used to create steam, shall hereafter be erected, or put up to be used in any city or town in this Commonwealth, unless the mayor and aldermen of such city, or selectmen of such town, shall have previously granted license therefor, designating the place where the building or buildings shall be erected, in which such steam engine or furnace shall be used, the materials and construction thereof, and such other provisions and limitations as to the height of flues and protection against fire, as they shall judge necessary for the safety of the neighborhood; such license to be granted on written application, and to be recorded in the records of such city or town.

Section 2. Whenever the mayor and aldermen of any city, or the selectmen of any town, after due notice in writing to the owner of any such steam engine or furnace heretofore erected or in use, and at a hearing of the matter, shall adjudge the same to be dangerous, or a nuisance to the neighborhood, they may make and record an order prescribing such rules, restrictions and alterations as to the building in which such steam engine or furnace is constructed or used, the construction and height of its smoke flues, or other provisions, as they shall deem the safety of the neighborhood to require, and it shall be the duty of the city or town clerk to deliver a copy of such order to a constable, who shall serve such owner with an attested copy thereof, and make return of his doings thereon to said clerk within three days from the delivery thereof to him.

Section 3. Any such engine or furnace hereafter erected without license, made and recorded, as aforesaid, in section first, shall be deemed and taken to be a common nuisance, without any other proof thereof than proof of its use, and any steam engine or furnace used contrary to the provisions of section second of this act, shall be taken and deemed to be a common nuisance.

Section 4. The mayor and aldermen of any city or selectmen of any town, shall have the same power and authority to abate and remove any such steam engine or furnace erected and used contrary to the provisions of this act, as are given to the board of health in the tenth and eleventh sections of the twenty-first chapter of the Revised Statutes.

Section 5. Whenever application shall be made for license as aforesaid, the mayor and aldermen of any city, or selectmen of any town, shall assign a time and place for the consideration of the same, and shall cause public notice thereof to be given at least fourteen days beforehand, in such manner as said mayor and aldermen or selectmen may direct, and at the expense of the applicant, in order that all persons interested may be heard before the granting of a license.

Section 6. Any owner of a steam engine or furnace aggrieved by any such order as provided in section second of this act, may apply to the court of common pleas, if sitting in the county in which such engine or furnace is situated, or to any justice thereof, in vacation, for a jury, and such court or justice shall issue a warrant for a jury to be impannelled by the sheriff, in the same manner as is provided in the twenty fourth chpater of the Revised Statutes, in regard to the laying out of highways; such application shall be made within three days after such order is served upon the said owner, and the said jury shall be impannelled within fourteen days from the issuing of said warrant.

Section 7. Upon any application to said court of common pleas, or to any justice thereof, for jury, said court or justice, on granting the same, may in its or his discretion, issue [illegible] restraining the further use of said engine or furnace, until the [illegible] of such application by the jury and court to which such verdict may be returned.

Section 8. The jury shall find a verdict either affirming or annulling the said order in full, or making alterations therein, as they may see fit, which verdict shall be returned to the next term of the said court by the sheriff for acceptance in like manner as in the case of highways, and which verdict being accepted, shall be binding to the same effect as the original order would have been without such appeal.

Section 9. If the verdict shall affirm such order, costs shall be recovered by the city or town against such applicant, if the verdict shall annul such order in whole, damages and costs shall be recovered by the complainant against such city or town; and in case the verdict shall alter such order in part, the court may render such judgment as to costs, as to justice shall appertain.

Section 10. This act shall not be in force in any town or city, unless the inhabitants of the town, or the city council of the city shall adopt the same at a legal meeting of said inhabitants or city council, called for that purpose.

Section 11. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Approved by the Governor March 25, 1845.

☞The above Act has been accepted by the City of Salem.]

RUNNING BEANS.

The prettiest way for a man who cultivates but little land, to raise his own beans for the next winter's use is—not to plant the bush kinds by themselves, for this will require too much land, as the product is small—but to raise white pole beans. The common case-knife beans are excellent for this purpose.

Strike out a dozen or more circles on the ground, as large as a cart wheel. Put a wheel barrow load of manure into it, and spade it up with the earth. Drop the seed in the circle, on the outer edge of the hill, say six inches apart. Then insert eight or ten poles just within the circle, at equal distances from each other, and tie the tops of the whole together—forming a cone. Cover up the seed, and wait the result.

Each of these hills will yield you a peck or half bushel of dry beans next fall—which if you have but dozen such hills will give you perhaps a half dozen bushels. This will be enough for your purposes. By this course, but a little land is occupied. Pole beans will yield very much more abundantly than bush beans, and occupy air whilst the latter must have the surface of the earth.

REMOVAL.

BOWDOIN'S DAGUERROTYPE ROOMS removed from Mechanic Hall, to the adjoining building above, 298 Essex street, where he has rooms built expressly for the purpose of taking Miniatures in any weather.

Mr. B. tenders his sincere thanks to his friends and the public, for their liberal patronage the past year, and respectfully solicits the continuance of public favor. He has recently purchased a large Achromatic instrument for the purpose of taking GROUPS and LARGE PICTURES, which enable him to give pictures of all sizes, equal to those taken in New York or Boston He has formed a connexion with an establishment in New York, from whence he receives all the new improvements, and materials connected with the Art, which will enable him to give better pictures for less prices than can be obtained in Boston.

Miniatures set in every variety of Lockets, Frames, Cases, &c.

☞Persons visiting Salem, and those about going to sea, can have a perfect likeness completed in a few minutes' time.

⁂Miniatures set in a neat Morocco Case for $1 50. Exhibition rooms open to visiters through the day.

Salem, March 15. tf

☞PAPER HANGINGS.☜

THE subscriber has made such an extensive arrangement with the principal manufacturers of Paper Hangings that he is enabled to sell them at the lowest prices, wholesale and retail. New patterns will be received every week as soon as they are out.

2800 rolls of new styles for the Spring trade have been received within a few days. Unusual inducements are thus offered to purchasers of House Paper of all descriptions, from the highest finished Satin to the most common Paper, (call and see for yourselves.) Country dealers supplied on the most reasonable terms.

SAMUEL B. FOSTER,
30 Lawrence Place,
Near the Railroad Station. Be sure and enquire for Foster, 30 Lawrence Place, Salem. mch 15

EDWARDS' LINIMENT.

For Sprains, Cuts, Bruises, Stiffened or Swelled Joints, Chilblains, Chapped Hands, Numbness and Rheumatism.

THIS invaluable artidle is now for the first time offered to the public, after having been in use for twenty years, with unusual and astonishing success within the circle of the proprietor's immediate influence. It has received the unqualified approbation of some eminent Physicians, and also Mariners and Mechanics.

It is also recommended, and more than a thousand cases might be cited, when it has been used for Horses in cases of lameness or when galled, &c. &c.

The public are assured that in offering the above we do recommend that which has not the least semblance of QUACKERY, but on the contrary it has done great and lasting good in its efficacious power and healing qualities.

As this medicine has been so long known in Salem and its vicinity, and as there are many that would avail themselves of it if they knew where it could be obtained, therefore the subscriber would now offer it to the public. It will be found always on hand and prepared by the subscriber.

BENJ. EDWARDS,
No. 14 Front street, Salem, Mass.

Wanted—trusty and worthy AGENTS in the neighboring towns and vicinity.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENTS.

DANIELS, POOR & CO., Danvers, Mass.
Benjamin F. Browne, Salem Mass.
Smith & Fowle, Boston, "
H. F. Skerry, Bangor, Me.
Charles Whipple, Bookseller, Newburyport.
Wm. R. Preston, Portsmouth, N. H.
John S. Caldwell, Belfast. Me.
Wm. H. Palmer, Lynnfield.
Joseph Edwards, jr., Lynn.
Charles Edwards, Marblehead.
Wm. Edwards, Beverly.
March 15, 1845. tf

J. & H. HALE,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

HARD WARE GOODS AND CUTLERY,

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC

HOUSE KEEPING ARTICLES AND FANCY GOODS,

Agricultural Tools and Ploughs

PLOUGH CASTINGS, FRICTION ROLLERS AND CRANKS,
Iron and Copper Pumps and Lead Pipe,
WINDOW GLASS,
CAMPHENE,
CAMPHENE LAMPS, HANGING, SIDE AND ASTRAL—A GREAT VARIETY OF STYLES,
Cut Glass, Britannia, Brass, Bronze and Mantle Lamps,
CARPENTER'S TOOLS,
HOUSE TRIMMINGS,
Shoe Makers' Tools, Nails, Thread and Pegs.
BOILER DOORS AND OVEN MOUTHS,
Furnaces, Cast Iron Hollow Ware, Tubs, Pails, Mats, Cut Nails, Emery, Zinc, Lead, &c.
No. 215 Essex Street, SALEM, Mass.
march 15 tf

PERIODICALS, PAPERS, &c.

LUTHER CHANDLER, GENERAL AGENT for the sale of all the principal Periodicals, Newspapers, &c., and will furnish them to all persons who may wish to subscribe; among which are

Graham's Magazine,	Harper's Pictorial Bible,
Ladies' National do,	Verplanck's Shakspeare,
Arthur's Lady's do,	Phil Saturday Courier,
Christian Family Mag.,	Neal's Gazette,
Gentlemen's Magazine,	New York Mirror,
Godey's Lady's Book,	Frost's Pictorial World,

The above and all the principal periodicals and papers will be furnished promptly.

☞BOOKS BOUND at the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

Orders may be left at J. SHED'S, opposite the Monument, South Danvers. 1y mch 29

Danvers Express and Baggage Waggon

LEAVES Danvers and Boston, daily (Sundays excepted.)

All orders left at McIntire's Hotel, or Poole & Jacobs' store Danvers, No. 14 Blackstone, and No. 1 Fulton streets, Boston, will be promptly attended to.

Goods handled with care.

S. F. TOWN.
April 19, 1845. 1 y

DOESKINS AND CASSIMERES.

A NEW lot Stripes, Plaids and Clouded Doeskins. Black, Blue Black, and Lavender Cassimeres, just received at EDWARDS'S,
may 3 14 Front street

New Furniture Store.

SALEM FURNITURE & FEATHER WARE-HOUSE.
205 1-2 ESSEX STREET. 205 1-2
(Two Doors East from the Market,)

JOSEPH WALLIS would respectfully inform his friends and the public that he has taken the rooms recently occupied by T. Needham, Esq., where he will keep constantly on hand and for sale an extensive and well selected assortment of which he will sell at the lowest cash prices, among which may be found,

CABINET FURNITURE,

Sofas, Sofa Beds; Windlass, Cot Trundle and common Bedsteads; Secretaries; Bureaus; Mahogany, Card, Work, Centre and Dining Tables;—Mahogany, Cane-seat and common Chairs; Mahogany, Cane-back and common Rocking Chairs;—Children's Toy, Rocking and Dining Chairs; Settees and Settee Cradles; Cribs; Grecian and common Wash Stands; Portable Sinks; Portable and Gentleman's Writing Desks, Toilet, Dining and common Pine Tables; Looking Glasses; Swing and Toilet Glasses. Fancy Boxes, a great variety;—Mattresses; and every article usually found in his line of business.

CLOCKS.

J. W. intends keeping on hand a large and well selected assortmeni of Wood and Brass Clocks from the best of manufacturers—all of which we can feel confident in warranting. Those about purchasing this article will do well to call.

FEATHERS.

Live Geese and common Feathers; a great variety.

N B. J. W. will still continue to Manufacture FURNITURE at the Old Stand, No 29 Lafayette, corner of Ward street, where he will keep on hand a good assortment of

Cabinet Furniture, Feathers, Looking Glasses and Clocks.

Salem, April 12, 1845.

ROOM PAPERS.

☞2000 ROLLS.☜

OF the newest and most desirable patterns of Philanelphia and New York Room PAPERS, selected with great care from the different manufacturers in Philadelphia and New York.

Also 8000 rolls of almost every variety of patterns of FRENCH and AMERICAN manufacture of the best and cheapest patterns.

The above having been bought for cash will be sold at a small advance on the cost,—as cheap or cheaper than can be bought in Boston or elsewhere.

☞Please call and examine at the Bookstore of W. & S. B. IVES Stearns' Building.

Salem April 18, 1845. 2 m.

Fales' Cathartic, or Vegetable PURGATIVE LOZENGES.

ARE the best and most popular medicines for peopleo f all ages, country, and climates, and in every condition of life. They are compounded of the essences of vegetables from many nations. Their taste is inexpressibly delightful. They cause no pain in their operations, but the first change of feeling after taking them is, that of pleasure, and they cleanse the stomach and bowels more perfectly than any other purgative medicines.

The most wonderful and surprising cures have been effected by them in different parts of the earth. How these purgative lozenges do speedily purify the blood, and substitute health for sickness, is a mystery to the most eminent members of the healing art. Such purgative medicines must become universal, and supersede the use of all other purgative compounds; and as long as disease continues to afflict people, so long will these Lozenges remain unrivalled in all coming time throughout the world. Every person who travels should carry them—every family should keep them—and every sick man, woman, or child should take them.

FALES' WORM LOZENGES,

Are a safe and sure remedy for worms. Children love them. They act like a charm in removing the symptoms such as starting in sleep, grating the teeth paleness about the mouth and nose, occasional sickness at stomach, precarious appetite, swelled bowels, and general feverish habit, The child falls into a quiet sleep, and the worms are stupified and expelled, and the child, as far as heard from, in every instance has been cured. Price, 25 cents per box, with full directions; sold at Commercial street, Boston,

FALES' COUGH LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common Colds and Coughs, Whooping Cough, Inflamatiou of the Throat and Lungs, in the Croup or Hives, and more certain to act satisfactory than the celebrated Hive Syrup. The most happy effect is obtained in a few moments; the symptoms disappear and the disease is broken up by the magical effect of these Lozenges. Full directions accompany each box, are found at the Depositopy, 96 Commercial staeet, Boston.

FALES' DYSENTERY LOZENGES,

Are a safe and agreeble temedy for Dysentery, Diarrhea and Bowel Complaints of children. Particular attention must be paid to the directions which are on each box.

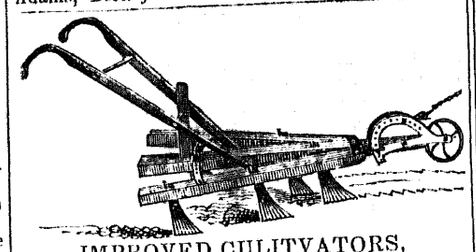
FALES' CAMPHOR LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common and sick head ache, and [illegible] eyes, in erruptive diseases, such as Measles and Small Pox. Also in Mania, Epilepsy, Melancholy, Hysteria, in St. Vitus Dance, and in all eases of languor and oppession of the Vital powers, may be taken with safety by women and children in all conditions. Full directions accompany each box.

FALES' CYPRIAN HAIR TONIC,

Is now so extensively known and justly celebrated that further comment upon it will be useless, we can say, however, that among the many thousands who have purchassed the Tonic, in this and other countries, none have returned with complaints, while thousands have expressed not only their approbation, but their wonder and admiration on beholding its effects. A few bottles only can be had at 96 Commercial street, Boston.

CLEAR OUT YOUR RATS.



The gnawing and antics of these destructive creatures can be hushed forever in your house and store, if you will procure a box of the genuine.

MADAGASCAR RAT EXTERMINATOR,

and use it according to directionf. You cannot depend upon it unless obtained at J. J. FALES' No. 96 Commercial street Boston.

—AGENTS—

Salem, J. S. HARRISON, J. Stone, jr., H. Whipple, S Badger, jr; Lynn, J. Moulton jr., Geo. Lummus, Wm. Cogswell, Wm. L Ladd; Swampscot, W. Thompson; Marblehead, E. Arnold. Wm. Stacey; Danvers, S. Proctor, Jos Shed, New Mills, H. S Pope, A. P Perley & Co, C. Simonds, Calder & Foster; Topsfield, B. P. Adams; Beverly. A N Clark. ep6m mch 29

IMPROVED CULITVATORS,
A complete assortment now on hand, at
J. & H. HALE'S,
May 3. tf 215 Essex street Salem.

GRASS SEED.

3000 POUNDS CLOVER SEED;
50 bags Red Top Seed;
150 bushels Herds Grass Seed;
Orchard Grass and White Clover Seed—for sale by S. CHAMBERLAIN & SON, mch 15 Front Street, Salem.

KENDALL'S CHURNS.—A fresh supply of the various sizes, also, the different sizes of the SHAKER CHURNS, for sale at apr 26 J. & H. HALE'S, 215 Essex st.

G. W & E. CRAFTS,
BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURERS AND STATIONERS,
174 ESSEX STREET, SALEM,

HAVE constantly on hand, and will manufacture to order, all kinds of Blank Books, from the best paper, ruled to any pattern, and bound in a neat and substantial manner.

FINE STATIONERY,

of almost ever description, adapted for counting rooms and schools, comprising in part, Letter and Writing Papers, ruled and plain; Drawing Papers; Note, Tissue and Wrapping Papers; Wafers; Sealing Wax; Seals and Steel Pens of every variety; Quills of every description; wafer Cups; sand boxes; writing fluids and inks; penknives; razors, &c.

PRINTING, RULING AND BINDING.

Printing of shop bills, cards, bill heads, catalogues, &c. executed in the neatest manner and on the best terms. Ruling, to any pattern desired, at short notice. Binding, of every description, executed with despatch.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

A constant supply of school books, of the best editions, together with every kind of School Stationery. Also, all kinds of miscellaneous books furnished at the lowest rates. mch 15

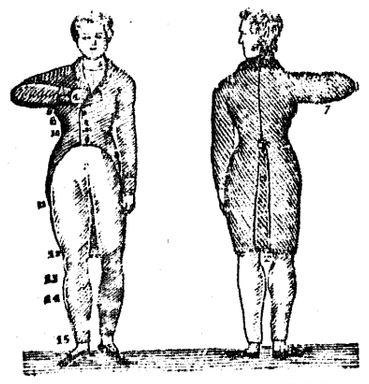
S. R. BOTT,
DRAPER & TAILOR,
No. 148 Essex Street, Salem,

TAKES this method of informing the public of Danvers and vicinity that he has for sale one of the richest and BEST selected assortments of Broadcloths, Cassimeres & Vestings ever before offered in Salem. The Stock is of the latest Spring and Summer styles, and cannot be surpassed by any establishment in the city, which will be sold by the yard, or made into Garments, in a style that CANNOT be surpassed in this or any other city.

☞Strangers from the country would do well to call at this establishment, as they select their Goods with the most perfect confidence, that each article is as good in quality, and as low in price as can be obtained at any other store.

N. B. The report of Fashions received every month.

Salem, March 15, 1845.



JUST received a full assortment of the celebrated EAGLE PLOUGH, improved. Also, Garden Rakes & Partridge's celebrated Manure Forks, Rakes, Hoes, and Castings for repairing the various parts of almost all kinds of Ploughs now in use.

J. & H. HALE, 215 Essex st. Salem.
May 3

ADAMS & RICHARDSON,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
[illegible]

HARDWARE.

MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS FOR THE SALE OF
Cut Nails, White Lead, Sheet Lead and Lead Pipe,
NO. 207 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
Joseph Adams,
C. M. Richardson,
march 15 tf

BENJAMIN EDWARDS,
DRAPER & TAILOR,
No. 14 FRONT STREET, SALEM.

GARMENTS Cut and Made to order, and Fashionably, and warranted to give entire satisfaction

Constantly on hand, a good assortment of
BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES, AND VESTINGS.

Also—Neck Stocks, Italian Cravats, Scarfs, Shirt Bosoms, Collars, Feetings, Braces, Umbrellas, Hair and Clothes Brushes, Cologne Water, Wallets,

and other articles necessary for Gentlemen's use.

Grateful for the very liberal patronage which has heretofore been bestowed upon the establisment, he hopes by care and attention to business to merit a continuance.

Any order for Goods in the TAILORING LINE, attended to with fidelity and despatch.

All Garments Repaired and Cleansed CHEAP.

Any of the above articles if not on hand when called for, will be furnished at short notice.
mch 15 tf

Overhauls.

A GOOD assortment will be constantly kept on hand, at EDWARDS',
apr 26 14 Front street, Salem.

EASTERN RAILROAD.
SUMMER ARRANGMENT.

ON and after April 4th, 1845, Trains leave daily (Sundays excepted,)

Boston for Portland, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P. M.
" Portsmouth, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 5 1-2 P.M.
" Somersworth, Great Falls, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P.M.
" for Newburyport, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 and 5 1-2 P.M.
" for Salem, 7 1-4, 9, A.M., 12 1-4 2 1-2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2, 7 1-2 P.M.

Salem for Portland, 8 A.M., 3 1-4 P.M.
Salem for Portsmouth and Newburyport, 8 A.M., 3 1-4, 6 1-4 P.M.
Portland for Boston, 7 1-2 A.M., 3 P.M.
Saco for Boston, 8 A.M., 3 1-2 P.M.
Somersworth, Great Falls for Boston, 8 3-4 A.M., 4 1-4 P.M.
South Berwick for Boston, 9 1-4 A M, 4 3-4 P.M.
Portsmouth for Boston, 6 1-2, 10,* A.M., 5 1-2* P.M.
Newburyp't for Boston, 7 1-4, 10 3-4* AM. 6 1-4* PM.
Salem for Boston, 7, 8 1-2, 10 1-4 11 3-4,* A.M. 2 1-4, 5, 7,* P.M.

*Or on their arrival from the East.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Trains leave Marblehead for Salem, at 7 1-4, 8 1-2, 10, A.M.; 2, 4, 4 3-4, 7, P.M.

Leave Salem for Marblehead, at 8, 9 3-4 A.M. 1, 3 1-4, 4 1-4, 6 1-4, 8 1-4 P.M.

A Merchandize Train will leave Boston, Portland and all intermediate places every day.

Freight Office in Boston, No. 17 Merchants Row, and on the line of the road at the several Depots.

JOHN KINSMAN,
apr 12 Master of Transportation.

Summer Arrangement of the
DANVERS AND SALEM
HOURLY COACHES

THE Danvers and Salem Hourly Coaches will in connection with the Eastern Railroad, leave Danvers and Salem at the following hours, viz:

Leave Danvers at	7	A M.	Leave Salem at	8	A.M.
" "	8		" "	9	1-2
" "	9 3-4		" "	11	1-2
" "	11 1-4		" "	12	3-4
" "	1 3-4	P M.	" "	3	P.M.
" "	2 3-4		" "	4
" "	4 1-2		" "	6
" "	6 1-2		" "	8

For seats apply at Macintire's Hotel, or at Joseph G Shed's store in Danvers, and at the Essex House and Salem Hotel in Salem.

Railroad passengers taken at the depot on the arrival of the cars from Boston and the East.

☞Extra Coaches furnished at any hour on reasonable terms.

SYMONDS & TEEL.
apr 19 tf

DOWLEY & WHALL,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, AND
AUCTIONEERS,
FOR THE SALE OF
Boots, Shoes, Leather and all kinds of Shoe Stock, at Private and Auction Sale,
Nos. 21 and 22 PEARL Street,
Levi A. Dowley, Joseph B. Whall, } BOSTON.

Cash liberally advanced on Boots, Shoes and Shoe Stock, for private and public sales.

—References—

Messrs. Jos. Whitney & Co.,	Boston.
" Josiah M. Jones, Esq.,
" Spofford, Tileston, & Co.,	New York.
" Shepard Knapp, Esq.,
" C. M. Leupp & Co.,
" Haddock, Hazletine & Reed,	Philadelphia.
" Poland, Jenkins & Co.,	Baltimore.
" Friead, Humphrey & Co.,	Albany.

mch 29 1y

LAMP BLACK.

1000 POUNDS of Lamp Black, warranted a prime article.

3000 Madras Goat Skins, in crust. Goat and Sheep Morocco. Kid, Linings, and Bindings.

For sale by W. & M. BLACK Jr.,
apr 12 New Mills, Danvers.

TAILORS' CRAYONS. A new lot of Tailors' Crayons, manufactured to my order, just received and for sale at EDWARDS', 14 Front street,
may 10

POOLE & STEDMAN,
MAKERS OF
CARRIAGES, HARNESSES, TRUNKS, &c.

THE subscribers having formed a Co-partnership under the above firm, are ready to attend to any orders in their line.

Particular attention paid to repairing.

S. A. POOLE,
G. B. STEDMAN.

N. B. Valises, Ladies' Satchels, Carpet Bags, &c. constantly on hand and for sale cheap.

Corner of Grove and Main Streets.

Danvers, March 15.

TWEED COATS. Another lot of Tweed Coats, just received and selling cheaper than the last lot may 10 at EDWARDS', 14 Front street Salem.

POOLE & JACOBS,
MANUFACTURERS OF
Boot and Shoe Linings, Skivers,
AND BINDINGS,
AND DEALERS IN WOOD,
MAIN ST., DANVERS, MASS.

GERMAN CLOTHS.—A lot of Superb German Twilled Blue Black Broadcloths for Dress Coats, just received and selling cheap at
May 3 EDWARDS'S, 14 Front st.

Great Bargains

ARE NOW BEING HAD AT THE
Washington Street Clothing Store, Salem.

GARMENTS of all description may be obtained at prices which cannot fail to give entire satisfaction.

Great care has been taken in the getting up of every garment, all of which is warranted equal, if not superior to any Clothing in the city.

The subscriber continues to take measures as formerly, and all Garments bespoken, will be made according to the wishes of the customer, and will guarantee both the style and fit.

☞BOY WANTED, as an Apprentice.

S. CHAMBERLAIN, JR.
Salem, March, 15. tf

CHARLES H. MANNING,
CABINET MAKER,
Near the Sign of the Lamb, Main Street,
DANVERS, MASS.

FURNITURE manufactured on the most reasonable terms. Also—CURRIER'S TABLES made and repaired cheap.

SHOE-MAKERS' PEGGING BENCHES made as above. oct 15

DANVERS COURIER.

VOL. 1. DANVERS, (Mass.) SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 31, 1845. NUMBER 11.

THE DANVERS COURIER
IS PUBLISHED BY
GEORGE R. CARLTON,
EVERY SATURDAY MORNING,
A few doors North of Mackintire's Hotel,
CENTRAL ST.—SOUTH DANVERS.

Terms—$1 50 if paid in advance, or $2 00, if not paid within one month of the time of subscribing.

The carriers are not allowed to sell any copies of the Courier. Single copies may be obtained at the office, at 5 cents each.

Advertisements will be inserted on favorable terms.

POETRY.

FOR THE COURIER.

TWILIGHT MUSINGS.

The king of Day has dipped his orb of light,
Beneath the ocean's mountain waves of blue,
And o'er the heavens, slowly, sable night,
Unwreaths her mighty wing of raven hue.

How calm and lovely is this evening scene,
Which Heaven in kindness makes so still and fair.
Here stands the willow—there the evergreen,
Each waving graceful in the star-lit air.

The hush of night is on the green-haired hills;
The howling wind hath sung itself to sleep:
No noise is heard save yonder purling rills,
Which wind their silver passage to the deep.

Outspread before me is a tranquil bay,
In which the stars of heaven seem thickly strown,
Fair as was imaged in the crystal Sea,
The lamps which glared before the Eternal throne.*

Lo! o'er the deep now Luna lifts her head,
Where trooping waves roll marching in her beam,
O'er the green earth her silver rays are spread,
And trembling play upon yon glassy stream:

Sleep on the bank where Flora sports at ease:
Pursue through space their silent trackless way:
Light with a partial gleam the fresh green trees,
And faintly imitate the blaze of day.

Calm evening hour! thy soft and mellow tone,
Awakens into life each slumbering bliss,
That erst around my days of boyhood shone,
As pure, and warm. as Love's first balmy kiss.

On blissful scenes which were too bright to last;
The heart beats high, the throbbing bosom swells,
With recollections of the joyous past.

On joys that were as bright as glory's beam,
The mind, still lingering, dwells with fond regret,
And ne'er till sunk in cold oblivion's stream,
Can we the scenes of youthful days forget.

Sweet evening scene, farewell: yet ere we part,
Pour on my soul devotion's humble strain:
Soothe the rebellious sigh impress my heart,
And set me free from Passion's wayward reign.

Oh, may that peace possess my pensive soul,
Which faith, which hope, which gratitude inspires;
And all my passions learn His soft control,
Who rules above the sky these mystic fires.

Salem. LOGAN.

—*Rev, 4. 5, 6,

COMMUNICATIONS.

FOR THE COURIER.

Mr. Courier:—It may not seem discreet and proper for a young Miss in her teens to step into the front rank of a newspaper which is exposed to the gaze of such a multitude of readers, but really sir, I cannot always be silent. Nature at this season is such a chatter-box, and is so sociable with her voices of birds and the whispering of her breezes, that I must follow suit; and having no one today to talk to—why should I not say my say to you? To be sure, the mandate of custom usually excludes us ladies from the prosy part of a newspaper, so that—except in an occasional covered up piece of rhyme, we seldom appear before the world, but sir, cnstom is an obstinate, arbitrary, meddling fool, and I for one, shall not be restrained by any of it requirings. Is'nt an idea an idea, and if I am fortunate enough to arrest one occasionally, why should not the world have the advantage of it, as well as of those which visit the knowledge boxes of the lords of creation? But don't, pray, think I intend to develop an idea in this communication. Unfortunately, it is very seldom that I am favored with one, and I was only supposing a case. I want to have a little chat with you about an old subject, ha! ha! old uncle Newman Noggs.—

You know the poor old fellow is mightily distressed because you sat him in an arm-chair and called him venerable. Well, here am I waiting with a score of my good friends to come out.—Making occasional sly visits to the family Bible to be quite sure that we have no claim to another year's advancement towards the wished for season when the Miss is cast with school books and dolls and all other odious juvenalities, into the past, and the lady assumes dominion over her heart, hand, and such beaux as may enlist under her banner. It is a very provoking thing to me to see any one else finding fault with what I desire to have, and to hear uncle Noggs fret on account of his years, really I have no patience with him.—Oh! uncle, what a pity it is that you can't exchange one wrinkle of experience for a half dozen years of backward progression youthwards. But you can't do it, sir, and you ought not to tantalize us with your indignations against our friend, because he called you venerable. So you are not venerable, hey? and you went to your mirror, and pulled out a grey hair very spitefully when it was hinted at. And you think we young-girls are not indifferent to a bachelor if he is hale and hearty, and a lover of Port. Don't think it, sir. Do you know, Mr. Courier, I think

"I ken fu' weel
Who this auld man may be."

We have had some glorious mornings this May, and I have sometimes in my walks (for I too rise early,) met just such a hale, hearty old fellow as he describes himself to be. And though I'm not sure that 'tis him, I'll tell you how he looked and seemed. Imagine the birds singing, and the sun shining gaily, and us young girls laughing and chatting, and all at once as we turn a corner in our walk, see the demure countenances we assume on seeing a man walking towards us, followed by a little dog, and assisted by a cane, while his eyes involuntarily move from his cravat to his boots to see that no wandering speck of dust has found a resting place on the newly brushed broadcloth.—Being sarisfied in this respect, see him straighten up a form of nearly six feet, and assume a gait as nearly military as the circumstances warrant.—Then observe him as unconcernedly as possible turn and speak to Ginger as if he were thinking solely of the dog and was quite unaware that any one saw him. And then as we pass him, notice the meant to be easy 'Good morning,' with which he salutes us, and his apparent good humor at the giggle which answers his salutations, (for what right has he to address us so familiarly? we sha'n't answer him, not we indeed.) Then finish the picture by imagining him turning round repeatedly to speak to Ginger, as he walks away and at each turn smiling towards us, (of course we turn round as girls have a right to) and you may have an idea of how uncle Newman, if it was he, appeared to me a short time since. And really if 'tis he, he is past hope. Why, his hair is grey and he dresses old fashioned enough, and altogether he is quite a curiosity. And to think that he expects that we were struck with his appearance as he no doubt does, it is laughable. I don't care if he is cross. I mean to tease him for his denying his age, and he deserves it. What business has he to be an old bachelor and boast of his single blessedness when so many of us poor girls are pining in single wretchedness, and to talk of the comforts of his quiet life when he ought to share them with a wife. Isn't it selfish for him to do so? But as I live, if he isn't looking sober and sighing!—and there goes that bandanna to his eyes, and my nonsense is the cause. Poor fellow! perhaps there's a disappointment in the case.—Well, don't mind it, uncle, I only wanted to tease you, and I'm sorry I called up any sad reminiscences. But here comes two of my friends for me to walk, and if they knew that I was writing to you, what a pretty scandal there would be! and Mr. Courier, and don't let uncle Noggs be displeased at my chat. Poor old disconsolate fellow!

Yours,
JULIA.

FOR THE COURIER.

Mr. Courier—I was sitting by my door the other evening, as is my wont when the labors of the day are done, to while away the hour in quiet thought and think over the duties of the morrow. As I smoked my pipe, and watched the gentle weed turning to ashes, and the snowy wreaths curling up and melting into thin air, I could not help seeing in them a visible type of the fleeting nature of our mortal life and the last end of man: and forgetting the sunset-sky and the little birds returning to their nests, I fell into a sober mood from which neither the coaxing antics of my dog, the pleasant hum of the village, or the sweet voices of children playing near could arouse me. As the shades begun to fall, unwilling to sit longer or to retire within the house, I took my hat and stick, and sauntered forth. Chance or magnetic influence directed my steps, and I soon found myself at one of the entrances of the beautiful Cemetery which lies on the borders of our town. I am not usually fond of contemplating death or looking the grim monster in the face; but sometimes I feel in that frame of mind when the idea of death, however melancholy, comes to me robbed of its dark terrors, and wearing a sort of solemn fascination which chains all my thoughts and holds me in complete subjection. It was thus at the time of which I speak,—and so I passed under the arch and wandered up and down the winding paths among the tomb stones, which as they lifted themselves up towards the sky seemed pointing to that world where the spirit dwells when the body has mouldered into dust.

The hour and the scene were such as to fill my soul with a pensive calm and hallow the spot in my memory forever. The twilight had long since deepened into night, the quiet stars had come out one by one, and now was rising aloft the full moon, fair stoic of the skies, smiling down alike on joy and sorrow, innocence and crime. And never upon gay garden or fairy bower did she look with milder, more enchanting ray, than upon this sepulchral ground, this resting place of the departed. Each ripple of the running stream was silvered with the light—in each flower glistened the dew-drops like gems—and the white marble shafts, as they rose through the trees, were robed with a light so pure, that it seemed like faith and hope gilding the sorrows of earth. Not a sound broke the solemn stillness save the lonely cry of the night-bird as it now and then fell wailing on the ear, and the soft murmur of the warm west wind as it stole over and gently kissed the water, or whispered through the green branches of the wood and sighed a tender requiem for the dead.

Oh how well it is to strip the grave of its gloomy associations and throw around it the charm of living nature: to deck the tomb with chaplets of beauty, and adorn its dumb forgetfulness with the labors of art and living affection. It will not bring us any nearer Heaven, and the deep sleep of death may not be more tranquil—still it is a happy thought that when we die, our resting-place shall be, not in some noisome charnel-house amid the din and strife of busy men, but away in some calm retreat where nature ever wears a peaceful smile, and the blue sky freely vaults itself, and where the birds will sing gayly and the flowers bloom brightly above us. And if, when the body is crumbling to dust, the ever-living spirit still visits as many suppose, the scene of its mortal pilgrimage to watch over and commune with those it has left—how delightful to think that the spot where pensive memory will haunt and brood upon the past, where love and friendship will go to weep the joys of other days and pay to sundered ties the tribute of an honest tear, that our earthly trysting-place with those who have gone before, will be some dear nook we would have chosen and blessed when living, where the green bank gently slopes, and the sunshine and the moon beams and the shadows of the passing clouds sweetly play, while all around from earth and air and wave rise music and fragrance as incense to Heaven.

But do what we may, wreathe as we will the death's-head with roses, it is still the ghastly grinning skull, and still is death ever the end of our life. As it is written, so shall it be.

"All that live must die,
Passing through nature to eternity."

Youth and age, beauty and wisdom, the charms of love and the triumphs of reason, riches, honor, learning, fame, whatever delights and enobles humanity or adorns and illumines the world, here at last must come and "lie in cold obstruction."

"The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power,
And all that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave,
Await alike the inexorable hour;
The path of glory leads but to the grave."

I have been told much of the vanity of life; I have read it in the Sacred Word—I have heard it from the lips of pious men—and my cold reason has acknowledged it as a sober moral truth. But how seldom have I ever felt its awful weight! Oh no! for this lesson we must go to the tomb—and there perchance, in the still night and beneath the silent stars, may we learn and know something of what no tongue can tell and no language teach. There perhaps, in the agony of our souls, may we have some faint glimpse of what during all our days we see but once or twice, the wonder and the mystery of "this pleasing, anxious being."

"We are born; we laugh; we weep;
We love; we droop; we die!
Ah! wherefore do we laugh or weep?
Why do we live or die?
Who knows that secret deep?
Alas, not I!

We toil through pain and wrong:
We fight——and fly:
We love; we lose; and then, ere long,
Stone-dead we lie.
O life! is all thy song
'Endure and—die?'"

Of the many reflections which crowd upon me when I think of death, there is one which more not that we can do so little in our brief day and must leave unfinished many a work, unsolved many a problem, we have begun; but that whatever we are enabled to accomplish, still the best part of the knowledge we have gained, from nature, time, and the human heart, must wholly die within us and leave no fruit to earth—that all those peculiar ideas which have grown up within us, and form a portion of ourselves and distinguish us from other mortals—those thoughts which wander through eternity, burning in our souls, but never as yet finding utterance—that all these must go with us down to the grave and there with us be buried forever. Say not that this is a small matter, that true worth and virtue ever find the light. Oh no! the choicest part of a man's soul has rarely found a revelation in this world. Far down in the unfathomed depths are hid the rarest gems. I know this must be so, for such is the teaching of my own life. Poor creature as I am, I sometimes feel stirring within me ideas and aspirations which seek to fathom the profoundest mysteries or grasp the very stars—thoughts so bold as to startle and affright themselves—emotions and sympathies which seem the manifestations of a former an more exalted being;—and yet though they constitute my real individuality, though they are the secret of my moral identity, never as yet able to breathe a whisper of themselves in any human ear, known only to myself and my Maker. Think then, how it must be with a great, whole man!—Think of the scholar who through long years has toiled and wrought,—though he may have given to the race a thousand sage and useful lessons, how, when his lamp goes out, there is quenched with it thought too subtle for expression, wisdom which could never be written. Think how in the reason of the philosopher and the imagination of the poet, above all they have said or sung, lie struggling for birth as in the womb, everlasting truths as yet but dimly hinted, and solemn music, whose strains once sounding forth, would touch an answering chord in every human heart and ravish the world with celestial melody. There is, however, in this very ground of sad regret some pregnant seeds of hope. Why were these hidden fires given to the soul? Why is there that within us so restless and aspiring, which ever longing, never can find speech or work its lofty will?—Now it is that there beams upon us the idea of an immortality! There must be some period of our being in which the faculties of the mind can expand and follow out their divine promptings. And thus, death, before so dark and dread, becomes but the transition-state in which the soul is freed from its earthly fetters, and then springs forth with wings of light and beauty upon a new and glorious existence.

But let us cease these musings, and, before we leave the consecrated place, read from the living page spread out before us one or two lessons more eloquent than all that pen can write. Here on the hill, beneath the massive stone which the first light of morning gilds, and on whose summit lingers the parting day, sleeps one who was loved and honored in life, and lamented in death. Nature had endowed him with no wonderful gifts, and blind Fortune had not chosen him for her favorite: he only made the best use of the talent committed to his trust, and met the world like other men. What then was it which gained him respect, and troops of friends, and high places of trust, and a proud name? It was simple honesty. He was a good man. Come then, ye who strive after honor and earthly happiness, read here the graven truth, that better and more potent than learning or gold or genius, is an honest heart and a blameless life. And then, looking beyond mere worldly prosperity, for to all, high and low, must come an hereafter, remember what the poet says:

'When by a good man's grave I muse alone,
Methinks some angel sits upon the stone;
And with a voice, inspiring joy, not fear,
Says, pointing upward, that he is not here,
That he is risen!'

Come now with me to one favorite spot whither my feet often stray and which sad recollection visits in many a dream of day and night. It is down here close by the water's edge where the little waves, as they ceaselessly beat upon the sand, mark the never ending progress of the hours.

Tread lightly, and banish from thy heart all wicked thoughts, for she, the young and fair, who sleeps here in her last long rest, was beautiful and good as angels are. See how lovingly the vine clasps with its tendrils the sculptured marble as though it would embrace the form which lies within—and the drooping willow and the dark cypress, how sadly they bend o'er the spot, like mourning sentinels who weep to guard their sacred trust!

'Sweet tomb that in thy circuit dost contain
The perfect model of Eternity.'

Oh, surely, never alighted on this earth a lovelier being. She was framed in the prodigality of nature, the soul of beauty beaming in her face, her heart a mantling cup of innocence and joy:—

'Exchanging lustre with the sun,
A part of day she strayed—
A glancing, living, human smile
On Nature's face that played.'

But youth and beauty fade like summer roses.—The voice whose tones of music once rung on the ear is forever hushed. Forever quenched is the light which once sparkled in that sweet blue eye. The silver chord is loosed, the golden bowl is broken:—

'Death fell on her, like an untimely frost
Upon the sweetest flower of the field,' and now, here in the green valley among the buried dead, she sleeps the sleep which knows no waking, and the memory of her loveliness is all that's left to earth. Oh Moon! pour on her lowly rest thy purest ray! Stars! bend on her still your tender eyes! And Heaven! thou last fond home of mortal hope, cherish her gentle spirit and give it immortal joys!

* * * * * *

I feel too sober, Mr. Courier, to talk with you upon any common topic or trifling matter, and so must bid you an abrupt good-bye—subscribing myself your humble servant and fellow-mortal,

NEWMAN NOGGS.

The Bloody Hand.

By the Author of "Old Ironsides off a Lea Shore."

'There is blood upon your hand, John,' said a tall, masculine-made woman, in a homespun dress, as she swept up the hearth of the solitary farm-house, in the interior of England, at the close of a cold December's day, in the year 18—.

The person thus addressed, was an iron-faced farmer, of about the middle size, with dark eyes peering underneath a pair of shaggy eyebrows.—His cheek was flushed, as though old age had been coursing like wildfire through his swollen veins, and his brawny hand, as he looked at the clot of fresh blood that stained it, seemed to have been made for a descendant of Cain.

'There is blood,' said Brown, for such was the farmer's name, 'but it is all off now—bring me my supper.' The wife—for such was the first speaker—looked him long and anxiously in the face.—Horrid visions seemed to be floating before her eyes, and murder almost escaped from her compressed lips.

'Why, what in the name of nature ails the woman?' said Brown endeavoring, by an ill-contrived laugh, to silence her fears. 'If people go where sheep are slaughtered, they must expect to get bloody.'

'The blood of sheep has not been on your hand,' said his wife, firmly. 'There was a melancholy-looking man upon the hill to-day. He had money, and a valuable watch. He offered me a piece of gold for directing him to the next village, and set his watch by our clock. Have you seen the stranger, John?'

The iron features of the hardened husband now contracted into a fearful scowl. 'Woman,' said he, 'what have I to do with travellers on the hill side. Mind your own affairs,' Then changing his tone to a sort of whine, he aaid, 'Give me my food, Meg. I am cold and hungry, and cannot joke with you longer.'

'Joke with me?' said the poor wife, with a countenance agonized with horror, 'God grant that it proves a joke.'

The supper was now placed upon the table.—The farmer ate his food in silence, and then went to bed. In a few moments he was lost in a deep though terrible sleep. Having seen that every thing was quiet, the good wife put on her hooded cloak, and went out upon the lawn. It was a cold and cheerless evening. The hills seemed turning into misty shadows, before the wand of an enchanter, and the waving tree-tops seemed like the bosom of the midnight deep. The bleak wind howled sadly amid the elm-trees by the way side, and the bay of a distant watch-dog came echoing up the vale. The unhappy wife followed the track of her husband for about a mile. She now was startled by a deep groan. Scanning narrowly the hill side, she perceived a place where some persons had apparently struggled together, in the snow-drift, and beyond, a little distance, she beheld the melancholy stranger whom she had directed on his course several hours previous, lying upon the ground, with a dreadful wound upon his pallid forehead. Brown's wife was a strong and resolute woman. She raised the wounded man and wiped the blood from his eyes. Finding that life was not extinct, she bore him upon her shoulders to her dwelling. Having laid him down in the passage, she opened the kitchen-door where Brown was sleeping. His thick, heavy breathing, gave evidence that the sleep of drunkenness was upon him. She then carried the stranger through the kitchen to a little bed room where she usually retired when the abuse of he brutal companion became insupportable. As the head of the wounded man brushed by the face of Brown, his hands instinctively griped the bedclothes, and carried them over his head. Having staunched the wound—the bleeding of which had been checked before by the coagulating blood—the good wife dressed it in a manner well-approved of by medical men, gave her patient a composing draught, and then returned to her seat by the kitchen fire.

The farmer now began to be himself. He moved like a wounded snake in his unquiet sleep.—He opened his eyes and glared wildly around him.

'There is no blood upon my hand,' said he.—'Meg, it was all a joke. Ha! ha! a devilish good joke.' As he said this, conscience felt the dreadful gnawing of the worm that never dies, and a shiver along the limbs of Brown, told but too plainly, that he had sealed, in blood, a bond, conveying to regious of everlasting fire, his miserable soul. The fumes of his debauch arose like a mist upon his brain, and he slept again. His wife now paid the stranger another visit, and finding every thing working as it should, retired to her desolate couch. Morning came, and the sobered farmer arose from his pillow of remorse. His face was haggard, his eyes blood-shot, and his hair like that of the furies, seemed changing into serpents.

He said but little, and went out immediately after breakfast. His wife saw him go up the hill-side. She knew he had gone to bury the body, and she rejoiced to think that he would labor in vain. Noon and night and morning came, but no husband approached the farm-house. Weeks rolled on, and John Brown was seen no more upon the hill-side, or in his homely dwelling. His whistle was hushed upon the moor: and his foot-fall awoke not the echoes of the forest-way.

The stranger, in the mean time, recovered, a justice of the peace was sent for, and an affidavit was made of the facts of the case. The murderous wretch was described with fearful correctness, all—all but the face. That was concealed by a slouched hat, and could not be described.—The wife breathed again. With a woman's wit, she spoke but little of her husband's absence, and when she alluded to it, she spoke of it as an absence of short duration, with her advice and consent.

The stranger, who proved to be a nobleman of wealth, endeavored to cheer the gloo my shades of the deserted woman's heart: but it was a vain attempt. There is no cure for blighted love, no widow's husband—God alone can gladden the widow's heart.

'You never shall want, Meg,' said the noble man, as he sat by the farmer's wife a few evenings after he was able to walk. 'I must to London; business of importance urges me there.—When you are in distress, one hint of the fact to me, will produce instant relief.'

A carriage, with an Earl's coronet, now drove up to the cottage door. The wife said nothing she seemed to be lost in an unfathomable mystery.

'Will you not accompany me, my faithful nurse?' said the stranger, as he prepared to depart from the dwelling of charitable love.

'Nay, sir,' said the wife, 'I cannot thus suddenly leave the spot of my early hope. Here, sir, was born; here I was married; on yonder green hillock I danced away the sorrows of childhood in yonder church, whose spire now gleams in the dying sun-light, I gave my guilty spirit up to God. On yonder plain sleep my children; beside that old oak, rest father and mother, the first born and the last upon the catalogue of life. Here, sir, I have smiled in joy, and wept in sorrow; and here I will die.'

Entreaties and prayers were all in vain. She withstood every kindness of her guest, and finally accepted only a reasonable charge for his board. As the Earl was about to take his seat in his carriage, the deserted wife approached him,

'Stranger guest,' said she, with much feeling 'I have done you good service.'

'You have,' said he, while a tear of gratitude stole down his cheek.

'Will you do me one favor in return?' said she

'Most certainly will I,' said the Earl.

'Then write upon a piece of vellum, what I shall dictate,' said she, with a hurried voice.

He took his pen, and wrote in plain character as follows:—

'Circumstances have convinced me that an attempt to murder me on the night of the 10th December, 18—on Stone Hill, Lincolnshire, would have been successful, had it not been for the kind interference of John Brown and his wife, of Hopedale.

'This paper is left as a slight memorial of an event which time can never efface from my memory.

JOHN, EARL OF—'

She read it over and over, after he had signed it. 'It will do,' said she. 'Now farewell.'

The grateful Earl sprang into his seat. He threw his purse into her bosom. 'Farewell,' said he, in a husky tone, and away rattled his carriage with the swiftness of the wind. The coronet flashed in the sunbeam, and then the vehicle, with its outriders, was lost in the winding forest-way.

Ten years rolled away, and the wife of John Brown suddenly disappeared from Hopedele, and then the farm-house, like a deserted thing, stood solitary and silent amid the smiles of autmn.—A middle-sized stranger, with a sailor's jacket and tarpaulin on, and a bundle dangling at the end of a club over his shoulders, rested beside the door of Hopedale. The stranger, though somewhat intoxicated, appeared to be very sad. He looked in at the wasted door-way. He gazed upon the cold, barren hearth. He saw the planks worn by the foot of the thrifty housewife, and marked a portion of her dress in the broken pane of the kitchen window. The nail where the good man's hat had hung for years, was there, a circle around it, of unsmoked paint. The crane hung sadly in the corner and the music of the singing kettle seemed not there. The stranger raised his hand to his eyes, but what causes him to start like a frightened bird. It is bloody again," said he, with a look of horror. "Oh, that I could wipe out that foul—that terrible stain from memory. Ha! it is on my hand as fresh as when I murdered that poor, melancholy stranger. God of Heaven, I connot wipe it out." The stranger had cut his hand with a piece of broken glass, and a clot of flesh blood was upon it, in reality. He felt no pain of the wound in his horror; and satisfied that Heaven had marked him in its own terrible way. He wiped off the blood and turned to depart.

The sheriff was beside him, and he was arrested for an attempt to murder. He preserved a sullen silence. He followed the officer to his carriage, and was soon on his way to London. The prison received its victim; and the gay world smiled as brightly as before.

—

The day of trial came. John Brown, who had taken another name, was tried as Samuel Jones, and the case brought together a vast concourse of people of both sexes. The prisoner was soon placed at the bar. The jury was duly impanelled.—The advocate for the crown was in his place.—The prisoner's counsel was beside him, and the judge was upon the bench. Brown, as he entered the dock, had been so much agitated by the dread of his guilt, and the prospect of speedy punishment, that he had not cast an eye upon his judge. He now looked cautiously at him. He saw the keen eye of the judge fixed upon him, and started with horror.

"Oh, God!" said he, with a loud voice, while the sweat rolled down his chalk-like face. "It is the murdered man! Ha! he has come to judge the guilty. See there is the forehead scarred.—Ah, it was a devilish blow. Back, back, I say; let the dead man look his fill. There's blood upon my hand; see there, thou unquiet spiret; that hand was reeking in thy gore; 'twas merciless when thou criedst out, be merciless now in thy turn, thou man of the spirit land."

Here the prisoner fainted, and fell upon the floor. A great sensation was caused in court by this singular circumstance, and it was not until "order" had been shouted for some time, that the trial was suffered to go on. It appears that Brown's neighbors all considered him guilty of the crime of endeavoring to murder the individual named in the beginning of this tale, and who was now the presiding judge of the Old Bailey. The affidavit was kept in green remembrance, especially by one old farmer in the neighborhood of Hopedale, who had appropriated Brown's farm to his own use, and who constantly watched for the murderer's return, for he knew human nature so well as to be certain that no wretch can be so callous as to forget the spot sacred to childhood, innocence, and early love. The robber seeks his home, the murderer seeks theshades of his once happy valley, the seducer wanders amid the bowers where passion, like a dark and damning torrent burst away the barriers between his soul and hell. The unfortunate man ignorant of his wife's actions, and unconscious of the certificate in her possession, ignorant of her existence even, after a long cruise in the navy of England, returned to view the pleasant homestead—the green valley—the quiet hill-side, and the sunken graves of his parents and children. He had met the argus-eyed speculator on his way. The old affidavit hung like the sword of Damocles over his head, and the informer, at sunset, saw the poor broken-hearted sailor borne away to London, and as he trusted, a felon's grave. Such is human nature. Man carelessly feeds upon the fruits that hang over the church-yard wall, and gathers roses from the sacred plains—

"Where once the life's blood warm and wet,
Had dimmed the glittering bayonet."

—

The trial proceeded—the evidence was strong, and the jury, without quitting their seats, pronounced the prisoner at the bar "Guilty."

"Guilty?" said Brown, rising to his feet," can it be? Ah, I must die a felon's death, and my poor lost wife. Oh, that pang. How her tender endearments now rise up in judgment against me! her soft words, how they thunder upon my gloomy soul. Her smiles of beauty and innocence — great God how they sear my heart! I must die without her forgiveness? Oh, the thought is torture, ay, torture as dreadful as that experienced by the vilest of the damned."

Here the prisoner became unmanned, and burying his face in his fettered hands, wept like a child. The strong passion of grief shook the prisoner's limbs, and rattled the chains with terrible distinctness. A short silence ensued, and then the judge put on his black cap, and prepared to pronounce that awful sentence which never can be pronounced without awakening the dormant sensibilities of the most degraded—which none, in fact, but the condemned ever hear, without a flood of tears.

"Prisoner at the bar," said the judge, "stand up." Brown rose. "What have you to say why sentence of death should not be pronounced against you?" said the judge, continuing his remarks. A slight rustling noise was now heard at the bar, and a female in widow's weeds leaned her head over to speak to the prisoner.

"Stand back, woman," said a self-sufficient tipstaff, who, like some of our constables imagine the old adage, "necessity has no law, "to mean, "law has no necessity."

The woman threw back her veil, and looking the judge full in the face, said, 'May it please your worship to permit me to aid my husband in his last extremity?'

The Earl thought he knew the face and the tone of voice, and therefore commanded the officer to place the wife beside her husband.

'Msg,' said Brown, while the tears streamed down his face, haggard with guilt, 'it is very kind of you to visit me thus. Can you forgive your guilty husband?'

'John,' said the meek-eyed woman, as she raised her countenance of angelic sweetness to Heaven. 'I was forgiven by the Son of God—I can and do forgive you."

The wretched prisoner fell upon his wife's neck, and the minions of criminal law, with faces like tanned leather, and hearts like the paving-stones before the Egyptian tombs, stood pity-struck, and waited for the end of this extraordinary scene.

Woman," at length said the judge, while a tear rested in his eye, "It is my dreadful lot to pass the sentence of the law upon the prisoner. You had better retire."

The wife started, and looking the judge full in the face, said, "John, Earl of——, do you recollect the parchment scroll you gave me at Hopedale?" handing, at the same time, a piece of vellum to a constable, who passed it up to his Honor.

"My noble-hearted, long-lost nurse," said the judge, with a look of joy, "well do I recollect you and your last request, but in this case, the law must take its course. I will, however, recommend the prisoner to mercy."

"Mercy?" said Brown," who talks of mercy? There is blood upon my hand.', Silence!" said the judge; "remand the prisoner;"

The court adjourned—the prisoner, guarded by a throng of soldiers and tip-staffs, moved along to his cell, and the wife followed the judge to his chamber. The next day a pardon for John Brown passed the seals, and the beginning of the week saw the husband and his noble-spirited wife at Hopedale, with the judge for a welcome guest.—Years of peace and joyous plenty rolled on. Long and fervently did the pardoned criminal pray for forgiveness, and at last, in God's own time, the bloody stain upon his hand was washed away by the blood of him who died on Calvary, that man might find, at last, a glorious rest in the realms of matchless beauty, and of never-dying love. The Farmer of Hopedale, for many years, was considered the exemplar, of the country around, and at last, when he died, which was shortly after his wife had departed for another rest, he was placed in the same grave with her, and over their bones a marble cenotaph was raised, upon which was inscribed in deep and lasting letters—

"They loved in life—
In death they were not divided."

—

The farm-house, at Hopedale has fallen in ruins. The grey owl hoots upon its moss-tipped chimney. The snake rustles in the grass by the door-sill; and the cricket whistles in the oven. At evening the truant and belated plough-boy shuns the spot; for many a white-livered loon, if you can believe him, has seen John Brown upon the hill-side, at the hour of dusk, with a clot of blood upon his hand, and a murdered traveller at his feet.

DANVERS COURIER.

SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 31, 1845.

THE ANTI-RENT DISTURBANCES IN N. Y.

The long continued troubles with the anti-renters in the State of New York, appear as far from an adjustment as ever, and disorderly movements are now frequent in many parts of the State. As the grounds of these difficulties are not generally understood, a brief sketch of them may not be uninteresting to our readers.

Upon the first settlement of New York, by the English, patents were granted of whole counties by the reigning sovereigns, to different individuals, by which the grantees were to hold the fee of all the land in such counties, and receive a stated annual rent from the tenants of the soil. This rent was generally trifling, when compared with the products of the land, being in some parts only ten bushels of wheat to the hundred acres, or its equivalent in money. An additional privilege to the tenants, was, that they could not be dispossessed, except upon refusal to pay rent. We believe that thirty nine counties are held in this manner, with the exception of a few estates in almost every town, the fee of which has been purchased of the owner by the tenant. The right of these Lords of the Manor (as the landed gentry are styled) to the rent, has never been disputed till within a few years, and it is now disputed more with a lawless disregard of the established claims of the owners, than from a feeling of injustice. In some counties, the title of the Lord to the land has been tried, and a curious expedient has been devised to effect this. The law is, that a tenant cannot question the title of his landlord, consequently the improvers of the soil could not dispute the title of their Lord, as they sustained the relation of tenant to him; therefore a person has been employed to draw a fictitious deed of a whole county, pretending to be granted by the Indians, and sold land under the pretended title.—[illegible] of the Lord in possession, and suits have been instituted upon the title, but in every case the title of the Lord has been proved the better one, so that all disturbances in regard to it are now clearly in violation of the laws of the State. Yet the disturbances are continued, and if a Sheriff is seen in an anti-rent district, bands of these lawless anti-renters assemble, wearing masks, and dressed in calico (from which dresses they receive the name of Indians)—the Sheriff is seized and searched, and if warrants against any of their associates are found about him, they are taken away, and sometimes the Sheriff himself is insulted and beaten.

Such are the facts in regard to these disturbances, which appear to have grown like many radical excrescences, mushroom-like, within the last few years; and their commencement may be traced to the same spirit of disregard to law and authority. Without a knowledge of the facts respecting it, we might, at first thought, regard the manner in which these lands are held, as opposed to the spirit of our institutions, and very hard for the tenants, but we do not know why there is more injustice in the tenants paying rent for land they do not own, throughout whole counties, than for single estates; and as land is bought and sold with the encumbrance of the rent, probably there are few estates now in possession of families of the original tenants, and those who have purchased have given merely the value of the land above the encumbrance of the rent, so that it cannot operate unjustly to them. It appears to us that the authorities of the State are doing much to encourage a spirit of lawlessness and disquiet in not promptly putting down every such disturbance, for if allowed it will bring about the halcyon times so much desired by Fourier and others, when all property will be held in common, and those who dwell in houses purchased with the hard earnings of others, will become legalized anti-renters.

—

History of Oregon. This is an interesting work particularly so at the present time, as it gives not only a history of the country but also a sketch of the American and British claims to the territory. It also contains a journal of the adventures of a party of emigrants from the United States to the mouth of the Columbia, which posseses all the interest of an exciting book of travels. The work is for sale by Luther Chandler.

FOR THE COURIER.

POLITICAL CURTAIN LECTURE.

The night preceeding the Inauguration. John Tyler and James K. Polk a-bed together at the White House. John asks James for an office for his son Robert. James intimates that he has none to spare.

You've got no office to spare then, have you? you haven't, hey? so this is the way you are going to repay me and my family for all we have done for you! So this is what I get for abandoning the Whigs and making over my party to have you elected. No office to spare, and 40,000 officers to turn out, that ought to be turned out—that had no business to be in office—that aint fit for any office, and you tell me you have no office to spare—

What did I put them in for? I didnt put them in—Robert put them in—no! they put themselves in. I—I—put them in because the whigs must be put out, and somebody must be put in—you know they must, and how could I know who was fit for office.—Do you suppose I know everybody? I knew they was n't fit for office, I put them in because they wasn't fit, I put them in to put the whigs out—to carry out the great Democratic Principle.—Now James, you know you treated me shabbily, and you may as well own it. You wanted to get rid of me and steal my thunder.—You wanted to ride my Texas hobby and I helped you to mount him. You know you did, Jim. Now that's a good fellow,—just give Robert a good fat office and I'll be a friend to you as long as I live. Robert wants to travel. Give him a foreign embassy—make him Minister Plenipo. to England—that's the place for Bobby. How he would make the Court of Victoria stare! I can see him now among the Lords and Ladies. What a sensation he would make!—You must turn out that Everett and send Robert—

What do you say? Everett a respectable man!—Who says he is a respectable man? Don't tell me he is a respectable man. If he is a respectable man he's no business to be holding office. He ought to be turned out because he is a respectable man. A respectable man can get along without holding office. Send Robert to England—he'll annex Oregon and California and Cuba—Bobby will—I know he will. He'll challenge Aberdeen and fight Prince Albert and put down O'Connell the Abolitionist, the Agitator, the Incendiary, the fanatical Anti-Slavery man. I should like to fight him and John M. Botts too—I'd knock the breath out of both of them. I'd—

Peaceable? Who says I aint peaceable? I am peaceable. If any body says I aint peaceable, I'll challenge him—I'll fight him—I'll horsewhip him—I'll beat the slanderer within an inch of his life.—But that's neither here nor there, Polk; I want to know what you are going to do for Robert?

Qualifications? Bobby's qualifications? What has he done? Why—he's done everything. Didn't he come out and make speeches for O'Connell and Repale,' and didn't he tell the Irishmen that the Democratic party was in favor of Repale and paraties and mate and tay, and the Pope and the Praste? And didn't he laud to the skies the Patriot O'Connell as the greatest, the purest, the worthiest champion of Freedom that ever lived? And didn't these same honest Hibernians all vote for you for President?—Now James, why can't you give him an office? You will, I know you will.

Can't! Do you pretend to say you can't? I know you can, and I know the Senate will confirm him.—They shall confirm him. Tell them you'll veto everything if they dare reject him. Only think, James, what I have done for you and the great Democratic party. Wasn't I chosen by the Whigs, and didn't I turn my back upon them that voted for me? And didn't I send veto after veto back to Congress, and [illegible] Harrison's Cabinet? And didn't they call me traitor and Botts try to head me? And is this what I am to get for it?—It's shameful, it's ungrateful, it's rascally, it's villainous.

Keep cool, you say. How can I keep cool?—I can't keep cool—I wont keep cool. You have made a fool of me. You've cheated me out of my second term.—You've cheated Van Buren—You've cheated my son Robert and the whole Democratic party. Faugh!—The Democratic party is all a sham, a Democratic humbug—you know it is, Polk.

Keep cool, you say again? I tell you I am cool—I never was cooler in my life—I'm cool as Tophet—I'm d——d cool. If it had not been for me, you never would have been President. You stole my Texas—You bribed my Convention—You got away my voters—You stole Bobby's Irishmen—You—You—Bobby—Texas—Botts—Veto—Bobby—Bob—Bob—Bo—B—

Here, says the Polk manuscript, John was overcome by sleep, and I soon followed him, and we both slept soundly until we were awakened in the morning by the thunder of the Inauguration guns.

—

Naumkeag Steam Factory. This undertaking is now in a fair way, and will not prove a Mill Dam affair, after all. The proposals for building have been issued, and the Salem papers say that Mr. S. S. Stanley has the stone and brick work, Mr. Hiram Grant of this town, the wood work, and we understand that some of our mechanics have a share in the iron work.

—

☞The second great Race between the North and South, came off on Wednesday last. Fashion, of the North, proved victorious this time.

A great number of people were in attendance, and before the race commenced, about sixty feet of the stand gave way, and it is rumored that several lives were lost by the accident.

—

☞We understand that Rev. Frederick A. Barton, of Springfield, has received an invitation to settle over the Third Congregational Church and Society in this town. We also learn that the proceedings of the Society in relation to the call, were characterized by much harmony and good feeling, and that the final action was unanimous in favor of Mr. B.

—

☞It is said that another mysterious disappearance has taken place, of a gentleman who was seen in conversation just before his departure, with Mr. Granger of Buffalo.

ELECTION DAY.

Wednesday last was the anniversary of old 'lection day and we doubt not its return revived in the minds of many the recollection of those old times when this holiday was so universally observed by young and old,—when every family must have its liberal supply of good 'lection' cake and diet-drink beer.—When the streets were thronged by joyous children in their gayest dresses—and older, in their 'best bib and tucker' wended their way to the tavern where 'cake and ale,' egg-nog, props, wheel-of-fortune and other attractions always ensured a crowded house. These, too, were the times when the fiddle was in the ascendant and all acknowledged the potent sway of catgut. Many, now too old to dance well remember the merry tones of Blind Sam's fiddle (we hope when he sees this he will not be offended,) as he played that good old tune under the various names of Gilseroy, Children in the Wood &c., which caused such rapid and graceful motions in the ball room in the 'Rocks'. We verily believe Fanny Ellsler herself with all her skill in the 'poetry of motion' never performed such feats of agility as were witnessed at those annual gatherings.

The time honored anniversary was emphatically the Peoples' holiday. It ought not to be abolished. We think a year had not elapsed before the people regretted the act of amendment of the Constitution by which a day in the midst of Winter, hallowed by no pleasant associations, was substituted for the last Wednesday in May, the time of flowers, blossoms, singing birds and warm breezes. Not that we would have it always observed as in old times, but we would have it observed as a day of relaxation from care, of recreation and such rational enjoyment as the reforms of a later age and an advanced state of public opinion would allow.

It is true the Religious Anniversaries occur in 'lection week but this only makes a local holiday for Boston. The Legislature have done something to revive the day by providing an annual parade of the Military of the Commonwealth, and we hope the people will yet claim the day as their own.

—

CAUTION TO THE BENEVOLENT.

A foreign vagabond beggar is now, or was a few days since, in our neighborhood collecting money from our citizens by means of a printed document representing him to be one George Riggio an Italian patriot exiled for his political offences, and having a wife and family in France, while he is roaming about this country begging for their support, although he understands not a word of our language.

Is is surprising that our citizens are beguiled by such slender artifices, as are used by these foreign impostors. It is the duty of the press to let the people know that these printed papers and written parchments are furnished at New York where a wholesale system of defrauding the public is carried on by means of these documents drawn up in every variety of form, descriptive of the misery of these pitiable objects of charity, but they are all printed with the same type, on the same kind of paper and sold to hundreds of mendicants who stroll through all parts of the country and obtain a good living at the expense of the charitable.

We happen to know one of these fellows who makes a circuit through this vicinity about once in [illegible] years, each time bearing a [illegible] and unable to speak a word of the English Language, but he carries with him his printed document representing him sometimes a distressed soldier, and again a poor tradesman burnt out in a great conflagration in some city on the Mediterranean. If you ask him for any particulars of his condition, and especially if you ask him if he would like to go to work, he always answers with a shake of the head 'no understando'. The last time he made his appearance he was as ignorant of our language as at the first, and say what we would to him we could only get for a reply that eternal 'no understando'.

Our patience was at last exhausted and we charged him roundly with his imposture in such plain terms that our old acquaintance not only lost his temper but his discretion, and swore great vollies of oaths at us in as good English as any yankee privateersman. We then threatened him with a visit from a constable and it is needless to say that we have not seen him since. He has probably sold out his fishing ground to some worthy successor who may be the identical George Riggio himself who is now making his demands on the purses of the benevolent.

—

Mexico, and the Recognition of Texas independence. We have had rumors, says the Phila. Gazette of Tuesday evening, of the recognizance of the independence of Texas—rumors in deed, amounting almost to certainty—but the following letter confirms, explicitly, the whole diplomatic arrangements;

Off Vera Cruz, May 1, 1845.

The express is just in from Mexico, bringing the important intelligence that Mexico had agreed to acknowledge the independence of Texas, provided they reject annexation. England and France guarantee the acts of the two Governments. Capt. Elliot, commanding British frigate Eurydice, has just arrived from Mexico, and the ship sails immediately to Galveston with the news. All the proceedings in the Mexican Congress, now in session, evince pacific terms with the United States—and no war need have been apprehended, annexation or no annexation. The American squadron, consisting of the Potomac, Captain Gwinn, (Flag ship;) Falmouth Commander Sands; Somers, Commander Gerry: Lawrence, Jarvis, have been at anchor, five miles from the city, for eighteen days. The Vandalia is hourly expected.

SHAVINGS.

Horrible Murder at West Chester, Penn. Sunday morning about half past 10 o'clock, James Boyd went to the farm house of James Patton, while the family were at church, and committed one of the most cold-blooded murders on record. There was in the house a servant girl, an infant in the cradle, and Wesley Patton, a youth 14 years of age. Boyd seized the tongs struck young Patton over the head, fracturing his skull, and beat his brains out, then threw the body into the fire. The girl seized the infant and jumped out of the window, and fled to alarm the neighbors. Boyd was arrested and committed.

A Young Lady Shot. At Somerville Tenn., a few days ago, a gun was discharged, in the hands of a careless boy, and some 16 or 18 shot were received in the face and neck of Miss Sarah Goodly. The wounds were not mortal.

Singular Law Case. The N. O. Crescent City, of the 15th., notices a recent trial before the city court, in which a boy ten years old was claimed by two parties, each representing herself to be the mother. A Mr. and Mrs Paul who had lost the boy about two weeks previously were the plaintiffs, and a Mrs. Hughes, who had also a son three years and a half before, and claimed the boy as her lost son, was the defendant.—Although the child himself persisted in claiming the defendant as his mothers, the court decided in favor of the Pauls, who proved satisfactorily their right and title to the disputed article.—We doubt if a like case has occurred since the days of King Solomon, whose expedient to discover the true mother, as recorded in the Bible, does not seem to have been revived in the present instance.

☞The Lowell Courier says that the First Congregational Church, Lowell, has unanimously invited the Rev Parsons Cooke, of Lynn, to become its Pastor, with a salary of twelve hundred dollars. Mr Cooke has long enjoyed a distinguished reputation for learning and ability. It is understood that he will accept.

Slavers Captured.—By an arrival from Sierra Leon, this morning, we learn that a brigantine with 475 slaves on board, prize to H. B. M. ship Wasp, arrived at Sierra Leon, April 11th. A large Brazilian brig, with more than 900 slaves on board, prize to H. B. M. ship Albatross, arrived April 15th. More than 100 slaves were lost from disease and confinement before the last vessel was captured.—N. Y. Express, Monday.

John B. Gough.—It is certainly a rare testimony to the power of his eloquence, that he could command such a hearing for the hundred and twenty-fifth time, on the same subject, and that subject one which had lost all its novelty long before he delivered his first temperance lecture. We understand that Mr. Gough and his wife were admitted to membership in Rev. Mr. Kirk's church a short time since, and conclude, therefore, that Boston is hereafter to be his home. N. Y. Evangelist.

☞The fare from Boston to New York in the Telegraph is now reduced to $2,50. Cheap enough.

☞In the Philadelphia Court of Oyer and Terminer, John Paul and John Dail, convicted of murder during the Kensington riots, were each sentenced to four years imprisonment; and Henry Haught, convicted of manslaughter, to two years.

Pittsburgh, Pa., is overrun with laborers and mechanics, who have flocked in under the expectation of good jobs in building up the burnt district. A letter in the New York True Sun gives out a warning, and adds;

"Laboring men receive but 62 1-2 to 75 cents per day, and carpenters are at this time demanding the ten hour system of daily occupation, and receiving from $1.25 to $1.. 27 1-2 a day. Working men are rushing here because of false statements published respecting high wages."

Price of Negroes.—An officer of the U. S. brig Truxton, now on the coast of Africa, writes that a good healthy negro costs there but 20 dollars; and is purchased for rum, powder, tobacco, cloth, &c. The price of the same negro in Cuba is four hundred dollars.

Dorr's Liberation.—The Woonsocket Patriot says:—'There is now a prospect that the assembly will effect this object at the June session; and we doubt whether the measure will be hastened by the petitions in question.'

Senator McDuffie. A letter dated Abbeville, May 22, published in the Agusta Chronicle, states that on the previous day Mr. McDuffie, was attacked with paralysis, and had lost the use of one side and his speech.

BRIGHTON MARKET—Monday. May 19.
[From the Boston Daily Advertiser.]

At market 510 Beef Cattle, 15 pairs Working Oxen, 1100 Sheep, and 2150 Swine. 35 Beef Cattle unsold.

Prices—Beef Cattle—The prices obtained last week were not sustained We quote Extra $6; first quality 5 75 a $6; second quality 5 25 a 5 50; third quality 4 75 a $5

Working Oxen—Sales at $70, 75, and 90.

Sheep—Small lots sheared 1 50 to 2 62.

Swine—Former prices not sustained. Lots to peddle 4 a 4 1-8 for Sows, and 5 a 5 1-8 for Barrows; one entire lot 3 3-4 and 4 7-8c; old Hogs 4, 4 1-4 and 4 1-2c. At retail, for 4 1-2 to 6c.

MARRIAGES.

In Beverly, Mr Stephen Woodberry to Miss Lydia English, daughter of Philip English.

In Newbury, Mr Augustus K. Osborn, of Boston, to Miss Jane C., youngest daughter of Gen Benj. Stickney, of Newbury.

In Ipswich, Mr Parker M. Badger, of Kensington, to Miss Sarah Lord, of I.

In Newburyport. Mr John Read of Cambridge, to Miss Lucy G. Atkins.

In Haverhill, Mr Edwin Morse to Miss Mary Plummer.

DEATHS.

In Salem, Elizabeth Pitman, only child of Mr John H. Mc Intire, aged 3 years and 8 months.

In Boston, 25th inst, Eliza Maria daughter of John S. Bancroft, aged 15 years and 4 months.

In Bradford, Miss Betsey, daughter of Mary Hall, aged 50.

In Andover, very suddenly, Samuel Holman, jr. Esq. of Salem, aged 50.

In Bradron, Me., Mr Gideon Cushman, aged 95 years. He was one of the first settlers of the town of Hebron and, he has resided there constantly. He has left 10 children, and about 80 grandchildren, and 100 great-grand-children. He was, and had been for many years, a member of the Baptist Church.

In German Flats, N Y., Henry Seeber, 104 years and 2 months. A Revolutionary Soldier, his descendants number 212.

I. O. R.

HOWARD TENT, No. 87.—An Address is expected to be delivered before the Independent Order of Recabites, at their new Tent in Lunt's Building, (next to Rev. Mr. Field's Church,) by a Brother of the Order, on WEDNESDAY EVENING next, at 8 o'clock. The Brethren of the Order, and citizens generally are respectfully invited to attend.

C. E. BROWN, C. R.
F. MERRILL, Sec.

Danvers, May 31, 1845.

NOTICE.

The regular meetings of Monument Division, No. 9, SONS OF TEMPERANCE, held at Sanger's Hall, are changed from Wednesday to Monday evening, at 8 o'clock. Members of the order are respectfully invited to attend.

Danvers, April 12. MOSES MERRILL, R. S.

NEW LIME.

CONSTANTLY on hand and for sale by may 31 CARTER & BATCHELDER.

REMOVAL.

POOLE & STEDMAN,
MAKERS OF
TRUNKS, HARNESSES, &c. AND COACH AND GIG TRIMMERS,

Have removed to No. 12 Sewall Street,
SALEM.

☞ Particular attention paid to repairing, in all its branches.

N. B. Valises, Ladies' Satchels, Carpet Bags, &c. constantly on hand and for sale cheap.

S. A. POOLE,
G. B. STEDMAN.

may 31

DRUGS AND MEDICINES.

A GOOD assortment of Drugs, Medicines, usually kept in a Druggist Shop, constantly for sale at the lowest prices, by

DR. JOSEPH SHED, (Ag't.)
(OPPOSITE THE MONUMENT,)

And a variety of Patent Medicine, consisting of Brinckerhoff's Health Restorative; Buchan's Hungarian Balsam; Schenck's Pulmonary Balsam; Trufant's Compound; Dandelion and Tomato Bitters; Davis' Compound Tooth Wash; Harrison's Peristaltic, and Worm Lozenges; Thompson's Eye Water; Warren's Croup Syrup; Whitwell's Opodeldock; Different kinds of Pulmonary Balsams, and genuine Thomsonian Medicines; Jew David's or Hebrew Plaster; also, Brandreth's, Indian Vegetable, Beckwith's, Lees' Dean's, Parr's, Richardson's, Relf's Asthmatic, and a variety of other Pills. Candies, Nuts, Almonds, Citron, Currants, Nutmegs, Mace, Cloves, &c. Particular attention to Physician's Recipes.

Danvers, May 31, 1845.

NEW ENGLAND TRUSS MANUFACTORY.

THE subscriber continues to manufacture Trusses of every description, at his residence at the old stand, opposite 264, No. 305 Washington street, Boston, entrance in Temple Avenue, up stairs. All individuals can see him alone, at any time, at the above place.

Having had twenty years' experience, he has afforded relief to three thousand persons, for the last five years. All may rest assured of relief who call and try a Truss of his manufacture. He is now confident he can give every individual relief who may call upon him.

The public are cautioned against the many quacks who promise what they cannot perform.

Having worn the different kinds of Trusses, more or less; that have been offered to the public for the last twenty years, from different patent manufactories, and now continues to wear those of his own manufacture, he is now able to decide, after examining the rapture, what sort of Truss that can be had elsewhere.

J. F. F. manufactures as many as twenty different kinds of Trusses, among which are all the different kinds similar to those that the late Mr. Jonn Beath, of this city, formerly made, and all others advertised in Boston, together with the patent elastic spring Truss, with the spring pads.—Trusses without steel springs—these give relief in all cases of rupture, and a large proportion produce a perfect cure—they can be worn day and night; improved hinge and privot Truss; umbellical spring Trusses, made in four different ways; Trusses with ball and socket joints, Trusses, for Prolapsus Ani, by wearing which persons troubled with a descent of the rectum can ride on horseback with perfect

Mr. Foster also makes Trusses for Prolapsus Uteri, which have answered in cases where possaries have failed. Suspensory Trusses, knee caps, and back board, are always kept on hand As a matter of convenience and not of speculation, the undesigned will keep on hand the following kinds from other manufactories, which they can have, if his does not suit them; after a fair trial they can exchange for any of them;—Dr. Hull's Read's spiral Truss; Rundel's do; Salmon's ball and socket; Sherman's patent; French do; Marsh's Improved Truss; Bateman's do, double and single. Stone's Truss; also, Trusses for children of all sizes.

Any kind of Trusses repaired at short notice, and made as good as when new.

Ladies wishing for any of these instruments, will be waited upon by Mrs. Foster, at the above place. Mrs. F. has been engaged in the above business for ten years.

He likewise informs individuals he will not make their complaints known to any one, except when he is permitted to refer to them—it being a misfortune, and young persons do not want their cases known.

The readers of this paper, are respectfully invited to call and examine the variety of Trusses now on hand.

May 31 JAMES FREDERICK FOSTER.

Valuable second hand Books.

A COLLECTION of Valuable second-hand Books, among which are Tasso's Jerusalem Delivered, a splendid Paris folio edition, illustrated with fine engravings.

Pugin's Designs for Iron and Brass Work, containing many hundreds of designs, for this kind of work, London Ed: Quarto.

Turner's Annual Tour, or Wandering on the Seine, with beautiful Steel Engravings.

Antiquities in Westminster Abbey. Ancient Oil Paintings and Sepulchral Brasses in the Abbey Church of St. Pster, engraved from Drawings by Harding.

Essex Tourist, containing a large number or views in England.

Dodd's Peerage; Miscellaneous Works of Sir Walter Scott, in 6 vols; Lockhart's Life of Scott; Works of Sir Wm Temple in 2 vols, a scarce and valuable folio edition.

Specimens of Book and Newspaper Type; a fine London quarto edition, containing a large number of specimens.

The above, with many other standard Works, in very good order, will be sold extremely low, to close the lot, by W. S. CLEVELAND & CO. may 31

NEW BOOKS.

HAMILTON'S complete preceptor for the Violoncello, illustrated with a selection of favorite airs, and enriched with precepts and examples extracted from the works of Dupont, Breval, Dotzaner and Muntzberger, by J. A. Hamilton.

The Beauties of Caledonia, or Gems of Scottish Song; being a collection of more than fifty of the most beautiful Scotch Ballads, set to music, many of which have hitherto been unpublished in this country; the whole arranged, collected and compiled from the very best sources, and latest revisals of the author's works. Just published and for sale by

W. & S. B. IVES,
may 31 232 Essex street, Salem.

NEW MUSIC. W. & S. B. IVES have just received a large assortment of popular Songs, Quick Steps, Waltzes, etc., at 233 Essex street, Salem.

may 31 W. & S. B. IVES,

FAMILY BIBLES.—A new and beautiful assortment received this day, in different styles of binding, by

W. & S. B. IVES,
may 31 Stearns's Building, Salem.

Paper Hangings.

THE largest and best assortment of those splendid, wide, high colored, and beautifully finished Philadelphia Room Papers, ever introduced into Salem and at low prices.

A fresh assortment from ten to twelve cents per roll, opened this morning.

Also, some with grounds and fine colors, for one shilling per roll, equal to the former twenty-five cent papers. Just opened at the Cheap Paper Hanging Store of

W. & S. B. IVES,
may 31 Stearns's Building.

Periodical Depot!!
REMOVAL.

LUTHER CHANDLER, the Proprietor of the Depot for

PERIODICALS AND CHEAP PUBLICATIONS,

formerly kept at No. 3, (on the East side of Washington street, has removed to the store,

Corner of Washington and Norman Streets,
(Directly opposite the Old Stand,)

where he intends to keep a full supply of all the Periodicals and New Works, as well as the Daily and Weekly Newspapers, as soon as they appear from the press.

In removing from the old stand he confidently hopes to receive the continued patronage of those who have formerly received his publications and he pledges himself that he will use his best exertions to procure all New Works promptly and sell them at the lowest prices.

His long experience and extensive acquaintance with those publishers and others engaged largely in the Book Trade will enable him to answer orders for particular Works, with great promptness, and at the most favorable prices.

REFRESHMENTS,

such as are usually kept at Restaurateurs, and SODA AND MEAD, will be furnished at the new stand, by S. SAUNDERS.

REMEMBER—Corner of Washington and Norman Sts., near the Railroad Station, Salem.

may 24 3m

JOSEPH SHED,

NOTARY PUBLIC AND ACTING MAGISTRATE,
Opposite the Monument.

All kinds of writing; conveyancing and Probate business attended to promptly.

☞ A great variety of BLANKS constantly on hand, and for sale.

Danvers, May 24, 1845.

New Tailoring Establishment.
ELLIOT F. SMITH,

HAVING established himself in the TAILORING BUSINESS, a few doors above the Village Bank on Maple Street, would respectfully inform the citizens of North Danvers that he is ready to execute all orders in his line of business with fidelity and despatch.

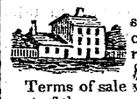
He hopes by his punctuality and attention to the wishes of his customers, to merit and obtain a share of public patronage.

☞ All Garments cut and made are warranted to suit.

may 17

W. D. JOPLIN,
Draper and Tailor.

NEARLY opposite the Monument, keeps for sale at the lowest prices,



Broadcloths, Cassimeres and Vestings and Trimmings.

Also— A good assortment of READY MADE CLOTHING.

PANTS from 1 to 4 dollars;
VESTS from 75 cents to 2 00.

Green Jackets, Overhauls, Thin Clothing, Hats, Suspenders, &c. may 3

House and Land for Sale.

The subscriber offers for sale a large two story Dwelling House, on Holton street, convenient for two families, and in good repair. The said house now rents for $120 per annum, and will be sold low.

Terms of sale will be easy for the purchaser, as a large part of the amount may remain on mortgage. Apply to

may 24 tf WM. SUTTON.

NOTICE is hereby given that the subscriber has been duly appointed executor of the last will and testament of

MARY UPTON,

late of Danvers, in the County of Essex, widow, deceased. and has taken upon himself that trust, by giving bonds as the law directs: all persons having demand upon the estate of said deceased are required to exhibit the same; and all persons indebted to said estate are called upon to make payment to JOSEPH SHED, Executor.

Danvers, May 24, 1845.

NOTICE is hereby given that the subscriber has been duly appointed administrator, with the will annexed of the estate of

DANIEL KING,

late of Salem, in the county of Essex, yeoman, deceased, the law directs. All persons having demands upon the estate of said deceased, are required to exhibit the same; and all persons indebted to said estate, are called upon to make payment to AMOS KING, Jr.,

Danvers, May 24, 1845. Adm'r with the will annexed.

RETAIL
Boot and Shoe Store,
AT THE PLAINS.

THE subscriber keeps constantly on hand at his store, on Maple street, near the Village Bank, A full supply of

Men's Calf and Seal Boots, of all qualities;
Men's Calf, Goat and Kip Shoes, and pumps.
Boy's do do Downings.
THE LADIES will find a complete assortment of Fine and Common Kid Slippers;
Paris and Village Ties;
Gaiter Boots and Shoes;
Misses' and Children's shoes of all descriptions;

The above articles he is constantly receiving from the best manufacturers in the state, which will enable him to satisfy all who are in want of good articles in his line—at very reasonable prices.

JOSHUA SILVESTER.

North Danvers April 19, 1845.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law

OFFICE IN FELTON'S (late Osborne's) Building,
Danvers, March 29th. tf

New Spring Hosiery.

WILL be opened this morning, at R. H. CHAMBERLAIN'S Hosiery and Glove Store,
No 236 Essex Street, Salem.

400 dozen of Spring and Summer Hosiery and Gloves, comprising every variety, style, size and quality, for Ladies, Gents, Misses and Children's wear.

Also, new styles of Monseline de Laines, Cashmeres, Muslin, Ginghams, Printed Lawns, Balzorines, Prints, Patches; White and Col'd Cambrics; Plaid; Striped and Figured Cambrics; Plain, Plaid, Striped and Lace Muslins; Corded and Victoria Robes; Bleached, Unbleached and Colored Table Covers; Domestic Goods in great variety; Shirts; Bosoms; Collars; Dickeys; Cravats; Scarfs; Suspenders, Under Shirts and Drawers; Pocket Hdkfs, etc.

N. B. R. H. C. keeps constantly on hand a large supply of the American Improved Curtain Fixture,

a far superior article to any now in use, and not so liable to get out of order, a model of the same can be seen at the above store. Dealers in want of the article, can be supplied in any quantities, at the manufacturer's price.

Salem, May 10th, 1845. tf

CHAPMAN'S MAGIC STROP. W. S. CLEVELAND & CO. have received and keep constantly on hand, Chapman's celebrated Razor Strop, which they will sell by the quantity or single, at the manufacturer's reduced price.

☞ The public are cautioned against an imitation Strop, called by the same name, which is very inferior, and in reality dearer than the genuine article made by Levi Chapman. This Strop, always the best, is now the cheapest in the market.

CHAAMAN'S SHAVING CREAM, an article highly approved wherever known. For sale at the old stand,

may 31 193 Essex street,

WANTED.

10 GOOD COATMAKERS wanted immediately, to whom steady employment and good wages will be given.

S. R. BOTT,
mch 15 No. 148 Essex Street, Salem.

Witch Hazle, for Beds.

A FIRST rate article just received and for sale by CARTER & BATCHELDER.

Spring Goods.

THE subscribers would inform the ladies of Danvers and vicinity that are now receiving the best assortment of Goods in their line, adapted to the Spring Trade, to which they invite particular attention. We give below a catalogue of Goods which we have recently received.

WHITE GOODS.

Plain Cambric and Cambric Muslins of every quality;
Plaid, striped and fig'd do do do;
Plain, Plaid and Striped Swiss Muslins;
Plain Book, Sacarilla and Tarlatan Muslins;
Muslins for Curtains in stripes and figures;
Bleached Cottons, of the best manufactures,

LINEN GOODS.

Linen Sheetings; Pillow Case Linen; Linen Shirtings; Superfine Linens for Bosoms and Collars;
Linen Damask, by the yard; Damask Table Covers, of all qualities, sizes and prices; Damask Napkins; Doylies Towels; Linen Diaper; Huckaback and Crash.

All Linens sold at this store are guaranteed free from any mixture of Cotton.

LACE GOODS.

Thread Edgings, of every width and price;
Lisle, Gimpeur, Meline, Ashburton, Polka, Smyrna and Dentilla Laces, at prices varying from 1 cent to $2 per yd
Plain and Fig'd Blond, Brussels, Bobbinett and Polka Laces, for Caps, Capes, etc.

MILLINERY GOODS.

50 different styles of Bonnet Ribbons, many of which have been purchased at Auction, and can be sold at decided bargains. Straw Bonnets; Flowers; Tabs; Ruches; Bonnet Crowns; Bonnet Wire; Foundation Muslin; Crown Linings; Crapes, etc.

EMBROIDERIES.

New style Emb'd Inside Hdkfs, with and without collars, at prices varying from 58 cents to $5 00.
Embroidered Muslin Collars, from 37 1-2c to $2.
do Under Sleeves and Cuffs.

HOSIERY AND GLOVES.

Our assortment of Hosiery consists of nearly 300 dozen of every style of Bleached and Brown Cotton Hose; Black and Mode colored Cotton Hose;
English Lisle Thread Hose;
Raw Silk Hose and 1-2 Hose;
Blk and White Spun Silk do;
Misses Hosiery in great variety.

100 dozen Kid Gloves, in White, black, Lavender and Mode colors;
Lisle Thread Gloves for Ladies and Children;
Raw Silk do do do;
White and colored Silk for Gentlemen;
Picnic and Mohair Gloves and Mitts;

THREAD AND FANCY GOODS.

German and Zephy Worsteds; Needles; Pins;
Yarns and Knitting Worsteds; Oiled Silks;
Steel Beads; Purse Ornaments; Purse Twists;
Bag and Mat Cords; Twists; Braids; and a thousand things which we have not room to mention.

☞ The Ladies are invited, when desirous of purchasing or examining any of the above named Goods, to call at

No. 24 Washington Street, Salem, near Railroad Depot.

may 10 KEITH & MASON.

Opening of Spring!

Magnificent, Chaste and Original Designs for Remodeling

"OAK HALL!"

FOR SPRING TRADE!

OPENING OF "OAK HALL" FOR THREE MONTHS!

Advice to Professional Men, Merchants Clerks with moderate Salaries, Farmers, Mechanics, Seamen, Firemen and others, VISIT OAK HALL!

ARRIVAL OF SPRING GOODS!
To Wholesale Dealers.

THE OPENING
This Morning, for Three Months!

I would again most respectfully inform the citizens of Boston, and strangers visiting the city, (after a delay of six weeks, during which time I have not been idle,) I have completed my arrangements on the most

MAGNIFICENT SCALE,

greatly surpassing my former arrangements. The Hall is splendidly decorated with almost

MAGIC ELEGANCE!

The architecture being Gothic, has given the artist an opportunity to display his taste to advantage. The paintings which adorn the walls are so perfectly chaste and appropriate, that every one will be fully compensated the trouble of visiting it. The design and effect of the interior, especially when

ILLUMINATED IN THE EVENING,

Is unequalled in any store this side of the Atlantic. Much praise is due to the artist, for his share in beautifying this Establishment. I flatter myself that the good taste of my fellow citizens and townsmen will fully appreciate all I have done, as my Establishment was the FIRST and ONLY ONE that adopted the

"EXTREME LOW PRICE SYSTEM,"

Before "OAK HALL" was in existence, it was not a very uncommon thing for a gentleman to pay from $45 to $50 for a suit of clothes. For one half of this sum or less, a perfect and entire suit can be obtained at this Establishment, cut and made with that ease and grace, that distinguish my garments from others. From this

EMPORIUM OF FASHION

first originated the Gothic style of architecture in Boston, and Oak Painting, &c. now so much in fashion. To those who have not visited this great

PLACE OF RESORT,

on account of the name of the street, I would most respectfully say, that where my establishment is located was once the Court end of Boston, and at this time is visited and patronized by the most influential and respectable individuals. Man, not unlike the fields, and Trees, once covered with a beautiful suit of Green is now breaking from its Coat of Ice and Snow and, having its Lesty suit of nature soon to be warmed into animation, and renew its beautiful suit of Green, So with Man—wrapped up in his Overcoat, he now on the opening of Spring, finds his under suit rusty and shabby, and is not suitable to wear. The next thing is to find a good place to fit out at a

REASONABLE PRICE,

and to be sure and have a GOOD FITTING SUIT, that will set upon the form with ease, grace and gentility.

FIVE GOOD REASONS

Why you can purchase at OAK HALL less than at any other Establishment in the United States:

FIRST—You do not pay me for YOUR suit, and the INDIVIDUAL'S that did not pay previous to you, as MY business is Cash on delivery.

SECOND—If any Garment made to order is not pleasing in every particular, it is no inconvenience to take it back and make another, as Ready Made Garments are directly in my line.

THIRD—I purchase my Goods in large lots, extremely cheap, and give my customers the benefit, by selling them at the smallest advances,

Fourth—I go by the motto.

LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS.
OR AS SOME SAY,
"NO PROFITS AT ALL."

That I'll leave with my customer to decide.

FIFTH—My facilities are such at this time doing a

LARGE BUSINESS,
that I can afford to sell at

VERY LOW PRICES!

BOYS' CLOTHING.

I have lately added to my already extensive manufactory of Boys' Clothing, rooms for the manufacture of Boys' Clothing, and shall keep a large supply of every variety and kind, always on hand.

TO WHOLESALE DEALERS.

You will find the greatest variety of every style of Fresh Manufactured Clothing, adapted for Spring, to your different Trades, and will be sold extremely low in large lots!

AT RETAIL.

One of the largest and, best selected Stock of Fresh Spring Goods ever in "OAK HALL," and will be sold at the following low prices.—

PANTALOONS.

2500 pair of Fancy Spring patterns of Satinet Pants, at	1 75 to 2 50
3000 pair Steel Mixt Pants,	1 62 to 3 00
2200 do Sheeps Grey Pants	1 75 to 3 00
2500 do Canada Grey do,	1 75 to 3 00
3000 do Black Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 50
5000 do Lavender Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 00
2200 do Super black do Pants, with fancy stripe,	4 00 to 5 00
1500 Super blue Broadcloth and Cassimere Pants	3 50 to 4 50

THIN COATS.

3500 Coats and Sacks, American Gingham,	75 to 1 00
1000 Coats and Sacks, Scotch Gingham,	1 25 to 1 75
1800 Coats and Sacks Scotch Gingham, satin figure,	1 50 to 1 75
2700 Coats and Sacks, Webster Check	75 to 1 25
1750 Coats and Sacks, London Plaids,	1 25 to 175
4000 Coats and Sacks, of Linen and other goods,	1 00 to 1 75

THIN PANTS.

6000 pair thin Pants of every quality of Goods at low prices, say from 50 cents to $2 50 per pair.
VESTS.
4000 light Vests, a very pretty affair for Spring,	50c to 1 00
3500 Dark Valencia,	75 to 1 50
3500 Fine Valencia, dark and light	1 50 to 2 50
2700 Satin Vests, figured and plain,	2 00 to 3 00

DRESS AND FROCK COATS.

3000 super Dress Coats, all colors, green, blue, black, olive, &c. from $4 to $15.
1750 super Frock Coats, all colors, Mulberry, browns, etc. from $6 to $16.
All the above cut in the latest style, and made up expressly for Spring Trade.
3500 Business Coats, at low prices, say from $2 to $5.
2200 Tweed Coats, water proof, from $3,75 to $5.

FURNISHING DEPARTMENT.

Great Display of Furnishing Goods at the following low prices, viz:

150 dozen White Shirts—Linen Bosoms, Collars and Ribbands.		75c to 1 25 each
100	do White Shirts, plain.	50c to 75c do
150	do Fancy Shirts,	62 1-2 to 87 1-2
200	do Twilled Shirts,	50 to 62 1-2 do
75	do Rich Figured Satin Scarfs,	Low prices.
20	do do do do do
50	do do do do do
25	do Rich Fig'd Satin do.	75c to 1 25
50	do Stocks, of every description, such as Satin Bombazine, &c. and made in the latest Spring Style, 1845	37 1-2 to 1 50
10	do Brussells Carpet Bags, and others,	1 00 to 2 75
75	do Smoking Caps,	12 1-2 to 25c
200	do Braces of every description,	12 1-2 to 50c
20	do best Kid Gloves,	50c to 1 00
25	do Thread do	25 to 50c
20	do Silk do	50 to 75c
100	do Linen Bosoms—all kinds,	25 to 75c
300	do do Collars, latest pattern,	10 to 25c
250	do Canes,	17c to 1 00
325	do Umbrellas,	50c to 1 50
50	do Glazed Silk Caps,	1 00 to 1 25
100	do do do	25 to 37c
505	do Silk Pocket Hdkfs	25 to 75c

An endless variety of Fancy Articles, such as Gold and Fancy Studs—Hair Brushes—Clothes do—Pocket Combs—Dressing do—Tooth Brshes—Cologne—Bosom Pins—Fancy Soaps—Silk Purses—Guard Chains—Pant Straps, &c. &c.

A LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO THE TRADE.

My furnishing Goods are purchased from first rate hands, at low prices, and will be sold at small advance to the trade at my

EXTENSIVE LONG ROOMS,
OAK HALL BUILDING,
GEORGE W. SIMMONS,
General Tailor, Draper and Outfitter,
32, 34, 36, and 38 Ann street
Opposite Merchant's Row—BOSTON.

apr 19 3m

Ploughs & Cultivators,

MANUFACTURED BY
RUGGLES, NOURSE & MASON,
And other Agricultural Tools,
FOR SALE BY
DANIEL RICHARDS,
Danvers Plains, March 29, 1845.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY.

WOMEN to make Shirts, Thin Jackets, and Pants, at EDWARDS',
may 17 14 Front street.

Danvers Express and Baggage Waggon.

LEAVES Danvers and Boston, daily (Sundays excepted.)

All orders left at McIntire's Hotel, or Poole & Jacobs' store Danvers, No. 14 Blackstone, and No. 1 Fulton streets, Boston, will be promptly attended to.

Goods handled with care.

S. F. TOWN.
April 19, 1845. 1 y

GOLD PENS. A superior article just received and for sale cheap by G. W. & E. CRAFTS.
174 Essex St. Salem.

TOPOGRAPHICAL MAP OF PALESTINE by J. H. Colton. Compiled principally from the observations of Messrs Robinson and Smith. The religious Press and many of the secular papers have spoken in high terms of this map. For sale by G. W. & E. CRAFTS.
174 Essex St. Salem.

FOR SALE.

A two story house and lot of land on Holton street. The House is convenient for two families and will be sold at a great bargain. Inquire of

HIRAM GRANT.

Danvers, April 19, 1845.

AUCTIONS.

BY LOWLEY & WHALL,
[Store Nos 21 and 22 Pearl street, Boston.]

On WEDNESDAY, June 18 10 o'clock, at office,
BOOTS, SHOES AND BROGANS. 900 cases Boots, Shoes and Brogans.

On Thursday, July 6th, at 10 o'clock, at office, BOOTS, SHOES AND BROGANS. 700 cases Boots Shoes and Brogans,

On Wednesday, July 23d, at 10 o'clock, at office, BOOTS, SHOES AND BROGANS. 2000 cases Boots, Shoes and Brogans.

The above sales comprise a prime stock of goods, and every case on the catalogues will be sold without the least reserve.

At Private Sale,

Book Binders. 7 crates, (3000 pounds) Russet Linings, pieces suitable for Book Binders, of good color,
Split Leather—2000 lbs light Slaughter Splits,
Kidd—50 dozen Madras Kid, No. 2.
Linings—200 dozen Cochsngal and White Linings.
Wax Leather—300 sides prime Slaughter Wax,
African Kipp—1000 sides African Kip.
Grain Leather—500 sides oak and hemlock Grain.
Calf Skins—200 dozen light and heavy Calf Skins.
Linings, in crust—500 dozen White Linings in crust.
Baltimore Leather—200 sides light Slaughter Sole leather.
New York Sole Leather—1100 sides light and middle wt.
Caroga Tannery.

THE
Massachusetts Mechanic Association
HAVING AWARDED TO
GOVE, LOCKE & CO.,

and no one else, a DIPLOMA for specimens of

The Best Ready Made Clothing

Exhibited by them at the Mechanics' Fair in September last, must satisfy the community that the location of an establisnment is of but little importance, and that the idea of being confined to a particular section of the city, in order to obtain a

GENTEEL GARMENT,

has been rendered obsolete, by the above named award, as without prejudice the award was made to those who deserved it. Being convinced themselves, that their CUSTOM WORK has not been surpassed in any point of view, still they have been obliged to stem the current against the strongest prejudices, and have, by unremitted attention to the tastes and desires of their patrons, to a very considerable extent, overcome them, resulting in a successful trade, and encouraging them to prosecute the NEW ENGLAND BRANCH OF THEIR BUSINESS, with renewed vigor, and to devote a large share of their attention the present season, to the

Highest Grade of Custom Work!

Being now prepared with every facility adapted to the various classes in the community, they can furnish any style of Garment which their notion or fancy may dictate—aiming

In point of Style and Fashion,
to be in advance of any other

CLOTHING ESTABLISHMENT!

and being at all times supplied with materials of every description, they are prepared to turn out at the shortest notice

AS GOOD AND AS GENTEEL A GARMENT

as can be obtained in the United States, and have entire confidence in making the assertion, having Cutters constantly

ENGAGED ON CUSTOM WORK:

who are inferior to none in this region, enabling them to assure those who have favored them with their patronage, that no pains will be spared to deserve a continuance of their support—and to those who lack confidence in a Clothing Establishment, because it is situated on

COMMERCIAL STREET,

they would say that a specimen of their work can be seen in nearly everysection of the city, particularly on the backs of

THE MOST CONSIDERATE PEOPLE

and to them they refer, in relation not only to the treatment which is universally tendered to them by all concerned in the

COMMERCIAL ARCADE!

but more especially in regard to the price as the Proprietors have by experience ascertained that they can furnish a

FIRST RATE GARMENT!

at a medium price, equal in every respect to those furnished up in town, at an exhorbitant one. Their Stock of Clothing, adapted to the

SPRING SALES!

is far superior to any previous year, and the patronage of the public is respectfully invited, whether in pursuit of a single garment or otherwise, as their stock embraces every article essential or requisite to the wardrobe of a gentleman, while its magnitude enables them to supply COUNTRY DEALERS in any quantity at the shortest notice, and on the best terms.

WHOSESALE DEALERS!

located any where from Maine to Georgia, or even in Texas, can find at this concern an assortment of Wearing Apparel adapted to their sales, and are invited before concluding their

SPRING PURCHASES!
—TO CALL—
At No. 60 Commercial street,
BOSTON,

Sign of the Monument,—and visit the proprietors of

COMMERCIAL ARCADE,
GOVE, LOCKE & COMPANY.

Boston, March 29, 1845. 3m

HARRISON'S REMEDY
FOR THE PILES.

THIS is an ointment prepared by the undersigned and has been so thoroughly tested in so many different cases that I never hesitate to warrant relief to those who will give it a fair trial, observing the directions around each box which give a plain treatise on the disease and full instructions as to diet mode of cure, &c. One application at night never fails to relieve the greatest pain and anguish. I am ready to refer to numerous individuals who have proved the Remedy to be the safest, surest, speediest and cheapest

CURE FOR THE PILES.

My agent in Exeter writes thus: "the Pile Remedy which you left me is all sold, please send me soon a further supply, as a number of persons in this town think very highly of it. N. GILMAN"

MORE TESTIMONY.

Salem, Aug. 6. Mr. Harrison: The box of ointment which I had from you has worked like a charm—I have used it only one night, and I am cured. I had used Hays' Liniment as I stated to you, with no benefit but rather was worse, it causing more inflammation. Yrs, J. W.

For sale at 256 Essex street, by the Proprietor,
J. S. HARRISON JR.,

Agents—in Danvers, S. PROCTOR, Jr.; Marblehead—E. Arnold; Lynn—Ladd, and Holder; Beverly—Clarke; Newburyport—C. Whipple; Andover—Amos Abbott; Topsfield—Bixby and Merriam Haverhill—Nichol; Boston—Ransom & Stevens Tompkins, Southers and Fowle.

mch 15 6m

Overhauls.

A GOOD assortment will be constantly kept on hand, at EDWARDS',
apr 26 14 Front street, Salem.

STATE LAWS.

AN ACT relating to Returns of Clerk of Manufacturing Corporations.

Sec. 1. Every Clerk of any Manufacturing Corporation, in the return required to be made by him, by virtue of the first section of the ninety-eighth chapter of the Statutes, passed in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty-three, entitled, "An Act for the more equal assessment of taxes," shall state the whole amount of the capital stock of such Corporation, and the amount of real estate and machinery which was assessed to the said Corporation, in the last assessment of the city, or town, where such Corporation is situated.

Approved by the Governor, March 26, 1845.

AN ACT concerning the laying out turnpike roads as Common Highways.

Be it enacted, &c., as follows:

Sect. 1. So much of the sixteenth section of the thirty-ninth chapter of the Revised Statutes as requires, that before any turnpike road on part thereof, shall be laid out by the County Commissioners in any County, as a common highway, or any alteration shall be made therein, the several towns, within whose limits such turnpike road may be, shall assent to the same, is hereby repealed.

Sect. 2. No town shall be liable, or holden to refund to any County Treasurer, more than one third part of the amount paid by the County, to any turnpike corporation, as damages for taking any turnpike road for a highway.

Approved by the Governor, March 25, 1845.

A THIEF DETECTED WITH THE STOLEN GOODS.

(FOUNDED ON FACT.)

A farmer in the country sent a message to his friend, living a few miles distant, by the hands of one of his labourers, who, arriving at the place of his destination, as the person for whom it was intended could not be seen immediately, was desired to wait in the kitchen until his master's friend should have time to speak with him. He did so; and, in a few minutes, the maid-servant having work to do elsewhere, and not suspecting his honesty, left him alone, But being either thievishly disposed or suddenly overtaken by temptation, in an evil moment, he cast longing eyes upon a quantity of butter which lay exposed, ready prepared for market, in lumps of a pound each. Thinking it probable that one pound would not be missed, but not knowing how to carry it off, as his jacket had no pocket large enough to hold it he at length thought of his hat, laid hands upon a pound of the butter, put it in, and replaced the covering on his head. Shortly after this, the maid returned into the kitchen, and instantly perceived her loss.

Being afraid to accuse the man herself, she apprized her master of the robbery, who, after considering the best method of detecting the thief, hurried to the kitchen, asked the man his business, and received the message in due form. The messenger then desired to know what answer he should return. I will tell you presently, said the farmer; meanwhile you shall take something to eat and drink. The man begged to be excused, saying he had a long walk before him; but the farmer would not let him depart.

The kitchen fireplace was one of antique construction, such as may yet be seen in country farm-houses. It was built of dimensions so capacious as to admit of two seats, within it one on each side of the fire which blazed upon the hearth. Each seat admitted of two persons in the innermost sat precisely in the chimney corner, and was enclosed on all sides: in front, by the fire; behind and upon one side, by brick and mortar; and upon the only remaining side, by the person who sat next. Into this snug corner the farmer compelled his unwilling guest, and immediately taking possession of the outer seat, kept him a close prisoner.

The latter fearing lest the theft should be discovered, had uniformly omitted to take off his hat; and the keen farmer, noticing this suspicious circumstance with an observing eye concluded that the butter was therein concealed, and determined to make him confess, without charging him with the theft. For this end he had forced him into this warm region, knowing that by the side of a hot fire he would soon be in an awkward predicament. The farmer ordered the servant to draw some beer, and bring the bread and cheese. This was quickly done, and the guest partook of it with an apparent good-will and hearty appetite, but was in reality greatly perplexed, and anxious to be gone. In the meanwhile the farmer, kept firm to his side, and stirred up the fire to entertain him as warmly as possible. At length having finished his bread and cheese and beer, he entreated to be gone. "You shan't go yet," said the farmer, "you haven't half warmed yourself: it's a cold day, remember." And as no excuse would serve, he was compelled to wait until his master's friend should please to dismiss him.

Now, as with the excessive heat of the fire the butter began to liquefy, the poor fellow became alarmed. The butter melted yet more, he could feel a few drops trickling down his cheeks; he was violently agitated, but strove to conceal his emotion. At last, as from a fountain, it poured copiously down his hair, forehead, and cheeks, and streamed over his clothes to the ground. The poor fellow, unable to refrain, burst into an agony of tears.—"Mercy on me," cried the farmer, with well feigned astonishment, rising from his seat, and walking to the middle of the room, "why, what's the matter with the man? what are you crying about? and what is this running down your face?" The culprit, seeing an open way to escape from his fiery ordeal, followed the master, and, confessing his offence, fell down on his knees, weeping and sobbing aloud, and imploring forgiveness. The farmer had now attained his object; he had brought him to confess his crime; and seeing him contrite for his fault, and conceiving he had already sufficiently punished him, he was dismissed, with an admonition to—go, and steal no more.

CHARLES H. MANNING,
CABINET MAKER,
Near the Sign of the Lamb, Main Street,
DANVERS, MASS.

FURNITURE manufactured on the most reasonable terms. Also—CURRIER'S TABLES made and repaired cheap.
SHOE-MAKERS' PEGGING BENCHES made as above. oct 15

REMOVAL.
DR. J. A. ROBINSON,
SURGEON DENTIST,
SALEM,

WOULD respectfully give notice that he has removed from his old stand, opposite the City Hall, to No. 20 Washington street, recently occupied by A. E. Phillips, where he is ready to perform all operation, in Dentistry, in a most thorough and workmanlike manner.

His experience and success in inserting whole sets either by atmospheric pressure or springs, enables him to furnish them at rates which cannot fail to suit those in want of an article of superior quality.

His method of inserting Teeth, both singly and on plate, with or without Gums, has been found to be satisfactory and successful as combining beauty of finish and adaptation, with all the requisites of mastication and articulation.

Particular attention paid to filling Teeth so as to render them serviceable for many years, and also to the regulation of Children's Teeth.

N. B. For sale as above, a first rate article of TOOTH POWDER. 6m mch 15

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

JONATHAN W. OSBORNE has taken into Co-partnership MICHAEL L. WHIDDEN, and they will continue the
Painting, Glazing & Papering
business, at the old Stand, No 10 PARK STREET, under the firm of
OSBORNE & WHIDDEN.
Particular attention to
SIGN PAINTING,
IMITATIONS OF WOOD, MARBLE, BRONZE, GROUND GLASS, &c.
mch 29 1y

Great Bargains
ARE NOW BEING HAD AT THE
Washington Street Clothing Store, Salem.

GARMENTS of all description may be obtained at prices which cannot fail to give entire satisfaction.

Great care has been taken in the getting up of every garment, all of which is warranted equal, if not superior to any Clothing in the city.

The subscriber continues to take measures as formerly, and all Garments bespoken, will be made according to the wishes of the customer, and will guarantee both the style and fit.

☞BOY WANTED, as an Apprentice.
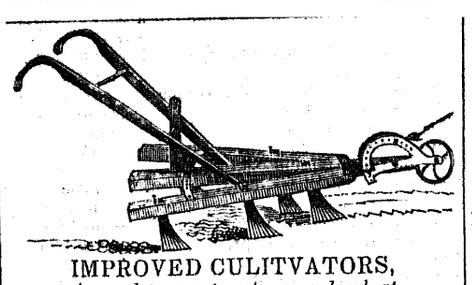
S. CHAMBERLAIN, JR.
Salem, March, 15. tf



G. W & E. CRAFTS,
BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURERS AND STATIONERS,
174 ESSEX STREET, SALEM,

HAVE constantly on hand, and will manufacture to order, all kinds of Blank Books, from the best paper, ruled to any pattern, and bound in a neat and substantial manner.

FINE STATIONERY,
of almost ever description, adapted for counting rooms and schools, comprising in part, Letter and Writing Papers, ruled and plain; Drawing Papers; Note, Tissue and Wrapping Papers; Wafers; Sealing Wax; Seals and Steel Pens of every variety; Quills of every description; wafer Cups; sand boxes; writing fluids and inks; penknives; razors, &c.

PRINTING, RULING AND BINDING,
Printing of shop bills, cards, bill heads, catalogues, &c. executed in the neatest manner and on the best terms. Ruling, to any pattern desired, at short notice. Binding, of every description, executed with despatch.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONERY.
A constant supply of school books, of the best editions, together with every kind of School Stationery. Also, all kinds of miscellaneous books furnished at mch 15

IMPROVED CULITVATORS,
A complete assortment now on hand, at
J. & H. HALE'S,
May 3. tf 215 Essex street Salem.

BENJAMIN EDWARDS,
DRAPER & TAILOR,
No. 14 FRONT STREET, SALEM.

GARMENTS Cut and Made to order, and Fashionably, and warranted to give entire satisfaction

Constantly on hand, a good assortment of
BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES, AND VESTINGS.
Also—Neck Stocks, Italian Cravats, Scarfs, Shirt Bosoms, Collars, Feetings, Braces, Umbrellas, Hair and Clothes Brushes, Cologne Water, Wallets,
and other articles necessary for Gentlemen's use.

Grateful for the very liberal patronage which has heretofore been bestowed upon the establisment, he hopes by care and attention to business to merit a continuance.

Any order for Goods in the TAILORING LINE, attended to with fidelity and despatch.

All Garments Repaired and Cleansed CHEAP.

Any of the above articles if not on hand when called for, will be furnished at short notice.
mch 15 tf

PERIODICALS, PAPERS, &c.

LUTHER CHANDLER, GENERAL AGENT for the sale of all the principal Periodicals, Newspapers, &c., and will furnish them to all persons who may wish to subscribe; among which are

Graham's Magazine,	Harper's Pictorial Bible,
Ladies' National do,	Verplanck's Shakspeare,
Arthur's Lady's do,	Phil Saturday Courier,
Christian Family Mag.,	Neal's Gazette,
Gentlemen's Magazine,	New York Mirror,
Godey's Lady's Book,	Frost's Pictorial World,

The above and all the principal periodicals and papers will be furnished promptly.

☞BOOKS BOUND at the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

Orders may be left at J. SHED'S, opposite the Monument, South Danvers. 1y mch 29

DOESKINS AND CASSIMERES.

A NEW lot Stripes, Plaids and Clouded Doeskins. Black, Blue Black, and Lavender Cassimeres, just received at EDWARDS'S,
may 3 14 Front street.

LAMP BLACK.
1000 POUNDS of Lamp Black, warranted a prime article.

3000 Madras Goat Skins, in crust. Goat and Sheep Morocco. Kid, Linings, and Bindings.
For sale by W. & M. BLACK Jr.,
apr 12 New Mills, Danvers.

New Furniture Store.
SALEM FURNITURE & FEATHER WARE-HOUSE.
205 1-2 ESSEX STREET. 205 1-2
(Two Doors East from the Market,)

JOSEPH WALLIS would respectfully inform his friends and the public that he has taken the rooms recently occupied by T. Needham, Esq., where he will keep constantly on hand and for sale an extensive and well selected assortment of which he will sell at the lowest cash prices, among which may be found,

CABINET FURNITURE,

Sofas, Sofa Beds; Windlass, Cot Trundle and common Bedsteads; Secretaries; Bureaus; Mahogany, Card, Work, Centre and Dining Tables;—Mahogany, Cane-seat and common Chairs; Mahogany, Cane-back and common Rocking Chairs;—Children's Toy, Rocking and Dining Chairs; Settees and Settee Cradles; Cribs; Grecian and common Wash Stands; Portable Sinks; Portable and Gentleman's Writing Desks, Toilet, Dining and common Pine Tables; Looking Glasses; Swing and Toilet Glasses. Fancy Boxes, a great variety;—Mattresses; and every article usually found in his line of business.

CLOCKS.

J. W. intends keeping on hand a large and well selected assortment of Wood and Brass Clocks from the best of manufacturers—all of which we can feel confident in warranting. Those about purchasing this article will do well to call.

FEATHERS.

Live Geese and common Feathers; a great variety.

N B. J. W. will still continue to Manufacture FURNITURE at the Old Stand, No 29 Lafayette, corner of Ward street, where he will keep on hand a good assortment of Cabinet Furniture, Feathers, Looking Glasses and Clocks.

Salem, April 12, 1845.

S. R. BOTT,
DRAPER & TAILOR,
No. 148 Essex Street, Salem,

TAKES this method of informing the public of Danvers and vicinity that he has for sale one of the richest and BEST selected assortments of Broadcloths, Cassimeres & Vestings ever before offered in Salem. The Stock is of the latest Spring and Summer styles, and cannot be surpassed by any establishment in the city, which will be sold by the yard, or made into Garments, in a style that CANNOT be surpassed in this or any other city.

☞Strangers from the country would do well to call at this establishment, as they select their Goods with the most perfect confidence, that each article is as good in quality, and as low in price as can be obtained at any other store.

N. B. The report of Fashions received every month.

Salem, March 15, 1845.

☞PAPER HANGINGS.☜

THE subscriber has made such an extensive arrangement with the principal manufacturers of Paper Hangings that he is enabled to sell them at the lowest prices, wholesale and retail. New patterns will be received every week as soon as they are out.

2800 rolls of new styles for the Spring trade have been received within a few days. Unusual inducements are thus offered to purchasers of House Paper of all descriptions, from the highest finished Satin to the most common Paper, (call and see for yourselves.) Country dealers supplied on the most reasonable terms. SAMUEL B. FOSTER,
30 Lawrence Place,
Near the Railroad Station. Be sure and enquire for Foster, 30 Lawrence Place, Salem. mch 15

JUST received a full assortment of the celebrated EAGLE PLOUGH, improved. Also, Garden Rakes & Partridge's celebrated Manure Forks, Rakes, Hoes, and Castings for repairing the various parts of almost all kinds of Ploughs now in use.
J. & H. HALE, 215 Essex st. Salem.
May 3

ADAMS & RICHARDSON,
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
HARDWARE.
MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS FOR THE SALE OF
Cut Nails, White Lead, Sheet Lead and Lead Pipe,
NO. 207 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
Joseph Adams,
C. M. Richardson,
march 15 tf

EASY SHAVING AND
HAIR CUTTING.

B. B. WILLIAMS respectfully informs hi friends and the public, that he has removed to the store formerly occupied by Lambert & Merrill, (under the Courier Office,) which he has fitted up in a neat manner, and is now prepared to wait upon those who believe that
"Man wants but little beard below,
Nor wants that little long."
Champooing, Hair Cutting and Shaving is performed to the satisfaction of all who may favor him with their patronage.
Danvers, March 15, 1845. tf

REMOVAL.

BOWDOIN'S DAGUERROTYPE ROOMS removed from Mechanic Hall, to the adjoining building above, 298 Essex street, where he has rooms built expressly for the purpose of taking Miniatures in any weather.

Mr. B. tenders his sincere thanks to his friends and the public, for their liberal patronage the past year, and respectfully solicits the continuance of public favor. He has recently purchased a large Achromatic instrument for the purpose of taking GROUPS and LARGE PICTURES, which enable him to give pictures of all sizes, equal to those taken in New York or Boston He has formed a connexion with an establishment in New York, from whence he receives all the new improvements, and materials connected with the Art, which will enable him to give better pictures for less prices than can be obtained in Boston.

Miniatures set in every variety of Lockets, Frames, Cases, &c.

☞Persons visiting Salem, and those about going to sea, can have a perfect likeness completed in a few minutes' time.

 Miniatures set in a neat Morocco Case for $1 50. Exhibition rooms open to visiters through the day.
Salem, March 15. tf

TAILORS' CRAYONS. A new lot of Tailors' Crayons, manufactured to my order, just received and for sale at EDWARDS', 14 Front street, may 10 Salem.

Fales' Cathartic, or Vegetable PURGATIVE LOZENGES.

ARE the best and most popular medicines for people of all ages, country, and climates, and in every condition of life. They are compounded of the essences of vegetables from many nations. Their taste is inexpressibly delightful. They cause no pain in their operations, but the first change of feeling after taking them is, that of pleasure, and they cleanse the stomach and bowels more perfectly than any other purgative medicines.

The most wonderful and surprising cures have been effected by them in different parts of the earth. How these purgative lozenges do speedily purify the blood, and substitute health for sickness, is a mystery to the most eminent members of the healing art. Such purgative medicines must become universal, and supersede the use of all other purgative compounds; and as long as disease continues to afflict people, so long will these Lozenges remain unrivalled in all coming time throughout the world. Every person who travels should carry them—every family should keep them—and every sick man, woman, or child should take them.

FALES' WORM LOZENGES,
Are a safe and sure remedy for worms. Children love them. They act like a charm in removing the symptoms such as starting in sleep, grating the teeth paleness about the mouth and nose, occasional sickness at stomach, precarious appetite, swelled bowels, and general feverish habit, The child falls into a quiet sleep, and the worms are stupified and expelled, and the child, as far as heard from, in every instance has been cured. Price, 25 cents per box, with full directions; sold at Commercial street, Boston,

FALES' COUGH LOZENGES,
Are beneficial in all common Colds and Coughs, Whooping Cough, Inflamatiou of the Throat and Lungs, in the Croup or Hives, and more certain to act satisfactory than the celebrated Hive Syrup. The most happy effect is obtained in a few moments; the symptoms disappear and the disease is broken up by the magical effect of these Lozenges. Full directions accompany each box, are found at the Depositopy, 96 Commercial staeet, Boston.

FALES' DYSENTERY LOZENGES,
Are a safe and agreeble temedy for Dysentery, Diarrhœa and Bowel Complaints of children. Particular attention must be paid to the directions which are on each box.

FALES' CAMPHOR LOZENGES,
Are beneficial in all common and sick head ache, and where there is a sense of tightness or weight over the eyes, in erruptive diseases, such as Measles and Small Pox. Also in Mania, Epilepsy, Melancholy, Hysteria, in St. Vitus Dance, and in all cases of languor and oppession of the Vital powers, may be taken with safety by women and children in all condi-

FALES' CYPRIAN HAIR TONIC,
Is now so extsnsively known and justly celebrated that further comment upon it will be useless, we can say, however, that among the many thousands who have purchassed the Tonic, in this and other countries, none have returned with complaints, while thousands have expressed not only their approbation, but their wonder and admiration on beholding its effects. A few bottles only can be had at 96 Commercial street, Boston.

CLEAR OUT YOUR RATS.
The gnawing and antics of these destructive creatures can be hushed forever in your house and store, if you will procure a box of the genuine.
MADAGASCAR RAT EXTERMINATOR,
and use it according to directionf. You cannot depend upon it unless obtained at J. J. FALES' No. 96 Commercial street Boston.

—AGENTS—
Salem, J. S. HARRISON, J. Stone, jr., H. Whipple, S Badger, jr; Lynn, J. Moulton jr., Geo. Lummus, Wm. Cogswell, Wm. L Ladd; Swampscot, W. Thompson; Marblehead, E. Arnold, Wm. Stacey; Danvers, S. Proctor, Jos Shed, New Mills, H. S Pope, A. P Perley & Co, C. Simonds, Calder & Foster; Topsfield, B. P. Adams; Beverly. A N Clark. ep6m mch 29

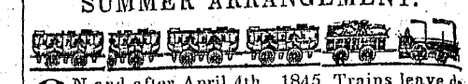
EDWARDS' LINIMENT.
For Sprains, Cuts, Bruises, Stiffened or Swelled Joints, Chilblains, Chapped Hands, Numbness and Rheumatism.

THIS invaluable artidle is now for the first time offered to the public, after having been in use for twenty years, with unusual and astonishing success within the circle of the proprietor's immediate influence. It has received the unqualified approbation of some eminent Physicians, and also Mariners and Mechanics.

It is also recommended, and more than a thousand cases might be cited, when it has been used for Horses in cases of lameness or when galled, &c. &c.

The public are assured that in offering the above we do recommend that which has not the least semblance of QUACKERY, but on the contrary it has done great and lasting good in its efficacious power and healing qualities.

As this medicine has been so long known in Salem and its vicinity, and as there are many that would avail themselves of it if they knew where it could be obtained, therefore the subsciber would now offer it to the public. It will be found always on hand and prepared by the subscriber.



BENJ. EDWARDS,
No. 14 Front street, Salem, Mass.

Wanted—trusty and worthy AGENTS in the neighboring towns and vicinity.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENTS.
DANIELS, POOR & CO., Danvers, Mass.
Benjamin F. Browne, Salem Mass.
Smith & Fowle, Boston, "
H. F. Skerry, Bangor, Me.
Charles Whipple, Bookseller, Newburyport.
Wm. R. Preston, Portsmouth, N. H.
John S. Caldwell, Belfast. Me.
Wm. H. Palmer, Lynnfield.
Joseph Edwards, jr., Lynn.
Charles Edwards, Marblehead.
Wm. Edwards, Beverly.
March 15, 1845. tf

KENDALL'S CHURNS.—A fresh supply of the various sizes, also, the different sizes of he SHAKER CHURNS, for sale at apr 26 J. & H. HALE'S, 215 Essex st.

EASTERN RAILROAD.
SUMMER ARRANGEMENT.

ON and after April 4th, 1845, Trains leave daily (Sundays excepted,)
Boston for Portland, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P. M.
" Portsmouth, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 5 1-2 P.M.
" Somersworth, Great Falls, 7 1-4 A.M. 2 1-2 P.M.
" for Newburyport, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 and 5 1-2 P.M.
" for Salem, 7 1-4, 9, A.M., 12 1-4 2 1-2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2, 7 1-2 P.M.
Salem for Portland, 8 A.M., 3 1-4 P.M.
Salem for Portsmouth and Newburyport, 8 A.M. 3 1-4, 6 1-4 P.M.
Portland for Boston, 7 1-2 A.M., 3 P.M.
Saco for Boston, 8 A.M., 3 1-2 P.M.
Somersworth, Great Falls for Boston, 8 3-4 A.M. 4 1-4 P.M.
South Berwick for Boston, 9 1-4 A M, 4 3-4 P.M.
Portsmouth for Boston, 6 1-2, 10,* A.M., 5 1-2* P.M.
Newburyp't for Boston, 7 1-4, 10 3-4* AM. 6 1-4* P.M.
Salem for Boston, 7, 8 1-2, 10 1-4 11 3-4,* A.M. 2 1-4, 5, 7,* P.M.
*Or on their arrival from the East.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.
Trains leave Marblehead for Salem, at 7 1-4, 8 1-4, 10, A.M.; 2, 4, 4 3-4, 7, P.M.
Leave Salem for Marblehead, at 8, 9 3-4 A.M., 1, 3 1-4, 4 1-4, 6 1-4, 8 1-4 P.M.

A Merchandize Train will leave Boston, Portland and all intermediate places every day.
Freight Office in Boston, No. 17 Merchants Row, and on the line of the road at the several Depots.
JOHN KINSMAN,
apr 12 Master of Transportation.

Summer Arrangement of the
DANVERS AND SALEM
HOURLY COACHES

THE Danvers and Salem Hourly Coaches will in connection with the Eastern Railroad, leave Danvers and Salem at the following hours, viz:

Leave Danvers at	7 A.M.	Leave Salem at	8 A.M.
" "	8	" "	9 1-2
" "	9 3-4	" "	11 1-2
" "	11 1-4	" "	12 3-4
" "	1 3-4 P.M.	" "	3 P.M.
" "	2 3-4	" "	4
" "	4 1-2	" "	6
" "	6 1-2	" "	8

For seats apply at Macintire's Hotel, or at Joseph G Shed's store in Danvers, and at the Essex House and Salem Hotel in Salem.

Railroad passengers taken at the depot on the arrival of the cars from Boston and the East.

☞Extra Coaches furnished at any hour on reasonable terms. SYMONDS & TEEL.
apr 19 tf

DOWLEY & WHALL,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, AND
AUCTIONEERS,
FOR THE SALE OF
Boots, Shoes, Leather and all kinds of Shoe Stock, at Private and Auction Sale,
Nos. 21 and 22 PEARL Street,
Levi A. Dowley, Joseph B. Whall, } BOSTON.
Cash liberally advanced on Boots, Shoes and Shoe Stock, for private and public sales.

—References—
Messrs. Jos. Whitney & Co., Josiah M. Jones, Esq., } Boston.
" Spofford, Tileston, & Co., Shepard Knapp, Esq., C. M. Leupp & Co., } New York.
" Haddock, Hazletine & Reed, Philadelphia
" Poland, Jenkins & Co., Baltimore.
" Friead, Humphrey & Co., Albany.

REMOVAL.
SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN,
MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN
Rich Jewelry and Fancy Goods,

HAVE removed to the New Store, No. 291 Essex street, (next above Mechanic Hall) where they will keep constantly for sale Gold Finger Rings; Breast Pins, Bracelets, Lockets, Keys, Gold and Silver Pencil Cases, Silver Thimbles, Silver and Plated Table and Tea Spoons, Butter Knives, Silver Plated and Brittania Ware, Shell, Horn, and Ivory Combs, Pocket Books, Purses, &c., &c.

N. B. All kinds of Jewelry repaired in a superior manner and warranted. Old Gold or Jewelry, made over or exchanged for new.

S. & C. having acquired a thorough knowledge of the business in New York, as well as our success for the past five years in this city, will, we feel assured, enable us to execute with approbation any orders entrusted to our care.

☞Thankful for past patronage, we solicit a continuance of the same. tf March 15.

Flour, Corn, Oats, Shorts, &c.
Landing from schr Pioneer,
200 BARRELS Genesee Flour;
20 1-2 do do do
500 bushels Mealing Corn;
500 do Yellow do
500 do Shorts;
20 bbls Pea Beans;
4 bbls Marrowfat Peas;
100 bags Fine Salt;
—Also, in store—
100 bushels Killam Oats, for seed;
100 do Herds Grass Seed;
100 do Red Top do do;
500 do Clover do; (Northern;
For sale by DANIEL RICHARDS,
At the old and well known stand on the Plains
North Danvers, April 19, 1845.

NEW LUMBER WHARF.

THE subscriber having taken the wharf, called the WEST wharf, near the Bridge, in South Salem, would take this opportunity to inform his friends and the public generally, that he intends to keep for sale an assortment of BOARDS, JOIST, CLAPBOARDS, SHINGLES, PICKETS, LATHS, &c. &c., of as good quality as can be found in the city.

He has now on hand 300,000 dry Boards and Plank for sale, and all wishing to purchase, are respectfully invited to call and examine for themselves.

He has also made arrangements at the Eastward for furnishing Dimension Frames, and filling orders of every description, at short notice.

Having been a practical builder for the last fifteen years, the subscriber flatters himself that his knowledge of the business, and the Lumber trade generally, will enable him to give satisfaction to those who may favor him with their patronage.

As he will be at the Eastward part of the time, he will be able to give his personal attention to the purchasing of Lumber, &c. He has made arrangements with Mr. A. F. CLARK to be on the wharf during business hours, who will wait upon those who may favor him with a call.
Salem, May 10, 1845. tf H. B. WARD.

NECK STOCKS, SCARFS, CRAVATS, TIES, ITALIAN CRAVATS.
A GOOD assortment of the above just received
EDWARDS'S,
apr 5 14 Front street, Salem.

DANVERS COURIER.

VOL. 1. DANVERS, (MASS.) SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 7, 1845. NUMBER 12.

THE DANVERS COURIER
IS PUBLISHED BY
GEORGE R. CARLTON,
EVERY SATURDAY MORNING,
A few doors North of Mackintire's Hotel,
CENTRAL ST.—SOUTH DANVERS.

Terms—$1 50 if paid in advance, or $2 00, if not paid within one month of the time of subscribing. The carriers are not allowed to sell any copies of the Courier. Single copies may be obtained at the office, at 5 cents each.

Advertisements will be inserted on favorable terms.

POETRY.

FOR THE COURIER.

AN INFANT SLEEPING.

When slumbers fall on infant eyes,
A smile will often beam,
Soft as that light which star-lit skies
Cast on a quiet stream.

Visions of lustrous beauty steal
About the sleeper's bed,
And forms of light and glory kneel,
Or hover round his head.

There is no calm, like his sweet sleep;
No music, like those wings,
Which waving, round his curtain sweep,
In gentle murmurings.

Now once more his lips are wreathing,
His bosom heaves with joy;
Angels, in his ear are breathing,—
They whisper to the boy.

Thy babe, Oh! mother, do not wake,
But let his spirit roam;
Too soon, will daylight on him break,
To call him from his home.

J. T. G.

THE EVENING STAR.

When the sun seeks Earth's western bar,
Obscured his glories seem;
And yet, one lonely, faithful star,
Reflects his parting beam.

Sun of my soul! thus far from thee,
Compelled by Fate to part,
Thy radiance softly glows for me,
Thy light is on my heart.

G.

COMMUNICATIONS.

FOR THE COURIER.

Mr. Courier—Since I last wrote to you, two events have taken place which afforded me much food for pleasant and sober reflection. The first was the anniversary of old-fashioned Election-day. Ah! quam dulce est meminisse! what visions of boyhood gladdened my soul! Once again I was a little rattle-headed, harum-scarum devil, full of fun and mischief, up with the sun, roving through the fields mocking the bobolinks and shooting black birds, or down at old Pomp's firing at round cakes, guzzling pop-beer and teasing the girls.—Pompey, or Pomp as we used to call him, was an old negro at whose hut the boys of four or five generations had been wont to assemble on Election afternoon, when the morning's gunning was over, to wind up the merry day in devouring as much of his humble refreshments as their pocket money would purchase, and in practicing on the green before his door all sorts of juvenile sports and antics. I can see the old fellow now, with his woolly head which a century had well nigh bleached, chuckling and showing the white of his eyes as he drew the corks from the fizzling bottles, or set before us the cakes with their crust all as shiny with molasses and egg as his own face. And then his "Thank'ee, little massa", as he received from the lads their holiday silver and jingled it in his breeches pocket, it sounds in my ears as though it were but yesterday! Just back of the house was a pine wood through which one of the winding paths led down to a beautiful sheet of water called from time immemorial in honor of the ancient blackamoor, Pomp's Pond. Here we used to go to catch shiners and gather lilies, the girls meanwhile, (for they were in for the fun) trying to scare away the fish or making awkward attempts to scale stones upon the top of the water. The older boys went out sailing in a crazy boat, and a proud day it was for me when for the first time I stood at the helm, like Palinurus, and steered the old tub of a vessel across the lake. In the woods around the pond were many delightful walks.—Nowhere did the birds sing so cheerily and nowhere else did the wild flowers of spring and summer bloom so early or in such abundance. Here we used to stroll up and down, or stretch ourselves out on the green turf where the sunlight fell aslant through the branches, to rest from very weariness of play to tell each other stories and talk of what we'd do when another year came round. To some that year never came—and while the rest of us were there in the old familiar places joyous and bright as ever they were sleeping quietly in the village-churchyard with the aged yews casting their solemn shadows over their little graves. Sometimes, perhapsa the thought of this would come into our minds—nd then silence and sadness would steal over us, till one of the light-hearted company would break the spell with his merry voice, and smiles andlaughter would chase away the starting tears. As time sped on, and the youthful heart expanded to sentiment and the emotions of love, the boys and girls now grown to young men and maidens, used to come here at sunset to saunter among the trees and indulge in those delicious sensations of which as yet they hardly knew the secret, though under its magic influence a new world was opening to their vision all bathed in golden light. Here in the evening twilight they told their first tale of love and as they stood with locked hands under the leafy boughs in which the soft wind was making gentle music, exchanged their ardent vows, nor thought that life, hopeful and pleasant as the mellow beauty of the western sky, could turn to dark clouds and night. I have no confession of my own to make, Mr. Courier, and yet those haunts and hours are to me the dearest spots in memory's waste. Long years have flown since then—study and experience have gained me the learning of books and knowledge of the world, and friendship and affection have given me untold delights—but fairest of all the flowers which have wreathed the bitter cup of life, was the innocence and joy of those young days.

The other event of which I spoke, I mention with some slight feeling of delicacy—it was my birth-day. I am not about to tell you my precise age, how many years have rolled over my head since I first came into this breathing world, if for no better reason than because I am unwilling to gratify the silly and impertinent curiosity of a certain one of your readers. I'm not very old, and yet old enough to keep in part my own counsels. Perhaps if I should do so altogether, I should show more sense. But it is a pleasure I cannot deny myself, to talk with you freely now and then, and a relief to make you occasionally the confidant of my sober musings. Such certainly was the cast of those, even of a brown hue, which absorbed me on the anniversary of my natal day. And it seems to me if one were a man of but twenty-five, (or even a giggling Miss "waiting to come out,") the recurrence of that land-mark in life which tells that Time travels on with never-tiring feet, and that the journey to Death is one stage nearer its end, could not fail to awaken deep reflection and fill the mind with something like regret and sadness. I applaud no childish terror or morbid fear—but if there be anything in this mortal existence worth the having, if the glory of the sky and the beauty of the earth, if the wonders of nature and the triumphs of art, if feeling and thought, and the joys of the heart and the delight of the mind, and love and friendship and the sweet ties of kindred—if all these be not mere emptiness and less than nothing—then must every event which marks the flight of years and proclaims the approaching loss of all, throw a gloom over any soul gifted with a grain of sensibility or in the least degree alive to the manifold beauty of the world and the holy bonds and sacred relations of Humanity. I am not about to give you another homily on death and the grave, Mr. Courier—I've sinned enough in that way already—but I tell you, and Miss Julia too, that when I welcome the grey morning and gaze upon the soft tints of evening, when I look upon the old trees which I have often hugged in very gratitude, and whose stout arms have sheltered me so long, when I contemplate the speaking phiz of honest Ginger, though he be nothing but a little wiry terrier and as homely a son of a bitch as ever walked on four legs, and then reflect that the bright sun and the green trees and the atmosphere grows thick and my throat is choked—and I'm not ashamed to acknowledge it. It is not that I am so many months more of an old man or an old bachelor, but that I am so much farther removed from the golden days of life and so much nearer to a separation from all the objects of my sympathy and love.

And now what shall I say to your correspondent and my torment, Miss Julia? I have staved it off till the very last, bnt I have got nearly to the end of my sheet, and something I must say, though it cost me worse pain than a twinge of the gout. Let me tell her then, that old or young, I am old enough to have lived at a time when decent manners and common courtesy were taught to misses as religiously as were the ten commandments.—Yes, and boys had the same schooling. And to this let it be attributed that I now notice her; though it be to administer a gentle reproof, instead of treating her with the same want of civility which characterized her conduct towards me. I remember very well the morning she met me. They were mere girls, and simpering, affected ones, to boot, but they were a portion of the sex, a part of God's fairest creation, and so I lifted my hat and bid them good morning. Mind you, Sir, it was not simply these green girls I bowed to and saluted, so much as it was the idea. I reverence the idea of woman. It is associated in my mind with all that is pure and lovely and good—and this idea, this vision never beams upon me, without my soul spontaneously rising to do it homage. Well, what did these silly things do? Return my respectful address in a modest and becoming manner, as Gen. Washington did the negro's salutation? No! not they—(and "Yours Julia" has the barefacedness to boast of it,) they stared at me, and giggled, and grimaced like monkeys, and behaved in a way shameful to themselves and disgraceful to their sex. It was enough to shock even Ginger, who showed manifest symptoms of his disgust. Dumb brute as he is, he's a well-bred dog and has a keen sense of propriety. And what's the apology for all this? Forsooth, (the very thing which should have made them respectful and civil) because they thought I was an elderly man and old-fashioned in my dress. Supposing I am! But not content with rudeness, Miss Julia wilfully adds (forgive me, womanhood!) falsehood to her silliness. She says I'm grey. It's false. To be sure my hair is here and there flecked a little, but it isn't grey, and if it is, it's no sign of my being old. I've got a nephew, not twenty-five, whose luxuriant locks are pepper and salt compared with mine. Why, one of my birth-day presents (and from a fair friend, God bless her!) was a net-silk nightcap. Such gifts are hardly made to aged grey-headed men! It seems all this fuss and scandal is the result of my rebuking you, Mr. Courier, for inadvertently styling me "venerable"—and these witless girls thought—the simpletons! that I was ashamed of my years because, being a hearty old fellow, I did not choose to be identified with crutches and goggles. Now let me tell Miss Julia, (and it's all I shall have to say to her,) and do you listen too, Sir, I don't care how many my years are, or how many you think them, though you make me out a very Methusalah, provided you will allow me that which more than all else I covet, a youthful heart and an ever-fresh susceptibility to that youthful sentiment which constitutes the beauty and charm and poetry of life. Now old age seldom has these blessings. It is generally sour and crabbed. That's why I protested against your adjectives. That's why I sometimes shudder when I think of the swift-winged years. That's why I now and ever pray with the petition of the poet on my lips:

"Touch us gently, Time!
Let us glide adown thy stream
Gently, as we sometimes glide
Through a quiet dream!
Humble voyagers are we,
O'er life's dim unsounded sea
Seeking only some calm clime;—
Touch us gently, gentle Time!"

* * * * *

I must make my bow, Mr. Courier—but I hope the next time I write you to be in a calmer, more philosophical mood. Till then I remain, your's to serve,

NEWMAN NOGGS.

FOR THE COURIER.

TAN AND ITS USES.

Mr. Editor—An tan, or spent bark, is an article constantly accumulating in large quantities in this town, it becomes an important inquiry with our tanners, how to make the best disposal of it. Its use, as fuel, has long been known, and in looking back thirty years to our apprenticeship, when its use was very limited, and large quantities encumbered our tan yards, we well remember selling it to the neighboring farmers for back-logs, for which we received a few cents, by which we were enabled to purchase a few calf skins, with the permission to tan them as our perquisite.—And, Mr. Editor, when we look back to the time when leather was worth something, and tan nearly nothing, and as a matter of course, given to the apprentices, how many recolleetions crowd upon our minds. When we were a little dusty tanner's boy, and followed day after day a rolling stone; when for the first time we slung a barrel over our shoulder, and stretched our short limbs over a low beam "unhairing calf skins;" when we used with a fellow apprentice, to set traps to tip our old foreman into the drench, and when it was a good day's work to turn four packs of leather—how little in those days we knew of the many ways now practised to hasten the tanning of hides. Sleepers were then unknown, and our only engine was a one horse power, a serviceable beast for all work, and all the steam we used in our little yard, was to be found in a two quart jug. But I am digressing, and will return to my subject. Tan, as we have before remarked, has long been used as fuel, but not to the extent that it now is. Within a few years, in a dry state, it has been extensively used in cooking, in common and air-tight stoves with good success. It has been also used to a great extent, in heating boilers to our steam engines, and furnaces to our green houses, and found to As to its use as a manure, we would say, some experience, that when applied in a fresh state to the roots of plants, it is positively injurious, owing undoubtedly to the astringent quality remaining in the bark. This property, as every tanner knows, is long retained in the inner ross or epidermis, after it is gone from the meat or liber. And the reason why tan is so useful to put round trees and currant bushes to keep down grass, is because its astringeney reaching the roots, checks their growth. Tan in its fresh state contains no food for plants, but when mixed with other substances, and suffered to rot, answers well as a compost. Its properties when decomposed, are the same with rotten wood. It will decay rapidly, when mixed with the dregs from our lime pits.

We have used tan for several years in forming walks in our garden, and found it to answer a good purpose. By digging a trench around it, some four feet wide, and throwing in the dirt, and filling this trench with tan, you form a complete barrier to the grass, which cannot be said of gravel. These tan walks are clean and dry, requiring no rolling to keep them smooth, and pleasant to walk upon, and when no longer wanted can be ploughed into the soil wiihout detriment. For roads and carriage ways, tan is not worth much, but can be used in filling up wharves and gullies. It is now used extensively to preserve ice, and when well dried, in the packing of apples, when saw dust cannot be obtained.

It is also used in the stopping of water in dams, and probably might be used in smoking of meats. Such are the many ways in which tan can now be used, and it will doubtless no longer be considered an incumbrance on our yards.

A NEW-MILLS TANNER.

SELECTED TALE.

WOMAN'S CONSTANCY.

Beside a beautiful rivulet, in the midst of a delightful valley formed by the slopes of two majestic hills, and overhung by the drooping branches of the willow and the noble elm, could be seen one beautiful afternoon in July, two persons standing apparently absorbed in deep conversation. One was a youth of scarce eighteen, whose waving locks, finely moulded forehead and noble bearing told that he was a being of no ordinary stamp.—His dark eye glanced mournfully, yet intensively, on the countenance of the fair being who stood beside him. She was indeed a lovely creature. Scarce sixteen summets had tinged her spotless brow. Nurised by the hand of affection, she knew little of the ills of life. The sunny side of existence had always been hers. The natural paleness of her complexion was animated by the excitement of the walk, and the fervor of her thoughts. She was of slight make, and of such fairy-like form, that she might well be taken for the nymph of the stream. With one hand she threw back the dark tresses which the wind had blown before her eyes, and with a sad, yet exquisitely sweet voice, she replied to a remark of her companion—

"Edward, fear not that the love I pledged thee is forgotten. The deep affections of woman, once won, can never be changed. Those affections, once misplaced, can never be recalled.

"Man's love is of man's life a thing apart.
'Tis woman's whole existence.

And it is often a fearful thing for woman to love; to entrust her affections—her confidence—to a being who may be false. Yes, it is indeed fearful, as well as lovely; and many are the unfortunate ones who have felt the truth of this. Yet Edward—" and she paused.

With a jealous glance and kindling look, the youth seized her hand, and with fervor exclaimed—

"Tell me, oh angelic being! fear not to tell me all. Is there another who has found a place in your affections? Has my prolonged absence caused your love for me to lessen? Oh tell me quickly, tell me all. I am prepared for the worst."

"Edward," replied she, "you chide me unjustly; since my affections were pledged to you, I have never had a doubt. My soul has been wholly, undividedly thine; my love has clung to thee, though distant, for I knew that you loved me with a true love," She stopped for a moment, as a tear forced itself into her softly beaming eye, then continued,—"Dear Edward, I have every reason for blessing the choice I have made. Your noble integrity, talents and fame, spoken by every tongue, have often caused my heart to beat with the selfish pride that thou wert mine. Yet oh Edward, you ask me why this change: why this sadness of heart. Perhaps I have done wrong in not imparting the cause to you before. For a long time, sad presentiments have forced themselves upon my mind—you know the delicacy of my health—and I have truly feared that this world is not long for me. I often feel an etherealizing melancholy steal over me which whispers 'of passing away'—that the fond visions I have cherished of earthly happiness are soon to be extinguished forever; and that in the bloom of youth, I must leave dear friends and loved ones to lie in the cold earth—The presentiment is indeed sad, and the occasional hectic on my cheek, warns me that it is not all a bream. My heart has almost burst at the thought of imparting this to you. But, Edward, I feel that our love must soon end for this world."

She stopped, and with a calm look watched the effect of what she had said on the youth.

While she was speaking he seemed spell-bound, his eyes fixed intentively upon her. As soon as she paused, he broke forth.

"Frances, dearest Frances, speak not to me thus. Oh crush not my hopes, my existence.—For you have I labored.—With thoughts of her that loved me have I pored over my books by the midnight lamp. Labor and fatigue were nothing. The fear of not succeeding never passed before me, for I was determined to become, as far as possible, worthy of thee. And oh, after all, at the consummation of my severest labor, at my first fond gleam of hope, am I thus to lose the dearest Frances! Your mind has been disturbed by some unpleasant dream. Shake off this lethargy; oh God, it cannot be that 'one so young and beautiful should pass away from earth!'"

The youth looked upon the ground with the intensity of crushed hopes; he felt for the first time, what he had not allowed himself the thought of before, that she was indeed wasting away. His soul was all bitterness; he could not speak, but taking her arm, silently they returned to her mother's house, where bidding her an affectionate "good night," he wended his way home, with far different feelings from those with which he went out but a few hours before. He thought on all that had passed as a dream. He could not allow himself to believe that his Frances was really in a consumption; and, vibrating between fear and hope, he entered his father's dwelling.

* * * * * * * * *

The rich and gilded summer had given way to the soberer hues of autumn. October's chilly blasts swept fitfully over the hill, and rustled the leaves of the forest now beginning to fall. The leaves of the maple were beginning their change to the ruddy hue; and all nature seemed to be waiting in solemn silence, for the doom that was to whiten her fair bosom. The animated world seemed to partake of the general gloom.

In the village of B——, scarce a person was to be seen outside the doors.—In a retired, but neat mansion, in the farthest part of the village, was a fair and lovely maiden on a couch, apparently about to die. You need not be informed that she was Frances P——. The presentiments which she manifested to Edward, for a short time after their interview, seemed to be wearing away; and she thought with her friends, that there might still be hope. But alas! the destroyer Death had fixed his grasp upon her, and was not to be defeated. At the commencement of autumn she grew sensibly worse, and continued declining until that day. She had long given up hope, and now felt that she must soon die. Her cousin Gertrude stood beside her, ready to administer to her wants, and to occasionally smooth her pillow. She had not spoken for a long time. She at length beckoned for Gertrude to come near her.

"Dear Gertrude," said she, in a low voice; "bring me that box which you will find carefully wrapped up in my drawer."

She hastened and brought it, and opening it she found there a miniature of Edward taken a few months before. Frances took the portrait, and gazing upon it a long time with an earnest and sad countenance, she put it aside, and turned her pale face to weep.

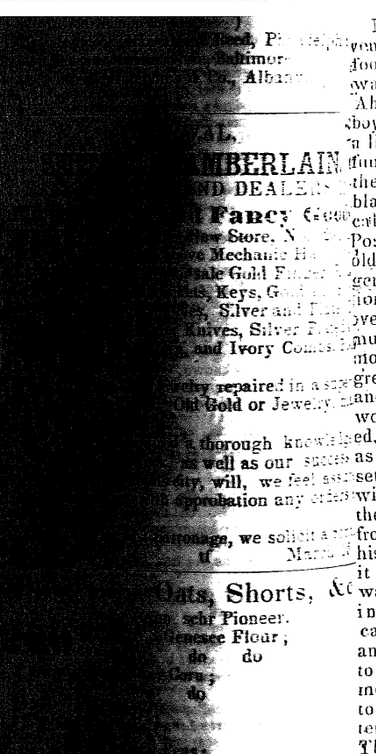
"These," said she, "are the last tears I shall ever shed, and they are for love of Edward. Who has had more to give up than I have? I cannot bear to die, and leave him whom I have so deeply loved. Yet 'Oh Lord, thy will be done.' Thou knowest what is best for me, and I will be resigned. Dearest Gertrude, raise my head a little, that I may see the green fields, and bright sun, once more before I die."

The shutter was drawn, and she was gently raised so that she could gaze upon the scene without. Near the window, was a large elm, where she had often "in the merry days of childhood" sported, with her village mates, and every nook and walk that met her sight, were familiar. She gazed some time with intense interest, as the thoughts of "bye-gone days" forced themselves upon her mind, and then said—

"Gertrude, I cannot seem to realize that I am to leave these beautiful scenes so soon,—never more to walk these verdant fields, or to spend the twilight hour with you on the seat under the old elm. I seem to be in an indefinable dream. I feel that there is a change going on within me, and it must be that the hand of death is at work there."

At this moment, Edward, who had received notice of her decline, but in time to arrive as he did, entered the room with a quick, but noiseless step. All eyes were turned upon him; and not a cheek but was wet, for the change that had come over him was great. His cheek was haggard and pale; his step faltering; and his eye had lost all that fire, which characterized it. He walked up to the couch on which she was lying, and collecting all his energies, asked her situation. The maiden stretched forth her slender hand to meet his, and said—

"Edward, I feel that the presentiments which I had were full of truth. At times, they have worn away, but they were the flattering moments of disease, and I now feel that I am in reality dying. I feel the disappointment it must be to you, in disconcerting your plans for the future.—I had looked forward with most joyful anticipations of the morrow, but they are all soon to be scattered by death. Yet Edward, I feel prepared for the change. The parting will be but short, and we shall meet again in Heaven. Farewell, Edward."



She again attempted to speak, but her voice failed her. Her head dropped silently back on the pillow. She opened her eyes but for a moment—they met those of Edward. Oh you who doubt the truth of woman's love, could you but have seen that look, your heart must have been harder than adamant, to have longer distrusted it. She again closed her eyes—her breath grew fainter and fainter, her extremities were chilled, and as her pure sprtit winged its flight, the change of her countenance was scarcely perceptible.

The same sweet smile seemed playing upon her guileless lips, her face could scarce be paler than it was before, and she seemed like one in a pleasant dream. Such is woman's love.

* * *

Bowd. Coll

ANECDOTE OF GEN. HAMILTON,—During the lifetime of this distinguished Statesman, and while on a journey to Albany, he chanced to put up for the night, at a tavern in one of the small villages on the Hudson river, where a Mountebank had advertised a display of his ingenuity at slight of hand, slack wire, &c. on that evening. Induced by motives of curiosity, and a desire to wile away the tedium of a winter's evening, the General took a

RAILROAD ARRANGEMENT.
1845, Trains leave
7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P.M.
7 1-4 A.M.: 2 1-2
Great Falls, 7 1-4
Newburyport, 7 1-4 A.M.
7 1-4, 9, A.M., 12
3 1-2, 5 1-2, 7 1-2
3 1-4 P.M.
Newburyport
3 P.M.
P.M.
Boston
1-4 A.M.
10 3-4* A.M.
1-2, 10 1-4
the East.
HEAD BRANCH.
head for Salem, at 7
P.M. blehead, at 8.
1-4 P.M.
will leave Boston
every day.
No. 47 Merchants and the several
JOHN KINSMAN
Master of Trans
Agreement of the
AND SALEM
COACHES
Danvers and
hourly. Coaches connection with the
and, leave Danvers
Leave Salem at Mechanic
Gold
Keys,
Silver
Knives, Silver and Ivory repaired in a
Old Gold or Jewelry thorough knowl
as well as our will, we feel approbation any patronage, we solicit a Marble
Oats, Shorts, &c
schr Pioneer.
Genesee Flour,
do do
Corn,
do
do do; (Northern
DANIEL RICHARDS
stand on the 1845.
LUMBER, WHARF.
having taken the wharf
the Bridge, in South to inform his friends wish to keep for sale as CLAPBOARDS, SHINGLES
&c., of as good quality as dry Boards and are respectfully
at the Eastward
and filling orders of
for the last fifteen himself that his knowledge trade generally, will who may favor him
part of the time,
attention to the arrangements with during business hours,
favor him with a call.
H. B. WARD.
SCARFS, CRAVATS,
ITALIAN CRAVATS.
of the above just
EDWARDS'S
14 Front street.

CALENDAR OF COURTS

TO BE HELD IN THE COUNTY OF ESSEX IN THE YEAR 1845.

June	3	"	Ipswich.
"	10	"	Newburyport.
"	16—Common Pleas,—Ipswich.
July	1—Probate,—Salem.
"	2	"	Lynn.
"	8—County Commissioners,—Salem.
"	15—Probate,—Andover, S. P.
August	5	"	Ipswich.
"	19	"	Salem.
Sept.	2	"	Ipswich.
"	9	"	Newburyport.
"	15—Common Pleas,—Newburyport.
Oct.	7—Probate,—Salem.
"	8	"	Marblehead.
"	14—County Commissioners.—Newburyport.
"	21—Probate,—Haverhill.
Nov.	4—Supreme Judicial,—Salem.
"	4—Probate,—Ipswich.
"	11	"	Gloucester.
"	18	"	Salem.
Dec.	2	"	Ipswich.
"	9	"	Newburyport.
"	15—Common Pleas, Ipswich.
"	23—County Commissioners,—at such place as ordered at the preceding term.

STEAM PLANING MILL.—The Mayor and Aldermen of Salem after a hearing of the petitioners and remonstrants, have unanimously rejected the petition of Mr. Buffum for permission to erect a steam planing mill on the site of the one destroyed by fire in December

DANVERS COURIER.

SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 7, 1845.

TITLES.

In olden times titles were much more valued and more liberally bestowed than at the present day. He who had arrived at the dignity of Squire, was the envy of the mature citizens, as well as the terror of the young. Military titles were adhered to with great pertinacity, whatever might be the rank of the possessor. The Lieutenant, Ensign, Sergeant, or Corporal of the militia, was as well known by his title as the General or Governor.—These titles always remained long after the distinguished possessors had resigned the honors and duties of their stations. and in many cases, such designations have been thought of sufficient importance by surviving friends, to be inscribed on the gravestones of the departed.

Our town books exhibit repeated instances of military titles of low rank being given to designate the honored individual, and it is not many years since, that the records of the General Court and the presiding Officers of each house, preserved the military and civil titles of the members.—We think it was Mr. Speaker Bigelow who first discontinued the practise, and since that time the doughty General and the country 'Squire have been reduced to plain Mr., or the "honorable gentleman," or the "gentleman last up."

It is somewhat singular that although civil titles are known under the general and state governments, such as Honorable, His Honor, His Excellency &c, the President and Vice President of the United States have no titles. At the time of the adoption of the Federal Constitution the title of "His Highness" was proposed to be applied to the President and advocated with some zeal, but the proposition was finally rejected.

CHURCH DEBTS. The Christian Register of May 24th, quotes with approbation, some extracts from a Sermon delivered in Philadelphia by Rev. Wm. Ramsey a Presbyterian Clergyman on the evils of Church Debts; and says—"No evil is greater to a religious society than a Church debt.

It ought never to be incurred—But if incurred, it ought not to be allowed to bear a Society down with its oppressive burden, a moment after it is possible to remove it." Upon this the Boston Courier remarks—"We dissent from this opinion. A Church fund is infinitely worse than a church debt—inasmuch as it is the cause of most of the quarrels which divide religious societies."—

Now we should regard neither of the above as evils, only when, in the one case it is of sufficient magnitude to be burdensome, and in the other to be the object of cupidity. It is pitiable to see a society struggling for existence under a hopeless load of debt, but it is still more pitiable to witness the wranglings caused by the well intended but indiscreet generosity of some individual who may have bequeathed a large large fiund to perpetuate opinions which the world has outgrown, and which would have perhaps been forgotten had no he and such as he, left unworthy inducements to keep them in remembrance.

IPSWICH.

In passing a few hours, recently, in this shire town, we were pleased in observing some improvements which were being made in the vicinity of the "Agawam." We can see no reason why a town so pleasantly and conveniently situated, may not possess more of that business activity and enterprize which characterize many other towns less favorably located. The new buildings belonging to the county, are now an ornament to the place and highly creditable to the county.

We were gratified in learning that the "Ipswich Female Seminary" was now open and had been in successful operation nearly a year under the charge of the Rev. Mr. Cole and lady. Those who are acquainted with the school speak in the highest terms of its management, and, from a slight personal acquaintance with the principal we should infer that he was a gentleman whose talents, added to a pleasant and agreeable manner, admirably fitted him for the situation he occupies. We would particularly commend this school to the attention of those who may wish to send their daughters from home, and hope it may regain the popularity and success formerly enjoyed under the superintendence of Miss Grant.

NOVEL BRIDGE. Robert Stevenson, the celebrated English Engineer proposes to erect a Rail Road Bridge 900 feet long over an arm of the sea. It is to be 100 feet from the water and is to consist of two wrought iron tubes or tunnels. These tubes are to be sustained in the centre, by an immense pier of stone work to be erected on a rock in the water half way from each shore.

☞Our readers will be interested in the communication on the first page, on "Tan and its uses," and many will remember the time when it was a great object with tanners to get rid of this article from their tanyards. We hope to hear again from the writer of this communication.

The Largest Letter in the World. The Emperor of the Celestial dominions has written a letter, in the Chinese and Manchou languages, to the President of the United States, which is 6 feet long by 3 feet wide!

The Letter, arrived at New York in Navigator, and was forwarded to Washinton, says the Journal of Commerce.

MRS. CAUDLE. DOUGLAS JERROLD is now said to be the writer of Mrs Caudle's famed 'Curtain Lectures' in Punch.

BURIED TREASURE.—We have been informed of a singular case of a "Removal of the Deposites" which happened in the neighboring town of Beverly. An aged lady of that place was desirous of possessing a lot of land which had been contracted for by two of her grandchildren but who readily gave it up as it joined the old lady's farm. As the time approached for payment she was reminded that if she wished to secure the purchase the money must be forthcoming. She requested her grandsons to take her to her farm-house which they did. She then called for a crowbar and pointing to the side of the old chimney she directed them to remove the bricks. The young men set themselves diligently to work and on digging away the bricks and mortar found a hoard containing eleven hundred dollars in hard money!—The old lady then declared that she placed the money there and plastered it up with her own hands at the time of the Revolutionary war!—During all this period of 61 years she retained the secret in her own breast, proving beyond all cavil that some women can keep a secret, and a long time too.

It appears from this transaction that her object in hiding the money was more for security than income, as the simple interest on the sum buried would have amounted to $4026, or, if she had let it accumulate at compound interest she would now have had the pretty little sum of over $38, 000 instead of $1100.

PRICES OF LEATHER IN ENGLAND.

In a former article on English Leather we gave the general average prices of sole Leather in that country. We give below from a late English paper received by the last steamer, the prices, a month since, of several different kinds. We have reduced the English currency to our standard for the convenience of the reader.

LEATHER MARKET.

Tanned English Hides	21	to 28	cts
English Butts *	28	" 49	"
Foreign Ditto	21	" 28	"
Dressing Hides *	21	" 27	"
Spanish Horse Hides	22	" 38	"
Small Green Slaughter Skins	27	" 32	"
Large Do	20	" 26	"
Light Calf Skins	25	" 40	"
Middling Do	40	" 46	"
Heavy Do	35	" 50	"

*Butts are the firm, solid parts of the hide divested of the neck and flanks, which are tanned and finished for the other purposes.

*Upper Leather in the rough.

☞A proclamation has been issued by President Jones recommanding the citizens of Texas to choose deputies to attend a convention to be holden on the 4th of July, for the purpose of considering the proposition for the annexation of Texas to the United States.

FIRES

A disastrous fire occurred in Quebec on Wednesday May 28th, in which a large portion of the city was reduced to ashes. A letter from Quebec says that a population of about ten thousand souls were deprived of house and home Several lives were lost. The loss has been estimated at $3,000,000.

Several destructive fires also occurred in New York on Saturday last. Many of the buildings about 400 of whom have been made houseless, and have lost all their goods.

We learn from the Portland Advertiser that a fire broke out on Tuesday last in a barn in the rear of some large wooden buildings, which raged with much fierceness, destroying several dwellings, and injuring several other buildings. Loss estimated at $5000. It is supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

☞The Steam plaining Mill of Mr. Samuel D. Tilton, Salem, took fire on Thursday last and but for the active exertions of a few individuals who speedily collected, would have been destroyed the workman being at dinner at the time. It was extinguished without doing any serious damage. It is supposed to have caught by a spark from the locomotive, the track being only 200 feet from the mill.

A new daily penny paper called "The Sun," published by a company of practical printers, has been commenced in Boston.

Census of Lynn, in May, 1845.—The census of children has been taken by order of the school committee, which gives the number between four and sixteen, to be 2,913, and the entire population is found to be 10,591. Essex County Whig.

We learn by the Records of our Town Clerk that the number of children returned to him, between four and sixteen years of age is 1678.

The proportion of children to the whole population would probably be the same here as in Lynn. If so, by a sum in Rule of Three we can ascertain pretty nearly the population of Danvers. By this Golden Rule of arithmetic then, we make our present population more than 6100 souls. Will some of the pupils in our schools inform us how much more?

☞The June term of the Court of Common Pleas will be held at Ipswich on Monday June 16th. The Jurors drawn from this town, are Willam H. Little and William Burding.

☞The Boston Post says—"Our friend N. P. WILLIS, Esq., sailed from here in the Britannia steamer, for Liverpool, on Sunday last, to take his only child, a daughter three years of age, to her relatives in England, in obedience to the dying request of the late Mrs. Willis. He will remain abroad a few months, corresponding with the Mirror, and then return to his editorial chair. These particulars we have from himself. We wish him a safe voyage, and hope soon to see him again upon his native shores."

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

By the following table will be seen the amount appropriated by the town for the support of schools in the various districts: also the amount of the Massachusetts School Fund which Districts Nos. 4. 7. 9. and 10, receive.

	Appropriated by the town.	Mass. Fund.	Total
School District, No 1,	$810 00		810 00
" " " 2,	600 00		600 00
" " " 3,	156 00	30 00	186 00
" " " 4,	123 00	50 00	173 00
" " " 5,	300 00		300 00
" " " 6,	585 00		585 00
" " " 7,	171 00	50 00	221 00
" " " 8,	297 00		297 00
" " " 9,	96 00	50 00	146 00
" " " 10,	216 00	29 91	245 91
" " " 11,	795 00		795 00
" " " 12,	414 00		414 00
" " " 13,	471 00		471 00
	5034 00	209 91	5243 91

The following is a copy of the vote lately passed by the School Committee relative to corporal punishments.

ORDERED, That the several teachers shall in all cases where they deem it proper to inflict corporal punishment, keep a record of the name of the individual punished, and the offence for which the punishment was inflicted, and make a specific return of such record to the committee, at the close of the term.

I. O. OF R.—HOWARD TENT.

The new hall in Lunt's Building, has recently been fitted in a very neat and appropriate manner, by the Recabites of this place as a Tent. Their first public meeting was held on Wednesday Evening, and was well attended. A large delegation from the Tent at Marblehead was present. The meeting was addressed by Dr. J. A. ROBINSON, and Mr. G. W. MULLET, of Salem. We understand the Society is in a prosperous condition, and we trust that the efforts of its members to promote the great cause of Temperance will be successful.

We beg leave to call attention to the sale of Linen Goods &c., advertised by Mr Joplin, in another column. The stock is really worthy the attention of all desirous of purchasing, as it is seldom that an opportunity offers to purchase at auction prices so good an assortment.

DANVERS CARPET FACTORY—This establishment is located on Pine St. in the little villiage called Tapleyville and is apparently in a very flourishing condition as 28 looms are in active operation (four of them for Venetian stair carpeting) and they turn out more than 5000 yds of carpeting a month. The goods made here have a good reputation for beauty and durability. The machinery for preparing the yarn is driven by steam power. There are more than fifty hands employed at this establishment.

FOR THE COURIER.

A SAD PICTURE. There is a School District in this Commonwealth containing 270 children of legal age to attend school and it receives from the town and other sources $1050 for their education. It pays about $700 to teachers who instruct about 170 of the children in two crowded school rooms, one of which is hired and the other owned by the District. Its inhabitants pay over $300 per year in support of an excellent private school for girls while the District has $350 lying idle in the town treasury, with which it might establish a Free School for girls and employ the same teachers or others as good, if room was provided. The district pays and has paid for about 16 years the interest of $500 annually in rent for one of their School rooms when a larger and better one could be built for $250. In five annual School Reports has the District been censured for its inadequate accommodations for this School, and still nothing is done to wipe off the disgrace.—What makes this neglect the more inexcusable is, the fact that this School is supported by a fund bestowed on the District many years since by a man of large wealth, but a larger heart, who having been deprived of the advantages of education himself, wished to confer this blessing on the children of others.

"An Operative."—Last evening, a female aged about 45, came into our office to purchase a paper. She informed us that she had been an operative in the Lowell mills nineteen years, and that her health had been good all the time. She said "I am better than I was when I first began to work in the mill." She had, during the time, saved about $2000, which she had safely invested in the purchase of a farm; and besides, she had given her parents, who were poor, $1150. She had been married and had one son, who was now absent.—Her name was Mrs Clark. She had worked several years in the Boott Mills, and is now about to commence work in the Massachusetts. Her industry, economy, and contentment deserve the highest praise."

We cut the above paragraph from the Lowell Courier of Tuesday; and it may be well enough for us to append to it two facts which came to our knowledge yesterday. The first is that one of the new houses now going up near the centre of this town is owned by two young women, who work in one of our mills, and the other, that on the subscription paper for a new mill, circulating yesterday forenoon, we saw the names of several manufacturing operatives, prudent, industrious, and calculating men, put down for one or two shares, of $500 each.—Newburyport Herald.

Strange Affair at Lynn. As some men were blasting a rock at Swampscot, on Wednesday, Mr Joseph R. Millett went up to it, and told them he was going to touch it off with his cigar. They tried to persuade him not to do it; but finding him determined, they ran. He immediately set fire to the powder. and as instantly his head was blown to pieces, and when the men returned, he was dead. Mr Millett had a wife and six children at Swampscot, and had just built him a new store.

Correspondence of the Courier.

Lexington, Mi., May 3, '45

This part of the State has been settled but about twelve or fifteen years, and is yet much of it a forest. The plantations are very large, and the people therefore live very much scattered. The surface of the country here, is hilly and intersected by deep ravines which afford beds for many small streams, some of which flow only in the winter and wet seasons. The soil is very poor on the hills generally; sometimes being less than an inch in depth. It is composed of fine loam, and so destitute of stones that you would oftentimes find it difficult to get one the size of your fist on a whole plantation. The land is very liable "to wash" since the soil is remarkably light and friable, and the rains are so violent that the water seems to "pour down in torrents." The bottom lands and the swamps are fertile, but nowhere is the soil so rich as the accounts so often given would lead one to suppose. The trees are less dense and smaller than I had been led to anticipate. Nowhere except on the bottoms and in the swamps are there any of those large trees about which we often read. The tulip tree, or poplar as it is called here, sometimes is found in the bottoms six or eight feet in diameter. The cypress trees in the large swamps are often twelve feet or more in diameter. The vines here are enormous in size and almost infinite in the number of kinds. While the upland forest looks very much like that of New England, (the trees being such, for the most part, as are found there,) the lowlands, from the multiplicity of vines, present a very different appearance. You often see these vines stretched from the tops of the tallest trees, looking like immense cables hanging from the limbs. Then you see others winding round their huge trunks and encircling them with lines of green, and then again so numerous as to cover their bodies with verdure. The cane on the edges of the streams and in the low grounds where the cattle have not destroyed it, presents to a Yankee a remarkable appearance. They here allow the cattle to wander at will, and in consequence it is not often that the cane is found in its natural state. Where it has been untouched, the trunks stand so closely together that a cat would find much difficulty often in passing through. It reaches to the height of twenty feet or more within three or four years after coming up, and then remains nearly stationary for a number of years, after which it bears seed and dies. Although the country has been recently settled, it is not often you can meet with any place that looks as it did when the Indians left. The long prairie grass has been destroyed with the many beautiful flowers which are always found in its company, and the undergrowth has been "putting up" rapidly for a number of years. Some of the first settlers have told me that when they came, there was no undergrowth at all, and the prairie grass was most luxuriant. The multitudes of hogs and stock of every kind, with the discontinuance of the annual fires, have wrought the change.

As might be supposed, the "inhabitants of the forest" have not entirely forsaken their old haunts. Squirrels, hares, "possums," &c. are still named legion. Deer, wild turkies, ducks, &c., are abundant, but not so easy to take. So strong is the passion here for fox-hunting, that this kind of game is getting to be scarce, comparatively. Partridges are so abundant that with a net in the Winter and early in the Spring, dozens can be caught at once. Wild cats are by no means uncommon, while bears, wolves and panthers are sometimes found prowling about. Three wild cats were killed last Fall only a short distance from the house, and how many were killed in the neighborhood, I don't know. I shall write again soon giving a further account of western life.

Yours, &c,
C. H. C.

SHAVINGS.

☞Any kind of brush, such as pine or spruce somewhat compact, if laid upon rocks while being blowed to pieces, by powder, will completely prevent fragments from flying, so that you may blast rocks in the vicinity of buildings, or even under buildings, with perfect safety.

☞Dr. COLLYER, the enthusiastic abvocate of Phreno-mesmerism, was lately married to the grand-daughter of the renowned Flora Macdonald, who saved the life of Prince Charles Stuart, after the battle of Culloden, in 1729.

The Supreme Court of New York closed its May term on Friday, and one of its decisions has created a prodigious excitement. It is, that the general banking law of 1838 was unconstitutional because not passed by two-thirds!

☞The Bangor Mercury states that an iron steamer is building at Wilmington, Del., intended for a passenger and freight boat between Bangor and Boston.

☞A correspondent of one of the Washington papers states that he arrived at Camden just in time to miss the race between Fashion and Peytona. One man who lost $40,000 on the race probably wishes that he had missed it also.

Effects of Frost.—The cold weather and frost of last week have nearly cut off the pea crop in New Jersey. The potatoes in the neighborhood of Germantown have also suffered greatly.

Military Force in Ireland. The official return of the military force in Ireland shows that on the 1st instant there were, including the Royal and Foot Artillery, 21,000 men; to which may be added 9000 police, and the recently embodied out-pensioners that can be called into active service, if required.

To Destroy Flies. A correspondent of the Cincinnati Chronicle gives the following:

It is perhaps not generally known that black pepper (not red) is a poison for many insects. The following simple mixture is the best destroyer of the common house fly:—Take equal portions of fine black pepper, fresh ground, and sugar, say enough of each to cover a ten cent piece; moisten and mix well with a spoonful of milk (a little cream is better;) keep that in your room and you will keep down your flies. One advantage over the other poisons is that the flies seek the air and never die in the house—the windows being open.

Further Monster Unearthed.—Dr. Albert C. Kock, the discoverer in 1840, of the bones of the great Missourium of Missouri, has recently unearthed in Washington county, Ala., a very nearly complete skeleton of a most colossal and terrible reptile, that may be justly termed the king of the kings of reptiles. Its length is one hundred and four feet—the solid portions of the vertebræ are from 14 to 16 inches in length, and from 8 to 12 inches in diameter, each averaging 70 pounds in weight. Its greatly elongated jaws are armed with no less than forty incisor or cutting teeth, four canine teeth or fangs, and eight molars or grinders.

☞Another den of gamblers has been broken up in New Orleans. An officer of the police managed to get in as one of the initiated, when he seized the keeper and all his pa[illegible] ernalia of vice.

☞A colored man in New York, who was about to convey a trunk from the steamer Rochester was knocked overboard and drowned on Monday evening, by a man named Edward Morris.

☞A man named John Liechlighter, of Hanover township, Indiana, was recently murdered as is supposed by a man named James McMillan.

Eastern Railroad. The annual meeting of the Stockholders of the Portland, Saco and Portsmouth Railroad Co., was held at Portsmouth on Monday last. The Directors of the last year were re-chosen, viz. D. A. Neal and Stephen A. Chase, of Salem; B. T. Reed, of Boston; Ichabod Goodwin of Portsmouth; John D. Lang, of North Berwick; Josiah Calef, of Saco; Charles E. Barrett, of Portland.

☞Counterfeit fives on the National Bank Providence, R. I., are in circulation. They are well executed, and calculated to deceive.

☞We notice that Mr John Gummere died last Saturday, at his residence in Burlington, N. J. He was an eminent teacher, and his treatise on surveying is considered as one of the best in use.

☞Green, the reformed gambler, has received the gift of a silver goblet from the Washingtonians of Rochester, N. Y.

Another Duel. The Philadelphia correspondent of the New York Tribune, under date of 2d inst, says:—"At an early hour this morning a duel was fought between two boys—in truth; they are nothing else—near Chester, which terminated in one of the parties being wounded in the back. Their names are Schott and Willing, brothers to the parties engaged in a similar disgraceful transaction some time since, arising out of a difficulty in which a lady was concerned. Schott is the wounded party, but not very seriously. The name of Schott's second I could not learn, but young Norris acted for Willing.

☞The troops at Fort McHenry under Maj. Ringgold, are busily engaged in mounting all the cannon of the fort, and placing it in a complete state of defence, which will be accomplished in the course of a few days,

A Brilliant Comet was seen from the Observatory at Cambridge, at a quarter past two o'clock, on Tuesday morning.

An Avalanche in South America. Twelve hundred Lives Lost!! The Jamaica (W. I.) papers, report on the authority of travellers by the Panama route from South America, that a fearful avalanche of snow from the great central Cordillera of the Andes, last summer, (our winter) had been destructive on both the Atlantic and Pacific sides of the mountains. The snow descended in fearful quantities from the Parmo de Ruiz, (which is situated on the western side of the plains of Marquita, and from 120 to 500 miles west of Bogota,) and destroyed a large and populous district, It is supposed that twelve hundred lives have been sacrificed by this fearful calamity.

New England has already invested thirty millions of dollars in railroads, most of which investments pay a dividend of 6 and 7 per cent; some of them as high as 10 and 15 per cent.—Railroad now in progress of construction will absorb twelve millions more.

A British midshipman and crew of ten men, put on board a captured slaver, on the coast of [illegible] and all hands murdered at the instigation of the captain and cook. The vessel was afterwards re-captured by a British sloop of war, and twelve of the murderers sent to England for trial.

The New Orleans Picayune says that a scheming Yankee has been selling "purely vegetable pills" through the southern country at a great rate. On analysis, they were found to be purely vegetable indeed, being nothing more than common garden peas, dipped in a solution of liquorice.

Emigration to the West.—The legislature of Michigan at its late session provided for the appointment of an agent or agents to act in eastern States, so as to induce emigrants westward to establish themselves in Michigan. The expectation appears to be that foreign emigrants will be secured in this manner. The Detroit Advertiser expresses a natural wish, that no settlements may be formed exclusively from the same nation, but that emigrants may be distributed among the population of American orgin.

BRIGHTON MARKET—MONDAY, June 2. 1845.
[From Boston Daily Advertiser and Patriot.]

At Market 425 Beef Cattle, 10 pairs Working Oxen, 800 Sheep, and 1675 Swine. 80 Beef Cattle and 500 Swine unsold.

PRICES OF CATTLE—Last week's prices were fullp sustained. A few beiter Cattle were at market, many of which remain unsold. We quote Extra $6; first quality 2 75 a $6; second quality 5 25 a 5 50 third buality 4 75 a $5.

WORKING OXEN—Sales at $65. 75, and 87.

SHEEP—Small lots sheared 1 50 to 2 62.

SWINE—Good lots to peddle 4 and 5; old Hogs 4 a 5 1-2c. At retail, from 4 1-2 16 6c.

MARRIAGES.

Mr. Samuel J. Ireson, of Lynn, to Miss Catharine Kimball, of Salem. Mr. John S. Jones to Miss Mary P. Field. Mr. Morrison Atwood to Miss Ann Fairfield.

In Byfield Mr Caston Bean, of Haverhill, to Miss Mary Frances, of B.

In Beverly, Mr. Henry Patch, of Wenham, to Miss Elizabeth Woodbury, of Beverly. Mr Tracy, Editor of the Boston Recorder, to Miss Sarah Prince. Mr Daniel Foster, jr., to Miss Louisa Dodge.

In Methuen, Mr William Nichols, one of the publishers of the Christian Watchman, to Miss Margaret Sprague daughter of the late Joseph Sprague, of Salem.

DEATHS.

In this town on Thursday, Albert Morton son of Mr Israel Perkins aged 2 years and 6 months.

Wm. Henry, son of Henry W. Burding, aged 9 1-2 months.

In Salem Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Henry and Mary Derby, aged 9 years. 5 months. Mrs. Hannah Atwill, wife of Mr. Josiah R. Atwill, aged 70 years.

In New Orleans, May 19, Capt. Hubbard Breed of Salem.

NOTICE.

The regular meetings of Monument Division, No. 5, SONS OF TEMPERANCE, held at Sanger's Hall, are changed from Wednesday to Monday evening, at 8 o'clock. Members of the order are respectfully invited to attend.

Danvers, April 12. MOSES MERRILL, R. S.

DANVERS DYE HOUSE.

THE subscriber would inform the citizens of Danvers that he has established himself at Danvers Plains, near Maple street, where he will attend to the dyeing and cleansing all kinds of

SILK AND WOOLEN GOODS.

His former experience in England, added to his knowledge of the drugs and dyes in use in this country, will enable him to produce colors, which for cheapness and durability cannot be excelled by any other establishment.

☞Goods left at Mrs. Gould's, Main street South Danvers, or at the Dye House, will meet with prompt attention.

WILLIAM ROWBOTHAM.

Danvers Plains, June 7, 1845. tf

THOMAS TRASK,

Near the Eagle, Main Street, Danvers,

KEEPS constantly on hand, a good assortment of

SADDLES AND HARNESSES,

of every kind and quality. Also—Fire Buckets, Solid Leather, Rivetted Double and Boot Top Travelling Trunks, Common Hair do., Valises and Carpet Bags, Chaise, Stage and Draught Collars, Military Equipments, etc.

ENGINE HOSE furnished at short notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

CHURCH CUSHIONS, of all kinds and quality, made at the shortest notice.

T. T. has on hand as good an assortment of Harnesses as can be found at any o her establishment.

A good article of Neats Foot Oil, constantly on hand.

Danvers, June 7, 1845. 1y

French Goods from New York.

THE subscribers have opened this day, an assortment of French Goods to which they iuvite the attention of the ladies.

3 boxes Real French Embroidery Inside Hdkfs;
3 " " " Collars, various styles.
3 " French Dentilla Laces, for Trimmings,
A variety of Thread Lace Insertions;
Real French Linen Cambric Hdkfs, hemmed stitch;
Embroidered Linen Cambric Hdkfs;
" Muslin for Dresses;
Boxes French Kid Gloves;
New styles Laces for Capes, some very rich.
The above Goods were selected on Wednesday in New York, and are of the very latest styles.

KEITH & MASON,
june 7 24 Washington street.

FOR SALE CHEAP.

One good second hand CHAISE,
" " " BUGGY WAGON.
" " " LIGHT WAGON.

By THOMAS TRASK, Main street:
June 7 tf

SCHOOL BOOKS in good substantial binding; all the varieties in use in our Schools, by the single or dozen, at the lowest price. A liberal discount made to country dealers and school committees.

DE ROHAN: or, the Court Conspirator—an Historical Romance, by M. Eugene Sue, author of the Mysteries of Paris, &c. For sale by W & S IVES.

Stearns Building, Salem.

THE COMMON SCHOOL BOOK-KEEPING.

Being a simple and practical system, by single entry: designed for the use of public schools, and adapted to the wants of Farmers, Mechanics, and Retail Merchants; containing various forms of Notes, Receipts, Orders and Bills, the Epes School, Salem, Mass. Just published and for sale by W. & S. B. IVES, june 7 Stearns's Building.

MAY QUEEN—PART 2d. Dempster's beautiful Song of the May Queen, part 2d

MUSIC—JUST PUBLISHED.—A Life in the West, by Russell; Variations Brillantes, by Henri Herz; The Spider and the Fly, by Russell; Oh weep not my Shelah, by Jeffreys; Overture to H Flanto Magico, by Mozart; Overture to Idomeuro, by Mozart; My Happy Home, a favorite Glee; Beautiful Harmony, a favorite Ballad by Clifton; Novelty Grand Waltz; Her heart is not there; also, number of new Waltzes, Marches, etc., at W. S. CLEVELAND & CO'S Book and Music Store, june 7 193 Essex street.

NEW BOOKS.

NO. 28 HARPER'S ILLUMINATED BIBLE. with the usual beautiful engravings, received and ready for subscribers.

A VALUABLE INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC BOOKS.—The Musician's Companion, 1st 2d and 3d parts, containing Marches, Quick Steps, &c.—over 300 pieces of Music. at $1. 00 each; Howe's Preceptor for the Accordion, Flute, Violin, &c—50 cts each; The Amateur's Song Book—25 cts. A fresh supply of these popular Music Books just received.

Vital Christianity: Essays and Discourses on the Religion of Man, and the religion of God, by Alexander Vinet, D D., Professor of Theology, in Lausanne, Switzerland—Translated, with an introduction by Robert Turnbull, Pastor of Harvard street Church, Boston. Just published.

LAWS OF 1845. Supplement to the Revised Statutes—being the General Laws of Mass., session 1845—prepared by Luther S. Chusing: Just issued, and for sale by W. S. CLEVELAND & Co.

june 5 193 Essex street.

GOLD PENS. A superior article just received and for sale cheap by G. W. & E. CRAFTS.

174 Essex St. Salem.

TOPOGRAPHICAL MAP OF PALESTINE by J. H. Colton. Compiled principally from the observations of Messrs Robinson and Smith. The religious Press and many of the secular papers have spoken in high terms of this map. For sale by G. W. & E. CRAFTS.

174 Essex St. Salem.

Periodical Depot!!

REMOVAL.

LUTHER CHANDLER, the Proprietor of the Depot for

PERIODICALS AND CHEAP PUBLICATIONS,

formerly kept at No. 3, (on the East side of Washington street, has removed to the store,

Corner of Washington and Norman Streets,

(Directly opposite the Old Stand,)

where he intends to keep a full supply of all the Periodicals and New Works, as well as the Daily and Weekly Newspapers, as soon as they appear from the press.

In removing from the old stand he confidently hopes to receive the continued patronage of those who have formerly received his publications and he pledges himself that he will use his best exertions to procure all New Works promptly and sell them at the lowest prices.

REFRESHMENTS,

such as are usually kept at Restaurateurs, and SODA AND MEAD, will be furnished at the new stand, by S. SAUNDERS.

REMEMBER—Corner of Washington and Norman Sts., near the Railroad Station, Salem.

may 24 3m

WANTED.

10 GOOD COATMAKERS wanted immediately, to whom steady employment and good wages will be given.

S. R. BOTT,

mch 15 No. 148 Essex Street, Salem.

TWEED COATS. Another lot of Tweed Coats, just received and selling cheaper than the last lot may 10 at EDWARDS', 14 Front street Salem.

W. D. JOPLIN,

Draper and Tailor.

NEARLY opposite the Monument, keeps for sale at the lowest prices,

Broadcloths, Cassimeres and Vestings and Trimmings.

Also— A good assortment of READY MADE CLOTHING.

PANTS from 1 to 4 dollars;
VESTS from 75 cents to 2 00.
Green Jackets, Overhauls, Thin Clothing, Hats, Suspenders, &c. may 3

LORRAINE'S PILLS.

All persons require Facts.

Remember in all cases that you are not deceived by things that appear to be facts.

REMEMBER also, that, Lorraine's Vegetable Pills have in their composition two of the most valuable medicines in the world, viz: Sarsaparilla and Tonkaes. These two articles need no praise, neither do the celebrated Lorraine's Pills, when they have once been taken.

Physicians, and people of every class are willing to come forward and announce, in the most public manner, that they have been cured of long standing complaints—after all other medicines had failed. In fact there can be no doubt but that Lorraine's vegetable Pills is the best medicine ever offered to the public.

See a few public statements of men of truth and virtue.

Lynn, Dec. 17th, 1843.

Sir; I have sold all the pills I last had of you, please send another lot immediately. The sale of Lorraine's vegetable Pills is rapidly on the increase—they are becoming very popular. I sell more and more every day. As a curative medicines and purifier of the blood, I think they stand unrivalled. One fact I have noticed, that no one that has used them fiuds any fault with them; they have wrought some very great cures. One lady, who has been confined to the house and bed, a great part of the time, for twenty years, is now cured and able to work most of her time, after having taken 3 boxes only of Lorraine's Pills! I might name many other cases where the cures have been as great, but have not time.

Yours respectfully,

J. E. F. MARSH.

Portland, Me., Nov. 7th, 1843

Sir: Please send us one gross of Lorraine's Pills, we have sold all we had last. They have given very good satisfaction, better than any other pills which we have in our market. I think in a short time they will take the place of others We have had no fault found with them whatever; but, on the contrary, they have been praised loudly. I think we could have quite a number of highly respectable certificates from our citizens.

Respectfully yours,

E. MASON.

Chelsea, Jan- 3d, 1844

Sir: I transmit to you an account of my case for publication, believing it to be my duty. I have been confined with the Rheumatism nearly the whole winter, have had some of the best physicians of Boston and could get nothing that would relieve me more than temporarily. I heard of the wonderful virtue of Lorraine's Pills, I had no faith whatever, but I took them, and it is a solemn fact that when I had taken but eight pills! my Rheumatism had entirely left me, and I have remained well ever since.

N. B. I never took more than one pill at a time and that on going to bed.

Yours respectfully,

Sir. I could fill the whole of the Sentinel with similar letters to the above, but believing the above extracts will serve for useful purposes for the present I omit more.

New England Office and General Depot, No 10 Brattle Square, Boston.

Unable to raise the Hands to the Head!

Sir—For three years, Scrofula had produced such effect upon my constitution, that I was unable to raise my hand; the bones were in different places destroyed by ulcertion, and I feared it might reach the brain or vital orgaas. My pains were violent—all medicines recommended did no good. At last, I took LORRAINE'S VEGETABLE PILLS, which gave immediate relief, and have entirely cured me.

Respecifully, your ob't serv't,

JAMES COLSON, Esq.

Bath, Maine, July 16th, 1844,

A severe pain, in bot'i sides cured!!

LOWELL, Mass.,
April 20th 1944.

Sir,—For the last few months I have been afflicted with a severe pain in both sides, at times so hard that I could scarcely get my breath. * * * * It is a pleasure to feel well,—but a much greater one to say that I was cured immediately upon taking one dose of Dr. LORRAINE'S PILLS. J. BROOKS.

A hacking cough constantly annoyed me!

BOSTON, Mass.,
June 1st; 1844

Sir,—In February last, I took a sudden cold, after which a hacking cough constantly annoyed me, and this, combined with my other maladies, rendered me truly miserable, as everybody told me that I was in a consumption. Since, I have taken LORRAINE'S PILLS, and now every body tells me that I am well;—I feel as well as ever I did. J. E. S. McKEY.

Amputation of an arm prevented!

UNIONVILLE, Me.,
January 30th, 1844.

Sir,—An erysipelas inflammation attacked my arm tumors formed in different places, my suffering increased, and in a few months I had ten running ulcers, or sores,—some above, and some below the elbow, and the discharge was so offensive that no one could bear to come near me. My physicians told me amputation was the only thing that could save my arm.

AGENTS

Danvers—Sylvester Proctor. New Mills. E. Stimson.
North Parish—J. M. Haley Plains.
Salem—Henry Whipple Bookseller.,
Beverly—Stephen Baker.
Marblehead—E. Arnold.
Topsfield—B. P. Adams.

Great Bargains

ARE NOW BEING HAD AT THE

Washington Street Clothing Store, Salem.

GARMENTS of all description may be obtained at prices which cannot fail to give entire satisfaction.

Great care has been taken in the getting up of every garment, all of which is warranted equal, if not superior to any Clothing in the city.

The subscriber continues to take measures as formerly, and all Garments bespoken, will be made according to the wishes of the customer, and will guarantee both the style and fit.

☞BOY WANTED, as an Apprentice.

S. CHAMBERLAIN, JR.

Salem, March, 15. tf

New Tailoring Establishment.

ELLIOT F. SMITH,

HAVING established himself in the TAILORING BUSINESS, a few doors above the Village Bank on Maple Street, would respectfully inform the citizens of North Danvers that he is ready to execute all orders in his line of business with fidelity and despatch.

He hopes by his punctuality and attention to the wishes of his customers, to merit and obtain a share of public patronage.

☞All Garments cut and made are warranted to suit.

may 17

Opening of Spring!

Magnificent, Chaste and Original Designs for Remodeling

"OAK HALL!"

FOR SPRING TRADE!

OPENING OF "OAK HALL" FOR THREE MONTHS!

Advice to Professional Men, Merchants, Clerks with moderate Salaries, Farmers, Mechanics, Seamen, Firemen and others, VISIT OAK HALL!

ARRIVAL OF SPRING GOODS!

To Wholesale Dealers.

THE OPENING

This Morning, for Three Months!

I would again most respectfully inform the citizens of Boston, and strangers visiting the city, (after a delay of six weeks, during which time I have not been idle,) I have completed my arrangements on the most

MAGNIFICENT SCALE,

greatly surpassing my former arrangements. The Hall is splendidly decorated with almost

MAGIC ELEGANCE!

The architecture being Gothic, has given the artist an opportunity to display his taste to advantage. The paintings which adorn the walls are so perfectly chaste and appropriate, that every one will be fully compensated the trouble of visiting it. The design and effect of the interior, especially when

ILLUMINATED IN THE EVENING,

Is unequalled in any store this side of the Atlantic. Much praise is due to the artist, for his share in beautifying this Establishment. I flatter myself that the good taste of my fellow citizens and townsmen will fully appreciate all I have done, as my Establishment was the FIRST and ONLY ONE that adopted the

"EXTREME LOW PRICE SYSTEM,"

Before "OAK HALL" was in existence, it was not a very uncommon thing for a gentleman to pay from $15 to $50 for a suit of clothes. For one half of this sum or less, a perfect and entire suit can be obtained at this Establishment, cut and made with that ease and grace, that distinguish my garments from others. From this

EMPORIUM OF FASHION

first originated the Gothic style of architecture in Boston, and Oak Painting, &c. now so much in fashion. To those who have not visited this great

PLACE OF RESORT,

on account of the name of the street, I would most respectfully say, that where my establishment is located was once the Court end of Boston, and at this time is visited and patronized by the most influential and respectable individuals. Man, not unlike the fields, and Trees, once covered with a beautiful suit of Green is now breaking from its Coat of Ice and Snow and, having its dusty suit of nature soon to be warmed in-

So with Man—wrapped up in his Overcoat, he now on the opening of Spring, finds his under suit rusty and shabby, and is not suitable to wear. The next thing is to find a good place to fit out at a

REASONABLE PRICE,

and to be sure and have a GOOD FITTING SUIT, that will set upon the form with ease, grace and gentility.

FIVE GOOD REASONS

Why you can purchase at OAK HALL less than at any other Establishment in the United States:

FIRST—You do not pay me for YOUR suit, and the INDIVIDUAL'S that did not pay previous to you, as MY business is Cash on delivery.

SECOND—If any Garment made to order is not pleasing in every particular, it is no inconvenience to take it back and make another, as Ready Made Garments are directly in my line.

THIRD—I purchase my Goods in large lots, extremely cheap, and give my customers the benefit, by selling them at the smallest advances,

Fourth—I go by the motto.

LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS

OR AS SOME SAY,

"NO PROFITS AT ALL."

That I'll leave with my customer to decide.

FIFTH—My facilities are such at this time doing a

LARGE BUSINESS,

that I can afford to sell at

VERY LOW PRICES!

BOYS' CLOTHING.

I have lately added to my already extensive manufactory of Boys' Clothing, rooms for the manufacture of Boys' Clothing, and shall keep a large supply of every variety and kind, always on hand.

TO WHOLESALE DEALERS.

You will find the greatest variety of every style of Fresh Manufactured Clothing, adapted for Spring, to your different Trades, and will be sold extremely low in large lots!

AT RETAIL.

One of the largest and, best selected Stock of Fresh Spring Goods ever in "OAK HALL," and will be sold at the following low prices.—

PANTALOONS.

2500 pair of Fancy Spring patterns of Satinet Pants, at	1 75 to 2 50
3000 pair Steel Mixt Pants,	1 62 to 3 00
2200 do Sheeps Grey Pants	1 75 to 3 00
2500 do Canada Grey do,	1 75 to 3 00
3000 do Black Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 50
5000 do Lavender Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 00
2200 do Super black do Pants, with fancy stripe,	4 00 to 5 00
1500 Super blue Broadcloth and Cassimere Pants	3 50 to 4 50

THIN COATS.

3500 Coats and Sacks, American Gingham,	75 to 1 00
5000 Coats and Sacks, Scotch Gingham,	1 25 to 1 75
4800 Coats and Sacks Scotch Gingham, satin figure,	1 50 to 1 75
2700 Coats and Sacks, Webster Check	75 to 1 25
3750 Coats and Sacks, London Plaids,	1 25 to 175
4000 Coats and Sacks, of Linen and othergoods,	1 00 to 1 75

THIN PANTS.

8000 pair thin Pants of every quality of Goods at low prices, say from 50 cents to $2 50 per pair.

VESTS.

300 light Vests, a very pretty affair for Spring,	50c to 1 00
4500 Dark Valencia,	75 to 1 50
5500 Fine Valencia, dark and light	1 50 to 2 50
2700 Satin Vests, figured and plain,	2 00 to 3 00

DRESS AND FROCK COATS.

5000 super Dress Coats, all colors, green, blue, black, olive, &c. from $4 to $15.

1750 super Frock Coats, all colors, Mulberry, browns. etc. from $6 to $16.

All the above cut in the latest style, and made up expressly for Spring Trade.

500 Business Coats, at low prices, say from $2 to $5.

2200 Tweed Coats, water proof, from $3,75 to $5.

FURNISHING DEPARTMENT.

Great Display of Furnishing Goods at the following low prices, viz:

150 dozen White Shirts—Linen Bosoms, Collars and Ribbands.		75c to 1 25 each
100 do	White Shirts, plain.	50c to 75c do
150 do	Fancy Shirts,	62 1-2 to 87 1-2
200 do	Twilled Shirts,	50 to 62 1-2 do
25 do	Rich Figured Satin Scarfs,	Low prices.
20 do	do do do do
50 do	do do do do
50 do	Spring Pattern Cravats,	12 1-2 to 75c
25 do	Rich Fig'd Satin do.	75c to 1 25
50 do	Stocks, of every description, such as Satin Bombazine, &c. and made in the latest Spring Style,
1845		37 1-2 to 1 50
10 do	Brussells Carpet Bags, and others,	1 00 to 2 75
75 do	Smoking Caps,	12 1-2 to 25c
200 do	Braces of every description,	12 1-2 to 50c
20 do	best Kid Gloves,	50c to 1 00
25 do	Thread do	25 to 50c
20 do	Silk do	50 to 75c
100 do	Linen Bosoms—all kinds,	25 to 75c
300 do	do Collars, latest pattern,	10 to 25c
250 do	Canes,	17c to 1 00
325 do	Umbrellas,	50c to 1 50
50 do	Glazed Silk Caps,	1 00 to 1 25
100 do	do do	25 to 37c
505 do	Silk Pocket Hdkfs	25 to 75c

An endless variety of Fancy Articles, such as Gold and Fancy Studs—Hair Brushes—Clothes do—Pocket Combs—Dressing do—Tooth Brshes—Cologne—Bosom Pins—Fancy Soaps—Silk Purses—Guard Chains—Pant Straps, &c. &c..

A LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO THE TRADE.

My furnishing Goods are purchased from first rate hands, at low prices, and will be sold at small advance to the trade at my

EXTENSIVE LONG ROOMS,

OAK HALL BUILDING,

GEORGE W. SIMMONS,

General Tailor, Draper and Outfitter,

32, 31, 36, and 38 Ann street

Opposite Merchant's Row—BOSTON.

apr 19 3m

Danvers Express and Baggage Waggon

LEAVES Danvers and Boston, daily (Sundays excepted.)

All orders left at McIntire's Hotel, or Poole & Jacobs' store Danvers, No. 14 Blackstone, and No. 1 Fulton streets, Boston, will be promptly attended to.

Goods handled with care.

S. F. TOWN.

April 19, 1845. 1 y

REMOVAL.

SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

Rich Jewelry and Fancy Goods,

HAVE removed to the New Store, No. 291 Essex street, (next above Mechanic Hall) where they will keep constantly for sale Gold Finger Rings, Breast Pins, Bracelets, Lockets, Keys, Gold and Silver Pencil Cases, Silver Thimbles, Silver and Plated Table and Tea Spoons, Butter Knives, Silver Plated and Brittania Ware, Shell, Horn, and Ivory Combs, Pocket Books, Purses, &c., &c.

N. B. All kinds of Jewelry repaired in a superior manner and warranted. Old Gold or Jewelry, made

S. & C. having acquired a thorough knowledge of the business in New York, as well as our success for the past five years in this city, will, we feel assured, enable us to execute with approbation any orders entrusted to our care.

☞Thankful for past patronage, we solicit a continuance of the same. tf March 15.

☞New Spring Hosiery.☜

WILL be opened this morning, at R. H. CHAMBERLAIN'S Hosiery and Glove Store,

No 236 Essex Street, Salem.

400 dozen of Spring and Summer Hosiery and Gloves, comprising every variety, style, size and quality, for Ladies, Gents, Misses and Children's wear.

Also, new styles of Mouseline de Laines, Cashmeres, Muslin, Ginghams, Printed Lawns, Balzorines, Prints, Patches; White and Col'd Cambrics; Plaid; Striped and Figured Cambrics; Plain, Plaid, Striped and Lace Muslins; Corded and Victoria Robes; Bleached, Unbleached and Colored Table Covers; Domestic Goods in great variety; Shirts; Bosoms; Collars; Dickeys; Cravats; Scarfs; Suspenders, Under Shirts and Drawers; Pocket Hdkfs, etc.

N. B. R. H. C. keeps constantly on hand a large supply of the American Improved Curtain Fixture,

a far superior article to any now in use, and not so liable to get out of order, a model of the same can be seen at the above store. Dealers in want of the article, can be supplied in any quantities, at the manufacturer's price.

Salem, May 10th, 1845. tf

FOR SALE.

A two story house and lot of land on Holten street. The House is convenient for two families and will be sold at a great bargain. Inquire of

HIRAM GRANT.

Danvers, April 19, 1845,

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law

OFFICE IN FELTON'S (late Osborne's) Building,

Danvers, March 29th. tf

NEW LIME.

CONSTANTLY on hand and for sale by

may 31 CARTER & BATCHELDER.

REMOVAL.

POOLE & STEDMAN,

MAKERS OF

TRUNKS, HARNESSES, &c. AND COACH AND GIG TRIMMERS,

Have removed to No. 12 Sewall Street,

SALEM.

☞Particular attention paid to repairing, in all its branches.

N. B. Valises, Ladies' Satchels, Carpet Bags, &c. constantly on hand and for sale cheap.

S. A. POOLE,
G. B. STEDMAN.

may 31

House and Land for Sale.

The subscriber offers for sale a large two story Dwelling House, on Holton street, convenient for two families, and in good repair. The said house now rents for $120 per annum, and will be sold low.

Terms of sale will be easy for the purchaser, as a large part of the amount may remain on mortgage. Apply to

may 24 tf WM. SUTTON.

JOSEPH SHED,

NOTARY PUBLIC AND ACTING MAGISTRATE,

Opposite the Monument.

All kinds of writing; conveyancing and Probate business attended to promptly.

☞A great variety of BLANKS constantly on hand, and for sale.

Danvers, May 21, 1845.

AUCTIONS.

THE LARGE AND VALUABLE

LINENS, THIN GOODS, SHAWLS, LADIES' DRESS GOODS,

And various other articles, now selling at the store

Opposite Mr. Field's Church, Central Street, will be closed THIS DAY. In the forenoon at private sale, and in the afternoon and evening at Auction. The public are invited to attend.

W. D. JOPLIN,
june 7 Auctioneer.

BY DOWLEY & WHALL,

[Store Nos 21 and 22 Pearl street, Boston.]

This day at 10 1-2 o'clock, at office.

SOLE LEATHER. 2000 Sides Sole Leather.

On WEDNESDAY, June 18 at 10 o'clock, at office,

BOOTS, SHOES AND BROGANS. 400 cases Boots, Shoes and Brogans.

On Tuesday, July 8th, at 10 o'clock, at office,

BOOTS, SHOES AND BROGANS. 700 cases Boots Shoes and Brogans.

On Wednesday, July 23d, at 10 o'clock, at office,

BOOTS, SHOES AND BROGANS. 2000 cases Boots Shoes and Brogans.

The above sales comprise a prime stock of goods, and every case on the catalogues will be sold without the least reserve.

At Private Sale,

Book Binders. 7 crates, (3000 pounds) Russet Linings, pieces suitable for Book Binders, of good color.
Split Leather—2000 lbs light Slaughter Splits.
Kidd—50 dozen Madras Kid, No. 2.
Linings—200 dozen Cochsneal and White Linings.
Wax Leather—300 sides prime Slaughter Wax.
African Kipp—1000 sides African Kip.
Grain Leather—500 sides oak and hemlock Grain.
Calf Skins—200 dozen light and heavy Calf Skins.
Linings, in crust—500 dozen White Linings in crust.
Baltimore Leather—200 sides light Slaughter Sole leather.
New York Sole Leather—1100 sides light and middle wt. Caroga Tannery.

THE

Massachusetts Mechanic Association

HAVING AWARDED TO

GOVE, LOCKE & CO.,

and no one else, a DIPLOMA for specimens of

The Best Ready Made Clothing

Exhibited by them at the Mechanics' Fair in September last, must satisfy the community that the location of an establisnment is of but little importance, and that the idea of being confined to a particular section of the city, in order to obtain a

GENTEEL GARMENT,

has been rendered obsolete, by the above named award, as without prejudice the award was made to those who deserved it Being convinced themselves, that their CUSTOM WORK has not been surpassed in any point of view, still they have been obliged to stem the current against the strongest prejudices, and have, by unremitted attention to the tastes and desires of their patrons, to a very considerable extent, overcome them, resulting in a successful trade, and encouraging them to prosecute the NEW ENGLAND BRANCH OF THEIR BUSINESS, with renewed vigor, and to devote a large share of their attention the present season, to the

Highest Grade of Custom Work!

Being now prepared with every facility adapted to the various classes in the community, they can furnish any style of Garment which their notion or fancy may dictate—aiming,

In point of Style and Fashion,

to be in advance of any other

CLOTHING ESTABLISHMENT!

and being at all times supplied with materials of every description, they are prepared to turn out at the shortest notice

AS GOOD AND AS GENTEEL A GARMENT

tire confidence in making the assertion, having Cutters constantly

ENGAGED ON CUSTOM WORK:

who are inferior to none in this region, enabling them to assure those who have favored them with their patronage, that no pains will be spared to deserve a continuance of their support—and to those who lack confidence in a Clothing Establishment, because it is situated on

COMMERCIAL STREET,

they would say that a specimen of their work can be seen in nearly everysection of the city, particularly on the backs of

THE MOST GENTEEL PEOPLE!

and to them they refer, in relation not only to the treatment which is universally tendered to them by all concerned in the

COMMERCIAL ARCADE!

but more especially in regard to the price as the Proprietors have by experience ascertained that they can furnish a

FIRST RATE GARMENT!

at a medium price, equal in every respect to those furnished up in town; at an exhorbitant one. Their Stock of Clothing, adapted to the

SPRING SALES!

is far superior to any previous year, and the patronage of the public is respectfully invited, whether in pursuit of a single garment or otherwise, as their stock embraces every article essential or requisite to the wardrobe of a gentleman, while its magnitude enables them to supply COUNTRY DEALERS in any quantity at the shortest notice, and on the best terms:

WHOSESALE DEALERS!

located any where from Maine to Georgia, or even in Texas, can find at this concern an assortment of Wearing Apparel adapted to their sales, and are invited before concluding their

SPRING PURCHASES!

—TO CALL—

At No. 60 Commercial street,

BOSTON,

Sign of the Monument,—and visit the proprietors of

COMMERCIAL ARCADE,

GOVE, LOCKE & COMPANY.

Boston, March 29. 1845. 3m

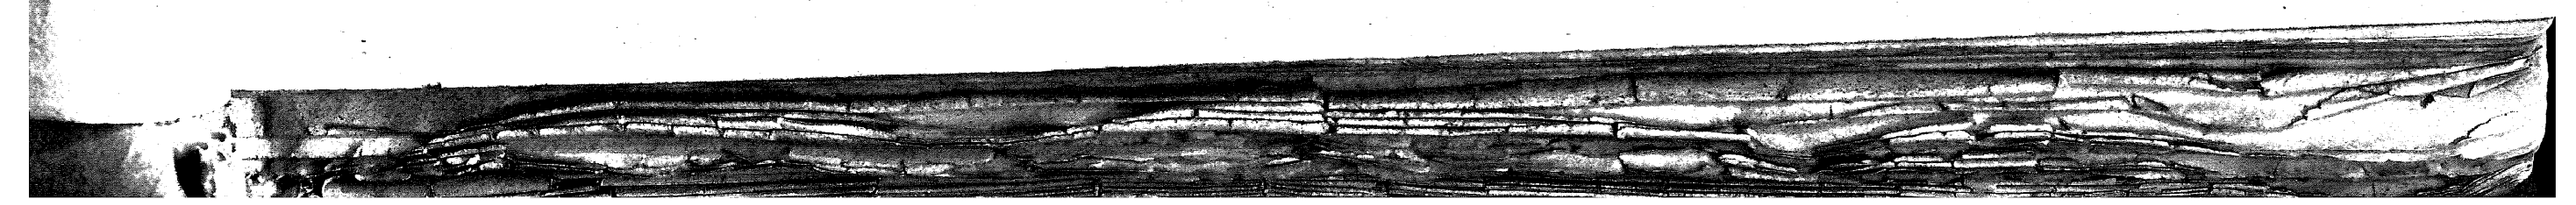
RETAIL

Boot and Shoe Store,

AT THE PLAINS.

THE subscriber keeps constantly on hand at his store, on Maple street, near the Village Bank; A full supply of

Men's Calf and Seal Boots, of all qualities;
Men's Calf, Goat and Kip Shoes, and pumps.
Boy's do do Downings.
THE LADIES will find a complete assortment of Fine and Common Kid Slippers;
Paris and Village Ties;
Gaiter Boots and Shoes;
Misses' and Children's shoes of all descriptions;



The above articles he is constantly receiving from the best manufacturers in the state, which will enable him to satisfy all who are in want of good articles in his line—at very reasonable prices.

JOSHUA SILVESTER.

North Danvers April 19, 1845.

KENDALL'S CHURNS.—A fresh supply of the various sizes, also, the different sizes of the SHAKER CHURNS, for sale at

apr 26 J. & H. HALE'S, 215 Essex st.

NEW ENGLAND

TRUSS MANUFACTORY.

THE subscriber continues to manufacture Trusses of every description, at his residence at the 11 stand, opposite 264, No. 305 Washington street, Boston, n rance in Temple Avenue, up stairs. All individuals can ee him alone, at any time, at the above place.

Having had twenty years' experience, he has afforded relief to three thousand persons, for the last five years. All may rest assured of relief who call and try a Truss of his manufacture. He is now confident he can give every individual relief who may call upon him.

The public are cautioned against the many quacks who promise what they cannot perform.

Having worn the different kinds of Trusses, more or less; that have been offered to the public for the last twenty years, from different patent manufactories, and now continues to wear those of his own manufacture, he is now able to decide, after examining the rapture, what sort of Truss that can be had elsewhere.

J. F. F. manufactures as many as twenty different kinds of Trusses, among which are all the different kinds similar to those that the late Mr. John Beath, of this city, formerly made, and all others advertised in Boston, together with the patent elastic spring Truss, with the spring pads.—Trusses without steel springs—these give relief in all cases of rupture, and a large proportion produce a perfect cure—they can be worn day and night; improved hinge and privot Truss; umbellical spring Trusses, made in four different ays; Trusses with ball and socket joints, Trusses, for Pro apsus Ani, by wearing which persons troubled with a es ent of the rectum can ride on horseback with perfect ase and safety.

Mr. Foster also makes Trusses for Protapus Uteri, which have answered in cases where possaries have failed. Suspensory Trusses, knee caps, and back board, are always kept on hand. As a matter of convenience and not of speculation, the undesignep will keep on hand the following kinds from other manufactories, which they can have, if his does not suit them; after a fair trial they can exchange for any of them;—Dr, Hull,s Read's spiral Truss; Rundel's do; Salmon's ball and socket; Sherman's patent; French do; Marsh s Improved Truss; Bateman s do, double and single. Stone s Truss; also, Trusses for children of all sizes.

Any kind of Trusses repaired at short notice, and made as good as when new.

Ladies wishing for any of these instruments, will be waited upon by Mrs. Foster, at the above place. Mrs. F. has been engaged in the above business for ten years.

He likewise informs indi viduals he will not make their complaints known to any one, except when he is permitted to refer to them—it being a misfortune, and young persons do not want their cases known.

The readers of this paper, are respectfully invited to call and examine the variety of Trusses now on hand.

May 31 JAMES FREDERICK FOSTER.

NOTICE is hereby given that the subscriber has been duly appointed executor of the last will and testament of

MARY UPTON,

late of Danvers, in the County of Essex, widow, deceased, and has taken upon himself that trust, by giving bonds as the law directs: all persons having demand upon the estate of said deceased are required to exhibit the same; and all persons indebted to said estate are called upon to make payment to JOSEPH SHED, Executor.

Danvers, May 24, 1845.

NOTICE is hereby given that the subscriber has been duly appointed administrator, with the will annexed of the estate of

DANIEL KING,

late of Salem, in the county of Essex, yeoman, deceased, and has taken upon himself that trust, by giving bonds as the law directs. All persons having demands upon the estate of said deceased, are required to exhibit the same; and all persons indebted to said estate, are called upon to make payment to AMOS KING, Jr.,

Danvers, May 24, 1845. Adm'r with the will annexed.

NEW LUMBER WHARF.

THE subscriber having taken the wharf, called the WEST wharf, near the Bridge, in South Salem, would take this opportunity to inform his friends and the public generally, that he intends to keep for sale an assortment of BOARDS, JOIST, CLAPBOARDS, SHINGLES, PICKETS, LATHS, &c. &c., of as good quality as can be found in the city.

He has now on hand 300,000 dry Boards and Plank for sale, and all wishing to purchase, are respectfully invited to call and examine for themselves.

He has also made arrangements at the Eastward for furnishing Dimension Frames, and filling orders of every description, at short notice.

Having been a practical builder for the last fifteen years, the subscriber flatters himself that his knowledge of the business, and the Lumber trade generally, will enable him to give satisfaction to those who may favor him with their patronage.

As he will be at the Eastward part of the time, he will be able to give his personal attention to the purchasing of Lumber, &c. He has made arrangements with Mr. A. F. CLARK to be on the wharf during business hours, who will wait upon those who may favor him with a call.

Salem, May 10, 1845. tf H. B. WARD.

HARRISON'S REMEDY

THIS is an ointment prepared by the undersigned, and has been so thoroughly tested in so many different cases that I never hesitate to warrant relief to those who will give it a fair trial, observing the directions around each box which give a plain treatise on the disease and full instructions as to diet mode of cure, &c. One application at night never fails to relieve the greatest pain and anguish. I am ready to refer to numerous individuals who have proved this Remedy to be the safest, surest, speediest and cheapest

CURE FOR THE PILES.

My agent in Exeter writes thus: "the Pile Remedy which you left me is all sold, please send me soon a further supply, as a number of persons in this town think very highly of it. N. GILMAN"

MORE TESTIMONY.

Salem, Aug. 6. Mr. Harrison: The box of ointment which I had from you has worked like a charm—I have used it only one night, and I am cured. I had used Hays' Liniment as I stated to you, with no benefit but rather was worse, it causing more inflammation. Yrs, J. W.

BLEEDING PILES CURED.

Mr Harrison—Having given your Peristaltic Lozenges and Pile Remedy a fair trial, I have the satisfaction to inform yon that they have operated wonderfully in my case. I had not been able for months to do any work at my trade, owing to exhaustion from bleeding, but I now feel myself cured. The severe pain which I had in my stomach is gone, and my strength is fast returning. I had used various remedies to no purpose, until I tried your medicine. I can also state that Capt. Benj. Ireson of this town has also experienced great benefit from your Remedy. I cheerfully recommend the medicine to all suffering with that distressing complaint—the Piles.

EDWARD H. LEWIS.

Lynn, Sept. 27, 1844.

For sale at 256 Essex street, by the Proprietor,

J. S. HARRISON JR.,

Agents—in Danvers, S. PROCTOR, Jr.; Marblehead—E. Arnold; Lynn—Ladd, and Holder; Beverly—Clarke; Newburyport—C. Whipple; Andover—Amos Abbott; Topsfield—Bixby and Merriam, Haverhill—Nichol; Boston—Ransom & Stevens, Tompkins, Southers and Fowle.

mch 15 6m

NECK STOCKS, SCARFS, CRAVATS, TIES, ITALIAN CRAVATS.

A GOOD assortment of the above just received

EDWARDS'S,

apr 5 14 Front street, Salem.

Witch Hazle, for Beds.

A FIRST rate article just received and for sale by CARTER & BATCHELDER.

April 19

LAMP BLACK.

1000 POUNDS of Lamp Black, warranted a prime article.

3000 Madras Goat Skins, in crust. Goat and Sheep Morocco. Kid, Linings, and Bindings.

For sale by W. & M. BLACK Jr.,

apr 12 New Mills, Danvers.

Spring Goods.

THE subscribers would inform the ladies of Danvers and vicinity that are now receiving the best assortment of Goods in their line, adapted to the Spring Trade, to which they invite particular attention. We give below a catalogue of Goods which we have recently received.

WHITE GOODS.

Plain Cambric and Cambric Muslins of every quality; Plain Book, Sacarilla and Tarlatan Muslins;
Plaid, striped and fig'd do do do; Muslins for Curtains in stripes and figures;
Plain, Plaid and Striped Swiss Muslins; Bleached Cottons, of the best manufactures.

LINEN GOODS.

Linen Sheetings; Pillow Case Linen; Linen Shirtings; qualities, sizes and prices; Damask Napkins; Doylies Superfine Linens for Bosoms and Collars; Towels; Linen Diaper; Huckaback and Crash.
Linen Damask, by the yard; Damask Table Covers, of all

All Linens sold at this store are guaranteed free from any mixture of Cotton.

LACE GOODS.

Thread Edgings, of every width and price; Plain and Fig'd Blond, Brussels, Bobbinett and Polka
Lisle, Gimpeur, Meline, Ashburton, Polka, Smyrna and Laces, for Caps, Capes, etc.
Dentilla Lacez, at prices varying from 1 cent to $2 per yd

MILLINERY GOODS.

50 different styles of Bonnet Ribbons, many of which have been purchased at Auction, and can be sold at decided bargains. Straw Bonnets; Flowers; Tabs; Ruches; Bonnet Crowns; Bonnet Wire; Foundation Muslin; Crown Linings; Crapes, etc.

EMBROIDERIES.

New style Emb'd Inside Hdkfs, with and without collars, at prices varying from 58 cents to $5 00. Embroidered Muslin Collars, from 37 1-2c to $2.
do Under Sleeves and Cuffs.

HOSIERY AND GLOVES.

Our assortment of Hosiery consists of nearly 300 dozen of every style of Bleached and Brown Cotton Hose; Black and Mode colored Cotton Hose;
English Lisle Thread Hose;
Raw Silk Hose and 1-2 Hose;
Blk and White Spun Silk do;
Misses Hosiery in great variety.

100 dozen Kid Gloves, in White, black, Lavender and Mode colors;
Lisle Thread Gloves for Ladies and Children;
Raw Silk do do do;
White and colored Silk for Gentlemen;
Picnic and Mohair Gloves and Mitts;

THREAD AND FANCY GOODS.

German and Zephy Worsteds; Needles; Pins; Bag and Mat Cords; Twists; Braids; and a thousand Yarns and Knitting Worsteds; Oiled Silks; things which we have not room to mention.
Steel Beads; Purse Ornaments; Purse Twists;

☞The Ladies are invited, when desirous of purchasing or examining any of the above named Goods, to call at

No. 24 Washington Street, Salem, near Railroad Depot.

KEITH & MASON.

may 10

New Furniture Store.

SALEM FURNITURE & FEATHER WARE-HOUSE.

205 1-2 ESSEX STREET. 205 1-2

(Two Doors East from the Market,)

JOSEPH WALLIS would respectfully inform his friends and the public that he has taken the rooms recently occupied by T. Needham, Esq., where he will keep constantly on hand and for sale an extensive and well selected assortment of which he will sell at the lowest cash prices, among which may be found,

CABINET FURNITURE,

Sofas, Sofa Beds; Windlass, Cot Trundle and common Bedsteads; Secretaries; Bureaus; Mahogany, Card, Work, Centre and Dining Tables;—Mahogany, Cane-seat and common Chairs; Mahogany, Cane-back and common Rocking Chairs;—Children's Toy, Rocking and Dining Chairs; Settees and Settee Cradles; Cribs; Grecian and common Wash Stands; Portable Sinks; Portable and Gentleman's Writing Desks, Toilet, Dining and common Pine Tables; Looking Glasses; Swing and Toilet Glasses. Fancy Boxes, a great variety;—Mattresses; and every article usually found in his line of business.

CLOCKS.

J. W. intends keeping on hand a large and well selected assortmeni of Wood and Brass Clocks from the best of manufacturers—all of which we can feel confident in warranting. Those about purchasing this article will do well to call.

FEATHERS.

Live Geese and common Feathers; a great variety.

N B. J. W. will still continue to Manufacture FURNITURE at the Old Stand, No 29 Lafayette, corner of Ward street, where he will keep on hand a good assortment of

Cabinet Furniture, Feathers, Looking Glasses and Clocks.

Salem, April 12, 1845.

EASY SHAVING AND HAIR CUTTING.

B. B. WILLIAMS respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has removed to the store formerly occupied by Lambert & Merrill, (under the Courier Office,) which he has fitted up in a neat manner, and is now prepared to wait upon those who believe that

"Man wants but little beard below,
Nor wants that little long."

Champooing, Hair Cutting and Shaving is [illegible] satisfaction of all who may favor him with their patronage.

Danvers, March 15, 1845. tf

S. R. BOTT,

DRAPER & TAILOR,

No. 148 Essex Street, Salem,

TAKES this method of informing the public of Danvers and vicinity that he has for sale one of the richest and BEST selected assortments of Broadcloths, Cassimeres & Vestings ever before offered in Salem. The Stock is of the latest Spring and Summer styles, and cannot be surpassed by any establishment in the city, which will be sold by the yard, or made into Garments, in a style that CANNOT be surpassed in this or any other city.

☞Strangers from the country would do well to call at this establishment, as they select their Goods with the most perfect confidence, that each article is as good in quality, and as low in price as can be obtained at any other store.

N. B. The report of Fashions received every month.

Salem, March 15, 1845.

PERIODICALS, PAPERS, &c.

LUTHER CHANDLER, GENERAL AGENT for the sale of all the principal Periodicals, Newspapers, &c., and will furnish them to all persons who may wish to subscribe; among which are

Graham's Magazine,	Harper's Pictorial Bible,
Ladies' National do,	Verplanck's Shakspeare,
Arthur's Lady's do,	Phil Saturday Courier,
Christian Family Mag.,	Neal's Gazette,
Gentlemen's Magazine,	New York Mirror,
Godey's Lady's Book,	Frost's Pictorial World,

The above and all the principal periodicals and papers will be furnished promptly.

☞BOOKS BOUND at the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

Orders may be left at J. SHED'S, opposite the Monument, South Danvers. 1y mch 29

DOESKINS AND CASSIMERES.

A NEW lot Stripes, Plaids and Clouded Doeskins. Black, Blue Black, and Lavender Cassimeres, just received at EDWARDS'S,

may 3 14 Front street.

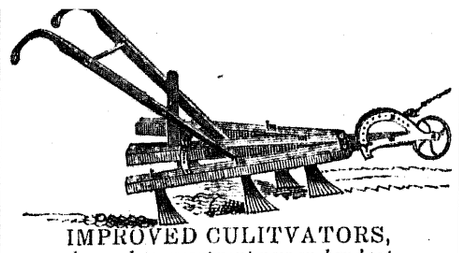
JUST received a full assortment of the celebrated EAGLE PLOUGH, improved. Also, Garden Rakes & Partridge's celebrated Manure Forks, Rakes, Hoes, and Castings for repairing the various parts of almost all kinds of Ploughs now in use.

J. & H. HALE, 215 Essex st. Salem.

May 3

REMOVAL.

BOWDOIN'S DAGUERROTYPE ROOMS removed from Mechanic Hall, to the adjoining building above, 298 Essex street, where he has rooms built expressly for the purpose of taking Miniatures in any weather.



Mr. B. tenders his sincere thanks to his friends and the public, for their liberal patronage the past year, and respectfully solicits the continuance of public favor. He has recently purchased a large Achromatic instrument for the purpose of taking GROUPS and LARGE PICTURES, which enable him to give pictures of all sizes, equal to those taken in New York or Boston. He has formed a connexion with an establishment in New York, from whence he receives all the new improvements, and materials connected with the Art, which will enable him to give better pictures for less prices than can be obtained in Boston.

Miniatures set in every variety of Lockets, Frames, Cases, &c.

☞Persons visiting Salem, and those about going to sea, can have a perfect likeness completed in a few minutes' time.

 Miniatures set in a neat Morocco Case for $1 50. Exhibition rooms open to visiters through the day.

Salem, March 15. tf

IMPROVED CULITVATORS,

A complete assortment now on hand, at

J. & H. HALE'S,

May 3. tf 215 Essex street Salem.

PAPER HANGINGS.

THE subscriber has made such an extensive arrangement with the principal manufacturers of Paper Hangings that he is enabled to sell them at the lowest prices, wholesale and retail. New patterns will be received every week as soon as they are out.

2800 rolls of new styles for the Spring trade have been received within a few days. Unusual inducements are thus offered to purchasers of House Paper of all descriptions, from the highest finished Satin to the most common Paper, (call and see for yourselves.) Country dealers supplied on the most reasonable terms. SAMUEL B. FOSTER,

30 Lawrence Place,

Near the Railroad Station. Be sure and enquire for Foster, 30 Lawrence Place, Salem. mch 15

ADAMS & RICHARDSON,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC

HARDWARE.

MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS FOR THE SALE OF

Cut Nails, White Lead, Sheet Lead and Lead Pipe,

NO. 207 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.

Joseph Adams,
C. M. Richardson,

march 15 tf

Flour, Corn, Oats, Shorts, &c.

Landing from schr Pioneer,

200 BARRELS Genesee Flour;
20 1-2 do do do
500 bushels Mealing Corn;
500 do Yellow do
500 do Shorts;
20 bbls Pea Beans;
4 bbls Marrowfat Peas;
100 bags Fine Salt;

—Also, in store—

100 bushels Killam Oats, for seed;
100 do Herds Grass Seed;
100 do Red Top do do;
500 do Clover do; (Northern;

For sale by DANIEL RICHARDS,

At the old and well known stand on the Plains.

North Danvers, April 19, 1845.

J. & H. HALE,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

HARD WARE GOODS AND CUTLERY,

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC

HOUSE KEEPING ARTICLES AND FANCY GOODS,

Agricultural Tools and Ploughs

PLOUGH CASTINGS, FRICTION ROLLERS AND CRANKS,

Iron and Copper Pumps and Lead Pipe,

WINDOW GLASS,

CAMPHENE,

CAMPHENE LAMPS, HANGING, SIDE AND ASTRAL—A GREAT VARIETY OF STYLES,

Cut Glass, Britannia, Brass, Bronze and Mantle Lamps,

CARPENTER'S TOOLS,

HOUSE TRIMMINGS,

Shoe Makers' Tools, Nails, Thread and Pegs,

BOILER DOORS AND OVEN MOUTHS,

Furnaces, Cast Iron Hollow Ware, Tubs, Pails, Mats, Cut Nails, Emery, Zinc, Lead, &c.

No. 215 Essex Street, SALEM, Mass.

march 15 tf

REMOVAL.

DR. J. A. ROBINSON,

SURGEON DENTIST,

SALEM,

WOULD respectfully give notice that he has removed from his old stand, opposite the City Hall, to No. 20 Washington street, recently occupied by A. E. Phillips, where he is ready to perform all operation, in Dentistry, in a most thorough and workmanlike manner.

His experience and success in inserting whole sets either by atmospheric pressure or springs, enables him to furnish them at rates which cannot fail to suit those in want of an article of superior quality.

His method of inserting Teeth, both singly and on plate, with or without Gums, has been found to be satisfactory and successful as combining beauty of finish and adaptation, with all the requisites of mastication and articulation.

Particular attention paid to filling Teeth so as to render them serviceable for many years, and also to the regulation of Children's Teeth.

N B. For sale as above, a first rate article of TOOTH POWDER. 6m mch 15

G. W & E. CRAFTS,

BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURERS AND STATIONERS,

174 ESSEX STREET, SALEM,

HAVE constantly on hand, and will manufacture to order, all kinds of Blank Books, from the best paper, ruled to any pattern, and bound in a neat and substantial manner.

FINE STATIONERY,

of almost ever description, adapted for counting rooms and schools, comprising in part, Letter and Writing Papers, ruled and plain; Drawing Papers; Note, Tissue and Wrapping Papers; Wafers; Sealing Wax; Seals and Steel Pens of every variety; Quills of every description; wafer Cups; sand boxes; writing fluids and inks; penknives; razors, &c.

PRINTING, RULING AND BINDING

Printing of shop bills, cards, bill heads, catalogues &c. executed in the neatest manner and on the best terms. Ruling, to any pattern desired, at short notice. Binding, of every description, executed with despatch.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

A constant supply of school books, of the best editions, together with every kind of School Stationery Also, all kinds of miscellaneous books furnished at the lowest rates. mch 15

BENJAMIN EDWARDS,

DRAPER & TAILOR,

No. 14 FRONT STREET, SALEM.

GARMENTS Cut and Made to order, and Fashionably, and warranted to give entire satisfaction

Constantly on hand, a good assortment of

BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES, AND VESTINGS.

Also—Neck Stocks, Italian Cravats, Scarfs, Shirt Bosoms, Collars, Feetings, Braces, Umbrellas, Hair and Clothes Brushes, Cologne Water, Wallets,

Grateful for the very liberal patronage which has heretofore been bestowed upon the establisment, he hopes by care and attention to business to merit a continuance.

Any order for Goods in the TAILORING LINE, attended to with fidelity and despatch.

All Garments Repaired and Cleansed CHEAP.

Any of the above articles if not on hand when called for, will be furnished at short notice.

mch 15 tf

CHARLES H. MANNING,

CABINET MAKER,

Near the Sign of the Lamb, Main Street,

DANVERS, MASS.

FURNITURE manufactured on the most reasonable terms. Also—CURRIER'S TABLES made and repaired cheap.

SHOE-MAKERS' PEGGING BENCHES made as above. oct 15

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

JONATHAN W. OSBORNE has taken into Copartnership MICHAEL L. WHIDDEN, and they will continue the

Painting, Glazing & Papering

business, at the old Stand, No 10 PARK STREET, under the firm of

OSBORNE & WHIDDEN.

Particular attention to

SIGN PAINTING,

IMITATIONS OF WOOD, MARBLE, BRONZE, GROUND GLASS, &c.

mch 29 1y

DOWLEY & WHALL,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, AND AUCTIONEERS,

FOR THE SALE OF

Boots, Shoes, Leather and all kinds of Shoe Stock, at Private and Auction Sale,

Nos. 21 and 22 PEARL Street,

Levi A. Dowley, } BOSTON.
Joseph B. Whall, }

Cash liberally advanced on Boots, Shoes and Shoe Stock, for private and public sales.

—References—

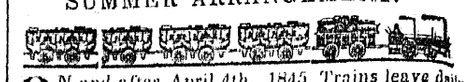
Messrs. Jos. Whitney & Co.,	Boston.
" Josiah M. Jones, Esq.,
" Spofford, Tileston, & Co.,	New York.
" Shepard Knapp, Esq.,
" C. M. Leupp & Co.,
" Haddock, Hazletine & Reed,	Philadelphia
" Poland, Jenkins & Co.,	Baltimore.
" Friend, Humphrey & Co.,	Albany.



mch 29 1y

PANTS. A lot of Men's cheap pants just received and for sale at EDWARDS'

may 17 14 Front street.

EASTERN RAILROAD,

SUMMER ARRANGEMENT.

ON and after April 4th, 1845, Trains leave daily (Sundays excepted,)

Boston for Portland, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P. M.
" Portsmouth, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 5 1 2 P.M.
" Somersworth, Great Falls, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P.M.
" for Newburyport, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 and 5 1-2 P.M.
" for Salem, 7 1-4, 9, A.M., 12 1-4 2 1-2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2, 7 1-2 P.M.

Salem for Portland, 8 A.M., 3 1-4 P.M.
Salem for Portsmouth and Newburyport, 8 A.M., 3 1-4, 6 1-4 P.M.
Portland for Boston, 7 1-2 A.M., 3 P.M.
Saco for Boston, 8 A.M., 3 1-2 P.M.
Somersworth, Great Falls for Boston, 8 3-4 A.M. 4 1-4 P.M.
South Berwick lot Boston, 9 1-4 A M, 4 3-4 P.M.
Portsmouth for Boston, 6 1-2, 10,* A.M., 5 1-2* P.M.
Newburyp't for Boston, 7 1-4, 10 3-4* AM. 6 1-4 P.M.
Salem for Boston, 7, 8 1-2, 10 1-4 11 3-4,* A.M. 2 1-4, 5, 7,* P.M.

*Or on their arrival from the East.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Trains leave Marblehead for Salem, at 7 1-4, 8 1-4, 10, A.M.; 2, 4, 4 3-4, 7, P.M.

Leave Salem for Marblehead, at 8, 9 3-4 A.M. 1, 3 1-4, 4 1-4, 6 1-4, 8 1-4 P.M.

A Merchandize Train will leave Boston, Portland and all intermediate places every day.

Freight Office in Boston, No. 17 Merchants Row, and on the line of the road at the several Depots.

JOHN KINSMAN,

apr 12 Master of Transportation.

Summer Arrangement of the

DANVERS AND SALEM

HOURLY COACHES

THE Danvers and Salem Hourly Coaches will in connection with the Eastern Railroad, leave Danvers and Salem at the following hours, viz:

Leave Danvers at	6 1-2	A.M.	Leave Salem at	8	A.M.
" "	8		" "	9 1-2
" "	9 3-4		" "	11 1-2
" "	11 1-4		" "	12 3-4
" "	1 3-4	P.M.	" "	3	P.M.
" "	2 3-4		" "	4
" "	4 1-2		" "	6
" "	6 1-2		" "	8

For seats apply at Macintire's Hotel, or at Joseph G Shed's store in Danvers, and at the Essex House and Salem Hotel in Salem.

Railroad passengers taken at the depot on the arrival of the cars from Boston and the East.

☞Extra Coaches furnished at any hour on reasonable terms. SYMONDS & TEEL.

apr 19 tf

Pales Cathartic, or Vegetable PURGATIVE LOZENGES.

ARE the best and most popular medicines for people of all ages, country, and climates, and in every condition of life. They are compounded of the essences of vegetables from many nations. Their taste is inexpressibly delightful. They cause no pain in their operations, but the first change of feeling after taking them is, that of pleasure, and they cleanse the stomach and bowels more perfectly than any other purgative medicines.

The most wonderful and surprising cures have been effected by them in different parts of the earth. How these purgative lozenges do so speedily purify the blood, and substitute health for sickness, is a mystery to the most eminent members of the healing art. Such purgative medicines must become universal, and supersede the use of all other purgative compounds; and as long as disease continues to afflict people, so long will these Lozenges remain unrivalled in all coming time throughout the world. Every person who travels should carry them—every family should keep them—and every sick man, woman, or child should take them.

FALES' WORM LOZENGES,

Are a safe and sure remedy for worms. Children love them. They act like a charm in removing the symptoms such as starting in sleep, grating the teeth, paleness about the mouth and nose, occasional sick- [illegible] and general feverish habit. The child has then a quiet sleep, and the worms are stupified and expelled, and the child, as far as heard from, in every instance has been cured. Price, 25 cents per box, with full directions; sold at Commercial street, Boston,

FALES' COUGH LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common Colds and Coughs, Whooping Cough; Inflamation of the Throat and Lungs, in the Croup or Hives, and more certain to act satisfactory than the celebrated Hive Syrup. The most happy effect is obtained in a few moments; the symptoms disappear and the disease is broken up by the magical effect of these Lozenges. Full directions accompany each box, are found at the Depositopy, 96 Commercial staeet, Boston.

FALES' DYSENTERY LOZENGES,

Are a safe and agreeble remedy for Dysentery, Diarrhœa and Bowel Complaints of children. Particular attention must be paid to the directions which are on each box.

FALES' CAMPHOR LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common and sick head ache, and where there is a sense of tightness or weight over the eyes, in erruptive diseases, such as Measles and Small Pox. Also in Mania, Epilepsy, Melancholy, Hysteria, in St. Vitus Dance, and in all cases of languor and oppession of the Vital powers, may be taken with safety by women and children in all conditions. Full directions accompany each box.

FALES' CYPRIAN HAIR TONIC,

Is now so extensively known and justly celebrated that further comment upon it will be useless, we can say, however, that among the many thousands who have purchassed the Tonic, in this and other countries, none have returned with complaints, while thousands have expressed not only their approbation, but their wonder and admiration on beholding its effects. A few bottles only can be had at 96 Commercial street, Boston.

CLEAR OUT YOUR RATS.

The gnawing and antics of these destructive creatures can be hushed forever in your house and store, if you will procure a box of the genuine.

MADAGASCAR RAT EXTERMINATOR,

and use it according to direction. You cannot depend upon it unless obtained at J. J. FALES' No. 96 Commercial street Boston.

—AGENTS—

Salem, J. S. HARRISON, J. Stone, jr., H. Whipple, S Badger, jr; Lynn, J. Moulton jr., Geo. Lummus, Wm. Cogswell, Wm. L Ladd; Swampscot, W. Thompson; Marblehead, E. Arnold Wm. Stacey; Danvers, S. Proctor, Jos Shed, New Mills, H. S Pope, A. P Perley & Co, C. Simonds, Calder & Foster; Topsfield, B. P. Adams; Beverly. A N Clark. ep6m mch 29

POOLE & JACOBS,

MANUFACTURERS OF

Boot and Shoe Linings, Skivers,

AND BINDINGS,

AND DEALERS IN

WOOL,

MAIN ST., DANVERS, MASS.

DANVERS COURIER.

VOL. 1. DANVERS, (Mass.) SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 14, 1845. NUMBER 13.

THE DANVERS COURIER
IS PUBLISHED BY
GEORGE R. CARLTON,
EVERY SATURDAY MORNING,
A few doors North of Mackintire's Hotel,
CENTRAL ST.—SOUTH DANVERS.

Terms—$1 50 if paid in advance, or $2 00, if not paid within one month of the time of subscribing.

The carriers are not allowed to sell any copies of the Courier. Single copies may be obtained at the office, at 5 cents each.

Advertisements will be inserted on favorable terms.

POETRY.

DREAMS.

Oh? there is a dream of early youth,
And it never comes again;
'Tis a vision of light, of life, and truth,
That flits across the brain;
And love is the theme of that early dream,
So wild, so warm, so new,
That in all our after years I deem,
That early dream we rue.

Oh! there is a dream of maturer years,
More turbulent by far;
'Tis a vision of blood, and of woman's tears,
For the theme of that dream is war:
And we toil in the field of danger and death,
And shout in the battle array,
Till we find that fame is a bodyless breath,
That vanisheth away.

Oh! there is a dream of hoary age,
'Tis a vision of gold in store—
Of sums noted down on the figured page,
To be counted o'er and o'er:
And we fondly trust in our glittering dust,
As a refuge from grief and pain,
Till our limbs are laid on that last dark bed,
Where the wealth of the world is vain.

And is it thus, from man's birth to his grave,
In the path which all are treading?
Is there naught in that long career to save
From remorse and self-upbraiding?
Oh, yes! there's a dream so pure, so bright,
That the being to whom it is given,
Hath bathed in a sea of living light—
And the theme of that dream is Heaven.

ANGEL'S VISITS.

Hast heard it told, when infants smile
In calm and tranquil slumbers,
That angels round them watch the while,
Chanting celestial numbers?
'Tis said that in their sleep they hear
Soft tones, unheard to others' ear.

If false, 'tis beautiful, the thought
That spirits round are flying;
That whispers in each dream are brought,
Like summer zephyrs sighing!
Nor would I break so sweet a charm,
For, if no good, it leaves no harm.

I think that when the hand of death
When faintly comes the stifled breath,
And silent tears are flowing,
Bright seraphs leave the world of love,
To guide the panting soul above.

And oft, ere nature gives release,
Or 'silver cord' is rended,
They whisper tones of heavenly peace,
Till bliss with pain is blended:
'Tis this that makes the smile's soft play,
When life and nature sink away.

COMMUNICATIONS.

FOR THE COURIER.

Mr. Courier—Will you allow me again to trouble you with a few lines in relation to some new and strange thoughts and impressions which have been making me wonderfully sober for a few days, so much so that I have not had time to scold old Newman Noggs for his impoliteness. They are the first really sober thoughts I have ever had, and have dwelt on them so long that it will be a relief to unfold them. I have been out of town for a few days and, while away, I was called to attend the burial of an old man. It was the first funeral that I have ever attended since I was old enough to understand aught of the nature of death and it has left on my mind (like Newman's visit to the grave-yard) an impression which yet lingers with me and which will not let me trifle with anything. I think, Mr. Courier, that we young persons are more likely to be seriously and deeply affected by such scenes as these than older and wiser persons. The transition is so sudden from the excess of mirth and gayety to the house of Death, the unnatural appearance of sorrow in the faces of those who have been wont to meet us with a smile of kindly greeting,—the mourning dresses, those 'idle mockeries of grief,' and the whole appearance of things at a funeral, is so solemn that in my mind an instinctive dread of a coffin always exists. When I first entered the room from which the old man was buried, a shudder crept over me and it required all my resolution to look into the coffin and when I did look I felt faint and sick. I had read and heard of those whose faces in death though wasted by age, had borrowed the look of innocence and peace which an infant's face might wear, and of lips whose very coldness was lit by a smile which spoke of a youth renewed in Heaven, and through the dread of death and its associations this vision always came to cheer me.—But when I looked for its reflection in the face before me, I do not wonder that I started back in terror. Instead of the calmness of sleep there appeared an expression of agony as if the departed was still wrestling with pain and death. Instead of the smile of peace, the lips were compressed as in strong effort, and the brow was furrowed and wore a frown as if the genius of Despair had chosen it for his throne to frighten those who looked upon it. I know not how it seemed to others but in my mind the associations with such an appearance were all terrible and fearful. In vain would I try to tear my thoughts from the clay, and picture the spirit in its robes of light. Everything bore the same image and I turned away and took my seat sadly and with a sort of dread to look back at the coffin. Being alone in a corner, I after a few moments became curious to observe the appearance and actions of those who came into the room. First there came a man of business, whose all I knew was wedded to gold, but somehow the cunning look of suspicious watchfulness had been doffed for a moment and with a staid and sober air he walked up to the coffin. He looked a moment coldly into it as if he was calculating the age of the deceased, then went slowly to his seat. He was followed by a man whom I well knew, a merry, jovial, round faced old fellow, whose look of laughing good humor was chastened into a quiet sedateness. At the first glance the man within was revealed. A troubled look came over his face, his lips trembled and his eye grew moist, but as if a sudden thought had averted him he started, gazed quickly around him to see who had noticed his emotion, blew his nose lustily and sat down. Next came a mother and her child a little girl some four years old. As they stepped into the room, the child said (pointing to the coffin) 'Oh! mother, what is that?' A quick glance from the mother's eye silenced her, and they went up to the coffin. As the child was lifted up and looked upon the face she clung closely to her mother and whispered, 'What ails him, how he looks!' Some of the older persons looked sternly at her and she said no more, but I longed to take her in my arms and talk with her. Many others came and looked upon 'the coffined clay,' some with the cold indifference of men accustomed to such sights, others with sad faces and sad hearts, but the man was poor and tears were not wasted abundantly. Then came the prayer of the minister, with solemn words telling the virtues (forgotten or unrecognized in life) of the departed, and his happy situation, (of which he could know nothing) the procession to the grave and the consigning there of one more wanderer to his long home. I did not weep at the grave or the funeral, for thoughts which were too busy for tears, were bearing me far away from the immediate cause. Fearful questionings of the cause of the distorted countenance I had been looking upon, dark forebodings, and above all the new and bewildering mystery of death, were rushing through my mind in wild confusion. In this mood I came home and escaping from the laughter of my school girl friends and their noisy recognition, I thought long and sadly on the scene which I had left. But thought rushed on thought so fast and speculation followed surmise so quickly, that I was lost in the snare into which they led me so that with an endeavor to banish thought I have been winning myself back to the world again little by little though I have not yet divested myself of the impressions it made upon me. A few days perhaps of careless life will efface it from my memory till some new tenant claims 'a little mound of earth to mark his lowly rest' and then perhaps such thoughts will not come again. And this we call experience, this pertinacity with the sorrow of life and the power of hardening our hearts against its influence. I did not mean to preach a sermon but the other day, and now (you will think me as silly as Newman does) but I feel quite reconciled to my youth. Having trespassed upon your patience so much, I will just say what I have to say about uncle Nogg's flattering notice of my little pop-gun The harmless missile seemed to touch his bump. of sensitiveness, and the result is a kind fatherly admonition Thank you uncle Noggs, for its gentle application. I believe I have grown four shades wiser within a fortnight, and I see now how much I deserved a scolding for meddling with your age. I cannot feel cross in my present state of mind, and though the sarcasm about good manners cut at first, it now only reminds me of the many foolish vagaries of my girlish life. But, uncle Noggs, could you not with the reverence for the women which you speak of, recognize and excuse the spirit that could dictate our actions when we girls met you in your morning walk. Be sure that the dignified bow with which perchance, we may salute you in some future morning walk, shall be by no means as true an index to the feelings of the heart, as that 'giggle' which you so emphatically ridicule. It was the surplus (I believe that's the word father uses) gayety of the soul boiling over from hearts which had unconsciously been drinking from the fountain of joy which nature opens to those who visit her as we do in the cool of the morning, and it meant no harm. The foolish nonsense in the last was meant to tease you, so don't be cross, and perhaps the counterpart of that new night cap may be forthcoming.

The heart that is young will find a ready sympathy in friends though it beat beneath a covering that has stood the storm of sixty years; so we shall be good friends yet; for, of course, you would not be so impolite as to refuse a ——— young lady? Yes, young lady—for I feel really old already, and I don't know how long I shall be in the disposition to giggle at you and your gingerly Ginger, who, by the way, is a very homely brute, indeed.—Don't think that I have left the field out of fear, I meant to scold a little in persona propria (another theft from father's list of expressions) and when we meet again may use a woman's tongue in a woman's way.

But, Mr. Courier, my 'few lines' are not few by any means, and I must bid you good-bye. If my scribbled thoughts about funerals, &c. seem foolish, don't blame me, they are the first ones I have ever had and I prize them.

So good-bye, Mr. Courier and Uncle Newman,
Once more Yours, JULIA.

SELECTED TALES.

THE HERRING PIE.

It was a cold winter's evening; the rich banker Brounker had drawn his easy chair close into the corner of the stove, and sat smoking his long clay pipe with great complacency, while his intimate friend, Van Grote, employed in exactly the same manner, occupied the opposite corner. All was quiet in the house, for Brounker's wife and children were gone to a masked ball, and, secure from fear of interruption, the two friends indulged in a confidential conversation.

"I cannot think," said Van Grote, "why you should refuse your consent to the marriage. Berkenrode can give his daughter a good fortune, and you say that your son is desperately in love with her."

"I don't object to it," said Brounker. 'It is my wife who will not hear of it.'

'And what reason has she for refusing?'

'One which I cannot tell you,' said his friend, sinking his voice.

'Oh! a mystery.—Come, out with it. I should like to have seen you do as much when you were first married. To be sure, you had reason to look sharply after her, for she was the prettiest woman in Amsterdam. Unfortunately, she has taken such advantage of your love, that the grey mare has become the better horse, and you refuse an advantageous match to your son, to gratify her caprice.'

'You are quite wrong, my good friend. I never allow any one to be master here but myself; and in the present instance I cannot blame Clotilda. The secret of her refusal lies in a herring pie'

'A herring pie!' exclaimed Van Grote.

'Yes, a herring pie. You may remember it was a favorite dainty of mine, and that my wife could not endure even the smell of it. Well, during the first years of my marriage, I must confess that I was a little—a very little—jealous of Clotilda. My situation obliged me to keep open house, and among the young sparks who visited us, none gave me so much uneasiness as the handsome Col. Berkenrode. The reputation he had already acquired for gallantry was enough to create alarm, and the marked attention he paid my wife convinced me it was well founded. What could I do? It was impossible to forbid him the house, for he had it in his power to deprive me of the government contracts; in other words, to ruin me. After pondering deeply on the subject, I decided on doing nothing, until the danger should become imminent; all that was necessary was to know how things really stood. Having just purchased this house, I caused a secret closet to be made behind the stove here. It communicates with my private room, and from it I could overhear everything that passed in this apartment without risk of being discovered. Thank God I have had no use for it the last twenty years, and, indeed, I do not even know what has become of the key. Satisfied with this precaution, I did not hesitate to leave Clotilda when any of her admirers paid her a visit, though I promise you that some of the colonel's gallant speeches made me wince.'

'Upon my word,' interrupted his friend, 'you showed a most commendable patience. In your place I should have contented myself with forbidding my wife to receive his visits.'

'There spoke the old bachelor. But as I did not want to drive her headlong into his arms, I went a different way to work. Day after day I was forced to listen to the insidious arguments of the seducer. My wife—I must own she made a stout defence—at one time tried ridicule, at another entreaty, to deter him from his pursuit of her. He one day he bethought himself of threatening to blow out his brains if she would not show him some compassion. Moved at this proof of the strength of his passion, she burst into tears, and pleaded that she was not free—in short, she gave him to understand that I was the obstacle to his happiness. Berkenrode was too well skilled in the art of seduction not to see that he had gained a point. He raved, cursed me as the cause of his misery, and tried to obtain a promise from her in case she should become a widow. She stopped him peremptorily; but I never closed an eye that night, and Clotida, thought she did not know that I watched her, was as myself. On the following day a circumstance occurred that increased her agitation. While at breakfast, a message came from the cook asking to see me alone. I desired him to come in (as I was not in the habit of interfering in domestic affairs) and communicate his business in my wife's presence. When the man entered he was as pale as a ghost, and scarcely seemed to know what he was about. At last he told me that he had received a packet containing a small bottle, three hundred guldens, and a note, in which he was requested to put the contents of the former into the first herring pie he should prepare for me. He was assured that he might do so without fear, as the contents of the bottle were quite harmless, and would give a delicious flavor to the pie. An additional reward was promised if he complied with the request and kept his own counsel. The honest fellow, who was much attached to me, said he was convinced there must be something wrong in the affair, and should not be happy till bottle and money were out of his hands. I poured a few drops of the liquid on a lump of sugar, and gave it to my wife's lap-dog. It fell into convulsions, and died in a few minutes. The case was now plain; there had been an attempt to poison me. Never shall I forget Clotilda's pale face as she threw herself weeping into my arms—'Poison! A murderer!' she exclaimed, clasping me as if to shield me from danger; 'Merciful Heaven, protect us both!' I consoled her with the assurance that I was thankful to my unknown enemy, who was the means of showing me how much she loved me. That day Berkenrode came at the usual hour; but in vain did I take my seat in my hiding-place, he was not admitted. I afterward found that she had sent him a letter, threatening if ever he come again that her husband should be informed of all that had passed. He made many attempts to soften her resolution, but to no purpose, and a year afterwards he married. No acquaintance has ever existed between the families; and now you know why my wife refuses her consent to our son's marriage with Berkenrode's daughter."

"I cannot blame her," said Van Grote. "Who would have thought that Berkenrode, a soldier, and a man of honor, could have been capable of such a rascally deed?"

"Ha! ha! ha!" laughed Brounker; "and do you really think it was the general who sent the poison!"

"Why who else?"

"Myself, to be sure! The whole was my own contrivance, and it cost me three hundred guldens in a present to my cook; but it was money well laid out, for I saved my wife, and got rid of her troublesome lap-dog at the same time.'

'Do you know, Brounker, I think it was rather a shabby trick to leave Berkenrode under such an imputation; and now that your son's happiness depends on your wife's being undeceived——'

'I am aware of all that, but to undeceive her now is not so easy as you think. How can I expect her to disbelieve a circumstance in which for the last twenty years she has put implicit faith?'

He was interrupted by the entrance of Vrow Brounker. Her cheeks were flushed, and she saluted Van Grote rather stiffly.

'What! not at the ball, Clotilda?' asked her husband.

"No I had a bad headache,' she replied, 'and Maurice has promised to take charge of his sisters. But I have come to tell you that I have been thinking over his marriage with Mina Berkenrode, and have altered my mind on that subject. In short, I shall withdraw my oppostion to the match.'

The friends looked at each other in astonishment,

'By the bye,' she continued, 'here is a key I found some time ago; I think it must belong to you.'

'Well, Clotilda,' said her husband, striving to hide his confusion as he took the key, 'this is good news about the marriage——'

'Suppose you and your friend celebrate it by a supper. There is a herring pie in the house, and you need not fear that it is poison.'

She left the room. Brounker looked foolish, and Van Grote rubbed his hands as he exclaimed, 'Caught in your own trap! He who digs a pit for his enemy shall fall into it himself.'

'Nevertheless,' replied Brounker, 'I think I have got well out of mine.'

THE DEFENCE OF OLFTZYN.

Of all the countries of Europe, there are few perhaps which have suffered more from hardships and horrors of war than Poland. But it is not to the later period of her misfortunes that our story now refers, when, as a powerful kingdom, governed by a noble and courageous monarch, and supported by a brave people, Poland fearlessly defied the proudest kings of Europe.

In 1575, Sigismund, king of Poland, declared himself the rightful monarch of Sweden, in opposition to Charles, Duke of Sudermania, then regent of that kingdom. Charles, indignant at the claim of Poland, mustered his whole force and prepared to invade that kingdom with every prospect of success. Sigismund, unprepared for these measures, was only able to reinforce the garrisons of his frontier towns and to give the command to his most faithful and approved generals. The command of the important fortress of Olftzyn devolved upon Caspar Karlinski, a name then celebrated in Poland, not so much for wealth and power, as for unblemished honor and dauntless bravery. On receiving his appointment, Caspar hastened to the fortress, accompanied only by his beautiful wife, whom no danger nor suffering could induce to leave him. Her only child an infant, two years of age, was with his nurse, far from the scene of of combat.

The Swedes assembled near the walls of the castle, and the most threatening messages were sent to the intrepid Kalinksi.

'I will obey no orders but those of Sigismund,' was ever his heroic answer, 'and I will preserve unsullied, 'til death, the faith I have pledged to him.'

The most splendid offers were then made him by the Swedish general. Wealth, rank, a seat in the senate of Sweden, was each proffered in turn, and each disdainfully refused. Having tried all other expedients in vain, the enemy drew their ranks together and prepared for a vigorous attack. The soldiers, that had, at first, defended the fortress, were few, and those few had been reduced to a scanty remnant by daily skirmishes, as wyll as by the suffering and fatigue incident to the inhabitants of a besieged citadel.

The night previous to the intended assault was calm and beautiful. The moon, then at her full, shone brightly on the black towers and gloomy walls of Olftzyn, where, notwithstanding the apprehended danger, no sound disturbed the silence, save the low voice of the sentinels, and the heavy tread of Karlinski, who paced to and fro on the battlements, while with a sensation of noble and patriotic pride, he thought of the hour when he should deliver the fortress into the keeping of his sovereign, uninjured as when he received it.

True, the number of his followers was few; but he felt unshaken confidence in their bravery and fidelity. His thoughts then reverted to his absent child, unseen for many weeks; and he felt pleasure in the thought, that though it was not in his power to leave either wealth or titles to his Sigsmund, he could yet bequeath a still more glorious inheritance, a name distinguished for faithful loyality and heroic fortitude. In thoughts like these he passed the time 'till the morning dawned; then dismissing every thought, but those connected with the defence of Olftzyn, he prepared for the terrible assault, which, by the movements of the enemy, was evidently fast approaching.

It was a bright, clear, spring morning. The sun poured down his beams with more than wonted brilliancy, and the fresh breeze inspired every heart with hope and resolution. With flashing eye and burning cheek, Karlinski marked the advance of the Swedish forces, apparently resolved to possess Olftzyn, or die in the attempt.

"In what fine order they move," carelessly exclaimed Karlinski; "now for Poland and our king! They are nearly within gun shot." He had hardly finished speaking when the troops of the enemy stopped, as if by command. A death-like stillness ensued. The front rank opened and an armed man came forward, leading a female figure.—She held something in her arms which her long white veil entirely concealed. A pause of breathless astonishment ensued among the Polish soldiery. The woman withdrew her hand as if to raise her veil, but she seemed unable to the task. Her form shook with convulsive emotion and she dropped her head on her bosom, as if borne down by some irresistible force. Her companion threw back her veil. Karlinski gazed as if spell bound, as he beheld a child clasped firmly to her bosom.

"Count Karlinski," at length said one of his soldiers. His voice seemed to unloose the spell.

"My God! it is my child! my son Sigismund," he frantiely exclaimed and fell motionless on the ramparts.

"Fire not for your lives," said the aid-de-camp of Karlinski; "it is Count Caspar's only child—He has been treacherously seized by the cowardly Swedes."

In the meantime rejoicing in the success of their stratagem, the enemy once more arranged their ranks and moved forward. What could be done by the besieged? They dared not discharge a single cannon, for the life of the infant of their adored commander was at stake. The Swedes approached nearer and prepared to scale the walls.

At this moment of agony Karlinski awoke to a deep sense of suffering. "Oh! Heaven! aid and direct me," he wildly exclaimed.

"They prepare to mount the walls," said one of the soldiers! "we are lost, we cannot return a single shot with safety."

Another dreadful pause ensued, broken only by the cries of the child, who held his arms on high; probably recognizing familiar faces in the forms that manned the battlements.

A shout, as if in anticipation of victory, arose from the assailants. Karlinski sprung from the walls, where in utter despair he had thrown himself, and rushed forward to the verge of the battlement. He seized a torch from the hand of a soldier; "God!" he exclaimed, "I was a Pole before I was a father!" and with his own hand he discharged the cannon which served as the signal for a general volley. From every tower and battlement the shot poured down without cessation. The foremost ranks of the Swedes fell like chaff before the wind, and with them fell the unfortunate child of Karlinski, a victim to the liberties of Poland.

"Now, my brave soldiers," exclaimed Karlinski 'throw open the gates and follow me. I return victorious or I return no more. The sacrifice so awfully begun shall be as awfully completed."

The gates were, in obedience to his commands, thrown open, and with almost irresistable force, the Polish troops rushed forward on their faillingand almost stunned antagonists. We need not relate the dreadful scene of carnage that followed. Karlinski fought as one who was indeed bereft of every earthly hope. After a protracted struggle the troops of Sweden fled, pursued by the soldiers of Karlinski, each burning to revenge the death of their commander's child.

The dusky gloom of twilight had begun to settle over the towers of Olftzyn, before Count Karlinski returned from the field of battle. True, he returned completely victorious; but at how dread. dreaded to meet the overwhelming anguish of his wife. "My gentle Margaret," he mentally exclaimed, "Oh! what will be thy feelings, rendered childless by my hand!"

He knew in his inmost heart that her soul, heroic as his own would never blame him even in thought, but the heart recoils from many things of which reason approves. He entered the gates which were thrown open at his signal. No word passed between him and the sentinel; and, without addressing any one, he took his way in silence to the apartments of the Countess. He entered her drawing room; it appeared as if it had been tenantless for hours. Her harp seemed as if untouched, her books unopened. It was not to be expected that, during that day of distress, she would have used either; yet there was an unutterable air of desolation and abandonment over all, that seemed to imply, it had been totally uninhabited. Karlinski held his breath, vainly striving to catch some sound were it even one of sorrow.—He felt that aught would be better than that awful silence. By a desperate effort he threw open the inner door. He started back in horror. Instead of the dim light he had expected, the room was bright by the number of torches that illumined it. Massive silver lamps around the bed rendered sadly visible the pale form that, unconscious of earthly joy or sorrow, reposed on it. Count Caspar advanced to the couch, and with almost terrific calmness gazed on the cold features of his beloved Margaret. He would have felt almost resigned could he have seen either on brow or cheek, one trace of the joyous feeling that smiled there when he last saw her glowing with beauty and happiness. The eyes were closed, and around the compressed lips the smile that reigned there was fled for ever. "A dim awfulness was on the brow," and the whole expression of the face seemed to indicate that it was indeed in an hour of unutterable anguish that the spirit had passed. Caspar groaned in bitterness of soul.

"Oh! Margaret! could'st not thou, who had only to suffer, have endured this, whilst I, the miserable author of it can survive?"

At that moment the favorite attendant of the Countess entered. She started back at the sight of Karlinski.

"Good Heaven! has your lordship returned.

"Edith," he faintly exclaimed, "how chanced this, and when?" One glance to the couch explained his meaning.

"The Countess' page, my lord, witnessed all ann told it to her. She fainted, and at sunset all was over."

Spoke she aught of me?" said the Count.

"Nothing, my lord, but prayers for your happiness and approval of your conduct, for though she died in agony for the death of her child, she felt you performed but your duty."

"It is enough," said Karlinski; "retire, I will fulfil your duty in watching her." She did so and Karlinski sat by the couch musing deeply on the woes of that day. "But she is happy with her child, separated only for a few hours. I, only I, am miserable."

Wearied and overcome by days of sorrow and nights of watching, he sunk his head on his hand and slept. From this state of happiness, because of oblivion, he was roused near midnight by the low sweet sounds of music. A long train of mourn and menials entered, chanting the requiem of the dead. The sight recalled Karlinski's scattered senses. He rose and received, with an appearance of calmness, the condolence uttered by one of the good monks; but, in reality although the words struck on his outward sense, they conveyed no idea to his mind. His thoughts were wholly riveted on the lifeless being before him. At length, after repeated addresses, his own personal attendant succeeded in making him understand that he had better retire. The Count cast one long look on the lifeless features of his once beautiful Margaret and then departed. But the feelings of that hour were never forgotten; for the anguish of long years was so apressed into that last glance.

Time rolled on, while the name of Caspar Karlinski resounded through the states of Poland, and was echoed back in notes of admiration and wonder. But what was the voice of fame and renown? His grateful sovereign offered wealth and rank; but both were respectfully declined, for what happiness could they have yielded? Could one or all of these have restored his slaughtered infant, or his adored Margaret?

At length, Sigismund died, and another king reigned; while the sacrifice of Karlinski was forgotten, or remembered only as one of the deeds recorded in their ancient chronicles. But as he wandered through his ancestral halls, he bitterly felt that he had no one to whom he might bequeath them, but that his name must pass from among men and his possessions into the hands of another. But he had one support, the proud consciousness of a terrible duty fulfilled. It was this, perhaps, which enabled him to support so long a life; for after all these years of suffering, Karlinski died in extreme old age.

But what is the happiness of a long stream of life that has been embittered in the fountain?

DANVERS COURIER.

SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 14, 1845.

LIGHT READING.

There are few things in the present age which tend more to demoralize it, than the great amount of what is called light reading, which is flooding the community. Tales of noble moral sentiment, of chaste and elegant literary merit, are looked upon as insipid; and perverted minds delight to gorge themselves on excited accounts of vicious and depraved deeds. Vice, in every form, is pictured forth in many of these works, in such a dress that it does not disgust the unsuspecting; but all tend to the same end, namely, the demoralizing of the mind of the reader. They create a morbid desire for such reading, to glut which, the press is teeming and reeking with works unfit to be introduced into any family. The effect of this tendency, unless checked, will be fraught with the greatest evil. Vice, once openly seen, appears hideous, but by its constant presence, oftentimes masked, we gradually lose our disgust at it. "Evil communications corrupt good manners," is an old and true maxim, and it is as true that evil reading will vitiate the purest minds. Let such publications be avoided as a pestilence. Let them be condemned by every one who has a care for the morals of the community, and in that way alone, can anything be effected to stay the wide waves of dissipation and vice which are rolling in upon our country.

A FRACTION OF A SOUL!

In our last paper it will be recollected we endeavored to ascertain the population of this town predicated on the Census of children between the ages of 4 and 16. To effect this we stated an arithmetical question founded on the known proportion of the School Census in Lynn with that of their whole population. We have received from several pupils in Mr. Valentine's school, the following answer to the question:—the exact population on the first of May was "6100 souls and 2398. 2913ths of a soul."

The question now arises who is the proprieter of that fractional part of a soul? We have heard of large souls and small souls, of whole souled men and men without souls, but we never before heard of a fractional part of a soul—a divided soul—a soul crippled of its fair proportions—computated part of its subtle assence gone, dried up—evaporated. We pity such a soul—(we should rather say such a part of a soul)—doomed to walk abroad on the earth, a maimed spirit—a part only of itself, a fragment—a vulgar fraction! We involuntarily ask why it was so crippled? Was it eaten up by Avarice? or had it committed some despicable meanness? If so, of what contemytible act could it have been guilty to deserve such a punishment? We cannot answer, unless it was that unparalleled act of all meaness—defrauding a Printer.

Book Keeping.—We have just seen a treatise on this subject prepared by Mr. Charles Northend, Principal of the Epes School, Salem, which appears to us after a careful examination to be exceedingly well adapted for Common Schools.—Most of the books now in use are in a shape so bulky and complicated that they only serve to perplex the learner without rendering him acquainted with the branch taught. Mr. Northend's system is very simple and affords just so much information to the scholar as will acquaint him with the usual forms of business and is so illustrated by examples as to be easily understood by the learner.

We learn that by vote of our School Committee this work has already been introduced into our Schools. We are glad of this as we believe it will do much towards preparing our youth for the active business pursuits of after life.

Rejoinder of the Boston Teachers to "Reply" of Hon Horace Mann. This is another instalment of a controversy which never ought to have been commenced.

We are pleased to find however that although this rejoinder is caustic and severe it is written in a better spirit and with greater ability than any thing we have seen from the same side. We think both the parties ought now to leave the controversy where it is.

LYNN.

Nowhere do we see surer signs of thrift and prosperity than in Lynn. This town has formerly had its reverses and labored under many discouragements but by the industry and (through the efforts of its true hearted philanthrophists) the temperance of its population it seems now to have recovered itself, and its prosperity we have reason to believe, will be permanent. Its industry and enterprise have created for itself wealth and no town engaged in the same kind of manufactures sustains reverses in business better than Lynn.—It has its men of capital but its wealth is more equally diffused through the population than almost any place of its size.

It has its faults, and among them is the excitable character of its people and their tendency to adopt all new speculative notions but it has also its virtues, and we have heard of some noble acts of benevolence from some of its business men that were truly munificient.

The beautiful appearance of the town is a common subject of remark with strangers. The taste with which its inhabitants have erected their neat dwellings and enclosures as well as their public buildings are worthy the imitation of other places. Another proof of their good taste is seen in adornment of their beautiful Common, their burial grounds and private gardens. Of the latter were we familiar with the names of their streets we could indicate many as well worthy of a visit as the famous Cushing garden of Watertown only on a smaller scale.

Lynn has now more than 10,000 Inhabitants.—It must soon be a city. Its municipal business must be transacted in a City Hall as its increasing population will make it inconvenient to do it in a town hall. It will have its Common Council men and its mayor and aldermen. Among the latter we shall expect in due time to see the enterprising editors of the Essex County Whig, and hope in the mean time they will qualify themselves for the station by performing their duties at the trencher.

HISTORY OF NEWBURY.

We have received from the author, "A sketch of the History of Newbury, Newburyport, and West Newbury, from 1635 to 1845: by Joshua Coffin, A. B., S. H. S.," published by S. G. Drake, Boston. We do not hesitate to say that it is one of the most correct and comprehensive Town histories ever published. Mr. Coffin has been engaged a great many years in collecting his materials, and has spared no efforts to obtain all facts which are important or interesting. The geneological index, including thirty pages small type, shows a great deal of critical research, as does also, his list of graduates, from which it appears that few towns have more to boast of in the character of their literary and intelligent men, than Newbury. The late Judge Parsons, Judge Lowell, President Webber, Professor Pearson, and the educated sons. This has been owing, in part perhaps, to the early establishment of Dummer Academy within its limits.

Mr. C. has collected much that is amusing in regard to the whims and superstitions of our ancestors. It appears that the wearing of wigs was a cause of considerable trouble in many places, and on page 220 is a copy of the record of the 2nd Church upon the subject, which is as follows.

'May 7th, 1752. The members of the second church in Newbury met to deal with our brother Richard Bartlet for the following reasons.

'First, our said brother refuses communion with the church for no other reason but because the pastor wears a wigg, and because the church justifies him in it, setting up his own opinion in opposition to the church, contrary to that humility which becomes a christian.

'Second, and farther in an unchristian manner he censures and condemns both pastor and church as anti-christian on the aforesaid account and he sticks not from time to time to assert with the greatest assurance that all who wear wiggs, unless they repent of that particular sin before they die will certainly be damned, which we judge to be a piece of uncharitable and sinful rashness.'

This opposition to wigs was not peculiar to Mr. Bartlet, though he was probably one of the last, who took so decided a stand against that article of dress. From their first introduction in New England, till the tyrranny of fashion had sanctioned their almost universal use, the wearing of wigs had been violently opposed by our fathers, who considered the manner of wearing the hair, as a subject of grave and serious consequence. In many places in judge Sewall's diary, he alludes to this subject. I make a few extracte.

'1685, September 15th. Three admitted to the church, two wore periwigs.

'1696. Mr. Sims told me of the assaults he had made on periwigs, seemed to be in good sober sadness.'

'1697. Mr. Noyes of Salem wrote a treatise on periwigs,' and so forth.

'1704, January. Walley appears in his wig having cut off his own hair.'

1708, August 20th. Mr. Cheever died. The welfare of the province was much upon his heart. He abominated periwigs.'

The venerable John Elliot, the apostle to the Indians, believed that the sufferings endured by the people of Massachusetts in Phillip's war, were inflicted on them as a judgment from heaven for wearing wigs!

Even the members of the society of friends, were troubled with the wig question. From the minutes of the monthly meeting, I make the following extracts.

'1721, November 16th. At this meeting we received an account from ye quarterly meeting, in which we are desired to consider the wearing of wigges and give in our judgment at the next quarterly meeting to be held at Salem.'

'1721, December 21st Hampton. The matter above mentioned cousarning ye wearing of wigges was discoursed and it was concluded by this meet- yt ye wearing of extravagent superfluus wiggas is altogether contrary to truth.

On page 401 is a copy of the petition of Judge Byfield to the Governor and council. We do not learn whether the petition was granted. It certainly ought to have been.

To the governor and council sitting in Boston.

The petition of Nathaniel Byfield,

Humbly sheweth, That your Petitioner is a stranger in the country and lately married and is now Prest to go out to warre against the Indians And whereas the Law of God is plain in 24 Deut 5 That when a man has taken a new wife, he shall not go out to warre, neither shall he be charged with any business but he shall be free at home one yeare Your petitioner doth humbly request the favor of yr. Honours to grant him the Privlledge and benefit of the said law and to grant him a discharge from the present service. So shall he pray for your Honours, N. BYFIELD.

We should like to extract more from this interesting work, but our limits will not allow us.—It is a book of 400 pages illustrated with numerous fine engravings.

Destructive Fires!!

Our town has been visited by several disastrous conflagrations and the central and most business portion of another of our villages is laid in ashes. On Wednesday afternoon, a fire was discovered in an out-building connected with the dwelling-house of Joshua Silvester, Esq., on Maple street at the Plains, and had obtained such progress before it was discovered, that every effort to stay its progress proved unavailing. The fire communicated rapidly to the dwelling-house and the large three story Shoe Manufactory of Mr. S. and to the three story dwelling and Manufactory of Mr. Francis Noyes. The intense heat from these large buildings drove the firemen from the reservoir which was immediately in front of Mr. Silvester's buildings, and they were obliged to seek water at a greater distance. The fire was now raging violently, and fanned by a fresh breeze from the west sent a shower of burning flakes across the street, setting fire to several houses and stores, while it was at the same time extending southerly, taking in its course a building owned by W. L. Weston, Esq. and E. E. Putnam, and occupied as the Post Office and a Refectory. The brick building occupied as a dwelling by Mr. Weston, and by the Village Bank, here proved a barrier to the flames in this direction, but was saved only by the most intense effort and in a very damaged condition.—The house of Mr. John Page was also in great danger. The building on the opposite corner occupied by A. P. Perley & Co. as a Variety store was on fire frequently, but the Fire Department was now in full operation and by most persevering exertions saved the building and most of the goods.

Had not the fire been checked at the Village Bank, in all probability not only Mr. Page's house but also Mr. Perley's Store would have been destroyed. Having got thus far it would have been next to impossible to have saved the large stables and out-buildings of the Naumkeag Hotel with which they are so connected that this large and elegant establishment must also have been laid in ruins.

The Village Bank building was frequently on fire outside and in, and much embarrassment was guish the fire under the roof, owing to a wooden partition, which, unknown to the spiresman prevented the water from reaching the fire. This was at length knocked away by a gentleman who understood its situation, and the fire checked without difficulty.

On the whole, considering the great distance the water was drawn, the fire was well managed. If the southerly cistern had been differently situated so that it could have been available after the engines had arrived, many streams of water could have been directed on the fire, instead of one stream forced through six or eight engines.

The following, were the principal buildings destroyed, begining at the north, on the western side of the street.

A two story building occupied by Mr. Amos Brown as a Wheelwright's shop and the chamber as a Painter's shop by Mr. Alexander Coffin.

Another two story building occupied by Hayman & Rhodes Painters and by Mr. E. F. Smith as a Tailor's shop.

A large three story building of Mr. Noyes occupied by him as a dwelling and Shoe Manufactory.

Mr. Joshua Silvester's dwelling house in rear of which the fire commenced.

A very large Shoe manufactory and Retail Store also belonging to Mr. Silvester.

A building owned by W. L. Weston Esq. and E. E. Putman and occupied by Mr. Thos. Bowen as the Post Office and as a Restorator by Mr. Clough.

The brick building owned by the Village Bank and occupied by the Banks and Mr. Henry T. Ropes as a Tailor's shop and by Mr. Weston as a dwelling house. This building was much injured by fire and water.

On the eastern side of the street a dwelling house owned by Mr. Samuel Preston and occupied by Mr. D. S. Wilkins and Mr D. J. Preston. Also near it, a building occupied as a ware house for storing goods.

Nearly in rear of the above Messrs Howe & Dodge's blacksmith's shop.

Mansion and outbuildings owned and occupied by Mr. Samuel Preston.

Shoe Manufactory and Store house for carriages and goods also owned by Mr. Preston.

Barn used for storing goods and sheds, which were pulled down by order of the Engineers of the Fire Department.

The intense heat of the fire was a great obstacle to the efforts of the firemen but every exertion was made by the hosemen to lead the stream of water where it would have the most effect. We noticed that those attached to the Ocean, No 6, protected themselves and the man with the pipe by holding up a carpet as a shield against the fire, without which no living being could have approached so near it. At other times large doors were used for the same purpose and it was only by such means that the water could be well applied.

By means of inside wooden shutters securely closed in the house occupied by Mr. Weston the lower rooms were saved from fire although the glass and sashes were destroyed and the shutters themselves burnt almost to the thinness of a shingle. By this simple protection the interior of his parlor was saved almost from defacement by smoke.

There were about 17 Engines on the ground besides sail cars and Hook & Ladder Companies, 7 of these belong to our own Fire Department and the remainder were from Salem and Beverly and were of great service. A card of thanks by our Firewards has been published in acknowledgement of their timely and successful aid.

The ladies at the Plains deserve all praise for their successful exertions in saving property, and even in aiding the men by passing water.—To them also were all indebted for the very liberal supply of refreshments so welcome to the fatigued and overworked enginemen. We never witnessed at a fire so bountiful a supply, or so eager a reception of creature comforts.

We have heard the amount of loss variously estimated at from $50 000 to $80 000. Insurance had been effected on about $32 000 at the Andover, Holyoke, Essex, Danvers and Essex Mechanics', all Mutual Offices; and at the Manufacturers', Boston, a stock office. Several of the Mutual Offices will be obliged to make assessments.

There are various surmises as to the cause of the fire, some attributing it to to the use of a cooking stove, others to children playing with friction matches, &c. &c.

ANOTHER!!

On Thursday afternoon, we were again alarmed by a cry of "Fire at the Plains," which was occasioned by the burning of a barn atttached to the house of Mr. Israel Boardman. This was unquestionably the work of an incendiary, as a strange man was seen to come out of the barn, a short time before the fire, by a little girl who was left in care of the house. She discovered smoke issuing from the barn and immediately went out and, on going into the barn chamber, discovered friction matches on the floor and among the hay which was then burning. She then with great presence of mind ran to the house, and after securing some silver and other valuable property, ran out to alarm the neighbors who lived at some distance. On her way she overtook the man she had seen coming from the barn who spoke to her sharply, charging her with setting fire to the barn with friction matches. After these facts were known to the neighbors, immediate search was made in different directions and a person answering to the description by the girl, was overtaken in Wenham, but the story he told was so plausible that he was allowed to proceed.—There was so much dissatisfaction at this that pursuit was again made, and we learn that he was arrested in Hamilton or Ipswich and is now committed to jail in the latter place. It is said that his name is Davis.

STILL ANOTHER!!

We have to record another destructive fire in our town, which took place yesterday afternoon. The alarm was given about 1-2 past 12 A. M., and was occasioned by the burning of a Box Mill, in Tapley village, which immediately communicated to the extensive Carpet Factory, owned by Gilbert and Perley Tapley, both of which were totally destroyed. The fire originated in a pile of shavings in the box mill, while the men were absent at dinner.

The whole loss of buildings, stock, and machinery, is estimated at about $17000.

The Carpet Factory was insured for $1500 at Andover, and the stock and machinery for $4800, at the Etna Office, Hartford.

Mr. Wyatt B. Wooodman, was proprietor of the box-mill, and has lost about $500. No insurance. The stock consisted in part of 300 bushels of pegs.

Mr David Henderson was proprietor of the Carpet Factory. His loss is probably about $4000.

About fifty hands have been by this fire thrown out of employ.

The fire spread so rapidly that the Company connected with the engine belonging to Tapleyville, were obliged to abandon it, and it was nearly destroyed. The firewards immediately ordered the Niagara Engine to be removed to Tapleyville, to take its place.

Nothing is known with certainty of the origin of the fire, but it is generally supposed to be the work of an incendiary, as there has been no fire in the building for several weeks, and the wind was in a direction to carry sparks from the chimney of the factory away from the box-mill.

FIRES!

Our town and vicinity during the past week has been visited by several destructive conflagrations.

In Salem, on Saturday morning, about half past one o'clock, a fire broke out in the morocco factory of E. B. Arnold, in Boston-street which was entirely consumed together with the currier's shop of J. C. Pitman, a wheelwright's shop and a barn. Several other buildings were more or less injured by the fire. There was insurance on the property destroyed at the Rockingham, Holyoke, and Mechanics' Mutual Offices, nearly sufficient to cover the losses. The fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary.

About 4 o'clock in the afternoon, a fire was discovered in some out-buildings in the rear of Odell Square, near the First Baptist Church. Before assistance could be rendered, the fire spread among tinder, and communicated to two small, old wooden dwelling houses belonging to the Odell estate, which were considerably burned but not totally destroyed. The adjoining dwellings were saved with little, if any damage.

Extraordinary Death. A German living over the canal, says the Cincinnati Commercial, had one of his back teeth pulled out, by a physician, on Saturday morning last, and, strange to say, he bled to death in about 45 minutes after the operation. It is one of the most remarkable facts we remember to have heard of.

FOR THE COURIER.

Mr. Editor—Can you tell me where the Cisterns are which the town authorized the Firewards to build in the vicinity of the methodist meeting house? Our Fire Department is a good one and all that can be desired, but what can we do without water? We want water; WATER!! WATER!!!

WASHINGTON STREET.

We, cannot tell our correspondent where the cisterns are but we believe the duty of providing them was not committed to the Firewards but to another board.

Columbian Magazine—This popular work for the month of July is already for sale by Mr. L. Chandler and its engravings and other contents are of first rate order. Mr. Chandler is most indefatigable in supplying his customers early with new works.—He contrives to get them almost before they are printed.

Mr C. has also the Reprint of the London Penny Magazine, a cheap and very interesting publication.

Phonography. This new and wonderful science appears to be gaining much attention. It is a short method of writing, the characters used representing sounds, and these sounds can be recorded with wonderful rapidity. It will make as great a change in writing as steam and rail roads in travelling. We understand that literary men in Boston are much interested in this science and we have noticed that Rev. Messrs. Chapin and Kirk are its active advocates. We wish that Mr. WORCESTER who is now giving instuction upon it in Salem, would consent to lecture to our citizens on this new science.

SHAVINGS.

Suicide. Mr. Francis Butler, of Farmington, Franklin County, Maine, committed suicide by cutting his throat, on Tuesday, the 27th ult.—His age was 63. He was the richest man in that county—has all his life been a prudent and money making man. He committed suicide because labouring under depression of spirits, consequent upon some unfortunate circumstances, by which it was not improbable he should lose a few thousand dollars.

☞Elsworth, the pedestrian, completed 792 miles out of his 1,000 over the Eclipse Course, Carrolton, on the 30th ult. The odds are now in his favor that he will complete his task within the time.

It will be gratifyiug to the friends of Rev. Dr. Sharp, of Boston, to learn that he has safely arrived in England. He was on a visit to the scene of his childhood. He had kneeled on the graves of his parents—had preached in what was once his father's pulpit, where one of his early friends, now 70 years old, came to hear him, and walked home 12 miles after 8 o'clock, in the evening. As one and another came round him, reminding him of incidents of his childhood, which called up, in some cases, a recollection of what their countenances then were, and with eyes suffused with tears, he repeated to himself and sometimes to his friends—'Yes creatures—see how old they grow.'

Amos Kendall, the U. S. Journal says, has made arrangements for putting up the Magnetic Telegraph from Springfield, Mass., to Buffalo, N. York and that he entertains the opinion that in a few days he will be able to make a contract with the same individual for the route from Boston to New York.

Powder Explosion. The Powder Mills of Messrs Langdon & Kellogg, in Lee, blew up on Tuesday afternoon. There were three buildings, several rods apart, which blew up in rapid succession. In that which last exploded, were 125 Kegs of powder. One man was only within the reach of the shock, who was not killed, but so severely injured that his life is despaired of.

Fire in Concord. The Middlesex House in Concord, Mass., was destrowed by fire, Tuesday forenoon, about 10 o'clock. At one time the destruction of the Unitarian Church and several other buildings near, seemed inevitable, but by the exertions of the firemen and citizens they were saved. The loss is estimated at $3000—$4000 of which was insured.

☞Twelve hundred and seven immigrants arrived at New York, within twenty-four hours, ending at 6 o'clock, P. M. on Sunday.

☞Mr Chase, his wife, and Miss Nichols, of Taunton, (Mass.) were partially poisoned a few days since by arsenic put in their bread by a pauper of the Alms House, of which Mr Chase was keeper.

☞The City of Salem has offered $ 1000 for the detection of the incendiaries who have fired that city—or for the detection of any one who shall set a fire during this year.

☞The United States Insurance Company of Boston, has declared a semi-annual dividend of 10 per cent., payable yesterday.

Dr. Jewett, the great temperance lecturer, is carrying all before him at Greenfield. The Gazette of yesterday says,

Col. Chase, the gentlemanly keeper of the principal hotel in this village, has given in his adhesion to the law, and declares that "he will not sell without a license." This is honorable to him, and it is to be hoped that his example will be universally followed, Mormon Trials. The St Louis Republican, of Monday, the 2d inst., speaking of the trials going on at Carthage, Illinois, says:— "We are informed that the jury in the case of the indictments for the murder of Jo Smith, the Mormon prophet, after an absence of about 30 minuites, returned a verdict of not guilty.—The indictments for the murder of Hiram Smith will be tried at a special term, which will be held after the circuit is gone through with.

Good News for Scrubbers.—A Mr. Carver has invented a back-and-knees-sparing scrubbing brush—simple, but efficient. The scrubber does her work standing—greatly to the promotion or her comfort and the saving of her garments. For the "fancy touches," odd corners and out of the way nooks, the old fashioned hand-brush must be resorted to, apparently; but where it is all plain sailing, the patent instrument must be greatly preferable.

The rush at the land office continues to increase. Such a land fever never was known. And the best of it is the tracts entered are mostly for actual settlers.—Green Bay Rep.

The New Postage.—The postmaster-general. in his instructions issued to postmasters says; "A letter mailed on or before the 30th June, 1845, is to be charged with the rates prescribed by the act of 1825, although the letter be not delivered till the first of July, or after."

Retail Market in Philadelphia.—The correspondent of the N. Y. Tribune says:

"I annex a few of the retail prices in our market: Green peas, very plenty, at 20 a 25 cents per peck; new potatoes, 10 a 15 cents per pound; asparagus, rather scarce, at 10 a 12 cents per bunch; cucumbers, raised in hot houses, 10 a 12 cents each; new cabbage, very fine, 4 a 12 cents per head; butter 15 cents per pound; eggs 12 cents per dozen; strawberries in great abundance, 12 a 20 cents per quart; cherries, 6 a 8 cents per pound."

NOTICE.

The regular meetings of Monument Division, No. 5, SONS OF TEMPERANCE, held at Sanger's Hall, are changed from Wednesday to Monday evening, at 8 o'clock. Members of the order are respectfully invited to attend.

Danvers, April 12. MOSES MERRILL, R. S.

BRIGHTON MARKET—MONDAY, June 6, 1845.
[From the Boston Daily Adverser and Patriot.]

At market 450 Beef Cattle, 10 pairs Working Oxen, 709 Sheep, and 775 Swine.

PRICES—BEEF CATTLE—Prices have declied form last week, and we reduce our quotations, viz—A few Extra 5 75 a $6; first quality 5 50 a 5 75; second quality 5 25 a 5 50; third quality 4 75 a $5.

Working Oxen—No sales noticed.

Sheep—Small lost from 1 50 to 2 62.

Swine— Dull. A lot of old Hogs 4 and 4-ac, and a lot at 3 1-and 4c. At retail, from 4 1-2 to 6c.

MARRIAGES.

In Salem Mr William Waters to Miss Lucy B Wright. Mr S. Stillman Field, of Boston, to Miss Catharine V. Mann of Salem. Mr Michael Brown, to Miss Caroline S. Pitman, daughter of Mr Mark Pitman. Mr John C. Hamilton to Miss Nancy Clark.

In Gloucester, John E Hunt, Esq., of New York, to Miss Belinda D., daughter of Mr. Solomon Friend.

In Bradford, Mr Israel A. Morse, to Miss Caroline P Ordway, of Newbury.

DEATHS.

In this town, Mrs Tapley, wife of Capt Perley Tapley.

In Salem Miss Mary Jones, aged 70. Miss Martha Kinsman, aged 16 years. Mr Nathan Porter, aged 55.

In West Newbury, on Thursday afternoon, suddenly Mr Moody Emery, aged 75

In Boston, George Joy Homer, Esq., aged 63, long known as a member of the late highly respected business firm of Homer, Homes & Co

In Eastham, 27th ult., Mr John Hopkins, a revolutionary soldier, aged 87.

In Fairfield, Me., May 27th, Mrs Abigail Archer, wife of Mr Andrew Archer, formerly of aged 67.

M. TELYEA

HAS a splendid assortment of BROADCLOTHS, DOESKINS, and VESTINGS, of the latest patterns, which are worthy the attention of purchasers.

GARMENTS CUT AND MADE, in the most fashionable style, or according to the fancy of the customer, and warranted to fit.

A lot of very nice SCARFS, and Gentlemen's LINEN GLOVES.

South Danvers, June 14, 1845.

Hosiery! Hosiery!

200 DOZEN of Hosiery and Gloves, just opened, this morning, which added to my large stock on hand, comprises a full assortment of 11 sizes, kinds and qualities, all of which will be sold at the lowest prices, at the Hosiery and Glove Store No. 236 Essex st., Salem, by R. H. CHAMBERLAIN,
june 14

Improved Curtain Fixtures.

A NEW and beautiful article of Curtain Fixtures, of American Manufacture, far superior to those now in use, and not so likely to get out of order. For sale wholesale and retail at the manufacturer's prices, at the Hosiery and Glove Store, No. 236 Essex street, Salem, by june 14 R. H. CHAMEERLAIN.

Bargains in Gloves and Hosiery,

At 24 Washington street.

A LOT of unbleached embroidered Cotton Hose received this day and selling for 25 cents.
Fine Bleached Hose, 12 1-2c; do brown do 12 1-2.
Boys' Mixed Socks of every size.
Children's Cotton, Lisle Thread, Silk and Kid Gloves.
june 14

NEW BOOKS.

DE ROHAN, or the Court Conspirator, by Eugene Sue.
Self, by the author of Cecil. Wyoming, a Tale.
Time Works Wonders, by Douglas Jerrold.
NEW MINIATURE VOLUMN. The Bouquet, containing the Poetry and Language of Flowers—with Elegant Colored Engravings—neatly bound, gilt.
Also, a fresh supply of the following neat miniature volumes:
The Bible and Closet, with a letter from Rev. Mr Kirk, 4th thousand—The Family Altar,—The marriage Ring, by James, 7th thousand—The Young Communicant—Daily Manna, by Baron Stow—The Cypress Wreath—The Casket of Four Jewels—Lyric Gems—The Mourner s Chaplet—The Active Christian, by Harris—The Family Circle—Golden Gems, by Flavel—For sale by the dozen or singls copy, at the Publishers prices.
MESMERISM AND PHRENOLOGY. Etherology, or the Philosphy of Mesmerism and Phrenology—by J. Stanley Grimes—1 vol 12mo with plates—Received at the Bookstore of june 14 W. S. CLEVELAND & CO.

STRIPED AND CHECK'D SHIRTS—A prime and good assortment, well made, at
june 14 EDWARDS, 14 Front St.

UMBRELLAS—UMBRELLAS—at june 14 EDWARDS 14 Front Street.

REV. MR BANVARD'S NEW QUESTION BOOK.—A practical Question Book on the duties which we owe to God and to each other, designed as a sequel to the Topical Question Book, with Hints and Anecdotes, illustrative of the subject

This volume owes its existence to the repeated requests of those who, after using the Topical Question Book, (of which 50,000 copies have been sold) have desired to follow it with another of a similar character. The difference consists in the subjects being Practical instead of Doctrinal. Superintendents, Teachers, and others interested in Sabbath Schools, are requested to examine this book before introducing any other.

Sabbath Schools supplied by the hundred or dozen, at the Depository prices, by june 14 WM. S. CLEVELAND & CO., opposite the Mansion House.

NEW GOODS.

RICH fig'd Black Silk Laces, for Mantillas; A large lot plain and emb'd Raw Silk Gloves; French style Parasoletes; Hair Cloth for skirts; Rich Emb'd Under Sleeves; fine Green Barege; Bonnet Ribbons at half price.

Also, a variety of Goods from New York Auctions, at
KEITH & MASON'S,
june 14 24 Washington street, Salem.

LINENS FOR SHIRTINGS. Just received a lot of heavy Linens, at 54 Washington street, and selling very low, One lot good Linens, at 25 cents.
june 14 KEITH & MASON.

DANVERS DYE HOUSE.

THE subscriber would inform the citizens of Danvers that he has established himself at Danvers Plains, near Maple street, where he will attend to the dyeing and cleansing all kinds of

SILK AND WOOLEN GOODS.

His former experience in England, added to his knowledge of the drugs and dyes in use in this country, will enable him to produce colors, which for cheapness and durability cannot be excelled by any other establishment.

☞Goods left at Mrs. Gould's, Main street South Danvers, or at the Dye House, will meet with prompt attention.
WILLIAM ROWBOTHAM.
Danvers Plains, June 7, 1845. tf

Great Bargains

ARE NOW BEING HAD AT THE

Washington Street Clothing Store, Salem.

GARMENTS of all description may be obtained at prices which cannot fail to give entire satisfaction.

Great care has been taken in the getting up of every garment, all of which is warranted equal, if not superior to any Clothing in the city.

The subscriber continues to take measures as formerly, and all Garments bespoken, will be made according to the wishes of the customer, and will guarantee both the style and fit.

☞BOY WANTED, as an Apprentice.
S. CHAMBERLAIN, JR.
Salem, March, 15. tf

French Goods from New York.

THE subscribers have opened this day, an assortment of French Goods to which they invite the attention of the ladies.

3 boxes Real French Embroidery Inside Hdkfs;
3 " " " " Collars, various styles.
3 " French Dentilla Laces, for Trimmings,
A variety of Thread Lace Insertions;
Real French Linen Cambric Hdkfs, hemmed stitch;
Embroidered Linen Cambric Hdkfs;
" Muslin for Dresses;
Boxes French Kid Gloves;
New styles Laces for Capes, some very rich.
The above Goods were selected on Wednesday in New York, and are of the very latest styles.
KEITH & MASON,
june 7 24 Washington street.

FOR SALE CHEAP.

One good second hand CHAISE,
" " " BUGGY WAGON.
" " " LIGHT WAGON.
By THOMAS TRASK, Main street:
June 7 tf

BENJAMIN EDWARDS,

DRAPER & TAILOR,

No. 14 FRONT STREET, SALEM.

GARMENTS Cut and Made to order, and Fashionably, and warranted to give entire satisfaction

Constantly on hand, a good assortment of
BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES, AND VESTINGS.
Also—Neck Stocks Italian Cravats, Scarfs. Shirt Bosoms, Collars, Feetings, Braces, Umbrellas, Hair and Clothes Brushes, Cologne Water, Wallets,
and other articles necessary for Gentlemen's use.

Grateful for the very liberal patronage which has heretofore been bestowed upon the establisment, he hopes by care and attention to business to merit a continuance.

Any order for Goods in the TAILORING LINE, attended to with fidelity and despatch.

All Garments Repaired and Cleansed CHEAP.

Any of the above articles if not on hand when called for, will be furnished at short notice.
mch 15 tf

COPARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

JONATHAN W. OSBORNE has taken into Copartnership MICHAEL L. WHIDDEN, and they will continue the

Painting, Glazing & Papering

business. at the old Stand, No 10 PARK STREET, under the firm of

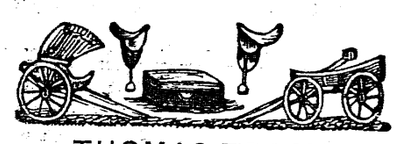
OSBORNE & WHIDDEN.

Particular attention to

SIGN PAINTING,

IMITATIONS OF WOOD, MARBLE, BRONZE, GROUND GLASS, &c.
mch 29 1y

REMOVAL.



BOWDOIN'S DAGUERROTYPE ROOMS removed from Mechanic Hall, to the adjoining building above, 298 Essex street, where he has rooms built expressly for the purpose of taking Miniatures in any weather.

Mr. B. tenders his sincere thanks to his friends and the public, for their liberal patronage the past year, and respectfully solicits the continuance of public favor. He has recently purchased a large Achromatic instrument for the purpose of taking GROUPS and LARGE PICTURES, which enable him to give pictures of all sizes, equal to those taken in New York or Boston He has formed a connexion with an establishment in New York, from whence he receives all the new improvements, and materials connected with the Art, which will enable him to give better pictures for less prices than can be obtained in Boston.

Miniatures set in every variety of Lockets, Frames, Cases, &c.

☞Persons visiting Salem, and those about going to sea, can have a perfect likeness completed in a few minutes' time.

 Miniatures set in a neat Morocco Case for $1 50. Exhibition rooms open to visiters through the day.
Salem, March 15. tf

THOMAS TRASK,

Near the Eagle, Main Street, Danvers,

KEEPS constantly on hand, a good assortment of

SADDLES AND HARNESSES,

of every kind and quality. Also—Fire Buckets, Solid Leather, Rivetted Double and Boot Top Travelling Trunks, Common Hair do., Valises and Carpet Bags, Chaise, Stage and Draught Collars, Military Equipments, etc.

ENGINE HOSE furnished at short notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

CHURCH CUSHIONS, of all kinds and quality, made at the shortest notice.

T. T. has on hand as good an assortment of Harnesses as can be found at any other establishment.

A good article of Neats Foot Oil, constantly on hand.
Danvers, June 7, 1845. 1y

JOSEPH SHED,

NOTARY PUBLIC AND ACTING MAGISTRATE,
Opposite the Monument.

All kinds of writing; conveyancing and Probate business attended to promptly.

☞A great variety of BLANKS constantly on hand, and for sale.
Danvers, May 24, 1845.

Witch Hazle, for Beds.

A FIRST rate article just received and for sale by CARTER & BATCHELDER.
April 19

Periodical Depot!!

REMOVAL.

LUTHER CHANDLER, the Proprietor of the Depot for PERIODICALS AND CHEAP PUBLICATIONS, formerly kept at No. 3, (on the East side of Washington street, has removed to the store,

Corner of Washington and Norman Streets,
(Directly opposite the Old Stand,)

where he intends to keep a full supply of all the Periodicals and New Works, as well as the Daily and Weekly Newspapers, as soon as they appear from the press.

In removing from the old stand he confidently hopes to receive the continued patronage of those who have formerly received his publications and he pledges himself that he will use his best exertions to procure all New Works promptly and sell them at the lowest prices.

His long experience and extensive acquaintance with those publishers and others engaged largely in the Book Trade will enable him to answer orders for particular Works, with great promptness, and at the most favorable prices.

REFRESHMENTS,

such as are usually kept at Restaurateurs, and SODA AND MEAD, will be furnished at the new stand, by S. SAUNDERS.

REMEMBER—Corner of Washington and Norman Sts., near the Railroad Station, Salem.
may 24 3m

Opening of Spring!

Magnificent, Chaste and Original Designs for Remodeling

"OAK HALL!"

FOR SPRING TRADE!

OPENING OF "OAK HALL" FOR THREE MONTHS!

Advice to Professional Men, Merchants Clerks with moderate Salaries, Farmers, Mechanics, Seamen, Firemen and others, VISIT OAK HALL!

ARRIVAL OF SPRING GOODS!
To Wholesale Dealers.

THE OPENING

This Morning, for Three Months!

I would again most respectfully inform the citizens of Boston, and strangers visiting the city, (after a delay of six weeks, during which time I have not been idle,) I have completed my arrangements on the most

MAGNIFICENT SCALE,

greatly surpassing my former arrangements. The Hall is splendidly decorated with almost

MAGIC ELEGANCE!

The architecture being Gothic, has given the artist an opportunity to display his taste to advantage. The paintings which adorn the walls are so perfectly chaste and appropriate, that every one will be fully compensated the trouble of visiting it. The design and effect of the interior, especially when

ILLUMINATED IN THE EVENING.

Is unequalled in any store this side of the Atlantic. Much praise is due to the artist, for his share in beautifying this Establishment. I flatter myself that the good taste of my fellow citizens and townsmen will fully appreciate all I have done, as my Establishment was the FIRST and ONLY ONE, that adopted the

"EXTREME LOW PRICE SYSTEM,"

Before "OAK HALL" was in existence, it was not a very uncommon thing for a gentleman to pay from $45 to $50 for a suit of clothes. For one half of this sum or less, a perfect and entire suit can be obtained at this Establishment, cut and made with that ease, and distinguish my garments from others. From this

EMPORIUM OF FASHION

first originated the Gothic style of architecture in Boston, and Oak Painting, &c. now so much in fashion. To those who have not visited this great

PLACE OF RESORT,

on account of the name of the street, I would most respectfully say, that where my establishment is located was once the Court end of Boston, and at this time is visited and patronized by the most influential and respectable individuals. Man, not unlike the fields, and Trees, once covered with a beautiful suit of Green is now breaking from its Coat of Ice and Snow and, having its Easy suit of nature soon to be warmed into animation, and renew its beautiful suit of Green. So with Man—wrapped up in his Overcoat, he now on the opening of Spring, finds his under suit rusty and shabby, and is not suitable to wear. The next thing is to find a good place to fit out at a

REASONABLE PRICE,

and to be sure and have a GOOD FITTING SUIT, that will set upon the form with ease, grace and gentility.

FIVE GOOD REASONS

Why you can purchase at OAK HALL less than at any other Establishment in the United States:

FIRST—You do not pay me for YOUR suit, and the INDIVIDUAL'S that did not pay previous to you, as MY business is Cash on delivery.

SECOND—If any Garment made to order is not pleasing in every particular, it is no inconvenience to take it back and make another, as Ready Made Garments are directly in my line.

THIRD—I purchase my Goods in large lots, extremely cheap, and give my customers the benefit, by selling them at the smallest advances,

Fourth—I go by the motto.

LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS
OR AS SOME SAY,
"NO PROFITS AT ALL."

That I'll leave with my customer to decide.

FIFTH—My facilities are such at this time doing a

LARGE BUSINESS,

that I can afford to sell at

VERY LOW PRICES!

BOYS' CLOTHING.

I have lately added to my already extensive manufactory of Boys' Clothing, rooms for the manufacture of Boys' Clothing, and shall keep a large supply of every variety and kind, always on hand.

TO WHOLESALE DEALERS.

You will find the greatest variety of every style of Fresh Manufactured Clothing, adapted for Spring, to your different Trades, and will be sold extremely low in large lots!

AT RETAIL.

One of the largest and, best selected Stock of Fresh Spring Goods ever in "OAK HALL," and will be sold at the following low prices.—

PANTALOONS.

2500 pair of Fancy Spring patterns of Satinet Pants, at	1 75 to 2 50
3000 pair Steel Mixt Pants,	1 62 to 3 00
2200 do Sheeps Grey Pants	1 75 to 3 00
2500 do Canada Grey do,	1 75 to 3 00
3000 do Black Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 50
5000 do Lavender Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 00
2200 do Super black do Pants, with fancy stripe,	4 00 to 5 00
1500 Super blue Broadcloth and Cassimere Pants	3 50 to 4 50

THIN COATS.

3500 Coats and Sacks, American Gingham,	75 to 1 00
5000 Coats and Sacks, Scotch Gingham,	1 25 to 1 75
4000 Coats and Sacks Scotch Gingham, satin figure,	1 50 to 1 75
2700 Coats and Sacks, Webster Check	75 to 1 25
3750 Coats and Sacks, London Plaids,	1 25 to 175
4000 Coats and Sacks, of Linen and othergoods,	1 00 to 1 75

THIN PANTS.

9000 pair thin Pants of every quality of Goods at low prices, say from 50 cents to $2 50 per pair.
VESTS.
300 light Vests, a very pretty affair for Spring,	50c to 1 00
4500 Dark Valencia,	75 to 1 50
5500 Fine Valencia, dark and light	1 50 to 2 50
2700 Satin Vests, figured and plain,	2 00 to 3 00

DRESS AND FROCK COATS.

5000 super Dress Coats, all colors, green, blue, black, olive, &c. from $4 to $15.
1750 super Frock Coats, all colors, Mulberry, browns, etc. from $6 to $16.
All the above cut in the latest style, and made up expressly for Spring Trade.
500 Business Coats, at low prices, say from $2 to $5.
2200 Tweed Coats, water proof, from $3,75 to $5.

FURNISHING DEPARTMENT.

Great Display of Furnishing Goods at the following low prices, viz:

150	dozen White Shirts—Linen Bosoms, Collars and Ribbands.	75c to 1 25 each
100	do White Shirts, plain.	50c to 75c do
150	do Fancy Shirts,	62 1-2 to 87 1-2
200	do Twilled Shirts,	50 to 62 1-2 do
25	do Rich Figured Satin Scarfs,	Low prices.
20	do do do do do
50	do do do do do
50	do Spring Pattern Cravats,	12 1-2 to 75c
25	do Rich Fig'd Satin do.	75c to 1 25
50	do Stocks, of every description, such as Satin Bombazine, &c. and made in the latest Spring Style, 1845	37 1-2 to 1 50
10	do Brussells Carpet Bags, and others,	1 00 to 2 75
75	do Smoking Caps,	12 1-2 to 25c
200	do Braces of every description,	12 1-2 to 50c
20	do best Kid Gloves,	50c to 1 00
25	do Thread do	25 to 50c
20	do Silk do	50 to 75c
100	do Linen Bosoms—all kinds,	25 to 75c
300	do do Collars, latest pattern,	10 to 25c
250	do Canes,	17c to 1 00
325	do Umbrellas,	50c to 1 50
50	do Glazed Silk Caps,	1 00 to 1 25
100	do do do	25 to 37c
505	do Silk Pocket Hdkfs	25 to 75c

An endless variety of Fancy Articles, such as Gold and Fancy Studs—Hair Brushes—Clothes do—Pocket Combs—Dressing do—Tooth Brshes—Cologne—Bosom Pins—Fancy Soaps—Silk Purses—Guard Chains—Pant Straps, &c. &c.

A LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO THE TRADE.

My furnishing Goods are purchased from first rate hands, at low prices, and will be sold at small advance to the trade at my

EXTENSIVE LONG ROOMS,
OAK HALL BUILDING,
GEORGE W. SIMMONS,
General Tailor, Draper and Outfitter,
32, 34, 36, and 38 Ann street
Opposite Merchant's Row—BOSTON.
apr 19 3m

Danvers Express and Baggage Waggon

LEAVES Danvers and Boston, daily (Sundays excepted.)

All orders left at McIntire's Hotel, or Poole & Jacobs' store Danvers, No. 14 Blackstone, and No. 1 Fulton streets, Boston, will be promptly attended to.

Goods handled with care.
S. F. TOWN.

REMOVAL.

SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

Rich Jewelry and Fancy Goods,

HAVE removed to the New Store, No. 291 Essex street, (next above Mechanic Hall) where they will keep constantly for sale Gold Finger Rings, Breast Pins, Bracelets, Lockets, Keys, Gold and Silver Pencil Cases, Silver Thimbles, Silver and Plated Table and Tea Spoons, Butter Knives, Silver Plated and Brittania Ware, Shell, Horn, and Ivory Combs, Pocket Books, Purses, &c., &c.

N. B. All kinds of Jewelry repaired in a superior manner and warranted. Old Gold or Jewelry, made over or exchanged for new.

S. & C. having acquired a thorough knowledge of the business in New York, as well as our success for the past five years in this city, will, we feel assured, enable us to execute with approbation any orders entrusted to our care.

☞Thankful for past patronage, we solicit a continuance of the same. tf March 15.

S. R. BOTT,

DRAPER & TAILOR,

No. 148 Essex Street, Salem,

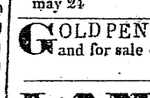
TAKES this method of informing the public of Danvers and vicinity that he has for sale one of the richest and BEST selected assortments of Broadcloths, Cassimeres & Vestings ever before offered in Salem. The Stock is of the latest Spring and Summer styles, and cannot be surpassed by any establishment in the city, which will be sold by the yard, or made into Garments, in a style that CANNOT be surpassed in this or any other city.

☞Strangers from the country would do well to call at this establishment, as they select their Goods with the most perfect confidence, that each article is as good in quality, and as low in price as can be obtained at any other store.

N. B. The report of Fashions received every month.
Salem, March 15, 1845.

W. D. JOPLIN,

Draper and Tailor.



NEARLY opposite the Monument, keeps for sale at the lowest prices,

Broadcloths, Cassimeres and Vestings and Trimmings.

Also— A good assortment of READY MADE CLOTHING.

PANTS from 1 to 4 dollars;
VESTS from 75 cents to 2 00.
Green Jackets, Overhauls, Thin Clothing, Hats, Suspenders, &c. may 3

House and Land for Sale.

The subscriber offers for sale a large two story Dwelling House, on Holton street convenient for two families, and in good repair. The said house now rents for $120 per annum, and will be sold low.

Terms of sale will be easy for the purchaser, as a large part of the amount may remain on mortgage. Apply to
may 24 tf WM. SUTTON.

GOLD PENS. A superior article just received and for sale cheap by G. W. & E. CRAFTS.
174 Essex St. Salem.

LAMP BLACK.

1000 POUNDS of Lamp Black, warranted a prime article.

3000 Madras Goat Skins, in crust. Goat and Sheep Morocco. Kid, Linings, and Bindings.
For sale by W. & M. BLACK Jr.,
apr 12 New Mills, Danvers.

AUCTIONS.

BY DOWLEY & WHALL,
[Store Nos 21 and 22 Pearl street, Boston

On WEDNESDAY, June 18 at 10 o'clock, at office BOOTS, SHOES AND BROGANS. 400 Boots, Shoes and Brogans.

On Tuesday, July 8th, at 10 o'clock, at office, BOOTS, SHOES AND BROGANS. 700 cases Shoes and Brogans.

On Wednesday, July 23d, at 10 o'clock, at office BOOTS, SHOES AND BROGANS. 2000 cases Shoes and Brogans.

The above sales comprise a prime stock of goods, every case on the catalogues will be sold without the le serve.

At Private Sale.

Book Binders. 7 crates, (3000 pounds) Russet L pieces suitable for Book Binders, of good color.
Split Leather—2000 lbs light Slaughter Splits.
Kidd—50 dozen Madras Kid, No. 2.
Linings—200 dozen Cochsneal and White Linings
Wax Leather—300 sides prime Slaughter Wax.
African Kipp—1000 sides African Kip.
Grain Leather—500 sides oak and hemlock Grain.
Calf Skins—200 dozen light and heavy Calf Skins.
Linings, in crust—500 dozen White Linings in cru
Baltimore Leather—200 sides light Slaughter Sole le
New York Sole Leather—1100 sides light and midd Caroga Tannery.

THE
Massachusetts Mechanic Association
HAVING AWARDED TO

GOVE, LOCKE & C

and no one else, a DIPLOMA for specimens

The Best Ready Made Clothi

Exhibited by them at the Mechanics' Fair in Sember last, must satisfy the community that the lo of an establisment is of but little importance, that the idea of being confined to a particular s of the city, in order to obtain a

GENTEEL GARMENT

has been rendered obsolete, by the above nam ward, as without prejudice the award was ma those who deserved it Being convinced themse that their CUSTOM WORK has not been surp in any point of view, still they have been oblige stem the current against the strongest prejudices have, by unremitted attention to the tastes and de of their patrons, to a very considerable extent, come them, resulting in a successful trade, and couraging them to prosecute the NEW ENGL BRANCH OF THEIR BUSINESS, with ren vigor, and to devote a large share of their atte the present season, to the Highest Grade of Custom Wo

Being now prepared with every facility adapte the various classes in the community, they can nish any style of Garment which their notion or may dictate—aiming

In point of Style and Fashion,
to be in advance of any other
CLOTHING ESTABLISHMENT

and being at all times supplied with materials of ery description, they are prepared to turn out at shortest notice

AS GOOD AND AS GENTEEL A GARME as can be obtained in the United States, and have tire confidence in making the assertion, having ters constantly

ENGAGED ON CUSTOM WORK:

who are inferior to none in this region, enabling t to assure those who have favored them with t patronage, that no pains will be spared to deserve continuance of their support—and to those who situated on

COMMERCIAL STREET,

they would say that a specimen of their work can seen in nearly everysection of the city, particula on the backs of

THE MOST GENTEEL PEOPLE

and to them they refer, in relation not only to treatment which is universally tendered to them all concerned in the

COMMERCIAL ARCADE

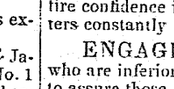
but more especially in regard to the price as the P prietors have by experience ascertained that they furnish a

FIRST RATE GARMENT!

at a medium price, equal in every respect to th furnished up in town, at an exhorbitant one. Th Stock of Clothing, adapted to the

SPRING SALES!

is far superior to any previous year, and the patr age of the public is respectfully invited, whether pursuit of a single garment or otherwise, as their sto embraces every article essential or requisite to t wardrobe of a gentleman, while its magnitude en bles them to supply COUNTRY DEALERS in a quantity at the shortest notice, and on the best terms



WHOLESALE DEALERS!

located any where from Maine to Georgia, or ev in Texas, can find at this concern an assortment Wearing Apparel adapted to their sales, and are i vited before concluding their

SPRING PURCHASES!
—TO CALL—
At No. 60 Commercial street
BOSTON,

Sign of the Monument,—and visit the proprietors'

COMMERCIAL ARCADE,
GOVE, LOCKE & COMPANY.
Boston, March 29, 1845. 3m

FOR SALE.

A two story house and lot of lan on Holton street. The House is co venient for two families and will sold at a great bargain. Inquire of
HIRAM GRANT.
Danvers, April 19, 1845.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law
OFFICE IN FELTON'S (late Osborne's) Building.
Danvers, March 29th. tf

NEW LIME.

CONSTANTLY on hand and for sale by
may 31 CARTER & BATCHELDER.

TOPOGRAPHICAL MAP OF PALESTINE by J. H. Colton. Compiled principally from the observations of Messrs Robinson and Smith. The religious Press and many of the secular papers have spoken in high terms of this map. For sale by G. W. & E. CRAFTS.
174 Essex St. Salem.

DOESKINS AND CASSIMERES.

A NEW lot Stripes, Plaids, and Clouded Doeskins Black, Blue Black, and Lavender Cassimeres just received at EDWARDS,
may 3 14 Front street.

KENDALL'S CHURNS.—A fresh supply of the various sizes, also, the different sizes of the SHAKER CHURNS, for sale at
apr 26 J. & H. HALE'S, 215 Essex st.

TWEED COATS. Another lot of just received and selling cheaper than the last lot may 10 at EDWARDS', 14 Front street Salem.

TEMPERANCE ANECDOTE. A few months ago, two ladies, who were very active members of a temperance society in this city, heard of a poor woman who was intemperate, but who was notwithstanding, possessed of many amiable traits of character. They resolved immediately to call upon her, and if possible, get her signature to the temperance pledge. They set out in the afternoon on their message of mercy. With considerable difficulty they succeeded in finding the dwelling where she resided. Many poor families dwelt under the same roof. But at length they entered the room occupied by the family, the mother of which they sought. A woman in middle life was seated in a chair in the middle of the floor, with two, trunks before her, apparently arranging the clothes.

The ladies introduced themselves to the woman, and told her plainly but kindly, of the object of their visit. For a moment the woman appeared perfectly amazed, her lip trembled, tears stood in her eyes, her cheeks turned pale, and then clasping her hands with fervor, she looked upward and exclaimed, "My God is it possible?"

The ladies were uncertain what might be the cause of the manifestation of this deep emotion, when the woman put her hand into her bosom and drawing out a shilling showed it to be the ladies, saying, "this money I have placed in my bosom, intending this afternoon to purchase poison with it, that I might to-night put an end to my wretched existence. And I was just now engaged in sorting out the clothes of my poor children to relieve my poor husband, as much as possible, from embarrassment after my death."

Encouraged by the interest which these benevolent ladies manifested in her behalf, this poor woman resolved to make a new effort.—She said she had endeavored again and again to escape from the thraldom of this terrible vice, but had been utterly unable to do so. But cheered and strengthened by the sympathy of those who had thus came to lend her a helping hand, she signed the pledge. Eighteen months have now passed away, and she is a temperate woman, and her home is the abode of frugality and peace.—Evangelist.

Spread it on Thick. Yesterday forenoon a plainly dressed person, evidently from the country, was seen wending his way up the street towards the canal, for the purpose of taking a passage west. Upon arriving at the dock he was beset by the crowd of agents and runners that infest the place, each vociferously recommending his own particular boat, and making at the same time an uproar that might have passed off for a fair representation of Ancient Babel. The poor man listened, so far as he was able, to their various, stories and became each moment more and more perplexed. He was finally relieved by the appearance of an agent for a line boat, a cook we believe, of rather large dimension, and blessed with a pair of lungs about the size of a blacksmith's bellows, who represented that his boat, which was just ready to start was furnished with one of "Francis' Improved Life Boats"—one of "Evans Patent Steam Safety Valves',—and had on board a number of Life Preservers to be used in case of accident. He also said that he would go through to Buffalo "without stopping." The countryman swallowed the whole of this rigmarole, stepped joyfully on board amid shouts of laughter, congratulating himself that should he be wrecked on the "raging canawl" there was a chance, by means of the life boat and preservers, of getting safely to land. [Roch. Dem

HARRISON'S REMEDY
FOR THE PILES.

THIS is an ointment prepared by the undersigned, and has been so thoroughly tested in so many cases that it can now be recommended with confidence to those who will give it a fair trial, observing the directions around each box which give a plain treatise on the disease and full instructions as to diet mode of cure, &c. One application at night never fails to relieve the greatest pain and anguish. I am ready to refer to numerous individuals who have proved this Remedy to be the safest, surest, speediest and cheapest

CURE FOR THE PILES.

My agent in Exeter writes thus: "the Pile Remedy which you left me is all sold, please send me soon a further supply, as a number of persons in this town think very highly of it. N. GILMAN"

MORE TESTIMONY.

Salem, Aug. 6. Mr. Harrison: The box of ointment which I had from you has worked like a charm—I have used it only one night, and I am cured. I had used Hays' Liniment as I stated to you, with no benefit but rather was worse, it causing more inflammation. Yrs, J. W.

BLEEDING PILES CURED.

Mr. Harrison—Having given your Peristaltic Lozenges and Pile Remedy a fair trial, I have the satisfaction to inform you that they have operated wonderfully in my case. I had not been able for months to do any work at my trade, owing to exhaustion from bleeding, but I now feel myself cured. The severe pain which I had in my stomach is gone, and my strength is fast returning. I had used various remedies to no purpose, until I tried your medicine. I can also state that Capt. Benj. Ireson of this town has also experienced great benefit from your Remedy. I cheerfully recommend the medicine to all suffering with that distressing complaint—the Piles.

EDWARD H. LEWIS.

Lynn, Sept. 27, 1844.

For sale at 256 Essex street, by the Proprietor,
J. S. HARRISON Jr.,

Agents—in Danvers, S. PROCTOR, Jr.; Marblehead—E. Arnold; Lynn—Ladd, and Holder; Beverly—Clarke; Newburyport—C. Whipple; Andover—Amos Abbott; Topsfield—Bixby and Merriam; Haverhill—Nichol; Boston—Ransom & Stevens, Tompkins, Southers and Fowle.

mch 15 6m

IMPROVED CULITVATORS,

A complete assortment now on hand, at
J. & H. HALE'S,
May 3. tf 215 Essex street Salem.

Ploughs & Cultivators,
MANUFACTURED BY
RUGGLES, NOURSE & MASON,
And other Agricultural Tools,
FOR SALE BY
DANIEL RICHARDS,
Danvers Plains, March 29, 1845.

NEW ENGLAND
TRUSS MANUFACTORY.

THE subscriber continues to manufacture Trusses of every description, at his residence at the old stand, opposite 264, No. 305 Washington street, Boston, entrance in Temple Avenue, up stairs. All individuals can see him alone, at any time, at the above place.

Having had twenty years' experience, he has afforded relief to three thousand persons, for the last five years. All may rest assured of relief who call and try a Truss of his manufacture. He is now confident he can give every individual relief who may call upon him.

The public are cautioned against the many quacks who promise what they cannot perform.

Having worn the different kinds of Trusses, more or less; that have been offered to the public for the last twenty years, from different patent manufactories, and now continues to wear those of his own manufacture, he is now able to decide, after examining the rapture, what sort of Truss is best to adopt to all the cases that occur; and he has on hand as good Trusses, and will furnish any kind of a Truss that can be had elsewhere.

J. F. F. manufactures as many as twenty different kinds of Trusses, among which are all the different kinds similar to those that the late Mr. John Beath, of this city, formerly made, and all others advertised in Boston, together with the patent elastic spring Truss, with the spring pads.—Trusses without steel springs—these give relief in all cases of rupture, and a large proportion produce a perfect cure—they can be worn day and night; improved hinge and pivot Truss; umbellical spring Trusses, made in four different ways; Trusses with ball and socket joints, Trusses, for Prolapsus Ani, by wearing which persons troubled with a descent of the rectum can ride on horseback with perfect ease and safety.

Mr. Foster also makes Trusses for Prolapus Uteri, which have answered in cases where pessaries have failed. Suspensory Trusses, knee caps, and back board, are always kept on hand As a matter of convenience and not of speculation, the undesigned will keep on hand the following kinds from other manufactories, which they can have, if his does not suit them; after a fair trial they can exchange for any of them;—Dr. Hull,s Read's spiral Truss; Rundel's do; Salmon's ball and socket; Sherman's patent; French do; Marsh s Improved Truss; Bateman s do, double and single. Stone s Truss; also, Trusses for children of all sizes.

Any kind of Trusses repaired at short notice, and made as good as when new.

Ladies wishing for any of these instruments, will be waited upon by Mrs. Foster, at the above place. Mrs. F. has been engaged in the above business for ten years.

He likewise informs individuals he will not make their complaints known to any one, except when he is permitted to refer to them—it being a misfortune, and young persons do not want their cases known.

The readers of this paper, are respectfully invited to call and examine the variety of Trusses now on hand.

May 31 JAMES FREDERICK FOSTER.

DRUGS AND MEDICINES.

A GOOD assortment of Drugs, Medicines, usually kept in a Druggist Shop, constantly for sale at the lowest prices, by

DR. JOSEPH SHED, (Ag't.)
(OPPOSITE THE MONUMENT,)

And a variety of Patent Medicine, consisting of Brinckerhoff's Health Restorative; Buchan's Hungarian Balsam; Schenck's Pulmonary Balsam; Trufant's Compound; Dandelion and Tomato Bitters; Davis' Compound Tooth Wash; Harrison's Peristaltic, and Worm Lozenges; Thompson's Eye Water; Warren's Croup Syrup; Whitwell's Opodeldock; Different kinds of Pulmonary Balsams, and genuine Thomsonian Medicines; Jew David's or Hebrew Plaster; Lo, Brandreth s, Indian Vegetable, Beckwith s, Lees' Dean s, Parr s, Richardson s, Relf's Asthmatic, and a variety of other Pills. Candies, Nuts, Almonds, Citron, Currants, Nutmegs, Mace, Cloves, &c. Particular attention to Physician's Recipes.

Danvers, May 31, 1845.

NEW LUMBER WHARF.

THE subscriber having taken the wharf, called the WEST wharf, near the Bridge, in South Salem, would take this opportunity to inform his friends and the public generally, that he intends to keep for sale an assortment of BOARDS, JOIST, CLAPBOARDS, SHINGLES. PICKETS, LATHS, etc. etc., of as good quality as can be found in the city.

He has now on hand 200,000 dry Boards and Plank for sale, and all wishing to purchase, are respectfully invited to call and examine for themselves.

He has also made arrangements at the Eastward for furnishing Dimension Frames, and filling orders of every description, at short notice.

Having been a practical builder for the last fifteen years, the subscriber flatters himself that his knowledge of the business, and the Lumber trade generally, will enable him to give satisfaction to those who may favor him with their patronage.

As he will be at the Eastward part of the time, he will be Lumber, &c. He has made arrangements with Mr. A. F. CLARK to be on the wharf during business hours, who will wait upon those who may favor him with a call.

Salem, May 10, 1845. tf H. B. WARD.

REMOVAL.
DR. J. A. ROBINSON,
SURGEON DENTIST,
SALEM,

WOULD respectfully give notice that he has removed from his old stand, opposite the City Hall, to No. 20 Washington street, recently occupied by A. E. Phillips, where he is ready to perform all operation, in Dentistry, in a most thorough and workmanlike manner.

His experience and success in inserting whole sets either by atmospheric pressure or springs, enables him to furnish them at rates which cannot fail to suit those in want of an article of superior quality.

His method of inserting Teeth, both singly and on plate, with or without Gums, has been found to be satisfactory and successful as combining beauty of finish and adaptation, with all the requisites of mastication and articulation.

Particular attention paid to filling Teeth so as to render them serviceable for many years, and also to the regulation of Children's Teeth.

N. B. For sale as above, a first rate article of TOOTH POWDER. 6m mch 15.

JUST received a full assortment of the celebrated EAGLE PLOUGH, improved. Also, Garden Rakes & Partridge's celebrated Manure Forks, Rakes, Hoes, and Castings for repairing the various parts of almost all kinds of Ploughs now in use.

J. & H. HALE, 215 Essex st. Salem.
May 3

Flour, Corn, Oats, Shorts, &c.
Landing from schr Pioneer,
200 BARRELS Genesee Flour;
20 1-2 do do do
500 bushels Mealing Corn;
500 do Yellow do
500 do Shorts;
20 bbls Pea Beans;
4 bbls Marrowfat Peas;
100 bags Fine Salt;
—Also, in store—
100 bushels Killam Oats, for seed;
100 do Herds Grass Seed;
100 do Red Top do do;
500 do Clover do; (Northern;
For sale by DANIEL RICHARDS,
At the old and well known stand on the Plains.
North Danvers, April 19, 1845.

NECK STOCKS, SCARFS, CRAVATS, TIES, ITALIAN CRAVATS.

A GOOD assortment of the above just received
EDWARDS'S,
apr 5 14 Front street, Salem.

New Furniture Store.
SALEM FURNITURE & FEATHER WARE-HOUSE.
205 1-2 ESSEX STREET. 205 1-2
(Two Doors East from the Market,)

JOSEPH WALLIS would respectfully inform his friends and the public that he has taken the rooms recently occupied by T. Needham, Esq., where he will keep constantly on hand, and for sale an extensive and well selected assortment of which he will sell at the lowest cash prices, among which may be found,

CABINET FURNITURE,

Sofas, Sofa Beds; Windlass, Cot Trundle and common Bedsteads; Secretaries; Bureaus; Mahogany, Card, Work, Centre and Dining Tables;—Mahogany, Cane-seat and common Chairs; Mahogany, Cane-back and common Rocking Chairs;—Children's Toy, Rocking and Dining Chairs; Settees and Settee Cradles; Cribs; Grecian and common Wash Stands; Portable Sinks; Portable and Gentleman's Writing Desks, Toilet, Dining and common Pine Tables; Looking Glasses; Swing and Toilet Glasses. Fancy Boxes, a great variety;—Matresses; and every article usually found in his line of business.

CLOCKS.

J. W. intends keeping on hand a large and well selected assortment of Wood and Brass Clocks from the best of manufacturers—all of which we can feel confident in warranting. Those about purchasing this article will do well to call.

FEATHERS.

Live Geese and common Feathers; a great variety.

N B. J. W. will still continue to Manufacture FURNITURE at the Old Stand, No 29 Lafayette, corner of Ward street, where he will keep on hand a good assortment of

Cabinet Furniture, Feathers, Looking Glasses and Clocks.

Salem, April 12, 1845.

Spring Goods.

THE subscribers would inform the ladies of Danvers and vicinity that are now receiving the best assortment of Goods in their line, adapted to the Spring Trade, to which they invite particular attention. We give below a catalogue of Goods which we have recently received.

WHITE GOODS.

Plain Cambric and Cambric Muslins of every quality;
Plaid, striped and fig'd do do do;
Plain, Plaid and Striped Swiss Muslins;
Plain Book, Sacarilla and Tarlatan Muslins;
Muslins for Curtains in stripes and figures;
Bleached Cottons, of the best manufactures.

LINEN GOODS.

Linen Sheetings; Pillow Case Linen; Linen Shirtings; Superfine Linens for Bosoms and Collars; Linen Damask, by the yard; Damask Table Covers, of all qualities, sizes and prices; Damask Napkins; Doylies Towels; Linen Diaper; Huckabuck and Crash.

All Linens sold at this store are guaranteed free from any mixture of Cotton.

LACE GOODS.

Thread Edgings, of every width and price;
Lisle, Gimpeur, Meline, Ashburton, Polka, Smyrna and Dentilla Laces, at prices varying from 1 cent to $2 per yd
Plain and Fig'd Blond, Brussels, Bobbinett and Polka Laces, for Caps, Capes, etc.

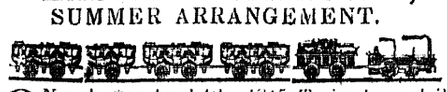
MILLINERY GOODS.

50 different styles of Bonnet Ribbons, many of which have been purchased at Auction, and can be sold at decided bargains. Straw Bonnets; Flowers; Tabs; Ruches; Bonnet Crowns; Bonnet Wire; Foundation Muslin; Crown Linings; Crapes, etc.

EMBROIDERIES.

New style Emb'd Inside Hdkfs, with and without collars, at prices varying from 58 cents to $5 00.
Embroidered Muslin Collars, from 37 1-2c to $2.
do Under Sleeves and Cuffs.

HOSIERY AND GLOVES.



Our assortment of Hosiery consists of nearly 300 dozen of every style of Bleached and Brown Cotton Hose; Black and Mode colored Cotton Hose;
English Lisle Thread Hose;
Raw Silk Hose and 1-2 Hose;
Blk and White Spun Silk do;
Misses Hosiery in great variety.
100 dozen Kid Gloves, in White, black, Lavender and Mode colors;
Lisle Thread Gloves for Ladies and Children;
Raw Silk do do do;
White and colored Silk for Gentlemen;
Picnic and Mohair Gloves and Mitts;

THREAD AND FANCY GOODS.

German and Zephy Worsteds; Needles; Pins;
Yarns and Knitting Worsteds; Oiled Silks;
Steel Beads; Purse Ornaments; Purse Twists;
Bag and Mat Cords; Twists; Braids; and a thousand things which we have not room to mention.

☞ The Ladies are invited, when desirous of purchasing or examining any of the above named Goods, to call at
No. 24 Washington Street, Salem, near Railroad Depot.
may 10 KEITH & MASON.

EASTERN RAILROAD,
SUMMER ARRANGEMENT.

ON and after April 4th, 1845, Trains leave daily (Sundays excepted,)

Boston for Portland, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P. M.
" Portsmouth, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 5 1 2 P.M.
" Somersworth, Great Falls, 7 1-4 A M.; 2 1-2 P.M.
" for Newburyport, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 and 5 1-2 P.M.
" for Salem, 7 1-4, 9, A.M., 12 1-4 2 1-2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2, 7 1-2 P.M.

Salem for Portland, 8 A.M., 3 1-4 P.M.
Salem for Portsmouth and Newburyport, 8 A.M., 3 1-4, 6 1-4 P M.
Portland for Boston, 7 1-2 A.M., 3 P.M.
Saco for Boston, 8 A.M., 3 1-2 P.M.
Somersworth, Great Falls for Boston, 8 3-4 A. M. 4 1-4 P.M.
Portsmouth for Boston, 6 1-2, 10,* A.M., 5 1-2* P.M.
Newburyp't for Boston, 7 1-4, 10 3-4* AM. 6 1-4 PM
Salem for Boston, 7, 8 1-2, 10 1-4 11 3-4,* A.M 2 1-4, 5, 7,* P.M.
*Or on their arrival from the East.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Trains leave Marblehead for Salem, at 7 1-4, 8 1-4, 10, A.M.; 2, 4, 4 3-4, 7, P.M.

Leave Salem for Marblehead, at 8, 9 3-4 A. M. 1, 3 1-4, 4 1-4, 61-4, 8 1-4 P.M.

A Merchandize Train will leave Boston, Portland and all intermediate places every day.

Freight Office in Boston, No. 17 Merchants Row, and on the line of the road at the several Depots.

JOHN KINSMAN,
apr 12 Master of Transportation.

Summer Arrangement of the
DANVERS AND SALEM
HOURLY COACHES

THE Danvers and Salem Hourly Coaches will in connection with the Eastern Railroad, leave Danvers and Salem at the following hours, viz:

Leave Danvers at	6 1-2	A.M.	Leave Salem at	8	A.M.
" "	8		" "	9 1-2
" "	9 3-4		" "	11 1-2
" "	11 1-4		" "	12 3-4
" "	1 3-4	P M.	" "	3	P.M
" "	2 3-4		" "	4
" "	4 1-2		" "	6
" "	6 1-2		" "	8

For seats apply at Macintire's Hotel, or at Joseph G Shed's store in Danvers, and at the Essex House and Salem Hotel in Salem.

Railroad passengers taken at the depot on the arrival of the cars from Boston and the East.

☞ Extra Coaches furnished at any hour on reasonable terms
apr 19 tf SYMONDS & TEEL.

J. & H. HALE,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
HARD WARE GOODS AND CUTLERY,
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
HOUSE KEEPING ARTICLES AND FANCY GOODS,
Agricultual Tools and Ploughs
PLOUGH CASTINGS, FRICTION ROLLERS AND CRANKS,
Iron and Copper Pumps and Lead Pipe,
WINDOW GLASS,
CAMPHENE,
CAMPHENE LAMPS, HANGING, SIDE AND ASTRAL—A GREAT VARIETY OF STYLES,
Cut Glass, Britannia, Brass, Bronze and Mantle Lamps,
CARPENTER'S TOOLS,
HOUSE TRIMMINGS,
Shoe Makers' Tools, Nails, Thread and Pegs,
BOILER DOORS AND OVEN MOUTHS,
Furnaces, Cast Iron Hollow Ware, Tubs, Pails, Mats, Cut Nails, Emery, Zinc, Lead, &c.
No. 215 Essex Street, SALEM, Mass.
march 15 tf

DOWLEY & WHALL,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, AND
AUCTIONEERS,
FOR THE SALE OF
Boots, Shoes, Leather and all kinds of Shoe Stock, at Private and Auction Sale,
Nos. 21 and 22 PEARL Street,
Levi A. Dowley, } BOSTON.
Joseph B. Whall, }
Cash liberally advanced on Boots, Shoes and Shoe Stock, for private and public sales.
—References—
Messrs. Jos. Whitney & Co., } Boston.
" Josiah M. Jones, Esq., }
" Spofford, Tileston, & Co., }
" Shepard Knapp, Esq., } New York.
" C. M. Leupp & Co., }
" Haddock, Hazletine & Reed, Philadelphia
" Poland, Jenkins & Co., Baltimore.
" Friend, Humphrey & Co., Albany.
mch 29 1y

G. W & E. CRAFTS,
BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURERS AND STATIONERS,
174 ESSEX STREET, SALEM,

HAVE constantly on hand, and will manufacture to order, all kinds of Blank Books, from the best paper, ruled to any pattern, and bound in a neat and substantial manner.

FINE STATIONERY,

of almost ever description, adapted for counting rooms and schools, comprising in part, Letter and Writing Papers, ruled and plain; Drawing Papers; Note, Tissue and Wrapping Papers; Wafers; Sealing Wax; Seals and Steel Pens of every variety; Quills of every description; wafer Cups; sand boxes; writing fluids and inks; penknives; razors, &c.

PRINTING, RULING AND BINDING.

Printing of shop bills, cards, bill heads, catalogues, &c. executed in the neatest manner and on the best terms. Ruling, to any pattern desired, at short notice. Binding, of every description, executed with despatch.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

A constant supply of school books, of the best editions, together with every kind of School Stationery. Also, all kinds of miscellaneous books furnished at the lowest rates. mch 15

EASY SHAVING AND
HAIR CUTTING.

B. B. WILLIAMS respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has removed to the store formerly occupied by Lambert & Merrill, (under the Courier Office,) which he has fitted up in a neat manner, and is now prepared to wait upon those who believe that

"Man wants but little beard below,
Nor wants that little long."

Champooing, Hair Cutting and Shaving is performed to the satisfaction of all who may favor him with their patronage.

Danvers, March 15, 1845. tf

CHARLES H. MANNING,
CABINET MAKER,
Near the Sign of the Lamb, Main Street,
DANVERS, MASS.

FURNITURE manufactured on the most reasonable terms. Also—CURRIER'S TABLES made and repaired cheap.

SHOE-MAKERS' PEGGING BENCHES made as above. oct 15

EDWARDS' LINIMENT.

For Sprains, Cuts, Bruises, Stiffened or Swelled Joints, Chilblains, Chapped Hands Numbness and Rheumatism.

THIS invaluable artidle is now for the first time offered to the public, after having been in use for twenty years, with unusual and astonishing success within the circle of the proprietor's immediate influence. It has received the unqualified approbation of some eminent Physicians, and also Mariners and Mechanics.

It is also recommended, and more than a thousand cases might be cited, when it has been used for Horses in cases of lameness or when galled, &c. &c.

The public are assured that in offering the above we do recommend that which has not the least semblance of QUACKERY, but on the contrary it has done great and lasting good in its efficacious power and healing qualities.

As this medicine has been so long known in Salem and its vicinity, and as there are many that would avail themselves of it if they knew where it could be obtained, therefore the subsciber would now offer it to the public. It will be found always on hand and prepared by the subscriber.

BENJ EDWARDS,
No. 14 Front street, Salem, Mass.

Wanted—trusty and worthy AGENTS in the neighboring towns and vicinity.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENTS.
DANIELS, POOR & CO., Danvers, Mass.
Benjamin F. Browne, Salem Mass.
Smith & Fowle, Boston, "
H. F. Skerry, Bangor, Me.
Charles Whipple, Bookseller, Newburyport.
Wm. R. Preston, Portsmouth, N. H.
John S. Caldwell, Belfast. Me.
Wm. H. Palmer, Lynnfield.
Joseph Edwards, jr., Lynn.
Charles Edwards, Marblehead.
Wm. Edwards, Beverly.
March 15, 1845. tf

Fales' Cathartic, or Vegetable
PURGATIVE LOZENGES.

ARE the best and most popular medicines for people of all ages, country, and climates, and in every condition of life. They are compounded of the essences of vegetables from many nations. Their taste is inexpressibly delightful. They cause no pain in their operations, but the first change of feeling after taking them is, that of pleasure, and they cleanse the stomach and bowels more perfectly than any other purgative medicines.

The most wonderful and surprising cures have been effected by them in different parts of the earth. How these purgative lozenges do speedily purify the blood, and substitute health for sickness, is a mystery to the most eminent members of the healing art. Such purgative medicines must become universal, and supersede the use of all other purgative compounds; and as long as disease continues to afflict people, so long will these Lozenges remain unrivalled in all coming time throughout the world. Every person who travels should carry them—every family should keep them—and every sick man, woman, or child should take them.

FALES' WORM LOZENGES,

Are a safe and sure remedy for worms. Children love them. They act like a charm in removing the symptoms such as starting in sleep, grating the teeth paleness about the mouth and nose, occasional sickness at stomach, precarious appetite, swelled bowels, and general feverish habit, The child falls into a quiet sleep, and the worms are stupified and expelled, and the child, as far as heard from, in every instance has been cured. Price, 25 cents per box, with full directions; sold at Commercial street, Boston,

FALES' COUGH LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common Colds and Coughs, Whooping Cough, Inflamation of the Throat and Lungs, in the Croup or Hives, and more certain to act satisfactory than the celebrated Hive Syrup. The most happy effect is obtained in a few moments; the symptoms disappear and the disease is broken up by the magical effect of these Lozenges. Full directions accompany each box, are found at the Depositopy, 96 Commercial staeet, Boston.

FALES' DYSENTERY LOZENGES,

Are a safe and agreeble temedy for Dysentery, Diarrhœa and Bowel Complaints of children. Particular attention must be paid to the directions that are with each box.

FALES' CAMPHOR LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common and sick head ache, and where there is a sense of tightness or weight over the eyes, in erruptive diseases, such as Measles and Small Pox. Also in Mania, Epilepsy, Melancholy, Hysteria, in St. Vitus Dance, and in all cases of langnor and oppession of the Vital powers, may be taken with safety by women and children in all conditions. Full directions accompany each box.

FALES' CYPRIAN HAIR TONIC,

Is now so extsnsively known and justly celebrated that further comment upon it will be useless, we can say, however, that among the many thousands who have purchassed the Tonic, in this and other countries, none have returned with complaints, while thousands have expressed not only their approbation, but their wonder and admiration on beholding its effects. A few bottles only can be had at 96 Commercial street, Boston.

CLEAR OUT YOUR RATS.

The gnawing and antics of these destructive creatures can be hushed forever in your house and store, if you will procure a box of the genuine.

MADAGASCAR RAT EXTERMINATOR,

and use it according to directionf. You cannot depend upon it unless obtained at J. J. FALES' No. 96 Commercial street Boston.

—AGENTS—

Salem, J. S. HARRISON, J. Stone, jr., H. Whipple, S Badger, jr; Lynn, J. Moulton jr., Geo. Lummus, Wm. Cogswell, Wm. L Ladd; Swampscot, W. Thompson; Marblehead, E. Arnold. Wm. Stacey; Danvers, S. Proctor, Jos Shed, New Mills, H. S Pope, A. P Perley & Co, C. Simonds, Calder & Foster; Topsfield, B. P. Adams; Beverly. A N Clark. ep6m mch 29

PERIODICALS, PAPERS, &c.

LUTHER CHANDLER, GENERAL AGENT for the sale of all the principal Periodicals, Newspapers, &c., and will furnish them to all persons who may wish to subscribe; among which are

Graham's Magazine,	Harper's Pictorial Bible,
Ladies' National do,	Verplanck's Shakspeare,
Arthur's Lady's do,	Phil Saturday Courier,
Christian Family Mag.,	Neal's Gazette,
Gentlemen's Magazine,	New York Mirror,
Godey's Lady's Book,	Frost's Pictorial World,

The above and all the principal periodicals and papers will be furnished promptly.

☞ BOOKS BOUND at the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

Orders may be left at J. SHED'S, opposite the Monument, South Danvers. 1y mch 29

ADAMS & RICHARDSON,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
HARDWARE.
MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS FOR THE SALE OF
Cut Nails, White Lead, Sheet Lead and Lead Pipe,
NO. 207 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
Joseph Adams, }
C. M. Richardson, }
march 15 tf

PANTS. A lot of Men's cheap pants just received and for sale at EDWARDS'
may 17 14 Front street.

DANVERS COURIER.

VOL. 1. DANVERS, (MASS.) SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 21, 1845. NUMBER 14.

THE DANVERS COURIER
IS PUBLISHED BY
GEORGE R. CARLTON,
EVERY SATURDAY MORNING,
A few doors North of Mackintire's Hotel,
CENTRAL ST.—SOUTH DANVERS.

Terms—$1 50 if paid in advance, or $2 00; if not paid within one month of the time of subscribing.

The carriers are not allowed to sell any copies of the Courier. Single copies may be obtained at he office, at 5 cents each.

Advertisements will be inserted on favorable terms.

POETRY.

The Knickerbocker for June contains the following lines by the late Willis Gaylord Clarke, omitted in the published edition of his works. There are many parents whose hearts will respond to their beauty and pathos.

DEATH OF THE YOUNG.

When into dust, like dewy flowers departed,
From our dim paths the bright and lovely fade;
The fair in form, the pure, the gentle hearted,
Whose looks within the breast a Sabbath made;
How like a whisper on the inconstant wind
The memory of their voices stirs the mind!

We hear the sigh, the song, the fitful laughter,
That from their lips in balm were wont to flow,
When hope's beguiling wing they hurried after,
And drank her syren music long ago;
When joy's wild harp to sweetest lays was strung,
And poured rich numbers for the loved and young.

When the pure stars are burning high in heaven,
And the low night winds kiss the flowering tree,
And thoughts are deepening in the hush of even,
How soft those voices on the heart will be!
They breathe of raptures which have bloomed and died,
Of sorrows by remembrance sanctified.

Yet when the loved have from our pathway vanished,
What potent magic can their smiles restore?
Like some gay sun-burst by the tempest banished,
They passed in darkness, they will come no more!
Unlike the day-beam when the storm hath fled,
No light renewed breaks on their lowly bed.

COMMUNICATION.

FOR THE COURIER.

A SHORT SERMON ON SLEEPING IN CHURCH.

BY SAMSON DOMINIE.

Text. "Let us not sleep as do others.—Paul.

1st. Because it is a sin against Heaven. If the "priest's lips should keep knowledge it is equally the duty of the people "to seek and" hear the law ses are wrapt in profound slumbers? It is a direct insult offered to the great "Master of assemblies who commands us "not to forsake the assembling of ourselves together—but to convene and worship Him "who is a Spirit" in spirit and ruth.

2d. Because it is an evil which seriously affects the person himself who commits it. It injures the mind by destroying its habits of thought, and attention. There is no better discipline for the intellect than for a person to endeavor to detect the acute angles of thought and to trace out, step by step, the iron-linked logic of a profound original thinker, one who presses to the utmost verge of revelation and examines the "joints and rivets of the great iron frame of God's moral government." And such are the most of our preachers at the present day.—But this cannot be done while reposing in the full embrace of "death's half-brother, Sleep." Besides the person is a great loser in a moral point of view; he loses much valuable instruction respecting his duty towards his Maker, and his fellow men, and he resembles the "fool, into whose hands a price is put to get wisdom but he has no heart for it."

3d. Because it is an injury done to the preacher. It is impossible for a speaker to feel that interest in his subject when one half of his audience are unconsciously nodding assent to all that he utters without understanding a word, that he would to see them awake and alive to the truths he is communicating. Besides, it is much easier to speak when the people are ready or anxious to hear, butwhen they manifest no interest in what is said, and begin to show signs of leaving the house of God in spirit for the "land of Nod" the preacher is under the necessity of raising his voice to an extraordinary pitch, at the expense of his lungs, in order to wake up and get the attention of his audience. And, perhaps, upon inquiry this would be found one way in which ministers have brought on the bronchitis, or some other internal complaint which has unfitted them for public speaking through life.

4th. Because the evil effects of this ungainly practice is felt upon the congregation.

Besides the pernicious influence of their example, sleepers are often a grievous annoyance to those around them who would be glad to hear the discourse but cannot for their nasal piping. I have, sometimes thought, Mr. Courier, that if these disturbers of public worship, these unearthly organists whose notes are enough to shock nerves of wire —could be put into a large box together with the requisite number of pipes to let out the different tones which they breathe forth, it would resemble that celebrated Pig-instrument, invented by some Abbe for the special amusement of Louis XV. with all its scale of grunts and squeaks that was played with keys like a harpsichord, in which pigs of different tones and ages were placed, so as to form the treble and bass of the scale. According as the performer played, a spike at the end of each key produced the tones desired, while a muzzle was so contrived as to act the part of a Damper, and stop the mouth of each pig as soon as the note was uttered,—If any one should be at a loss to find a name for such an instrument, we would style it a Snorgan.

Noble Conduct. The Lowell Courier states that "a little girl fell into the river a few days age, near the Massaic Falls. She would have been drowned, but for the noble conduct of an Irish boy, named Harkin, who saw her and jumped in and rescued her.

SELECTED TALE.

The Death of Marat.

BY ROBERT W. HAMILTON.

THE CAUSE.

THE dawn of a summer morning had slightly streaked the verge of the horizon, when the heavy bell of Notre Dame was sending its deep and solemn tones over the towers of Paris. The citizens were seen hastily hurrying from their homes and crowding towards La Place Louis Quinze. In its centre was placed the black and blood encrusted scaffold of the guillotine, that terrific symbol of Jacobin fury. As yet no guard surrounded that shrine of Moloch, no headsman stood waiting to accomplish the sacrifice, but an almost breathless and trembling crowd looked anxiously towards the scaffold and surmising in their hearts for whom the death knell was then sounding. Suddenly a low murmur was heard and a movement in the crowd was perceptible. In the distance appeared the large and heavy cart of the executioner who with his victim and a friar of the Cistercian order were its only occupants. The latter was busily employed in endeavoring to impart instruction and consolation to the condemned who, however, appeared unwilling to listen to him while ever and anon he bent his head as if in the act of recognition to some friend or acquaintance among the fast increasing crowd.

He was a young man of apparently twenty-three years of age, his features were elegantly and correctly formed, his head, which was uncovered, presented a profusion of dark glossy hair falling in graceful tresses down his back, while his throat already laid bare for the axe, gave to view, a neck and bosom white as the Parian marble, thick moustaches covered his upper lip which, with the tuft upon his chin, completed a head fit for the chisel of a Canova or the pencil of a Rubens. The executioner, who was habited in the frightful and disgusting dress of his office, exhibited a singular contrast in physiognomy and apparel to his victim. His low brow which receded abruptly was partly shaded by coarse brown hair, his small grey eyes were deeply sunk beneath the same, his cheek bones were high and sharp, his nose short and dilated, while a mouth, around which played a mixture of sarcasm and stupidity, completed the caput of "La Main Sanglante."—His body was encased in a jerkin of slate colored cloth, while over the breast was placed a greasy and blood bespattered apron, his shirt sleeves carefully folded up to the shoulders, displayed a pair of long and sinewy arms, which, as he occasionally stretched towards the ed you of a tiger about to pounce upon his prey.

On and on came the chariot of slaughter, when having reached the bottom of the scaffold it was in an instant surrounded by a squadron of armed men whose weapons of warfare gleamed like a forest of steel in the beams of the morning. The first who presented himself upon the altar of death was a tall and aged man, his countenance was pale and ghastly and he looked like a tenant of the tomb, who had risen to witness the sacrifice of Jacobin destruction. He gazed maliciously and exultingly upon the prisoner, who in return cast upon him the fiercest looks of contempt and revenge. The old man saw and felt them, and in a state of apparent exhaustion from internal agony of spirit, leaned upon the barricading of the scaffold, then beckoning to the executioner, who approached him, he muttered something brief and revengeful which seemed to expedite the work of destruction.

The executioner proffered his assistance to the prisoner, which he respectfully declined, then stepping to the verge of the scaffold, in a loud and distinct voice exclaimed: "Frenchmen, I die a martyr to the cause of Freedom! My blood be on the head of the murderer Marat!" The old man, for such was the name of the denounced, trembled violently, he waved his hand to the troops that surrounded the scaffold, a loud burst of martial music drowned the voice of the speaker, he smiled and bowed to the populace, then retiring to the block, a brief and breathless pause ensued, the heavy and crashing fall of the axe fell upon the ears of the spectators, and the next moment, the executioner holding on high the bleeding and quivering head of his victim, showed that Frederic Beauchamp, was no more.

THE ARREST.

At the hour of twelve on the 20th of July, 1793, a large and gloomy apartment in one of those ancient mansions with which the church of Notre Dame is surrounded, were seated, some of the principal heads of the Convention, of that fearful and eventful period. The wine had circulated freely, still, however, distrust and suspicion were strongly imprinted upon each countenance—for patriotism was but a cloak for deeds of murder and anarchy, and no one knew who was then his friend or foe. At the head of the table was placed Monsieur De Beriot, a bold and fearless patriot; his dark eyes glanced mistrustfully around him, while his ear was occasionally turned to the door of the apartment, as if listening for some expected sound—opposite sat Duperret, a principal leader of the Jacobin faction, while Barbaroux, Doumouriez, Clauson, Perrotier Vergniaud, completed the party. Although the jest broke the monotony of the meeting, yet again the cloud of apathy returned. What had become of Marat? Why to-night was his presence withheld and no apology sent or cause assigned? Could he have been detained by some sudden and important business? Was he ill? Could he have been surprised and desroyed by the rival myrmidons of blood and ambition.—Or what was worse, could he have become faithless to the cause of Freedom. Doubt, surmise and uneasiness completely enveloped the party, and the first hour of morning had arrived ere they thought of departing for their various homes. De Beriot arose, and filling his goblet, drank to the triumph of their cause. They were in the act of separating when a loud knocking at the outer gate accompanied by the heavy and measured tramp of armed men, told them that no good was betoken- ed by such sounds at so unseasonable an hour.—Terror and confusion took possession of the party, when the door of the apartment was quickly opened, and an officer of gens d'armes, with six men, intruded themselves to the surprise of De Beriot and his guests.

"Who are you, and what seek you here?"asked De Beriot.

"In the name of the Republic I arrest Messieurs Barbaroux and Vergniaud as traitors to the cause of liberty!" replied the officer.

Astonishment seized on all; while the accused individuals quietly submitting to the order of arrest, slowly and as if already in the grasp of destruction departed for the Conciergerie. The next morning, they were the victims of the guillotine.

THE INTERVIEW.

DAY after day thus fleeted on the wings of murder and massacre, he who in the morning awoke sanguine in hope and happiness, ere nightfall, was perhaps a cold and headless corpse. No home, no sanctuary, was safe from the spies and tyrants of the code of blood. One universal chaos pervaded all sects and society, while the visionary creed of the Jacobins tended to create and keep alive all the bad passions and feelings "that human flesh is heir to." Life with them was considered but as a necessary link of the illimitable chain of matter—and a hereafter was but a false and mercenary creation of churchmen, to rifle and dispossess the community of their rights and property. Such tenets, carefully disseminated, and possessing the minds of the populace, was it to be wondered at, if morality was disregarded and vice and anarchy prevailed? But to the mansion of De Beriot. Stupification had seized upon the remaining guests; vacantly they gazed upon each other while suspicion at once, and with general concurrence fixed upon Marat as their betrayer. Doumouriez, was the first to break the silence—"We are betrayed!" he breathlessly exclaimed, and in terror fled from the mansion of De Beriot.

With more firmness, but yet in the thrall of fear, Perrotier Duperet and Clauson followed, and De Beriot stood alone in the gloomy apartment with the lights fast waning. His eyes were fixed and motionless, a thousand surmises were floating in his mind while the guillotine and its horrors were bright in the prospective. Unconsciously he sank into a chair, his head dropped upon his bosom and he felt as one on whom the hand of death was irrevocably placed.

Thus abstracted and almost powerless, he was suddenly aroused from his revery by the sound of a female voice, inquiring if she stood before Monsieur De Beriot. In alarm he started to his feet, for he already imagined that the minof blood, and he was at least agreeably surprised to find that it was a young and lovely girl who stood in his presence.

"I am De Beriot!" he exclaimed; "to what at such an untimely hour, am I to attribute this interview?"

The young female, with a countenance in which beauty and determination were finely blended in a voice of the sweetest melody, replied—

"Revenge on the tyrant of the Republic!"

"And who is he?" inquired De Beriot.

"Can De Beriot ask?" said the female: "Look aronnd the streets of Paris—who seeks to widow the wife and mother, who slays the son and the lover? thoughts of purity and words of innocence are the marks for destruction, and the stream of blood is increasing hourly. Yet exists no hand to stop the source of the current, and broader and deeper will it flow till the green fields of France are turned to crimson and her children shall weep in sack-cloth and ashes!"and as she spoke, with her right hand she plucked from her bosom a poignard, and held it above her head, her left was placed upon her bosom, her hair had fallen loosely upon her shoulders, while in the centre of the circle that encompassed her brow, gleamed a bright and dazzling jewel representing the emblem of liberty, a superhuman radiance lighted up her countenance, and as she gazed towards heaven she looked like the goddess of Retribution, armed for the blow. De Beriot beheld her with awe and admiration, and again inquired the name of the destroyer.

"Marat!" she replied in a voice of thunder; "Marat that old and heartless tyrant, with him blood is but as water—affections are but as ice; but the angel of justice now rides on the wings of the whirlwind and the murderer shall die the death of the wolf."

"And who dare act such a part?" asked De Beriot.

"I dare!" she replied; and drawing the dagger between the finger and the thumb of her left hand, as if in the act of wiping from it the blood of Marat, whom, in her enthusiasm, she already contemplated as dead, she smiled and looked earnestly upon De Beriot.

"Foolish girl, you are but a visionary—an enthusiast of some unknown sect who deem, as all now do, their principle to be the most correct, and hesitate not even to wade through blood to attain their accomplishment. Go! such a deed, even if Marat deserved it—"

"If!"exclaimed the impassioned girl, "he has —he does deserve it, and God so help me, De Beriot, he or I must fall. You think him your friend—you are deceived—he is your enemy—even now, he is concerting plans for your destruction—the object of which is—"and here she paused as if overcome by her feelings, while her whole frame was violently convulsed, then suddenly pointing to a portrait which hung against the wall shrieked aloud—"there! there!"

"Holy Virgin!" exclamed De Beriot; "mean you my daughter?"

"Yes!" replied she, thy daughter, that blue eyed young and beauteous maiden is already in the fascination of the snake—thy existence alone is the barrier to his wishes. Thou once removed, his folds are entwined around her, and in the morning of her youth and beauty she will perish."

"Woman, art thou indeed sincere?"

"Let God bear witness that I am!

"And how, how, can I save her?" asked the frantic father the tears streaming down his manly countenance.

"By aiding me in the prosecution of my purpose! Gain for me an interview with Marat—I ask no more, I will answer for the completion of the deed."

"Impossible! you know that access to his presence is entirely forbidden. He will see no one, admit no one, but his friends and colleagues of the Convention."

"Then you refuse me!" she inquired in a tone of despair and disappointment.

"I do! I do! my child, my child!" and the old man sank into his chair and wept bitterly.

The female seized the opportunity to quit the apartment by the same way in which she had entered—having followed in the wake of the gens d'armes and secreted herself in a small recess of the corridor, 'till such time as they departed, when the interview we have just narrated took place.

Lost in the intensity of his feelings the old man neither heard nor saw her departure, and when he looked up, he could scarcely believe but that the past scene was some illusion of the brain and not the words and acts of reality. He cast his eyes upon the picture of his daughter; a thousand horrible figures were presented to his imagination: he felt sick at heart, he rushed to the window to breathe the morning breeze that was now rustling among the gardens of Paris, and cresting the blue and silent waters of the Seine. The gray dawn was sitting on his misty throne, on the summits of the mountains, while one by one were fading the tapers of the night—the lark was trilling his lay in the heavens, and all the earth was awaking in its mantle of beauty and fragrance—he gazed wildly upon the scene, but the cool air felt to him as a furnace, he gasped for breath; every object grew dim before his vision, and he sank on the floor, hopeless, helpless and alone.

THE DENOUMENT.

The morning which dawned was the Sabbath, but no marks were visible to denote the same.—No priest was seen bending his steps to the house of prayer. In place of the trim-attired citizen, was beheld the soldier with his implements of war and blood. Groups of unwashed and haggard artizans were hurrying to their professions —the sound of labor every where struck upon the ear. The wine house, the halls of gaming, and temples of amusement all were thrown open, and contributed to banish from the mind of man the day that the Lord had set apart for his praise.—One bell alone which fell heavily upon all hearts, told that the work of slaughter had commenced.—As we have said, the victims of that sacred morning were Doumouriez and Vergniaud—their trial had immediately followed their arrest—the evitenced, and their blood helped to swell the human tide that daily and hourly rolled around that tribunal of terror and of death.

On this morning, immediately after the execution, a young female called at the house of Marat, and presented a letter, requesting an interview.—Her application was unsuccessful. Sick and dispirited, she retraced her steps to the Hotel du Providence, and in the silence of her chamber, sat meditating how she could accomplish the sole object of her existence—a personal interview with the minister of terror. In her hand she held a miniature, which she bathed with her tears, and covered with her kisses. A gentle knock at the door apprised her of the presence of some visitors, and placing the miniature in her bosom, and wiping the tears from her eyes, in a calm and collected voice she bade him enter. The door opened, and a tall and cadaverous person, in the capacity of Capitaine du Surveillance, stood before her.

"Your business, sir?" demanded she.

"I come, citizeness, answered the officer, "in the name of the Republic, to receive what intelligence you have to communicate to citizen Marat."

"It is to him alone, replied the female, that I can disclose strong and important facts; with you sir, I can hold no communication, and courtesying, she was about to retire into an inner apartment.

"Your pardon, citizeness, I am ordered not to lose sight of you till I am in possession of those facts," while, at the same moment, he attempted to intercept her passage to the door to which she was retreating.

With the agility of a deer, she bounded past him, and seizing a small pistol which lay upon the chimney-piece, held him at bay. "Attempt to intercept me," she exclaimed, and that moment is your last." She entered the apartment—the door was closed and bolted in an instant, while the minion of authority departed, abashed, chagrined and disappointed.

The evening of that day had arrived, heavy clouds were gathering in the heavens, and the distant hurtling of thunder foretold that a tempest was fast approaching. The citizens had sought their homes for shelter, and a death-like stillness pervaded all around. Darker and darker grew each moment, 'till, at length, one deep, impenetrable veil of night enveloped the heavens and the earth, and the voice of the elements burst forth in terrific fury. It seemed as if the Supreme Judge were denouncing his anathema against the blood-polluted walls of Paris. At that hour of storm and tempest, a solitary female was seen threading the dark and intricate streets of the city. Nothing appalled by the darkness of the hour, she boldly pursued her course 'till, at last, she entered the Rue De Saint Dennis. With caution she glanced around her, then hastily ascending the steps of the mansion of Marat, she applied the iron knocker with such vehemence, that the whole street echoed from the sound. After a considerable pause a figure presented itself at an upper casement, and demanded the reason of so furious a summons.—

"I wish to speak with citizen Marat," was the answer.

"Tis impossible," replied the person at the casement, and was about to withdraw.

"Tis an affair that concerns the safety of the Republic. I come from Caen, and my sojourn in Paris will admit of no delay. Fear nothing from me, I am but a woman."

The figure withdrew from the window, and after an absence of nearly ten minutes, the heavy iron bars that secured the door within, were heard to give way, and the female stranger was admitted to the mansion of the Republican Tyrant. The door was again made secure, and the old woman, for such was the Cerberus of the mansion, conducted the young female, by the feeble light of a little lamp, through several ancient and curiously-formed passages, 'till at length, they stood before a small door in a gloomy corridor. The old woman gave three distinct knocks on it, when a tremulous voice within cried, "In the name of the Republic, enter!" She applied her finger to what seemed a secret spring, and the door flying open, the den of the monster was revealed to view. From the roof hung an iron lamp by a chain of the same material, whose light faintly dispelled the gloom of the apartment. At the farther end was seen the head and shoulders of an old and hideous-looking man, who was reclining in a bath —his right arm and hand rested upon a block of wood which served as a desk, where were implements of writing, with which he was busily employed. He did not deign to cast his eyes upon the female, but muttered in a low and almost stifled voice, "Your pardon, La Belle Cityenne, you must wait!" Then waving his hand to the old woman she quitted the apartment.

Thus left alone with the man of blood and terror—it is natural enough to suppose that fear would have seized upon a young and helpless female, but she trembled not—her pulse beat as regularly as in her most placid moments—her eye was intently fixed upon the minister of murder, and she only felt anxious for a fitting opportunity to plant her poignard in his heart.

Marat, at length ceased writing, and turning towards her, with a ghastly smile exclaimed, "Ah citizeness, had I been aware that one so young and beauteous as yourself had thus been waiting, these important matters would have been deferred. Now, what seek you? Speak, and freely.—Marat can refuse nothing to beauty like yours."

I came, citizen," she replied, to tell you of danger that threatens the Republic."

"How—when—where," he ejaculated. Nothing but plots—nothing but treason. No matter, they must be cunning who can outwit Marat."

"In Paris, perhaps," interrupted the female—but there are spirits beyond it. I came from Caen. I wished to impart my intelligence this morning, but I was rudely driven from your door, and afterwards insulted, by your order, in my hotel, by the officer of surveillance."

"Your pardon, La Belle Cityenne. I knew not that it was a goddess who sought me. Well what seek you? What injuries can I redress?—Who has deceived you? Speak, speak, my divinity the old man seized the pen, eager to add another victim to his catalogue of destruction.

The young female advanced nearer to the hoary ruffian. Marat, with difficulty, stretched forth his withered arms as if he expected she would drop into them in gratitude for his sanguinary proffer But she paused, and casting her eyes upon him in which the lightning of revenge was flashing—"You remember Frederic Beauchamp! said she Marat convulsively started in the water. The name of Beauchamp seemed to awaken the slumbering spirit of the monster. "Ah ha!" he exclaimed, his whole countenance gleaming with demoniac fury. 'Beauchamp, the traitor. Yes citizeness, he expiated his principles on the scaffold Caen!—he was the spirit of that province. Is rebellion not yet subdued! Must I find more foo there for the guillotine? Speak! speak! Wha dangers threaten the Republic. Tell me, that m fiat may go forth for their destruction. Speak speak!" and as he finished, he sunk back into the bath from exhaustion.

"You have heard of Charlotte Corday?" said the female, standing closely to Marat.

"Yes! said he, "the betrothed of Beauchamp She, too, must perish. The axe thirsteth for he blood. Knowest thou aught for the traitress?"

"I do!" replied she, "but Marat shall never liv to behold her perish."

"Say'st thou—thou speak'st in riddles, m Diana. Tell me of her—where is she to be found

"Here!" exclaimed she, and at the same ment drew from her bosom the poignard. Th old man endeavored to raise himself in the ba but, like a tigress she sprung upon him. Wi her left hand she grasped him by the throa "Mercy! mercy!" he ejaculated in a voice of de peration and despair.

"Mercy! ha! ha! ha!" and she laughed in e ultation as the wretch in the agony of fear, a pealed to her pity for preservation. Mercy! dar thou to sue for mercy, thou grey-headed ruffia 'tis a word unknown to thy tribunal of murder. Seek it of the elements, into, which as a dog, a cording to thy creed, thou say'st we shall resolv She raised her arms to give force to the blow. Marat, rendered desperate from all hope of resc being denied to him, struggled fearfully, but vain. The poignard descended, the blood spou ed forth from his heart, and tinged the water the bath. He made an effort to call, but the was feeble; his eyes glared wildly in their sock and his head fell upon his bosom. 'Frederic!' s exclaimed, 'thou art avenged! The sacrifice accomplished.' She relaxed her grasp of the bo and it fell sullenly among the water. The s vants of Marat rushed in, oaths and imprecatio were heaped upon her. She made no reply—off ed no resistance, but a smile of satisfaction play upon her beauteous features as they dragged to the tribuual of the Republic.

The morning beams shone brilliantly on towers & turrets of Paris. The axe of the guilot awaited for a victim. It waited not long. young and elegant girl ascended the scaffold; her hand she held a rose. A black veil shroud her features from the gaze of the populace. T executioner approached to prepare her for axe. Proudly she waved her hand for him to sist. She removed the veil. She stood revea to view. Reader, the victim was the destroyer the monster Marat—the affianced bride of murdered Beauchamp—Charlotte Corday!

DANVERS COURIER.

SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 21, 1845.

COMMON SCHOOLS.

The general adoption of the common school system, is bringing about a new era in the history of the world. It is a system of modern growth. It is but a short time, since, in the most intelligent portions of Europe, the granaries of education were closed against the body of the people, and only the favored few were allowed within their portals. Now, by the means of the common school system, the doors are thrown wide open, and all alike are invited to partake of their bounties.—The rich and the poor, the high and the low, stand on the same footing in these schools. Yet with all the system has accomplished, it is but now in its infancy, even with us. We must not be content with having common schools in every town and village, but we must determine to have good schools. We must not rest satisfied until all our common schools are in no respect behind the first Academies in the land; until in every school, scholars may not only learn the practical studies necessary for the performance of ordinary business, but that they may have an opportunity under the instruction of Teachers of superior qualifications, to discipline their minds in the higher and more important branches. To this end the salaries of Teachers should be sufficient to command those of proper qualifications; and what is full as important, greater care should be taken in their selection. Teachers are very frequently chosen on the strength or rather on the number of their recommendations, without being subjected to much examination.—This should never be allowed. No matter how well recommended a candidate is, let the Committee be persuaded from rigid examination, not only that he has a sufficient knowledge of the branches usually taught, but that he has a proper discipline of mind, and a knowledge of the higher branches, so that if even he does not find it necessary to teach them, he may deduce much from their treasures which can be usefully expended on pupils of limited education. The whole of a Teacher's duty in the education of those under his charge, is not to drill them in the lessons learned from books, alone, but he should be able from his [illegible] well stored mind, to add many sug[illegible] to illustrate the more difficult portions, and [illegible]eside adding to the information of his sch[illegible] to increase very essentially their interest in their studies. If this care in the selection of Teachers will be observed strictly, we shall find a great difference in the progress of pupils, and in the rank of the Common Schools; and we feel that the people will not rest until the children of all have not only opportunities, but have the best opportunities for instruction.

BRANCH RAIL ROAD.

We notice that one clause in the Warrant for a Town Meeting next week, relates to the subject of a Branch from the Eastern Rail Road to the North Parish, to be built by the E. R. Road on the location and under the Charter of the Georgetown Rail Road. It will be recollected that a similar provision was inserted in an Act of the Legislature last winter, and stricken out by the efforts of our own representatives. In this, they no doubt acted not only in accordance with the known wishes of their constituents, but also under what might be regarded as the express instructions of the town. It is well known that there was a strong feeling on the part of a great majority of our citizens in favor of an independent and direct road to Boston, and we were not disposed to listen to any proposition as a substitute for this favorite project. Any action of the town in favor of a branch road at that time, would have been understood as yielding our right to other and better accomodation, as both questions were brought distinctly before the people at the same meeting. The town did right in accepting the one and rejecting the other. Our representatives also, did right in obeying the recorded wishes of the people as expressed by a full and unanimous meeting.

The question now assumes quite a different shape. The simple question to come before the town is this. The Directors of the Eastern Rail Road wish to construct several miles of the Georgetown Rail Road, which will give great accomodation to our citizens, and we are asked to give our assent to their proposal. For our own part, we would grant it most cheerfully and thank them besides. We should be glad to have them continue it to Georgetown and over to Haverhill. In giving our assent to this proposal, be it remembered, we relinquish not one iota of our right and desire for better accomodations, whenever we can obtain them. We retain our opinion that a direct road will one day be built. The very able special pleading of Mr. Loring, and the specious reasoning of the essays in the Salem papers, over the signature of "N," have failed to convince us that our favorite project is as wild as they would have us believe. The Branch may delay the time of building the contemplated road, but the doctrine of vested rights will not long remain a barrier to public improvements where they are required by the public necessity.

The Etna Insurance Office. This Office, at Hartford Conn. where the machinery of the Carpet Factory was insured, has suffered severely by recent fires, having lost nearly $40,000—quite an eruption.

Cool and impudent. [illegible] day this week some fellow walked into a [illegible] while the person in attendance was absent [illegible] short time, and took a new pair of nice shoes, leaving his own old worn out brogues in exchange.

ACCIDENTS.

Last week as Mr. Joseph Jacobs was attending to some part of the Engine of his Steam Bark Mill on Foster St. the thumb of his left hand was crushed by the machinery so that amputation was necessary. The hand was also considerably lacerated.

The same day a son of Mr. John D. Howard, while at work at the tannery of Mr. Leonard Poole on Grove St. accidentally got one of his legs into the hot water cistern connected with the Steam Mill and was severly scalded. The lad suffered much at the time but is doing well

We also learn that on Friday of last week a son of Mrs. Emma Dodge, was knocked down near the Endicott house on Andover St. and run over by a carriage, the wheels passing over the neck and shoulders. Although somewhat bruised he escaped with less injury than could have reasonably been expected.

The same day a woman on Lowell St. had her hand severely wounded by the sharp edges of broken crockery ware, while engaged in some domestic employment.

At the fire at the Plains Mr. Francis Noyes was injured by a box of shoes which was thrown against him in the confusion of clearing his shoe factory.

On Tuesday last a lad about 14 years of age, named Pascal Walland had his right hand so shockingly crushed while in the Bark Mill of Messrs. Benj. and Richard Osborn as to require amputation. We learn he submitted to the paiuful operation with great fortitude. We hope the repeated accidents of various kinds about our tanneries will lead to greater caution on the part of those who attend the mills.

If to these we add the injuries received by those engine men who were burnt by dragging the Gen. Foster through the street at the Plains we have a chapter of accidents such as has not been known in the town within the memory of the great grandfather of the "oldest inhabitant."

Omnibus.—We have of late frequently seen passing our office a splendid vehicle called the Clarion, on which appears the name of M. A. Shackford. This beautiful Omnibus runs from the North Parish to the Rail Road Depot and must be a great acomodation to our citizens in that part of the town. Were it not for the Alleghany ridge on Liberty street we might expect to see a regular communication kept up between the two sections of the town by means of the pleasant and convenient substitutes for Rail Road cars.

We learn that our enterprising neighbors Messrs Symonds & Teel are about to procure a beautiful new Omnibus to put on their line of Hourly Coaches to Salem.

PERMANENT BUILDINGS.

Every one present at the late fire must have noticed that the brick building occupied by the Village Bank, proved a barrier to the progress of the fire. We hope this will prove a salutary indurable material. We are gratified to see that on the space made vacant in Salem by their late disastrous fire on Water St., they are building up entirely of brick. It is almost universally the case after a fire that the place is rebuilt better and more substantially than before. We are sorry to say that it has not been so in rebuilding the "burnt district" in the South parish. Here it is absolutely worse than it was before the fire, both in the location of the buildings and the danger from fire.—The only exception we can make to this statement is the shop built by Mr. Dodge and the house about to be erected by Mr. Goodridge.

THRILLING INCIDENT.

At the late serious fire in Maple Street a circumstance occurred which was witnessed with the most intense and painful interest. A part of the members of Engine No 7 the Gen. Foster," with that impetuousity so common among firemen in times of danger, attempted to drag their Engine through the street between the burning buildings, to reach a cistern on the north side of the fire.—The wreathing flames were raging on each side and above them, and they had accomplished a greater part of the distance when the weight of their burden was fast reducing their strength and the intense heat raising blisters on their flesh, they faltered and stopped! They had now almost reached the end of the firey gaunt let and to save themselves, were obliged to abandon their Engine. The members of No 6 Engine on the other side of the fire, seeing their perilous condition rushed in and seizing the Engine rescued it from destruction.

Had the Gen. Foster been encumbered with her hose carriage the additional weight would have prevented its reaching farther than the centre of the burning mass and it would have been inevetably destroyed; and it is difficult to conceive how the men could have escaped. Several of them are severely burnt and have suffered much from their exposure to the flames.

We have received from W. S. Cleveland & Co. "A practical question Book" being designed as a sequel to the Topical Question Book, by Rev. J. Banvard, author of the Topical Question Book; Infant Series; Young Observers, &c. This is we think a very excellent work, and admirably adapted for the designed end. The arrangement is good, and the subjects taken up fully investigated by means of numerous questions and references. It is entirely free from Doctrinal objections, and we think will be very useful to the more advanced pupils in Sabbath Schools.

THE LATE FIRES.

Our community has been for the last ten days, in a state of excitement and alarm, on account of the serious fires which in rapid succession have laid waste the habitations and property of our citizens. This feeling of apprehension, we fear, is not without cause. A correspondent in another column, gives his reasons for supposing that the first and most disastrous fire was caused by an incendiary. Much as we deprecate giving unnecessary alarm, we cannot wholly dismiss our fears that the fell spirit of incendiarism has come among us. At any rate, we hope there will be just so much apprehension felt, as will induce all to be watchful and vigilant in guarding their property and ferreting out any suspicious circumstances that may lead to the detection of any monster in human shape, who can find it in his heart to apply the torch to our dwellings.

Let every caution, also, be used to prevent accidental fires. Many fires attributed to incendiaries, are no doubt the result of accident and carelessness. The very common use of those little incendiaries, friction matches, has greatly increased the hazard of fire, as there are various ways in which they may be accidentally ignited. It is known that a block of these matches falling from a moderate height on the floor, or simply the attempt to separate them, will often set them on fire. It is said that mice will sometimes ignite them by eating off the paste by which the phosphorus is covered, and the act of stepping on a match carelessly left on the floor, may be the cause of much mischief.

Housekeepers should look carefully to their deposits of ashes and the construction of their hearths and chimneys. Especially should proprietors of steam mills and carpenters' shops, be extremely cautious of fire in their combustible establishments. Let children be prevented from having matches, fire crackers or gun powder. Let our town by-laws against cigar smoking, be enforced, or at least let the voice of public opinion be raised against this dangerous practice.

The Fire Department and citizens generally should see that every thing is done that can be, to facilitate the firemen in the beginning of a fire, and we would suggest the propriety of some public or private persons immediately looking after the cisterns on Main street many of which are in very bad condition. Might not bulk-heads be erected in various parts of the brook, running through the village, thus creating in case of fire, the greatest quanity of water at any given point where it might be needed. The citizens generally should take such an interest in these matters, to do them individually if their is no proper authority invested in any department to do it; remember 'an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.'

Hon. John P. Hale. This gentleman is now canvassing the state of New Hampshire, defending himself against the bull of excommunication which the "democracy" of that state have issued against him. He addressed a large audience at Concord, Peirce, Chairman of the State Central Committee. The remarks of Mr. Hale were exceedingly bold and patriotic, and seem to flow from a heart warm with enthusiasm and sympathy. Mr. Pierce replied to it in a speech of three hours length, in which he took the position of the leading locofoco papers. Mr. Hale made a brief reply, concluding with the following words:

"As I expected, what I have said has been denounced as all abolitionism and whiggery. I expected to be called ambitious, and to have my name cast out as evil--to be traduced and misrepresented. I have not been disappointed. In conclusion, I may be permitted to say, that the measure of my ambition will be full, if when my earthly career shall be finished, and my bones are laid beneath the soil of New-Hampshire, and when my wife and children shall repair to my grave to drop the tear of affection to my memory, that they may read on my tombstone, he who lies beneath, surrendered office, place and power, rather than bow down and worship slavery."

GALLERY OF PAINTINGS.

We were pleased to see a suggestion in the last Salem Observer in relation to an Exhibition of Paintings in that city. We hope the recommendation will find so much favor as to lead some of the lovers of Art in that place to see that the thing is attempted and when it is attempted it is done. The studies of their favorite Occupy be a Gallery of itself, and where the many beautiful paintings and portraits in Salem by such artists as Osgood, Nichols, Frothingham, Harding and many others, both living and dead, shall be collected together it will make an Exhibition worthy of the attention and study of the connoiseur as well as the admiration of the public at large. Such a collection would not only be gratifying to the people as a place of resort, but would very much tend to create and improve a taste for the fine and imitative arts. We repeat our belief that such an Exhibition would be entirely succesful and it is only for some who feel an interest in the subject to procure a suitable room and invite contributions of Pictures, Engravings, and Statuary and they will meet a hearty response. All the expenses attending such an undertaking would be more than defrayed by the avails of season tickets, at a price as low as 25 cts. each.

☞The I. O. of Odd Fellows had a grand celebration on Thursday last, in Boston. Delegations from various lodges in this and other states were present. An address was delivered by J. L Ridgley of Baltimore, and a dinner was provided on the common, of which a large number partook.

Arnold's Expedition to Canada. Conversing with some Lumber-men recently, who spent last winter in the woods in the vicinity of Dead River, in Maine, we were informed that traces of Arnold's passage from the mouth of the Kennebec to Canada, are still visible in many places in that neighborhood. Where paths were cut through the dense forests, now is to be seen a thick undergrowth, not so far grown but that the path can be distinctly traced. Also in a small lake called Chain Lake, fragments of the boats in which his little army crossed it, are to be found. It is now some seventy years since that memorable and ill-fated expedition which was among the last acts performed by Arnold previous to his becoming a traitor to his country. The boats we believe were built at Augusta, and taken to the Lake for the army to cross over in.

DEATH OF GEN. JACKSON.

It has become our melancholy duty to record the death of Andrew Jackson. He has been long known to the Country—first as a Military Hero, and subsequently as President of the United States. He had many noble and praiseworthy qualities, and we would not that a whisper of detraction should utter the faults of the departed dead. His loss will be deeply felt and his memory fondly cherished, by his numerous friends throughout the Country. A correspondent of the Journal of Commerce, gives the following particulars of his last moments:—

Early in the morning of the day, (Sunday) he became conscious that the spark of life was nearly extinguished, and, expecting to die before another sun would set, he sent for his family and domestics to come and receive his dying benediction.—His remarks, it is said, were full of affection and Christian resignation. His mind retained its vigor to the last, and his dying moment, even more than his earlier years, exhibited its highest intellectual light. To his family and friends he said 'Do not grieve that I am about to leave you, for I shall be better off. Although I am afflicted with pain and bodily suffering, they are as nothing compared with the sufferings of the Saviour of the world, who was put to death on the accursed tree. I have fulfilled my destiny on the earth, and it is better that this wornout frame should go to rest, and my spirit take up its abode with the Redeemer.'

He continued thus to address his relatives and friends at intervals, during the forenoon, and, as Dr. Esselman remarked, his confidence and faith in the great truths of religion seemed to be more firm and unwavering than any man he had ever seen die. He expressed a desire that Dr. Edgar, of the Presbyterian Church, to which he himself belonged, should preach his funeral sermon, and that no pomp or parade should be made over his grave.

He died on Sunday evening, the 8th inst., at 6 o'clock, and was buried on the 10th.

FOR THE COURIER.

INCENDIARIES.

Three fires have occurred in the village parish of this town, recently, under circumstances calculated to awaken the most serious alarm as to their origin. The first commenced about 5. P. M. in the back shed of Mr. Joshua Sylvester, and soon spread to the adjoining buildings, destroying property to the amount of $50,000. It was at first supposed, that it might have been occasioned by friction matches, as they had been known to have done such things. But subsequent events render it probable that the fire might have been caused by old boys, for the purpose of plunder. As during the fire, several strangers were seen loading their vehicles with goods, two of these in a manner so suspicious, that they were caused to unload on the ground. One is known to have left the place with a large quantity of goods not his own.

Our theory is, that these impudent pedlars, finding the family absent as they were, took this opportunity of opening the door for plunder.

The second commenced at 1-2 past 3. P. M. in Mr. Boardman's Barn—under circumstances that leave no doubt that it was set on fire. In fact, there is great reason to believe that the person who set fire is in a fair way to have justice done him.

The third commenced about 1-2 past 12. at the Carpet Factory, just after the workmen had left for dinner. It was at a time, and in a place, where it could have been kindled, without hazard of discovery—and it is the confident belief of all connected with the mill, that it could not have happened other than by design. Although the mills was carried by Steam power, it is clear that the burning of had no connection with the fires about the Engine.

Correspondance of the Courier.

The following letter was received in season for the last paper but was crowded out by the accounts of the fires.

Dublin, N. H., June 11, 1845.

We left Danvers on Monday morning and after a very pleasant ride, arrived at Merrimack, a town about six miles beyond Nashua, and put up at Holt's tavern. We were too tired and warm to look about much, so I took a cigar and smoked until bed time. We set out again in the morning much refreshed, and travelled over a rough and rocky region of country, the horses having had a hard time of it, climbing up the long hills and sweating like rain. We stopped occasionally to let them rest and to light a cigar, and continued our course up the hills until we ascended the highest point in the route which is near Peterboro, mountain. Here a fine prospect opened to us, as we could see a vast extent of country and old Monadnoc rearing his head in the distance. At this place we could see what we intended as the end of our journey. At what seemed but a few miles we could discern a Meeting house on a distant hill which we were told was Dublin—not Dublin in Ireland or New Dublin in Danvers—but Dublin N. H., from which place I write you this letter.

We continued our journey expecting now to reach the end of it in a very short time. We kept travelling mile after mile, and ever and anon we would catch a glimpse of Dublin Meeting house, but it seemed almost as distant as ever. I smoked cigar after cigar expecting every one I lighted that we should reach Dublin before it was finished. Any one who has travelled, on approaching a mountain must have noticed a similar deception in distances. At last, however, we arrived at about four o'clock in the afternoon, ourselves and our horses not a little fatigued with our journey. I ought to have mentioned that we passed several miles on the margin of a beautiful pond which is six miles in circumference, with a public road all around it. The musquitoes were very plenty here and we were obliged to smoke all the time to keep them off. Never, since the last war have I seen such an army of musquitoes.

While here I made an excursion to Monadnoc, which is partly situated in this town. I was accompanied by a friend who knew the regular path to the top, and after almost incredible exertion, we arrived at the topmost rock where I smoked a cigar and rested. At the top and for a great distance below, there are scarcely any trees or other signs of vegetation and all looks desolate enough. I noticed that many others who had been there before us, had taken pains to mark their names or initials on the rocks. I had no chisel and mallet and if I had, I should not have troubled myself to place my name there. The country is very wild about the mountains, far more so than Kent,s woods or any other place you see in Danvers. I looked over a precipice of more than one hundred feet perpendicular height. The weather was hazy when I went up and we did not have a very good prospect from the top. It is said that bears are sometimes seen about this mountain, but I saw none. The only wild animals I saw, were a red fox and a grey rabbit, but I saw the tracks of a wolf. I was somewhat apprehensive that I should see rattlesnakes as there were many places which seemed suitable for dens for such reptiles, but my friend told me there were no serpents there but the harmless striped snake.

One of our party wiser than myself, chose to go and fish for trout, instead of climbing up the mountains, and caught about a hundred of these beautiful fish. They are very abundant in the streams in this vicinity. Yesterday I rode over to Keene, which is a few miles distant and is the chief town of Cheshire county. It is a fine place, beautifully situated on a plain surrounded by high hills, and the houses are tastefully and substantially built, a great proportion of them, of brick. A rail road is soon to pass through it and the people are in as high a rail road fever as Danvers was last winter. I found here that Danvers was represented by one of its natives and that two young ladies who are my neighbors at home were here on a visit, but never having had a formal introduction to them I did not see them. It was here that I first heard of the fire at the Plains, and I could not help wishing that Danvers was built of brick, like Keene.

I think we shall return home soon and I shall take with me a specimen of the rock of which the mountain is composed. I suppose as it was all up hill coming, it will be just so going back. Our horses are pretty well rested and if we have good luck may reach home on Saturday.

Yours truly.

Inklings of War.—Gen. Scott, we learn came down from West Point on Tuesday evening, and stopped at the American, appearing to be quite at his leisure. The night train brought an officer from Washington, in quest of Gen. Scott, who, after a brief interview, left post-haste for Washington. These facts, as related to us, strengthen the report that a Mexican force is on the Nueces, and that Mr Polk is about to undertake the serious responsibility of driving them over the Rio del Norte.

We have private, but most reliable advices that agents of Mexico have recently been among the Cherokees, seeking to engage the Indians as allies of Mexico, in expectation of a war with the United States. We apprehend that those who assured our People that annexation was a measure of peace, and would not excite hostility or interrupt relations of amity, will prove to have grossly deceived those who trusted them.—N. Y. Tribune.

SHAVINGS.

☞We understand that the Carpet Factory, at Tapleyville, which was destroyed by fire last week, will be immediately rebuilt by Mr Tapley.

☞We understand that the Grand Jury, in session at Ipswich have found two bills of indictment against one Creesy, of Newburyport, for incendiary attempts in that place—also a bill against one Lawrence for setting fire to Mr. Boardman's barn in Danvers last week.—Reg.

Accident at Bath. As the steamboat was about to leave the wharf at Bath Wednesday morning, for Boston, a cabman drove up to the wharf with two ladies, and backed his cab off the wharf into the water. One of the ladies, Mrs Nichols, wife of a gentleman connected with the customs, was drowned. The other lady was saved.

Melancholy Death. A little boy of six years old, a son of Mr Lewis Cabbett of West-Dedham came to his death last week in consequence of taking some tobacco into his stomach. The child went to the store of Mr Jason Ellis, Jr., in that place, and asked the clerk, a boy by the name of Hank, for some kind of confectionary. He was told they had no sugar plums, but he could have some tobacco. The child replied that tobacco would make him sick. The clerk argued that it would not, took a cracker and put on some butter, and molasses, and tobacco and succeeded in some way in getting it down the child. The little boy was taken vomiting soon after and continued so to do for several days, and at length went into a fit, and finally died on Tuesday, the 5th inst. We understand that Mr Ellis promptly discharged the clerk, as soon as it was known that he had committed the infamous transaction. If there is any punishment that can reach him, he should not be permitted to escape "unwhipt of justice."—[Norfolk Democrat.

☞Marshal Burnham of Williamstown, Vt., has just been arrested, and is now in jail at Chelsea, under suspicion of being the murderer of Mr, Parker, who was murdered a short time since at Manchester, N. H. There are strong circumstantial evidences against Mr. B.

☞One of the best citizens of Pittsburg has been burned out no less than four times in two months.

☞Elworth finished his thousand miles in as many hours, at New Orleans on the 8th, at 8 in the morning and then walked on for fun till 4 P. M., and offered to walk a mile with any body for $50 or $500 a side.

Hon. Louis McLane, of Baltimore has been appointed Minister Plenipotentiary and Ambassador Extraordinary, in place of Mr Everett.—He is to be clothed with no special powers to form a definitive treaty.

The annual income of the Prince of Wales, a baby three years of age, amounts to $400 000.

[Reported for the Boston Daily Advertiser.

At market 700 Beef Cattle, 12 pairs Working Oxen. 950 Sheep, and 370 Swine. 200 beef Cattle and 500 Swine unsold.

Prices—Beef Cattle—Former prices generally were not sustained. Six beautiful Cattle from New York were taken at $6. We quote Extra 5 50 a 5 75; first quality 5 25 a 5 50; second quality $5 a 5 25; third quality 4 50 a $5.

Working Oxen—No sales noticed.

Sheep—Small lots from 1 50 to 2 50.

Swine—One entire lot at 4 1-4c; small lots at 4 and 5c. At retail, from 4 1-2 to 6c.

PORT OF DANVERS.

SAILED.

Saturday, June 14th.

Sloop Stranger, Skidmore, Boston, with bricks.

ARRIVED.

Sunday, 15th

Schr Abeona. Dadge, Bangor, with lumber.

" Victor, Jones, New York, flour, corn and oats.

Menday 16th

Schr Albert, Carter, Bangor, with lumber.

" Edward, Bluehill, with wood.

" Seth and William, Thomastown, with wood.

Tuesday 17

Sloop Stranger, Skidmore, Boston.

SAILED.

Schrs Victor, Seth and William, and Abeona

ARRIVED.

Schr Duroc, Baker

Thursday 19

Schr China, Nickerson, New York, flour and grain

" David Porter, Kelley, Dennis, with salt

SAILED.

Schr Albert, Carter, Bangor.

ARRIVED.

Schr Clio, Haskell, Dennisville, with lumber

MARRIAGES.

In this town, by Rev Mr Field, Mr John Chamberlain, jr., to Miss Lucy Ann Hatch.

By Rev J. G Richardson, Mr Lewis Prescott to Miss Jemima Higgins, both of Danvers.

By Rev Mr Prince, Mr Jason Richardson to Mrs Emily A. Merrill, both of Middleton.

At New Mills, June 15th, by Rev Mr Eaton, Mr Charles E. Smith to Miss Mary O. Black.

In Salem, Mr Charles Asa Osgood of this town, to Miss Mary Elizabeth Cate of Salem. Mr Henry F. Skerry, of Bangor to Miss Elizabeth T. Brookhouse, of Salem.

In Lynn, Mr William H. Blanchard to Miss Mary Jane Holland. Mr Elliot Newhall to Miss Ellen Handy

In Bradford, Mr. Herschell A Spofford to Miss Sarah Stickney, only daughter of Col. D. B. Stickney.

DEATHS.

In this town, North Parish, on Sunday last, Mr. Nathaniel P. Averell., aged 78.

In Salem, Mr Abran Brown, aged 65. Mr John Sholvy, aged 30. Mrs Catharine, wife of Mr John Hufle aged 35

At Cambridgeport, June 1st of consumption, Miss Eusebia H., daughter of Alvan Jewell of Winchester, N H, aged 22.

In Montreal, Gen Sir Richard Donnes Jackson Commander-in-Chief of the forces in British North America.

NOTICE.

That part of Danvers hitherto called "Blind Hole," will hereafter be known by the name of Putnamville.

JORDAN LODGE.

Brethren of the Masonic Fraternity in Danvers, and the Celebration in Charlestown next Thursday. The appropriate Clothes and Jewels will be furnished by the Treasurer, who will be in attendance at the Town Hall in Charlestown Square, between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock on the morning of the day.

By order of the R. W. M.

N. P. C. PATTERSON, Sec.

Danvers, June 21, A. L. 5845.

HOWARD TENT—No. 87—I. O. of R.

Regular Meetings of the Tent, every MONDAY EVENING, at RECHABITE HALL, South Danvers.

The punctual attendance of every member is requested at the next meeting.

june 21 WM. H. HOWLAND, Clerk.

NOTICE.

The regular meetings of Monument Division, No. 5, SONS OF TEMPERANCE, held at Sanger's Hall, are changed from Wednesday to Monday evening, at 8 o'clock. Members of the order are respectfully invited to attend.

Danvers, April 12. MOSES MERRILL, R. S.

M. TELTEA

HAS a splendid assortment of BROADCLOTHS, DOESKINS, and VESTINGS, of the latest patterns, which are worthy the attention of purchasers.

GARMENTS CUT AND MADE, in the most fashionable style, or according to the fancy of the customer, and warranted to fit.

A lot of very nice SQUARES, and Gentlemen's LINEN GLOVES

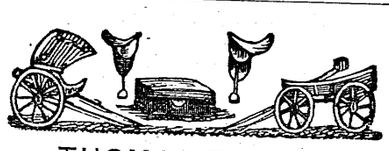
South Danvers, June 14, 1845.

Hosiery! Hosiery!



200 DOZEN of Hosiery and Gloves, just opened, this morning, which added to my large stock on hand, comprises a full assortment of all sizes, kinds and qualities, all of which will be sold at the lowest prices, at the Hosiery and Glove Store No. 236 Essex st., Salem, by

june 14 R. H. CHAMBERLAIN,

Improved Curtain Fixtures.

A NEW and beautiful article of Curtain Fixtures, of American Manufacture, far superior to those now in use, and not so likely to get out of order. For sale wholesale and retail at the manufacturer's prices, at the Hosiery and Glove Store, No. 236 Essex street, Salem, by june 14 R. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

THOMAS TRASK,

Near the Eagle, Main Street, Danvers,

KEEPS constantly on hand, a good assortment of

SADDLES AND HARNESSES,

of every kind and quality. Also—Fire Buckets, Solid Leather, Rivetted Double and Boot Top Travelling Trunks, Common Hair do., Valises and Carpet Bags, Chaise, Stage and Draught Collars, Military Equipments, etc.

ENGINE HOSE furnished at short notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

CHURCH CUSHIONS, of all kinds and quality, made at the shortest notice.

T. T. has on hand as good an assortment of Harnesses as can be found at any other establishment.

A good article of Neats Foot Oil, constantly on hand.

Danvers, June 7, 1845. 1y

TOPOGRAPHICAL MAP OF PALESTINE by J. H. Colton. Compiled principally from the observaions of Messrs Robinson and Smith. The religious Press and many of the secular papers have spoken in high erms of this map. For sale by G. W. & E. CRAFTS.

171 Essex St. Salem.

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

THE undersigned would inform their friends and the public, that they have formed a connection in business undar the firm of

SHORT & LUMMUS,

and have taken the stand lately occupied by WILLIAM KIMBALL, No. 240 Essex street, Salem.

(Nearly opposite the Market.)

where they will open this morning an entire new

STOCK OF DRY GOODS.

among which may be found Barage and Mohair SHAWLS, Mantles, Balzorines, Barages, French and Scotch Ginghams, Lawns, Alpaccas, M. de Laines, Black and Blue Black Alepines. Linens, Linen Drilling, Plain and Ribbed Gambroons, HOSIERY, GLOVES, etc.,

Together with a large assortment of

House-keeping, Lace and Thread Goods.

JOSEPH SHORT,
F. H. LUMMTS.

Salem, June 21. tf

REMOVAL.

POOLE & STEDMAN,

MAKERS OF

TRUNKS, HARNESSES, &c. AND COACH AND GIG TRIMMERS,

For the better accommodation of their customers, have taken the lower part of the shop recently occupied by Mr. Jonathan Ward,

No. 24 St. Peter Street.

SALEM.

Thankful for past patronage, a continuance of the same is solicited.

N. B. Valises, Ladies' Satchels, Carpet Bags, &c. constantly on hand and for sale cheap.

S. A. POOLE,
G. B. STEDMAN.

june 21, 1845.

GRASS CLOTHS FOR SKIRTS.

JUST RECEIVED at 24 Washington street, a large lot Grass Cloths for Skirts, extra wide and clear. Also, Real India Feather Fans.

KEITH & MASON.

Purchasers of Linen Goods, will do well to examine the assortment of KEITH & MASON, 24 Washington street, consisting of Linen, Damasks, Table Covers, Napkins, Dahlias, Pillow-cane Linens, Linen Sheetings, Crash, diapers, Huckaback, Shirtings, and every quality of plain linens from 2 cents per yard to $1, 25.

N. B. Every article warranted pure Irish Linen.

june 21

A SERIOUS QUESTION,—Why will you buy those nuisances, Friction Matches, and thereby endanger you Life and Property, when you can obtain the "LUCIFER MATCHES" an article perfectly safe and about the same cost, at WM. S. CLEVELAND & CO'S, who have a lot of the Genuine London Lucifer Matches which formerly were sold at 12 1-2 cents a box; but now can be bought for 17c a dozen boxes. june 21

WORKS JUST ISSUED. Six Years in the Monasteries of Italy, and Two Years in Islands of Mediteranean, with Anecdotes, by Rev. S. S. Mahoney. (late a friar in Rome.)

Wiley & Putnan's Library No. 13.; The Age of Elizbeth, by Wm. Hazlitt, 50 cents; The Smuggler, a Tale by James; No, 56 Harper's Select Novels, 25 cents.

HARPER'S BIBLE—No. 30 just received.

Just received by W. S. CLEVELAND. & CO.

june 21

NO. 30 Harper's Pictorial Bible, just published and for sale by

W. & S. B. IVES,
opposite R. Road Station.

june 21

LINES, HOOKS, RODS, &c. A complete assortment for brook, pond and sea fishing, comprising jointed Rods, various prices; Rods to slide into canes; Silk worm gut for Trout; artificial Flies for Bait; Float; Sinkers; Hooks ganged on brass and silver wire, for Trout and Pickerel, &c, etc., at W M S. CLEVELAND etc., CO'S, 193, Essex street. June 21

Bargains in Gloves and Hosiery,

At 24 Washington street.

A LOT of unbleached embroidered Cotton Hose, a little soiled, at 12 1-2c; do bleached do 12 1-2c; do brown do 12 1-2.

Boys' Mixed Socks of every size.

Children's Cotton, Lisle Thread, Silk and Kid Gloves.

june 14

NEW GOODS.

RICH fig'd Black Silk Laces, for Mantillas; A large lot plain and emb'd Raw Silk Gloves; French style Parasoletes; Hair Cloth for skirts; Rich Emb'd Under Sleeves; fine Green Barege; Bonnet Ribbons at half price.

Also, a variety of Goods from New York Auctions, at

KEITH & MASON'S,
24 Washington street, Salem.

june 14

LINENS FOR SHIRTINGS. Just received a lot of heavy Linens, at 54 Washington street, and selling very low. One lot good Linens, at 25 cents.

june 14 KEITH & MASON.

REMOVAL.

SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

Rich Jewelry and Fancy Goods,

HAVE removed to the New Store, No. 291 Essex street, (next above Mechanic Hall) where they will keep constantly for sale Gold Finger Rings, Breast Pins, Bracelets, Lockets, Keys, Gold and Silver Pencil Cases, Silver Thimbles, Silver and Plated Table and Tea Spoons, Butter Knives, Silver Plated and Brittania Ware, Shell, Horn, and Ivory Combs, Pocket Books, Purses, &c., &c.

N. B. All kinds of Jewelry repaired in a superior manner and warranted. Old Gold or Jewelry, made over or exchanged for new.

S. & C. having acquired a thorough knowledge of the business in New York, as well as our success for the past five years in this city, will, we feel assured, enable us to execute with approbation any orders entrusted to our care.

☞Thankful for past patronage, we solicit a continuance of the same. tf March 15.

S. R. BOTT,

DRAPER & TAILOR,

No. 148 Essex Street, Salem,

TAKES this method of informing the public of Danvers and vicinity that he has for sale one of the richest and BEST selected assortments of Broadcloths, Cassimeres & Vestings ever before offered in Salem. The Stock is of the latest Spring and Summer styles, and cannot be surpassed by any establishment in the city, which will be sold by the yard, or made into Garments, in a style that CANNOT be surpassed in this or any other city.

☞Strangers from the country would do well to call at this establishment, as they select their Goods with the most perfect confidence, that each article is as good in quality, and as low in price as can be obtained at any other store.

N. B. The report of Fashions received every month.

Salem, March 15, 1845.

House and Land for Sale.

The subscriber offers for sale a large two story Dwelling House, on Holton street, convenient for two families, and in good repair. The said house now rents for $130 per annum, and will be sold low.

Terms of sale will be easy for the purchaser, as a large part of the amount may remain on mortgage. Apply to

may 24 tf WM. SUTTON.

JOSEPH SHED,

NOTARY PUBLIC AND ACTING MAGISTRATE,

Opposite the Monument.

All kinds of writing; conveyancing and Probate business attended to promptly.

☞A great variety of BLANKS constantly on hand, and for sale.

Danvers, May 21, 1845.

French Goods from New York.

THE subscribers have opened this day, an assortment of French Goods to which they invite the attention of the ladies.

3 boxes Real French Embroidery Inside Hdkfs;
3 " " " " Collars, various styles.
3 " French Dentilla Laces, for Trimmings,
A variety of Thread Lace Insertions;
Real French Linen Cambric Hdkfs, hemmed stitch;
Embroidered Linen Cambric Hdkfs;
" Muslin for Dresses;
Boxes French Kid Gloves;
New styles Laces for Capes, some very rich.

The above Goods were selected on Wednesday in New York, and are of the very latest styles.

KEITH & MASON.
june 7 24 Washington street.

Opening of Spring!

Magnificent, Chaste and Original Designs for Remodeling

"OAK HALL!"

FOR SPRING TRADE!

OPENING OF "OAK HALL" FOR THREE MONTHS!

Advice to Professional Men, Merchants Clerks with moderate Salaries, Farmers, Mechanics, Seamen, Firemen and others, VISIT OAK HALL!

ARRIVAL OF SPRING GOODS!

To Wholesale Dealers.

THE OPENING

This Morning, for Three Months!

I would again most respectfully inform the citizens of Boston, and strangers visiting the city, (after a delay of six weeks, during which time I have not been idle,) I have completed my arrangements on the most

MAGNIFICENT SCALE,

greatly surpassing my former arrangements. The Hall is splendidly decorated with almost

MAGIC ELEGANCE!

The architecture being Gothic, has given the artist an opportunity to display his taste to advantage. The paintings which adorn the walls are so perfectly chaste and appropriate, that every one will be fully compentsated the trouble of visiting it. The design and effect of the interior, especially when

ILLUMINATED IN THE EVENING,

Is unequalled in any store this side of the Atlantic Much praise is due to the artist, for his share in beautifying this Establishment. I flatter myself that the good taste of my fellow citizens and townsmen will fully appreciate all I have done, as my Establishment was the FIRST and ONLY ONE that adopted the

"EXTREME LOW PRICE SYSTEM,"

Before "OAK HALL" was in existence, it was not a very uncommon thing for a gentleman to pay from $45 to $50 for a suit of clothes. For one half of this sum or less, a perfect and entire suit can be obtained at this Establishment, cut and made with that ease and grace, that distinguish my garments from others. From this

EMPORIUM OF FASHION

first originated the Gothic style of architecture in Boston, and Oak Painting, &c. now so much in fashion. To those who have not visited this great

PLACE OF RESORT,

on account of the name of the street, I would most respectfully say, that where my establishment is located was once the Court end of Boston, and at this time is visited and patronized by the most influential and respectable individuals. Man, not unlike the fields, and Trees, once covered with a beautiful suit of Green, having its lusty suit of nature soon to be warmed into animation, and renew its beautiful suit of Green, So with Man—wrapped up in his Overcoat, he now on the opening of Spring, finds his under suit rusty and shabby, and is not suitable to wear. The next thing is to find a good place to fit out at a

REASONABLE PRICE,

and to be sure and have a GOOD FITTING SUIT, that will set upon the form with ease, grace and gentility.

FIVE GOOD REASONS

Why you can purchase at OAK HALL less than at any other Establishment in the United States:

FIRST—You do not pay me for YOUR suit, and the INDIVIDUAL'S that did not pay previous to you, as MY business is Cash on delivery.

SECOND—If any Garment made to order is not pleasing in every particular, it is no inconvenience to take it back and make another, as Ready Made Garments are directly in my line.

THIRD—I purchase my Goods in large lots, extremely cheap, and give my customers the benefit, by selling them at the smallest advances,

Fourth—I go by the motto.

LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS

OR AS SOME SAY,

"NO PROFITS AT ALL."

That I'll leave with my customer to decide.

FIFTH—My facilities are such at this time doing a

LARGE BUSINESS,

that I can afford to sell at

VERY LOW PRICES!

BOYS' CLOTHING.

I have lately added to my already extensive manufactory of Boys' Clothing, rooms for the manufacture of Boys' Clothing, and shall keep a large supply of every variety and kind, always on hand.

TO WHOLESALE DEALERS.

You will find the greatest variety of every style of Fresh Manufactured Clothing, adapted for Spring, to your different Trades, and will be sold extremely low in large lots!

AT RETAIL.

One of the largest and, best selected Stock of Fresh Spring Goods ever in "OAK HALL," and will be sold at the following low prices.—

PANTALOONS.

2500 pair of Fancy Spring patterns of Satinet Pants, at	1 75 to 2 50
3000 pair Steel Mixt Pants,	1 62 to 3 00
2200 do Sheeps Grey Pants	1 75 to 3 00
2500 do Canada Grey do,	1 75 to 3 00
3000 do Black Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 50
5000 do Lavender Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 00
2200 do Super black do Pants, with fancy stripe.	4 00 to 5 00
1500 Super blue Broadcloth and Cassimere Pants	3 50 to 4 50

THIN COATS.

3500 Coats and Sacks, American Gingham,	75 to 1 00
5000 Coats and Sacks, Scotch Gingham,	1 25 to 1 75
4800 Coats and Sacks Scotch Gingham, satin figure,	1 50 to 1 75
2700 Coats and Sacks, Webster Check	75 to 1 25
3750 Coats and Sacks, London Plaids,	1 25 to 175
4000 Coats and Sacks, of Linen and othergoods,	1 00 to 1 75

THIN PANTS.

8000 pair thin Pants of every quality of Goods at low prices, say from 50 cents to $2 50 per pair.

VESTS.

300 light Vests, a very pretty affair for Spring,	50c to 1 00
4500 Dark Valencia,	75 to 1 50
5500 Fine Valencia, dark and light	1 50 to 2 50
2700 Satin Vests, figured and plain,	2 00 to 3 00

DRESS AND FROCK COATS.

5000 super Dress Coats, all colors, green, blue, black, olive, &c. from $4 to $15.

1750 super Frock Coats, all colors, Mulberry, browns, etc. from $6 to $16.

All the above cut in the latest style, and made up expressly for Spring Trade.

500 Business Coats, at low prices, say from $2 to $5.

2200 Tweed Coats, water proof, from $3,75 to$5.

FURNISHING DEPARTMENT.

Great Display of Furnishing Goods at the following low prices, vis:

150 dozen White Shirts—Linen Bosoms, Collars and Ribbands.		75c to 1 25 each
100 do	White Shirts, plain.	50c to 75c do
150 do	Fancy Shirts,	62 1-2 to 87 1-2
200 do	Twilled Shirts,	50 to 62 1-2 do
25 do	Rich Figured Satin Scarfs,	Low prices.
20 do	do do do do
50 do	do do do do
50 do	Spring Pattern Cravats,	12 1-2 to 75c
25 do	Rich Fig'd Satin do.	75c to 1 25
50 do	Stocks, of every description, such as Satin Bombazine, &c. and made in the latest Spring Style,
1845		37 1-2 to 1 50
10 do	Brussells Carpet Bags, and others,	1 00 to 2 75
75 do	Smoking Caps,	12 1-2 to 25c
200 do	Braces of every description,	12 1-2 to 50c
20 do	best Kid Gloves,	50c to 1 00
25 do	Thread do	25 to 50c
20 do	Silk do	50 to 75c
100 do	Linen Bosoms—all kinds,	25 to 75c
300 do	do Collars, latest pattern,	10 to 25c
250 do	Canes,	17c to 1 00
325 do	Umbrellas,	50c to 1 50
50 do	Glazed Silk Caps,	1 00 to 1 25
100 do	do do	25 to 37c
505 do	Silk Pocket Hdkfs	25 to 75c

An endless variety of Fancy Articles, such as Gold and Fancy Studs—Hair Brushes—Clothes do—Pocket Combs—Dressing do—Tooth Brshes—Cologne—Bosom Pins—Fancy Soaps—Silk Purses—Guard Chains—Pant Straps, &c. &c.

A LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO THE TRADE.

My furnishing Goods are purchased from first rate hands, at low prices, and will be sold at small advance to the trade at my

EXTENSIVE LONG ROOMS,

OAK HALL BUILDING,

GEORGE W. SIMMONS,

General Tailor, Draper and Outfitter.

32, 34, 36, and 38 Ann street

Opposite Merchant's Row—BOSTON.

apr 19 3m

THE

Massachusetts Mechanic Association

HAVING AWARDED TO

GOVE, LOCKE & CO.,

and no one else, a DIPLOMA for specimens of

The Best Ready Made Clothing

Exhibited by them at the Mechanics' Fair in September last, must satisfy the community that the location of an establisnment is of but little importance, and that the idea of being confined to a particular section of the city, in order to obtain a

GENTEEL GARMENT,

has been rendered obsolete, by the above named award, as without prejudice the award was made to those who deserved it. Being convinced themselves, that their CUSTOM WORK has not been surpassed in any point of view, still they have been obliged to stem the current against the strongest prejudices, and have, by unremitted attention to the tastes and desires of their patrons, to a very considerable extent, overcome them, resulting in a successful trade, and encouraging them to prosecute the NEW ENGLAND vigor, and to devote a large share of their attention the present season, to the

Highest Grade of Custom Work!

Being now prepared with every facility adapted to the various classes in the community, they can furnish any style of Garment which their notion or fancy may dictate—aiming

In point of Style and Fashion,

to be in advance of any other

CLOTHING ESTABLISHMENT!

and being at all times supplied with materials of every description, they are prepared to turn out at the shortest notice

AS GOOD AND AS GENTEEL A GARMENT,

as can be obtained in the United States, and have entire confidence in making the assertion, having Cutters constantly

ENGAGED ON CUSTOM WORK:

who are inferior to none in this region, enabling them to assure those who have favored them with their patronage, that no pains will be spared to deserve a continuance of their support—and to those who lack confidence in a Clothing Establishment, because it is situated on

COMMERCIAL STREET,

they would say that a specimen of their work can be seen in nearly everysection of the city, particularly on the backs of

THE MOST GENTEEL PEOPLE!

and to them they refer, in relation not only to the treatment which is universally tendered to them by all concerned in the

COMMERCIAL ARCADE!

but more especially in regard to the price as the Proprietors have by experience ascertained that they can furnish a

FIRST RATE GARMENT!

at a medium price, equal in every respect to those furnished up in town, at an exhorbitant one. Their Stock of Clothing, adapted to the

SPRING SALES!

is far superior to any previous year, and the patronage of the public is respectfully invited, whether in pursuit of a single garment or otherwise, as their stock embraces every article essential or requisite to the wardrobe of a gentleman, while its magnitude enables them to supply COUNTRY DEALERS in any quantity at the shortest notice, and on the best terms.

WHOSESALE DEALERS!

located any where from Maine to Georgia, or even in Texas, can find at this concern an assortment of Wearing Apparel adapted to their sales, and are invited before concluding their

SPRING PURCHASES!

—TO CALL—

At No. 60 Commercial street,

BOSTON,

Sign of the Monument,—and visit the proprietors of

COMMERCIAL ARCADE,

GOVE, LOCKE & COMPANY.

Boston, March 29, 1845 3m

Witch Hazle, for Beds.

A FIRST rate article just received and for sale by CARTER & BATCHELDER.

April 19

FOR SALE CHEAP.

One good second hand CHAISE.
" " " BUGGY WAGON.
" " " LIGHT WAGON.

By THOMAS TRASK, Main street:

June 7 tf

AUCTIONS

BY BOWLEY & WHALL

[Store Nos 21 and 22 Pearl street, Bos

On WEDNESDAY, June 18 at 10 o'clock, at

BOOTS, SHOES AND BROGANS.

Boots, Shoes and Brogans.

On Tuesday, July 8th, at 10 o'clock, at off

BOOTS, SHOES AND BROGANS, 700 ca

Shoes and Brogans.

On Wednesday, July 23d, at 10 o'clock, at

BOOTS, SHOES AND BROGANS. 2000 cas

Shoes and Brogans.

The above sales comprise a prime stock of good ery case on the catalogues will be sold without the serve.

At Private Sale.

Book Binders. 7 crates, (3000 pounds) Russet pieces suitable for Book Binders, of good color.

Split Leather—2000 lbs light Slaughter Splits.

Kidd—50 dozen Madras Kid, No. 2.

Linings—200 dozen Cochineal and White Linin

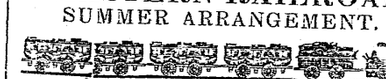
Wax Leather—300 sides prime Slaughter Wax.

African Kipp—1000 sides African Kip.

Grain Leather—500 sides oak and hemlock Grai

Calf Skins—200 dozen light and heavy Calf Ski

Linings, in crust—500 dozen White Linings in c



Baltimore Leather—200 sides light Slaughter Sole

New York Sole Leather—1100 sides light and mi

Caroga Tannery.

EASTERN RAILROA

SUMMER ARRANGEMENT.

ON and after April 4th, 1845, Trains lea

(Sundays excepted.)

Boston for Portland, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P. M

" Portsmouth, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 5

" Somersworth, Great Falls, 7 1-2 1-2 P.M.

" for Newburyport, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1 5 1-2 P.M.

" for Salem, 7 1-4, 9, A.M., 12 1- 3 1-2, 5 1-2, 7 1-2 P

Salem for Portland, 8 A.M., 3 1-4 P.M.

Salem for Portsmouth and Newburyport, 3 1-4, 6 1-4 P.M.

Portland for Boston, 7 1-2 A.M., 3 P.M.

Saco for Boston, 8 A.M., 3 1-2 P.M.

Somersworth, Great Falls for Boston, 8 3-4 4 1-4 P.M.

South Berwick lot Boston, 9 1-4 A M, 4 3-4

Portsmouth for Boston, 6 1-2, 10,* A.M., 5 1-

Newburyp't for Boston, 7 1-4, 10 3-4* AM. 6 1

Salem for Boston, 7 1-2, 8 1-2, 10 1-4 11 3-4, 2 1 4, 5, 7,* P.M.

*Or on their arrival from the East.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Trains leave Marblehead for Salem, at 7 1-4, 10, A.M.; 2, 4, 4 3-4, 7, P.M.

Leave Salem for Marblehead, at 8, 9 3-4 1, 3 1-4, 4 1-4, 61-4, 8 1-4 P.M.

A Merchandize Train will leave Boston, Po and all intermediate places every day.

Freight Office in Boston, No. 17 Merchants and on the line of the road at the several Depots

JOHN KINSMAN

apr 12 Master of Transportat

Summer Arrangement of the

DANVERS AND SALEM

HOURLY COACHES

THE Danvers and S Hourly Coaches wi connection with the E Railroad, leave Danvers Salem at the following hours, viz:

Leave Danvers at 7 A.M. Leave Salem at 8

" " 8 1-4 " " 12

" " 11 1-4 " " 3

" " 1 3-4 P.M. " " 4

" " 2 3-4 " " 6

" " 4 1-2 " " 7

" " 6 1-2 " " 9

" " 7 1-2 " " 10

For seats apply at Macintire's Hotel, or at J G Shed's store in Danvers, and at the Essex H and Salem Hotel in Salem.

Railroad passengers taken at the depot on th rival of the cars from Boston and the East.

☞Extra Coaches furnished at any hour on rea ble terms

apr 19 SYMONDS & TEE tf

J. & H. HALE,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

HARD WARE GOODS A

CUTLERY,

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC

HOUSE KEEPING ARTICLES AND FA GOODS,

Agricultural Tools and Plough

PLOUGH CASTINGS, FRICTION ROLLERS AND CRA

Iron and Copper Pumps and Lead Pip

WINDOW GLASS,

CAMPHENE,

CAMPHENE LAMPS, HANGING, SIDE A

ASTRAL—A GREAT VARIETY OF STYLES,

Cut Glass, Britannia, Brass, Bronze and Mantle La

CARPENTER'S TOOLS,

HOUSE TRIMMINGS,

Shoe Makers' Tools. Nails, Thread and Pe

BOILER DOORS AND OVEN MOUTHS

Furnaces, Cast Iron Hollow Ware, Tubs, P Mats, Cut Nails, Emery, Zinc, Lead, &c.

No. 215 Essex Street, SALEM, Mas

march 15 tf

FOR SALE.

A two story house and lot of l on Holton street. The House is convenient for two families and wi sold at a great bargain. Inquire of

HIRAM GRANT

Danvers, April 19, 1845,

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,

Attorney and Counsellor at La

OFFICE IN FELTON'S (late Osborne's) Building,

Danvers, March 29th. tf

NEW LIME.

CONSTANTLY on hand and for sale by

may 31 CARTER & BATCHELDER

Salem, March 15. tf

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

JONATHAN W. OSBORNE has taken into partnership MICHAEL L. WHIDDEN, a they will continue the

Painting, Glazing & Papering

business, at the old Stand No 10 PARK STREET, un the firm of

OSBORNE & WHIDDEN.

Particular attention to

SIGN PAINTING,

IMITATIONS OF WOOD, MARBL BRONZE, GROUND GLASS, &c.

mch 29 1y

Overhauls.

A GOOD assortment will be constantly kept hand, at EDWARDS',

apr 26 14 Front street, Salem

Periodical Depot!!
REMOVAL.

LUTHER CHANDLER, the Proprietor of the Depot for
PERIODICALS AND CHEAP PUBLICATIONS,
formerly kept at No. 3, (on the East side of Washington street, has removed to the store,

Corner of Washington and Norman Streets,
(Directly opposite the Old Stand,)

where he intends to keep a full supply of all the Periodicals and New Works, as well as the Daily and Weekly Newspapers, as soon as they appear from the press.

In removing from the old stand he confidently hopes to receive the continued patronage of those who have formerly received his publications and he pledges himself that he will use his best exertions to procure all New Works promptly and sell them at the lowest prices.

His long experience and extensive acquaintance with those publishers and others engaged largely in the Book Trade will enable him to answer orders for particular Works, with great promptness, and at the most favorable prices.

REFRESHMENTS,

such as are usually kept at Restaurateurs, and SODA AND MEAD, will be furnished at the new stand by S. SAUNDERS.

REMEMBER—Corner of Washington and Norman Sts., near the Railroad Station, Salem.

may 24 3m

DANVERS DYE HOUSE.

THE subscriber would inform the citizens of Danvers that he has established himself at Danvers Plains, near Maple street, where he will attend to the dyeing and cleansing all kinds of

SILK AND WOOLEN GOODS.

His former experience in England, added to his knowledge of the drugs and dyes in use in this country, will enable him to produce colors, which for cheapness and durability cannot be excelled by any other establishment.

☞Goods left at Mrs. Gould's, Main street South Danvers, or at the Dye House, will meet with prompt attention.

WILLIAM BOWBOTHAM.

Danvers Plains, June 7, 1845. tf

Great Bargains

ARE NOW BEING HAD AT THE

Washington Street Clothing Store, Salem

GARMENTS of all description may be obtained at prices which cannot fail to give entire satisfaction.

Great care has been taken in the getting up of every garment, all of which is warranted equal, if not superior to any Clothing in the city.

The subscriber continues to take measures as formerly, and all Garments bespoken, will be made according to the wishes of the customer, and will guarantee both the style and fit.

☞BOY WANTED, as an Apprentice.

S. CHAMBERLAIN, Jr.

Salem, March, 15. tf

BENJAMIN EDWARDS,
DRAPER & TAILOR,

No. 11 FRONT STREET, SALEM.

GARMENTS Cut and Made to order, and Fashionably, and warranted to give entire satisfaction

Constantly on hand, a good assortment of
BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES, AND VESTINGS.

Also—Neck Stocks, Italian Cravats, Scarfs, Shirt Bosoms, Collars, Feetings, Braces, Umbrellas, Hair and Clothes Brushes, Cologne Water, Wallets,

and other articles necessary for Gentlemen's use.

Grateful for the very liberal patronage which has heretofore been bestowed upon the establisment, he hopes by care and attention to business to merit a continuance.

Any order for Goods in the Tailoring Line, attended to with fidelity and despatch.

All Garments Repaired and Cleansed Cheap.

Any of the above articles if not on hand when called for, will be furnished at short notice.

mch 15 tf

REMOVAL.

BOWDOIN BRADLEE, has removed from Mechanic Hall, to the adjoining building above, 298 Essex street, where he has rooms built expressly for the purpose of taking Miniatures in any weather.

Mr. B. tenders his sincere thanks to his friends and the public, for their liberal patronage the past year, and respectfully solicits the continuance of public favor. He has recently purchased a large Achromatic instrument for the purpose of taking GROUPS and LARGE PICTURES, which enable him to give pictures of all sizes, equal to those taken in New York or Boston He has formed a connexion with an establishment in New York, from whence he receives all the new improvements, and materials connected with the Art, which will enable him to give better pictures for less prices than can be obtained in Boston.

Miniatures set in every variety of Lockets, Frames, Cases, &c.

☞Persons visiting Salem, and those about going to sea, can have a perfect likeness completed in a few minutes' time.

 Miniatures set in a neat Morocco Case for $1 50. Exhibition rooms open to visiters through the day.

HARRISON'S REMEDY
FOR THE PILES.

THIS is an ointment prepared by the undersigned, and has been so thoroughly tested in so many different cases that I never hesitate to warrant relief to those who will give it a fair trial, observing the directions around each box which give a plain treatise on the disease and full instructions as to diet mode of cure, &c. One application at night never fails to relieve the greatest pain and anguish. I am ready to refer to numerous individuals who have proved this Remedy to be the safest, surest, speediest and cheapest

CURE FOR THE PILES.

My agent in Exeter writes thus: "the Pile Remedy which you left me is all sold, please send me soon a further supply, as a number of persons in this town think very highly of it. N. GILMAN"

MORE TESTIMONY.

Salem, Aug. 6. Mr. Harrison: The box of ointment which I had from you has worked like a charm—I have used it only one night, and I am cured. I had used Hays' Liniment as I stated to you, with no benefit but rather was worse, it causing more inflammation. Yrs, J. W.

BLEEDING PILES CURED.

Mr. Harrison—Having given your Peristaltic Lozenges and Pile Remedy a fair trial, I have the satisfaction to inform you that they have operated wonderfully in my case. I had not been able for months to do any work at my trade, owing to exhaustion from bleeding, but I now feel myself cured. The severe pain which I had in my stomach is gone, and my strength is fast returning. I had used various remedies to no purpose, until I tried your medicine. I can also state that Capt. Benj. Ireson of this town has also experienced great benefit from your Remedy. I cheerfully recommend the medicine to all suffering with that distressing complaint—the Piles.

Edward H. Lewis.

Lynn, Sept. 27, 1844.

For sale at 256 Essex street, by the Proprietor,
J. S. HARRISON Jr.,

Agents—in Danvers, S. PROCTOR, Jr.; Marblehead—E. Arnold; Lynn—Ladd, and Holder; Beverly—Clarke; Newburyport—C. Whipple; Andover—Amos Abbott; Topsfield—Bixby and Merriam, Haverhill—Nichol; Boston—Ransom & Stevens, Tompkins, Southers and Fowle.

mch 15 6m

New Furniture Store.
SALEM FURNITURE & FEATHER WARE-HOUSE.
205 1-2 ESSEX STREET. 205 1-2

(Two Doors East from the Market,)

JOSEPH WALLIS would respectfully inform his friends and the public that he has taken the rooms recently occupied by T. Needham, Esq., where he will keep constantly on hand and for sale an extensive and well selected assortment of which he will sell at the lowest cash prices, among which may be found,

CABINET FURNITURE,

Sofas, Sofa Beds; Windlass, Cot Trundle and common Bedsteads; Secretaries; Bureaus; Mahogany, Card, Work, Centre and Dining Tables;—Mahogany, Cane-seat and common Chairs; Mahogany, Cane-back and common Rocking Chairs;—Children's Toy, Rocking and Dining Chairs; Settees and Settee Cradles; Cribs; Grecian and common Wash Stands; Portable Sinks; Portable and Gentleman's Writing Desks, Toilet, Dining and common Pine Tables; Looking Glasses; Swing and Toilet Glasses. Fancy Boxes, a great variety;—Mattresses; and every article usually found in his line of business.

CLOCKS.

J. W. intends keeping on hand a large and well selected assortmeni of Wood and Brass Clocks from the best of manufacturers—all of which we can feel confident in warranting. Those about purchasing this article will do well to call.

FEATHERS.

Live Geese and common Feathers; a great variety.

N B. J. W. will still continue to Manufacture FURNITURE at the Old Stand, No 29 Lafayette, corner of Ward street, where he will keep on hand a good assortment of

Cabinet Furniture, Feathers, Looking Glasses and Clocks.

Salem, April 12, 1845.

EDWARDS' LINIMENT.

For Sprains, Cuts, Bruises, Stiffened or Swelled Joints, Chilblains, Chapped Hands, Numbness and Rheumatism.

THIS invaluable artidle is now for the first time offered to the public, after having been in use for twenty years, with unusual and astonishing success within the circle of the proprietor's immediate influence. It has received the unqualified approbation of some eminent Physicians, and also Mariners and Mechanics.

It is also recommended, and more than a thousand cases might be cited, when it has been used for Horses in cases of lameness or when galled, &c. &c.

The public are assured that in offering the above we do recommend that which has not the least semblance of quackery, but on the contrary it has done great and lasting good in its efficacious power and healing qualities.

As this medicine has been so long known in Salem and its vicinity, and as there are many that would avail themselves of it if they knew where it could be obtained, therefore the subsciber would now offer it to the public. It will be found always on hand and prepared by the subscriber.

BENJ EDWARDS,
No. 14 Front street, Salem, Mass.

Wanted—trusty and worthy Agents in the neighboring towns and vicinity.

Wholesale and Retail Agents.

DANIELS, POOR & CO., Danvers, Mass.
Benjamin F. Browne, Salem Mass.
Smith & Fowle, Boston, "
H. F. Skerry, Bangor, Me.
Charles Whipple, Bookseller, Newburyport.
Wm. R. Preston, Portsmouth, N. H.
John S. Caldwell, Belfast. Me.
Wm. H. Palmer, Lynnfield.
Joseph Edwards, jr., Lynn.
Charles Edwards, Marblehead.
Wm. Edwards, Beverly.

March 15, 1845. tf

G. W & E. CRAFTS,
BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURERS AND STATIONERS,
174 ESSEX STREET, SALEM,

HAVE constantly on hand, and will manufacture to order, all kinds of Blank Books, from the best paper, ruled to any pattern, and bound in a neat and substantial manner.

FINE STATIONERY,

of almost ever description, adapted for counting rooms and schools, comprising in part, Letter and Writing Papers, ruled and plain; Drawing Papers; Note, Tissue and Wrapping Papers; Wafers; Sealing Wax; Seals and Steel Pens of every variety; Quills of every description; wafer Cups; sand boxes; writing Rules and Inks; penknives; Razors, &c.

PRINTING, RULING AND BINDING,

Printing of shop bills, cards, bill heads, catalogues, &c. executed in the neatest manner and on the best terms. Ruling, to any pattern desired, at short notice. Binding, of every description, executed with despatch.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

A constant supply of school books, of the best editions, together with every kind of School Stationery Also, all kinds of miscellaneous books furnished at the lowest rates. mch 15

EASY SHAVING AND
HAIR CUTTING.

B. B. WILLIAMS respectfully informs hi friends and the public, that he has removed to the store formerly occupied by Lambert & Merrill, (under the Courier Office,) which he has fitted up in a neat manner, and is now prepared to wait upon those who believe that

"Man wants but little beard below,
Nor wants that little long."

Champooing, Hair Cutting and Shaving is performed to the satisfaction of all who may favor him with their patronage.

Danvers, March 15, 1845. tf

CHARLES H. MANNING,
CABINET MAKER,

Near the Sign of the Lamb, Main Street,
DANVERS, Mass.

FURNITURE manufactured on the most reasonable terms. Also—CURRIER'S TABLES made and repaired cheap.

SHOE-MAKERS' PEGGING BENCHES made as above. oct 15

IMPROVED CULITVATORS,

A complete assortment now on hand, at
J. & H. HALE'S,

May 3. tf 215 Essex street Salem.

TWEED COATS. Another lot of Tweed Coats, just received and selling cheaper than the last lot may 10 at EDWARDS', 14 Front street Salem.

Fales' Cathartic, or Vegetable PURGATIVE LOZENGES.

ARE the best and most popular medicines for people of all ages, country, and climates, and in every condition of life. They are compounded of the essences of vegetables from many nations. Their taste is inexpressibly delightful. They cause no pain in their operations, but the first change of feeling after taking them is, that of pleasure, and they cleanse the stomach and bowels more perfectly than any other purgative medicines.

The most wonderful and surprising cures have been effected by them in different parts of the earth. How these purgative lozenges do speedily purify the blood, and substitute health for sickness, is a mystery to the most eminent members of the healing art. Such purgative medicines must become universal, and supersede the use of all other purgative compounds; and as long as disease continues to afflict people, so long will these Lozenges remain unrivalled in all coming time throughout the world. Every person who travels should carry them—every family should keep them—and every sick man, woman, or child should take them.

FALES' WORM LOZENGES,

Are a safe and sure remedy for worms. Children love them. They act like a charm in removing the symptoms such as starting in sleep, grating the teeth paleness about the mouth and nose, occasional sickness at stomach, precarious appetite, swelled bowels, and general feverish habit, The child falls into a quiet sleep, and the worms are stupified and expelled, and the child, as far as heard from, in every instance has been cured. Price, 25 cents per box, with full directions; sold at Commercial street, Boston,

FALES' COUGH LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common Colds and Coughs, Whooping Cough, Inflamation of the Throat and Lungs, in the Croup or Hives, and more certain to act satisfactory than the celebrated Hive Syrup. The most happy effect is obtained in a few moments; the symptoms disappear and the disease is broken up by the magical effect of these Lozenges. Full directions accompany each box, are found at the Depositopy 96 Commercial staeet, Boston.

FALES' DYSENTERY LOZENGES,

Are a safe and agreeble temedy for Dysentery, Diarrhœa and Bowel Complaints of children. Particular attention must be paid to the directions which are on each box.

FALES' CAMPHOR LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common and sick head ache, and where there is a sense of tightness or weight over the eyes, in erruptive diseases, such as Measles and Small Pox. Also in Mania, Epilepsy, Melancholy, Hysteria, in St. Vitus Dance, and in all cases of languor and oppession of the Vital powers, may be taken with safety by women and children in all conditions of life.

FALES' CYPRIAN HAIR TONIC,

Is now so extsnsively known and justly celebrated that further comment upon it will be useless, we can say, however, that among the many thousands who have purchassed the Tonic, in this and other countries, none have returned with complaints, while thousands have expressed not only their approbation, but their wonder and admiration on beholding its effects. A few bottles only can be had at 96 Commercial street, Boston.

CLEAR OUT YOUR RATS.

The gnawing and antics of these destructive creatures can be hushed forever in your house and store, if you will procure a box of the genuine.

MADAGASCAR RAT EXTERMINATOR,

and use it according to directionf. You cannot depend upon it unless obtained at J. J. FALES' No. 96 Commercial street Boston.

—Agents—

Salem, J. S. Harrison, J. Stone, jr., H. Whipple, S Badger, jr; Lynn, J. Moulton jr., Geo. Lummus, Wm. Cogswell, Wm. L Ladd; Swampscot, W. Thompson; Marblehead, E. Arnold Wm. Stacey; Danvers, S. Proctor, Jos Shed, New Mills, H. S Pope, A. P Perley & Co, C. Simonds, Calder & Foster; Topsfield, B. P. Adams; Beverly. A N Clark. epon mch 29

JUST received a full assortment of the celebrated EAGLE PLOUGH, improved. Also, Garden Rakes & Partridge's celebrated Manure Forks, Rakes, Hoes, and Castings for repairing the various parts of almost all kinds of Ploughs now in use.

J. & H. HALE, 215 Essex st. Salem.

May 3

Flour, Corn, Oats, Shorts, &c.

Landing from schr Pioneer,

200 BARRELS Genesee Flour;
20 1-2 do do do
500 bushels Mealing Corn;
500 do Yellow do
500 do Shorts;
20 bbls Pea Beans;
4 bbls Marrowfat Peas;
100 bags Fine Salt;

—Also, in store—

100 bushels Killam Oats, for seed;
100 do Herds Grass Seed;
100 do Red Top do do;
500 do Clover do; (Northern;

For sale by DANIEL RICHARDS,
At the old and well known stand on the Plains.
North Danvers, April 19, 1845.

NECK STOCKS, SCARFS, CRAVATS, TIES, ITALIAN CRAVATS.

A GOOD assortment of the above just received
EDWARDS'S,
apr 5 14 Front street, Salem.

DOESKINS AND CASSIMERES.

A NEW lot Stripes, Plaids, and Clouded Doeskins. Black, Blue Black, and Lavender Cassimeres just received at EDWARDS'S,
may 3 14 Front street.

NEW ENGLAND
TRUSS MANUFACTORY.

THE subscriber continues to manufacture Trusses of every description, at his residence at the old stand, opposite 264, No. 305 Washington street, Boston, entrance in Temple Avenue, up stairs. All individuals can see him alone, at any time, at the above place.

Having had twenty years' experience, he has afforded relief to three thousand persons, for the last five years. All may rest assured of relief who call and try a Truss of his manufacture. He is now confident he can give every individual relief who may call upon him.

The public are cautioned against the many quacks who promise what they cannot perform.

Having worn the different kinds of Trusses, more or less; that have been offered to the public for the last twenty years, from different patent manufactories, and now continues to wear those of his own manufacture, he is now able to decide, after examining the rapture, what sort of Truss is best to adopt to all the cases that occur; and he has on hand as good Trusses, and will furnish any kind of a Truss that can be had elsewhere.

J. F. F. manufactures as many as twenty different kinds of Trusses, among which are all the different kinds similar to those that the late Mr. John Beath, of this city, formerly made, and all others advertised in Boston, together with the patent elastic spring Truss, with the spring pads.—Trusses without steel springs—these give relief in all cases of rupture, and a large proportion produce a perfect cure—they can be worn day and night; improved hinge and pivot Truss; umbellical spring Trusses, made in four different ways; Trusses with ball and socket joints, Trusses, for Prolapsus Ani, by wearing which persons troubled with a descent of the fectum can ride on horseback with perfect ease and safety.

Mr. Foster also makes Trusses for Prolapsus Uteri, which have answered in cases where possaries have failed. Suspensory Trusses, knee caps, and back board, are always kept on hand As a matter of convenience and not of speculation, the undesigned will keep on hand the following kinds from other manufactories, which they can have, if his does not suit them; after a fair trial they can exchange for any of them;—Dr, Hull,s Read's spiral Truss; Rundel's do; Salmon's ball and socket; Sherman's patent; French do; Marsh s Improved Truss; Bateman s do, double and single. Stone s Truss; also, Trusses for children of all sizes.

Any kind of Trusses repaired at short notice, and made as good as when new.

Ladies wishing for any of these instruments, will be waited upon by Mrs. Foster, at the above place. Mrs. F. has been engaged in the above business for ten years.

He likewise informs individuals he will not make their complaints known to any one, except when he is permitted to refer to them—it being a misfortune, and young persons do not want their cases known.

The readers of this paper, are respectfully invited to call and examine the variety of Trusses now on hand.

May 31 JAMES FREDERICK FOSTER.

DRUGS AND MEDICINES.

A GOOD assortment of Drugs, Medicines, usually kept in a Druggist Shop, constantly for sale at the lowest prices, by

DR. JOSEPH SHED, (Ag't)
(OPPOSITE THE MONUMENT,)

And a variety of Patent Medicine, consisting of Brueckerhoff's Health Restorative; Buchan's Hungarian Balsam; Schenck's Pulmonary Balsam; Truffant's Compound; Dandelion and Tomato Bitters; Davis' Compound Tooth Wash, Harrison's Peristaltic, and Worm Lozenges; Thompson's Eye Water; Warren's Croup Syrup; Whitwell's Opodeldock; Different kinds of Pulmonary Balsams, and genuine Thomsonian Medicines; Jew David's or Hebrew Plaster; also, Brandreth s, Indian Vegetable, Beckwith s, Lee Dean s, Parr s, Richardson s, Relf's Asthmatic, and a variety of other Pills. Candies, Nuts, Almonds, Citron, Currants, Nutmegs, Mace, Cloves, &c. Particular attention to Physician's Recipes.

Danvers, May 31, 1845.

NEW LUMBER WHARF.

THE subscriber having taken the wharf, called the West wharf, near the Bridge, in South Salem, would take this opportunity to inform his friends and the public generally, that he intends to keep for sale an assortment of BOARDS, JOIST, CLAPBOARDS, SHINGLES, PICKETS, LATHS, etc. etc., of as good quality as can be found in the city.

He has now on hand 300,000 dry Boards and Plank for sale, and all wishing to purchase, are respectfully invited to call and examine for themselves.

He has also made arrangements at the Eastward for furnishing Dimension Frames, and filling orders of every description, at short notice.

Having been a practical builder for the last fifteen years, the subscriber flatters himself that his knowledge of the business, and the Lumber trade generally, will enable him to give satisfaction to those who may favor him with their patronage.

able to give his personal attention to the purchasing of Lumber, &c. He has made arrangements with Mr. A. F. Clark to be on the wharf during business hours, who will wait upon those who may favor him with a call.

Salem, May 10, 1845. tf H. B. WARD.

ADAMS & RICHARDSON,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
HARDWARE.

Manufacturers' Agents for the Sale of
Cut Nails, White Lead, Sheet Lead and Lead Pipe.

NO. 207 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.

Joseph Adams,
C. M. Richardson,
march 15 tf

Ploughs & Cultivators,

MANUFACTURED BY
RUGGLES, NOURSE & MASON,
And other Agricultural Tools,
FOR SALE BY
DANIEL RICHARDS,
Danvers Plains, March 29, 1845.

REMOVAL.
DR. J. A. ROBINSON,
SURGEON DENTIST,
SALEM,

WOULD respectfully give notice that he has removed from his old stand, opposite the City Hall, to No. 20 Washington street, recently occupied by A. E. Phillips, where he is ready to perform all operation, in Dentistry, in a most thorough and workmanlike manner.

His experience and success in inserting whole sets either by atmospheric pressure or springs, enables him to furnish them at rates which cannot fail to suit those in want of an article of superior quality.

His method of inserting Teeth, both singly and on plate, with or without Gums, has been found to be satisfactory and successful as combining beauty of finish and adaptation, with all the requisites of mastication and articulation.

Particular attention paid to filling Teeth so as to render them serviceable for many years, and also to the regulation of Children's Teeth.

N. B. For sale as above, a first rate article of TOOTH POWDER. 6m mch 15

PERIODICALS, PAPERS, &c.

LUTHER CHANDLER, General Agent for the sale of all the principal Periodicals, Newspapers, &c., and will furnish them to all persons who may wish to subscribe; among which are

Graham's Magazine,	Harper's Pictorial Bible,
Ladies' National do,	Verplanck's Shakspeare,
Arthur's Lady's do,	Phil Saturday Courier,
Christian Family Mag.,	Neal's Gazette,
Gentlemen's Magazine,	New York Mirror,
Godey's Lady's Book,	Frost's Pictorial World,

The above and all the principal periodicals and papers will be furnished promptly.

☞BOOKS BOUND at the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

Orders may be left at J. SHED'S, opposite the Monument, South Danvers. 1y mch 29

PANTS. A lot of Men's cheap pants just received and for sale at EDWARDS'
may 17 14 Front street.

DOWLEY & WHALL,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS, AND
AUCTIONEERS,
FOR THE SALE OF
Boots, Shoes, Leather and all kinds of Shoe Stock, at Private and Auction Sale,
Nos. 21 and 22 Pearl Street,

Levi A. Dowley, } BOSTON.
Joseph B. Whall, }

Cash liberally advanced on Boots, Shoes and Shoe Stock, for private and public sales.

—References—

Messrs. Jos. Whitney & Co., } Boston.
" Josiah M. Jones, Esq., }
" Spofford, Tileston, & Co., } New York.
" Shepard Knapp, Esq., }
" C. M. Leupp & Co.,
" Haddock, Hazletine & Reed, Philadelphia
" Poland, Jenkins & Co., Baltimore.
" Friend, Humphrey & Co., Albany.

mch 29 1y

LORRAINE'S PILLS.
All persons require Facts.

Remember in all cases that you are not deceived by things that appear to be facts.

REMEMBER also, that, Lorraine's Vegetable Pills have in their composition two of the most valuable medicines in the world, viz: Sarsaparilla and Tonacea. These two articles need no praise, neither do the celebrated Lorraine's Pills, when they have once been taken.

Physicians, and people of every class are willing to come forward and announce, in the most public manner, that they have been cured of long standing complaints—after all other medicines had failed. In fact there can be no doubt but that Lorraine's vegetable Pills is the best medicine ever offered to the public.

See a few public statements of men of truth and virtue.

Lynn, Dec. 17th, 1843.

Sir; I have sold all the pills I last had of you, please send another lot immediately. The sale of Lorraine's vegetable Pills is rapidly on the increase—they are becoming very popular. I sell more and more every day. As a curative medicines and purifier of the blood, I think they stand unrivalled. One fact I have noticed, that no one that has used them finds any fault with them; they have wrought some very great cures. One lady, who has been confined to the house and bed, a great part of the time, for twenty years, is now cured and able to work most of her time, after having taken 3 boxes only of Lorraine's Pills!! I might name many other cases where the cures have been as great, but have not time.

Yours respectfully,
J. E. F. MARSH.

Portland, Me., Nov. 7th, 1843

Sir: Please send us one gross of Lorraine's Pills, we have sold all we had last. They have given very good satisfaction, better than any other pills which we have in our market. I think in a short time they will take the place of others We have had no fault found with them whatever; but, on the contrary, they have been praised loudly. I think we could have quite a number of highly respectable certificates from our citizens.

Respectfully yours,
E. MASON.

Chelsea. Jan- 3d, 1844

Sir: I transmit to you an account of my case for publication, believing it to be my duty. I have been confined with the Rheumatism nearly the whole winter, have had some of the best physicians of Boston and could get nothing that would relieve me more than temporarily. I heard of the wonderful virtue, of Lorraine's Pills, I had no faith whatever, but I took them, and it is a solemn fact that when I had taken but eight pills! my Rheumatism had entirely left me, and I have remained well ever since.

N. B. I never took more than one pill at a time and that on going to bed.

Yours respectfully,

Sir. I could fill the whole of the Sentinel with similar letters to the above, but believing the above extracts will serve for useful purposes for the present I omit more.

New England Office and General Depot, No 10 Brattle Square, Boston.

Unable to raise the Hands to the Head!

Sir—For three years, Scrofula had produced such effect upon my constitution, that I was unable to raise my hand; the bones were in different places destroyed by ulcertion, and I feared it might reach the brain or vital organs. My pains were violent—all medicines recommended did no good. At last, I took LORRAINE'S VEGETABLE PILLS, which gave immediate relief, and have entirely cured me.

Respecifully, your ob't serv't,
JAMES COLSON, Esq.

Bath, Maine, July 16th, 1844,

A severe pain, in both sides cured!!

Lowell, Mass., }
April 20th 1944. }

Sir,—For the last few months I have been afflicted with a severe pain in both sides, at times so hard that I could scarcely get my breath. * * * * It is a pleasure to feel well,—but a much greater one to say that I was cured immediately upon taking one dose of Dr. Lorraine's Pills. J. BROOKS.

A hacking cough constantly annoyed me!

Boston, Mass., }
June 1st; 1844 }

Sir,—In February last, I took a sudden cold, after which a hacking cough constantly annoyed me, and this, combined with my other maladies, rendered me truly miserable, as everybody told me that I was in a consumption. Since, I have taken Lorraine's Pills, and now every body tells me that I am well;—I feel as well as ever I did. J. E. S. McKEY.

Amputation of an arm prevented!

Unionville, Me., }
January 30th, 1844. }

Sir,—An erysipelas inflammation attacked my arm tumors formed in different places, my suffering increased, and in a few months I had ten running ulcers, or sores,—some above, and some below the elbow, and the discharge was so offensive that no one could bear to come near me. My physicians told me amputation was the only thing that could save my arm.

AGENTS

Danvers—Sylvester Proctor. New Mills. E. Stimson, North Parish—J. M. Haley Plains.
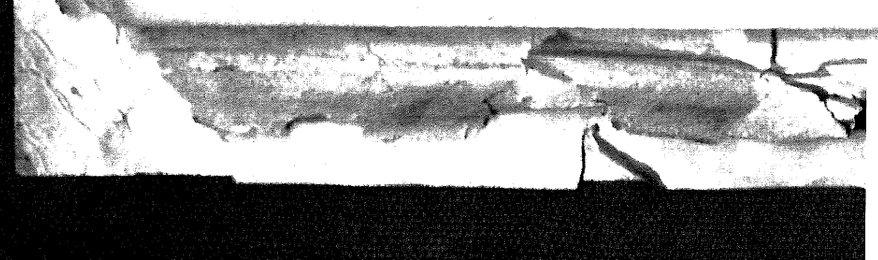
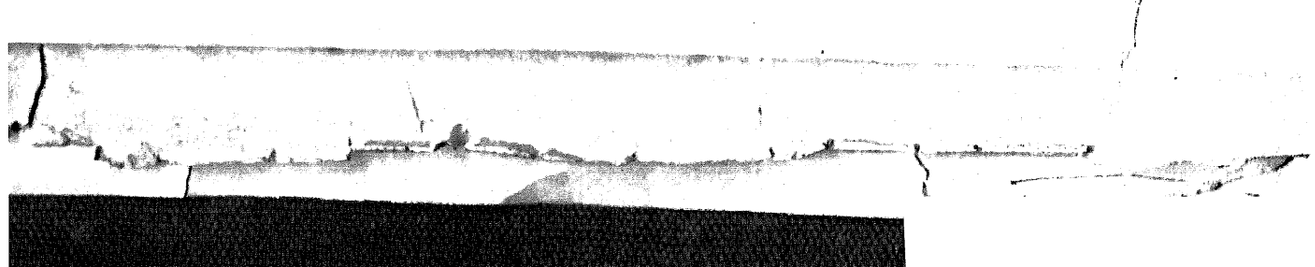
Salem—Henry Whipple Bookseller.,
Beverly—Stephen Baker.
Marblehead—E. Arnold.
Topsfield—B. P. Adams.

Danvers Express and Baggage Waggon



LEAVES Danvers and Boston, daily (Sundays excepted.)



All orders left at McIntire's Hotel, or Poole & Jacobs' store Danvers, No. 14 Blackstone, and No. 1 Fulton streets, Boston, will be promptly attended to.

Goods handled with care.

S. F. TOWN.

April 19, 1845. 1 y

DANVERS COURIER.

VOL. 1. DANVERS, (MASS.) SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 28, 1845. NUMBER 15.

THE DANVERS COURIER
IS PUBLISHED BY
GEORGE R. CARLTON,
EVERY SATURDAY MORNING,
A few doors North of Mackintire's Hotel,
CENTRAL ST.—SOUTH DANVERS.

Terms—$1 50 if paid in advance, or $2 00, if not paid within one month of the time of subscribing.

The carriers are not allowed to sell any copies of the Courier. Single copies may be obtained at the office, at 5 cents each.

Advertisements will be inserted on favorable terms.

POETRY.

FOR THE COURIER.

OSSIAN'S APOSTROPHE TO THE SUN IN CARTHON.

'Oh thou that rollest in eternal space,
Round as my father's brazen bossy shield;
Before the splendors of whose burning face,
The snow-clad fields and ice-bound mountains yield:

Whence are thy beams, oh everlasting Sun?
Who bade thee burn thy pathway through the sky?
At thine approach Night robed in vapors dun,
And e'en the Planets from thy presence fly.

Through crystal portals in the blushing east,
Where rosy clouds hang festooned round thy throne,
Thou comest forth in awful glory drest,
And movest in silent majesty alone.

Who can be a companion of thy course?
Or tread unwearied in thy steps of fire!
Sure thou art drawn by more than mortal force,
Or thy fleet steeds would languish and expire.

The lofty mountains with their waving woods,
Decay and crumble with the rolling year;
The Moon is lost in heaven: the swelling floods
Diminish: thou, oh Sun! hast no compeer.

For thou forever dost remain the same,
Rejoicing in the brightness of thy path
When thunder rolls or vivid lightnings gleam,
And angry tempests shake the world in wrath;

Thou lookest from thy watch-tower in the clouds,
And laughest at the howling of the storm;
Which mantle earth, and Heaven's face deform.

But yet, to Ossian thou dost shine in vain,
For he beholds thy pleasant beams no more,
Whether the golden tresses of thy mane,
Float on the clouds, or Ocean's watery floor.

Yet thou, perhaps, like Ossian, may rejoice
Awhile, and slumber in the clouds at last,
Unmindful of the rosy morning's voice,
And heedless of the storm's avenging blast.

Exult, oh Sun! then, in thy youthful light,
And spread thy bright effulgence all abroad;
For age is dark, and unlovely as Night,
When the pale Moon shines through a broken cloud.'

Thus Ossian sung, the Bard of ancient days,
And, dying, hung his Harp upon the Sun,
Which still through heaven's concave pours his lays,
And will, till Time's majestic march is done.

Salem. LOGAN.

MISCELLANY.

RIGHTEOUS RETRIBUTION.

[The incidents contained in the following narrative, says a correspondent of Grant's London Journal, happened at the close of the last century, I think perhaps about 1798; but the precise date is of little importance for my purpose, which is to relate the remarkable providential circumstances by which the perpetrator of a grave crime was discovered after the lapse of so many years.]

JAMES M'MILLAN was a native of the Highlands of Scotland; he kept a small chandler's or huckster's shop in the Bridgegate Street, Glasgow.—He was very ignorant, and remarkable for his irritable temper and spiteful disposition. As neither he nor his wife could read, there was a gardener named Mudie whom M'Millan employed to keep his books, and transact money matters in debtor or creditor cases. In the course of some of these settlements he conceived the opinion that Mudie had wronged him to a small amount and taxed him with the fraud. This caused a violent altercation between the two, in the course of which M'Millan burst forth in horrid imprecations, vowing that he never would be contented till he had avenged himself of Mudie. The latter retreated for safety, as he feared from his knowledge of his antagonist's passionate and ungovernable temper that he might be in danger of sustaining serious injury; and hearing that M'Millan had subsequently, after sufficient time had elapsed to have allowed his choler to cool, repeated his dreadful threat, he applied for the protection of the law and M'Millan was compelled to find security for keeping the peace.

The garden in which Mudie wasemployed was situated in Finnieston, and there were few houses then on what was called Anderston Walk. The space between the foot of Jamaica street and Anderston was quite a country road, and not even lighted with the old-fashioned glimmering oil-lamps. One night, in the most remote part of this road, Mudie was found senseless and bleeding to death. He was taken to where assistance could be procured, and only survived long enough to state that M'Millan had waylaid him—springing form concealment from under a hedge, came behind him knocked him down, and inflicted the injuries of which he was conscious that he was dying.

The declaration of the dying man, corroborated as it was by the former transactions, left not the slightest doubt in the mind of any one that M'Millan was the actual murderer; and if further confirmation had been required, it was supplied by the fact that he had absconded immediately after the deed had been perpetrated. Every possible means were adopted for his apprehension but without success; rewards, advertised descriptions, and everything else failed to bring forward the accused, and after a number of years the affair was forgotten, or only remembered as an event that had once happened.

About ten years afterwards a riot of a serious nature arose in a house of improper reputation in some part of London, in which a man's life was placed in danger from one of the watchmen who had been called in to quell the disturbance.—The rioters were taken to the watchhouse, and at the same time it was thought expedient by the constable of the night to place the watchman in custody until the case could be heard by a magistrate.

On the following morning, when the parties were carried before the magistrate, the case was heard at great length, and the offenders fined and punished accordingly; and wih regard to the watchman who had used the dangerous weapon, it was shown that he had been most furiously attacked by the people in the house and his own plea, while he admitted having inflicted the wound, was that he had been compelled to do so in self-defence. Mr. Culquhoun, the celebrated author of a "Treatise on the Police of the Metropolis," and several works on national economy and statistics, was the sitting magistrate before whom the precognition took place; but not being satisfied with this defence, censured the conduct of the man severely, and gave it as his decided opinion that the guardianship of the night ought not to be entrusted to men who had not proper control of their temper; but at the same time, seeing that no life had been sacrificed, he dismissed the watchman with a reprimand and a caution as to future behavior. The watchman had scarcely bowed to the bench in acknowledgment of the acquittal, when the magistrate called out to one of the officers, to 'stop that man.' This was done, and the watchman was immediately given into custody on a charge of murder. The announcement struck every one present with amazement; but the order of the magistrate was, of course, instantly obeyed.

Mr. Colquhoun had been in business as a merchant in Glasgow—had passed through the different grades of office in the city corporation, and had attained the honor of filling the chief civic chair. He was, however, unfortunate in his affairs, and left Glasgow, having previously recommended him to the appointment of stipendiary magistrate under the Metropolitan Police Act. He happened to have known familiarly, from some cause or other the person of the alleged murderer of Mudie, when he presided in Glasgow, and notwithstanding the change of ten years, he at a glance discovered in the offending watchman the longsought-fo M'Millan, the murderer.

The magistrate with little trouble, in a short time obtained as many as eight or nine persons in London who were able to identify the man as being the James M'Millan, who had absconded, and for whom rewards had been offered; and on the evidence he was sent down overland under an escort to Glasgow, to take his trial for the murder. He was found guilty and suffered the extreme penalty of the offence.

A SCENE IN THE BOSTON POLICE COURT.

The following affecting sketch comes to us in the hand-writing of a correspondent in Boston, to whose pen our readers have been indebted for many a pleasant communication. We call upon our friend for the name of the persecutor in the case referred to. We desire to assist in handing it down to perpetual infamy. 'There are scenes, occurring almost daily in our Police Court that are well worthy of more than a passing record, if but for the glimpses they give us of poor humanity under some of its more melancholy phases. A week or two since, I happened to be present when an Irish woman was brought before one of our police justices on a charge of stealing. She was young, had a pleasing and rather handsome countenance, was clad very tidily, and altogether looked like one who had seen better days, and still in her poverty preserved some of the pride of that more happy period. In her arms she held a little boy of some three or four years, with a profusion of light curly hair clustering about his temples, but whose pale cheek and sunken and lustrous eyes told too plainly that disease and pinching want had even thus early marked him for their own. The mother was charged with stealing bread from the door of a grocer. The complainant, a hard-featured, shrewd-looking man, with a long nose, and sharp, restless eye, was called to the stand. He told a straight-forward, circumstantial story, the substance of which was, that his baker was in the habit of leaving bread for him at the shop-door before it was opened in the morning. For several days past he had missed part of it; sometimes a whole roll, sometimes more, and once or twice, only part of a roll. In order to put a stop to these depredations on his property, he one morning lay in wait for the trespasser; when, about daylight, he saw the prisoner come out of her miserable underground abode, leading her sickly boy by the hand. Passing by where the witness was concealed, she stopped at his door, took up a roll, and breaking it in two pieces, gave one to her boy, and returned the other to its place. She then turned back, when the complainant seized, and hurried her immediately to the watch-house; taking care, in the mean time, to snatch from the half-famished boy the moiety of the loaf he was so eagerly devouring. The witness here produced the piece of bread, and pointed to the marks of the child's teeth, in part corroboration of his testimony. After hearing the story, the judge turned to the woman, and asked her if she had any thing to say in denial of the truth of the charge. 'Nothing, nothing, your honor,' replied the poor woman, laying her face on her boy's head, and straining him to her bosom, while her body swayed to and fro in the agony of shame and grief: I am guilty, guilty! But it was not for myself I took it. Ah, sir! I'm a poor lone woman, and work hard when I can get work. But for the last ten days I have had nothing to do, and my money was all gone; and since yesterday morning we hadn't had a morsel to eat. I am used to it myself; but I couldn't hear little Dennis cry for bread, and not give it to him!' The judge was evidently touched by the woman's distress, and, turning to the complainant, asked him if, under the circumstances, he should persist in the prosecution. 'If,' said he, 'you will withdraw your complaint, it will be performing an act of mercy which I shall be very glad to second.—Vain appeal! Though the eye of every man in court was fixed upon the prosecutor with looks that pleaded for his victim, no emotion stirred the repose of his hard and selfish features. He kept no account with Mercy. The right of property had been violated, in his eyes the most sacred of human rights, and he claimed the penalty of the law. 'This is a cruel case,' said the judge; 'and really, I feel extremely loth to punish this poor woman for an act so venial, crime though it be in the eye of the law. But although this plaintiff might have pursued a very different course, without doing any injury to the cause of justice, or impairing in the least degree whatever title he may have to the love and respect of his fellow-men, still my duty in the case is imperative; the law allows me no discretion. I would it were otherwise.—Put her down for one month in the House of Correction, Mr. Clerk.'

'Oh, Dennis, Dennis!' exclaimed the poor woman, in a paroxysm of grief, as she strained her boy still closer to her bosom, and bathed him with tears; what'll you do now, my poor child, when you've no mother to look after you, and keep you from harm's way? Don't grieve yourselt about that, Mrs. McGinniss,' said one of her own country-women, who had hitherto stood in the background, but now came forward, and took the prisoner by the hand; 'don't grieve for the likes of that, Ma'am; I'll take of your boy; and while I've a petaty in the pot, he shall have his mouth full.'—'God bless you!' exclaimed the mother, wringing the woman's hand; 'may the Holy Virgin smile on you;' 'Come, step along, Ma'am' said the officer, as he put the mittimus in his pocket; 'don't stand growling here; the cart is waiting for you.' The woman slowly and mechanically obeyed, followed by little Dennis, with one hand clasped in that of his new friend, and the other pulling at the skirts of his mother s dress. Arrived at the outer door, the little fellow was resigned with many tears to the care of his kind down the steps, without again lifting her head, or looking back upon her half-weeping, half-wondering boy; and in a moment more she was seated in the covered hearselike wagon that was to carry her across the 'bridge of sighs' to the felon's home.'

From the Knickerbocker for June.

CURTAIN LECTURES.

Mrs, Caudle thinks it "high time" that the children should have summer clothing.

There, Caudle! If there's anything in the world I hate—and you know it—it is asking you for money. I am sure, for myself, I'd rather go without a thing a thousand times, and I do—the more shame for you to let me, but—there, now! there you fly out again! What do I want now! Why, you must know what,s wanted, if you'd any eyes—or any pride for your children, like any other father. What's the matter—and what am I driving at? Oh, nonsense, Caudle! As if you didn't know! I'm sure if I'd any money of my own, I'd never ask you for a farthing; never; it's painful to me, goodness knows! What do you say? If it's painful, why so often do it? Ha! I suppose you call that a joke—one of your club jokes? I wish you'd think a little more of people's feelings, and less of your jokes. Ha! as I say, I only wish I'd any money of my own. If there is anything that humbles a poor woman, it is coming to a man's pocket for every farthing.—It's dreadful!

"Now, Caudle, if ever you kept awake, you shall keep awake to-night—yes, you shall hear me for it isn't often I speak, and then you may go to sleep as soon as you like. Pray do you know what month it is? And did you see how the children looked at church to-day—like nobody else's children? What was the matter with them? Oh, Caudle! How can you ask? Poor things! weren't they all in their thick merinos, and beaver bonnets? What do you say—What of it? What! you'll tell me that you didn't see how the Briggs's girls, in their new chips, turned their noses up at 'em? And you didn't see how the Browns looked at the Smiths, and then at our dear girls, as much as to say 'Poor creatures! what figures for the month of May! You didn't see it? The more shame for you —you would, if you'd had the feelings of a parent—but I'm sorry to say, Caudle, you haven't. I'm sure those Briggs's girls—the little minxes!—put me into such a pucker, I could have pulled their ears for 'em over the pew. What do you say? I ought to be ashamed of myself to own it! No, Mr. Caudle: the shame lies with you, that don't let your children appear at church like other people's children, that make 'em uncomfortable at their devotions, poor things! for how can it be otherwise, when they see themselves dressed like nobody else?

'Now, it's no use talking; those children shall not cross over the threshold next Sunday, if they haven't things for the summer. Now mind—they shan't; and there's an end of it. I won't have 'em exposed to the Briggses and the Browns again: no, they shall know they have a mother if they've no father to feel for em. What do you say, Caudle? A good deal I must think of church if I think so much of what we go in? I only wish you thought as much as I do, you'd be a better man than you are, Caudle, I can tell you; but that's nothing to do with it. I'm talking about decent clothes for the children for the summer, and you want to put me off with something about the church; but that's so like you, Caudle! I'm always wanting money for clothes? How can you lie in your bed and say that! I'm sure there's no children in the world that cost their father so little: but that's it; the less a poor woman does upon, the less she may. It's the wives who don't care where the money comes from who're thought of. Oh, if my time was to come over again, would I mend and stich, and make the things go so far as I have done? No—that I wouldn't. Yes, it's very well for you to lie there and laugh; it's easy to laugh, Caudle—very easy, to people who don't feel,

'Now, Caudle, dear! What a man you are? I know you'll give me the money, because, after all, I think you love your children, and like to see 'em well dressed. It's only natural that a father should. Eh, Caudle, eh? Now, you shan't go to sleep till you've told me. How much money do I want? Why, let me see, love. There's Caroline, and Jane, and Susannah, and Mary Anne, and—What do you say? I needn't count 'em, you know how many there are? Ha! that's just as you take me up. Well, how much money will it take?—Let me see; and don't go to sleep. I'll tell you in a minute. You always love to see the dear things like new pins, I know that Caudle; and though I say it —bless their little hearts!—they do credit to you, Caudle. Any nobleman of the land might be proud of 'em. Now, don't swear at noblemen of the land, and ask me what they've to do with your children; you know what I meant. But you are so hasty, Caudle.

'How much? Now, don't be in a hurry?—Well, I think, with good pinching—and you know Caudle, there's never a wife who can pinch closer than I can—I think, with pinching, I can do with twenty pounds. What did you say? Twenty fiddlesticks! What? You won't give half the money? Very well, Mr. Caudle; I don't care: let the children go in rags; let them stop from church and grow up like heathens and cannibals, and then you'll save your money, and, I suppose, be satisfied. You gave me twenty pounds five months ago! What's five months ago to do with now? Besides, what I have had is nothing to do with it.

What do you say? Ten pounds are enough? Yes: just like you men; you think things cost nothing for woman; but you don't care how much you lay out upon yourselves. They only want bonnets and frocks? How do you know what they want? How should a man know anything at all about it? And you won't give more than ten pounds. Very well. Then you may go shopping with it yourself, and see what you'll make of it.—I'll have none of your ten pounds, I can tell you. I don't want to dress the children up like countesses? You often fling that in my teeth, you do; but you know it's false, Caudle; you know it. I only want to give 'em proper notions of themselves: and what, indeed, can the poor things think when they see the Briggses, and the Browns, and the Smiths—and their fathers don't make the money you do, Caudle—when they see them as fine as tulips? Why, they must think themselves nobody; and to think yourself nobody,—depend upon it, Caudle,—isn't the way to make the world think anything of you.

'What do you say? Where did I pick up that? Where do you think? I know a great deal more than you suppose—yes; though you don't give me credit for it. Husbands seldom do. However, the twenty pounds, I will have, if I've any—or not a farthing.

"No, sir, no. I don't want to dress up the children like peacocks and parrots! I only want to make em respectable and—what do you say? You'll give fifteen pounds? No, Caudle, no—not a penny will I take under twenty; if I did, it would seem as if I wanted to waste your money: and I'm sure, when I come to think of it, twenty pounds will hardly do. Still, if you'll give me twenty—no, it's no use your offering to go to sleep. You shan't close an eye until you, promise the twenty. Come, Caudle, love!—twenty, and then you may go to sleep Twenty—twenty twenty'—

'My impression is,' writes Caudle in his comments, "that I fell asleep, sticking firmly to the fifteen; but in the morning Mrs. Caudle assured me, as a woman of honor, that she wouldn't let me wink an eye, before I promised the twenty; and man is frail—and woman is strong—she had the money.'

THAT'S RIGHT, LADIES.

A female correspondent of the Albany Argus is determined to retaliate upon Mr. Caudle, and expose some of the beauties on the other side. Here is her first chapter, and well is it recorded:—

"Mr. Grump returns from a journey. His wife meets him at the front door.

Eh! Susan—You are here. All well, I suppose. What! Children sick with the measles? Little Tom had a bad fall? Well! it's always so I think. A man need not expect to set foot in his own house without being greeted with evil tidings.—Don't keep me here in the draft. I've a shocking cold. Want good nursing. Suppose I can't get it now since children all under the weather.—They will be attended to no doubt, whatever become of me. Give me some tea, as soon as you can, with a little toast, Susan, not too brown, remember, but just like my mother's toast (if you can), with a pickled oyster or two, after my journey. Mind the tea is hot. No slops for me.—Will I see the children? Not now. After I've had my tea. Can't bear anything more at present. Heigh ho! 'A bachelor leads an easy life.' Pity one can't know when they're well off! Tea not ready yet? Well, heaven grant me patience! It was never so at my mother's, before I was noosed. She had always a nice oyster pie or brought a friend to dinner. What do you say? I desired you to economise as closely as possible, on account of that heavy endorsement that is likely to ruin me? If I did, economy is one thing, and meanness another, and saving about your own useless trumpery, is a different matter from starving a man in his own house.—There, now! tears, I declare! Well, it's always so—I can't say a kind word by way of advice (which heaven knows every woman needs) but you must fall to weeping. I'm thankful that I'm a patient man—that I can't be disturbed by trifles, no, nor by great events either. Had that been possible I should have been a dead man long ago. Then you might have cried indeed, for you would have been left a lonely widow, to the end of your days, I'll take my path on it. I am glad if anything stops your tears, but I thought such an idea would make them flow the faster. Tea ready yet? say? Well I'll see if you have anything fit t eat, and you can stay in the room in case anythin should be wanted. It would be a wonder indee if nothing was forgotten.

Mr. Grump seats himself at the table, and afte swallowing a plate full of buttered toast, four do en of pickled oysters, and sixteen cups of tea, fal asleep in his chair, to the great relief of his wif who quietly glides up stairs to her sick childre

OLDEN TIME.

In 1637, there were but thirty ploughs in a Massachusetts, and the use of these agricultur implements was not familiar to all the planter From the annals of Salem it appears, in th year, it was agreed by the town to grant Richar son Hutchinson 20 acres of land in addition his share, on condition "he set-up ploughing."

1638. A sumptuary act of the General Cou prohibited short sleeves, and required the ga ments to be lengthened so as to cover the arms the wrist, and required reformation "in immod rate great breeches, knots of ribbon, broad shou der bands and taylee, silk rases, double cuffs a ruffs."

1639. For preventing miscarriage of letters, ordered that notice be given that Richard Fa bank, his house in Boston, is the place appoint for all letters which are brought from beyond sea or are to be sent thither, are to be brou unto him, and he is allowed for every such let 1d, and must answer all miscarriages throu his own neglect in his kind, provided that no m shall be obliged to bring his letter thither unl he pleases.

1647. The Court order that if any young m attempt to address a young woman without c sent of her parents, or in case of their absence the County Court, he shall be fined £4 for first offence, £10 for the second and be imprisc for the third.

1649 Mathew Stanley was tried for draw the affections of John Tarbox's daughter with the consent of her parents, convicted fined £15; fees 6s 6d. Three married women fined 2s each for scolding.

1953. Jonas Fairbanks was tried for wea great boots, but was acquitted.

APPEARANCES.

Some years since a merchant on Long W advertised for Spanish milled dollars. The mium was high. A Roxbury farmer who c into town for manure, and who took pride in pearing like a poor man, with a shovel on shoulder, called at the counting room of the and asked him if he wanted silver dollars. said the merchant; have you got any? No me, replied the farmer, but I think I have a at home. What do you give? Four per c said the merchant; and added, I will give seven for all you have. Well, said the ma should like to have you just slap down on p how much you give and the number of your or I shall be puzzled to find it. Yes, said merchant, that I will do; what is your name Edward Summer, said he. The merchant wrote as follows, and gave it him.

Edward Summer, of Roxbury, says tha thinks he has some Spanish dollars at home don't know. I hereby agree to pay him seve cent. premium for all such dollars as he may duce.

G——A——

'If I find any,' said the cartman, I will call them to-morrow morning, at nine o'clock; don't you won't see me. The appearance a man satisfied the merchant that his dollars be scarce. At nine o'clock the next day, ho the man appeared, and stocking full after sto full was carried up and emptied on the tabl seven thousand were counted. The me somewhat restive, but honorably caught, to silver, gave a check for the amount, with per cent. added; pleasantly remarking, I di suppose from your appearance, that you have more than half a dozen dollars.

Mr. Summer took up his check, and repli his own peculiar emphatic style. Sir I'll tell truth which a man of your standing in the ought to know, and it is this—appearances deceive us.

CALENDAR OF COURTS

TO BE HELD IN THE COUNTY OF ESSEX IN THE 1845.

July	1	—Probate,—	Salem.
"	8	"	Lynn.
"	8	—County Commissioners,—	Salem
"	15	—Probate,—	Andover, S. P.
August	5	"	Ipswich.
"	19	"	Salem.
Sept.	2	"	Ipswich,
"	9	"	Newburyport.
"	15	—Common Pleas,—	Newburyport
Oct.	7	—Probate,—	Salem.
"	8	"	Marblehead.
"	14	—County Commissioners.—	Newb
"	21	—Probate,—	Haverhill.
Nov.	4	—Supreme Judicial,—	Salem.
"	4	—Probate,—	Ipswich.
"	11	"	Gloucester,
"	18	"	Salem.
Dec.	2	"	Ipswich,
"	9	"	Newburyport.
"	15	—Common Pleas,	Ipswich.
"	23	—County Commissioners,—	at su

as ordered at the preceding term.

DANVERS COURIER.

SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 28, 1845.

TOWN MEETING.

MOSES BLACK, JR., Moderator.

The subject of a branch Rail Road was discussed and acted upon at the town meeting on Monday last.

Hon. Elias Putman stated the object of the Petitioners in bringing the subject before the town, which was to obtain an expression of the views of its citizens in favor of such a Branch as was offered by the Directors of the E. R. Road last winter.

Hon. R. S. Daniels was opposed to such expression and was proceeding to give his reasons, when he was reminded by the moderator that there was no motion before the meeting. Mr. D. then immediately moved that the clause in the warrant be indefinitely postponed, and sustained his motion on the ground that such a measure as that proposed by the petitioners would defeat or delay the construction of a direct rail-road to Boston. He contended that such a road would be built and might soon be built, if the citizens of this town would only be united and determined to have it. He referred to the action of the Legislature last winter, and as the subject was then referred to the next General Court, he contended that the doctrine of vested rights would soon be repudiated and the charter obtained, and when once obtained there was no fear that it would not be used. The Eastern Rail Road knew this, and exerted every effort to defeat it, because they knew that a rival road would he constructed if a charter was granted.

We should direct all our efforts to procure the charter. Having accomplished this we shall have the road. If we go to the E. R. Road begging help from them we acknowledge our dependence on that corporation for our travelling facilities.—Having done this that company will do just as they please, without regard to our accommodation.

Dr. Hunt was opposed to the motion for postponment. He thought the best interests of the citizens would be advanced by Rail Road accommodations and that this was the time to obtain them.

L. Allen Esq. could not see why the town should ask these accommodations of the E. R. Road. It was only for the people to make a vigorous effort and a charter could be procured for an independent road. Such action of the town as is now asked would only defeat the prospect of a direct road. He was in favor of the postponment.

Mr. Elias Putman thought gentlemen were mistaken in thinking that a charter could be procured for a direct road. The trial had been made fairly before the Legislature and the result was a failure. It is true that it was admitted that Rail Road facilities were needed but the petitioners failed to convince the Committee or the Legislature that our business would support a distinct road. It was for us to say now whether we would take such as were once offered by the E. R. Road. If a charter could be obtained for an independent road the prospect of business would not warrant us to expect that the stock would be taken up. Capitalists would not take it unless there was a better prospect of profit than has yet appeared and all our own capital is needed in our business.

Mr. Putman here stated his intention in case the vote for indefinite postponment should not prevail to offer several Resolutions expressing his own views of the subject. (Those Resolutions were then read.) We had a fair and full opportunity to present our case before the Committee and we all know the result. He could not see why another trial should be more successful unless we could present some new reasons in favor of the undertaking. Lynn is already well accommodate with rail road facilities and the whole advantage of such a road would be for the accommodation of Danvers. He could not see much encouragement to attempt again to obtain an independent road.

John Page Esq. could not understand why the town was called together to act on this subject.—We had no distinct proposition from the Eastern Rail Road Directors or any body else. We know nothing of the location of the road, what public or private rights it may affect, or what roads or streams it may cross. We have no plan or profile of the route and cannot act understandingly upon it. He thought this agitation of the subject was premature and he should vote for its indefinite postponment.

J. W. Proctor said he had paid some attention to the subject, having devoted much time to it last winter before the Legislative Committees. We went there with strong hopes and expected to make out and did make out a strong case. It was admitted on all hands that we were entitled to Rail Road facilities. Our project was a feasable one, to join the Maine Extension road at Malden and thence run our cars on a distinct track into their Depot. This was the understanding we had with their Directors. But when the President of that corporation came on to testify he stated that a distinct track would not be allowed and that our cars must wait the arrival of their trains from the East! With such an incumbrance and such delays the road would absolutely be good for nothing, it would not be worth taking—nobody would take the stock. He believed that this generation at least would not live to see a Rail Road constructed on that route and he thought it would be the wiser course for the citizens of the town to accept a Branch Rail Road if it should be offered to them.

The route between the South and North parish is the most expensive and least likely to be profitable of the whole distance. It would cost at least $100,000 and it could be cheaper managed and more for the accommodation of the public by a large corporation than by a smaller one.

Mr. Daniels believed the chance was good for the Malden route if we did not defeat it ourselves. Let another severe winter like that of year before last close up the Ferry and the inconveniences of that passage would be known to the Legislature. That entrance to the city is becoming worse for travellers every day. The Eastern Rail Road was driven by their fears of the success of the new route to make the offer they did and they framed their petition so as to avoid making a road to the North Parish. They asked for a branch to the south parish with leave to extend it to the North. They had no idea of building it. They will always be ready to make any offer to build just so much or so little as will enable them to retain monopoly of travelling in Essex County. They in effect say to us, you must travel on our road and you have no right to travel on one you may build for yourselves, and they have found legislators who sustain them in this doctrine. It will not always be so. Some good was done by our agitation of the subject last winter, as they were driven to a reduction of their fares by which we save ten cents for every passage to and from Boston. But this is no proof of their favor to us.

Mr. Winthrop Andrews asked if it was the intention of the petitioners for the Malden route to extend a branch to the Plains? He would like to know whether they were any more honest than the E. R. Road.

Mr. Daniels, Mr. Putman and Mr. Proctor all expressed their entire belief in the fidelity of those connected with that project in their intentions to extend their road to the Plains.

Mr. Daniels then adverted to what had been said about the stock of the Malden road. He was satisfied that the stock would eagerly be taken. Capitalists were ready to take it. It was not for us to say that men should, or should not employ their capital in any particular business. The Stock would be taken and the Stockholders needed no guardianship from the Eastern Rail Road.—With regard to the obstacle from the Directors of the Maine Extension Road, it was not yet fully known what accommodations these gentlemen could afford us. Let their new Depot be finished and he had no doubt they would be ready to grant all that they at first encouraged us to expect.—They might even be ready to take the charter and build the road if the corporators would be willing to part with it.

Mr. D. proceeded to say that it was improper and unfair to take such action at the present time as was now proposed, on a question so important.

Dr. Geo. Osgood called Mr. D. to account for using the word "unfair."

Mr. Daniels explained.

Mr. Putnam said that a Charter had been obtained for a road from Salem through Danvers to Georgetown with the intention that it shall be built, and why should it not be built when it would offer so much accommodation to the business of our place? We have no capital to spare for such an undertaking and we can have the road without taking a dollar from our pockets. Mr. P. went on to shew the hopelessness of an independent road and in reply to Mr. Page pointed out the probable location of the branch, as it had been surveyed, by which it appeared that the three villages of the South Parish, New Mills and Plains would be accommodated. He spoke of the increased facilties that could be afforded by the greater number of trains on a branch than on an independent road. He also referred to the evils of being excluded from the advantages of Rail Road facilities and repeated his conviction that in the absence of any hope of an independent road, we ought to seek for such accommodation as we can obtain.

Dr. Hunt was of opinion that it would be in the power of the E. R. Road to crush a rival road by reducing their fares to almost nothing between Salem and Boston and they could depend on their long travel to sustain their road. No rival could stand such competition.

Mr. E. W. Upton believed that the portion of the E. R. Road between Salem and Boston yielded the greatest income. It is the very cream of its profits. The long travel alone would give but a poor return for the employment of their immense capital. They could not afford to reduce their fare on this part of their road below a paying rate. No doubt they will threaten to do it, but after both roads are in operation they will act for the best interests of their stockholders. Such a competition as the gentlemen fears would be suicidal to the interest of the E. R. Road.

The vote was now taken on the question to indefinetely postpone the whole subject and the show of hands was so nearly alike that the Chair was unable to decide it. Tellers were appointed, a count taken by Messrs S. P. Fowler and R. S. Daniels and the result declared as follows.

Yeas 41. Nays 46

So the meeting refused to indefinitely postpone.

Mr. Elias Putman then offered the Resolutions before referred to. On motion of Mr. J. W. Proctor they were acted on seperately.

Various amendments were proposed and discussed.

Mr. F. Poole moved to amend the first Resolve by striking out the last clause, expressing confidence in the good intentions of the E. R. Road to grant suitable accommodation. He should have no confidence in their good intentions until they were tested by something more than promises.

Mr. Putman opposed the striking out.

Dr. Geo. Osborne advocated it. He thought the tone too humble and obsequious. We ought to approach that company in a more erect posture and speak to it in a business-like manner.—Nothing was to be gained by a supplicating tone of such a corporation.

Dr. Hunt opposed the views of Dr. Osborne.

The Chair here remarked that it would be for the town to decide "when Doctors disagree," and then put the question which was decided against the amendment.

Mr. Daniels moved to strike out the following words. "The claims it makes for exclusive privileges with reference to the business of Danvers." He thought they contained an admission that we are dependent on the E. R. Road for our accomodation. After some debate this amendment was carried.

Mr. D. then moved to add to the 2d Resolution the words "if it is assented to by a majority of the voters in the South parish." He was convinced that a large majority in that part of the town was opposed to a branch and he supposed the Directors of the E. R. Road would not wish to thrust such a road upon them if it was not wanted.

Dr. Hunt did not understand how the views of the South parish could be known. It could not legally act on the question as a parish.

After farther debate in which Messrs Daniels, Proctor, Endicott, Putman, Page and Andrews took part. the amendment was rejected.

Mr. Poole moved to amend the Second Resolution by the addition of the following—

"Provided, that the road shall all be graded before the first of January 1846 and be completed within a year."

After some debate this amendment was adopted.

The 3d Resolution was then passed and subsequently four more were added to the Committee making it consist of Eleven. There was quite a struggle to get the Committee almost every name being contested and some names rejected while others accepted by a close vote. The following gentlemen constitute the Committee.

Benj. Goodridge, Samuel P. Fowler, Richard Osborne, Ebenezer Hunt, Daniel Richards, Timothy Holmes, Joseph Jacobs, Joseph Adams, Daniel P. King, Mathew Hooper, Henry Fowler.

The following is a copy of the Resolutions as amended.

Resolved, That the extensive powers and privileges conferred upon the Eastern Rail Road Company, by virtue of its Charter, the powerful and successful efforts which it made to prevent the people of Danvers from obtaining other Rail Road accommodations, and the pledge that the Directors gave to the Legislature the last winter that they were ready and willing to make an ample provision for the business of Danvers, by the construction of a Branch Rail Road, are all sufficient to entitle the citizens of this town to receive from that Company the best accommodations that can be given by a Branch Rail Road, agreeably to their proposal to the Legislature at its last session, and that we have no reason to doubt that the Company is now willing to do what they then offered to do, if it can be done in accordance with the wishes of the people of Danvers.

Resolved, That if consent can be obtained from the Georgetown R. road to authorize the Eastern Rail Road Company to build a Branch R. Road on their charter, from Salem to North Danvers on fair and reasonable conditions that it is the wish of the people of this town that the Eastern R. Road Co. should forthwith construct a Branch Rail road from Salem through South Danvers by the New Mills village to Danvers Plains; provided the grading be completed before the first of January, 1846, and the Road constructed within one year.

Resolved, That a Committee of seven be chosen to confer with the E. R. Company and the Georgetown [illegible] to procure the adoption of measures by said Companies to make a Branch Rail Road from Salem to North Danvers, on the most favorable conditions for the interest of the town of Danvers.

We have given above a sketch, from recollection of the doings of the meeting and we are fully aware that it is very imperfect and fails of doing justice to the several speakers. We think however, that the principal arguments and reasons will be found embodied in this report. Our aim has been a fair and impartial account of the meeting and we shall be ready to correct any mistakes into which we may have been led in making this report.

It is but fair to state, that after the test vote on the motion to indefinitely postpone, a large number left the hall and the vote was small on the amendments and final passage of the Resolutions.

PUTNAMVILLE.

This pleasant and thriving part of the town, we are glad to see, has lately received the above very appropriate designation, associated as it is with a name honored in our past history, and borne by many of our most respected and worthy townsmen. We have been told that the nick-name heretofore applied to it, anciently belonged to a swamp near the Topsfield line, and that from this Blind Hole Swamp, one of the pleasantest and most elevated spots in the the town, received that most inappropriate name, which we hope will no longer be attached to it.

VANDENHOFF,S ELOCUTION. We have received from Messrs W. & S. B. Ives, a book with the above title. It aims with success at what is extremely important in a work of this kind, namely, plainness. It is a book which can be studied and understood by young scholars, and its use must prove extremely beneficial in the education of pupils in this very important branch. The selection and arrangement are excellent, and we think for our Common Schools it is the best system we have ever met with.

The Journeymen Bricklayers of Pittsburg are on a strike for higher wages. They have been receiving $1 50 per day, and want more.

☞We understand that the article in our last headed 'Thrilling Incident," was incorrect in some of its particulars, and has conveyed to some an erroneous impression. The facts, as we are informed by one of the members of the Gen. Foster engine, are briefly these:—When the engine arrived at the scene of conflagration, there were but few members with it, but they were immediately ordered by the Chief Engineer to the northern side of the fire, which order they instantly obeyed; a part of them however, owing to the intense heat, were obliged to abandon her, but four of the members staid by her until she was conveyed to the destined spot; receiving for their faithfulness, a severe scorching. These were assisted by several citizens on the other side of the fire when they had nearly reached there.

NEWBURYPORT HERALD. Among the best papers on our exchange list, is the Newburyport Herald. It is conducted with superior ability, and the editorial articles show always excellent sense and judgement. There is no paper we delight more to feast upon, and whose columns feel more severely the infliction of our scissors. May the worthy Editors live a hundred years, and their shadows never be less.

OLD ESTATES. The Indian Hill farm, so called, at West Newbury, is owned by Benjamin Poore, Esq., a descendant of the one who first received it from the Indians. The old parchment deed, with its arrow-head mark, shows the only title. The estate of John Q. Adams, in Quincy, is also held by the original Indian deed; and we believe some others in the State are held in the same manner but owing to the tendency of our institutions, and the love of change for which the Yankees are so proverbial, we suspect they are not very numerous.

FOR THE COURIER

DANVERS RAIL ROAD.

We were very sorry to see an article, in the warrant for the Town meeting of last Monday, relating to the proposed branch Rail Road from Salem to North Danvers; we also regret that that question is now agitated; as we do not consider it the proper time for its consideration by the town. People are so busy generally at this season of the year that it is very inconvenient, and oftentimes impossible, for them to leave their work to attend town-meetings; in addition to this, the interest in the question is for a time suspended and we can see no reason why it should be excited now unless to anticipate the movements which will in due time be resumed in favor of a new Road to Boston. The opinion expressed in the last number of the Courier, that the construction of a branch will afford no objection to the chartering of the new Road, is not in accordance with our views, unless it should be immediately continued, as was there suggested, to Georgetown and Haverhill, which we do not believe the Eastern Rail Road Company have any idea of doing. We think the only inducement that Company would have to construct the branch to North Danvers would be to place a barrier against any further action for a new road, by the people of Danvers. If we thought otherwise, then we should not object to the construction of the branch. We think experience confirms us in the strong belief, that if the Eastern Rail Road Company supposed the building of the branch would not preclude the chartering of a new Road to Boston, that they would not lay the first rail in its construction. It will be done if done at all, to put a quietus upon the citizens of Danvers, and as such we oppose it heartily and uncompromisingly. We declare war now and forever against such an intrusion by this overgrown monopoly. We will not tamely submit to the dictation of the Eastern Rail Road Company with its open professions of disregard for the accomodations and opinions of the public. The Road is striving by all means within its power, extending branches into all the large towns near it, to secure a monopoly of all the travel, and when by this means the possibility of competition is removed, it will carry the good citizens of these places to Boston upon such terms as the Director with its "don't care a d——n" President, have a mind to dictate. That Company has conducted in a manner to fully warrant such an opinion, and all that the people have to do, is now to express firmly and unequivocally their voice against its intrusions, and to suppress in its first conception this dangerous spirit of monopoly, which stalks abroad shielded by the exploded doctrine of 'vested rights. As we commenced, this is no time for agitating this question, we would only now guard against this trap laid by the Eastern Rail Road Company in their efforts for this branch, and in proper time with the leave of the Editor we shall express more fully and in detail, our views upon the merits of the claims for a new road to Boston.

TRUTH.

FOR THE COURIER.

BRANCH RAIL ROAD.

The attention of this community has again been called to the necessity of some Rail Road accommodation to the business done here. It is admitted by all that Danvers is entitled to this accommodation, the only question is as to the form in which it can be bestowed. Whether by means of a branch uniting with the Eastern Rail Road at Salem; or a branch, uniting with the Maine Extension Road at Malden;—or rather an independent Road from Danvers through Malden to Boston. Considering the advantages proposed at the new and central depot of the Maine extension road, and the inconveniences of the ferry terminations on the Eastern Road, we have looked at the approach to Boston over the western route, as a most desirable object: and with a hope that it might be found feasible and meet with favor by the Legislature. In these particulars, we were disappointed the last winter. The feasibility of the route, with an assurance of an income to make the stock a desirable investiment was not very clearly shown;—and as to the favor of the Legislature, it was apparent to all from the beginning, that the combination of existing corporations directed these matters. It is now understood that the government of the E. R. Road are still desirous of accommodating the business of Danvers by means of a Branch Road as soon as the inhabitants of the town shall be ready to acquiesce in such accommodation. Shall we persist in having our own way, or none at all; or shall we permit a branch to be constructed from the tunnel at Salem by the South Meeting House, the New Mills, to the Plains. The probability is that the E. R. R. Co, would gladly build such a branch and do the business of Danvers on terms as favorable as that of Salem for the sake of securing their business to their Road. Is there any way in which the people of Danvers can do better than this? I speak of the whole people and not of a few individuals. Particular estates or particular business, may be more or less favorably affected by one or the other of the proposed locations. This is unquestionably a matter of more importance to the growth and continued prosperity of the place, than any other that has been agitated; and it is to be hoped that it will be canvassed with the fairness that shall enable all rightly to understand it.

FOR THE COURIER.

A CRYING SIN.

For waggish cow-boys to perambulate up and down the streets, "tootin" their horns, like the jolly old Levites around the walls of Jericho. The other morning, an old gentleman awakening to the voice of one of these "charmers," rushed out of his domicil, "Bloody with spurring, furious with hot haste," under the impression of an arrival of fresh fish. "Brethren, these things ought not so to be."

††

☞We learn that Rev. Mr. Ransom, who has officiated the year past at the M. E. Church in this village, (but who from ill health has not recently been able to preach) took leave of his people last Sabbath, after administering the sacrament, by a brief but affectionate address to the church and society.

We do not learn who is to succeed Mr. Ransom. The Conference, by whom the appointment is made, commenced its session in Lowell, last Wednesday.

SHAVINGS.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE LADIES.

A GOOD SIGN FOR PURCHASING A HORSE

If one white foot, buy him:
If two white feet, try him
If three white feet, deny him;
If four white feet, and a white nose,
Take off his hide and give him to the crows.

A similar sign suggests itself on seeing ladies come into a dry goods store,

If one comes, she'll buy;
If two come, they'll try;
If three they'll deny;
If four come, you may suppose
They'll only look at goods, and off they goes.

FIRE. About three o'clock Wednesday morning, the mills on the Medford turnpike, belonging to heirs of the late Nathan Tuft, Charlestown, were burnt. The mill-house was a large building, and contained a new and very valuable machine for sawing veneers, splitting up old down sawmill, a gristmill, and various circular saws. A large quantity of valuable branch wood for veneers was burnt. A barn and shed were destroyed. The building and machinery were partly insured. The workmen left the mills about eleven. Mercantile Journal.

The man apprehended for setting fire to Mr. Boardman's barn, in this town, has been tried and acquitted.

Mr. Creasy was not convicted on either of the indictments for setting fire at Newburyport, and will have a new trial in September.

BODY FOUND. A party of engineers surveying the Lynn marshes discovered, between the toll house and the railroad bridge, the body of an Irish woman, apparently about 25 years of age. An inquest was held by Coroner Vial, of Lynn. Verdict of the jury, "cause of her death unknown." It is supposed that she was walking on the railroad bridge, and fell off and was drowned.

☞Great numbers of counterfeit Mexican dollars are in circulation.

DIVIDEND. The Boston and Providence Railroad Company have declared a dividend of three and a half dollars per share, payable 1st of July.

The town of Springfield, with rather less than [illegible] almost every denomination existing in this country.

Three cows, belonging to a Mr Whitney at Dedham, Low Plain, were killed by lightning on Saturday morning, during a heavy thunder storm that passed over that town.

The mountains of Vermont are rich in iron ore. One mine lately opened, has been found to yield 75 per cent of iron. The Tyson works in Plymouth, (about 20 miles from Windsor) now yield 1400 tons of pig iron a year.

Robbery in an Omnibus. Mr. Samuel Guild of, Roxbury, the President of the People's Bank, on his way out of town yesterday, was robbed of his pocket-book containing $150.

Another Screw Loose—An injunction has been served on the Farmers & Mechanics Bank, at Detroit, and is shut up for the present. The money is refused here by all our traders. This is another of the Locofoco chartered Banks and we may of course expect it to play the Locofoco game of swindling the People. Michigan Telegraph

☞Kelso, the Indiana traitor Senator—whose vote defeated the election of a Whig U. S. Senator—has been appointed Indian Agent by Polk.— Det. Adv.

☞Mr. Vice President DALLAS is to deliver the Eulogy on Gen. Jackson in Philadelphia.

☞Mr. John Low has been appointed Postmaster at Methuen.

Clocks.—It is ascertained that no fewer than 60,000 American cheap clocks have been imported and sold in England within one year.

Essex City.—The Essex Company have decided to fix the location of their new city on the Methuen side of the Merrimack. We learn that the proprietors of these new works look with a favorable eye to the introduction of steamboats upon the Merrimack, and that they believe no great expense would be necessary to clear it of the few obstructions to its navigation. It is much to be regretted that we cannot have a fair trial of a good steamboat, with a light draught of water between here and Haverhill. —Newburyport Herald.

Mr. Palfrey of Boston, advertises for a place for one of his freemen—a person rather deficient in intelligence but of good habits and kind feelings. A farmer who can turn such help to account would do a kind thing by giving him a home.

☞We learn from the Cincinnati Gazette, that a kind of catterpillar called the measuring worm,(Geometria Defoliara) is devastating the orchards in that vicinity. On both sides of the Ohio, whole orchards have been entirely stripped by it of their leaves, and look as brown and naked now as they did in January.

☞Over a million of White Fish were taken with a seine at New Haven, a day or two ago. They weighed over 400 tons, and are worth for manure $500. Being hauled in at high tide and the net made fast to a windlass, the receding tide left them high and dry—looking like a snow bank, or an extensive deposit of salt.

A Fee.—Hon. W. C. Johnson has received a delicate compliment to his abilities in the shape of a $100,000 fee for settling an extensive land claim. His visit to New Orleams was no doubt connected with this interesting business.

Old Colony Railroad.—We learn that the workmen commenced yesterday laying the sleepers and rails on this road. Exertions are being made to have the road completed for travel, by the middie of the ensuing Autumn. Plym. Rock,

BRIGHTON MARKET—MONDAY. June 23. 1845
From the Boston Daily Advertiser.]

At market 575 Beef Cattle, 10 pairs Working Oxen, 825 Sheep, and 525 Swine. 100 Beef Cattle unsold.

PRICES—BEEF CATTLE—Prices generally have declined—a few Cattle, however, were sold at the highest prices paid last week. We quote a few Extra $6; first quality 5 50 a 5 75; second quality $5; third quality 4 50 a $5

WORKING OXEN—No sales noticed,

SHEEP—Small lots from 1 75 to 2 50.

SWINE—Lots to peddle at retail, from 4 1 2 to 6 1-2c

MARRIAGES.

In this town, Mr James D. Shackley to Miss Hannah Hanson. Mr Robert W. Jessup to Miss Louisa Rhodes

By Rev. Mr. Field, Mr. Daniel S. Lewis to Miss Dorothy M Dow. both of Lynn.

In Lynn, Mr Samuel Twisden, 3d., to Miss Mary Ann Breed.

In Byfield, Mr Jacob D. Edgerly to Miss Emily M Cheney.

DEATHS.

In Salem, John Saunders, Esq., aged 85 years.—Mrs Martha Roberts, widow of the late Samuel Roberts, aged 70. Miss Eliza Dalton, wife of Mr Robert Boyd aged 41.

In Newbury, Theodore Weld, only son of Rev Horace Moulton aged 6 years 4 months.

In Springfield, Mrs Cooley, aged 96—the oldest inhabitant in that town.

In Boone county. Mo., on the 22d May, Capt Wm. Ramsay, aged 104 years. He served during the whole of the Revolution was at the siege of Yorktown, was an early spy, pioneer and Indian fighter in Kentucky—he removed to Missouri in 1802, and served in the ranging service in the late war.

POT OF DANVERS.

Saturday June 21

ARRIVED.

Sch Gladiator, Newcomb, Norfolk, with grain.
" William Henry, with lumber.

SAILED.

Sloop Abigal and Stranger. Boston with bricks.
Sch David Foster, Kelly Dennis.

Monday 23

SAILED.

Sch China Nickerson, New York.

Tuesday 24

ARRIVED,

Sloop Stranger, Skidmore. Boston.

SAILED.

SAILED.

Sch Gladtator & William Henry.

Thursday 26

Sch Dispatch Oscutt Bangor with lumber

SAILED.

Sloop Stranger Boston with bricks,

MONUMENT DIVISION, No 6.—S. of T.

Will hold a special Meeting for Quarterly business, at their hall, No. 11 Park street, on WEDNESDAY Evening next, at 7 1-2 o'clock. A punctual attendance is requested.

Danvers, June 20 MOSES MERRILL, R. S.

HOWARD TENT—No. 87—I. O. OF R.

Meet every Monday evening, at 8 o'clock, in the new Hall, near the South Church, Danvers. Members of the Order generally are respectfully invited to attend. A uniformly punctual attendance of the members is requested.

C. E. BROWN, O. R.

WM. H. HOWLAND, Sec.

NEW BOOKS.

NEW VOL. BARNES'S NOTES. Notes, explanatory and practical, on the Epistles of Paul to the Thessalonians, to Timothy, to Titus; and to Philemon, by Albert Barnes. Just from the press.

BEAUTIFUL MINIATURE VOLUME. The Boquet, containing the Poetry and Language of Flowers, by a Lady, just published.

VOL 5, Wilkes' United States Exploring expedition. Cheap edition.

No. 3, Wiley and Putnam's Library of American Books. Letters from Italy, by J. T. Healey. Just published and for sale by W. & S. B. IVES june 28

WRAPPING PAPER. Just received at J P. JEWETT & CO'S. Bookstore, a complete assortment of Double Straw Wrapping Paper; Single do do; Single Junk do do; Cap Tea do do; Colored Shoe do do; Plain do do do. For sale at wholesale or by the single ream, as above, june 28

THE NEW POST OFFICE LAW.—J. P. JEWETT & CO., have just received a beautiful assortment of Thin Letter Papers, Ruled and Plain, linen Stocks, and fine finish. For sale by the ream, or at retail, at the Book and Music Store opposite the Mansion House. june 28

WEIGH YOUR OWN LETTERS. John Sheldon's patent unique Pocket Companion, or Weighing and Writing apparatus, containing twelve distinct and important advantages in one case, viz: an accurately adjusted Letter Balance, Rates of Postage a convenient Pen-holder, Everpoint Pencil, Toothpick and Gauge, Seal, a reserve for Leads, and the whole serves for measure, being exactly four inches long. Each part is warranted to act distinctly separate. A supply just received and for sale by.

W. & S B. IVES,
june 28 opposite the Railroad Station.

NEW VOL. OF BARNES'S NOTES on Thessalonians Timothy, Titus and Philemon—price 5 cents—bound in uniform style with the former volumes Just from the press of the Harpers, and rec'd by june 28 J. P. JEWETT & CO.

M. TELYEA

HAS a splendid assortment of BROADCLOTHS, DOESKINS, and VESTINGS, of the test patterns, which are worthy the attention of purchasers.

GARMENTS CUT AND MADE, in the most fashionable style, or according to the fancy of the customer, and warranted to fit.

A lot of very nice SCARFS, and Gentlemen's LINEN GLOVES.

South Danvers, June 14. 1845.

Overhauls.

A GOOD assortment will be constantly kept on hand, at EDWARDS',

apr 26 14 Front street, Salem.

ICED CREAMS.

Strawberries, Fruit, Confectionary,

Soda, Mead, &c. at

272 ESSEX STLEET, by

J. G. SHED.

 Parties supplied at short notice, and on reasonable terms. june 28

TO LET.

ROOMS in Lunt's Buildings, including two very pleasant Chambers, on the second story, under ASHLAND HALL. Also, a Basement Room, in the building occupied by Mr. Francis Dane, well located for a provision dealer. Also, a large finished Chamber, in the third story of said building. For terms enquire at this Office.

june 28

☞RICHARD H. CHAMBERLAIN'S,☜

Hosiery, Glove, Thread and Yarn Store,

No. 236 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.

R. H. C. respectfully gives notice to the citizens of Danvers, that he has now on hand, and is weekly receiving, a full and complete assortment of Spring and Summer Hosiery, the principal part of which are of DOMESTIC MANUFACTURE, and much superior in durability, to those imported. The following are some of the kinds, viz:—

LADIES'

Bleached, Unbleached, Mode, Slate, Black and Mixed Cotton HOSE.

Ribbed—black, mode, slate and white do do.
Open-worked—white, unbleached, and mode do do;
Raw Silk—black, white and mode do;
Woolen—Alpacca, Angola, Merino, Cashmere and Worsted do.

CHILDREN AND MISSES'

Hose, of every description, open-worked, silk-clocked, open and embroidered, plain and ribbed, of all colors and sizes;

MEN AND BOY'S SOCKS.

Merino, Angola, Worsted, Yarn, Cotton and Linen.

Ladies' Gent's Children's and Misses'

GLOVES, in great variety, comprising nearly 100 dozen of all kinds and sizes;

ALSO, AT COST.

The large STOCK of PIECE GOODS, in the above Store, will be offered at COST for THIRTY DAYS, among which are the following Goods, viz:—Mousseline de Laines; Balzorines; Lawns; Ginghams; Prints; Patches; Tickings; Flannels; Diapers; Crash; bleached, unbleached and col'd Table Covers; Linens; Linen Damasks; white and colored Cambrics; Lace Musiins; fig'd, striped and checked Cambrics; Alepines; Alpaccas; bleached and unbleached Sheetings and Shirtings; Shirts; Bosoms, Collars, Suspenders, Cravats, etc. tf june 28

BARGAINS.

A GOOD Stock of READY MADE CLOTHING is offered at Great Bargains, at No. 14 Front street, viz;

Dress and Frock Coats; Tweed do; Gingham do; Imitation Gingham do; Linen do; Thin Jackets; Satin, Marseilles and Valencia Vests; Cassimere, Doeskin and Satinet Pants; Overhauls; Green Jackets; Fine white Shirts, red flannel, check and stripe do; Under Shirts and Drawers, together with a good assortment of Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Doeskins and Vesting, which is sold by the yard, or made into garments at the very lowest cash prices.

Also, an assortment of Stocks, Neck-ties, Cravats, Scarfs, Bosoms, Dickeys, Hdkfs, Suspenders, Socks, Wallets, Canes, Caps, Travelling Bags, &c., all of which will be sold at a small advance of the cost, at

EDWARDS'S,
june 28 14 Front street, Salem.

DISSOLUTION.

THE Co-partnership heretofore existing under the firm of W. S. CLEVELAND & CO., is this day dissolved by mutual consent. The accounts and business of the late firm will be settled by J. P. Jewett & Co.

M. J. WHIPPLE,
Salem, June 21. 1845. W. S. CLEVELAND.

THE subscriber having sold to Mr. John P. Jewett his interest in the late firm of W. S. Cleveland & Co. would cordially recommend the new concern to a continuation of the liberal patronage which the establishment has heretofore received.

june 21 M. J. WHIPPLE.

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

The subscribers have this day formed a connection in the Publishing and Book-selling business, under the name of JOHN P. JEWETT & Co. A share of patronage is solicited, at the old stand opposite the Mansion House. JOHN P. JEWETT.

Salem, June 28, 1845.

NOTICE.

THE subscriber announces, with pleasure, that he has returned to his Old Stand, opposite the Mansion House, at which place he hopes to meet his former friends and customers, to whose generous patronage he is indebted for past success. He trusts that the extra facilities obtained by an absence of nearly a year, the greater part of which time has been spent in intercourse with extensive Publishing Houses in the East and West, will enable him to conduct business in a manner, both to the satisfaction and profit of the Book purchasing community.

Particular attention will be paid to the publishing of valuable copy rights, many of which are already contracted for, and will be put to press immediatly. With such facilities for obtaining extensive supplies of stock in exchange, it is apparent that Books can be sold at Wholesale to dealers in the neighboring towns on as favorable terms as they can be purchased in any city in the Union.

JOHN P. JEWETT.

Salem, June 28, 1845 2mo

THOMAS TRASK,

Near the Eagle, Main Street, Danvers,

KEEPS constantly on hand, a good assortment of

SADDLES AND HARNESSES,

of every kind and quality. Also—Fire Buckets, Solid Leather, Rivetted Double and Boot Top Travelling Trunks, Common Hair do., Valises and Carpet Bags, Chaise, Stage and Draught Collars, Military Equipments, etc.

ENGINE HOSE furnished at short notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

CHURCH CUSHIONS, of all kinds and quality, made at the shortest notice.

T. T. has on hand as good an assortment of Harnesses as can be found at any other establishment.

A good article of Neats Foot Oil, constantly on hand.

Danvers, June 7, 1845. 1y

REMOVAL.

POOLE & STEDMAN,

MAKERS OF

TRUNKS, HARNESSES, &c. AND COACH AND GIG TRIMMERS,

For the better accommodation of their customers, have taken the lower part of the shop recently occupied by Mr. Jonathan Ward,

No. 24 St. Peter Street,

SALEM.

Thankful for past patronage, a continuance of the same is solicited.

S. A. POOLE,
G. B. STEDMAN.

june 21, 1845.

Bargains in Gloves and Hosiery,

At 24 Washington street,

A LOT of unbleached embroidered Cotton Hose received this day and selling for 25 cents.

Fine Bleached Hose, 12 1-2c; do brown do 12 1-2.

Boys' Mixed Socks of every size.

Children's Cotton, Lisle Thread, Silk and Kid Gloves.

june 14

LINENS FOR SHIRTINGS. Just received a lot of heavy Linens, at 54 Washington street, and selling very low. One lot good Linens, at 25 cents.

june 14 KEITH & MASON.

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

THE undersigned would inform their friends and the public, that they have formed a connection in business under the firm of

SHORT & LUMMUS,

and have taken the stand lately occupied by WILLIAM KIMBALL, No. 240 Essex street, Salem.

(Newly opposite the Market.)

where they will open this morning an entire new

STOCK OF DRY GOODS.

among which may be found Barage and Mohair SHAWLS, Mantles, Balzorines, Barages, French and Scotch Ginghams, Lawns, Alpaccas, M. de Laines, Black and Blue Black Alepines, Linens, Linen Drilling, Plain and Ribbed Gambroons,

HOSIERY, GLOVES, etc.,

Together with a large assortment of

House-keeping, Lace and Thread Goods.

JOSEPH SHORT,
Salem, June 21. F. H. LUMMUS. tf

Opening of Spring!

Magnificent, Chaste and Original Designs for Remodeling

"OAK HALL!"

FOR SPRING TRADE!

OPENING OF "OAK HALL" FOR THREE MONTHS!

Advice to Professional Men, Merchants Clerks with moderate Salaries, Farmers, Mechanics, Seamen, Firemen and others, VISIT OAK HALL!

ARRIVAL OF SPRING GOODS!

To Wholesale Dealers.

THE OPENING

This Morning, for Three Months!

I would again most respectfully inform the citizens of Boston, and strangers visiting the city, (after a delay of six weeks, during which time I have not been idle,) I have completed my arrangements on the most

MAGNIFICENT SCALE,

greatly surpassing my former arrangements. The Hall is splendidly decorated with almost

MAGIC ELEGANCE!

The architecture being Gothic, has given the artist an opportunity to display his taste to advantage. The paintings which adorn the walls are so perfectly chaste and appropriate, that every one will be fully compensated the trouble of visiting it. The design and effect of the interior, especially when

ILLUMINATED IN THE EVENING,

Is unequalled in any store this side of the Atlantic. Much praise is due to the artist, for his share in beautifying this Establishment. I flatter myself that the good taste of my fellow citizens and townsmen will fully appreciate all I have done, as my Establishment was the FIRST and ONLY ONE that adopted the

"EXTREME LOW PRICE SYSTEM,"

Before "OAK HALL" was in existence, it was not a very uncommon thing for a gentleman to pay from $45 to $50 for a suit of clothes. For one half of this sum or less, a perfect and entire suit can be obtained at this Establishment, cut and made with that ease and grace, that distinguish my garments from others. From this

EMPORIUM OF FASHION

first originated the Gothic style of architecture in Boston, and Oak Painting, &c. now so much in fashion. To those who have not visited this great

PLACE OF RESORT,

on account of the name of the street, I would most respectfully say, that where my establishment is located was once the Court end of Boston, and at this time is visited and patronized by the most influential and respectable individuals. Man, not unlike the fields, and Trees, once covered with a beautiful suit of Green is now breaking from its Coat of Ice and Snow and, having its Winter suit of nature soon to be warmed into animation, and renew its beautiful suit of Green. So with Man—wrapped up in his Overcoat, he now on the opening of Spring, finds his under suit rusty and shabby, and is not suitable to wear. The next thing is to find a good place to fit out at a

REASONABLE PRICE,

and to be sure and have a GOOD FITTING SUIT, that will set upon the form with ease, grace and gentility.

FIVE GOOD REASONS

Why you can purchase at OAK HALL less than at any other Establishment in the United States:

FIRST—You do not pay me for YOUR suit, and the INDIVIDUAL'S that did not pay previous to you, as MY business is Cash on delivery.

SECOND—If any Garment made to order is not pleasing in every particular, it is no inconvenience to take it back and make another, as Ready Made Garments are directly in my line.

THIRD—I purchase my Goods in large lots, extremely cheap, and give my customers the benefit, by selling them at the smallest advances,

Fourth—I go by the motto.

LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS

OR AS SOME SAY,

"NO PROFITS AT ALL."

That I'll leave with my customer to decide.

FIFTH—My facilities are such at this time doing a

LARGE BUSINESS,

that I can afford to sell at

VERY LOW PRICES!

BOYS' CLOTHING.

I have lately added to my already extensive manufactory of Boys' Clothing, rooms for the manufacture of Boys' Clothing, and shall keep a large supply of every variety and kind, always on hand.

TO WHOLESALE DEALERS.

You will find the greatest variety of every style of Fresh Manufactured Clothing, adapted for Spring, to your different Trades, and will be sold extremely low in large lots!

AT RETAIL.

One of the largest and, best selected Stock of Fresh Spring Goods ever in "OAK HALL," and will be sold at the following low prices.—

PANTALOONS.

2500 pair of Fancy Spring patterns of Satinet Pants, at	1 75 to 2 50
3000 pair Steel Mixt Pants,	1 62 to 3 00
2200 do Sheeps Grey Pants	1 75 to 3 00
2500 do Canada Grey do,	1 75 to 3 00
3000 do Black Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 50
5000 do Lavender Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 00
2200 do Super black do Pants, with fancy stripe,	4 00 to 5 00
1500 Super blue Broadcloth and Cassimere Pants	3 50 to 4 50

THIN COATS.

3500 Coats and Sacks, American Gingham,	75 to 1 00
5000 Coats and Sacks. Scotch Gingham,	1 25 to 1 75
4800 Coats and Sacks Scotch Gingham, satin figure,	1 50 to 1 75
2700 Coats and Sacks, Webster Check	75 to 1 25
3750 Coats and Sacks, London Plaids,	1 25 to 175
4000 Coats and Sacks, of Linen and othergoods,	1 00 to 1 75

THIN PANTS.

8000 pair thin Pants of every quality of Goods at low prices, say from 50 cents to $2 50 per pair.

VESTS.

300 light Vests, a very pretty affair for Spring,	50c to 1 00
4500 Dark Valencia,	75 to 1 50
5500 Fine Valencia, dark and light	1 50 to 2 50
2700 Satin Vests, figured and plain,	2 00 to 3 00

DRESS AND FROCK COATS.

5000 super Dress Coats, all colors, green, blue, black olive, &c. from $4 to $15.

1750 super Frock Coats, all colors, Mulberry, browns, etc. from $6 to $16.

All the above cut in the latest style, and made up expressly for Spring Trade.

500 Business Coats, at low prices, say from $2 to $5.

2200 Tweed Coats, water proof, from $3,75 to $5.

FURNISHING DEPARTMENT

Great Display of Furnishing Goods at the following low prices. viz:

150 dozen	White Shirts—Linen Bosoms, Collars and Ribbands.	75c to 1 25 each
100 do	White Shirts, plain.	50c to 75c do
150 do	Fancy Shirts,	62 1-2 to $7 1-2
200 do	Twilled Shirts,	50 to 62 1-2 do
25 do	Rich Figured Satin Scarfs,	Low prices.
20 do	do do do do
50 do	do do do do
50 do	Spring Pattern Cravats,	12 1-2 to 75c
25 do	Rich Fig'd Satin do.	75c to 1 25
50 do	Stocks, of every description, such as Satin Bombazine, &c. and made in the latest Spring Style,
1845		37 1-2 to 1 50
10 do	Brussells Carpet Bags, and others,	1 00 to 2 75
75 do	Smoking Caps,	12 1-2 to 25c
200 do	Braces of every description,	12 1-2 to 50c
20 do	best Kid Gloves,	50c to 1 00
25 do	Thread do	25 to 50c
20 do	Silk do	50 to 75c
100 do	Linen Bosoms—all kinds,	25 to 75c
300 do	do Collars, latest pattern,	10 to 25c
250 do	Canes,	17c to 1 00
325 do	Umbrellas,	50c to 1 50
50 do	Glazed Silk Caps,	1 00 to 1 25
100 do	do do	25 to 37c
505 do	Silk Pocket Hdkfs	25 to 75c

An endless variety of Fancy Articles, such as Gold and Fancy Studs—Hair Brushes—Clothes do—Pocket Combs—Dressing do—Tooth Brshes—Cologne—Bosom Pins—Fancy Soaps—Silk Purses—Guard Chains—Pant Straps, &c. &c.

A LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO THE TRADE.

My furnishing Goods are purchased from first rate hands, at low prices, and will be sold at small advance to the trade at my

EXTENSIVE LONG ROOMS,

OAK HALL BUILDING,

GEORGE W. SIMMONS,

General Tailor, Draper and Outfitter.

32, 34, 36, and 38 Ann street

Opposite Merchant's Row—BOSTON.

apr 19 3m

THE

Massachusetts Mechanic Association

HAVING AWARDED TO

REMOVAL.

SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

Rich Jewelry and Fancy Goods.

HAVE removed to the New Store, No. 291 Essex street, (next above Mechanic Hall) where they will keep constantly for sale Gold Finger Rings. Breast Pins, Bracelets, Lockets, Keys, Gold and Silver Pencil Cases, Silver Thimbles, Silver and Plated Table and Tea Spoons, Butter Knives, Silver Plated and Brittania Ware, Shell, Horn, and Ivory Combs, Pocket Books, Purses, &c., &c.

N. B. All kinds of Jewelry repaired in a superior manner and warranted. Old Gold or Jewelry, made over or exchanged for new.

S. & C. having acquired a thorough knowledge of the business in New York, as well as our success for the past five years in this city, will, we feel assured, enable us to execute with approbation any orders entrusted to our care.

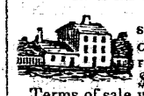
☞Thankful for past patronage, we solicit a continuance of the same. tf March 15.

DRAPER & TAILOR,

No, 148 Essex Street, Salem,

TAKES this method of informing the public of Danvers and vicinity that he has for sale one of the richest and BEST selected assortments of

Broadcloths, Cassimeres & Vestings



ever before offered in Salem. The Stock is of the latest Spring and Summer styles, and cannot be surpassed by any establishment in the city, which will be sold by the yard, or made into Garments, in a style that CANNOT be surpassed in this or any other city.

☞Strangers from the country would do well to call at this establishment, as they select their Goods with the most perfect confidence, that each article is as good in quality, and as low in price as can be obtained at any other store.

N. B. The report of Fashions received every month.

Salem, March 15, 1845.

House and Land for Sale.

The subscriber offers for sale a large two story Dwelling House, on Holton street, convenient for two families, and in good repair. The said house now rents for $120 per annum, and will be sold low.

Terms of sale will be easy for the purchaser, as a large part of the amount may remain on mortgage. Apply to

may 24 tf WM. SUTTON.

French Goods from New York.

THE subscribers have opened this day, an assortment of French Goods to which they invite the attention of the ladies.

3 boxes Real French Embroidery Inside Hdkfs;
3 " " " Collars, various styles.
3 " French Dentilla Laces, for Trimmings,
A variety of Thread Lace Insertions;
Real French Linen Cambric Hdkfs, hemmed stitch;
Embroidered Linen Cambric Hdkfs;
" Muslin for Dresses;
Boxes French Kid Gloves;
New styles Laces for Capes, some very rich.

The above Goods were selected on Wednesday in New York, and are of the very latest styles.

KEITH & MASON,
june 7 24 Washington street.

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

JONATHAN W. OSBORNE has taken into Copartnership MICHAEL L. WHIDDEN, and they will continue the

Painting, Glazing & Papering

business. at the old Stand. No 10 PARK STREET, under the firm of

OSBORNE & WHIDDEN.

Particular attention to

SIGN PAINTING,

IMITATIONS OF WOOD, MARBLE, BRONZE, GROUND GLASS, &c.

mch 29 1y

GRASS CLOTHS FOR SKIRTS.

JUST RECEIVED at 24 Washington street, a large lot Grass Cloths for Skirts, extra wide and clear. Also, Real India Feather Fans.

KEITH & MASON.

Purchasers of Linen Goods, will do well to examine the assortment of KEITH & MASON, 24 Washington street, consisting of Linen, Damasks, Table Covers, Napkins, Dahlias, Pillow-case Linens, Linen Sheetings, Crash, diapers, Huckaback, Shirtings, and every quality of plain linens from 2 cents per yard to $1. 25.

N. B Every article warranted pure Irish Linen,

june 21

GOVE, LOCKE & CO.,

and no one else, a DIPLOMA for specimens of

The Best Ready Made Clothing

Exhibited by them at the Mechanics' Fair in September last, must satisfy the community that the location of an establishment is of but little importance, and that the idea of being confined to a particular section of the city, in order to obtain a

GENTEEL GARMENT,

has been rendered obsolete, by the above named award, as without prejudice the award was made to those who deserved it. Being convinced themselves, that their CUSTOM WORK has not been surpassed in any point of view, still they have been obliged to stem the current against the strongest prejudices, and have, by unremitted attention to the tastes and desires of their patrons, to a very considerable extent, overcome them, resulting in a successful trade, and encouraging them to prosecute the NEW ENGLAND BRANCH OF THEIR BUSINESS, with renewed vigor, and to devote a large share of their attention the present season, to the

Highest Grade of Custom Work!

Being now prepared with every facility adapted to the various classes in the community, they can furnish any style of Garment which their notion or fancy may dictate—aiming

In point of Style and Fashion,

to be in advance of any other

CLOTHING ESTABLISHMENT;

and being at all times supplied with materials of every description, they are prepared to turn out at the shortest notice

AS GOOD AND AS GENTEEL A GARMENT,

as can be obtained in the United States, and have entire confidence in making the assertion, having Cutters constantly

ENGAGED ON CUSTOM WORK,

who are inferior to none in this region, enabling them to assure those who have favored them with their patronage, that no pains will be spared to deserve a continuance of their support—and to those who lack confidence in a Clothing Establishment, because it is situated on

COMMERCIAL STREET,

they would say that a specimen of their work can be seen in nearly everysection of the city, particularly on the backs of

THE MOST GENTEEL PEOPLE!

and to them they refer, in relation not only to the treatment which is universally tendered to them by all concerned in the

COMMERCIAL ARCADE!

but more especially in regard to the price as the Proprietors have by experience ascertained that they can furnish a

FIRST RATE GARMENT!

at a medium price, equal in every respect to those furnished up in town, at an exhorbitant one. Their Stock of Clothing, adapted to the

SPRING SALES!

is far superior to any previous year, and the patronage of the public is respectfully invited, whether in pursuit of a single garment or otherwise, as their stock embraces every article essential or requisite to the wardrobe of a gentleman, while its magnitude enables them to supply COUNTRY DEALERS in any quantity at the shortest notice, and on the best terms.

WHOLESALE DEALERS

located any where from Maine to Georgia, or even in Texas, can find at this concern an assortment of Wearing Apparel adapted to their sales, and are invited before concluding their

SPRING PURCHASES!

—TO CALL—

At No. 60 Commercial street,

BOSTON,

Sign of the Monument,—and visit the proprietors of

COMMERCIAL ARCADE,

GOVE, LOCKE & COMPANY.

Boston, March 29, 1845 3m

Witch Hazle, for Beds.

A FIRST rate article just received and for sale by CARTER & BATCHELDER,

April 19

FOR SALE CHEAP.

One good second hand CHAISE,
" " " BUGGY WAGON,
" " " LIGHT WAGON,

By THOMAS TRASK, Main street

June 7 tf

DRUGS AND MEDICINES,

A GOOD assortment of Drugs, Medicines usually kept in a Druggist Shop, constantly for sale at the lowest prices, by

DR. JOSEPH SHED. (Agt.)

(OPPOSITE THE MONUMENT,)

And a variety of Patent Medicine, consisting of Brinckerhoff's Health Restorative; Buchan's Hungarian Balsam; Schenck's Pulmonary Balsam; Truitant's Compound; Dandelion and Tomato Bitters; Davis' Compound Tooth Wash; Harrison's Peristaltic, and Worm Lozenges; Thompson's Eye Water; Warren's Croup Syrup; Whitwell's Oxodeldock; Different kinds of Pulmonary Balsams, and genuine Thomsonian Medicines; Jew David's or Hebrew Plaster; also, Brandreth's, Indian Vegetable, Beckwith's, Lee's, Dean's, Parr's, Richardson's, Relf's Asthmatic, and a variety of other Pills. Candies, Nuts, Almonds, Citron, Currants, Nutmegs, Mace, Cloves, etc. Particular attention to Physician's Recipes.

Danvers, May 31, 1845.

FOR SALE.

A two story house and lot of land on Holton street. The House is convenient for two families and will be sold at a great bargain. Inquire of

HIRAM GRANT.

Danvers, April 19, 1845.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law

OFFICE IN FELTON'S (late Osborne's) Building,

Danvers, March 29th, tf

NEW LIME,

CONSTANTLY on hand and for sale by

may 31 CARTER & BATCHELDER.

Salem, March 15. tf

Improved Curtain Fixtures,

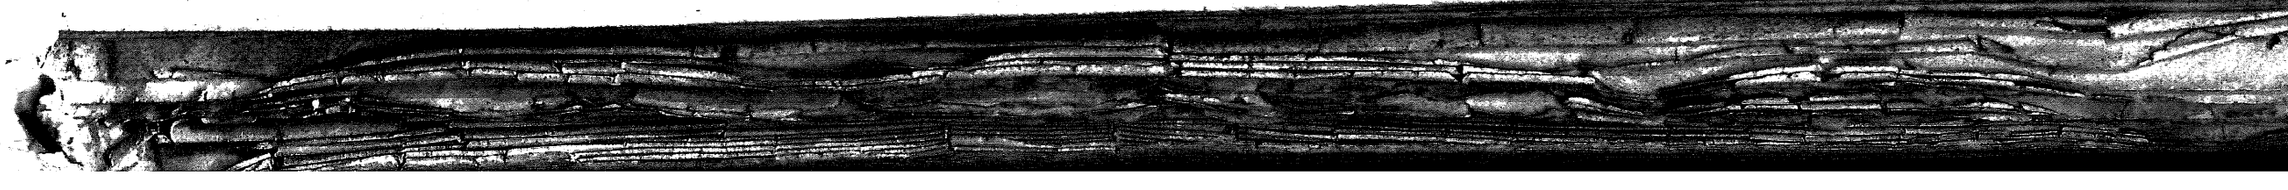
A NEW and beautiful article of Curtain Fixtures, of American Manufacture, far superior to those now in use, and not so likely to get out of order. For sale wholesale and retail at the manufacturer's prices, at the Hosiery and Glove Store, No. 236 Essex street, Salem, by

june 14 R. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

TOPOGRAPHICAL MAP OF PALESTINE by J. H. Colton, Compiled principally from the observations of Messrs Robinson and Smith. The religious Press and many of the secular papers have spoken in high terms of this map. For sale by G W. & E. CRAFTS.

174 Essex St. Salem.

JOSEPH SHED,



NOTARY PUBLIC AND ACTING MAGISTRATE,

Opposite the Monument,

All kinds of writing, conveyancing and probate business attended to promptly,

☞A great variety of BLANKS constantly on hand, and for sale.

Danvers, May 24, 1845.

There is a tender and tranquil beauty in the following lines, which goes directly to the reader's heart. Read and weep;

LINES ON A KITTEN.

Here lies by death smitten,
A helpless young kitten,
To moulder away in the dust:
Oh, had it lived longer,
It might have been stronger,
And died somewhat older we trust.

Had it grown up to cat-hood,
Then many a rat would,
Have mourned in the deepest of woe;
Let the curtain be drawn too,
We hope it has gone to
That land to which other cats go.

A Building Society.—A society has been incorporated in Montreal, called the Montreal Building Society, by becoming a member of which a person is enabled to build a house, by means of a loan granted him for that purpose repayably by instalments, for what the rent of such a house would cost him in ten years. The working of the plan is as follows:—Having a piece of land, an individual becomes a subscriber to the Society for one or more shares, at $500 each, paying a monthly subscription of two dollars and a half for each share, for a period of nine or ten years, at the end of which time he finds himself owner of his house, having paid off the principal. This sort of Savings Bank has, it is said, been found to work very well in England.

☞A preacher is now attempting to prove, that the beast who was chained a thousand years and then sent forth to blast and bite mankind, is neither more nor less than R-U-M!—This, then, is what is meant by the beast's having so many horns, and so many mouths to match them.

A learned clergyman in Maine, was accosted in the following manner by an illiterate preacher who despised education: 'Sir, you have been to college, I suppose?' 'Yes, sir,' was the reply. 'I am thankful,, rejoined the former, 'that the Lord has opened my mouth to preach without any learning.' 'A similar event,' replied the latter, 'took place in Balaam's time, but such things are of rare occurrence at the present day.'

Hypocrites.—In the hereafter of Mahomet, the eternal mansions of the Christians, the Jews, the Magians, etc., are sunk below each other in the abyss and the lowest hell is reserved for the hypocrites who have assumed the mask of religion.

We are glad to perceive that steam colliers are about to be introduced into our extensive coastwise coal trade. This may ultimately reduce the value of coal about $1 a ton, or an equal amount to the reduction made within the last two or three years by the Reading Railroad. One has already been built to run to Hartford. She is 156 tons custom house measurement, and six feet draft of water, schooner rigged and a good sea boat. It is thought she will go from Richmond, on the Delaware, with a freight of coal, and by the way of the Raritan Canal reach Hartford and return in eight days. Fifteen tons of coal will be sufficient for the trip, equivalent to $75.—Newburyport Herald

Danvers Express and Baggage Waggon

LEAVES Danvers and Boston, daily (Sundays excepted.)

All orders left at McIntire's Hotel, or Poole & Jacobs' store Danvers, No. 14 Blackstone, and No. 1 Fulton streets, Boston, will be promptly attended to.

Goods handled with care.

S. F. TOWN.

April 19, 1845. 1 y

PERIODICALS, PAPERS, &c.

LUTHER CHANDLER, GENERAL AGENT for the sale of all the principal Periodicals, Newspapers, &c. which may wish to subscribe; among which are

Graham's Magazine,	Harper's Pictorial Bible,
Ladies' National do,	Verplanck's Shakspeare,
Arthur's Lady's do,	Phil Saturday Courier,
Christian Family Mag.,	Neal's Gazette,
Gentlemen's Magazine,	New York Mirror,
Godey's Lady's Book,	Frost's Pictorial World,

The above and all the principal periodicals and papers will be furnished promptly.

☞BOOKS BOUND at the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

Orders may be left at J. SHED'S, opposite the Monument, South Danvers. 1y mch 29

CHARLES H. MANNING.

CABINET MAKER,

Near the Sign of the Lamb, Main Street,

DANVERS, MASS.

FURNITURE manufactured on the most reasonable terms. Also—CURRIER'S TABLES made and repaired cheap.

SHOE-MAKERS' PEGGING BENCHES made as above. oct 15

EASY SHAVING AND HAIR CUTTING.

B. B. WILLIAMS respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has removed to the store formerly occupied by Lambert & Merrill, (under the Courier Office,) which he has fitted up in a neat manner, and is now prepared to wait upon those who believe that

"Man wants but little beard below,
Nor wants that little long."

Champooing, Hair Cutting and Shaving is performed to the satisfaction of all who may favor him with their patronage.

Danvers, March 15, 1845. tf

W. D. JOPLIN,

Draper and Tailor.

NEARLY opposite the Monument, keeps for sale at the lowest prices,

Broadcloths, Cassimeres and Vestings and Trimmings.

Also—A good assortment of READY MADE CLOTHING.

COATS from 1 to 4 dollars;
PANTS from 75 cents to 2 00.
Green Jackets, Overhauls, Thin Clothing, Hats, Suspenders, &c. may 3

New Furniture Store.

SALEM FURNITURE & FEATHER WARE-HOUSE.

205 1-2 ESSEX STREET. 205 1-2

(Two Doors East from the Market,)

JOSEPH WALLIS would respectfully inform his friends and the public that he has taken the rooms recently occupied by T. Needham, Esq., where he will keep constantly on hand and for sale an extensive and well selected assortment of which he will sell at the lowest cash prices, among which may be found,

CABINET FURNITURE,

Sofas, Sofa Beds; Windlass, Cot Trundle and common Bedsteads; Secretaries; Bureaus; Mahogany, Card, Work, Centre and Dining Tables;—Mahogany, Cane-seat and common Chairs; Mahogany, Cane-back and common Rocking Chairs;—Children's Toy, Rocking and Dining Chairs; Settees and Settee Cradles; Cribs; Grecian and common Wash Stands; Portable Sinks; Portable and Gentleman's Writing Desks, Toilet, Dining and common Pine Tables; Looking Glasses; Swing and Toilet Glasses. Fancy Boxes, a great variety;—Mattresses; and every article usually found in his line of business.

CLOCKS.

J. W. intends keeping on hand a large and well selected assortment of Wood and Brass Clocks from the best of manufacturers—all of which we can feel confident in warranting. Those about purchasing this article will do well to call.

FEATHERS.

Live Geese and common Feathers; a great variety.

N B. J. W. will still continue to Manufacture FURNITURE at the Old Stand, No 29 Lafayette, corner of Ward street, where he will keep on hand a good assortment of

Cabinet Furniture, Feathers, Looking Glasses and Clocks.

Salem, April 12, 1845.

ADAMS & RICHARDSON,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC

HARDWARE.

MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS FOR THE SALE OF

Cut Nails, White Lead, Sheet Lead and Lead Pipe,

NO. 207 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.

Joseph Adams, }
C. M. Richardson, }
march 15 tf

Ploughs & Cultivators,

MANUFACTURED BY

RUGGLES, NOURSE & MASON,

And other Agricultural Tools,

FOR SALE BY

DANIL RICHARDS,

Danvers Plains, March 29, 1845.

EDWARDS' LINIMENT.

For Sprains, Cuts, Bruises, Stiffened or Swelled Joints, Chilblains, Chapped Hands, Numbness and Rheumatism.

THIS invaluable article is now for the first time offered to the public, after having been in use for twenty years, with unusual and astonishing success within the circle of the proprietor's immediate influence. It has received the unqualified approbation of some eminent Physicians, and also Mariners and Mechanics.

It is also recommended, and more than a thousand cases might be cited, when it has been used for Horses in cases of lameness or when galled, &c. &c.

The public are assured that in offering the above we do recommend that which has not the least semblance of QUACKERY, but on the contrary it has done great and lasting good in its efficacious power and healing qualities.

As this medicine has been so long known in Salem and its vicinity, and as there are many that would avail themselves of it if they knew where it could be obtained, therefore the subscriber would now offer it to the public. It will be found always on hand and prepared by the subscriber.

BENJ EDWARDS,
No. 14 Front street, Salem, Mass.

Wanted—trusty and worthy AGENTS in the neighboring towns and vicinity.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENTS.

DANIELS, POOR & CO., Danvers, Mass.
Benjamin F. Browne, Salem Mass.
Smith & Fowle, Boston, "
H. F. Skerry, Bangor, Me.
Charles Whipple, Bookseller, Newburyport.
Wm. R. Preston, Portsmouth, N. H.
John S. Caldwell, Belfast. Me.
Wm. H. Palmer, Lynnfield.
Joseph Edwards, jr. Lynn.
Charles Edwards, Marblehead.
Wm. Edwards, Beverly.

Fales' Cathartic, or Vegetable PURGATIVE LOZENGES.

ARE the best and most popular medicines for people of all ages, country, and climates, and in every condition of life. They are compounded of the essences of vegetables from many nations. Their taste is inexpressibly delightful. They cause no pain in their operations, but the first change of feeling after taking them is, that of pleasure, and they cleanse the stomach and bowels more perfectly than any other purgative medicines.

The most wonderful and surprising cures have been effected by them in different parts of the earth. How these purgative lozenges do speedily purify the blood, and substitute health for sickness, is a mystery to the most eminent members of the healing art. Such purgative medicines must become universal, and supersede the use of all other purgative compounds; and as long as disease continues to afflict people, so long will these Lozenges remain unrivalled in all coming time throughout the world. Every person who travels should carry them—every family should keep them—and every sick man, woman, or child should take them.

FALES' WORM LOZENGES,

Are a safe and sure remedy for worms. Children love them. They act like a charm in removing the symptoms such as starting in sleep, grating the teeth, paleness about the mouth and nose, occasional sickness at stomach, precarious appetite, swelled bowels, and general feverish habit, The child falls into a quiet sleep, and the worms are stupified and expelled and the child, as far as heard from, in every instance has been cured. Price, 25 cents per box, with full directions; sold at Commercial street, Boston,

FALES' COUGH LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common Colds and Coughs, Whooping Cough, Inflamation of the Throat and Lungs, in the Croup or Hives, and more certain to act satisfactory than the celebrated Hive Syrup. The most happy effect is obtained in a few moments; the symptoms disappear and the disease is broken up by the magical effect of these Lozenges. Full directions accompany each box, are found at the Depositopy 96 Commercial staeet, Boston.

FALES' DYSENTERY LOZENGES,

Are a safe and agreeble temedy for Dysentery, Diarrhœa and Bowel Complaints of children. Particular attention must be paid to the directions which are on each box.

FALES' CAMPHOR LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common and sick head ache, and where there is a sense of tightness or weight over the eyes, in erruptive diseases, such as Measles and Small Pox. Also in Mania, Epilepsy, Melancholy, Hysteria, in St. Vitus Dance, and in all cases of languor and oppession of the Vital powers, may be taken with safety by women and children in all conditions. Full directions accompany each box.

FALES' CYPRIAN HAIR TONIC,

Is now so extansively known and justly celebrated that further comment upon it will be useless, we can say, however, that among the many thousands who have purchassed the Tonic, in this and other countries, have expressed not only their approbation, but their wonder and admiration on beholding its effects. A few bottles only can be had at 96 Commercial street, Boston.

CLEAR OUT YOUR RATS.

The gnawing and antics of these destructive creatures can be hushed forever in your house and store, if you will procure a box of the genuine.

MADAGASCAR RAT EXTERMINATOR,

and use it according to direction. You cannot depend upon it unless obtained at J. J. FALES' No. 96 Commercial street Boston.

—AGENTS—

Salem, J. S. HARRISON, J. Stone, jr., H. Whipple, S Badger, jr; Lynn, J. Moulton jr., Geo. Lummus, Wm. Cogswell, Wm. L Ladd; Swampscot, W. Thompson; Marblehead, E. Arnold Wm. Stacey; Danvers, S. Proctor, Jos Shed, New Mills, H. S Pope, A. P Perley & Co, C. Simonds, Calder & Foster; Topsfield, B. P. Adams; Beverly. A N Clark. ep6m mch 29

Flour, Corn, Oats, Shorts, &c.

Landing from schr Pioneer,

200 BARRELS Genesee Flour;
20 1-2 do do do
500 bushels Mealing Corn;
500 do Yellow do
500 do Shorts;
20 bbls Pea Beans;
4 bbls Marrowfat Peas;
100 bags Fine Salt;

—Also, in store—

100 bushels Killam Oats, for seed;
100 do Herds Grass Seed;
100 do Red Top do do;
500 do Clover do; (Northern;

For sale by DANIEL RICHARDS,
At the old and well known stand on the Plains.
North Danvers, April 19, 1845.

NECK STOCKS, SCARFS, CRAVATS, TIES, ITALIAN CRAVATS.

A GOOD assortment of the above just received
EDWARDS'S,
apr 5 14 Front street, Salem.

DOESKINS AND CASSIMERES.

A NEW lot Stripes, Plaids, and Clouded Doeskins. Black, Blue Black, and Lavender Cassimeres just received at
EDWARDS'S,
may 3 14 Front street.

DANVERS DYE HOUSE.

THE subscriber would inform the citizens of Danvers that he has established himself at Danvers Plains, near Maple street, where he will attend to the dyeing and cleansing all kinds of

SILK AND WOOLEN GOODS.

His former experience in England, added to his knowledge of the drugs and dyes in use in this country, will enable him to produce colors, which for cheapness and durability cannot be excelled by any other establishment.

☞Goods left at Mrs. Gould's, Main street South Danvers, or at the Dye House, will meet with prompt attention.

WILLIAM ROWBOTHAM.
Danvers Plains, June 7, 1845. tf

UMBRELLAS—UMBRELLAS—at EDWARDS
14 Front Street.

NEW LUMBER WHARF.

THE subscriber having taken the wharf, called the West wharf, near the Bridge, in South Salem, would take this opportunity to inform his friends and the public generally, that he intends to keep for sale an assortment of BOARDS, JOIST, CLAPBOARDS, SHINGLES, PICKETS, LATHS, etc. etc., of as good quality as can be found in the city.

He has now on hand 800,000 dry Boards and Plank for sale, and all wishing to purchase, are respectfully invited to call and examine for themselves.

He has also made arrangements at the Eastward for furnishing Dimension Frames, and filling orders of every description, at short notice.

Having been a practical builder for the last fifteen years, the subscriber flatters himself that his knowledge of the business, and the Lumber trade generally, will enable him to give satisfaction to those who may favor him with their patronage.

As he will be at the Eastward part of the time, he will be able to give his personal attention to the purchasing of Lumber, etc. He has made arrangements with Mr. A. F. CLARK to be on the wharf during business hours, who will wait upon those who may favor him with a call.

Salem, May 10, 1845. tf H. B. WARD.

REMOVAL.

DR. J. A. ROBINSON,

SURGEON DENTIST,

SALEM,

WOULD respectfully give notice that he has removed from his old stand, opposite the City Hall, to No. 20 Washington street, recently occupied by A. E. Phillips, where he is ready to perform all operation, in Dentistry, in a most thorough and workmanlike manner.

His experience and success in inserting whole sets either by atmospheric pressure or springs, enables him to furnish them at rates which cannot fail to suit those in want of an article of superior quality.

His method of inserting Teeth, both singly and on plate, with or without Gums, has been found to be satisfactory and successful as combining beauty of finish and adaptation, with all the requisites of mastication and articulation.

Particular attention paid to filling Teeth so as to render them serviceable for many years, and also to the regulation of Children's Teeth.

N. B. For sale as above, a first rate article of TOOTH POWDER. 6m mch 15

G. W & E. CRAFTS,

BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURERS AND STATIONERS,

174 ESSEX STREET, SALEM,

HAVE constantly on hand, and will manufacture to order, all kinds of Blank Books, from the best paper, ruled to any pattern, and bound in a neat and substantial manner.

FINE STATIONERY,

of almost ever description, adapted for counting rooms and schools, comprising in part, Letter and Writing Papers, ruled and plain; Drawing Papers; Note, Tissue and Wrapping Papers; Wafers; Sealing Wax; Seals and Steel Pens of every variety; Quills of every description; wafer Cups; sand boxes; writing fluids and inks; penknives; razors, &c.

PRINTING, RULING AND BINDING.

Printing of shop bills, cards, bill heads, catalogues, &c. executed in the neatest manner and on the best terms. Ruling, to any pattern desired, at short notice. Binding, of every description, executed with despatch.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

A constant supply of school books, of the best editions, together with every kind of School Stationery Also, all kinds of miscellaneous books furnished at the lowest rates. mch 15

Great Bargains

ARE NOW BEING HAD AT THE

Washington Street Clothing Store, Salem

GARMENTS of all description may be obtained at prices which cannot fail to give entire satisfaction.

Great care has been taken in the getting up of every garment, all of which is warranted equal, if not superior to any Clothing in the city.

The subscriber continues to take measures as formerly, and all Garments bespoken, will be made according to the wishes of the customer, and will guarantee both the style and fit.

☞BOY WANTED, as an Apprentice.

S. CHAMBERLAIN, JR.

Salem, March, 15. tf

EASTERN RAILROAD,

SUMMER ARRANGEMENT.

ON and after April 4th, 1845, Trains leave daily (Sundays excepted,)

Boston for Portland, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P. M.
" Portsmouth, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 5 1-2 P.M.
" Somersworth, Great Falls, 7 1-4 A.M. 2 1-2 P.M.
" for Newburyport, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 and 5 1-2 P.M.
" for Salem, } 7 1-4, 9, A.M., 12 1-4 2 1-2, } 3 1-2, 5 1-2, 7 1-2 P.M.

Salem for Portland, 8 A.M., 3 1-4 P.M.
Salem for Portsmouth and Newburyport, 8 A.M. 3 1-4, 6 1-4 P.M.
Portland for Boston, 7 1-2 A.M., 3 P.M.
Saco for Boston, 8 A.M., 3 1-2 P.M.
Somersworth, Great Falls for Boston, 8 3-4 A.M. 4 1-4 P.M.
South Berwick lot Boston, 9 1-4 A M, 4 3-4 P.M.
Portsmouth for Boston, 6 1-2, 10,* A.M., 5 1-2* P.M.
Newburyp't for Boston, 7 1-4, 10 3-4* AM. 6 1-4* P.M.
Salem for Boston, 7 1-2, 8 1-2, 10 1-4 11 3-4,* A.M. 2 1-4, 5, 7,* P.M.

*Or on their arrival from the East.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Trains leave Marblehead for Salem, at 7 1-4, 8 1-4, 10, A.M.; 2, 4, 4 3-4, 7, P.M.

Leave Salem for Marblehead, at 8, 9 3-4 A.M. 1, 3 1-4, 4 1-4, 6 1-4, 8 1-4 P.M.

A Merchandize Train will leave Boston, Portland and all intermediate places every day.

Freight Office in Boston, No. 17 Merchants Row, and on the line of the road at the several Depots.

JOHN KINSMAN,
apr 12 Master of Transportation.

Summer Arrangement of the

DANVERS AND SALEM

HOURLY COACHES

THE Danvers and Salem Hourly Coaches will in connection with the Eastern Railroad, leave Danvers and Salem at the following hours, viz:

Leave Danvers at	7	A.M.	Leave Salem at	8	A.M.
" "	8 1-4		" "	9 1-2
" "	9 3-4		" "	11 1-2
" "	11 1-4		" "	12 3-4
" "	1 3-4	P.M.	" "	3	P.M.
" "	2 3-4		" "	4
" "	4 1-2		" "	6
" "	6 1-2		" "	7 1-4
" "	7 1-2		" "	9

For seats apply at Macintire's Hotel, or at Joseph G. Shed's store in Danvers, and at the Essex House and Salem Hotel in Salem.

Railroad passengers taken at the depot on the arrival of the cars from Boston and the East.

☞Extra Coaches furnished at any hour on reasonable terms SYMONDS & TEEL.

apr 19 tf

NEW ENGLAND

TRUSS MANUFACTORY.

THE subscriber continues to manufacture Trusses of every description, at his residence at the old stand, opposite 254, No. 305 Washington street, Boston entrance in Temple Avenue, up stairs. All individuals can see him alone, at any time, at the above place.

Having had twenty years' experience, he has afforded relief to three thousand persons, for the last five years. All may rest assured of relief who call and try a Truss of his manufacture. He is now confident he can give every individual relief who may call upon him.

The public are cautioned against the many quacks who promise what they cannot perform.

Having worn the different kinds of Trusses, more or less that have been offered to the public for the last twenty years, from different patent manufactories, and now consents to wear those of his own manufacture, he is now able to decide, after examining the rapture, what sort of Truss is best to adopt to all the cases that occur; and he has on hand as good Trusses, and will furnish any kind of a Truss that can be had elsewhere.

J. F. F. manufactures as many as twenty different kinds of Trusses, among which are all the different kinds similar to those that the late Mr. John Beath, of this city, formerly made, and all others advertised in Boston, together with the patent elastic spring Truss, with the spring pads of rupture, and a large proportion produce a perfect cure—they can be worn day and night; improved hinge and pivot Truss; umbellical spring Trusses, made in four different ways; Trusses with ball and socket joints, Trusses for Prolapsus Ani, by wearing which persons troubled with descent of the rectum can ride on horseback with perfect ease and safety.

Mr. Foster also makes Trusses for Prolapus Uteri, which have answered in cases where pessaries have failed. Supensory Trusses, knee caps, and back board, are always kept on hand As a matter of convenience, and not of speculation, the undesigned will keep on hand the following kinds from other manufactories, which they can have if his does not suit them; after a fair trial they can exchange for any of them;—Dr. Hull's Read's spiral Truss; Rundel's do; Salmon's ball and socket; Sherman's patent; French do; Marsh's Improved Truss; Bateman's do, double and single. Stone's Truss; also, Trusses for children of all sizes.

Any kind of Trusses repaired at short notice, and made good as when new.

Ladies wishing for any of these instruments, will be waited upon by Mrs. Foster, at the above place. Mrs. has been engaged in the above business for ten years.

He likewise informs individuals he will not make the complaints known to any one, except when he is permitted to refer to them—it being a misfortune, and young persons do not want their cases known.

The readers of this paper, are respectfully invited to call and examine the variety of Trusses now on hand.

May 31 JAMES FREDERICK FOSTER

REMOVAL.

BOWDOIN'S DAGUERROTYPE ROOMS removed from Meehanic Hall, to the adjoining building above, 298 Essex street, where he has room built expressly for the purpose of taking Miniatures in any weather.

Mr. B. tenders his sincere thanks to his friends and the public, for their liberal patronage the past year, and respectfully solicits the continuance of public favor. He has recently purchased a large Achromatic instrument for the purpose of taking GROUPS and LARGE PICTURES, which enable him to give pictures of all sizes, equal to those taken in New York or Boston He has formed a connexion with an establishment in New York, from whence he receives all the new improvements, and materials connected with the Art, which will enable him to give better pictures for less prices than can be obtained in Boston.

Miniatures set in every variety of Lockets, Frames, Cases, &c.

☞Persons visiting Salem, and those about going to sea, can have a perfect likeness completed in a few minutes' time.

 Miniatures set in a neat Morocco Case for $1 50. Exhibition rooms open to visiters through the day.

BENJAMIN EDWARDS.

DRAPER TAILOR,

No. 14 FRONT STREET, SALEM.

GARMENTS Cut and Made to order, and Fashionably, and warranted to give entire satisfaction

Constantly on hand, a good assortment of

BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES, AND VESTINGS.

Also—Neck Stocks, Italian Cravats, Scarfs, Shirt Bosoms, Collars, Feetings, Braces, Umbrellas, Hair and Clothes Brushes, Cologne Water, Wallets,

and other articles necessary for Gentlemen's use.

Grateful for the very liberal patronage which has heretofore been bestowed upon the establisment, he hopes by care and attention to business to merit a continuance.

Any order for Goods in the TAILORING LINE, attended to with fidelity and despatch.

All Garments Repaired and Cleansed CHEAP.

Any of the above articles if not on hand when called for, will be furnished at short notice.

mch 15 tf

LAMP BLACK.

1000 POUNDS of Lamp Black, warranted a prime article.

3000 Madras Gout Skins, in crust, Goat and Sheep Morocco. Kid, Linings, and Bindings.

For sale by W. & M. BLACK Jr.,
apr 12 New Mills, Danvers.

WANTED.

10 GOOD COATMAKERS wanted immediately, to whom steady employment and good wages will be given.

S. R. BOTT,
mch 15 No. 148 ESSEX Street, Salem.

Periodical Depot!!

REMOVAL.

LUTHER CHANDLER, the Proprietor of the Depot for

PERIODICALS AND CHEAP PUBLICATIONS, formerly kept at No. 3, (on the East side of Washington street, has removed to the store,

Corner of Washington and Norman Streets,

(Directly opposite the Old Stand,)

where he intends to keep a full supply of all the Periodicals and New Works, as well as the Daily and Weekly Papers, as soon as they appear from the press.

In removing from the old stand he confidently hopes to receive the continued patronage of those who have formerly received his publications and he pledges himself that he will use his best exertions to procure all New Works promptly and sell them at the lowest prices.

His long experience and extensive acquaintance with those publishers and others engaged largely in the Periodical Trade will enable him to answer orders for periodicals and New Works, with great promptness, and at the most favorable prices.

REFRESHMENTS,

such as are usually kept at Restaurateurs, and SODA AND MEAD, will be furnished at the new stand, by S. SALDERS.

REMEMBER—Corner of Washington and Norman Streets, near the Railroad Station, Salem.

may 24 3m

KENDALL'S CHURNS.—A fresh supply of the various sizes, also, the different sizes of the SHAKER CHURNS, for sale at

apr 26 J. & H. HALE'S, 215 Essex st.

POOLE & JACOBS,

MANUFACTURERS OF

Boot and Shoe Linings, Skivers

AND BINDINGS,

AND DEALERS IN

WOOL,

MAIN ST., DANVERS, MASS.

HARRISON'S REMEDY

FOR THE PILES.

THIS is an ointment prepared by the undersigned, and has been so thoroughly tested in so many different cases that I never hesitate to warrant relief to those who will give it a fair trial, observing the directions around each box which give a plain treatise on the disease and full instructions as to diet mode of cure, &c. One application at night never fails to relieve the greatest pain and anguish. I am ready to refer to numerous individuals who have proved this Remedy to be the safest, surest, speediest and cheapest

CURE FOR THE PILES.

My agent in Exeter writes thus: "the Pile Remedy which you left me is all sold, please send me soon a further supply, as a number of persons in this town think very highly of it. N. GILMAN"

MORE TESTIMONY.

Salem, Aug. 6. Mr. Harrison: The box of ointment which I had from you has worked like a charm—I have used it only one night, and I am cured. I had used Hays' Liniment as I stated to you, with no benefit but rather was worse, it causing more inflammation. Yrs, J. W.

BLEEDING PILES CURED.

Mr. Harrison—Having given your Peristaltic Lozenges and Pile Remedy a fair trial, I have the satisfaction to inform you that they have operated wonderfully in my case. I had not been able for months to do any work at my trade, owing to exhaustion from bleeding, but I now feel myself cured. The severe pain which I had in my stomach is gone, and my strength is fast returning. I had used various remedies to no purpose, until I tried your medicine. I can also state that Capt. Benj. Ireson of this town has also experienced great benefit from your Remedy. I cheerfully recommend the medicine to all suffering with that distressing complaint—the Piles.

EDWARD H. LEWIS.

Lynn, Sept. 27, 1844.

For sale at 256 Essex street, by the Proprietor,

J. S. HARRISON JR.,

Agents—in Danvers, S. PROCTOR, Jr.; Marblehead—E. Arnold; Lynn—Ladd, and Holder; Beverly—Clarke; Newburyport—C. Whipple; Andover—Amos Abbott; Topsfield—Bixby and Merriam, Haverhill—Nichol; Boston—Ransom & Stevens, Tompkins, Southers and Fowle.

mch 15 6m

JUST received a full assortment of the celebrated EAGLE PLOUGH, improved. Also, Garden Rakes & Partridge's celebrated Manure Forks, Rakes, Hoes, and Castings for repairing the various parts of almost all kinds of Ploughs now in use.

J. & H. HALE, 215 Essex st. Salem.

May 3

GOLD PENS. A superior article just received and for sale cheap by G. W. & E. CRAFTS.
174 Essex St. Salem.

DANVERS COURIER.

VOL. 1. DANVERS, (MASS.) SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 5, 1845. NUMBER 16.

THE DANVERS COURIER
IS PUBLISHED BY
GEORGE R. CARLTON,
EVERY SATURDAY MORNING,
A few doors North of Mackintire's Hotel,
CENTRAL ST.—SOUTH DANVERS.

Terms—$1 50 if paid in advance, or $2 00, if not paid within one month of the time of subscribing.

The carriers are not allowed to sell any copies of the Courier. Single copies may be obtained at the office, at 5 cents each.

Advertisements will be inserted on favorable terms.

POETRY.

FOR THE COURIER.

LIGHT.

From whence the glorious light!
That wondrous essence of diurnal birth,
Coming to glad the whole rejoicing earth,
And dispossess the night?

From the eternal throne
Of Him who dwells in light forevermore,
Who was personified as Light of yore,
By Priest and Prophet, One?

What is its mission? say,
To bid the herbage of the field and plain,
Look joyful up to Heaven, and smile again,
And bless—life-giving ray.

To bid the lily ope
Her night-closed petals like an humble hand,
To take this daily favor, (O how grand!)
With newly kindled hope.

To deck the myriad rills
With sparkling gems, impart a golden sheen,
A rich effulgence, prized by them, I ween;
Their music nature fills.

To seek the forest glades,
And flicker sportively and free along,
Waging, the secret, solemn haunts among,
A warfare with the shades.

On the high, snowy crest
Of mighty ocean billows to alight,
Greeting the lonely mariner's charmed sight,
When storms are laid at rest.

To cheer each living thing,
Descends the boon with inspiration rife,
Breathing or vegitative, bearing life
Upon its angel-wing!

A. Y.

I-HAVE AND O-HAD-I.

Their names are I-have and O-had-I;
I-have will come tamely and perch on your hand,
But O-had-I will mock you most sadly.

I-have at first sight is less fair to the eye,
But his worth is by far more enduring
Than a thousand O-had-I's, that sit far and high,
On roofs and on trees so alluring.

Full many a golden egg this bird will lay,
And sing you, "Be cheery! be cheery!"
O, merrily then will the day glide away,
And sweet will your sleep be, when weary.

But let an O-had-I once take your eye,
And a longing to catch him once seize you,
He'll give you no comfort nor rest till you die;
Life-long he'll torment you and teaze you.

He'll keep you all day running up and down hill,
Now racing, now panting and creeping;
While far over head, this sweet bird at his will,
With his golden plumage is sweeping.

Then every wise man who attends to my song,
Will count his I-have a choice treasure,
And whene'er an O-had-I comes flying along,
Will just let him fly at his pleasure.

SELECTED TALE.

The Old Deacon.

BY ANN S. STEPHENS.

It was a balmy pleasant Sabbath morning; so green and tranquil was our valley home, that the very air seemed more holy than on other days.—The dew was floating in a veil of soft mist from the meadows on School Hill, where the sunshine came warmly, while the wild-flowers in the valley lay in shadow, still heavy with the night rain. The trees which feathered the hill sides, were vividly green, and Castle Rock towered—a magnificent picture—its base washed by the water and darkened by unbroken shadow, while a soft fleecy cloud, woven and impregnated with silvery light, floats upon their opposite hills, with the deep river gliding between, like miniature cities, deserted by the feet of men; not a sound arose to disturb the sweet music of nature, for it was the hour of morning prayer, and there was scarcely a hearthstone which, at that time, was not made a domestic altar. At last a deep bell-tone came sweeping over the valley from the Episcopal steeple, and was answered by a cheerful peal from the belfry of our new academy. The reverberations were still sounding, mellowed by the distant rocks, when the hitherto silent village seemed suddenly teeming with life. The dwelling-houses were flung open, and the inhabitants came forth in smiling family groups, prepared for worship. Gradually they divided into separate parties. The Presbyterians walked slowly toward their huge old meeting-house, and the more gaily-dressed Episcopalians seeking their more fashionable house of worship. It was a pleasant sight—those people, simple in their habits, yet stern if not bigoted sectarins, gathering together for so good a purpose. Old people were out—grandfathers and grandmothers, with the blossom of the grave on their aged temples.—Children, with their rosy cheeks and sunny eyes, rendered more rosy and more bright with pride of their white frocks, pretty straw bonnets, and pink wreaths. It was pleasant to see the little men and women striving in vain to subdue their bounding steps, and school their sparkling faces to a solemnity befitting the occasion. There, might be seen a newly-married pair walking bashfully apart not daring to venture on the unprecedented boldness of linking arms in public, yet feeling very awkward, and almost envying another couple who led a roguish little girl between them. She—a mischievous little thing—all the time exerting her baby strength to wring that chubby hand from her mother's grasp—pouting her cherry lips when either of her scandalized parents checked her bounding step or too noisy prattle, and at last, subdued only by intense admiration of her red morocco shoes, as they flashed in and out like a brace of woodlilies, beneath her spotted muslin dress.

Apart from the rest, and, perhaps, lingering along the greensward which grew rich and thick on either side of the high way, another group, perchance, was gathered. Young girls, schoolmates and friends, with their heads bending together, and smiles dimpling fresh lips, all doubtless conversing about sacred themes befitting the day.

Such was the aspect of our village on the Sabbath, when the subject of this little sketch takes us to the old Presbyterian meeting-house on School Hill, a sombre, ancient pile, already familiar to those of our readers, who have read the "Home Sketches" preceding this.

Our academy bell had not ceased ringing when the congregation came slowly in through the different doors of the meeting-house, and arranged themselves at will in the square pews which crowded the body The minister had not yet arrived, a circumstance which occurred to some of the congregation as somewhat singular.—Twenty years he had been their pastor, and during that time, had never once kept his congregation waiting. At length he appeared at the southern entrance, and walked up the aisle followed by his grey-headed old deacon. The minister paused at the foot of the pulpit stairs, and with a look of deep and respectful reverence, held the door of the "Deacon's Seat," while the old man passed in. That little attention went to the deacon's heart; he raised his heavy eyes to the pastor with a meek and heart-touching expression of gratitude, that softened many who looked upon it, even to tears. The minister turned away and went up the stairs, not in his usual sedate manner, but hurriedly, and with unsteady footsteps. When he arrived in the pulpit, those who sat in the gallery saw him fall upon his knees, bury his face in his hands, and pray earnestly, and, it might be, weep, for when he arose, his eyes were dim and flushed.

Directly after the entrance of the minister and deacon, came two females, one a tall, spare woman, with thin features, very pale, and bearing creature for men to bandy jests about. But for him, that girl, now shrinking from the gaze of her own friends, would have remained the pride of his home, a ewe lamb in the church of God.—Through his wiles she had fallen from the high place of her religious trust, and now, in the fulness of her penitence, she had come forward to confess her fault, and received forgiveness of the church it had disgraced.

The old deacon had lost his children one by one, 'till this gentle girl alone was left to him; he had folded a love for her, his latest born, in his innermost heart, 'till all unconsciously she had become to it an idol. The old man thought it was to punish him that God had permitted her to sink into temptation; he said so, beseechingly, to the elders of the church, when, at her request, he called them together, and made known her disgrace. He tried to take some of the blame upon himself: said that he had, perhaps, been less indulgent than he should have been, and so her affections had been more easily won from her home and duty—that he feared he had been a proud man—spiritually proud, but now he was more humble, and if his Heavenly Father had allowed these things in order to chasten him, the end had been obtained; he was a stricken old man, but could say, "The will of God be done." Therefore he besought his brethren not to cast her forth to her disgrace, but to accept her confession of error and repentance; to be merciful, and receive her back to the church. He went on to say how humbly she had crept to his feet, and prayed him to forgive her; how his wife had spent night after night in prayer for her fallen child, and so he left her in their hands, only entreating that they would deal mercifully by her, and he would bless them for it.

Willingly would the sympathizing elders have received the stray lamb again, without farther humiliation to the broken-hearted old man; but it could not be. The ungodly were willing to visit the sins of individuals on a whole community. The purity of their church must be preserved—the penance exacted.

From the time of that church-meeting, the poor father bent himself earnestly to the strengthening of his childs's good purposes. He made no complaint, and strove to appear—nay, to be—resigned and cheerful: he still continued to perform the offices of deacon, though the erect gait and somewhat dignified consciousness of worth that formerly distingnished him, had utterly disappeared.—On each succeeding Sabbath, his brethren observed some new prostration of strength. Day by day his cheek grew thin—his voice hollow, and his step more and more feeble. It was a piteous sight—a man who had been remarkable for bearing his years so bravely, moving through the aisles of that old meeting-house with downcast eyes, and the mildew of grief began to wither up the memory of that good man. When the first indications of this appeared, the hearts of his brethren yearned toward the poor deacon with a united feeling of deep commiseration. The day of Julia's humiliation had been appointed, and the Sabbath which proceeded it, was a sacramental one. The old deacon was getting very decrept, and his friends would have persuaded him from performing the duties of the day. He shook his head, remarked that they were very kind, but he was not ill, so they let him bear about the silver cup filled with consecrated wine, as he had done for twenty years before though many an eye filled with tears as it marked the continued trembling of that hand, which more than once caused the cup to shake, and the wine to run down its sides to the floor. There was an absent smile upon his face when he came to his daughter's seat. On finding it empty he stood bewildered, and looked helplessly round upon the congregation, as if he would have inquired why she was not there.—Suddenly he seemed to recollect; a mortal paleness overspread his face. The wine-cup dropped from his hand, and he was led away, crying like a child.

Many of his brethren visited the afflicted man during the next week. They always found him in his orchard, wandering about under the heavy boughs and picking up the withered green apples which the worms had eaten away from there unripe stems. These he diligently hoarded away near a large sweet brier-bush which grew in a corner of the rail fence. On the next Sabbah he appeared in the meeting-house, accompanied by the minister as we have described, to be outraged in the very house of God by the presence of the man who had desolated his home. It is little wonder, that even there, his just wrath was for a moment, kindled. The service began, and that erring girl listened to it as one in a dream Her heart seemed in a painful sleep; but when the minister closed his bible, and sat down, the stillness made her start. A keen sense of her position came over her. She cast a frightened look on the pulpit, and then sunk back pale and nervous, her trembling hand wandering in search of her mother's. The old lady looked on her with fond grief, whispered soothing words, and tenderly pressed the little hand that so imploringly besought her pity. Still the poor girl trembled, and shrunk in her seat as if she would have crept away from every human eye.

The minister arose, his face looked calm, but the paper which contained the young girl's confession, shook violently in his hands as he unrolled it. Julia knew that it was her duty to arise.—She put forth her hand, grasped the carved work of the seat, and stood upright 'till the reading was finished, staring, all the time, wildly, in the pastor's face as if she wondered what it could all be about. She sat down again, pressed a hand over her eyes, and seemed asking God to give her strength.

The minister descended from the pulpit, for there was yet to be another ceremony; a baptism of the infant. That gentle, erring girl was to go up alone with the child of her shame, that it might be dedicated to God before the congregation. She arose with touching calmness, took the babe from her mother's arms, and stepped into the aisle. She wavered at first, and a keen sense of shame dyed her face, neck and very hands, with a painful flush of crimson, but as she passed the pew where young Lee was sitting, an expression of proud anguish came to her face, her eyes filled with tears, and she walked steadily forward to the communion-table, in front of her father's seat.—There was not a tearless eye in the whole congregation. Aged, stern men, bowed their heads to conceal the sympathy betrayed there. Young girls—careless, light-hearted creatures, who, never dreaming of the frailty of their own natures, had reviled the fallen girl, now wept and sobbed to see her thus publicly humbled. Young Lee became powerfully agitated; his breast heaved, his face flushed hotly, then turned very pale, and at last he started up, flung open the pew door, and hurried up the aisle with a disordered and unequal step.

"What name?" inquired the pastor, bending toward the young mother, as he took the child from her arms.

Before she had time to speak, Lee stood by her side, and answered in a loud, steady voice, "That of his father, James Lee!"

The trembling of that poor girl's frame was visible through the whole house, her hand dropped on the table, and she leaned heavily on it for support, but did not look up. The minister dipped his hand in the antique China bowl, laid it upon the babe's forehead, and, in a clear voice, pronounced the name. A faint cry broke from the child as the cold drops fell on his face. The sound seemed to arouse all the hitherto unknown and mysterious feeling of paternity slumbering in the young father's heart. His eye kindled, his cheek glowed, and impulsively he extended his arms and received the infant. His broad chest heaved beneath its tiny form and his eyes seemed fascinated by the deep blue orbs which the little creature raised smilingly and full of wonder to his face.—Lee bore his son down the aisle, laid him gently in his astonished grandmother's lap, and returned to the pulpit again. Julia still had moved a little and overcome with agitation, leaned heavily against the railing of the pulpit-stairs. Lee bent his head, and whispered a few earnest words, and held forth his hand. She stood, for a moment, like one bewildered, gave a doubtful troubled look into his eyes, and laid her hand in his. He drew gently to the table, and in a firm, respectful voice, requested the minister to commence the marriage service.

The pastor looked puzzled and irresolute. The whole proceeding was so unexpected and strange, that even he lost all presence of mind. "A publishment is necessary to our laws," he said, at length, casting a look on the deacon, but the old man remained motionless with his hands clasped over the railing, and his face bowed upon them.—Thinking him too much agitated to speak, and undemanded if any one present had aught to say against a marriage between the two persons standing before him.

Every face in that church was turned on the deacon, but he remained silent and motionless, so the challenge was unanswered, the minister felt compelled to proceed with the ceremony, for he remembered what was, at first, forgotten, that the pair had been published according to law a month before, when Lee had, without given reason, refused to fulfil his contract.

The brief but impressive ceremony was soon over, and with an expression of more true happiness than had ever been witnessed on his fine features before, Lee conducted his wife to her mother, and placed himself respectfully by her side. The poor bride was scarcely seated, when she buried her face in her handkerchief, and burst into a passion of tears, which seemed as if it never would be checked. The congregation went out. The young people gathered about the doors, talking over the late strange scene, while a few members lingered behind, to speak with the deacon's wife before they left the church. Lee and his companions stood in their pew, looking anxiously toward the old man. There was something unnatural in his motionless position, which sent a thrill through the matron's heart, and chained her to the floor, as if she had suddenly turned to marble. The minister came down the pulpit stairs and advancing to the old man, laid his hand kindly upon the withered fingers clasped over the railing; he turned very pale, for the hand which he touched was cold and stiffened in death. The old man was feeble with grief, and when young Lee appeared before him his heart broke amid the rush of its strong feelings.

MISCELLANY.

INTERESTING SCENE. In a late number of the Vermont Chronicle we find an account of the recent meeting at Peachan Vt., of the Caledonia County Conference of Churches. The writer says:

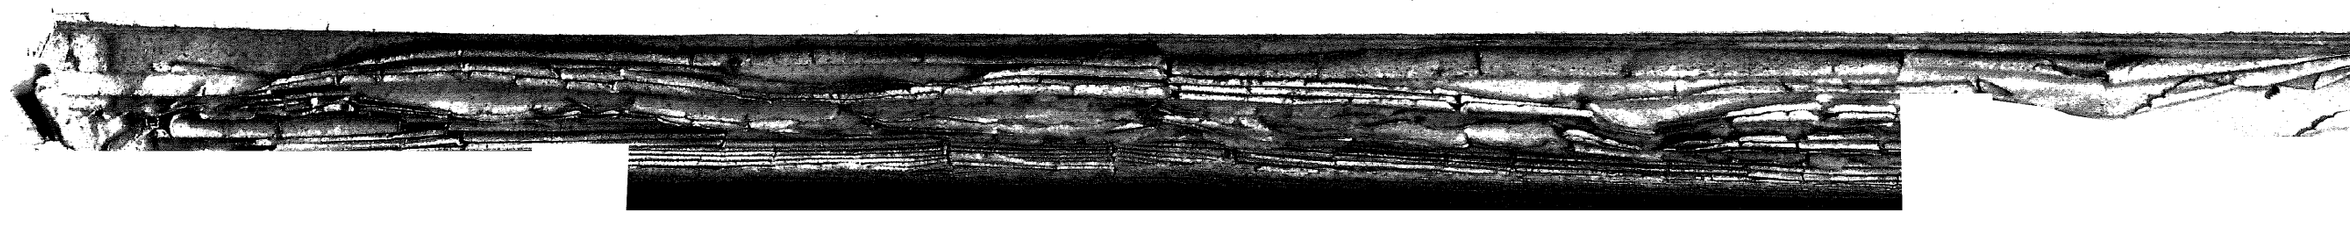
"A circumstance which rendered the closing exercises the more interesting, was the presence of the venerable and beloved Rev. Leonard Worcester, Senior Pastor of the church in Peacham.—For some four or five years, through age and infirmity, he had not visited the scene of his former labors: and it was only the result of a special effort that he was enabled to be at Peacham on this anniversary occasion. Nor was it deemed judicious that he should attempt to be present at any more of the exercises than those of the last half day, at which time he appeared and was seated in an arm-chair near the communion-table. At sight of their former beloved teacher and guide many of those who had once sat under his instructions were affected even to tears. Besides, the impression seemed generally to prevail that the venerable Pastor had now presented himself before the people of his former charge for the last time. What wonder that in view of these things they should betray deep felt emotion?

Father Worcester thought it not best to attempt to participate in the exercises any farther than to pronounce the benediction, and but few were aware that he would attempt even this. But when the closing hymn was sung, as we turned our eyes towards the altar, behold the good man had arisen and we once more, and probably but once more, hear his voice in the house of God. In a moment all was silent as the grave. With quivering lips and with a feeble and trembling voice, he pronounced a few words full of wisdom, kindness and love, bade us an affectionate farewell, and gave us his parting blessing. This was truly a benediction. Tears now flowed from eyes that hitherto remained dry. Those who pleased retired; but many remained as if unwilling to leave till they could at least grasp the hand of the venerable Pastor. He was again seated in his chair, and many gathered around him. As we saw them one after another grasping his hand and bursting into tears, some of them attempting but in vain to speak, and then retiring from the house or again to their seats to weep there, we, too wept. Would that the genius of some painter or poet might portray this scene to the life that those who were not present might be enabled to sympathise with those who were.!!

The aged minister here spoken of is a brother of the late Rev. Dr. Samuel Worcester, first Secretary of the Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions and of the late venerable apostle of Peace, Rev Noah Worcester, D. D.

It is a beautiful process, by which Providence has so interlaced and wrought up together the pursuits, interests and wants of our nature, that the philosopher whose home seems less on earth than among the stars, requires for the prosecution of his studies, the aid of numerous artificers of various branches of mechanical industry, and in return furnishes the most important facilities to the humblest branches of mechanical labor. In instance, the astronomer requires a telescope, but he cannot make it—it is produced by the united labors of the mathematical instrument maker, the glass maker, the glass polisher and the brass founder. A glass factory requires a building and a furnace; these the carpenter, the blacksmith, and the stone and brick mason, furnish. The mason does not make his own bricks, nor the blacksmith dig his own iron—the man who digs the mine does not make the pickaxe, nor the pump. The carpenter does not cut his timber—the man who carts it did not make his own wagon, &c. One might start from a yard of course printed cotton, that cost ten cents, and prove out of it that every art and science under heaven had been concerned in its fabric. Edward Everett,

A TIN-PEDLAR'S JOKE.



Mynheer Von Speckleburgh, was a portly landlord six feet in height, and weighing some three hundred pounds, who lived in a quiet settlement not far from the great city of New Peter Stuyvesant, governor of his Dutch Majesty's possessions in America. This same Mynheer Von Speckleburgh was considered the wi of the little village in which he lived, and was very fond of proving himself such, whenever a traveller stopped at his door, upon whom he thought there was a chance of putting a joke. One evening a tin-pedlar drove up to his house and gave directions to have his team "put up" for the night; as he was the first "live yankee" ever known in that region, the bar-room was soon filled with worthy burghers anxions to see one of those people of whom they had heard so much. The old landlord, although he had heard something of Yankee jokers, still felt confident in his own powers, and soon commenced a running fire of Dutch Witticisms levelled at the pedlar, who, however, seemed to take but little notice of them, but sat comfortably whittling a chip in the corner; after a while he looked up and calmly surveying "mine host," seeming to dwell with much satisfaction on the old gentleman's abdominal preponderance, offered to bet a sum sufficient to moisten the throats of the company, that he would swallow the great Mynheer Von Speckleburgh, big belly and all! The bet was accepted and the Yankee proceeded immediately to business. He directed the Dutchman to divest himself of his coat and boots, and stretch himself at full length on an old table standing in the bar-room; this having been done, Jonathan, after opening his mouth saveral times, so wide as to make the honest landlord wish he had not been so willing to bet, ravenously seized the Dutchman's great toe with his teeth which caused him to make a furious plunge and exclaim, "Dunder and blixen—vat de teyvil you pites me sho for." "Why you old goose," said Jonathan, "you didn't think I was 'goin tu swallow yer whole, did ye." Mynheer agreed to pay the toast and toddy.

CALENDAR OF COURTS

TO BE HELD IN THE COUNTY OF ESSEX IN THE YEAR 1845.

July	8	"	County Commissioners,—Salem.
"	15	"	Probate,—Andover, S. P.
August	5	"	Ipswich.
"	19	"	Salem.
Sept.	2	"	Ipswich.
"	9	"	Newburyport.
"	15	"	Common Pleas,—Newburyport.
Oct.	7	"	Probate,—Salem.
"	8	"	Marblehead.
"	14	"	County Commissioners.—Newburyp't.
"	21	"	Probate,—Haverhill.
Nov.	4	"	Supreme Judicial,—Salem.
"	4	"	Probate,—Ipswich.
"	11	"	Gloucester.
"	18	"	Salem.
Dec.	2	"	Ipswich.
"	9	"	Newburyport.
"	15	"	Common Pleas, Ipswich.
"	23	"	County Commissioners,—at such place as ordered at the preceding term.

Dimes and half Dimes. Three hundred and fifty thousand dollars' worth of dimes and half dimes has been ordered by the Secretary of the Treasury, to be coined at the Philadelpia mint to meet the exigencies of the new postage law.

DANVERS COURIER.

SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 5, 1845.

THE MYSTERY OF INIQUITY.

The above is the title to the leading articles in the May and June numbers of the American Review. They contain a complete exposition of one of the most iniquitous schemes ever devised for corrupting that guardian of a republic, the ballot box. It is a scheme so well laid, and may be so effectually accomplished in our large cities, that Registry laws, and hardly continual watchfulness can entirely guard against its operations. Other plans have been resorted to, formerly, with great success by the Locofoco party, such as bringing to the Polls every man in the city who can be induced to vote their ticket, without possessing the legal qualifications of residence, citizenship, &c.; the bringing of persons from other counties and states, to vote; the fraudulent naturalization of foreigners, under the direction of a regularly constituted committee, oftentimes inducing them to swear to–they know not what, all fees, &c. being paid by the committee; the bringing to the Polls all who can be induced to vote under oath, upon a mere certificate of intentions to be naturalized after the legal five years' residence; the hiring and procuring men to go from ward to ward to deposit illegal votes as many times as possible in the course of the day, "swearing them in" when challenged; and in addition to all these, the inducements offered for such corruptions by the "sporting characters" and "professional gamblers," who, relying upon such aid, are enabled to make large bets upon the results of the elections, with safety. All these may be enumerated under the old plans for corrupting the elective franchise; but none are equal in the amount of mischief they are capable of producing, to the new plan carried out at the last election in the city of New York, the details of which are very minutely exposed in the articles referred to.

This scheme was commenced in February, 1844, some months before the Baltimore convention. It was as follows. A hundred men secretly organized under the name of the "Council of Peace."—They obtained, by careful enumeration, the whole number of legal voters in the different wards, with proportions of political parties. They found that in the city of New York there were 42 000 legally qualified voters, of these that 26 000 were Whigs and the remainder, viz, 16 000 were of their party. This being ascertained, they secured the collection from different sources, of $20 000 to commence their nefarious plan, which created "not the probability—but the absolute certainty of success" in the approaching election. This sum was placed in the hands of a sub-committee called "The Five," who commenced operations. The "Council of Peace" selected a certain number of men possessing certain peculiar qualifications which are enumerated in the articles among which are the following:

They must be all young men, unmarried, between the ages of twenty-one and thirty, of such a personal appearance, physiognomy, complexion, bearing, air and deportment as would render them exceedingly difficult to distinguish among thousands of ordinary men. They were to be men totally devoid of all striking peculiarity of aspect; their eyes, hair, lineaments, stature, walk, and movements, were to be perfectly common-place. In dress and externals, they were to be alike free from anything remembrance or cause identification by any ordinary observer. They were all required to be AMERICANS by birth, totally free from all foreign peculiarities of accent, manner or deportment. As to occupation, and position in life, they were to be generally journeymen-mechanics, employed in large establishments, where there are few workmen known to all their fellow-laborers, and where the persons engaged frequently change their masters from fancy or irregular habits, without exciting inquiry or attracting notice. Journeymen in printing offices, in shoe-shops, machine-shops, stone-cutters' yards, masons' and other builders' employments, and so on, wherever large numbers of men are engaged for periods, and change their location often, on slight causes or on none at all, without imputation of singularity. They were all to be quiet, unobtrusive, silent men, known to few, and disinclined by nature and habit to seek acquaintances or keep them. They were required to be strictly temperate and virtuous in their habits, wholly unknown to the vicious and dissolute, and never seen in grog-shops, or any places where irregular or troublesome intimacies are contracted. They were to be the most ordinary samples of the great multitude, as far as possible, wholly indistinguishable from the mass.

These men were engaged on regular weekly pay, and directed to seek cheap lodgings in certain election districts—each to be furnished with a book containing boundaries and numbers of every election district. With this book as a guide, they were directed to go about, locating themselves from day to day in as many boarding houses as possible, each in a different district—in each place giving a different name. They were to busy themselves continually with visiting their several places of abode. They were to manage, so that scarcely two days should pass without their being seen in the house by the keeper of it, with whom they were to contract no intimacy. The necessary precautions against accidental identification were to be taken, and they were always to have a ready answer for their landlord, if off for any length of time, such as that they "were sitting up with a sick friend," or visiting their father in the country," &c.

Such is the preparation, and on the day of election the picked man presents himself at the polls of the district where he rises and offers his vote. In forty nine cases out of fifty, his vote is received unquestioned, as his name is recorded in the canvass taken by each party, weeks before. But if it happens that his vote is challenged he assumes a look of surprise and refers them to his landlord with whom he has boarded for the last six months. This is almost invariably satisfactory, and the villain proceeds on his round of wards, voting with impunity in as many as he has taken up his occasional abode for the preceding six months. Such is a mere outline of this deep laid scheme which aided in putting the dominant party in power; and the result shows that by this means, together with the desperate efforts of the gamblers, the Locofoco party in the city of New York, instead of throwing 16 000 votes the number they were entitled to, threw over 28 000! giving them a majority of 2 000 over the Whigs. A more deep laid and successful game of political villany was never played in this country, and it is of such a nature that no means ever yet used can effectually put a stop to it.

The exposition is complete and unequivocal—the writer has names and dates which he will probably give in due season. The copy-right of the articles in the Review is secured, and they are to be published soon in a pamphlet form for general circulation, when all will have an opportunity to read this "mystery of Iniquity" with its full details.

INDEPENDENCE.

In Salem the day was "ushered in" by the thunder of—several Chinese crackers, and the ringing of bells attached to the cows on their way to the Great Pasture. During the day the most solemn silence prevailed throughout the city, occasioned probably, by the recent departure of Ex-President Jackson. The illumination in the evening was limited to a single tallow candle in one of the rooms of the City Hall, and the Fire-works consisted of an immense number of fire-bugs in the meadows. We must defer until our next an account of the toasts and speeches at the corporation dinner.

SALEM MILL DAM.

We learn that it is in contemplation to obtain consent of the Legislature at its next session, to have North Bridge made solid, by which an extensive basin of water will be gained to be used for mills and other manufacturing purposes. It is understood that an arrangement can be made with the proprietors of Fry's Mills, and others, whose rights may be affected by the proposed improvement and we hope it will be carried into effect.—Such an improvement would be of great advantage not only to the business of Salem, but it would afford an ample supply of water for the upper part of the city in case of fire, and at all times of tide.

Should the above project be carried into effect, it would almost realize the predictions we have so often heard made that this 'rising generation' would witness internal navigation from Danvers to Salem. An uninterrupted sheet of water will then exist at high tide from Wallis' Mills to North Bridge, but whether a canal will be constructed or not, is 'debateable.'

A REFLECTION. A few days since some boys at the Salem Depot discovered a flickering light under the floor of the building used for storing extra cars, and immediately gave notice to the men about the Depot that there was fire under the building. This of course created some alarm as the appearances justified the belief that a fire had commenced. The floor was ripped up, water procured and every preparation made to extinguish seems the rays of the sun were reflected from the rippling water over which the building is situated and caused the light which had deceived the lads who made the discovery.

FEMALE TEACHERS.

We learn that the School Committee of the city of Salem have recently made a new arrangement of their Schools, by which the two girls' schools are to be placed under the care of female teachers.—A High School for girls has also been established which is to be under the care of Mr. Josselyn.

The practice of employing female teachers in public schools is fast gaining favor in the community and they are found to be particularly well suited for the government and instruction of scholars of their own sex.

☞ We understand that the new and spacious hall in Lunt's Building, now occupied by the Order of Rechabites, has been named by the proprietor, "ASHLAND HALL."

GRAHAM'S MAGAZINE. We have received the July number of this truly valuable and popular Magazine. It contains the usual variety of interesting matter, with several superb plates.—Mr. L. Chandler is agent for this cheap and attractive publication.

Mr. C. has also for sale, Little Emma, by the Author of "Emily Mansfield," "Mysteries of Boston" etc.

IMPROVED CURTAIN FIXTURES.—We had lately the pleasure of examining at the store of Mr. R. H. Chamberlain, in Salem, one of these Fixtures in operation. It is a very simple yet ingenious piece of mechanism and of American manufacture. We think it decidedly the best article of the kind now in use, as it is very easily put in operation and not able to get out of order. Mr. Chamberlain is the Agent for this vicinity. See advertisement in another column.

☞ The Rev. EDWIN M. STONE of Beverly is to deliver the Annual Address before the Essex Agricultural Society, on the occasion of their Annual Exhibition, which takes place in September, at Ipswich.

THE NEW POSTAGE BILL.

By this new law which went into operation last Tuesday, the postage is to be as follows:

ON LETTERS.

Single letters or any number of pieces not exceeding half an ounce in weight, 300 miles or less, 5 cts.
If over 300 miles, 10 "
Drop letters (not mailed) 2 "
For each additional half ounce or part thereof, add single postage thereto.

ON NEWSPAPERS.

Newspapers sent by Editors or Publishers, from their offices of publication, any distance not exceeding 30 miles, Free.
Over 30 miles and not exceeding 100, 1 ct.
Over 100 miles and out of the State, 1 1-2 "

ON PAMPHLETS, &c.

Pamphlets, magazines and periodicals, any distance for one ounce or less, each copy, 2 cts.
Each additional ounce or fractional part thereof, 1 1-2 cts.

ON CIRCULARS.

Quarto post, single cap, or paper not larger than single cap, folded, directed, and unsealed, for every sheet, 2 cts.

The advertisement of letters is to be given to the paper having the largest circulation in the town where the Post Office is situated.

By this law, single letters may be sent from Danvers to any place in the New England States, and a greater part of the States of New York and New Jersey, at 5 cents postage.

Our thanks are due to Hon. Daniel P. King for a copy of the Report of the Register of the Treasury, relative to the Commerce and Navigation between the United States and Foreign countries which contains, much valuable and interesting information.

☞ THOMAS W. DORR, of Rhode Island, has been unconditionally liberated and will be restored to the priviledges of citizenship on taking an oath of allegiance to the state.

Conundrum.—Why are teeth like verbs? Because they are regular, irregular and defective—sometimes active and sometimes passive.

FOR THE COURIER.

SINGULAR THEFT.

Last week the lady of a family in the north part of the town, spread a few light articles of dress on the grass to dry and left them until the next day, when on looking for them they were gone. Upon farther search she found a shirt bosom on a bush not far from where they had been laid, but the other articles were nowhere to be found. While she was lamenting her loss a message came from a neighboring house to inform her that a dickey had been discovered hanging on a pear tree. This led to further pursuit and a robin's nest was found in the tree in process of construction, in which Red Breast had nicely incorporated a lady's wrought collar and a gentleman's dickey! These had been partially plastered with a kind of cement and the loving pair had begun to line their new habitation with some of their own plumage. The shirt bosom was probably found too heavy to convey to the nest, and they were obliged to commence housekeeping without it. The remaining dickey, no doubt, was to constitute a part of the wardrobe of the gentleman bird and we most respectfully commend his example to the attention of His Excellency, Gov. Briggs.

FOR THE COURIER.

called Blind Hole has had its name changed to PUTNAMVILLE. There are many places in this town which bear vulgar names, and we hope better names will be substituted. Will somebody find suitable names for Hog Hill, the Devil's Dishful, and the Arab Country? Quod.

FOR THE COURIER

TOWN HISTORIES.

It was remarked by Mr. Stone in the preface to his history of Beverly, that "until each town in the Commonwealth shall have had its historian, the most accurate history of Massachusetts will remain to be written." Most of the towns in the vicinity of Boston have their histories, and our own Essex County has perhaps contributed in as large proportion as any other, to make up such a history of the State as we ought to have. But still a good deal remains to be done.

The following list comprises, we believe all the town histories of this county, that have yet been published. We give also their authors, and dates of publication.

Newburyport,	Caleb Cushing.	1826.
Salem,	Joseph B. Felt.	1827.
Lynn,	Alonzo Lewis.	1829.
Andover,	Abiel Abbott.	1829.
Haverhill,	B. L. Mirick.	1832.
Ipswich, Hamilton, Essex,	Joseph B. Felt.	1834.
Rowley,	Thomas Gage.	1840.
Beverly,	Edwin M. Stone.	1843.
Newbury,	Joshua Coffin.	1845.

We are very sorry that we cannot place Danvers in the above list with her neighbors and sister towns, Salem, Beverly and Lynn. But, for the present at least, she must remain among the fifteen others, whose histories are yet to be written. Certainly our good town is not lacking in materials for a most interesting history, nor can we believe that there is any want of able hands to compile such a work. The place that was the scene of the first acts in the tragedy of 1692, and that boasts such heroes among her sons as Gen. Israel Putnam, Col. Hutchinson, Gen. Foster, &c., should not be without her history.

☞ Mr Charles Lamson, of this town, left here about two months since, and a few days after, wrote to his friends from Dedham, stating that he should return home the next week.—Since that time his family and friends have heard nothing from him, and have become much alarmed for his safety. Distant papers are requested to copy this paragraph to aid his friends and family in obtaining information as to his fate.—Newburyport Herald.

HON. MR. SALTONSTALL

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Essex Agricultural Society, held at Ipswich, last week, the HON. DANIEL P. KING introduced the subject with the following just, appropriate and eloquent remarks:

Mr. President,—Since the last meeting of the Trustees of the Essex Agricultural Society, we have sustained a great and irreparable loss in the lamented decease of our worthy President, the Hon. Leverett Saltonstall. Other gentlemen connected with him in the various associations for the advancement of good learning, and religion, have rendered appropriate tributes to his memory. It is proper that we too should notice this melancholy event by the adoption of resolutions expressive of our deep sorrow for his death, of our gratitude for his services, and of our heartfelt sympathy with his bereaved family.

Mr. Saltonstall was not a practical farmer, but he was active in the formation of our society, was one of its earliest members, and was always warmly engaged in its success. He felt, in his own words, "a deep sense of the importance of the agricultural interest above all others as a source of individual happiness and of national prosperity," It is not strange that with his high character and endowments the members of our Society should have unanimously elected him their President, and that in their undiminished confidence, he should have been three times re-elected. The prompt and able discharge of the duties of the office and his devotion to our interests, have shown the wisdom of their choice. The ease and dignity of his conduct in the chair, the uniform cheerfulness and courtesy of his deportment and his well timed and excellent addresses will be long remembered. As farmers, we sincerely lament the death of one so able and well disposed to advance the honor and usefulness of our association. Timothy Pickering was our first President, Leverett Saltonstall the last; Pickering and Saltonstall, worthy names, worthily associated; no encomium of ours can add one green leaf to their ever fresh chaplet; their deeds, their talents, and their virtues have secured for them an enduring fame.

Mr. Saltonstall's life was full of active benevolence and usefulness. At the bar, he was an ornament to his profession and an illustrious example of what a lawyer should be, the defender of the oppressed, the guide of the ignorant, and the advocate of justice and good order. In the halls of our state legislature and in the councils of the nation he was distinguished for his honesty, and his independence. With no desire to mislead or corrupt others, he was too intelligent and too virtuous to be himself misled or corrupted. With a prudent cautiousness and wise forecast he looked to the end and judged of measures; he might sometimes ask, is it expedient? he always diligently inquired, is it right? He loved the approbation of others, but he loved more the approbation of his own judgment and conscience; he did not eagerly covet the flitting breath of popular applause, for he knew how often the full bloom of its promise withers and cheats; he chose rather to wait for the ripe fruit, and he gathered a rich and abundant harvest in the esteem and love of the wise and good. Many have admired the fluent and silver-toned eloquence of his tongue, more have admired the noble generosity and warmth of his heart. Intercourse with a sordid world did not make him selfish; in the hustle of political strife and in the noisy turmoil of party conflict he never lost his equanimity, or his self respect.—Envy and jealousy found no resting place in his pure bosom. His opponents were never his enemies; if they would not adopt his opinions, they could not withhold their respect and esteem for the man. The broad mantle of his charity, so seldom needed by himself, he was ever ready to throw over the errors and faults of others. He loved good men of every party and sect, and did homage to virtue and sincerity, wherever he found their shrine. In his own loved Commonwealth and in distant States, he had many warmly attached friends, many lovers of liberty and their country, who esteemed him worthy of higher honors, and who will lament his death as a public loss.

ability to do full justice to his memory. Descended from a puritan family, Mr. Saltonstall made an honored name more honorable; of New England stock, he was worthy to represent the stern virtues of New England; they were his pride, and his only boast. Truth, honor and virtue he worshipped always, not because of the sure and adequate reward which they pay, nor because it is fashionable occasionally to make a pilgrimage to their altars, but because for their own sakes, he loved truth and honor and virtue. The beautiful language applied by President Kirkland to Fisher Ames is no less true and beautiful when applied to Mr. Saltonstall; "happily he did not need the smart of guilt to make him virtuous, nor the regret of folly to make him wise." Liberty, religion and holiness he loved, and his reverence for God was habitual and controlling.

The end of the good man is peace. His amiable and excellent qualities could not avert the shaft of the destroyer; he is removed from this stage of his usefulness and enjoyments. We shall no more here be cheered by his presence, animated by his eloquence or counselled by his wisdom; we shall no more meet him in this world, but if faithful to our trusts and duties we shall meet him in happier regions, where are no agonies of severed friendship, and where all sorrow will forever cease.

Mr. King then proposed the following resolutions.

Resolved, That we are deeply sensible of the loss which our Society has sustained in the lamented death of our late worthy President, the Hon. Leverett Saltonstall.

Resolved, That we entertain a high sense of respect for his character and talents, and of gratitude for his services.

Resolved, That we tender to his bereaved family the expression of our sincere condolence

A Melancholy Accident occured in this city on Monday forenoon, the particulars of which are as follows. Soon after ten o'clock in the morning, as a son of Mr. Richard Goss, aged 15, was driving a wagon, belonging to the establishment of Messrs. Goss & Stow, down Derby street, his dog attempted to jump from the cart to attack another dog. The boy attempted to hold him back, and in the struggle fell to the ground and fractured his skull. He was carried into the store of Mr. I. P. Foster, at the head of Derby wharf, and medical assistance was immediately procured; but the unfortunate lad breathed his last in the course of the forenoon.—Salem Gazette.

☞ The ratio of taxation, in Marblehead, for the year 1845, is 82 cents and 8 mills on the hundred dollars.

AN INCIDENT—Presidential. There were yesterday in the drawing room of the City Hotel, Mr. Van Buren, Ex-President; Mrs. John Quincy Adams and family of Ex-President Adams, Miss Cutts, the neice of Ex-President Madison; and Mrs. Mickleham, the neice of Ex-President Jefferson. A meeting of such distinguished persons rarely occurs

The association of names here is of the most marked character that could be brought together. John Adams and Thomas Jefferson were among the fathers of the country. They were long friends, and always united, when the country was assailed by a foreign foe. They were, however, longer alienated, but 'in death they were united,' and expired upon the anniversary of that independence, which they had done so much to achieve. John Quincy Adam's name is associated with all the administrations. He had the confidence of all, from Washington to the time when he was placed at the head of the government. Washington, Jefferson, Madison, and Monroe, all were his friends. It is pleasant to see the families and descendants of our Chief Magistrates, though of opposing political creeds, thus meeting together upon terms of social respect and kindness.—Express.

The Bible in Rhode Island. The Rev. Mr. Waterman of Providence, stated at the Connecticut Association, that the State has recently been explored in reference to its supply with the Bible. The following was the result:

Families visited,	19,893
Found destitute,	1,358
Bibles given,	1,099
Bibles sold,	3,350
Testaments given,	3,359
Testaments sold,	5,007

From this statement it appears that the good people are determined to make thorough work in that little State.—N. Y. Observer.

Perry, Wyoming Co., N. Y. june 5.—Not to be Outdone.—Last Saturday was a proud day for Perry, and presented a scene which was a caution to famine, and such as would have given life and joy to Bonaparte's starving army, retreating from the city of Moscow, when burned down by its commander. During last week, from Monday morning to Friday night, our enterpriseing townsman, G. L. Davis, bought the wheat, ground it up and, packed at his mill, five hundred barrels of first best flour; and on Saturday, fifty farmers and others, many of whom helped to raise the wheat, came together loaded the flour into their wagons, and by one o'clock reached the canal at Cuylerville, where it was shipped in boats, and before night it was some distance on its way to New York.—We would like so see the country village that can beat this one mill; and we have several other good mills besides this.—Countryman.

SHAVINGS.

☞ We are informed, says the Traveller, that Samuel Appleton, Esq. of this city, has recently shown his attachment to the interests of learning in his native State, by giving ten thousand dollars to Dartmouth College.

☞ The case of Wyman, late President of the Phenix Bank, came before the grand jury at Concord last week, with a view to the framing of a new indictment.

☞ Rev. H. H. Baker has engaged to take the pastoral charge of the Universalist Society in Essex.

Fire at Providence. On the 27th, the Providence Dying Bleaching and Calendering Company building in Sabin streete was damaged to the extent of $10,000 in stock and building.

☞ The editor of the Charleston (S. C.) Mercury lately received a green rose, plucked from a plant belonging to a lady of Columbia. The plant has borne flowers several times this season, and it invariably produced double roses of leaf.

Phœnix Bank. We understand that the case of Wm. Wyman, ate President of the Phœnix Bank, came before the Grand Jury at Concord, on Wednesday last, with a view to the framing of a new indictment. A large number of witnesses, who have attended the former trials, were present, and there is no doubt that a new bill of indictment was found against him.—[Charleston Aurora.

Cattle Sale at Albany.—At the late sale of improved short-horned cattle, belonging to E. E. Prentice of that city, on the 25th inst., there was a very large company, and about forty animals were sold, at prices varying from $25 to $250. The lowest priced ones were calves. The aggregate amount of sales was $4.400, being an average of about $110 per head.

Munificent Donation. Samuel Appleton, Esq. of Boston, has given ten thousand dollars to Dartmouth College, to establish a professorship of Natural Philosophy.

New York, June 27.—Yesterday, a large white eagle—a noble bird he certainly was—alighted upon the upper part of the scaffolding around the steeple of Trinity church. He attracted much attention and awakened sundry long slumbering superstitions in the minds of some of the spectators. Time was when such an omen would have been acknowleded with much ceremony.—Com. Adv.

Canada Potatoes.—We notice by the last Cleveland (Ohio) papers, that several cargoes of potatoes have been discharged at that port from Canada. The cost in Canada is 10 cents per bushel, duty 20 per cent ad valorem, and sell at Cleveland for 37 1-2 cents per bushel.—The papers say the trade will be a short lived one, as the Ohio crops will soon be in, and it is very abundant.

Pickpocket Again. A gentleman informs us that he had his pocket picked last Saturday afternoon while going to Danvers by the Eastern Railroad.—Boston Transcript.

The Friends. The unfriendly feelings among the Friends have resulted in an open rupture at the yearly meeting now in session at Newport, R. I.—About one hundred and twenty members designated as the Wilbeout party, retired from the meeting and organized anew.

The Petersburgh Gazette says that their has been a large increase of buckwheat sown in Western Pennsylvania, and in the Western Reserve of Ohio; and that the probability is, that the crop will much exceed that of any previous year.

BRIGHTON MARKET—Monday, June 30 1852.
[From the Boston Daily Advertiser.]

At market 570 Beef Cattle, 30 Cows and Calves, 1400 Sheep, and 620 Swine. 100 Beef Cattle unsold.

Prices—Beef Cattle—We quote to correspond with last week.—a few Extra $6; first quality 5 50 a 5 75; second quality $5, third quality 4 50 a $5.

Cows and Calves—Sales at $18, 22 1-2, 28 and 30

Sheep—Lambs from 1 50 to $2; old Sheep from $2 to 2 50.

Swine—Small pigs from 5 to 6c; old hogs 4 a 4 1 4c. At retail, from 4 to 6 1-2c,

MARRIAGES.

In this town, on Sunday evening, by Rev. J. Prince, Mr. Daniel Gilman, of Danvers, to Miss Eliza Thayer, of Charlestown. [A bountiful slice of cake accompanied this notice.

By Rev. Mr. Braman, Mr. Edward Buxton to Miss Mary A. Stone.

In. Salem Mr James H. Andrews to Miss Ruth S. Bott. Mr. Thomas Williams to Miss Clara Aaron. Mr. Lewis Lawrence to Miss Hannah Felt. Mr Hennry A. Prescott to Miss Delia A. Graves.

In Lynn, at the "Friend's" Meeting House, Charles Folsom Coffin, to Ann Maria, daughter of Micajah C. Pratt.

In Pontotoc, Mississippi, 3d ult., Henry A. Orne, Esq., to Miss Elizabeth Putnan, daughter of Capt. Richard E. Orne, formerly of Salem, Mass.

DEATHS.

In Salem, on Sunday last, Mrs Hannah Harraden, widow of the late Capt John Ropes, aged 76. Lydia Ann, wife of Capt John B. Goodhue, aged 26. Mrs Mehitable Nicholas, wife of Mr John Peterson, aged 40 years.

In Lynn, Mr. Lear Harris, aged 34.

In Malden, Mrs Maria, wife of Mr. David W. Wyman, and daughter of Mr. David Taggard, of Saugus, aged 26.

In Chelmsford, 18th ult., Mr. William Fletcher, aged 90 years and 6 months He was one of the minute men that went to Concord, and followed the enemy to Cambridge, on their retreat.

In Killingsworth, Ct., Mrs Lucy E. Swift, relict of the late Rev. Seth Swift, of Williamstown, Ms., aged 91.

In Boone county, Moble, Capt. Wm. Ramsay, aged 104 years, a revolutionary patriot.

HOWARD TENT—No. 87—I. O. OF R.

Meet every Monday evening, at 8 o'clock, in the new Hall, near the South Church, Danvers. Members of the Order generally are respectfully invited to attend. A uniformly punctual attendance of the members is requested.

C. E. BROWN, C. R.
WM. H. HOWLAND, Sec.

TO LET.

ROOMS in Lunt's Buildings, including two very pleasant Chambers, on the second story, under ASHLAND HALL. Also, a Basement Room, in the building occupied by Mr. Francis Dane well located for a provision dealer. Also, a large finished Chamber, in the third story of said building. For terms enquire at this Office.
june 28

THE
Massachusetts Mechanic Association
HAVING AWARDED TO

GOVE, LOCKE & CO.,

and no one else, a DIPLOMA for specimens of

The Best Ready Made Clothing

Exhibited by them at the Mechanics' Fair in September last, must satisfy the community that the location of an establishment is of but little importance, and that the idea of being confined to a particular section of the city, in order to obtain a

GENTEEL GARMENT,

has been rendered obsolete, by the above named was made to those who deserved it. Being convinced themselves, that their CUSTOM WORK has not been surpassed in any point of view, still they have been obliged to stem the current against the strongest prejudices, and have, by unremitted attention to the tastes and desires of their patrons, to a very considerable extent, overcome them, resulting in a successful trade, and encouraging them to prosecute the NEW ENGLAND BRANCH OF THEIR BUSINESS, with renewed vigor, and to devote a large share of their attention the present season, to the Highest Grade of Custom Work!

Being now prepared with every facility adapted to the various classes in the community, they can furnish any style of Garment which their notion or fancy may dictate—aiming

In point of Style and Fashion,
to be in advance of any other

CLOTHING ESTABLISHMENT!

and being at all times supplied with materials of every description, they are prepared to turn out at the shortest notice

AS GOOD AND AS GENTEEL A GARMENT,

as can be obtained in the United States, and have entire confidence in making the assertion, having Cutters constantly

ENGAGED ON CUSTOM WORK:

who are inferior to none in this region, enabling them to assure those who have favored them with their patronage, that no pains will be spared to deserve a continuance of their support—and to those who lack confidence in a Clothing Establishment, because it is situated on

COMMERCIAL STREET,

they would say that a specimen of their work can be seen in nearly everysection of the city, particularly on the backs of

THE MOST GENTEEL PEOPLE!

and to them they refer, in relation not only to the treatment which is universally tendered to them by all concerned in the

COMMERCIAL ARCADE!

but more especially in regard to the price as the Proprietors have by experience ascertained that they can furnish a

FIRST RATE GARMENT!

at a medium price, equal in every respect to those furnished up in town, at an exhorbitant one. Their Stock of Clothing, adapted to the

SPRING SALES!

is far superior to any previous year, and the patronage of the public is respectfully invited, whether in pursuit of a single garment or otherwise, as their stock embraces every article essential or requisite to the wardrobe of a gentleman, while its magnitude enables them to supply COUNTRY DEALERS in any quantity at the shortest notice, and on the best terms.

WHOLESALE DEALERS!

located any where from Maine to Georgia, or even in Texas, can find at this concern an assortment of Wearing Apparel adapted to their sales, and are invited before concluding their

SPRING PURCHASES!

—TO CALL—

At No. 60 Commercial street,
BOSTON,

Sign of the Monument,—and visit the proprietors of

COMMERCIAL ARCADE,
GOVE, LOCKE & COMPANY.
Boston, March 29, 1845 3m

LIST OF LETTERS remaining in the Danvers Post Office, July 1st 1845.

Abbot Albert K,	Hatch Eliab
Adams Samuel	Labadory Mary A.
Bullock Isaac	Lyon Eunice
Barc Mary,	Lord Nathaniel
Burleigh Wm.	Merrill Hannah
Buzzel Oliver A.	McIntire Samuel L,
Barr Mary G.	Marshall Robert
Burk Mr. T.	Marden Emily J.
Brown George	McKenny Charles
Boynton Edmund	McKenna B,
Brown Samuel A.	Martin Eliza A.
Burding Wm.	Schygatt Comfort
Bullock Martha	Newhall H. F.
Clark Samuel	Otis John
Carter R. R.	Porter Ezra
Carlow & Flint	Putnam Harvey
Chase Nathaniel	Pool Eben
Dodge Luke	Porter Joseph
Damon F. H.	Proctor Sally W.
Duyer Ellen	Potter Charles
Danlin J.	Poor Eben'r
Donovan Daniel	Paul James S.
Dyer Benjamin	Roberts Caroline
Emerson Perley	Richardson Abijah
Ellis W. R.	Richardson Wm. B.
Farnum Mr.	Ripley Lewis
Farbrother Marsena S.	Ribbless Riley
Felton Wm. T	Robbins Alexander
Fuller Elbridge	Romen John P.
Furbush Moses	Sanborn Nathaniel
Flint Mary	Sargent Betsy
Granville Stephen	Savage George
Gould Francis	Smith James P.
Gardner Henry	Swinerton A. P.
Gordon H. E.	Sherrock Eccles
Goodwin Thos L.	Spaulding Levi
Gale Andrew J.	Symonds E. P.
Hall William	Southwick Maria
Ham Orpah	Tibbets Ichabod
Hill V. E.	Thatcher M. M.
Hyde Taylor	Varney Moses
Hanniford L. B.	Woodbury Addison
Hoyt Susan M.	Whittemore Charles
Hubbard George W.	Whitten Matilda
Haines Ruth A.	Welch Nancy
Hazelton T.	Wilson Malachi
Hutchinson Sarah	Winchester G. K,
Ham James

july 5

PALM LEAF FANS. Two cases just received at 24 Washington street.

Also—1 lot Canton Feather Fans—1 do painted Muslin Canton Fans—1 do. painted Paper Fans.

july 1 Selling cheap by KEITH & MASON.

NEW EMBROIDERIES. Inside Hdkfs. with and without Collars, embroidered in front—Also Collars of every price and pattern.

A lot of children's real Lisle Thread Gloves, just received from auction, at KEITH & MASON'S, selling very low. july 5

NEW BOOKS.

SCARCE AND VALUABLE WORKS. Memoir, Correspondence and Miscellanies from the papers of Thomas Jefferson, edited by Thomas Jefferson Randolph, in 4 octavo vols.

LAW REPORTS. Reports of cases argued and decided in the Circuit Court of the United States for the seventh Circuit, by John McLean, Circuit Judge.

POLITICAL TEXT BOOK—containing the Declaration of Independence, Articles of Confederation. the Constitution of the United States, and Washington's Farewell Address—for sale by the dozen or retail.

Just published and for sale by

J. P. JEWETT & CO.,
july 5 193 Essex street.

A. J. DOWNING'S BOOK OF FRUITS.—The Fruits and Fruit Trees of America; or the culture, propagation and management in the Garden and Orchard, of Fruit Trees generally; with descriptions of all the finest varieties of Fruit, native and foreign, cultivated in this country. By A. J. Downing—illustrated with many engravings. Just from the press, and for sale by W. & S. B. IVES.

july 1 opposite the Railroad station.

REMOVAL.

SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

HAVE removed to the New Store, No. 291 Essex street, (next above Mechanic Hall) where they will keep constantly for sale Gold Finger Rings, Breast Pins, Bracelets, Lockets, Keys, Gold and Silver Pencil Cases, Silver Thimbles, Silver and Plated Table and Tea Spoons, Butter Knives, Silver Plated and Brittania Ware, Shell, Horn, and Ivory Combs, Pocket Books, Purses, &c.,&c.

N. B. All kinds of Jewelry repaired in a superior manner and warranted. Old Gold or Jewelry, made over or exchanged for new.

S. & C. having acquired a thorough knowledge of the business in New York, as well as our success for the past five years in this city, will, we feel assured, enable us to execute wtth approbation any orders entrusted to our care.

☞Thankful for past patronage, we solicit a continuance of the same. tf March 15.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law

OFFICE IN FELTON'S (late Osborne's) Building,
Danvers, March 29th. tf

☞RICHARD H. CHAMBERLAIN'S☜
Hosiery, Glove, Thread and Yarn Store,
No. 236 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.

R. H. C. respectfully gives notice to the citizens of Danvers, that he has now on hand, and is weekly receiving, a full and complete assortment of Spring and Summer Hosiery, the principal part of which are of DOMESTIC MANUFACTURE, and much superior in durability, to those imported. The following are some of the kinds, viz :—

LADIES'

Bleached, Unbleached, Mode, Slate, Black and Mixed Cotton HOSE.
Ribbed—black, mode, slate and white do do.
Oipen-worked—white, unbleached, and mode do do;
Raw Silk—black, white and mode do;
Woolen—Alpacca, Angola, Merino, Cashmere and Worsted do.

CHILDREN AND MISSES'

Hose, of every description, open-worked, silk-clocked, open and embroidered, plain and ribbed, of all colors and sizes;

MEN AND BOY'S SOCKS.

Merino, Angola, Worsted, Yarn, Cotton and Linen.

Ladies' Gent's Children's and Misses'

GLOVES, in great variety, comprising nearly 100 dozen of all kinds and sizes;

ALSO, AT COST.

The large STOCK of PIECE GOODS, in the above Store, will be offered at COST for THIRTY DAYS, among which are the following Goods, viz:—Mousseline de Laines; Balzorines; Lawns; Ginghams; Prints; Patches; Tickings; Flannels; Diapers; Crash; bleached, unbleached and col'd Table Covers; Linens; Linen Damasks; white and colored Cambrics; Lace Muslins; fig'd, striped and checked Cambrics; Alepines; Alpaccas; bleached and unbleached Sheetings and Shirtings; Shirts; Bosoms, Collars, Suspenders, Cravats, etc. tf june 28

French Goods from New York.

THE subscribers have opened this day, an assortment of French Goods to which they iuvite the attention of the ladies.

3 boxes Real French Embroidery Inside Hdkfs;
3 " " " Collars, various styles.
3 " French Dentilla Laces, for Trimmings,
A variety of Thread Lace Insertions;
Real French Linen Cambric Hdkfs, hemmed stitch;
Embroidered Linen Cambric Hdkfs;
" Muslin for Dresses;
Boxes French Kid Gloves;
New styles Laces for Capes, some very rich.
The above Goods were selected on Wednesday in New York, and are of the very latest styles.

KEITH & MASON,
june 7 24 Washington street.

STRIPED AND CHECK'D SHIRTS—A prime and good assortment, well made, at june 14 EDWARDS, 14 Front St.

M. TELYEA

HAS a splendid assortment of BROADCLOTHS, DOESKINS, and VESTINGS, of the latest patterns, which are worthy the attention of purchasers.

GARMENTS CUT AND MADE, in the most fashionable style, or according to the fancy of the customer, and warranted to fit.

A lot of very nice SCARFS, and Gentlemen's LINEN GLOVES.

South Danvers, June 14. 1845.

ICED CREAMS.

Strawberries, Fruit, Confectionary,

Soda, Mead, &c. at

272 ESSEX STLEET, by

J. G. SHED.

 Parties supplied at short notice, and on reasonable erms. june 28

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

THE undersigned would inform their friends and the public, that they have formed a connection in business under the firm of

SHORT & LUMMUS,

and have taken the stand lately occupied by WILLIAM KIMBALL, No. 240 Essex street, Salem.
(Neurly opposite the Market.)
where they will open this morning an entire new

STOCK OF DRY GOODS.

among which may be found Barage and Mohair SHAWLS, Mantles, Balzorines, Barages, French and Scotch Ginghams, Lawns, Alpaccas, M. de Laines, Black and Blue Black Alepines, Linens, Linen Drilling, Plain and Ribbed Gambroons, HOSIERY, GLOVES, etc.,
Together with a large assortment of
House-keeping, Lace and Thread Goods.

JOSEPH SHORT,
Salem, June 21. F. H. LUMMTS. tf

BARGAINS.

A GOOD Stock of READY MADE CLOTHING is offered at Great Bargains, at No. 14 Front street, viz:

Dress and Frock Coats; Tweed do; Gingham do; Imitation Gingham do; Linen do; Thin Jackets; Satin, Marseilles and Valencia Vests; Cassimere, Doeskin and Sattinet Pants; Overhauls; Green Jackets; Fine white Shirts, red flannel, check and stripe do; Under Shirts and Drawers together with a good assortment of Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Doeskins and Vesting, which is sold by the yard, or made into garments at the very lowest cash prices.

Also, an assortment of Stocks, Neck-ties, Cravats, Scarfs, Bosoms, Dickeys, Hdkfs, Suspenders, Socks, Wallets, Canes, Caps, Travelling Bags, &c., all of which will be sold at a small advance of the cost, at

EDWARDS'S,
june 23 14 Front street, Salem.

NEW LUMBER WHARF.

THE subscriber having taken the wharf, called the WEST wharf, near the Bridge, in South Salem, would take this opportunity to inform his friends and the public generally, that he intends to keep for sale an assortment of BOARDS, JOIST, CLAPBOARDS, SHINGLES, PICKETS, LATHS, etc. etc., of as good quality as can be found in the city.

He has now on hand 300,000 dry Boards and Plank for sale, and all wishing to purchase, are respectfully invited to call and examine for themselves.

He has also made arrangements at the Eastward for furnishing Dimension Frames, and filling orders of every description, at short notice.

Having been a practical builder for the last fifteen years, the subscriber flatters himself that his knowledge of the business, and the Lumber trade generally, will enable him to give satisfaction to those who may favor him with their patronage.

As he will be at the Eastward part of the time, he will be able to give his personal attention to the purchasing of Lumber, etc. He has made arrangements with Mr. A. F. CLARK to be on the wharf during business hours, who will wait upon those who may favor him with a call.

Salem, May 10, 1845. tf H. B. WARD.

Periodical Depot!!

REMOVAL.

PERIODICALS AND CHEAP PUBLICATIONS, formerly kept at No.3, (on the East side of Washington street, has removed to the store,

Corner of Washington and Norman Streets,
(Directly opposite the Old Stand,)

where he intends to keep a full supply of all the Periodicals and New Works, as well as the Daily and Weekly Newspapers, as soon as they appear from the press.

In removing from the old stand he confidently hopes to receive the continued patronage of those who have formerly received his publications and he pledges himself that he will use his best exertions to procure all New Works promptly and sell them at the lowest prices.

His long experience and extensive acquaintance with those publishers and others engaged largely in the Book Trade will enable him to answer orders for particular Works, with great promptness, and at the most favorable prices.

REFRESHMENTS,

such as are usually kept at Restaurateurs, and SODA AND MEAD, will be furnished at the new stand, by S. SAUNDERS.

REMEMBER—Corner of Washington and Norman Sts., near the Railroad Station, Salem.
may 24 3m

Flour, Corn, Oats, Shorts, &c.

Landing from schr Pioneer,

200 BARRELS Genesee Flour;
20 1-2 do do do
500 bushels Mealing Corn;
500 do Yellow do
500 do Shorts;
20 bbls Pea Beans;
4 bbls Marrowfat Peas;
100 bags Fine Salt;
—Also, in store—
100 bushels Killam Oats, for seed;
100 do Herds Grass Seed;
100 do Red Top do do;
500 do Clover do; (Northern;
For sale by DANIEL RICHARDS,
At the old and well known stand on the Plains.
North Danvers, April 19, 1845.

REMOVAL.

DR. J. A. ROBINSON,

SURGEON DENTIST,

SALEM,

WOULD respectfully give notice that he has removed from his old stand, opposite the City Hall, to No. 20 Washington street, recently occupied by A. E. Phillips, where he is ready to perform all operation, in Dentistry, in a most thorough and workmanlike manner.

His experience and success in inserting whole sets either by atmospheric pressure or springs, enables him to furnish them at rates which cannot fail to suit those in want of an article of superior quality.

His method of inserting Teeth, both singly and on plate, with or without Gums, has been found to be satisfactory and successful as combining beauty of finish and adaptation, with all the requisites of mastication and articulation.

Particular attention paid to filling Teeth so as to render them serviceable for many years, and also to the regulation of Children's Teeth.

N. B.* For sale as above, a first rate article of TOOTH POWDER. 6m mch 15

FOR SALE.

A two story house and lot of land on Holten street. The House is convenient for two families and will be sold at a great bargain. Inquire of

HIRAM GRANT.
Danvers, April 19, 1845,

GOLD PENS. A superior article just received and for sale cheap by G. W. & E. CRAFTS.
174 Essex St. Salem.

Opening of Spring!

Magnificent, Chaste and Original Designs for Remodeling

"OAK HALL!"

FOR SPRING TRADE!

OPENING OF "OAK HALL" FOR THREE MONTHS!

Advice to Professional Men, Merchants Clerks with moderate Salaries, Farmers, Mechanics, Seamen, Firemen and others, VISIT OAK HALL!

ARRIVAL OF SPRING GOODS!
To Wholesale Dealers.

THE OPENING
This Morning, for Three Months!

I would again most respectfully inform the citizens of Boston, and strangers visiting the city, (after a delay of six weeks, during which time I have not been idle,) I have completed my arrangements on the most

MAGNIFICENT SCALE,

greatly surpassing my former arrangements. The Hall is splendidly decorated with almost

MAGIC ELEGANCE!

The architecture being Gothic, has given the artist an opportunity to display his taste to advantage. The paintings which adorn the walls are so perfectly chaste and appropriate, that every one will be fully compensated the trouble of visiting it. The design and effect of the interior, especially when

ILLUMINATED IN THE EVENING,

Is unequalled in any store this side of the Atlantic. Much praise is due to the artist, for his share in beautifying this Establishment. I flatter myself that the good taste of my fellow citizens and townsmen will fully appreciate all I have done, as my Establishment was the FIRST and ONLY ONE that adopted the

"EXTREME LOW PRICE SYSTEM,"

Before "OAK HALL" was in existence. it was not a very uncommon thing for a gentleman to pay from $45 to $50 for a suit of clothes. For one half of this sum or less. a perfect and entire suit can be obtained at this Establishment, cut and made with that ease and grace, that distinguish my garments from others. From this

EMPORIUM OF FASHION

first originated the Gothic style of architecture in Boston, and Oak Painting, &c. now so much in fashion. To those who have not visited this great

PLACE OF RESORT,

on account of the name of the street, I would most respectfully say, that where my establishment is located was once the Court end of Boston, and at this time is visited and patronized by the most influential and respectable individuals. Man, not unlike the fields, and Trees, once covered with a beautiful suit of Green is now breaking from its Coat of Ice and Snow and, having its dusty suit of nature soon to be warmed into animation, and renew its beautiful suit of Green, So with Man—wrapped up in his Overcoat, he now on the opening of Spring, finds his under suit rusty and shabby, and is not suitable to wear. The next thing is to find a good place to fit out at a

REASONABLE PRICE,

and to be sure and have a GOOD FITTING SUIT, that will set upon the form with ease, grace and gentility.

FIVE GOOD REASONS

Why you can purchase at OAK HALL less than at any other Establishment in the United States:

FIRST—You do not pay me for YOUR suit, and business is Cash on delivery.

SECOND—If any Garment made to order is not pleasing in every particular, it is no inconvenience to take it back and make another, as Ready Made Garments are directly in my line.

THIRD—I purchase my Goods in large lots, extremely cheap, and give my customers the benefit, by selling them at the smallest advances,

Fourth—I go by the motto.

LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS
OR AS SOME SAY,
"NO PROFITS AT ALL."

That I'll leave with my customer to decide.

FIFTH—My facilities are such at this time doing a

LARGE BUSINESS,

that I can afford to sell at

VERY LOW PRICES!

BOYS' CLOTHING.

I have lately added to my already extensive manufactory of Boys' Clothing, rooms for the manufacture of Boys' Clothing, and shall keep a large supply of every variety and kind, always on hand.

TO WHOLESALE DEALERS.

You will find the greatest variety of every style of Fresh Manufactured Clothing, adapted for Spring, to your different Trades, and will be sold extremely low in large lots!

AT RETAIL.

One of the largest and, best selected Stock of Fresh Spring Goods ever in "OAK HALL," and will be sold at the following low prices.—

PANTALOONS.

2500 pair of Fancy Spring patterns of Satinet Pants, at	1 75 to 2 50
3000 pair Steel Mixt Pants,	1 62 to 3 00
2200 do Sheeps Grey Pants	1 75 to 3 00
2500 do Canada Grey do,	1 75 to 3 00
3000 do Black Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 50
5000 do Lavender Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 00
2200 do Super black do Pants, with fancy stripe,	4 00 to 5 00
1500 Super blue Broadcloth and Cassimere Pants	3 50 to 4 50

THIN COATS.

3500 Coats and Sacks, American Gingham,	75 to 1 00
5000 Coats and Sacks, Scotch Gingham,	1 25 to 1 75
4800 Coats and Sacks Scotch Gingham, satin figure,	1 50 to 1 75
2700 Coats and Sacks, Webster Check	75 to 1 25
3750 Coats and Sacks, London Plaids,	1 25 to 175
4000 Coats and Sacks, of Linen and othergoods,	1 00 to 1 75

THIN PANTS.

8000 pair thin Pants of every quality of Goods at low prices, say from 50 cents to $2 50 per pair.

VESTS.

300 light Vests, a very pretty affair for Spring,	50c to 1 00
4500 Dark Valencia,	75 to 1 50
5500 Fine Valencia, dark and light	1 50 to 2 50
2700 Satin Vests, figured and plain,	2 00 to 3 00

DRESS AND FROCK COATS.

5000 super Dress Coats, all colors, green, blue, black olive, &c. from $4 to $15.

1750 super Frock Coats, all colors, Mulberry, browns etc. from $6 to $16.

All the above cut in the latest style, and made up expressly for Spring Trade.

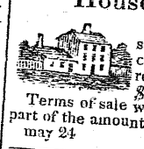
500 Business Coats, at low prices, say from $2 to $5

2200 Tweed Coats, water proof, from $3,75 to $5.

FURNISHING DEPARTMENT.

Great Display of Furnishing Goods at the following low prices, viz:

150 dozen White Shirts—Linen Bosoms, Collars and Ribbands.	75c to 1 25 each
100 do White Shirts, plain.	50c to 75c do
150 do Fancy Shirts,	62 1-2 to
200 do Twilled Shirts,	50 to 62
25 do Rich Figured Satin Scarfs,	Low
20 do do do do do
50 do do do do do
50 do Spring Pattern Cravats,	12 1-2 to
25 do Rich Fig'd Satin do.	75c to 1
50 do Stocks, of every description, such as Bombazine, &c. and made in the latest Spring
1845	37 1-2 to
10 do Brussells Carpet Bags, and others,	1 00
75 do Smoking Caps,	12 1-2
200 do Braces of every description,	12 1-2
20 do best Kid Gloves,	12 1-2
25 do Thread do	50c to 1
20 do Silk do	25 to 50c
100 do Linen Bosoms—all kinds,	50 to 75c
300 do do Collars, latest pattern,	25 to 75c
250 do Canes,	10 to 25c
325 do Umbrellas,	17c to 1 0
50 do Glazed Silk Caps,	50c to 1 5
100 do do do	1 00 to 1 5
505 do Silk Pocket Hdkfs	25 to 37c
	25 to 75c



An endless variety of Fancy Articles, such as and Fancy Studs—Hair Brushes—Clothes do—Combs—Dressing do—Tooth Brshes—Cologne—om Pins—Fancy Soaps—Silk Purses—Guard Ch—Pant Straps, &c. &c.

A LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO THE TRA

My furnishing Goods are purchased from first hands, at low prices, and will be sold at small adva to the trade at my

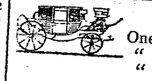
EXTENSIVE LONG ROOMS,
OAK HALL BUILDING
GEORGE W. SIMMONS,
General Tailor, Draper and Outfitter
32, 31, 36, and 38 Ann stree
Opposite Merchant's Row—BOSTON
apr 19 3m

House and Land for Sale.

The subscriber offers for sale a large t story Dwelling House, on Holton stre convenient for two families, and in go repair. The said house now rents $120 per annum, and will be sold low.

Terms of sale will be easy for the purchaser, as a lar part of the amount may remain on mortgage. Apply to

may 24 tf WM. SUTTON.



GRASS CLOTHS FOR SKIRTS.

JUST RECEIVED at 24 Washington stree a large lot Grass Cloths for Skirts, extra wide and clea Also, Real India Feather Fans.

KEITH & MASON.

Purchasers of Linen Goods, will do well to examine the assortment of KEITH & MASON, 24 Washington street consisting of Linen, Damasks, Table Covers, Napkins Dahlias, Pillow-cane Linens, Linen Sheetings, Crash, diapers, Huckaback, Shirtings, and every quality of plain lin ens from 2 cents per yard to $1. 25.

N. B Every article warranted pure Irish Linen.
june 21

FOR SALE CHEAP.

One good second hand CHAISE,
" " " BUGGY WAGON,
" " " LIGHT WAGON.
By THOMAS TRASK, Main street:
June 7 tf

Bargains in Gloves and Hosiery,

At 24 Washington street.

A LOT of unbleached embroidered Cotton Hose received this day and selling for 25 cents.

Fine Bleached Hose, 12 1-2c; do brown do 12 1-2.

Boys' Mixed Socks of every size.

Children's Cotton, Lisle Thread, Silk and Kid Gloves,
june 14

HARRISON'S REMEDY
FOR THE PILES,

THIS is an ointment prepared by the undersigned, and has been so thoroughly tested as to warrant relief to those who will give it a fair trial, observing the directions around each box which give a plain treatise on the disease and full instructions as to diet mode of eure, &c. One application at night never fails to relieve the greatest pain and anguish. I am ready to refer to numerous individuals who have proved this Remedy to be the safest, surest, speediest and cheapest

CURE FOR THE PILES.

My agent in Exeter writes thus: "the Pile Remedy which you left me is all sold, please send me soon a further supply, as a number of persons in this town think very highly of it. N. GILMAN"

MORE TESTIMONY.

Salem, Aug. 6. Mr. Harrison: The box of ointment which I had from you has worked like a charm—I have used it only one night, and I am cured. I had used Hays' Liniment as I stated to you, with no benefit but rather was worse, it causing more inflammation. Yrs, J. W.

BLEEDING PILES CURED.

Mr. Harrison—Having given your Peristaltic Lozenges and Pile Remedy a fair trial, I have the satisfaction to inform you that they have operated wonderfully in my case. I had not been able for months to do any work at my trade, owing to exhaustion from bleeding, but I now feel myself cured. The severe pain which I had in my stomach is gone, and my strength is fast returning. I had used various remedies to no purpose, until I tried your medicine. I can also state that Capt. Benj. Ireson of this town has also experienced great benefit from your Remedy. I cheerfully recommend the medicine to all suffering with that distressing complaint—the Piles.

EDWARD H. LEWIS.
Lynn, Sept. 27, 1844.

For sale at 256 Essex street, by the Proprietor,
J. S. HARRISON JR.,

Agents—in Danvers, S. PROCTOR, Jr.; Marblehead—E. Arnold; Lynn—Ladd, and Holder; Beverly—Clarke; Newburyport—C. Whipple; Andover—Amos Abbott; Topsfield—Bixby and Merriam, Haverhill—Nichol; Boston—Ransom & Stevens, Tompkins, Southers and Fowle.
mch 15 6m

JUST received a full assortment of the celebrated EAGLE PLOUGH, improved. Also, Garden Rakes & Partridge's celebrated Manure Forks, Rakes, Hoes, and Castings for repairing the various parts of almost all kinds of Ploughs now in use.

J. & H. HALE, 215 Essex st. Salem.
May 3

FOOLE & JACOBS,
MANUFACTURERS OF
Boot and Shoe Linings, Skivers,
AND BINDINGS,
AND DEALERS IN WOOD,
MAIN ST., DANVERS, MASS.

LINENS FOR SHIRTINGS. Just received a lot of heavy Linens, at 54 Washington street, and selling very low. One lot good Linens, at 25 cents.
june 14 KEITH & MASON.

WANTED.

10 GOOD COATMAKERS wanted immediately, to whom steady employment and good wages will be given.

S. R. BOTT,
mch 15 No. 148 Essex Street, Salem.

NEW ENGLAND

TRUSS MANUFACTORY.

THE subscriber continues to manufacture Trusses of every description, at his residence at the old stand, opposite 264, No. 305 Washington street, Boston entrance in Temple Avenue, up stairs. All individuals can see him alone, at any time, at the above place.

Having had twenty years' experience, he has afforded relief to three thousand persons, for the last five years. All may rest assured of relief who call and try a Truss of his manufacture. He is now confident he can give every individual relief who may call upon him.

The public are cautioned against the many quacks who promise what they cannot perform.

Having worn the different kinds of Trusses, more or less that have been offered to the public for the last twenty years, from different patent manufactories, and now continues to wear those of his own manufacture, he is now able to decide, after examining the rapture, what sort of Truss is best to adopt to all the cases that occur; and he has on hand as good Trusses, and will furnish any kind of a Truss that can be had elsewhere.

J. F. F. manufactures as many as twenty different kinds of Trusses, among which are all the different kinds similar to those that the late Mr. John Beath, of this city, formerly made, and all others advertised in Boston, together with the patent elastic spring Truss, with the spring pads.—Trusses without steel springs—these give relief in all cases of rupture, and a large proportion produce a perfect cure—they can be worn day and night; improved hinge and pivot Truss; umbellical spring Trusses, made in four different ways; Trusses with ball and socket joints, Trusses, for Prolapsus Ani, by wearing which persons troubled with a descent of the rectum can ride on horseback with perfect ease and safety.

Mr. Foster also makes Trusses for Prolapus Uteri, which have answered in cases where pessaries have failed. Suspensory Trusses, knee caps, and back board, are always kept on hand As a matter of convenience and not of speculation, the undesigned will keep on hand the following kinds from other manufactories, which they can have, if his does not suit them; after a fair trial they can exchange for any of them;—Dr, Hull,s Read's spiral Truss; Rundel's do; Salmon's ball and socket; Sherman's patent; French do; Marsh s Improved Truss; Bateman s do, double and single. Stone s Truss; also, Trusses for children of all sizes.

Any kind of Trusses repaired at short notice, and made as good as when new.

Ladies wishing for any of these instruments, will be waited upon by Mrs. Foster, at the above place. Mrs. F. has been engaged in the above business for ten years.

He likewise informs individuals he will not make their complaints known to any one, except when he is permitted to refer to them—it being a misfortune, and young persons do not want their cases known.

The readers of this paper, are respectfully invited to call and examine the variety of Trusses now on hand.

May 31 JAMES FREDERICK FOSTER.

Fales' Cathartic, or Vegetable PURGATIVE LOZENGES.

ARE the best and most popular medicines for people of all ages, country, and climates, and in every condition of life. They are compounded of the essences of vegetables from many nations. Their taste is inexpressibly delightful. They cause no pain in their operations, but the first change of feeling after taking them is, thatof pleasure, and they cleanse the stomach and bowels more perfectly than any other purgative medicines.

The most wonderful and surprising cures have been effected by them in different parts of the earth. How these purgative lozenges do speedily purify the blood, and substitute health for sickness, is a mystery to the most eminent members of the healing art. Such purgative medicines must become universal, and supersede the use of all other purgative compounds; and as long as disease continues to afflict people, so long will these Lozenges remain unrivalled in all coming time throughout the world. Every person who travels should carry them—every family should keep them—and every sick man, woman, or child should take them.

FALES' WORM LOZENGES,

Are a safe and sure remedy for Worms. Children love them. They act like a charm in removing the symptoms such as starting in sleep, grinding the teeth, paleness about the mouth and nose, occasional sickness at stomach, precarious appetite, disordered bowels, and general feverish habit, The child falls into a quiet sleep, and the worms are stupified and expelled, and the child, as far as heard from, in every instance has been cured. Price, 25 cents per box, with full directions; sold at Commercial street, Boston,

FALES' COUGH LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common Colds and Coughs, Lungs, in the Croup or Hives, and more certain to act satisfactory than the celebrated Hive Syrup. The most happy effect is obtained in a few moments; the symptoms disappear and the disease is broken up by the magical effect of these Lozenges. Full directions accompany each box, are found at the Depositopy 96 Commercial staeet, Boston.

FALES' DYSENTERY LOZENGES,

Are a safe and agreeble temedy for Dysentery, Diarrhœa and Bowel Complaints of children. Particular attention must be paid to the directions which are on each box.

FALES' CAMPHOR LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common and sick head ache, and where there is a sense of tightness or weight over the eyes, in erruptive diseases, such as Measles and Small Pox. Also in Mania, Epilepsy, Melancholy, Hysteria, in St. Vitus Dance, and in all eases of languor and oppession of the Vital powers, may be taken with safety by women and children in all conditions. Full directions accompany each box.

FALES' CYPRIAN HAIR TONIC,

Is now so extsnsively known and justly celebrated that further comment upon it will be useless, we can say, however, that among the many thousands who have purchassed the Tonic, in this and other countries, none have returned with complaints, while thousands have expressed not only their approbation, but their wonder and admiration on beholding its effects. A few bottles only can be had at 96 Commercial street, Boston.

CLEAR OUT YOUR RATS.

The gnawing and antics of these destructive creatures can be hushed forever in your house and store, if you will procure a box of the genuine.

MADAGASCAR RAT EXTERMINATOR,

and use it according to directionf. You cannot depend upon it unless obtained at J. J. FALES' No. 96 Commercial street Boston.

—AGENTS—

Salem, J. S. HARRISON, J. Stone, jr., H. Whipple, S Badger, jr; Lynn, J. Moulton jr., Geo. Lummus, Wm. Cogswell, Wm. L Ladd; Swampscot, W. Thompson; Marblehead, E Arnold Wm. Stacey; Danvers, S. Proctor, Jos Shed, New Mills, H. S Pope, A. P Perley & Co, C. Simonds, Calder & Foster; Topsfield, B. P. Adams; Beverly A N Clark. ep6m mch 29

ADAMS & RICHARDSON,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC

HARDWARE.

MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS FOR THE SALE OF

Cut Nails, White Lead, Sheet Lead and Lead Pipe,

NO. 207 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.

Joseph Adams, }
C. M. Richardson, }

march 15 tf

Danvers Express and Baggage Waggon

LEAVES Danvers and Boston, daily (Sundays excepted.)

All orders left at McIntire's Hotel, or Poole & Jacobs' store Danvers, No. 14 Blackstone, and No. 1 Fulton streets, Boston, will be promptly attended to.

Goods handled with care.

S. F. TOWN.

April 19, 1845. 1 y

LORRAINE'S PILLS.

All persons require Facts.

Remember in all cases that you are not deceived by things that appear to be facts.

REMEMBER also, that, Lorraine's Vegetable Pills have in their composition two of the most valuable medicines in the world, viz: Sarsaparilla and Tomatoes. These two articles need no praise, neither do the celebrated Lorraine's Pills, when they have once been taken.

Physicians, and people of every class are willing to come forward and announce, in the most public manner, that they have been cured of long standing complaints—after all other medicines had failed. In fact there can be no doubt but that Lorraine's vegetable Pills is the best medicine ever offered to the public.

See a few public statements of men of truth and virtue.

Lynn, Dec. 17th, 1843.

Sir; I have sold all the pills I last had of you, please send another lot immediately. The sale of Lorraine's vegetable Pills is rapidly on the increase—they are becoming very popular. I sell more and more every day. As a curative medicines and purifier of the blood, I think they stand unrivalled. One fact I have noticed, that no one that has used them finds any fault with them; they have wrought some very great cures. One lady, who has been confined to the house and bed, a great part of the time, for twenty years, is now cured and able to work most of her time, after having taken 3 boxes only of Lorraine's Pills!! I might name many other cases where the cures have been as great, but have not time.

Yonrs respectfully, J. E. F. MARSH.

Portland, Me., Nov. 7th, 1843

Sir: Please send us one gross of Lorraine's Pills, we have sold all we had last. They have given very good satisfaction, better than any other pills which we have in our market. I think in a short time they will take the place of others We have had no fault found with them whatever; but, on the contrary, they have been praised loudly. I think we could have quite a number of highly respectable certificates from our citizens.

Respectfully yours, E. MASON.

Chelsea. Jan. 3d, 1844

Sir: I transmit to you an account of my case for publication, believing it to be my duty. I have been confined with the Rheumatism nearly the whole winter, have had some of the best physicians of Boston and could get nothing that would relieve me more than temporarily. I heard of the wonderful virtue, of Lorraine's Pills, I had no faith whatever, but I took them, and it is a solemn fact that when I had taken but eight pills! my Rheumatism had entirely left me, and I have remained well ever since.

N. B. I never took more than one pill at a time and that on going to bed.

Yours respectfully, W. M. HALSTAL

Sir: I could fill the whole of the Sentinel with similar letters to the above, but believing the above extracts will serve for useful purposes for the present I omit more.

New England Office and General Depot, No 10 Brattle Square, Boston.

Unable to raise the Hands to the Head!

Sir—For three years, Scrofula had produced such effect upon my constitution, that I was unable to raise my hand; the bones were in different places destroyed by ulcertion, and I feared it might reach the brain or vital organs. My pains were violent—all medicines recoinmended did no good. At last, I took LORRAINE'S VEGETABLE PILLS, which gave immediate relief, and have entirely cured me.

Respecifully, your ob't serv't, JAMES COLSON, Esq.

Bath, Maine, July 16th, 1844,

A severe pain, in both sides cured!!

LOWELL, Mass., April 20th 1944.

Sir,—For the last few months I have been afflicted with a severe pain in both sides, at times so hard is a pleasure to feel well,—but a much greater one to say that I was cured immediately upon taking one dose of Dr. LORRAINE'S PILLS. J. BROOKS.

A hacking cough constantly annoyed me!

BOSTON, Mass., June 1st; 1844

Sir,—In February last, I took a sudden cold, after which a hacking cough constantly annoyed me, and this, combined with my other maladies, rendered me truly miserable, as everybody told me that I was in a consumption. Since, I have taken LORRAINE'S PILLS, and now every body tells me that I am well;—I feel as well as ever I did. J. E. S. McKEY.

AGENTS

Danvers—Sylvester Proctor. New Mills. E.Stimson.
North Parish—J. M. Haley Plains.
Salem—Henry Whipple Bookseller.,
Beverly—Stephen Baker.
Marblehead—E. Arnold.
Topsfield—B. P. Adams.

EDWARDS' LINIMENT.

For Sprains, Cuts, Bruises, Stiffened or Swelled Joints, Chilblains, Chapped Hands, Numbness and Rheumatism.

THIS invaluable artidle is now for the first time offered to the public, after having been in use for twenty years, with unusual and astonishing success within the circle of the proprietor's immediate influence. It has received the unqualified approbation of some eminent Physicians, and also Mariners and Mechanics.

It is also recommended, and more than a thousand cases might be cited, when it has been used for Horses in cases of lameness or when galled, &c. &c.

The public are assured that in offering the above we do recommend that which has not the least semblance of QUACKERY, but on the contrary it has done great and lasting good in its efficacious power and healing qualities.

As this medicine has been so long known in Salem and its vicinity, and as there are many that would avail themselves of it if they knew where it could be obtained, therefore the subsciber would now offer it to the public. It will be found always on hand and prepared by the subscriber.

BENJ. EDWARDS,
No. 14 Front street, Salem, Mass.

Wanted—trusty and worthy AGENTS in the neighboring towns and vicinity.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENTS.

DANIELS, POOR & CO., Danvers, Mass.
Benjamin F. Browne, Salem Mass.
Smith & Fowle, Boston, "
H. F. Skerry, Bangor, Me.
Charles Whipple, Bookseller, Newburyport.
Wm. R. Preston, Portsmouth, N. H.
John S. Caldwell, Belfast. Me.
Wm. H. Palmer, Lynnfield.
Joseph Edwards, jr., Lynn.
Charles Edwards, Marblehead.
Wm. Edwards, Beverly.

March 15, 1845. tf

TWEED COATS. Another lot of Tweed Coats, just received and selling cheaper than the last lot may 10 at EDWARDS', 14 Front street Salem.

New Furniture Store.

SALEM FURNITURE & FEATHER WARE-HOUSE.

205 1-2 ESSEX STREET. 205 1-2

(Two Doors East from the Market,.)

JOSEPH WALLIS would respectfully inform his friends and the public that he has taken the rooms recently occupied by T. Needham, Esq., where he will keep constantly on hand and for sale an extensive and well selected assortment of which he will sell at the lowest cash prices, among which may be found,

CABINET FURNITURE,

Sofas, Sofa Beds; Windlass, Cot Trundle and common Bedsteads; Secretaries; Bureaus; Mahogany, Card, Work, Centre and Dining Tables;—Mahogany, Cane-seat and common Chairs; Mahogany, Cane-back and common Rocking Chairs;—Children's Toy, Rocking and Dining Chairs; Settees and Settee Cradles; Cribs; Grecian and common Wash Stands; Portable Sinks; Portable and Gentleman's Writing Desks, Toilet, Dining and common Pine Tables; Looking Glasses; Swing and Toilet Glasses. Fancy Boxes, a great variety;—Mattresses; and every article usually found in his line of business.

CLOCKS.

J. W. intends keeping on hand a large and well selected assortment of Wood and Brass Clocks from the best of manufacturers—all of which we can feel confident in warranting. Those about purchasing this article will do well to call.

FEATHERS.

Live Geese and common Feathers; a great variety.

N B. J. W. will still continue to Manufacture FURNITURE at the Old Stand, No 29 Lafayette, corner of Ward street, where he will keep on hand a good assortment of

Cabinet Furniture, Feathers, Looking Glasses and Clocks.

Salem, April 12, 1845.

J. & H. HALE,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

HARD WARE GOODS AND CUTLERY,

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC

HOUSE KEEPING ARTICLES AND FANCY GOODS,

Agricultural Tools and Ploughs

PLOUGH CASTINGS, FRICTION ROLLERS AND CRANKS,
Iron and Copper Pumps and Lead Pipe,
WINDOW GLASS,
CAMPHENE,
CAMPHENE LAMPS, HANGING, SIDE AND ASTRAL—A GREAT VARIETY OF STYLES,
Cut Glass, Britannia, Brass, Bronze and Mantle Lamps,
CARPENTER'S TOOLS,
HOUSE TRIMMINGS,
Shoe Makers' Tools, Nails, Thread and Pegs,
BOILER DOORS AND OVEN MOUTHS,
Furnaces, Cast Iron Hollow Ware, Tubs, Pails, Mats, Cut Nails, Emery, Zinc, Lead, &c.
No. 215 Essex Street, SALEM, Mass.

march 15 tf

G. W & E. CRAFTS,

BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURERS AND STATIONERS,

174 ESSEX STREET, SALEM,

HAVE constantly on hand, and will manufacture to order, all kinds of Blank Books, from the best paper, ruled to any pattern, and bound in a neat and substantial manner.

FINE STATIONERY,

of almost ever description, adapted for counting rooms and schools, comprising in part, Letter and Writing Papers, ruled and plain; Drawing Papers; Note, Tissue and Wrapping Papers; Wafers; Sealing Wax; Seals and Steel Pens of every variety; Quills of every description; wafer Cups; sand boxes; writing fluids and inks; penknives; razors, &c.

PRINTING, RULING AND BINDING,

Printing of shop bills, cards, bill heads, catalogues, &c. executed in the neatest manner and on the best terms. Ruling, to any pattern desired, at short notice. Binding, of every description, executed with despatch.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

A constant supply of school books, of the best editions, together with every kind of School Stationery. Also, all kinds of miscellaneous books furnished at the lowest rates. mch 15

REMOVAL.

BOWDOIN'S DAGUERROTYPE ROOMS removed from Mechanic Hall, to the adjoining building above, 298 Essex street, where he has rooms built expressly for the purpose of taking Miniatures in any weather.

Mr. B. tenders his sincere thanks to his friends and the public, for their liberal patronage the past year, and respectfully solicits the continuance of public favor. He has recently purchased a large Achromatic instrument for the purpose of taking GROUPS and LARGE PICTURES, which enable him to give pictures of all sizes, equal to those taken in New York or Boston He has formed a connexion with an establishment in New York, from whence he receives all the new improvements, and materials connected with the Art, which will enable him to give better pictures for less prices than can be obtained in Boston.

Miniatures set in every variety of Lockets, Frames, Cases, &c.

☞Persons visiting Salem, and those about going to sea, can have a perfect likeness completed in a few minutes' time.

 Miniatures set in a neat Morocco Case for $1 50. Exhibition rooms open to visiters through the day.

EASY SHAVING AND HAIR CUTTING.

B. B. WILLIAMS respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has removed to the store formerly occupied by Lambert & Merrill, (under the Courier Office,) which he has fitted up in a neat manner, and is now prepared to wait upon those who believe that

"Man wants but little beard below,
Nor wants that little long."

Champooing, Hair Cutting and Shaving is performed to the satisfaction of all who may favor him with their patronage.

Danvers, March 15, 1845. tf

Great Bargains

ARE NOW BEING HAD AT THE

Washington Street Clothing Store, Salem.

GARMENTS of all description may be obtained at prices which cannot fail to give entire satisfaction.

Great care has been taken in the getting up of every garment, all of which is warranted equal, if not superior to any Clothing in the city.

The subscriber continues to take measures as formerly, and all Garments bespoken, will be made according to the wishes of the customer, and will guarantee both the style and fit.

☞BOY WANTED, as an Apprentice.

S. CHAMBERLAIN, JR.

Salem, March, 15. tf

DANVERS DYE HOUSE.

THE subscriber would inform the citizens of Danvers that he has established himself at Danvers Plains, near Maple street, where he will attend to the dyeing and cleansing all kinds of

SILK AND WOOLEN GOODS.

His former experience in England, added to his knowledge of the drugs and dyes in use in this country, will enable him to produce colors, which for cheapness and durability cannot be excelled by any other establishment.

☞Goods left at Mrs. Gould's, Main street South Danvers, or at the Dye House, will meet with prompt attention.

WILLIAM ROWBOTHAM.

Danvers Plains, June 7, 1845. tf

DISSOLUTION.

THE Co-partnership heretofore existing under the firm of W. S. CLEVELAND & CO., is this day dissolved by mutual consent. The accounts and business of the late firm will be settled by J. P. Jewett & Co.

M. J. WHIPPLE,
W. S. CLEVELAND.

Salem, June 21. 1845,

THE subscriber having sold to Mr. John P. Jewett his interest in the late firm of W S. Cleveland & Co. would cordially recommend the new concern to a continuation of the liberal patronage which the establishment has heretofore received.

june 21 M. J. WHIPPLE.

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

The subcribers have this day formed a connection in the Publishing and Book-selling business, under the name of JOHN P. JEWETT & Co. A share of patronage is solicited, at the old stand opposite the Mansion House. JOHN P. JEWETT.

W S CLEVELAND.

Salem, June 28, 1845.

NOTICE.

THE subscriber announces, with pleasure, that he has returned to his Old Stand, opposite the Mansion House, at which place he hopes to meet his former friends and customers, to whose generous patronage he is indebted for past success. He trusts that the extra facilities obtained by an absence of nearly a year, the greater part of which time has been spent in intercourse with extensive Publishing Houses in the East and West, will enable him to conduct business in a manner, both to the satisfaction and profit of the Book purchasing community.

Particular attention will be paid to the publishing of valuable copy rights, many of which are already contracted for, and will be put to press immediatly. With such facilities for obtaining extensive supplies of stock in exchange, it is apparent that Books can be sold at Wholesale to dealers in the neighboring towns on as favorable terms as they can be purchased in any city in the Union.

JOHN P. JEWETT.

Salem, June 28, 1845 2mo

REMOVAL.

POOLE & STEDMAN,

MAKERS OF

TRUNKS, HARNESSES, &c. AND COACH AND GIG TRIMMERS,

For the better accommodation of their customers, have taken the lower part of the shop recently occupied by Mr. No. 24 St. Peter Street.

SALEM.

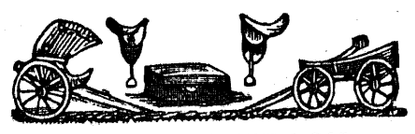
Thankful for past patronage, a continuance of the same is solicited.

S. A. POOLE,
G. B. STEDMAN.

june 21, 1845.

S. R. BOTT,

DRAPER & TAILOR,



No. 148 Essex Street, Salem,

TAKES this method of informing the public of Danvers and vicinity that he has for sale one of the richest and BEST selected assortments of Broadcloths, Cassimeres & Vestings ever before offered in Salem. The Stock is of the latest Spring and Summer styles, and cannot be surpassed by any establishment in the city, which will be sold by the yard, or made into Garments, in a style that CANNOT be surpassed in this or any other city.

☞Strangers from the country would do well to call at this establishment, as they select their Goods with the most perfect confidence, that each article is as good in quality, and as low in price as can be obtained at any other store.

N. B. The report of Fashions received every month.

Salem, March 15, 1845.

THOMAS TRASK,

Near the Eagle, Main Street, Danvers,

KEEPS constantly on hand, a good assortment of

SADDLES AND HARNESSES,

of every kind and quality. Also—Fire Buckets, Solid Leather, Rivetted Double and Boot Top Travelling Trunks, Common Hair do,, Valises and Carpet Bags, Chaise, Stage and Draught Collars, Military Equipments, etc.

ENGINE HOSE furnished at short notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

CHURCH CUSHIONS, of all kinds and quality, made at the shortest notice.

T. T. has on hand as good an assortment of Harnesses as can be found at any other establishment,

A good article of Neats Foot Oil, constantly on hand.

Danvers, June 7, 1845. 1y

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

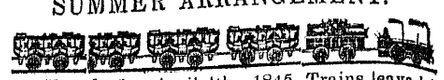
JONATHAN W. OSBORNE has taken into Co-partnership MICHAEL L. WHIDDEN, and they will continue the

Painting, Glazing & Papering

business, at the old Stand, No 10 PARK STREET, under the firm of

OSBORNE & WHIDDEN.

Particular attention to



SIGN PAINTING,

IMITATIONS OF WOOD, MARBLE, BRONZE, GROUND GLASS, &c.

mch 29 1y

EASTERN RAILROAD,

SUMMER ARRANGEMENT.

ON and after April 4th, 1845, Trains leave daily (Sundays excepted,)

Boston for Portland, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P. M.
" Portsmouth, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 5 1-2 P.M.
" Somersworth, Great Falls, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P.M.
" for Newburyport, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 and 5 1-2 P.M.
" for Salem, 7 1-4, 9, A.M., 12 1-4 2 1-2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2, 7 1-2 P.M.

Salem for Portland, 8 A.M., 3 1-4 P.M.

Salem for Portsmouth and Newburyport, 8 A.M. 3 1-4, 6 1-4 P.M.

Portland for Boston, 7 1-2 A.M., 3 P.M.

Saco for Boston, 8 A.M., 3 1-2 P.M.

Somersworth, Great Falls for Boston, 8 3-4 A.M., 4 1-4 P.M.

South Berwick lot Boston, 9 1-4 A M, 4 3-4 P.M.

Portsmouth for Boston, 6 1-2, 10,* A.M., 5 1-2* P.M.

Newburyp't for Boston, 7 1-4, 10 3-4* AM. 6 1-4* P.M.

Salem for Boston, 7 1-2, 8 1-2, 10 1-4 11 3-4,* A.M. 2 1-4, 5, 7,* P.M.

*Or on their arrival from the East.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Trains leave Marblehead for Salem, at 7 1-4, 8 1-4, 10, A.M.; 2, 4, 4 3-4, 7, P.M.

Leave Salem for Marblehead, at 8, 9 3-4 A.M. 1, 3 1-4, 4 1-4, 6 1-4, 8 1-4 P.M.

A Merchandize Train will leave Boston, Portland, and all intermediate places every day.

Freight Office in Boston, No. 17 Merchants Row, and on the line of the road at the several Depots.

JOHN KINSMAN,
Master of Transportation.

apr 12

Summer Arrangement of the

DANVERS AND SALEM HOURLY COACHES

THE Danvers and Salem Hourly Coaches will in connection with the Eastern Railroad, leave Danvers and Salem at the following hours, viz:

Leave Danvers at	7	A.M.	Leave Salem at	8	A.M.
" "	8 1-4		" "	9 1-2
" "	9 3-4		" "	11 1-2
" "	11 1-4		" "	12 3-4
" "	1 3-4	P M.	" "	3	P.M.
" "	2 3-4		" "	4
" "	4 1-2		" "	6
" "	6 1-2		" "	7 1-4
" "	7 1-2		" "	9

For seats apply at Macintire's Hotel, or at Joseph G Shed's store in Danvers, and at the Essex House and Salem Hotel in Salem.

Railroad passengers taken at the depot on the arrival of the cars from Boston and the East.

☞Extra Coaches furnished at any hour on reasonable terms

SYMONDS & TEEL.

apr 19 tf

Improved Curtain Fixtures.

A NEW and beautiful article of Curtain Fixtures, of American Manufacture, far superior to those now in use, and not so likely to get out of order. For sale wholesale and retail at the manufacturer's prices, at the Hosiery and Glove Store, No. 236 Essex street, Salem, by

june 14 R. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

TOPOGRAPHICAL MAP OF PALESTINE by J. H, Colton. Compiled principally from the observations of Messrs Robinson and Smith. The religious Press and many of the secular papers have spoken in high terms of this map. For sale by G. W. & E. CRAFTS 174 Essex St. Salem.

JOSEPH SHED,

NOTARY PUBLIC AND ACTING MAGISTRATE,

Opposite the Monument.

All kinds of writing; conveyancing and Probate business attended to promptly.

☞A great variety of BLANKS constantly on hand and for sale.

Danvers, May 21, 1845.

BENJAMIN EDWARDS,

DRAPER & TAILOR,

GARMENTS Cut and Made to order, and fashionably, and warranted to give entire satisfaction

Constantly on hand, a good assortment of BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES, AND VESTINGS.

Also—Neck Stocks, Italian Cravats, Scarfs, Shirt Bosoms, Collars, Feetings, Braces, Umbrellas, Hair and Clothes Brushes, Cologne Water, Wallets,

and other articles necessary for Gentlemen's use.

Grateful for the very liberal patronage which has heretofore been bestowed upon the establisment, he hopes by care and attention to business to merit a continuance.

Any order for Goods in the TAILORING LINE, attended to with fidelity and despatch.

All Garments Repaired and Cleansed CHEAP.

Any of the above articles if not on hand when called for, will be furnished at short notice.

mch 15 tf

DRUGS AND MEDICINES.

A GOOD assortment of Drugs, Medicines usually kept in a Druggist Shop, constantly for sale at the lowest prices, by

DR. JOSEPH SHED, (Ag't.)

(OPPOSITE THE MONUMENT,)

And a variety of Patent Medicine, consisting of Brinckehoff's Health Restorative; Buchan's Hungarian Balsam Schenck's Pulmonary Balsam; Trufant's Compound; Delion and Tomato Bitters; Davis' Compound Tooth Wash Harrison's Peristaltic, and Worm Lozenges; Thompson Eye Water; Warren's Croup Syrup; Whitwell's Opodeldock; Different kinds of Pulmonary Balsams, and genuine Thomsonian Medicines; Jew David's or Hebrew Plaster also, Brandreth s, Indian Vegetable, Beckwith's, Lee Dean s, Parr s, Richardson s, Relf's Asthmatic, and a variety of other Pills. Candies, Nuts, Almonds, Citron, Currants, Nutmegs, Mace, Cloves, etc. Particular attention to Physician's Recipes.

Danvers, May 31, 1845.

Ploughs & Cultivators,

MANUFACTURED BY

RUGGLES, NOURSE & MASON,

And other Agricultural Tools

FOR SALE BY

DANIL RICHARDS,

Danvers Plains, March 29, 1845.

CHARLES H. MANNING,

CABINET MAKER,

Near the Sign of the Lamb, Main Street,

DANVERS, MASS.

FURNITURE manufactured on the most reasonable terms. Also—CURRIER'S TABLES made and repaired cheap.

SHOE-MAKERS' PEGGING BENCHES made as above. oct 1

IMPROVED CULITVATORS,

A complete assortment now on hand, at

J. & H. HALE'S,

May 3. tf 215 Essex street Salem

PANTS. A lot of Men's cheap pants just received and for sale at EDWARDS'

may 17 14 Front street

EASTERN RAILROA
SUMMER ARRANGEMEN
DANVERS AND SAL
DRAPER & TAILOR
AND MEDICINE
Ploughs & Cultivators.
DANIL RICHARDS,
CHARLES H. MANNING.
CABINET MAKER,
PEGGING BENCHES
CULTIVATORS.

DANVERS COURIER.

VOL. 1. DANVERS, (MASS.) SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 12, 1845. NUMBER 17.

THE DANVERS COURIER
IS PUBLISHED BY
GEORGE R. CARLTON,
EVERY SATURDAY MORNING,
A few doors North of Mackintire's Hotel,
CENTRAL ST.—SOUTH DANVERS.

Terms—$1 50 if paid in advance, or $2 00, if not paid within one month of the time of subscribing.

The carriers are not allowed to sell any copies of the Courier. Single copies may be obtained at the office, at 5 cents each.

Advertisements will be inserted on favorable terms.

POETRY.

FOR THE COURIER.

MEMORY.

Oft when in twilight's lingering hour,
Sweet Memory comes with soothing power,
And fairy-like her wand she sways,
In visions bright the past displays,

Days, months and years forever fled,
Companions numbered with the dead;
Home, friends and pleasures far away,
Appear in visions bright as day,

When tossed upon the Ocean wave,
The seaman sees his watery grave,
His heart unshrinking knows no fear,
But Memory starts the silent tear.

When age with withering grasp takes hold,
When life's brief scroll we soon shall fold,
When earthly pleasures lose their charm,
Then Memory is a precious balm.

Black crimes may sear the pure in heart,
Misfortune hurl its cruel dart;
Man may be proof 'gainst love or fear,
Still "Memory's" tribute is a tear.

G. G. R.

SELECTED TALES.

TRANSLATED FOR THE COURIER.

A LEGEND OF HISTORY.

The sun had not yet risen upon the far-famed city of Grenada, and over the gardens of the Vega, was yet hovering a dense cloud of pearly mist, half concealing under its beautiful folds the gent- [illegible] the walls of the city might be seen one whose firm step and lofty bearing betokened the warrior and hero. And as the stern old Paynim sentinels bowed lowly before the glance of his eagle eye, a glad ray of hope beamed upon each countenance, as the veteran warriors recognized the proudest ornament of Moorish chivalry—the hero of the Minstrel's most inspired lay—Muza—the noblest defender of the home of his fathers—the beautiful city of Grenada. A stern and gloomy silence reigned throughout the streets, and the deep, heavy breathing of hundreds of brave men doomed perchance on that day to fall fighting for their freedom and homes, was the only sound which might assure one that he was not a wanderer in a city of the dead, a stranger in the land of spirits—so solemn and imposing is the silence of a vast soundless city And the scene was not without its effects upon our hero, for the dark frown which gathered upon his brow, the firm compression of his thin lips, the heaving of his manly chest, and more than all, the wildly despairing glance of his eye, showed that the fierce storm of Passion yet raged in his mind, and the proud heart of the Moorish Knight was rent with the wildest emotions. But suddenly the rays of the sun burst from the eastern horizon, and impelled by the gentle morning breeze, the mist rolled its cumbrous folds far over the dark cliffs of the Alpuxarras, disclosing a scene in which the hand of Nature had combined with Art to image forth almost a realization of the most cherished dream of the Poet, the beau-ideal of perfection. 'Twas truly a glorious scene, all worthy of the noblest art of the Painter! The wide expanse of the Vega, lovely and blooming as the Garden of Eden, swelling and rising to the dark mountains of the Alpaxurras, and proudly rearing themselves high over all like the guardian angels of man's first abode, stood the towers and minarets of the city. And as the full splendor of his father-land, the long-cherished idol of his imagination, burst upon his view, the eyes of the Knight beamed with a wild flush of joy. But as he saw on the confines of the plain the banner of Castile and Arragon, waving its rich folds in the morning breeze over a wide encampment of his foes, the flower of Spanish Chivalry, a black storm-cloud of anger gathered upon his frowning brow, and his free, proud spirit might endure it no longer. Well might he exclaim, "Oh! accursed passion of man, that would fain with ruthless hand ravage the fairest, noblest work of Nature!" He turned hastily aside, communing in silence with the wild, fierce emotions of his own sad heart. But now, the loud voice of the prophet summons the children of Mahommed to morning prayers; and side by side wih the humblest sentinel, the proud Muza bowed to the earth, the noblest one of that kneeling multitude, who in the sincerity of kindred ignorance uttered forth their vain prayers to the Father of the Faithful; while faintly swelling over the plain breathed the chaunt of the Christian Monks mingled with the "Ave Marias" of the rude Spanish soldiery.

But suddenly ringing through the clear air was heard the loud, long blast of the clarion sounding the fierce charge of the Spanish Knights, while a wild burst of Oriental Music sent back the haughty defiance of Muza and the Moorish chivalry.—Now issuing from the camp in all the pomp of their splendid array, bearing themselves proudly before the eyes of their imperial Mistress, came the Army of Spain. And rending the air with the shouts of their battle-cry—Santiago, they rushed upon the gardens of the Vega. They were met by the wild cry of "Muza to the rescue!" And with the energy of despair the fierce bands of the Moors flew to the onset. The heroic deeds of Muza still live in the ballads of the Alhambra, and the exiled Moor yet loves the memory of the bold warrior. Before the fell swoop of his scymetar perished the proudest ornaments of the Andalusian Chivalry shouting even in death, "Down with the Infidel—death to the Paynim!" But the power of discipline prevailed; thousands of the fierce Moors bit the dust ever murmuring in the dying accents of superstition, "Allah achbar" and breathing the loved name of Grenada. Muza with a few wounded followers reached the city—the Vega was a ruin—and Grenada was lost. In the dim twilight of the followinng evening, a wild horseman rushed from the gates of the city.—Charging with mad rage half a score of Christian Knights—with reckless valor he slew half of them till at last, ere he was satiated with vengeance, his steed sank under him. He rushed into the river, and the wild waters closed over his head. The noble body of Muza slept in his Knightly armor, and the hoarse murmur of the river chaunts the requiem of the departed Hero.

A TOUCHING STORY--A TRUE HEROINE.

The Irish as a nation are often accused of insin- [illegible] the standard of our duller temperament, their very vehement protestations of attachment, do often appear uncalled for and exaggerated. Yet where in truth do we ever meet with more touching instances of real, unselfish devotion, than are sometimes exhibited by the poor uneducated sons and daughters of Hibernia?

A case in point occured, not many weeks ago in this city. A young physician greatly beloved by his friends and associates, was taken suddenly ill; after remaining a day or two at his own office, deprived, unavoidably, of all those soothing attentions which none but woman can offer in the hour of sickness, the young man grew rapidly worse, and the kind lady at whose table he took his meals, generously insisted upon his instant removal to her own house, that he might be within reach of that careful attendance which the alarming peculiarities of his case demanded. The disease was scarlet fever of the most malignant and dangerous type.

On the day of his arrival, among other inquirers there came a tidy, respectable dressed girl—an Irsh girl—with many, very many and most anxious questions as to the patient's condition; and when they had all been answered—when every thing had been told her of good or bad, connected with his disorder—she lingered still, still hesitated, as though there was yet a something in her heart that could not find its proper utterence.

"Are you acquainted with Dr.———, my good girl?" asked the lady. "Do I know him is it?" Oh yes—she knew him well—quite well knew him long before he came from the old country.—He had once attended her thro' a long and dangerous illness; and—now burst forth the pent-up secret—he had surely saved her life by his skill and care, and she had come to ask the kind lady—could she—might she, only be permitted just to stay in the house until his recovery, and in her turn watch over and wait upon him?

She had been living out, it appeared, in the neighborhood, as nursery maid; but her employers, in their dread of scarlet fever, objected to her daily visits of inquiry at the Doctor's office, so the affectionate creature had unhesitatingly given up a good place and hastened away delighted at the thought of being useful to her benefactor, and showing her gratitude for his former kindness by tendering her services to him as nurse.

A look of scrutiny, turned upon her as she told her simple story, was met by one so thoroughly pure and honest in its expression, that after a moment's pause, a willing consent was given to the arrangement, and with noiseless tread, but with an expression of relief as if the weight of a world had been lifted from her bosom the warm-hearted girl bounded up stairs and took her station at the bed side of the patient,

It was a melancholy case altogether. The mother and, three sisters of the young man, though written to, were as yet far away, and his weary hours were still farther embittered by the knowledge that if he died they would be left utterly destitute—the property upon which they all lived being entailed upon him, the only son, and reverting at his death to the next male heir of the family.

But to return to the more immediate subject of this sketch. From the hour of her first assuming the duties of nurse, she never left him, day or night for a single moment, unless to bring for his comfort and relief such things as the other girls of the house, for the fear of infection, were too much terrified to carry up to his room. The symptoms soon became too marked to leave any more than a faint hope of ultimate recovery, but the courageous girl never suffered her feelings to overcome her; her manner is described as calm and self-possessed to a singular degree, the features generally motionless, and the voice without a trace of agitation in its tone.

Once indeed, and once only, toward the last, she was seen outside his room door, her hands pressed convulsively against her eyes, and her bosom heaving with emotion. But the tears were resolutely forced back—the feelings bravely gulped down, and in one moment more the devoted girl had turned the handle with a quiet touch, and resumed her duties by the bed of death.

The poor sufferer was attended by a host of medical friends, but the flat had gone forth; a "still small voice" had whispered to him, and he knew that he must die. And he did die, calling upon his mother and wondering how she would be able to bear the tidings of his loss.

Amid all the acclamations of sorrow and consternation around, not one word was spoken by the poor girl who had been his untiring watcher so long. A stranger might have almost imagined her an uninterested spectator of the scene—"a hireling who cared not for" her charge—but those who knew her better could observe that she never moved from his side—never lost sight of him for a single instant. It was she who closed the starting lids—bound up the head, and prepared him for the coffin. And all in utter silence—not a word of sorrow came from her.—The pale cheek and trembling hand were the feelings with which she did it all.

At length the last sad offices were to be performed. They persuaded her to leave the room for a short time, and when she returned, the body was removed from the bed, and the coffin—oh, bitter disappointmen!—the coffin was screwed down!

Then, indeed, a wail of despair escaped her lips. She could see no reason for such haste—there was time, plenty of time before them—and what had she done that she should not be allowed one look—one last look—before they took him away and shut him up for ever?

Being made to understand, after a time, the necessity in such cases of immediate burial, she suffered the men to depart without farther remonstrance; but within the next half hour she had quietly borrowed a screw-driver—shut herself into the room—withdrawn every screw in the coffin lid—and gazed. Oh, who shall say with what bitterness of feeling?—upon the face within, then fastening the lid down again, remained [illegible] her hand was the last that had been laid upon his brow—her eye the very last that had rested upon his features.

After the funeral, when the few valuables belonging to the deceased were collected together, she was asked whether she would not wish to keep something in remembrance of him; and was told that she might take for that purpose anything she pleased.

"May I?—sure, then, I'll take this," laying her hand eagerly upon it. It was an old handkerchief, soiled and rumpled, which the young man had around his neck during the last hours of his illness, and which, in the bustle and confusion, had been left on the bed just where it had been thrown after the death.

The friends urged her to make another choice,—"No," she would have that, and only that.

They asked her to take something in addition, at all events; something of more value.

"No, no—nothing but that—she wanted nothing more."

One gentleman pointed out the possible danger of her selection; and warned her at least not to hold it so near her person.

But by this time the poor girl had become impatient at the opposition. "It's mine now—sure, sure, sure I may do what I like with my own.

And with the word, the handkerchief was drawn tightly round her throat, and the two ends thrust deep within her bosom; and one who stood nearest her could hear the almost whispered words, "He did me nothing but good in life and I'm sure he won't hurt me now."

It is unnecessary to say with what feelings the relatives looked upon her when they heard of her devotion to the lost son and brother; she was immediately offered a home among them, but it was gratefully declined; her duty was accomplished, and she preferred returning to the lowly and self-denying course of life in which her lot was cast.—New York Commercial Adverliser.

THE SCHOOLMASTER,
AND HOW HE CAME TO BE MARRIED.

The schoolmaster, who forms the subject of this notice, commenced his labors in a neighboring town the Monday after Thanksgiving. He was a bachelor of attractive person, and it is a remarkable fact, that during the ensuing winter there were more large girls in school than there had ever been before, or have been since. The importance of education seemed particularly appreciated by all who had hopes, or even wishes of becoming wives. And Uncle Bill, who was something of a wag, seriously declared that 'the oldest inhabitant,' wanted to go to school too, if she could only get a place to board near the school-house. In truth the schoolmaster was a 'proper nice young man,' and somehow all the girls found out the same fact. Not a quilting, or party, was perfect without his presence; and the sample of good cooking, which came under his inspection, would have won the heart of any man, if as some of the ancients supposed, that article had any immediate connexion with the palate. Pies, puddings, cakes and tarts of all which the preparation was ascribed to Sally, Polly, Betsey or Margaret, whichsoever the favorite daughter might be, who had the best chance to please the schoolmaster's taste.—If he, like flies, was to be trapped with sweets and molasses, he would have been caught in every house but one in the district.

The schoolmaster remained impregnable to the assaults, both upon his heart and stomach.—He never suspected the mines which were preparing to explode in every direction. The girls began to think that surely he was engaged; and that is almost as bad as being a married man.—But they were mistaken. His heart was free and unfettered. And what they lacked was a quick discernment of his weak side. But the girls were all at fault—they smiled and pouted in vain; their mamas made cookies and sweetmeats for their credit without advancing their interests in the least; and the schoolmaster's eccentricity was so closely connected with his scholastic duties that it was not mistrusted. His mind was the abstract of a mathematical problem. There was not a puzzle 'in Thomas' Almanac,' but he could decipher; and he never was happy or satisfied without fractional anxiety. But the girls were all so anxious about the dividend of his affections, that it never occured to them that the square of his partiality could only be obtained by the addition of a slate pencil to their charms. At last one wiser, or with more tact than the rest, suspected the truth, and finding that the usual methods of captivation had failed, suddenly became deeply interested in all mathematical puzzles, and often invited the master home with her to finish the sums' and solve the problems which she had gathered together in a file of old almanacs as long as a century. He was at ease; and without inquiring why, his feet would almost involuntarily turn to where he was sure to find a cheerful fire, a bowl of apples, and a slate and pencil ready for his amusement. Jane Baker was elated with her stratagem, and the result was all she wished, and might have been anticipated. For make a man happy—show him that you sympathize with and understand his foible, and there must be strong reason why, if he does not reward you with his love, or what, in his estimation, is the same thing, the privilege of wearing his name.

Jane did well; she caught the schoolmaster, and then had to learn that a mathematical husband was even more tedious than a mathematical lover.

Some five years after, I paid them a visit at their own domicil. I found Jane with as ready tact as ever, and her husband puzzling over 'Greenleafs's last edition.' Three chubby children had been given them, and from the energetic manner in which the youngest used its lungs, I drew the conclusion that it inherited its mother's activity instead of its father's love of silence and quiet.

The schoolmaster with his usual dignity, bade me welcome, and began to solicit my opinion as to the probable merits of a book [illegible] was to be published sometime. But Jane interrupted him with:

'John, the fire is minus, and you will particularly oblige me to solve the problem of how many sticks of wood it would take to make a good one.'

He mechanically turned to his black board; but she again interrupted the train of his thoughts, with:

Please, husband, give us a practical illustration, and then by the warmth, we will prove its correctness.'

Like an obedient husband he proceeded to comply with the request, and then returned to his favorite amusement. He was scarcely seated, before Jane again propounded a puzzle for his solution.

'Husband,' said she,' supposing one dead chicken would make a comfortable meal for three, how long would it take to make two live chickens dead?'

'Yes, yes, my dear,' he returned, 'but don't interrupt me now, as I am just finishing the equation of this problem, which never has been solved by any mathematician. If I can get it arranged correcily, the solution will be positive.'

'But a hungry family and squalling children are problems which must be solved first,' she returned laughing.

He cast one look at his black-board of saddened sorrow, and one at his wife; but he was too well trained to dispute the command insinuated.

I looked a puzzle, but I did not dare propound it; yet she was too well versed in the root of the query not to understand it.

'He is good and kind,' said she in explanation, 'but he loves a problem of figures and signs better than that of living. He never knows hunger or cold while in his abstractions of fractions; and I always must propose my questions decidedly, or have them forgotten.

'But,' said I, but I did not dare propound the question.

She laughed, and said, 'Oh, I understand: you want to know why he is so obedient. It is a long story in all; but the conclusion of it was that after I had suffered neglect—seen myself rivalled by an old black-board, and my children requiring some interest from their father, I was obliged to came to an open rupture, and say that it should not be—that he never should do a sum in the house until he attended to my requests first.'

'But how could you effect this?' I inquired.

'Easy enough,' she returned: 'I only seated myself by him and rubbed out his figures and signs as fast as he could make them; and we came to an agreement that he should do my bidding always, and I would leave him in quiet when possible.'

COMMUNICATION.

WILEY AND PUTNAM'S LIBRARY OF CHOICE READING.

Some weeks ago this publication was briefly noticed in the columns of the Courier. It has since gone on, and from what we can learn, very successfully. It is one calculated to do much towards elevating the tone of literary taste among us, and is particularly needed at the present time as a corrective to the flood of worthless and vicious trash poured out upon the public by a reckless and busy press. The last issue which reached us was No. XIII. being Hazlitt's Lectures on the age of Elizabeth. Hazlitt is too well and favorably known as a critic and essayist to need any commendation from us. His ripe scholarship, bold, acute and vigorous thought, sensitive and fastidious yet none the less manly and healthy taste, vivid fancy, great shrewdness of observation and strong good sense, combined to make him one of most brilliant and attractive prose writers wh England has produced in the nineteenth centu The volume before us treats principally of anci English dramatic literature. It has been peru with intense delight. There is such an evid feeling of admiration and love in the auth heart for the great writers of whom he talks, s life in the narration, such full sympathy w his subject. It abounds with eloquent langu and noble thought, acting the part of a commen ry upon the choice passages of poetry from immortal works which form the subject of book—apples of gold in baskets of silver. will finish our paragraph by giving some exquis morceaux, as the most palatable dish we could before our readers.

Every one knows the story of Campaspe, beautiful mistress of Alexander, whom the ki gave to Apelles, who had fallen in love with h as he drew her picture. On this story is writte the play of "Alexander and Campaspe" by Jo Lyly who was about Shakspear's time. T following song is given to Apelles,

"Cupid and my Campaspe play'd
At cards for kisses, Cupid paid:
He stakes his quiver, bow, and arrows;
His mother's doves and team of sparrows;
Loses them too, then down he throws
The coral of his lip, the rose
Growing on 's cheek (but none knows how)
With these the chrystal of his brow
And then the dimple of his chin;
All these did my Campaspe win.
At last he set her both his eyes,
She won, and Cupid blind did rise.
O, Love! has she done this to thee?
What shall, alas! become of me?"

Marlowe was a cotemporary of Lyly. His "lif and death of Doctor Faustus" was his greates work. The character is described as a personifi cation of the pride of will and eagerness of curio sity, sublimed beyond the reach of fear and remors Devoured by a tormenting desire to enlarge his knowledge to the utmost bounds of nature and art, and to extend his power with his knowledge he leagues himself with the Evil Spirit, and sells his soul and body to the great enemy of mankind as the price of the gratification of his desire.—"Whatever he fancies, becomes by this means present to his sense; whatever he commands, is [illegible] pates the future; the visions of antiquity pass before him: all the projects of philosophers, or creations of the past, pay tribute at his feet; all the delights of fortune, of ambition, of pleasure, and of learning are counted in his person; and from a short-lived dream of supreme felicity and drunken power he sinks into an abyss of darkness and perdition." The following is the address to the apparition of the Grecian Helen by Faustus at whose request she has been summoned from a nother world—beautiful beyond all praise, "a rapturous and deeply passionate dream."

Enter Helen again, passing over between two Cupids.

FAUSTUS.

Was this the face that launch'd a thousand ships,
And burnt the topmost towers of Ilium?
Sweet Helen, make me immortal with a kiss.
Her lips suck forth my soul! See where it flies!
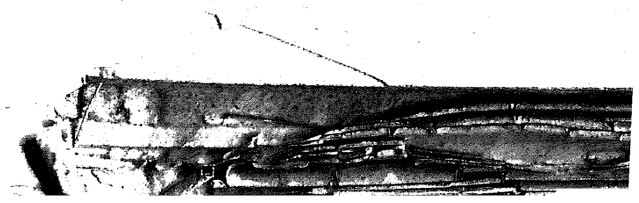
Come, Helen, come, give me my soul again.
Here will I dwell, for heaven is in these lips.
And all is dross that is not Helena.
I will be Paris: and for love of thee,
Instead of Troy, shall Wittenberg be sacked;
And I will combat with weak Menalaus,
And wear thy colors on my plumed crest;
Yea, I will wound Achilles in the heel,
And then return to Helen for a kiss.
Oh, thou art fairer than the evening air,
Clad in the beauty of a thousand stars:
Brighter art thou than flaming Jupiter,
When he appeared to hapless Semele:
More lovely than the monarch of the sea,
In wanton Arethusa's azure arms:
And none but thou shalt be my paramour.

I have adopted Leigh Hunt's reading of the above, which seems to me preferable to Hazlett's. This single quotation is enough of itself to prove the truth of Hunt's remark that "if ever there was a born poet, Marlowe was one."

"Old honest Decker!" It was he who wrote that character the piety of which has been pro nounced equal to its boldness:—

"The best of men
That e'er wore earth about him was a sufferer;
A soft, meek, patient, humble, tranquil spirit:
The first true gentleman that ever breathed."



Lines, which as Hazlett says, ought to embalm the authors memory to every one who has a sense either of religion, or philosophy, or humanity, or true genius.

Beaumont and Fletcher (the strongest and most faithful partnership ip literary labor that ever existed) wrote together fifty-two dramas, many of which yet keep the stage. They were poets of the highest order, and though the hands which held the pen have long since mouldered into dust, yet lives their eloquent page, "informed with music, sentiment and thought, never to die!" In the "Faithful Shepherdess," by Fletcher alone, the place and its employments are thus described by Chloe to Thenot,

Here be woods as green
As any, air likewise as fresh and sweet
As where smooth Zephyrus plays on the fleet
Face of the curled stream, with flowers as many
As the young Spring gives, and as choice as any;
Here be all new delights, cool streams and wells,
Arbors o'ergrown with woodbine; cayes and dells;
Chuse where thou wilt, while I sit by and sing,
Or gather rushes, to make many a ring
For thy long fingers; tell thee tales of love,
How the pale Phœbe, hunting in a grove,
First saw the boy Endymion, from whose eyes
She took eternal fire that never dies;
How she conveyed him softly in a sleep,
His temples bound with poppy, to the steep
Head of old Latmos, where she stoops each night,
Guilding the mountain with her brother's light,
To kiss her sweetest."

How delicate and classical! you are transported to the vale of Tempe. How refreshing—though one pants beneath a July sun, the reading of such lines brings to his fevered cheeks the cool west wind laden with fragrance.

In 'Love lies a-Bleeding' there is one passage, among many of extreme romantic beauty and high-wrought passion giving an account of the commencement of Euphrasia's love to Philaster:

"Sitting in my window,
Printing my thought in lawn, I saw a God
I thought (but it was you) enter our gates:
My blood flew out, and back again as fast
As I had puffed it forth and sucked it in Like breath; then was I called away in haste
To entertain you Never was a man
Heaved from a sheep-cote to a sceptre, raised
So high in thought as I: you left a kiss
Upon these lips then, which I mean to keep
From you forever. I did hear you talk
Far above singing!"

Beaumont and Fletcher abound in lyrical pieces of a most luxuriant and delicate kind. The best of them were probably composed by the former. There is one, an "Address to Melancholy," which Hazlett says, is the perfection of this kind of writing.

"Hence, all you vain delights,
As short as are the nights
Wherein you spend your folly;
There's naught in this life sweet,
Were men but wise to see't,
But only Melancholy:
O sweetest Melancholy!

Welcome, folded arms and fixed eyes:
A sigh, that piercing, mortifies:
A look that's fastened to the ground;
A tongue chain'd up without a sound.
Fountain heads and pathless groves,
Places which pale passion loves:
Moonlight walks, when all the fowls
Are warmly hous'd save bats and owls;
A midnight bell, a parting groan,
These are the sounds we feed upon;
Then stretch our bones in a still gloomy valley;
Nothing so dainty sweet as lovely Melancholy."

The imitation by Milton in his Penseroso is evident. Hunt calls it "divine," and says that "Orpheus might have hung it, like a pearl, in the ear of Proserpina."

Beaumont thus moralises on the life of man:

Like to the falling of a star,
Or as the flights of eagles are,
Or like the fresh spring's gaudy hue,
Or silver drops of morning dew,
Or like a wind that chafes the flood,
Or bubbles which on water stood;
E'en such is man, whose borrow'd light
Is straight call'd in and paid to night;—
The wind blows out, the bubble dies;
The spring entomb'd in autumn lies;
The dew's dried up, the star is shot,
The flight is past, and man forgot."

Francis Beaumont died at the age of five-and-twenty. Those whom the Gods love die young. But long enough to immortalize his name—to write poetry which will keep his memory ever fresh and dear in the hearts of all those who love the revelations of genius nnd beauty.

The following is from Ben Johnson's "Triumph of his Mistress."

"Have you seen but a bright lily glow,
Before rude hands have touched it?
Ha' you mark'd but the fall of the snow
Before the soil have smutched it?
Ha' you felt the wool of beaver?
Or swan's down ever?
Or have smelt o' the bud o' the briar?
Or the nard in the fire?
Or have tasted the bag of the bee?

When one begins to extract from such a book as this, it's hard to tell where to stay his pen.—Its perusal has been to us like a summer's dream. It carried us back to that day of our youth when, with a worn copy of the old dramatists which we had found, we stole out into the green wood, and there seated beneath the whispering shade, read on and on, till the grey of evening obscured the page, and the stars shown out in the sky like the memory of the old Bards streaming through the mists of time. And since that day, how many a weary hour has it beguiled, how often have its memory of sorrow and stolen the sting of pain. All honor and praise to the genius which thus mocks the tomb and outlives ages—which ever to the mind of man can give untold delight, and fill the longing soul with visions of immortal beauty.

"Blessings be with them and eternal praise,
The poets, who on earth have made us heirs
Of truth and pure delight in deathless lays."

N. N.

The editor of the Maine Cultivator has lately made an excursion through several of the Eastern States. Amongst other notices of his tour we find the following concerning Danvers:—

We spent a Sabbath in the town of Danvers, about thirteen miles from Boston, and three or four from Salem. This is one of the oldest towns in Massachusetts, and at present, by its prosperity and rapid increase, affords evidence of the importance of building up in every possible way home manufactures and encouraging home industry.—The leather and shoe business constitutes the great source of wealth. Agriculture is in a flourishing condition. The land is a rich loam, easy of cultivation and productive. A vast amount of onions are raised in this town for the southern market. We saw acres in one field. Within a few years past, the town has suffered greatly from fires. About a year since a most disastrous fire destroyed thousands of dollars worth of property, and was only stopped in its fearful progress by the intervention of a street well lined with large ornamental trees. (See the importance of fostering the trees around your dwelling, and through your streets.) A recent fire in North Danvers has destroyed a large amount of property in which the instrumentality of trees as a barrier to the progress of conflagration—was again proved. Many beautiful streets and dwellings are to be seen in this town, and the place is properly considered one of the most beautiful country towns in Massachusetts. Capt. Foster, the old revolutionary patriot, lives here. It was here, too, that at the commencement of the Revolution, a company of young men started for Lexington to fight the battle of freedom, where six of their number fell. A neat granite monument has been erected to their memory in one of the squares in the village of South Danvers. Here, in the old burial ground, is the grave of the unfortunate Eliza Wharton, over whose trials and disappointments love-sick men and maidens have sighed unutterably. In short, Danvers is a place of prosperity, beauty, wealth and historical interest. We love it for these, but more especially do we regard it for the hearty grip we always find there from warm friends.

Thomas Hood. The punning propensity of the late Thomas Hood was well known. A friend of his, afflicted with the same mania, said, with the tears standing in his eye, 'Ah, poor fellow, died from motives of generosity—wanted to enable the undertaker to earn a lively Hood!'

DANVERS COURIER.

SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 12, 1845.

CASSIUS M. CLAY.

We have seen several numbers of the True American, the Anti-Slavery paper published in Lousville, Kentucky, by this noble-spirited individual and find it conducted in an able and independent manner. It requires no small share of moral, and we may say physical courage to conduct such a paper in such a location, and Mr. Clay seems to have these essential requisites. In repelling the misrepresentations and abuse that are heaped upon him by influential slaveholders of his native state, he exhibits such unflinching courage and determination as would do honor to a martyr.—But, lovers of peace as we are, we cannot regard as in good taste such a flourishing of bowie knives and duelling pistols as we sometimes see in his leading articles. Perhaps we cannot appreciate the circumstances with which he is surrounded. In addressing "slaveholders and sycoppants" he says that physical force is "a double game" that "Slavery is doomed—it must die. The first act of violence in its cause will hasten its fate."

He administers many hard knocks on the "peculiar institutions" and a late paper has an able argument on the Constitutional Question taking the following ground.

1. "I contend, then, that the original thirteen states had, and now have exclusive control over slavery within their borders, 2. That in all places where Congress had, or now has exclusive control, where slavery did not previously exist by the sovereign power of the thirteen states—there slavery does not and cannot exist. 3. That in no Territory in this wide empire is there now a slave; that the Supreme Court, under a writ of habeas corpus, is bound to liberate any person so claimed as a slave."

Under the first proposition he contends that as before the adoption of the Constitution no one state had a right to interfere with another state, so after its adoption they have no right to do it farther than was conceded in that Instrument. He says.

When the Union was formed, the states lost none of their power over slavery, except what was yielded up; and as none was yielded up, none was lost. For the National Union is a government of special delegated powers, and it declares that "the powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people."—Art. 10, a. The first proposition is tenable then, beyond the power of cavil.

Under his second and third propositions he maintains that all the so-called slaves in the Territories and the District of Columbia ARE legally free.—He quotes from the Preamble of the Constitution the words that "government was formed to establish justice and to secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and posterity" and says that by the same process by which Massachusetts liberated the African, there cannot be a slave in the District of Columbia. He also quotes "no person shall be deprived of life liberty or property without due course of law." He than illustrates his position by the following dialogue.

If James K. Polk holds us in slavery in the District, we ask for a writ of habeas corpus, which brings us before Judge Taney—we plead that we are a "PERSON" guilty of no crime, not that we are white or black or of Yankee or Virginia descent. "The defendant is a slave, by the laws of Maryland and Virginia." Taney. "They became extinct by the deed of cession—this instrument is the supreme law of the land here, it asks you only what crime this man has done." Mr. Polk. 'None." Mr. Taney. "The defendant is free." Mr. Polk. "The deed of cession guaranteed slavery by the assent of the legal organs of the Union—good faith requires that you restore me my slave." Mr. Taney. "An act done by a single individual, or by the combined authority of the whole Union, contrary to the Constitution is void; let the defendent go."—Mr. Polk. "Well, I acknowledge the justice of your decision, but this defendant does not come under the law: he is a "thing" not a "person," he is my "slave," and that you know makes one a thing by the slave code, everywhere." Mr. Taney, looking intently at the defendant, and then turning over to art. 5. A. sec. 2 and 3, "He has every semblance of a man, but perhaps is only a beast having by long disuse lost his tail, though descended of the monkey tribe: yet here I find the only slaves known to this constitution, called "persons." The thing then being a "person," no matter whether white, red, or black, "for all of these colors in the South are slaves, and as Upham has it, and common sense agrees, "words are not to be used without meaning"—the language can mean nothing else—and "we are not to use the same discourse with different meanings,"—[Up. Phi, p. 194, Portland edition, 1828] the "sale," the "thing," the "person," must go free."

SALEM AND DANVERS AQUEDUCT.

These waterworks which furnish so many families in Danvers and Salem with the pure element are of greater extent and require more care and attention than those who participate in their benefits are likely to know. The Fountains are situated in the vicinity of Spring and Brown's Ponds not far from the old road to Boston. It has generally been supposed that their supply of water came from Spring pond but recent topigraphical surveys have shown conclusively that Brown's pond is situated some 10 or 15 feet higher than its neighbor and probably supplies the Acqueduct. From these fountains there are three main lines of wooden pipe of 5 inch bore which convey the water to reservoirs in Salem from which it is conveyed about the streets of the city. Of these main pipes there are twelve miles laid under ground and about eighteen miles of smaller calibre for branches &c. The whole care of this thirty miles of wooden pipe, and the collection of the water rent is under the direction of a superintendent, who keeps a gang of hands constanly employed in finding leakages and supplying new pipe. After this expose we may be justified is saying that he is certainly the greatest pipe layer in this part of the country.

FIRE ENGINES.

Last Monday evening, two of our 'crack' Fire Companies, the Eagle and the Gen. Foster, had a trial of the capacity of their Engines to deliver water. They were to play ten minutes "tub and tub" through about one hundred and fifty feet of leading hose into each other, and the one first to run over to be the beaten party. Each tub was filled to within eight inches of the top and at a given signal they were to begin. Both commenced at the same instant and the scene was very animating. The Eagle's motion is horizontal and much slower than the engines of the common construction, but she throws more water at each stroke. In this case she performed well and there was quite a contrast between the steady powerful pull of her men and the rapid 'up and down' motion of the brakes of the Gen. Foster. The first three minutes there was scarcely any difference in either tub. The excitement grew with every minute among spectators as well as engine-men. Both machines were well manned—we counted thirty-nine men at the brakes of the Gen. Foster at one time, and the Eagle had men at the ropes on each side. It was found by the time five or six minutes had expired that the water was gradually failing in both Engines. This gave encouragement to the men and they pulled heartier than ever, so that the sweat ran almost as fast as the water. By the time they had got two minutes to to spare, both companies felt assured that they would be victorious, as in each tub the water was almost exhausted and each company had reason to believe that the other was running over. At the ninth minute the water in both became quite exhausted and both Engines stopped for want of floating capital. We have always remarked in such trials that both sides beat, but in this case neither side beat. Neither company had confidence, if they had breath, to give a single cheer. It was a draw game as the waste of water prevented any fair estimate of the quantity thrown by one Engine over that of the other. We came away with the impression that both companies were strong and efficient and that they had commanders of the 'tallest' kind.

[Since writing the above we have received the following piece of Machine Poetry from a subscriber, which we will here insert.]

THE OLD EAGLE ENGINE.

AIR—Sailor boys' dream

To moulder and crumble the old Eagle lay!
Its brakes and its Irons seemed destined to rot,
No person in passing it, looked out that way,
In fact, it had been by the people, forgot.

The Volunteer, Foster, and Torrent combined,
Were Engines well suited to conquer a fire.
The Old Eagle Engine was left far behind,
To linger alone like a hermitaged sire.

Its Hose and its Carriage, its Box, Tub, and all,
Its Pipe, large and bungling were covered with rust,
Its rickety, carcass aware of the fall,
Commended itself to the dark realms of dust.

* * * * * * * *

Ah! what is that flame which now bursts on our sight?
Ah what is that sound which now strikes on our ear?
'Tis a Fire in Tapleyville, raging with might,
The Eagle springs forth from its threatening doom,
And Basford's two horses help speed it along.
It cries as it passes "Stand aside give me room,
And onward it glides through the numberless throng.

The Eagle shot forth its large stream on the blaze,
As if in revenge for the doom it had met.
It conquered the element! give it the praise!
Old Eagle, Old Eagle, we'll stick by you yet!

☞The Essex County Whig has fairly come out in favor of a future city form of government for Lynn, and intimates that the first Mayor may now be among the pupils of their public schools. No such thing, Mr. Whig. You place the time too far off. Your population is almost up to the mark now. Your first Mayor is a full grown man. We can almost see him as he receives the town archives from the hands of the last chairman of the Seleetmen. We can also select the first board of Aldermen—all worthy men, fat and substantial citizens. Some of them measure the full size now, and others only want a few inches of the required circumference. No, Mr. Whig, your first Mayor is not the unfledged urchin you take him to be—The good people of Swampscott will not long be obliged to travel miles to deposit their votes, but will have their own ballot box under the supervision of their own Warden and Clerk.

☞We understand that, at the session of the New England Methodist Episcopal Conference which has just terminated at Lowell, the Rev. Mr. Colyer who has been preaching the last three years at Topsfield, was appointed to the pastoral charge of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Washington street in this town.

☞An Irishman, by the name of James Powers, has been charged with the commission of an attrocious outrage, (punishable with the highest penalty known to our laws,) upon a young Irish woman, a servant in a respectable family, residing in South Salem. The crime is alleged to have been committed on the night of the fourth of July, after their return in the cars from Boston, at midnight There was a great throng and confusion at the depot, and Powers, who was acquainted with the girl, under pretence of assisting her to find the place of her residence, conducted her to the unoccupied land in the vicinity of the south mill pond, where the crime was committed, according to the statement of the girl.—Salem Gazette.

Escape of a Convict. Daniel Cronin, the Irishman who robbed Mr. W. H. Chase's store, last winter, made his escape from the House of Correction, at Ipswich, on Friday last. His mode of escape was ingenious. He had been working in the shoemaker's apartment, but had contrived an opportunity to get into the blacksmiths' shop, where, by the aid of his shoe knife, he effected an entrance into the big bellows by the forge, and kept himself snugly concealed, all the time that search was being made for him about the premises. In the night he again crept forth, and with his knife succeeded in cutting a hole through the fence large enough to admit his body, and finally escaped.—Salem Gazette.

This fellow was caught at the settlement in this town, called New Dublin, under the following circumstances. It was supposed that as he wore the parti-colored uniform of the prison, he would be anxious to exchange it and that he would not venture to travel in the day time as such a dress would be sure to excite attention. Constable Torr and Mr. Stanley of this town and a gentleman from Salem, knowing that he had connections at New Dublin, watched about those diggins at night and saw a man approach. Wishing to identify him they fell into conversation, and he, suspecting their object, took to his heels and was soon lost in the darkness. His pursuers kept his track by following a dog they had with them, and gave the convict fair warning that if he did not stop, they would set the dog upon him. Disregarding this, he continued his efforts to escape and the dog was directed to attack him, which he did, seizing him by his dress and throwing him down, so that he fell an easy prey to his pursuers. This faithful animal is only of the middle size, and belongs to Mr. Stanley. He ought to be chosen assistant Constable at the next annual town meeting

---

PRODUCTIVE COW.

Mr. Phillip Osborn of this] town, has a cow of the native breed, which yields 20 quarts of milk per day, weighing 58 pounds. He sells this milk at 4 cts per quart, making a yield of $5,60 per week; about equal to a laborer's wages. To test the quality of the milk Mr. Osborn saved it one week and made 18 1-2 pounds of very fine butter. This cow has, we believe, more than once carried the premium at the Essex County Cattle Show.—When it is considered that inferior animals require almost as costly keeping as the best, we are led to wonder that more care is not taken by farmers in selecting the best stock.

FOR THE COURIER

Mr Editor—I am pleased to see that the columns of your valuable paper are open to the subject of Rail Roads, especially as it relates to the best means to be adopted by the people of Danvers to secure the advantages of a Rail Road. It is seldom that a subject of so much importance is presented to our consideration, The question whether we shall have a Branch to connect with the Eastern Rail Road, or a Branch to connect with the Maine extension Road at Malden, is the only one that divides the opinions of the people of Danvers on this subject.

The Malden Branch was selected as the best on account of the better location of the Maine Extension Depot at Boston, and the objections to the ferry at East Boston, and great exertions were made to procure a charter for this Branch and after a long hearing, the Legislature decided that we ought not to have a charter granted, and if this decision is correct it settles the question. The evidence produced before the committee has convinced many that strongly advocated the Malden Branch, that it cannot be granted, and under these circumstances they thought the best interests of the Town would be best consulted by giving the Eastern Rail Road Company the power to build a Branch to North Danvers with the consent of the Town of Danvers and not without. This would give the Town the power of availing itself of a Branch if such terms could be made with the E. R. Road Company as would make it advantageous to the Town. This measure so safe and conservative in its character, was opposed with great zeal by some and by their influence defeated. If these gentlemen had any faith in the wisdom of the people of Danvers to judge and determine what would be for their own interests, why should they have been afraid to entrust the power with them, and if not perhaps we ought to give them great credit for patriotism in depriving them of the power of injuring themselves.

I have been anxious to have our Malden friends attempt to show by the best evidence they can produce that their project is worthy of support: if they have the facts that will support them they ought in justice to themselves and the public to publish them for I believe the opinion is gaining prevalence that the E. R. R. Branch is the best for all concerned and that the Malden Branch cannot succeed. Your correspondent "Truth" proposes "at the proper time to express more fully his views upon the merits of the claims of a new road to Boston." I was not aware that any one thought of building such a road from Danvers. I would ask why is not now a proper time to give light on this subject in order to keep us out of the "Trap laid by the E. R. Road Company?" I hope the subject will have a full and free discussion, and the sooner the better that we may proceed harmoniously in what we may undertake in this matter.

Melancholy Casualty.—On Sunday, the 26th ult, Mr Alvarus Caswell, with his wife and two daughters, and a Miss Leach, of Bridgewater, were in a carryall, on their way to the Meeting-house at Squawbetty, and, while descending the hill near the village, some part of the harness became deranged, the horse was restive and ran, and the eldest Miss Caswell and Miss Leach thrown out—the carriage passed over Miss Caswell, and Miss Leach fell upon her head. Both were very much bruised. The injury Miss Leach received proved fatal—she was taken up insensible, and continued in great distress until Tuesday morning, when death ended her sufferings. Miss Caswell will probably recover. Mrs Caswell and the other daughter escaped without much injury, Mr Caswell received several kicks from his horse in endeavoring to stop him.—Quincy Aurora.

Served him right. One Joseph Deek was, a few days ago, muleted in damages to the amount of $500, in Madison county, Illinois, for the seduction of a poor German girl.

SHAVINGS.

Elopement of a Large Gang of Runaway Negroes. We learn, from a police magistrate, that sixty or seventy runaways passed through this city, last night, en route for Pennsylvania. They have eloped, doubtless, according to a preconcerted arrangement, from the neighboring counties of Prince George, Charles, and St. Mary's, in Maryland: and are said to be armed with scythes, bludgeons, and some guns They left the city by the road leading out through 7th street, and are probably hoping to make good their escape through the counties of Montgomery and Frederick, Maryland. We understand that nearly two hundred citizens of Washington and the vicinity have started in pursuit, who will, doubtless, succeed in securing most, if not all of them.—Washington Union, Tuesday.

Extensive Burglary. On Monday night the stores of Messrs. William Currier & Co. and Mr. P. B. Bass, on State street, and Mr Charles Hesseltine, on Pleasant street, were entered by false keys, and goods to the amount of some thousand dollars stolen. The rogues seemed to have been perfectly at their leisure—having very carefully selected the richest goods from each of the stores—Silks, Satins, fine Linens, &c. The loss of Messrs. Currier & Co. is about $250—Mr. Bass, about the same amount—and Mr. Hesseltine's about $500.—Newburyport Courier.

The Sub-Treasury. An editorial paragraph in the Union (the party organ) darkly intimates, yet with sufficient clearness to be understood, that the Secretary of the Treasury will make a push at the next session of Congress, for the re-establishment of the Sub-Treasury.

Worcester.—During the past year we have devoted more than $20,000 to the erection of new and more commodious school-houses. We may now safely challenge the comparison of our school-houses with the most approved structures of the kind, in respect to internal convenience if not in respect to external beauty.—Aegis.

Mr. I. Thompson Cornell, of Andover, was drowned on Sunday morning, in Marland's mill pond, while bathing.

A disgraceful affair occurred at Wilmington, Delaware, on Friday last, arising out of the pretended marriage of a respectable young lady by a Catholic Priest. The Military were called upon to put down the disturbance.

☞When the Acadia left England, N. P. Willis was seriously ill. He was suffering severely at the time from fever.

The New York Commercial says that from the 2d of April to the 20th of June, evening, there have arrived at the quarantine ground, thirty-one thousand four hundred and forty-three emigrants, of whom seventeen thousand six hundred and sixty-five arrived in June.

☞The number of passengers (full price) over the Eastern Railroad, on Friday was 10,403. Not the slightest accident occurred on the Road during the day or evening.

☞Gen. J. B. Dawson, member of Congress from Louisiana, expired at his residence near St. Francisville, on the 26th ultimo.

☞Hon. Louis M'Lane, our new Minister to England, has selected J. Randolph Clay, Esq. of Va., as his Secretary of Legation.

☞A dreadful accident occurred at Ithaca, N.Y. early in the morning of the 4th, by the explosion of a cannon used in firing salutes in honor of the day. Gen. Boyed, Professor S. Quimby, John Nix, Esq., and a young man, an aid of the Marshal of the Day, all citizens of Ithace, were killed, and several others dangerously wounded.

Pickpockets. Mr James Whiting, one of the Committee of Arrangements for the City ceremonies in honor of Gen. Jackson, had his [illegible] about $75 in money and several valuable papers, [illegible] coat pocket Wednesday afternoon. The pocket-book and papers, without the money, were found soon after in Charles street, and restored to the owner.—Bost. Atlas.

BRIGHTON MARKET—Monday, July 7 1845.
[From the Boston Daily Advertiser.]

At market 520 Beef Battle, 10 pairs Working Oxen, 1200 Sheep. 40 Beef Cattle unsold.

Prices—Beef Cattle—Extra 5 75; first quality 5 50; second quality $5 a 5 25 third quality 4 50 a $5.

Working Oxen—No sales noticed.

Sheep—Lambs from 1 50 to 2 25; old Sheep from $2 to 2 25.

Swine—None at market.

MARRIAGES.

In Salem, Mr. John A. Hay to Miss Mary E F. Stanford. Mr William Goodrich, of Danvers, to Miss Jane Dawson, of Salem.

In Lynn, Mr. George Graves to Miss Hannah Presser. Mr. Joseph H. Dearborn to Miss Mary Jane Thomson. Mr George Hobby to Miss Sally B. Stone.

In St Andrews, 19th inst, Cyrus K. Fiske, MD., of Salem, Mass., to Isabel H. second daughter of Jas Boyd, Esq.

DEATHS.

In Beverly, 3d inst, Mrs Hannah, widow of the late Mr. Edward Ponsland, aged 78. 5th inst. Ezra Austin, son of Samuel Lummus, aged 6 years.—Miss Nancy Wyer, aged 60.

In Haverhill, Mrs Nancy P. Smiley, aged 59.—Mrs Caroline, Graham, aged 34 years.

In Boston, on Sunday morning, Mrs Mary Ann, wife of of Mr George Roberts, editor of the Times, aged 29 years, 9 mos:

In Remsen, near Utica, N H., 21st ult, after an illness of one week, John R. Thomas, Esq., being the eighteenth victim in one school district, who have been hurried to their "long home" by a singular but fatal disease (commonly called the black tongue) which has been raging, particularly in the East part of Remsen, for the last four months.

PORT OF DANVERS.

ARRIVED.

Sunday, July 6.

Sch. Victoria, Allen, New York, flour and grain

Tuesday 8.

" Arenzamendi, Hatch, Philadelphia, coal.

SAILED.

" Victoria, Allen, New York.

ARRIVED

Thursday 10

" Leontine, Mathews, Bangor, lumber,

SAILED.

" Arenzamendi.

JORDAN LODGE.

The next regular meeting will be held at San-r's Hall on Wednesday evening next at 8 clock. Brethren of the Masonic Fraternity are vited to attend.

N. P. C. PATTERSON, Sec.

Danvers, July 12, 5845.

HOWARD TENT—No. 87—I. O. OF R. Meet every Monday evening, at 8 o'clock, in the new all, near the South Church, Danvers. Members of the rder generally are respectfully invited to attend. A uni-rmly punctual attendance of the members is requested.

C. E. BROWN, C. R.

WM. H. HOWLAND, Sec.

LIST OF LETTERS, remaining in the Post Office, at North Danvers, quarter ending July 1st, 45.

ewster Stephen B.		Kimball Obediah
ark Wm. H.		Kenison Hiram B. ark Henrietta J.		Lord Samuel
oss Samuel		Masury Lydia F.
ffin Enoch		Osgood B. H.	9
ude David B.	2	Proctor Charles A.
dge Mary B.		Page Eliza
mes Nelson		Prescott Joseph	2
iller James		Scott Agnes, in the care of Mr. Putnam iller Lydia
elker Oliver	2	Pearl Joseph
orbes Sophia E.		Putnam Polly
oodwin Thomas		Shepard Charles
arland Edmund		Shed Robert W.
am Robert W.		Scribner Jeremiah
ohnson John A.		Sheldon Sarah E.
osselyn Sally		Wheeler Alden	2
ohnson Alexander B.		Wilde G. A.

Persons calling for the above named Letters will please nention that they are advertised.

THOS. BOWEN, P. M.

july 12

LIST OF LETTERS remaining in the Danvers Post Office, July 1st 1845.

Abbot Albert K.	Hatch Eliab
Adams Samuel	Labadory Mary A.
Bullock Isaac	Lyon Eunice
Barc Mary,	Lord Nathaniel
Burleigh Wm.	Merrill Hannah
Buzzel Oliver A.	McIntire Samuel L.
Barr Mary G.	Marshall Robert
Burk Mr. T.	Marden Emily J.
Brown George	McKenny Charles
Boynton Edmund	McKenna B.
Brown Samuel A.	Martin Eliza A.
Burding Wm.	Schygatt Comfort
Bullock Martha	Newhall H. F.
Clark Samuel	Otis John
Carter R. R.	Porter Ezra
Carlow & Flint	Putnam Harvey
Chase Nathaniel	Pool Eben
Dodge Luke	Porter Joseph
Damon F. H.	Proctor Sally W.
Duyer Ellen	Potter Charles
Danlin J.	Poor Eben'r
Donovan Daniel	Paul James S.
Dyer Benjamin	Roberts Caroline
Emerson Perley	Richardson Abijah
Ellis W. R.	Richardson Wm. B.
Farnum Mr.	Ripley Lewis
Farbrother Marsena S.	Ribbless Riley
Felton Wm. T	Robbins Alexander
Fuller Elbridge	Romen John P.
Furbush Moses	Sanborn Nathaniel
Flint Mary	Sargent Betsy
Granville Stephen	Savage George
Gould Francis	Smith James P.
Gardner Henry	Swinerton A. P.
Gordon H. E.	Sherrock Eccles
Coodwin Thos L.	Spaulding Levi
Gale Andrew J.	Symonds E. P.
Hall William	Southwick Maria
Ham Orpah	Tibbets Ichabod
Hill V. E.	Thatcher M. M.
Hyde Taylor	Varney Moses
Hanniford L. B.	Woodbury Addison
Hoyt Susan M.	Whittemore Charles
Hubbard George W.	Whitten Matilda
Haines Ruth A.	Welch Nancy
Hazelton T.	Wilson Malachi
Hutchinson Sarah	Winchester G. K.

july 5

NEW BOOKS.

EVELINA, or the History of a young Lady's introduction to the World, by Miss Burney, in two volumes

No. 32 Harper's Illuminated Bible; just published.

NEW MINIATURE VOLUME. The Bridal Wreath, a Wedding Sourvenir, edited by Percy Bryant. Just published and rec'd by july 12 Stearns's Building, Salem.

W. & S. B IVES.

NEW BOOKS.

Letters from Italy: Tales, by Edgar A. Poe; Journal of an African Cruiser by Hawthorne; New Facts in Mesmerism. The Seeress of Prevorst—being Revelations concerning the Inner Life of man—from the German; Phreno-Mnemotechnie Dictionary, by Gourand; Pres. Hopkins' Sermon, a fresh supply—received.

NEW VOLUME of the 'Books which are Books.' The Indicator, by Leigh Hunt, in 2 parts, just received.

NEW LAW BOOK, by Judge Story. Commentaries on the Law of Promissory Notes, Guaranties of Notes, and Checks on Banks and Bankers, with occasional illustrations from the commercial law of Continental Europe. by Jos. Story, LL. D., Judge in the Supreme Court, and Professor of Law in Harvard University—1 vol, full calf.

Just published and for sale by

J. P. JEWETT & CO.,

july 5 193 Essex street.

SHEETS to the half ounce. J. P. JEWETT & CO., have just opened a lot of French Linen Letter Paper, blue and white, so thin that 5 sheets will only weigh half an ounce. Also, some thicker, 3 sheets, beautiful papers, at the Book and Stationery Store, opposite the Mansion House, FRENCH Fountain Ink Stands. The best Ink Stands ever made, perfectly easy and convenient, and not liable to get out of order. In this stand the Ink is kept free from the air and dust. A supply just received at the Stationery Esiablishment of JOHN P. JEWETT & CO.

july 12

GOLD BREAST PINS. A beautiful assortment of Ladies' Breast Pins, just manufactured at SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN'S 291 Essex street, and selling low, next above Mechanic Hall. july 12

GOLD PENS.—A most desirable article to write with, attached to which is an ever pointed pencil, at SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN'S, next above Mechanic Hall. july 12

PALM LEAF FANS. Two cases just received at 24 Washington street.

Also—1 lot Canton Feather Fans—1 do painted Muslin Canton Fans—1 do. painted Paper Fans.

july 1 Selling cheap by KEITH & MASON.

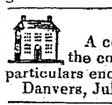
NEW EMBROIDERIES. Inside Hdkfs. with and without Collars, embroidered in front—Also Collars of every price and pattern.

A lot of children's real Lisle Thread Gloves, just received from auction, at KEITH & MASON'S, selling very low. july 5

BARGAINS.

A GOOD Stock of READY MADE CLOTHING is offered at Great Bargains, at No. 14 Front street, viz: Dress and Frock Coats; Tweed do; Gingham do; Imitation Gingham do; Linen do; Thin Jackets; Satin, Marseilles and Valencia Vests; Cassimere, Doeskin and Satinet Pants; Overhauls; Green Jackets; Fine white Shirts, red flannel, check and stripe do; Under Shirts and Drawers together with a good assortment of Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Doeskins and Vesting, which is sold by the yard, or made into garments at the very lowest cash prices.

Also, an assortment of Stocks, Neck-ties, Cravats, Scarfs, Bosoms, Dickeys, Hdkfs, Suspenders, Socks, Wallets, Cnaes, Caps, Travelling Bags, &c., all of which will be sold at a small advance of the cost, at



EDWARDS'S,

june 28 14 Front street, Salem.

REMOVAL.

JOHN U. ANABLE has removed to No. 8 Boston street, about one eighth of a mile east of his former stand, where he will give his attention to the WHEELWRIGHT BUSINESS, in all its various branches, which will be done in a faithful manner, and with despatch.

N. B J. U. A, feeling grateful for past patronage, invites the public in general, and friends (if he has any) to give him a call, 3m july 12

TO LET.

A convenient tenement for a small family, on the corner of Walnut and Fulton streets. For particulars enquire of

Danvers, July 12 SAMUEL TUCKER.

NAUMKEAG SALOON.

No. 272 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.

THE subscriber would respectfully inform his friends and the public, that he has taken the above place, and will be constantly supplied with

Iced Cream, Soda, Mead, French Mineral Water, Fruit, Confectionary, &c &c.

J. G. SHED.

 Parties supplied at short notice, and on reasonable terms. june 28

COAL, COAL.

PEACH MOUNTAIN R. A. COAL, from the Delaware Coal Company, a well known and superior article, of the various sizes.

White Ash SCHUYLKILL COAL, of various sizes, a prime article.

LEIGH COAL, a prime article for furnaces and stoves.

MIDLOTHIAN COAL, for Smith's use. a prime article.

Also—WOOD, BARK, LIME and HVY. For sale by

JOHN DIKE,

july 12 27 Water street.

LETTER ENVELOPES, made of blue thin Letter Paper. For sale by the hundred or dozen, at J. P. JEWETT & CO's. July 12

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

THE undersigned would inform their friends and the public, that they have formed a connection in business under the firm of

SHORT & LUMMUS,

and have taken the stand lately occupied by WILLIAM KIMBALL, No. 246 Essex street, Salem.

(Nearly opposite the Market.)

where they will open this morning an entire new

STOCK OF DRY GOODS.

among which may be found Barage and Mohair SHAWLS, Mantles, Balzorines, Barages, French and Scotch Ginghams, Lawns, Alpaccas, M. de Laines, Black and Blue Black Alepines, Linens, Linen Drilling, Plain and Ribbed Gambroons, HOSIERY, GLOVES, etc., Together with a large assortment of House-keeping, Lace and Thread Goods.

JOSEPH SHORT,

F. H. LUMMTS.

Salem, June 21. tf

M. TELYEA

HAS a splendid assortment of BROADCLOTHS, DOESKINS, and VESTINGS, of the latest patterns, which are worthy the attention of purchasers.

GARMENTS CUT AND MADE, in the most fashionable style, or according to the fancy of the customer, and warranted to fit.

A lot of very nice SCARFS, and Gentlemen's LINEN GLOVES.

South Danvers, June 14, 1845.

NEW LUMBER WHARF.

THE subscriber having taken the wharf, called the WEST wharf, near the Bridge, in South Salem, would take this opportunity to inform his friends and the public generally, that he intends to keep for sale an assortment of BOARDS, JOIST, CLAPBOARDS, SHINGLES, PICKETS, LATHS, etc. etc., of as good quality as can be found in the city.

He has also made arrangements at the Eastward for furnishing Dimension Frames, and filling orders of every description, at short notice.

Having been a practical builder for the last fifteen years, the subscriber flatters himself that his knowledge of the business, and the Lumber trade generally, will enable him to give satisfaction to those who may favor him with their patronage.

As he will be at the Eastward part of the time, he will be able to give his personal attention to the purchasing of Lumber, etc. He has made arrangements with Mr. A. F. CLARK to be on the wharf during business hours, who will wait upon those who may favor him with a call.

Salem, May 10, 1845. tf H. B. WARD.

House and Land for Sale.

The subscriber offers for sale a large two story Dwelling House, on Holton street, convenient for two families, and in good repair. The said house now rents for $120 per annum, and will be sold low.

Terms of sale will be easy for the purchaser, as a large part of the amount may remain on mortgage. Apply to

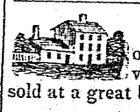
may 24 tf WM. SUTTON.

GRASS CLOTHS FOR SKIRTS.

JUST RECEIVED at 24 Washington street, a large lot Grass Cloths for Skirts, extra wide and clear. Also, Real India Feather Fans.

KEITH & MASON.

Purchasers of Linen Goods, will do well to examine the assortment of KEITH & MASON, 24 Washington street, consisting of Linen, Damasks. Table Covers, Napkins, Dahlias, Pillow-cane Linens, Linen Sheetings, Crash, diapers, Huckaback, Shirtings, and every quality of plain linens from 2 cents per yard to $1, 25.



N. B Every article warranted pure Irish Linen.

june 21

TO LET.

ROOMS in Lunt's Buildings, including two very pleasant Chambers, on the second story, under ASHLAND HALL. Also, a Basement Room, in the building occupied by Mr. Francis Dane well located for a provision dealer. Also, a large finished Chamber, in the third story of said building. For terms enquire at this Office.

june 28

FOR SALE.

A two story house and lot of land on Holton street. The House is convenient for two families and will be sold at a great bargain. Inquire of

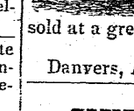
HIRAM GRANT.

Danvers, April 19, 1845.

REMOVAL.

SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN



Rich Jewelry and Fancy Goods,

HAVE removed to the New Store, No. 291 Essex street, (next above Mechanic Hall) where they will keep constantly for sale Gold Finger Rings, Breast Pins, Bracelets, Lockets, Keys, Gold and Silver Pencil Cases, Silver Thimbles, Silver and Plated Table and Tea Spoons, Butter Knives, Silver Plated and Brittania Ware, Shell, Horn, and Ivory Combs, Pocket Books, Purses, &c., &c.

N. B. All kinds of Jewelry repaired in a superior manner and warranted. Old Gold or Jewelry, made over or exchanged for new.

S. & C. having acquired a thorough knowledge of the business in New York, as well as our success for the past five years in this city, will, we feel assured, enable us to execute with approbation any orders entrusted to our care.

☞Thankful for past patronage, we solicit a continuance of the same. tf March 15.

FOR SALE CHEAP.

One good second hand CHAISE,

" " " BUGGY WAGON.

" " " LIGHT WAGON.

By THOMAS TRASK, Main street:

June 7 tf

☞RICHARD H. CHAMBERLAIN'S☜

Hosiery, Glove, Thread and Yarn Store,

No. 236 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.

R. H. C. respectfully gives notice to the citizens of Danvers, that he has now on hand, and is weekly receiving, a full and complete assortment of Spring and Summer Hosiery, the principal part of which are of DOMESTIC MANUFACTURE, and much superior in durability, to those imported. The following are some of the kinds, viz:—

LADIES'

Bleached, Unbleached, Mode, Slate, Black and Mixed Cotton HOSE.

Ribbed—black, mode, slate and white do do.

Open-worked—white, unbleached, and mode do do;

Raw Silk—black, white and mode do;

Woolen—Alpacca, Angola, Merino, Cashmere and Worsted do.

CHILDREN AND MISSES'

Hose, of every description, open-worked, silk-clocked, open and embroidered, plain and ribbed, of all colors and sizes;

MEN AND BOY'S SOCKS.

Merino, Angola, Worsted, Yarn, Cotton and Linen.

Ladies' Gent's Children's and Misses'

GLOVES, in great variety, comprising nearly 100 dozen of all kinds and sizes;

ALSO, AT COST.

The large STOCK of PIECE GOODS, in the above Store, will be offered at COST for THIRTY DAYS, among which are the following Goods, viz:—Mousseline de Laines; Balzorines; Lawns; Ginghams; Prints; Patches; Tickings; Flannels; Diapers; Crash; bleached, unbleached and col'd Table Covers; Linens; Linen Damasks; white and colored Cambrics; Lace Musiins; fig'd, striped and checked Cambrics; Alepines; Alpaccas; bleached and unbleached Sheetings and Shirtings; Shirts; Bosoms, Collars, Suspenders, Cravats, etc. tf june 28

Opening of Spring!

Magnificent, Chaste and Original Designs for Remodeling

"OAK HALL!"

FOR SPRING TRADE!

OPENING OF "OAK HALL" FOR THREE MONTHS!

Advice to Professional Men, Merchants Clerks with moderate Salaries, Farmers, Mechanics, Seamen, Firemen and others, VISIT OAK HALL!

ARRIVAL OF SPRING GOODS!

To Wholesale Dealers.

THE OPENING

This Morning, for Three Months!

I would again most respectfully inform the citizens of Boston, and strangers visiting the city, (after a delay of six weeks, during which time I have not been idle,) I have completed my arrangements on the most

MAGNIFICENT SCALE,

greatly surpassing my former arrangements. The Hall is splendidly decorated with almost

MAGIC ELEGANCE!

The architecture being Gothic, has given the artist an opportunity to display his taste to advantage. The paintings which adorn the walls are so perfectly chaste and appropriate, that every one will be fully compent sated the trouble of visiting it. The design and effec- of the interior, especially when

ILLUMINATED IN THE EVENING,

Is unequalled in any store this side of the Atlantic. Much praise is due to the artist, for his share in beautifying this Establishment. I flatter myself that the good taste of my fellow citizens and townsmen, will was the FIRST and ONLY ONE that adopted the

"EXTREME LOW PRICE SYSTEM,"

Before "OAK HALL" was in existence, it was not a very uncommon thing for a gentleman to pay from $45 to $50 for a suit of clothes. For one half of this sum or less. a perfect and entire suit can be obtained at this Establishment, cut and made with that ease and grace, that distinguish my garments from others. From this

EMPORIUM OF FASHION

first originated the Gothic style of architecture in Boston, and Oak Painting, &c. now so much in fashion. To those who have not visited this great

PLACE OF RESORT,

on account of the name of the street, I would most respectfully say, that where my establishment is located was once the Court end of Boston, and at this time is visited and patronized by the most influential and respectable individuals. Man, not unlike the fields, and Trees, once covered with a beautiful suit of Green is now breaking from its Coat of Ice and Snow and, having its lusty suit of nature soon to be warmed into animation, and renew its beautiful suit of Green, So with Man—wrapped up in his Overcoat, he now on the opening of Spring, finds his under suit rusty and shabby, and is not suitable to wear. The next hing is to find a good place to fit out at a

REASONABLE PRICE,

and to be sure and have a GOOD FITTING SUIT, that will set upon the form with ease, grace and gentility.

FIVE GOOD REASONS

Why you can purchase at OAK HALL less than at any other Establishment in the United States:—

FIRST—You do not pay me for YOUR suit, and the INDIVIDUAL'S that did not pay previous to you, as MY business is Cash on delivery.

SECOND—If any Garment made to order is not pleasing in every particular, it is no inconvenience to take it back and make another, as Ready Made Garments are directly in my line.

THIRD—I purchase my Goods in large lots, extremely cheap, and give my customers the benefit, by selling them at the smallest advances,

Fourth—I go by the motto.

LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS

OR AS SOME SAY,

"NO PROFITS AT ALL."

That I'll leave with my customer to decide.

FIFTH—My facilities are such at this time doing a

LARGE BUSINESS,

that I can afford to sell at

VERY LOW PRICES!

BOYS' CLOTHING.

I have lately added to my already extensive manufactory of Boys' Clothing, rooms for the manufacture of Boys' Clothing, and shall keep a large supply of every variety and kind, always on hand.

TO WHOLESALE DEALERS.

You will find the greatest variety of every style of Fresh Manufactured Clothing, adapted for Spring, to your different Trades, and will be sold extremely low in large lots!

AT RETAIL.

One of the largest and, best selected Stock of Fresh Spring Goods ever in "OAK HALL," and will be sold at the following low prices.—

PANTALOONS.

2500 pair of Fancy Spring patterns of Satinet Pants, at	1 75 to 2 50
3000 pair Steel Mixt Pants,	1 62 to 3 00
2200 do Sheeps Grey Pants	1 75 to 3 00
2500 do Canada Grey do,	1 75 to 3 00
3000 do Black Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 50
5000 do Lavender Cassimere Pants.	3 00 to 4 00
2200 do Super black do Pants, with fancy stripe,	4 00 to 500
1500 Super blue Broadcloth and Cassimere Pants	3 50 to 4 50

THIN COATS.

3500 Coats and Sacks, American Gingham,	75 to 1 00
5000 Coats and Sacks, Scotch Gingham,	1 25 to 1 75
4800 Coats and Sacks Scotch Gingham, satin figure,	1 50 to 1 75
2700 Coats and Sacks, Webster Check	75 to 1 25
3750 Coats and Sacks, London Plaids,	1 25 to 175
4000 Coats and Sacks, of Linen and othergoods,	1 00 to 1 75

THIN PANTS.

8000 pair thin Pants of every quality of Goods at low prices, say from 50 cents to $2 50 per pair.

VESTS.

300 light Vests, a very pretty affair for Spring,	50c to 1 00
4500 Dark Valencia,	75 to 1 50
5500 Fine Valencia, dark and light	1 50 to 2 50
2700 Satin Vests, figured and plain,	2 00 to 3 00

DRESS AND FROCK COATS.

5000 super Dress Coats, all colors, green, blue, black, olive, &c. from $4 to $15.

1750 super Frock Coats, all colors, Mulberry, browns, etc. from $6 to $16.

All the above cut in the latest style, and made up expressly for Spring Trade.

500 Business Coats, at low prices, say from $2 to $5

2200 Tweed Coats, water proof, from $3,75 to $5.

FURNISHING DEPARTMENT.

Great Display of Furnishing Goods at the following low prices, viz:

150 dozen White Shirts—Linen Bosoms, Collars and Ribbands.		75c to 1 25 each
100 do	White Shirts, plain.	50c to 75c do
150 do	Fancy Shirts,	62 1-2 to 87 1-2
200 do	Twilled Shirts,	50 to 62-1-2 do
25 do	Rich Figured Satin Scarfs,	Low prices.
20 do	do do do do
50 do	do do do do
50 do	Spring Pattern Cravats,	12 1-2 to 75c
25 do	Rich Fig'd Satin do.	75c to 1 25
50 do	Stocks, of every desorpition, such as Satin Bombazine, &c. and made in the latest Spring Style.
1845		37 1-2 to 1 50
10 do	Brussells Carpet Bags, and others,	1 00 to 2 75
75 do	Smoking Caps,	12 1-2 to 25c
200 do	Braces of every description,	12 1-2 to 50c
20 do	best Kid Gloves,	50c to 1 00
25 do	Thread do	25 to 50c
20 do	Silk do	50 to 75c
100 do	Linen Bosoms—all kinds,	25 to 75c
300 do	do Collars, latest pattern,	10 to 25c
250 do	Canes,	17c to 1 00
325 do	Umbrellas,	50c to 1 50
50 do	Glazed Silk Caps,	1 00 to 1 25
100 do	do do	25 to 37c
505 do	Silk Pocket Hdkfs	25 to 75c

An endless variety of Fancy Articles, such as Gold and Fancy Studs—Hair Brushes—Clothes do—Pocket Combs—Dressing do—Tooth Brshes—Cologne—Bosom Pins—Fancy Soaps—Silk Purses—Guard Chains—Pant Straps, &c. &c.

A LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO THE TRADE.

My furnishing Goods are purchased from first rate hands, at low prices, and will be sold at small advance to the trade at my

EXTENSIVE LONG ROOMS,

OAK HALL BUILDING,

GEORGE W. SIMMONS,

General Tailor, Draper and Outfitter,

32, 31, 36, and 38 Ann street

Opposite Merchant's Row—BOSTON.

apr 19 3m

HARRISON'S REMEDY

FOR THE PILES.

THIS is an ointment prepared by the undersigned, and has been so thoroughly tested in so many cases that I never hesitate to warrant it to those who will give it a fair trial, observing the directions around each box which give a plain treatise on the disease and full instructions as to diet mode of cure, &c. One application at night never fails to relieve the greatest pain and anguish. I am ready to refer to numerous individuals who have proved this Remedy to be the safest, surest, speediest and cheapest

CURE FOR THE PILES.

My agent in Exeter writes thus: "the Pile Remedy which you left me is all sold, please send me soon a further supply, as a number of persons in this town think very highly of it. N. GILMAN."

MORE TESTIMONY.

Salem, Aug. 6. Mr. Harrison: The box of ointment which I had from you has worked like a charm—I have used it only one night, and I am cured. I had used Hays' Liniment as I stated to you, with no benefit but rather was worse, it causing more inflammation. Yrs, J. W.

BLEEDING PILES CURED.

Mr. Harrison—Having given your Peristaltic Lozenges and Pile Remedy a fair trial, I have the satisfaction to inform you that they have operated wonderfully in my case. I had not been able for months to do any work at my trade, owing to exhaustion from bleeding, but I now feel myself cured. The severe pain which I had in my stomach is gone, and my strength is fast returning. I had used various remedies to no purpose, until I tried your medicine. I can also state that Capt. Benj. Ireson of this town has also experienced great benefit from your Remedy. I cheerfully recommend the medicine to all suffering with that distressing complaint—the Piles.

EDWARD H. LEWIS.

Lynn, Sept. 27, 1844.

For sale at 256 Essex street, by the Proprietor,

J. S. HARRISON Jr.,

Agents—in Danvers, S. PROCTOR, Jr.; Marblehead—E. Arnold; Lynn—Ladd, and Holder; Beverly—Clarke; Newburyport—C. Whipple; Andover—Amos Abbott; Topsfield—Bixby and Merriam, Haverhill—Nichol; Boston—Ransom & Stevens, Tompkins, Southers and Fowle.

mch 15 6m

NEW PIANOFORTE MUSIC. Celebration Quick Step, composed and dedicated to the I. O. of O. F., June 19th, by D. Hale Haskell.—'The Wounded Horsemen—a celebrated Ballad:' 'The Garland of Love—arranged as a Glee for four voices—with Accompaniaments;' 'The Sisters of Charity—a duet;' 'The Spider and the Fly, by Russell;' 'Variation Brilante, by Herz;' 'Flora's Invitation—sung at the dedication of the Hall of the Mass. Horticultural Soc.—by Taylor;' 'Masonic Ode, sung on Bunker Hill, June 24, on the occasion of placing the Tablet in the base of the Monument with an Engraving Monument:' Cadeew Jeune Filles—a Collection of Marches, &c. by Bohu-yewich—Received at july 11 J. P. JEWETT & Co's Music Store.

Flour, Corn, Oats, Shorts, &c.

Landing from schr Pioneer,

200 BARRELS Genesee Flour;

20 1-2 do do do

500 bushels Mealing Corn;

500 do Yellow do

500 do Shorts;

20 bbls Pea Beans;

4 bbls Marrowfat Peas;

100 bags Fine Salt;

—Also, in store—

100 bushels Killam Oats, for seed:

100 do Herds Grass Seed;

100 do Red Top do do;

500 do Clover do; (Northern;

For sale by DANIEL RICHARDS,

At the old and well known stand on the Plains.

North Danvers, April 19, 1845.

JOB PRINTING.

The subscriber being furnished with a sortment of modern type is prepared to kinds of Job Printing promptly and as neatly as at any other office in the state, viz:—cheap.

BOOKS AND PAMPHLETS,

BILLS OF LADING,

CHECKS, BLANKS,

SHOP BILLS, LABELS,

POSTERS, HANDBILLS,

CARDS, CIRCULARS, &c.

GEO. R. CARLTON,

Courier Office, Central St.,

DANVERS DYE HOUSE.

THE subscriber would inform the citizens of Danvers that he has established himself at Danvers Plains, near Maple street, where he will attend to the dyeing and cleansing all kinds of

SILK AND WOOLEN GOODS,

His former experience in England, added to his knowledge of the drugs and dyes in use in this country, will enable him to produce colors, which for cheapness and durability cannot be excelled by any other establishment.

☞Goods left at Mrs. Gould's, Main street South Danvers, or at the Dye House, will meet with prompt attention.

WILLIAM ROWBOTHAM.

Danvers Plains, June 7, 1845. tf

REMOVAL.

POOLE & STEDMAN,

MAKERS OF

TRUNKS, HARNESSES, &c. AND COACH AND GIG TRIMMERS,

For the better accommodation of their customers, have taken the lower part of the shop recently occupied by Mr. Jonathan Ward,

No. 24 St. Peter Street.

SALEM.

Thankful for past patronage, a continuance of the same is solicited.

S. A. POOLE,

G. B. STEDMAN.

june 21. 1845.

BENJAMIN EDWARDS,

DRAPER & TAILOR,

No. 14 FRONT STREET, SALEM.

GARMENTS Cut and Made to order, and Fashionably, and warranted to give entire satisfaction

Constantly on hand, a good assortment of BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES, AND VESTINGS.

Also—Neck Stocks Italian Cravats, Scarfs, Shirt Bosoms, Collars, Feetings, Braces, Umbrellas, Hair and Clothes Brushes, Cologne Water, Wallets, and other articles necessary for Gentlemen's use.

Grateful for the very liberal patronage which has heretofore been bestowed upon the establisment, he hopes by care and attention to business to merit a continuance.

Any order for Goods in the TAILORING LINE, attended to with fidelity and despatch.

All Garments Repaired and Cleansed CHEAP.

Any of the above articles if not on hand when called for, will be furnished at short notice.

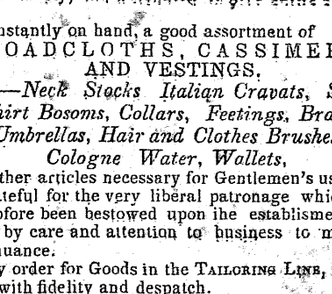
mch 15 tf

Great Bargains

ARE NOW BEING HAD AT THE

Washington Street Clothing Store, Salem.

at prices which cannot fail to give entire satisfaction.



Great care has been taken in the getting up of every garment, all of which is warranted equal, if not superior to any Clothing in the city.

The subscriber continues to take measures as formerly, and all Garments bespoken, will be made according to the wishes of the customer, and will guarantee both the style and fit.

☞BOY WANTED, as an Apprentice.

S. CHAMBERLAIN, Jr.

Salem, March, 15. tf

EASY SHAVING AND HAIR CUTTING.

B. B. WILLIAMS respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has removed to the store formerly occupied by Lambert & Merrill, (under the Courier Office,) which he has fitted up in a neat manner, and is now prepared to wait upon those who believe that

"Man wants but little beard below,
Nor wants that little long."

Champooing, Hair Cutting and Shaving is performed to the satisfaction of all who may favor him with their patronage.

Danvers, March 15, 1845. tf

Bargains in Gloves and Hosiery,

At 24 Washington street,

A LOT of unbleached embroidered Cotton Hose received this day and selling for 25 cents.

Fine Bleached Hose, 12 1-2c; do brown do 12 1-2.

Boys' Mixed Socks of every size.

Children's Cotton, Lisle Thread, Silk and Kid Gloves.

june 14

JUST received a full assortment of the celebrated EAGLE PLOUGH, improved. Also, Garden Rakes & Partridge's celebrated Manure Forks, Rakes, Hoes, and Castings for repairing the various parts of almost all kinds of Ploughs now in use.

J. & H. HALE, 215 Essex st. Salem.

May 3

TOPOGRAPHICAL MAP OF PALESTINE by J. H. Colton. Compiled principally from the observations of Messrs Robinson and Smith. The religious Press and many of the secular papers have spoken in high terms of this map. For sale by G. W. & E. CRAFTS.

174 Essex St. Salem.

GOLD PENS. A superior article just received and for sale cheap by G. W. & E. CRAFTS.

174 Essex St. Salem.

STRIPED AND CHECK'D SHIRTS—A prime and good assortment, well made, at

june 14 EDWARDS, 14 Front St.

STATE LAWS.

An Act requiring Constables to give Bonds in certain cases.

Be it enacted, &c.—

Sect. 1. The selectmen of any town, may require that any person who may be chosen constable, shall give bonds to the inhabitants of said town, with sureties to be approved by the selectmen, in a penal sum not less than five hundred dollars, with condition for the faithful performance of his duties as constable in the service of all civil processes which may be committed to him; and any person injured by any breach of the condition of said bond, may at his own expense, institute a suit thereon in the name of said inhabitants, and prosecute the same to final judgement and execution.

Sect. 2. In such suit the writ shall be indorsed by the person or persons for whose benefit the suit is brought, and in case neither of the said persons is an inhabitant of this Commonwealth, it shall also be indorsed by some other responsible indorser, residing within this Commonwealth, and the like proceedings shall be had thereon to final judgement, as in a suit by a creditor on administration bonds.

Sect. 3. If judgement in such case shall be for the defendants, execution shall issue for costs against such indorser or indorsers, in like manner as if they were plaintiffs of record in such suit.

Sect. 4. No constable, of whom such bonds shall be required, shall be competent to serve any civil process, till such bond shall be duly executed, approved, and filed in the town clerk's office, and no person of whom such bond shall be required as aforesaid, shall be liable to any fine for the non-acceptance of the office of constable.

Sect. 5. This act shall take effect from and after its passage. Approved by the Governor, Feb 24, 1845.

An Act to incorporate the Concord Steam Power Company. Be it enacted, &c.

Sect. 1. David Loring, William H. Milton and Samual O. Mead, their associates and successors, are hereby made a corporation, by the name of the Concord Steam Power Compony, for the purpose of manufacturing and printing cotton and woollen goods, and furnishing and letting steam power, to be used for manufacturing and the mechanic arts in the town of Concord, in the county of Middlesex, and, for these purposes, shall have all the powers and privileges, and be subject to all the duties, restrictions and liabilities, set forth in the thirty-eighth and forty-fourth chapters of the Revised Statues.

Sect. 2. The said corporation may hold, for the purposes aforesaid, real estate to the amount of one hundred thousand dollars, and the whole capital stock of said corporation shall not exceed the amount of three hundred thousand dollars.

Approved by the Governor, Feb. 26, 1845.

An Act in relation to the Compensation of Sheriffs.

Be it enacted, &c.—

Sect. 1. The third section of the seventy-fifth chapter of the acts of eighteen hundred and forty-three, entitled "an act regulating the compensation of sheriffs," is hereby repealed.

Sect. 2. The several sheriffs of the Comonwealth shall receive the same compensation from the State or county treasuries, as is prescribed by the provisions of the Revised Statutes, for services rendered by them in the distribution of proclamations, precepts, or other documents, or in returning votes to the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth.—And if any sheriff shall wilfully neglect or refuse to return any votes committed to him by the selectmen of any town, he shall forfeit a sum not exceeding two thousand dollars.

Sect. 3. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Approved by the Governor, March 20, 1845

S. R. BOTT,

DRAPER & TAILOR,

No. 148 Essex Street, Salem,

TAKES this method of informing the public of Danvers and vicinity that he has for sale one of the richest and BEST selected assortments of Broadcloths, Cassimeres & Vestings ever before offered in Salem. The Stock is of the latest Spring and Summer styles, and cannot be surpassed by any establishment in the city, which will be sold by the yard, or made into Garments, in a style that CANNOT be surpassed in this or any other city.

☞ Strangers from the country would do well to call at this establishment, as they select their Goods with the most perfect confidence, that each article is as good in quality, and as low in price as can be obtained at any other store.

N. B. The report of Fashions received every month.

Salem, March 15, 1845.

THOMAS TRASK,

Near the Eagle, Main Street, Danvers,

KEEPS constantly on hand, a good assortment of

SADDLES AND HARNESSES,

of every kind and quality. Also—Fire Buckets, Solid Leather, Rivetted Double and Boot Top Travelling Trunks, Common Hair do., Valises and Carpet Bags, Chaise, Stage and Draught Collars, Military Equipments, etc.

ENGINE HOSE furnished at short notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

CHURCH CUSHIONS, of all kinds and quality, made at the shortest notice.

T. T. has on hand as good an assortment of Harnesses as can be found at any other establishment.

A good article of Neats Foot Oil, constantly on hand.

Danvers, June 7, 1845. 1y

French Goods from New York.

THE subscribers have opened this day, an assortment of French Goods to which they invite the attention of the ladies.

3 boxes Real French Embroidary Inside Hdkfs;
3 " " " " Collars, various styles.
3 " French Bentilla Laces, for Trimmings,
A variety of Thread Lace Insertions;
Real French Linen Cambric Hdkfs, hemmed stitch;
Embroidered Linen Cambric Hdkfs;
" Muslin for Dresses;
Boxes French Kid Gloves;
New styles Laces for Capes, some very rich.

The above Goods were selected on Wednesday in New York, and are of the very latest styles.

KEITH & MASON,
24 Washington street.

june 7

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

JONATHAN W. OSBORNE has taken into Co-partnership MICHAEL L. WHIDDEN, and they will continue the

Painting, Glazing & Papering

business, at the old Stand, No 10 PARK STREET, under the firm of

OSBORNE & WHIDDEN.

Particular attention to

SIGN PAINTING,

IMITATIONS OF WOOD, MARBLE, BRONZE, GROUND GLASS, &c.

mch 29 1y

THE

Massachusetts Mechanic Association

HAVING AWARDED TO

GOVE, LOCKE & CO.,

and no one else, a DIPLOMA for specimens of

The Best Ready Made Clothing

Exhibited by them at the Mechanics' Fair in September last, must satisfy the community that the location of an establisnment is of but little importance, and that the idea of being confined to a particular section of the city, in order to obtain a

GENTEEL GARMENT,

has been rendered obsolete, by the above named award, as without prejudice the award was made to those who deserved it. Being convinced themselves, that their CUSTOM WORK has not been surpassed in any point of view, still they have been obliged to stem the current against the strongest prejudices, and have, by unremitted attention to the tastes and desires of their patrons, to a very considerable extent, overcome them, resulting in a successful trade, and encouraging them to prosecute the NEW ENGLAND BRANCH OF THEIR BUSINESS, with renewed vigor, and to devote a large share of their attention the present season, to the

Highest Grade of Custom Work!

Being now prepared with every facility adapted to the various classes in the community, they can furnish any style of Garment which their notion or fancy may dictate—aiming

In point of Style and Fashion,

to be in abvance of any other

CLOTHING ESTABLISHMENT!

and being at all times supplied with materials of every description, they are prepared to turn out at the shortest notice

AS GOOD AND AS GENTEEL A GARMENT, as can be obtained in the United States, and have entire confidence in making the assertion, having Cutters constantly

ENGAGED ON CUSTOM WORK:

who are inferior to none in this region, enabling them to assure those who have favored them with their patronage, that no pains will be spared to deserve a continuance of their support—and to those who lack confidence in a Clothing Establishment, because it is situated on

COMMERCIAL STREET,

they would say that a specimen of their work can be seen in nearly everysection of the city, particularly on the backs of

THE MOST GENTEEL PEOPLE!

and to them they refer, in relation not only to the treatment which is universally tendered to them by all concerned in the

COMMERCIAL ARCADE!

but more especially in regard to the price as the Proprietors have by experience ascertained that they can furnish a

FIRST RATE GARMENT!

at a medium price, equal in every respect to those furnished up in town, at an exhorbitant one. Their Stock of Clothing, adapted to the

SPRING SALES!

is far superior to any previous year, and the patronage of the public is respectfully invited, whether in pursuit of a single garment or otherwise, as their stock embraces every article essential or requisite to the wardrobe of a gentleman, while its magnitude enables them to supply COUNTRY DEALERS in any quantity at the shortest notice, and on the best terms.

WHOSESALE DEALERS!

located any where from Maine to Georgia, or even in Texas, can find at this concern an assortment of Wearing Apparel adapted to their sales, and are invited before concluding their

SPRING PURCHASES!

—TO CALL—

At No. 60 Commercial street,

BOSTON,

Sign of the Monument,—and visit the proprietors of

COMMERCIAL ARCADE,

GOVE, LOCKE & COMPANY.

Boston, March 29, 1845 3m

DRUGS AND MEDICINES.

A GOOD assortment of Drugs, Medicines usually kept in a Druggist Shop, constantly for sale a the lowest prices, by

DR. JOSEPH SHED, (Ag't.)

(OPPOSITE THE MONUMENT,)

And a variety of Patent Medicine, consisting of Brinckerhoff's Health Restorative; Buchan's Hungarian Balsam; Schenck's Pulmonary Balsam; Truflant's Compound; Dandelion and Tomato Bitters; Davis' Compound Tooth Wash; Harrison's Peristaltic, and Worm Lozenges; Thompson's Eye Water; Warren's Croup Syrup; Whitwell's Opodeldock; Different kinds of Pulmonary Balsams, and genuine Thomsonian Medicines; Jew David's or Hebrew Plaster; also, Brandreth s, Indian Vegetable, Beckwith s, Lees' Dean s, Parr s, Richardson s, Relf's Asthmatic, and a variety of other Pills. Candies, Nuts, Almonds, Citron, Currants, Nutmegs, Mace, Cloves, etc. Particular attention to Physician's Recipes.

Danvers, May 31, 1845.

J. & H. HALE,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

HARD WARE GOODS AND CUTLERY,

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC

HOUSE KEEPING ARTICLES AND FANCY GOODS,

Agricultural Tools and Ploughs

PLOUGH CASTINGS, FRICTION ROLLERS AND CRANKS,

Iron and Copper Pumps and Lead Pipe,

WINDOW GLASS,

CAMPHENE,

CAMPHENE LAMPS, HANGING, SIDE AND ASTRAL—A GREAT VARIETY OF STYLES,

Cut Glass, Britannia, Brass, Bronze and Mantle Lamps,

CARPENTER'S TOOLS,

HOUSE TRIMMINGS,

Shoe Makers' Tools, Nails, Thread and Pegs.

BOILER DOORS AND OVEN MOUTHS,

Furnaces, Cast Iron Hollow Ware, Tubs, Pails, Mats, Cut Nails, Emery, Zinc, Lead, &c.

No. 215 Essex Street, SALEM, Mass.

march 15 tf

JOSEPH SHED,

NOTARY PUBLIC AND ACTING MAGISTRATE,

Opposite the Monument.

All kinds of writing; conveyancing and Probate business attended to promptly.

☞ A great variety of BLANKS constantly on hand and for sale.

Danvers, May 24, 1845.

New Furniture Store.

SALEM FURNITURE & FEATHER WARE-HOUSE.

205 1-2 ESSEX STREET. 205 1-2

(Two Doors East from the Market,.)

JOSEPH WALLIS would respectfully inform his friends and the public that he has taken the rooms recently occupied by T. Needham, Esq., where he will keep constantly on hand and for sale an extensive and well selected assortment of which he will sell at the lowest cash prices, among which may be found,

CABINET FURNITURE,

Sofas, Sofa Beds; Windlass, Cot Trundle and common Bedsteads; Secretaries; Bureaus; Mahogany, Card, Work, Centre and Dining Tables;—Mahogany, Cane-seat and common Chairs; Mahogany, Cane-back and common Rocking Chairs;—Children's Toy, Rocking and Dining Chairs; Settees and Settee Cradles; Cribs; Grecian and common Wash Stands; Portable Sinks; Portable and Gentleman's Writing Desks, Toilet, Dining and common Pine Tables; Looking Glasses; Swing and Toilet Glasses. Fancy Boxes, a great variety;—Mattresses; and every article usually found in his line of business.

CLOCKS.

J. W. intends keeping on hand a large and well selected assortmeni of Wood and Brass Clocks from the best of manufacturers—all of which we can feel confident in warranting. Those about purchasing this article will do well to call.

FEATHERS.

Live Geese and common Feathers; a great variety.

N B. J. W. will still continue to Manufacture FURNITURE at the Old Stand, No 29 Lafayette, corner of Ward street, where he will keep on hand a good assortment of

Cabinet Furniture, Feathers, Looking Glasses and Clocks.

Salem, April 12, 1845.

G. W & E. CRAFTS,

BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURERS AND STATIONERS,

174 ESSEX STREET, SALEM,

HAVE constantly on hand, and will manufacture to order, all kinds of Blank Books, from the best paper, ruled to any pattern, and bound in a neat and substantial manner.

FINE STATIONERY,

of almost ever description, adapted for counting rooms and schools, comprising in part, Letter and Writing Papers, ruled and plain; Drawing Papers; Note, Tissue and Wrapping Papers; Wafers; Sealing Wax; Seals and Steel Pens of every variety; Quills of every description; wafer Cups; sand boxes; writing fluids and inks; penknives; razors, &c.

PRINTING, RULING AND BINDING,

Printing of shop bills, cards, bill heads, catalogues, &c. executed in the neatest manner and on the best terms. Ruling, to any pattern desired, at short notice. Binding, of every description, executed with despatch.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

A constant supply of school books, of the best editions, together with every kind of School Stationery. Also, all kinds of miscellaneous books furnished at the lowest rates. mch 15

Ploughs & Cultivators,

MANUFACTURED BY

RUGGLES, NOURSE & MASON,

And other Agricultural Tools

FOR SALE BY

DANIL RICHARDS,

Danvers Plains, March 29, 1845.

CHARLES H. MANNING,

CABINET MAKER,

Near the Sign of the Lamb, Main Street,

DANVERS, MASS.

FURNITURE manufactured on the most reasonable terms. Also—CURRIER'S TABLES made and repaired cheap.

SHOE-MAKERS' PEGGING BENCHES made as above. oct 15

REMOVAL.

DR. J. A. ROBINSON,

SURGEON DENTIST,

SALEM,

WOULD respectfully give notice that he has removed from his old stand, opposite the City Hall, to No. 20 Washington street, recently occupied by A. E. Phillips, where he is ready to perform all operation, in Dentistry, in a most thorough and workmanlike manner.

either by atmospheric pressure or springs, enables him to furnish them at rates which cannot fail to suit those in want of an article of superior quality.

His method of inserting Teeth, both singly and on plate, with or without Gums, has been found to be satisfactory and successful as combining beauty of finish and adaptation, with all the requisites of mastication and articulation.

Particular attention paid to filling Teeth so as to render them serviceable for many years, and also to the regulation of Children's Teeth.

N. B. For sale as above, a first rate article of TOOTH POWDER. 6m mch 15

Danvers Express and Baggage Waggon

LEAVES Danvers and Boston, daily (Sundays excepted.)

All orders left at McIntire's Hotel, or Poole & Jacobs' store Danvers, No. 14 Blackstone, and No. 1 Fulton streets, Boston, will be promptly attended to.

Goods handled with care.

S. F. TOWN.

April 19, 1845. 1 y

Periodical Depot!!

REMOVAL.

LUTHER CHANDLER, the Proprietor of the Depot for

PERIODICALS AND CHEAP PUBLICATIONS,

formerly kept at No.3, (on the East side of Washington street, has removed to the store,

Corner of Washington and Norman Streets,

(Directly opposite the Old Stand,)

where he intends to keep a full supply of all the Periodicals and New Works, as well as the Daily and Weekly Newspapers, as soon as they appear from the press.

In removing from the old stand he confidently hopes to receive the continued patronage of those who have formerly received his publications and he pledges himself that he will use his best exertions to procure all New Works promptly and sell them at the lowest prices.

His long experience and extensive acquaintance with those publishers and others engaged largely in the Book Trade will enable him to answer orders for particular Works, with great promptness, and at the most favorable prices.

REFRESHMENTS,

such as are usually kept at Restaurateurs, and SODA AND MEAD, will be furnished at the new stand, by S. SAUNDERS.

REMEMBER—Corner of Washington and Norman Sts., near the Railroad Station, Salem.

may 24 3m

ADAMS & RICHARDSON,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC

HARDWARE.

MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS FOR THE SALE OF

Cut Nails, White Lead, Sheet Lead and Lead Pipe,

NO. 207 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.

Joseph Adams,
C. M. Richardson,
march 15 tf

Improved Curtain Fixtures.

A NEW and beautiful article of Curtain Fixtures, of American Manufacture, far superior to those now in use, and not so likely to get out of order. For sale wholesale and retail at the manufacturer's prices, at the Hosiery and Glove Store, No. 236 Essex street, Salem, by

june 14 R. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

Fales' Cathartic, or Vegetable

PURGATIVE LOZENGES.

ARE the best and most popular medicines for people of all ages, country, and climates, and in every condition of life. They are compounded of the essences of vegetables from many nations. Their taste is inexpressibly delightful. They cause no pain in their operations, but the first change of feeling after taking them is, that of pleasure, and they cleanse the stomach and bowels more perfectly than any other purgative medicines.

The most wonderful and surprising cures have been effected by them in different parts of the earth. How these purgative lozenges do speedily purify the blood, and substitute health for sickness, is a mystery to the most eminent members of the healing art. Such purgative medicines must become universal, and supersede the use of all other purgative compounds; and as long as disease continues to afflict people, so long will these Lozenges remain unrivalled in all coming time throughout the world. Every person who travels should carry them—every family should keep them—and every sick man, woman, or child should take them.

FALES' WORM LOZENGES,

Are a safe and sure remedy for worms. Children love them. They act like a charm in removing the symptoms such as starting in sleep, grating the teeth, paleness about the mouth and nose, occasional sickness at stomach, precarious appetite, swelled bowels, and general feverish habit. The child falls into a quiet sleep, and the worms are stupified and expelled and the child, as far as heard from, in every instance has been cured. Price, 25 cents per box, with full directions; sold at Commercial street, Boston,

FALES' COUGH LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common Colds and Coughs, Whooping Cough, Inflamation of the Throat and Lungs, in the Croup or Hives, and more certain to act satisfactory than the celebrated Hive Syrup. The most happy effect is obtained in a few moments; the symptoms disappear and the disease is broken up by the magical effect of these Lozenges. Full directions accompany each box, are found at the Depositopy 96 Commercial staeet, Boston.

FALES' DYSENTERY LOZENGES,

Are a safe and agreeble temedy for Dysentery, Diarrhœa and Bowel Complaints of children. Particular attention must be paid to the directions which are on each box.

FALES' CAMPHOR LOZENGES,

Are beneficial in all common and sick head ache, and where there is a sense of tightness or weight over the eyes, in erruptive diseases, such as Measles and Small Pox. Also in Mania, Epilepsy, Melancholy, Hysteria, in St. Vitus Dance, and in all cases of languor and oppession of the Vital powers, may be taken with safety by women and children in all conditions. Full directions accompany each box.

Is now so extensively known and justly celebrated that further comment upon it will be useless, we can say, however, that among the many thousands who have purchassed the Tonic, in this and other countries, none have returned with complaints, while thousands have expressed not only their approbation, but their wonder and admiration on beholding its effects. A few bottles only can be had at 96 Commercial street, Boston.

CLEAR OUT YOUR RATS.

The gnawing and antics of these destructive creaturcs can be hushed forever in your house and store, if you will procure a box of the genuine.

MADAGASCAR RAT EXTERMINATOR,

and use it according to directionf. You cannot depend upon it unless obtained at J. J. FALES' No. 96 Commercial street Boston.

—AGENTS—

Salem, J. S. HARRISON, J. Stone, jr., H. Whipple, S Badger, jr; Lynn, J. Moulton jr., Geo. Lummus, Wm. Cogswell, Wm. L Ladd; Swampscot, W. Thompson; Marblehead, E. Arnold Wm. Stacey; Danvers, S. Proctor, Jos Shed, New Mills, H. S Pope, A. P Perley & Co, C. Simonds, Calder & Foster; Topsfield, B. P. Adams; Beverly. A N Clark. ep6m mch 29

EDWARDS' LINIMENT.

For Sprains, Cuts, Bruises, Stiffened or Swelled Joints, Chilblains, Chapped Hands, Numbness and Rheumatism.

THIS invaluable artidle is now for the first time offered to the public, after having been in use for twenty years, with unusual and astonishing success within the circle of the proprietor's immediate influence. It has received the unqualified approbation of some eminent Physicians, and also Mariners and Mechanics.

It is also recommended, and more than a thousand cases might be cited, when it has been used for Horses in cases of lameness or when galled, &c. &c.

The public are assured that in offering the above we do recommend that which has not the least semblance of QUACKERY, but on the contrary it has done great and lasting good in its efficacious power and healing qualities.

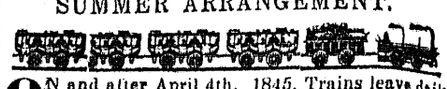
As this medicine has been so long known in Salem and its vicinity, and as there are many that would avail themselves of it if they knew where it could be obtained, therefore the subsciber would now offer it to the public. It will be found always on hand and prepared by the subscriber.

BENJ. EDWARDS,

No. 14 Front street, Salem, Mass.

Wanted—trusty and worthy AGENTS in the neighboring towns and vicinity.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL AGENTS.



DANIELS, POOR & CO., Danvers, Mass.
Benjamin F. Browne, Salem Mass.
Smith & Fowle, Boston, "
H. F. Skerry, Bangor, Me.
Charles Whipple, Bookseller, Newburyport.
Wm. R. Preston, Portsmouth, N. H.
John S. Caldwell, Belfast. Me.
Wm. H. Palmer, Lynnfield.
Joseph Edwards, jr., Lynn.
Charles Edwards, Marblehead.
Wm. Edwards, Beverly.

March 15, 1845. tf

TWEED COATS. Another lot of Tweed Coats, just received and selling cheaper than the last lot may 10 at EDWARDS', 14 Front street Salem.

EASTERN RAILROAD,

SUMMER ARRANGEMENT.

ON and after April 4th, 1845, Trains leave daily (Sundays excepted,)

Boston for Portland, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 P. M.
" Portsmouth, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 5 1 2 P.M.
" Somersworth, Great Falls, 7 1-4 A.M.; 2 1-2 P.M.
" for Newburyport, 7 1-4 A.M., 2 1-2 and 5 1-2 P.M.
" for Salem, 7 1-4, 9, A.M., 12 1-4 2 1-2, 3 1-2, 5 1-2, 7 1-2 P.M.

Salem for Portland, 8 A.M., 3 1-4 P.M.
Salem for Portsmouth and Newburyport, 8 A.M. 3 1-4, 6 1-4 P.M.
Portland for Boston, 7 1-2 A.M., 3 P.M.
Saco for Boston, 8 A.M., 3 1-2 P.M.
Somersworth, Great Falls for Boston, 8 3-4 A.M. 4 1-4 P.M.
South Berwick lot Boston, 9 1-4 A M, 4 3-4 P.M.
Portsmouth for Boston, 6 1-2, 10,* A.M., 5 1-2* P.M.
Newburyp't for Boston, 7 1-4, 10 3-4* AM. 6 1-4* PM.
Salem for Boston, 7 1-2, 8 1-2, 10 1-4 11 3-4,* A.M. 2 1 4, 5, 7,* P.M.

*Or on their arrival from the East.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Trains leave Marblehead for Salem, at 7 1-4, 8 1-2, 10, A.M.; 2, 4, 4 3-4, 7, P.M.

Leave Salem for Marblehead, at 8, 9 3-4 A. M. 1, 3 1-4, 4 1-4, 61-4, 8 1-4 P. M.

A Merchandize Train will leave Boston, Portland, and all intermediate places every day.

Freight Office in Boston, No. 17 Merchants Row, and on the line of the road at the several Depots.

JOHN KINSMAN,
Master of Transportation.

apr 12

Summer Arrangement of the

DANVERS AND SALEM

HOURLY COACHES

THE Danvers and Salem Hourly Coaches will in connection with the Eastern Railroad, leave Danvers and Salem at the following hours, viz:

Leave Danvers at	7	A.M.	Leave Salem at	8	A.M.
" "	8 1-4		" "	9 1-2
" "	9 3-4		" "	11 1-2
" "	11 1-4		" "	12 3-4
" "	1 3-4	P M.	" "	3	P.M.
" "	2 3-4		" "	4
" "	4 1-2		" "	6
" "	6 1-2		" "	7 1-4
" "	7 1-2		" "	9

For seats apply at Macintire's Hotel, or at Joseph G Shed's store in Danvers, and at the Essex House and Salem Hotel in Salem.

Railroad passengers taken at the depot on the arrival of the cars from Boston and the East.

☞ Extra Coaches furnished at any hour on reasonable terms.

SYMONDS & TEEL.

apr 19 tf

NEW ENGLAND

TRUSS MANUFACTORY.

THE subscriber continues to manufacture Trusses of every description, at his residence at the old stand, opposite 264, No. 305 Washington street, Boston, entrance in Temple Avenue, up stairs. All individuals can see him alone, at any time, at the above place.

Having had twenty years' experience, he has afforded relief to three thousand persons, for the last five years. All may rest assured of relief who call and try a Truss of his manufacture. He is now confident he can give every individual relief who may call upon him.

The public are cautioned against the many quacks who promise what they cannot perform.

Having worn the different kinds of Trusses, more or less; that have been offered to the public for the last twenty years, from different patent manufactories, and now continues to wear those of his own manufacture, he is now able to decide, after examining the rapture, what sort of Truss is best to adopt to all the cases that occur; and he has on hand as good Trusses, and will furnish any kind of a Truss that can be had elsewhere.

Of Trusses, among which are all the different kinds similar to those that the late Mr. John Beath, of this city, formerly made, and all others advertised in Boston, together with the patent elastic spring Truss, with the spring pads.—Trusses without steel springs—these give relief in all cases of rupture, and a large proportion produce a perfect cure—they can be worn day and night; improved hinge and pivot Truss; umbellical spring Trusses, made in four different ways; Trusses with ball and socket joints, Trusses, for Prolapsus Ani, by wearing which persons troubled with a descent of the rectum can ride on horseback with perfect ease and safety.

Mr. Foster also makes Trusses for Prolapus Uteri, which have answered in cases where pessaries have failed. Suspensory Trusses, knee caps, and back board, are always kept on hand As a matter of convenience and not of speculation, the undesigned will keep on hand the following kinds from other manufactories, which they can have, if his does not suit them; after a fair trial they can exchange for any of them;—Dr, Hull, s Read's spiral Truss; Rundel's do; Salmon's ball and socket; Sherman's patent; French do; Marsh s Improved Truss; Bateman s do, double and single. Stone s Truss; also, Trusses for children of all sizes.

Any kind of Trusses repaired at short notice, and made as good as when new.

Ladies wishing for any of these instruments, will be waited upon by Mrs. Foster, at the above place. Mrs. F. has been engaged in the above business for ten years.

He likewise informs individuals he will not make their complaints known to any one, except when he is permitted to refer to them—it being a misfortune, and young persons do not want their cases known.

The readers of this paper, are respectfully invited to call and examine the variety of Trusses now on hand.

May 31 JAMES FREDERICK FOSTER.

REMOVAL.

BOWDOIN'S DAGUERROTYPE ROOMS removed from Mechanic Hall, to the adjoining building above, 298 Essex street, where he has rooms built expressly for the purpose of taking Miniatures in any weather.

Mr. B. tenders his sincere thanks to his friends and the public, for their liberal patronage the past year, and respectfully solicits the continuance of public favor. He has recently purchased a large Achromatic instrument for the purpose of taking GROUPS and LARGE PICTURES, which enable him to give pictures of all sizes, equal to those taken in New York or Boston He has formed a connexion with an establishment in New York, from whence he receives all the new improvements, and materials connected with the Art, which will enable him to give better pictures for less prices than can be obtained in Boston.

Miniatures set in every variety of Lockets, Frames, Cases, &c.

☞ Persons visiting Salem, and those about going to sea, can have a perfect likeness completed in a few minutes' time.

 Miniatures set in a neat Morocco Case for $1 50. Exhibition rooms open to visiters through the day.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law

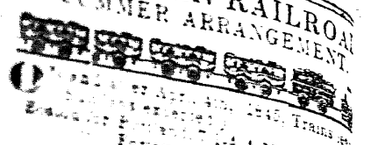
OFFICE IN FELTON'S (late Osborne's) Building, Danvers, March 29th. tf

---

POOLE & JACOBS,

MANUFACTURERS OF

Boot and Shoe Linings, Skivers,



AND BINDINGS,

AND DEALERS IN

WOOL,

MAIN ST., DANVERS, MASS.

EASTERN RAILROAD
SUMMER ARRANGEMENT

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH

Summer Arrangement of the
DANVERS AND SALEM
HOURLY COACHES

THE Leaves ... Hourly Coaches ... in connection with the ... leave Danvers ... hourly ...

... A M Leave Salem ...
... P M ...

... at Masonic Hotel, or at ... Danvers, and at the Essex ... Salem.

... taken at the depot or ... from the East.

... for hire at any hour or day.
SYMONDS & TEL

NEW ENGLAND
RUSS MANUFACTORY

... includes to ... description, at his residence ... Washington street ... at the above place.

... experience, he has attend ... to the last five years ... with care and try a Truss ... satisfy him he can give ... upon him.

... against the many quack ... perform.

... kinds of Trusses, more ... to the public for the last ... chanical manufactories, and now ... manufacture, he is ... the nature, what sort of ... that occurs and is ... and will furnish any kind of ...

... Trusses for Prolapsus Uteri ... where ladies can have ... and back board, as ... convenience and ... keep on hand the ... varieties, which they ... after a fair trial they ... —Dr. Hull's Head's ... and Sheridan's Trusses for ...

... at short notice ...

... every variety of Lockets, Fras ... Salem, and those about ... a perfect likeness completed in a ...

... set in a neat Morocco Case ... rooms open to visitors ...

ALFRED A. ABBOTT.
Attorney and Counsellor at Law
Peabody's (late Osborne's) Building
March 20th tf

TOOLE & JACOBS,
MANUFACTURERS OF
Quarter and Shoe Linings, Skivers,
AND BINDINGS,
AND DEALERS IN LEATHER,
DANVERS MASS

REMOVAL.
... PAPERHANGING ROOMS ...
... Mason Hall ... where he ...
... purpose of taking ...
... sincere thanks to his friends ... patronage the past ... continuance of ...
... purchased a large ... of taking GROUPS ... which enable him to ... taken in New ... connexion with ... from whence he ... and materials ... enable him to give ... can be obtained in ...
... every variety of Lockets, Fras ... Salem, and those about ... a perfect likeness completed in a ...
... set in a neat Morocco Case ... rooms open to visitors ...
FREDERICK FOSTER

DANVERS COURIER.

VOL. 1. DANVERS, (Mass.) SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 19, 1845. NUMBER 18.

THE DANVERS COURIER
IS PUBLISHED BY
GEORGE R. CARLTON,
EVERY SATURDAY MORNING,
A few doors North of Mackintire's Hotel,
CENTRAL ST.—SOUTH DANVERS.

Terms—$1 50 if paid in advance, or $2 00, if not paid within one month of the time of subscribing.

The carriers are not allowed to sell any copies of the Courier. Single copies may be obtained at the office, at 5 cents each.

Advertisements will be inserted on favorable terms.

5 25 a 5 50; seeond quality $5 a 5 25; third quali 4 50 a $5.

Sheep—Lambs from 1 50 to 2 25; old Sheep fr 1 75 to 2 75.

Swine—A lot old hogs at 4 1-2c; small Sho entire lot 4c; selected 5c. At retail, from 5 to 6 2c.

MARRIAGES.

In this town, North Parish, on the 3d inst, by Mr Worcester, Mr Stephen Granville to Mrs Elizabeth B Wilkins.

In Salem Mr John W. Rhodes to Miss Elizabeth Goldthwait. Mr Asa Clark to Miss Hannah D Ke Mr Charles Harrington, of Danvers to Miss M Knight, of Salem. Mr Robert A. Fuller, to M Mary A. Devereux. Capt. William B. Grave Miss Abba, daughter of Mr. Philip Manning.

In Lynn, Mr Elisha Pope to Mrs Emma B. H of Marblehead. Mr Samuel Graves to Mrs M Upton.

In Haverhill, Mr Ellsworth Webster, of New b port, to Miss Emily A P. Sargent, of Haverhill.

DEATHS.

In this town, on the 11th, John Henry, aged months, son of John and Mary A. Morrison.

At North Parish, on Sunday last, Mr And Batchelder, aged 73.

In Salem, Mrs Catharine Andrew, widow of late John Andrew, Esq., aged 64. On Wednes afternoon, Mr Benjamin B. Gardner, aged 44. death was very sudden—supposed to be from an fection of the heart.

In Cambridge, on Saturday last, Rev. Hen Ware D, D., aged 76.

In Chelmsford, Mr Wm. Fletcher, aged 90 years. He was one of the minute men that wen Concord, and followeh the enemy to Cambridge their retreat.

At Northampton, 14th inst, Mr Reuben Taylor, a pensioner of the revolution.

At Conway, Mr Timothy Catlin, 92, a revolut ary pensioner.

PORT OF DANVERS.

Saturday July 12

ARRIVED.

Sch China, Nickerson, New York Flaur Grain.

Sch Packet, Hall, Pembroke, Wood & Bark.

Sunday 13

Victor Jones, New York, Flour & Grain.

North West, Haskell, Calais, with Lumber.

Tuesday 15t

SAILED,

Schrs China and Packet.

Wednesday 16

" North West and Victor.

CARD.

The Volunteer Engine Company, No. 8, te their hearty thanks to the Gen. Foster Engine pany, No. 7. for the collation provided for the

WHAT IS THAT, MOTHER?

'What is that, Mother?'—The lark, my child!
The morn has just looked out and smiled,
When he starts from his humble grassy nest,
And is up and away, with the dew on his breast,
And a hymn in his heart, to yon pure, bright sphere.
To Warble it out in his Maker's ear.
Ever, my child, be thy morn's first lays Tuned like the lark's to thy Maker's praise.

'What is that, Mother?' The dove, my son!
And that low, sweet voice, like a widow's moan,
Is flowing out from her gentle breast,
Constant and pure, by that lonely nest,
As the wave is poured from some chrystal urn,
For her distant dear one's quick return.
Ever, my son, be thou like the dove,
In friendship as faithful, as constant in love.

'What is that, Mother?' The eagle, boy!
Proudly careering his course of joy:
Firm, on his own mountain vigor relying,
Breasting the dark storm, the red bolt defying,
His wing on the wind, and his eye on the Sun,
He swerves not a hair, but bears onward, right on.
Boy, may the eagle's flight ever be thine,
Onward, and upward, and true to the line.

'What is that, Mother?' The swan, my love!
He is floating down from his native grove,
No loved one now, no nestling nigh,
He is floating down, by himself to die;
Death darkens his eye, and unplumes his wings,
Yet his sweetest song is the last he sings.
Live so, my love, that when death shall come,
Swan-like and sweet, it may waft thee home.

SELECTED TALES.

THE WILL:

OR HOW MUCH DOES THAT MAKE?

BY ROBERT A. WEST.

Donald McDougal was the eldest son in a large family. He was early initiated into the mysteries of systematic penuriousness, so that the last latent spark of generosity which might have saved him from actual congelation was well nigh extinguished. In addition to the art of keeping, he was also familiar with a complete practical education in the art of obtaining property, for he had been compelled to earn his bread before he ate it swan at the hands of his father, Mr. McDougal, senior, inculcated the maxims of covetousness under the reputable character of lessons of prudence. He instructed Donald in many practices of secret dishonesty, under pertext that the world was now grown deceitful and wicked, and that no man was safe unless he determined to secure himself, by always acting as if it were plainly understood that each would cheat his neighbor whenever the opportunity occurred; and the only disgrace was to be detected. Donald had often been told that nature was very moderate in her demands, and that she always resented any imposition upon her powers as an unwelcome burden; that excess in eating and drinking was the grand cause of disease, that if he would really enjoy life and enjoy it long, he must learn to abridge himself of all luxuries and neatly comforts, and measure the supplies to all corporeal requirements by the sheer necessity of the case.

Nor was Donald without example as well as precept. His father embodied his whole code of maxims in his own conduct, and showed their full dimensions and spirit and beauty? There was matter connected with dollars and cents in which he was not perfectly an adept, for he seemed to have an intuitive perception of the proper side of all profit and loss questions. He could calculate to the most remote and improbable consequences and was as faithful in seizing as he was ingenious in the discovery of all chances of interest. Partly by indefatigable industry and partly by inde fensible artifice, he had amassed a large fortune; though few would have so concluded from the house he inhabited, or the style in which he lived. At length his constitution yielded to the joint effects of starvation, care and age, and the old man died before he had learned this plain lesson—how to enjoy his property.

After his death the will was read, and it was found, (greatly to Donald's chagrin and astonishment,) that though all the property was left to his hopeful son, the old man had been so bent upon Donald's establishment in the principles and practice of prudence, that he forbade the property to be touched until his son had first realized a certain sum: he was then to take possession of both principal and interest. Mingled feelings now agitated the breast of Donald. At one moment he fel so enraged that he was disposed to revenge himself on the departed spirit of his father by squandering all his present property in enjoying himself and seeing the world; at another the sum to be hereafter realized and the result of his father's pains and labor awakened a ray of hope in his almost desponding heart. He resolved to try. It needed little time of consolitary reflection to him under the loss of such a parent; he shed no tears, partly because he cared less about his father than his father's property.

Donald McDougal, by the double influences of early precept and example, became a successful merchant. He enlarged the sphere of his father's business, was more exorbitant in his prices, more usurious in lending money, more devoted and laborious in his employment. In short he became a complete shark. He was covetousness personified. His dark eye glanced like lightning from under the thunder clonds of his knit eyebrow; his forehead was deeply wrinkled with furrows which anxious care had ploughed, his wan visage told a piteous tale of a famished stomach, while his aquiline nose, screwed mouth and protuberant chin, reminded one of—I cannot find an illustration worthy the thing to be illustrated. He never married, for a family would be expensive; nor keep a servant, for he said it was the glory of man to be independent. He soon realized the sum required by his father's will, took possession of all the property, which, in the course of seven years had accumulated to a vast sum. But his acquisitions brought him no additional satisfaction beyond the inconsiderable pleasure of knowing that he possessd. He dared not touch his property, for with every increase of it, came an increasad desire still to accumulate.

The spare regimen which he had adopted, and considerable bodily fatigue, soon impaired his health: or perhaps a more powerful cause than either, was his deep, incessant solicitude, which, like a canker-worm at his heart, cat at the very vitals of all happiness and comfort. His eye lost its lustre and his nerves became a perfect barometer. Suspicion fixed her seat in her watchful eye and misery laid her rude fangs upon his heart.—He had no rest by day, nor sleep by night. For some time he rejected the advice of friends and neighbors, who knowing but little of the true cause and character of the complaint, entreated him early to take the opinion of an eminent physician. Ht length however he consented, but it was of no avail, and finding that to have a physician quartered upon him was very expensive, and never having had much confidence in the efficiency of the materia medica he soon dismissed him without having derived any advantage from his attendance—for who can minister to a mind diseased?

He was now compelled to give up his business which he disposed of to some advantage. He gathered in all his debts and called in such sums of money as were out at interest, for satisfaction in the entries upon his ledger, and stamped papers and parchments, that he knew he should feel when all his property was converted into hard cash. In the true spirit of a miser, and under the suspicion that he would soon be confined to his bed, he converted every thing he possessed into gold, selling even the house he occupied, reserved only a life tenancy at an easy rent, and the major part of his already scanty furniture.

His suspicions were soon realized. He became enfeebled, and found it necessary to make a nurse the inmate of his dreary abode. And now the miser became truly wretched. The demons avarice, suspicion and despair, haunted him night and day. He relished no food, nor derived spirit from any cordials. His intellect had evidently suffered prior to his confinement, but he had now frequent attacks of delirium. His conversation was at all times about his money, and he required his nurse fifty times a day to rattle the large tin boxes which contained his gold. If he dreamed, he would talk about his treasures, and often was heard to hold an earnest conversation with some of those with whom he had formerly done business; more than once he awoke himself by struggles with some spirits of imagination who was wresting his wealth from him. In order to be fully assured that he had really lost nothing in such conflicts, he would often at the dead of the night, have the whole contents of his cash box counted over before him. The nurse, somewhat alarmed at his conversation and conduct, refused to stay with him, unless she had some female to bear her company; whereupon he mentioned his wish that Maria, a neice to whom he had always been partial, should be sent for, and she too became an inmate of his dwelling.

At length it was found necessary to inform him that his end was approaching, and that his will must be made. He reluctantly consented. Morton, a neighboring pettifogging attorney was sent for, whom McDougal before employed in two cases, on the prudent principle—'of two evils choose the least.' Morton was a shrivelled up, shrewd little fellow, with a keen eye for the main chance, and not burdened with tenderness of conscience. With a very scanty knowledge of law, he had managed to insinuate himself into an extensive practice. But he had an insight into human nature, a considerable tact in seizing the reigning principle or passions of his employers, and the precise point for striking in with them, so as to accomplish his own purpose under the pretence of great personal and generous sacrifice for their advantage. Blinding his clients with flatteries exactly suited to their different minds and habits and circumstances, he offended none, but greatly pleased every body—and himself more than any other. His first business with McDougal cost him some address and produced him little profit, but he had his eye on the future. In the second affair he was equally moderate in his charges but hinted, since so mutable were human affairs that a man of Mr. McDougal's property should have his will made. So long as business was effected and charges were small, they neither of them thought much of principle or character.

Morton came to make McDougal's will. He offered many kind inquiries and feigned very great concern to find his old, generous friend the mere ruins of his former self. The nurse was seated by the bed side and Maria stood near, deeply affected at a sight she had never before beheld, —the final adjustment of temporary things—the prophecy and decree of what was to take place when her uncle should be no longer of this world. Morton sat down on the side of his bed, and made his knee serve as a writing desk. McDougal raised himself—the presence of the man of law roused him from his torpors; his eyes shot out again, like spirits coming forth from sepulchres.

Morton, said he, the world's a cheat. I ought to have had a good round sum by this time, and should—but the world's a cheat.

True, replied the lawyer, and it must have been difficult and painful for a man of your principles, Mr. McDougal, to acquire a competency; but you know I was always ready to see you righted.

You were, and I'll not forget it.

Oh! thank you, Mr, McDougal, said Morton with a graeeful inclination of the head, but you and I always settled with mutual satisiaction, I believe, sir.?

Well, Morton, I have only one hundred and fifty thousand dollars to dispose of. I must leave, it, I find, and to my four brothers I leave fifteen thousand; to each of my sisters twelve thousand; to my nephew, Henry, two thousand; to my niece, Maria, whom I have always loved——

Here his feelings well nigh got the better of his feebleness—but after a pause he continued—

I leave her fifteen thousand; and to nurse here, three hundred.

Maria hid her face in the folds of the bed curtains, and nurse turned aside and let the tear fall upon her sleeve.

And now, said McDougal, who felt a cloud drawing over his intellect, and his memory refusing to do her office, how much does that make?" And he put his hand to his head as if to cool his fevered brain.

The lawyer was subtle, and knew that this was the only time for him. He came with the purpose of making a good thing of it.

Well, McDougal, after the expenses of your funeral there will be something left, perhaps a hundred dollars, or a hundred and fifty.

Then, said McDougal, making a vigorous effort and feeling conscious that nature was failing fast —Morton, you are welcome to the remainder; now read it and let me sign it.

Morton read just as McDougal had dictated but the artful Judas had, in the case of the brothers, substituted in the writing hundreds for thousand.

McDougal, with considerable effort, signed—just saw his niece and the nurse attest it—and expired. Relations and friends soon assembled at the tidings of his death; the will was read, and it was no difficult matter to divide the property.

But sorely did Morton suffer for his temerity and wickedness. Not unaccustomed to act of fraud, his conscience long slept on this new iniquity. That slumbering monitor was at length, however, awoke from its lethargy, and Morton felt its voice. Yet he long resisted its earnest remonstrances, until other ministers of warning were invoked to its assistance. He could not rest, for strange and dismal noises were heard in his house every night. Soon they seemed to proceed from the very closet where he kept his gold, as if it was poured out of one vessel into another —then portentously scattered up and down the room. More than once, when retiring to rest he thought he heard some one following him up stairs. At length the very form of McDougal appeared at his bed-side, and turning aside the curtains, looked upon him with the very same ghastly paleness and piercing eye, and asked How much will that make?

Morton arose, dressed himself, lighting a small lamp, retired to his library and awaited the dawn of day, trembling and half resolved to restore the property, yet, half yielding to his covetousness and false shame which again got the better of his fears.

He was, however, yet to suffer farther fortures. Hastily despatching his matin meal, he departed for his office, to bury amidst his musty papers the uneasiness hs could not otherwise overcome.—Abruptly turning the corner of a neighboring street, he suddenly came upon two uncouth looking men, one of whom, the moment before Morton came in sight, placed in the hands of the others, two or three small sums of money; startled by the lawyer's sudden appearance, he turned his face towards him, as he said—How much does that make? And Mor on averted his eyes turned pale, and hurried onwards.

The duties of his office, however, did not allay the feverish excitement under which he labored; and taking up a bandle of papers, he went down to the law courts to make some inquiries relative to his profession. Just as he entered, a witness was detailing some petty thefts to which he had been subjected by a dishonest clerk. He had mentioned several sums—

Well, sir, and how much does that make? asked the prisoner's counsel, having his eye directed to the door by which Morton had entered, for in his agitation he had closed it with a peculiar bang.

How much does that make? repeated the witness, whose attention was also drawn to Morton, and with his eye still fixed upon the now trembling lawyer, he added, with a leer, I don't know exactly—but I know them that does.

There was a malicious titter in the court, and the spectators, following the direction of the witnesses's eye also fixed their gaze on Morton.

He could bear it no longer. Seizing the handle of the door, he would at once have made his escape, but the force with which he had shut it, caused the door to stick. His exertions to open it only increased the confusion, and the presiding judge, with some asperity and in a loud voice, so as to recall attention to the proceedings, repeated the question—

Answer, sir, HOW MUCH DOES THAT MAKE?

This was enough. With a convulsive effort, Morton wrenched open the door, staggered to his office, wrote to the parties a confession of his fraud, restored the property, and left the coun try, taking with him this important lesson—that no dishonest gains can eventually prove of any advantage.

THE FIRST LOCOMOTIVE.

In a paddle up the Hudson in 1808, on the first steamboat that ever moved on the waters of any river with passengers, the writer encounters a Yankee, named Jabez Doolittle, who is going 'up country' to sell 'country rights' for a new rat trap, for which he had secured a patent. 'It was a very curious trap, as simple as it was ingenious—as most ingenious things are, after they are invented. It was an oblong wire box, divided into two compartments; a rat entered one where the bait was hung, which he no sooner touched, than the door at which he entered fell. His only apparent escape was a funnel shaped hole into the other apartment, in passing which he moved another wire which instantly re-set the trap; and thus rat after rat was furnished the means of 'following in the footsteps of his illustrious predecessor,' until the trap was full. Thus it was not simply a trap to catch a rat, but a trap by which rats trapped rats, ad infinitum.'

The writer finds Jabez studying the new steam engine; and he takes him aside to say that 'if he don't make a wagon go by steam before he is two years older, he'll give up inventin.' This is soon forgotten, however; until after several months, the narrator receives a letter from Jabez, inviting him to come and see him, 'nigh Wallingford, Connecticut,' as he has got 'somethin' to show him.' The writer repairs to Wallingford, and in an old, dingy, long one story building, with a windowy or two in the roof, the knot holes stuffed with rags, and 'no admittance,' over the door, he finds the inventor; 'and in the centre of all previous conceptions, rat traps, churns, apple parers, pill rollers, cooking stoves, and shingle splitters,' stands 'The First Locomotive!' an unpainted, unpolished, unadorned oven shaped mass of double riveted sheet iron, with cranks and pipes, and trunnel heads and screws, and valves, on four strong travelling wheels. 'It's a curious critter to look at,' says Jabez, 'but you'll like it better in motion.' He proceeds to light a fire under the boiler, which soon gives evidence of 'troubled waters,' when, by pushing one slide and pulling another, the whole machine, cranks and piston, is in motion.

'It works slick, don't it?' said Jabez.

'But,' I replied, 'it don't move.'

'You mean,' said he, 'the travelling wheels don't move; well, I don't mean they shall till I get my patent. You see,' he added crouching down, 'that trunnel head there—that small cog wheel? Well, that's out of gear just yet, when I turn that into gear, by this crank, it fits you see, on the main travelling wheel, and then the hull scrape will move, as nigh as I can calculate, a leetle slower than chain lightnin,' and a darn'd little too! But it wont do to give a try afore I get the patent. There is only one thing yet,' he continued, 'that I ha'nt contrived—but that is a simple matter—and that is, the shortest mode of stoppin' on her. My first notion is to see how fast I can work, without smashing all to bits, and that's done by screwing down this upper valve; and I'll show you——'

And with that he clambered up on the top, with a turning screw in one hand, and a horn of soap fat in the other, and commenced screwing down the valves, and oiling the piston rod and crank joints; and the motion of the mysterious mass increased until all seemed a buzz. 'It is nigh about perfection, ain't it?' says he. * * *

Jabez,' said I, elevating my voice above the buzzing noise of the machine, 'there is only one thing wanting.'

'What is that?' says he eagerly.

'Immortality,' said I, 'and you shall have it, patent or no patent!'

And with that, I pulled the crank that twisted the connecting trunnel head into the travelling wheels, and in an instant away went the machine, with Jabez on the top of it, with the whiz and rapidity of a flushed patridge. The side of the old building presented the resistance of wet paper.—One crash, and the 'first locomotive' was ushered into this breathing world. I hurried to the opening, and had just time to clamber to the top of a fence to catch the last glimpse of my fast departing friend. True to his purpose, I saw him alternately screwing down the valves, and oiling the piston rod and the crank joints; evidently determined that, although he had started off a little unexpectedly, he would redeem the pledge he had given, which was, that when it did go, it would go a little slower than a streak of chain lightnin' and a darn'd little too.

'Like a cloud in the dim distance fleeting,
Like an arrow,' he flew away.

But a moment and he was here; in a moment he was there; and now where is he? or rather, where is he not? But that, for the present, is 'neither here nor there.'

The next information we have of Mr. Doolittle's 'whereabouts' is given by Mr. Irving: 'You must know that I was one among the first band of trappers that crossed the Rocky Mountains. We had encamped one night on a ridge of the Black Hills, and were wrapped up in our blankets, in the midst of our first sleep, when we were roused by the man who stood sentinel, who cried out 'Wild fire!' We started on our feet, and beheld a streak of fire coming across the prairies, for all the world like lightning, or a shooting star. We had hardly time to guess what it might be, when it came up, whizzing, and clanking, and making a tremendous racket, and we saw something huge and black, with wheels and traps of all kinds; and an odd looking being on the top of it, busy as they say the devil is in a gale of wind. In fact some of our people thought it the old gentleman himself, taking an airing in one of his infernal carriages. A Kentuckian plucked up courage enough to hail the infernal coachman as he passed, and ask whither he was driving: but the speed with which he whirled by, and the rattling of his machine, prevented our catching more than the last words; 'Slam bang to eternal smash!' In five minutes more, he was across the prairies, beyond the Black Hill, and we saw him shooting, like a jack o' lantern, over the Rocky Mountains.

The next day we tracked his course. He had been through a great drove of buffalo, some hundred or two of which lay cut up as though the butchers had been there; we heard of him afterward, driving through a village of Black Feet, and smashing the lodge of the chief with all his family. Beyond the Rocky Mountains, we could hear nothing more of him; so that we concluded he had ended his career, by driving into one of the craters that still smoke among the peaks.'

STATE LAWS.

An Act concerning Trust Estates.

Be it enacted, &c.—

When any person, seized or possessed of any estate, real, personal, or mixed, or any interest therein, upon any trust or trusts, express or implied, shall be under the age of twenty-one years, insane, femme covert, or be out of the jurisdiction of this Commonwealth, or not amenable to the process of court therein, having equity powers, and, in the opinion of the supreme judicial court, it be fit that a sale should be made of such estate, or of any interest therein, or that conveyance be made thereof, in order to carry into effect the objects of the trusts concerning the same; then and in every such case, said supreme judicial court may, by its decree, on bill, or petition, as the case may require, direct and order such sale or conveyance to be made, and appoint any suitable person whom they think proper, in the place of such trustee, to convey such estate or interest therein to such person as may become the purchaser, or as such decree or order may require. And if any person so seized, or possssed of the same, or entitled thereto upon any trust, shall be within the jurisdiction of the court, he or his guardian may be ordered to make such conveyances as the court may deem suitable or proper.

[Approved by the Governor, Feb. 22, 1845.]

An Act concerning the Distribution of School Returns and other Documents and papers relating to Schools.

Be it enacted, &c.—

It shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Commonwealth to cause the blank school returns and registers, the abstract of school returns, and the report of the Secretary of the Board of Education, when the same shall be received by him, to be forwarded to the sheriffs of the several counties for distribution; and it shall be the duty of the sheriffs to forward the same to the town clerks of the several towns, within their counties respectively; and the sheriffs shall be entitled to receive, for such distribution, three cents for each copy so distributed, to be paid by the State treasurer.

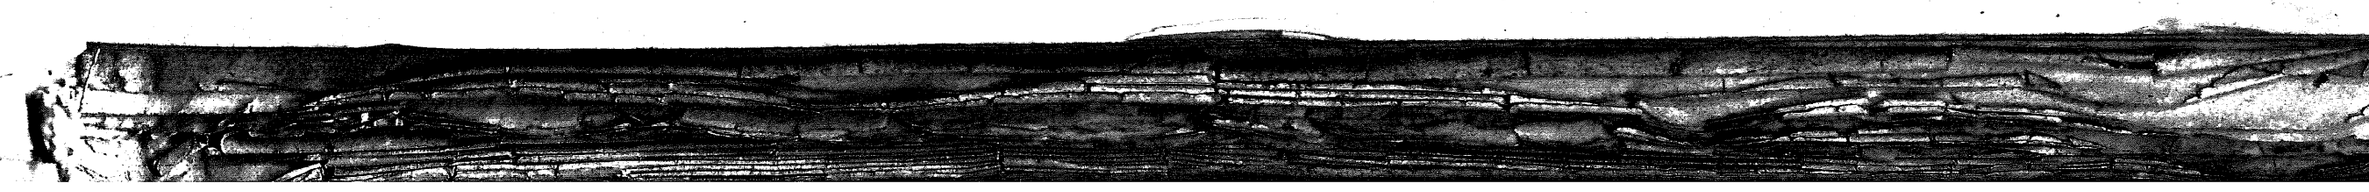
Approved by the Governor, March 4, 1845.

An Act relating to Common Schools.

Be it enacted, &c.—

Instead of the single sheets for school registers, now annually transmitted to the school committees by the Secratary of State, he is hereby required to transmit register books, sufficient to last for five or more years, in such form as the Board of Education shall prescribe; and no school teacher shall be entitled to receive payment for his or her services, until the register for his or her school, properly filled up and completed, shall be deposited with the school committee, or with such person as they may designate to receive it.

Approved by the Governor, March 18, 1845.



An Act to amend an Act concerning Notes payable on demand.

Be it enacted, &c.—

Sect. 1. An act "concerning notes payable on demand," passed the sixth day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty nine, is hereby amended in the first section thereof, by striking out the word 'indorser' and inserting the word 'indorsee.'

Sect. 2. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Approved by the Governor, Feb. 24, 1845.

DANVERS COURIER.

SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 19, 1845.

TAXES.

The rate of taxation in this town has increased for the last few years with alarming rapidity. It is true that their have been some extraordinary expenses incurred which swell the amount and which are to be justified both by humanity and sound policy. But the increase has been so great that it seems expedient now to see to it that no unnecessary expenses are incurred and even projects of acknowledged utility perhaps had better be delayed for a more favorable season, if they can be, without detriment to the public interest. For many years past and until a very recent period, the rate of taxation has been between 40 and 50 hundredths of one per ct. It is now 62 hundredths an increase within a few years of 25 per ct. We are aware that the rate is not so high as in several adjoining towns but our valuation is greater and the rate consequently should he lower. It is thought by many that injustice has been done to us in the assessment of our state and county taxes by an over valuation.

PAY OF POSTMASTERS.

An important decision by the Attorney General, in relation to the pay of postmasters, appears in the Union, (the official government organ) of last week. It appears that under the old law the compensation to postmasters, and their deputies was a certain per centum, (from 30 as low as 8 per cent) on the proceeds of each office, together with the franking privilege which is inadequate pay for the laborious services of some of the offices, in several of which, the postmasters would not only received no compensation but would be several hundred dollars in debt at the end of each quarter. Resignations were continually received by the Postmaster General. Congress foresaw that there would be a diminution in the revenue and had made general appropriations, which would secure to the department, the amount which had been expended during the past year.

The question was presented to the Postmaster General, whether any of this money could be appropriated to the payment of postmasters and their clerks, as other revenues of the department. The Postmaster General, unwilling to assume the power over the compensation of 1400 officers, applied to the Attorney general, who after careful deliberation and a very lengthy argument comes to the conclusion, that this money may be appropriated so that the payment of deputy postmasters shall be the same as last year.

IMPROVEMENTS IN SALEM.

We noticed a few days since that the venerable building in Essex St. near Buffum's corner which recently belonged to Mr. Oliver was about being demolished. This building has not been occupied for many years past, except by the bill posters, who, with vandal recklessness have not scrupled to mar its beauty by pasting on its elegant front their flaming advertisements. We hope the inhabitants of that part of the city, will be somewhat reconciled to the loss of this long standing ornament to their neighborhood, by the consideration that by its removal, a street will be opened, passing over much unoccupied land suitable for building purposes aud coming out at some point on Boston Street. This is an improvement much needed in that portion of Salem and every body must believe that some great change is about to take place in the condition of the city, of which the demolition of that building is the forerunner. After this event their can be no farther doubt of the future prosperity of Salem.

Expansion by heat.—We learn that on Saturday last, the rails on the Boston and Main Rail Road near the North Andover Depot, expanded so much by the intense heat of the sun as to throw them from their places, and it required so long time to replace them on the sleepers that one of the trains was delayed in consequence. This inconvenience is usually guarded against by leaving a space between the ends of the rails, but in this case either such intense heat from the sun was not anticipated or sufficient room was not allowed.

The simple remedy for this difficulty is to apply cold water to the rails by which they will be contracted to their usual length.

☞We had a severe thunder shower on Monday afternoon last, which seemed to have extended for some distance.

In Lowell a man by the name of Parker, who was at work in a field, was struck by lightning and instantly killed. The house of R. Jenkins in Newburyport was also struck and somewhat damaged; although there were eight persons in the house and at the time none of them were seriously injured.

On Thursday afternoon at about five o'clock, the Old South Meeting-house in Andover, was struck by lightning and considerably injured.—The conductor was broken by the force of the shock, and the lower part driven several feet into the ground. Part of the fluid passed into the window near the place where the rod parted, and followed the stove pipe the length of the house and escaped through the opposite windows taking two of them entirely from their frames. Several persons were in the house at the time, having escaped to it for shelter from the rain, and the track of the luminous fluid was distinctly seen by them.—Some of them feel now the effects of the electricity in their bodies and limbs.

TRIAL OF ENGINES.

Another trial between the Eagle and Gen. Foster took place last Wednesday evening at the mill dam on Wallis street. This contest was so arranged that the Gen. Foster was to have a supply of water from the Volunteer Engine, and was to attempt to run over the Eagle while the latter was pumping off her water through the same length of hose. The time was to be ten minutes but at the seventh minute the Eagle was disabled by the fracture of one of her brakes, thus ending the contest. The Gen. Foster's men however, claim to have succeeded, and we understand a Committee of the Firewards reported in their favor. On the part of the Eagle it is said that although some water was spilled, it was caused by the rocking of the tub, occasioned by her lateral motion and the great power applied to her. The Volunteer supplied the Gen. Foster very handsomely, making the ground somewhat damp around the latter engine, and their services were acknowledged by an invitation to take a repast at the Hotel, which was gratefully accepted.

A correspondent has furnished us with the following area of cylinders to Engines No's 5, 7 & 8.

	Inches in diameter.	Inches stroke.	Decimal proportion.	Quantity of water to each stroke.
No. 5	8	11	1105 890	4 galls 2 qts.
7	6 1-2	14	939 124	4 "
8	9	9 1-8	1161.30	5 "

The scene was an animating one, the spectators taking almost as much interest in the contest as the firemen. It would have been an easy matter to have manned the three engines with one hundred men each, if their brakes had been long and strong enough to hold them. After all, we doubt the expediency of such trials of strength not only on account of the damage to the Engines but to the tempers of the combatants, but we believe in this case all hands parted in good nature. A shrewd friend at our elbow, says that he fully believes that "these three Engines together with the Torrent, are the best manned of any in this part of the town"—and we are inclined to believe him.

MAPLE STREET.

We see by a Salem paper that a petition has been presented to the County Commissioners for widening the west side of this street where the land has been made vacant by the fire. To carry out the designs of the petitioners it will be necessary to remove the Village Bank building leaving an uninterrupted view from High Street.

A similar improvement might be made at the corner of Foster and Main streets where the space is very contracted, so much so that Mr. Goodridge was compelled at great expense to remove the foundation of his house which had unintentionally been placed a few feet or inches over the line of the westerly side of the street. Any one who will look at this locality will see that there, if any where, it is necessary to cut off a portion of the projecting corner on the eastern side of the street. When the opposite corner shall be occupied the necessity of this alteration will be much more apparent.

EASTERN RAILROAD.

The annual meeting of this company was held on Monday last, and the usual business was transacted. B. T. Reed Esq., resigned the office of Treasurer which he had held from the commencement of the enterprise; whereupon resolutions were passed tendering the warm thanks of the stockholders for his faithfulness, and authorizing the directors to present to him a piece of plate, with a suitable inscription, commemorative of their high sense of his services.

Among the facts laid before the meeting were the following:—

The receipts from the business of the road, during the year ending June 30th, were $351,328 61
Expenditures 113,014 48

Net profits from the road, $238,314 13

The net receipts are $9 34 56-100, per share.

CENSUS OF SALEM.

According to a census recently authorized to be taken by the City of Salem, the population is ascertained to be as follows;—

	Wh. Males.	Wh. Fem.	Col'd M.	Col'd F.	Total.
Ward 1	2075	1809	46	25	3955
" 2	1858	2096	25	37	3996
" 3	2056	2397	80	109	4642
" 4	1884	2264	12	12	4172
	7873	8546	163	183	16,765

Total population of the city 16,765
Population in 1836 15.002

Gain 17,63

The Colored Population is 346. The number of inmates of the Alms House is 120, including three colored—males 76, females 44.

THE SCOTCH BAGPIPE.

The citizens of the eastern part of our village were treated to a fine concert—admittance free—a few evenings ago by a performer on the above instrument. Having never heard this kind of music before, we could not have believed that such melody could be drawn from such an instrument. The performer on this occasion was stationed in the vicinity of Harmoney Grove and the plaintive tones of his pipes were heard at a great distance in the stillness of a summer's evening. We hope soon to enjoy another such a serenade.

We understand that the 3d Congregational Society of this town have extended an invitation to Mr. Richard Tolman of Dorchester, late of the Theological Seminary, Andover, to become their Pastor. We learn that it is understood that Mr. Tolman will accept the call and that the Ordination will take place some time in September next.

FOR THE COURIER

I. O. OF RECHABITES.

I had the pleasure of hearing on Monday evening last, a lecture by G. W. Mullet Esq., of Salem, before the Howard Tent of Rechabites. The Lecture was well written and delivered, and contained many passages of much force and beauty of expression. The speaker traced the origin of the Orders to times of ancient scripture history and stated its design to be, to inculcate Temperance and social, mental and moral improvement. It also appeared from the address that the Order is an extensive Mutual Aid Society by which the sick and unfortunate of their brethren are relieved from its funds. It also dispenses its blessings to the surviving family when either of its heads is removed by death. It combines social and friendly intercourse with benevolence and philanthopy, while at the same time the recipient of its benefits receives his share as a right and not as alms. It seeks to maintain purity of life and a good reputation among the brotherhood and its secrets are only such, to do good.

FOR THE COURIER.

NEW RAIL ROAD TO BOSTON.

Mr Editor—A correspondent, in the last number of your paper, in favor of a Branch Rail Road from Danvers to Salem, is desirous that the question shall be now agitated, and referring to the views expressed in your paper some weeks since, asks, "why is not now a proper time to give light on this subject?" The answer was, I thought given with sufficient plainness in the article referred to, which was, substantially, that people are not at this season of the year generally at leisure to attend to such a subject, and especially to take action upon it. And it certainly is not a time when a full expression of the town, as such, can be taken. It is also extremely unseasonable for the Petitioners for the Malden route in particular, as the time for the assembling of the Legislature, on whose action the obtaining of a charter depends, is far distant. It was for these reasons that I thought such action unseasonable. But as the gentleman thinks differently, and made some statements tending to prejudice the cause of the Malden route Petitioners, I have no hesitation with the leave of the editor of the Courier, to express what I conceive to be the true merits of the question. The gentleman does not, I think overestimate the importance of the question at issue when he says, "It is seldom that a subject of so much importance is presented to our consideration." I think few can be greater to the interests of the town. He expresses the wish which I fully entertain, "that we may proceed harmoniously in what we undertake in this matter." I think it will be of serious injury to the good feelings entertained by the people of different portions of the town for each other, to have a sectional or any other division upon the subject. Whichever way is adopted, let it be with harmony and unanimity. Let the people see which course will promote their interests and the interests of the town, and let that course be pursued.

Your correspondent alludes to the attempt made last winter for a charter, which failed, and seems to presume that that failure settles the question of the right to a road to connect with the Maine Extension Road at Malden. I think the gentleman committed a great error when he came to that conclusion, and a still greater one when he brings it up seriously as an argument in favor of a Branch Road to Salem. He must either suppose the people are totally blind to the powerful causes which combined to effect that result, or that the Senate of last winter, particularly its Rail Road committee, were invested with a certain divine infallibility. I did not suppose that those opposed to the new Road would wish to have the action of the Senate upon this subject investigated, but as it is not only alluded to, but arguments based upon it, a brief review of that proceeding and the previous action of the people in relation to it may not be uninteresting, and if upon an investigation, any inference can be drawn against the right of the Petitioners for the Malden Road, to a charter from the Legislature, the favorers of the Branch Road to Salem are entirely welcome to it.

It is well known that at the time of the chartering of the Eastern Rail Road, strong opposition was made to the route which was finally adopted; and it is also well understood that causes entirely independent of the accommodation of the public, had great influence in determining the location of the route. Since that time, the great inconvenience of it has been seriously felt by many citizens of Salem, Danvers, Lynn and other neighboring towns, and dissatisfaction with the road has been constantly increasing, until about a year since, when the subject of a new Road from Salem through Danvers into Boston, was seriously contemplated by a large portion of the business community. The expediency of such a road was agitated and the question asked was, Will such a Road support itself? An examination proved satisfactorily that it would. No fears were entertained on this point, and it was very certain that the stock in such a road would be immediately taken up. The only thing needed then to consumate the affair, was a charter from the Legislature. No difficulty was apprehended upon this point, as the "vested rights" of corporations had never till that time been acknowledged in the liberal policy pursued by the State. A petition signed by a large number of very respectable men, was accordingly, early in the last session of the Legislature, sent in asking for a charter. But what was the fate of this petition? Upon this hangs a tale which it cannot be for the interest of any opposed to the new Road, to have told. It was met at the door of the Senate by the combined forces of the Lowell, Eastern, and Worcester Rail Roads determined if possible to keep a monopoly of the travel on their respective roads.—Each was there on similar business, and a common cause was made of it. It was met by a committee either accidentally or by previous concert, ready and prepared to back up these formidable corporations. It was met by the best counsel the State could afford, ready to do battle for the monopoly of these Rail Road Companies. The petitioners were taken by surprise. They had not expected such a combination of circumstances against them, and they had no reason to expect such. A hasty defence of their petition was set up. But owing to the manner in which it was conducted, of which there is no need of explanation here, it was of no avail for them; and finally after great and unnecessary delays by the Committee, a report was made to the Senate adverse to this petition, and petitions for a great number of other roads from different parts of the State, were treated in the same manner. The Senate did not reverse this decision of the Committee, and thus the matter rests so far as any Legislative action was had directly upon it. The House very evidently were almost unanimously in favor of granting these petitions, and if the Committee had not taken the precaution to delay till the last moment, to report upon them, an expression would unquestionably have been made by the House which would not have been without its effect upon the sensitive feelings of some Honorable Senators.

Such is succinctly the history of the action for a new road before the Legislature last winter, and the people who are well aware of the facts, can and will judge whether such action by the Senate with its Conservative Committee is entitled to respect as a precedent, particularly when diametrically opposed to all the previous policy of the State. I think no greater argument can be furnished as an inducement for persevering in the plan proposed, than this action of the Senate; and it depends upon the people to say whether the Senate of next winter will pursue the course of the last one. The question is not confined to this county alone, but interests equally many others, and we have no doubt but that Senators will be selected who will regard the wish of their constituents in this matter, and thus all hindrance be removed to the construction of a new road from Salem through Danvers to Boston. If this can be done, as it certainly can be, no citizen of Danvers can hesitate for a moment upon the expediency of it. Instead of draining our resources as a Branch to Salem unquestionably would, it would tend more than anything else to build up our town and increase very essentially the value of property in it. It would be an advantage to all parts, to the North equally with the South, and I apprehend there is but little doubt felt upon this point by any of our citizens. The favorers of the Branch Road are those principally who are fearful that a charter cannot be obtained for the Malden Road, and would take the Branch rather than nothing. As I have said there can be little doubt but that such a charter can be obtained next winter as all that is needed, is, to elect Senators who will carry out the wishes of their constituents and by their decisions aid in putting down these notions of "vested rights" in Rail Road Corporations, which if carried out cannot fail to paralyze all future attempts at internal improvements. I think there is but very little doubt but a charter can be obtained for the Malden route, and there is less doubt that the stock will be immediately taken up. Why then should the project which has ever been looked upon as of the greatest interest to the people of Danvers in particular, be abandoned? In addition to this, the disposition of the Eastern Rail Road to construct a Branch to Danvers, has never been conclusively shown, and until this is done at least is it not extremely injudicious for the town to give up the project of a Road to Malden? Perhaps your correspondent can enlighten your readers upon this point as he seems to have some familiarity with the plans of the Eastern Rail Road. I do not mean to have it inferred that I think it would be a reason for adopting the Branch Road, if it can be satisfactorily shown that it will be constructed, but if it cannot be so shown, it places the favorers of that project in rather an unfavorable situation in their opposition to the Malden route.

TRUTH.

FOR THE COURIER.

Mr. Editor—In the annual exhibit by the Directors of the Eastern Rail Road, lately published, occurs the following sentence, of interest to the citizens of this town. "Although the application for a spur to Danvers was not granted, it is believed that a better feeling in regard to it now exists, aud that a similar application to the next Legislature will meet with no serious opposition." That the business of the town demands Rail Road accommodations, in some form or other is universally admitted. Shall we then be so unmindful of our own interests, as, by a paltry disagreement among ourselves, forever preclude the possibility of obtaining this accommodation?

Without question, if a rail road could be constructed, from the Court House in Salem, over the routes proposed the last winter, terminating at the Maine Extension Depot, and cars could run directly over the road, without any interuption or detention at either end, as frequently as on the Eastern Rail Road, a mode of passing between the two Cities would be presented, decidedly preferable to that over the Eastern Road. But is there any probability of this being done? If there is not, it is worse than useless to pursue a visionary prospect, because it is theoretically plausible; upon the happening of certain improbable contingencies. In the first place, what reason is there to believe, that liberty could be obtained to pass four miles on the Maine Extension Road, independent of the movement of the trains on that road? To do this, would require a special tract for the use of this road, the construction and support of which, with suitable conveniences at the Depot, would demand a compensation to be paid to the Maine Extension Road of one third of the whole income from the new proposed road—and suppose the E. R. Road should put down their fare between Salem and Boston, to twenty-five cents a passenger, as they might do, and still sustain their road with a fair income, where would be the encouragement to make investments in the stock of the Danvers Road?—These are matters of plain calculation, such as most men would be likely to think of, before they paid their assessments. In your last paper, I noticed a call upon the friends of the Danvers Road to come forward with their facts and show that it is practicable and worthy of support. When they attempted to do this, even at the price of fifty cents a passenger, they had to limit their trains to half the number that usually pass on the Eastern Road. It these things be so, is it wise to pursue a project that will not sustain itself, when very tolerable accommodations can otherwise be obtained on very reasonable terms? The Eastern Rail Road can well afford to do the Danvers business at half the expense at which it can be done on an independent road. And we have every reason to believe that they will readily embrace the opportunity permanently to secure this business.

The New York Tribune, in noticing a recent Anti-Texas Lecture of Mr W. H. Channing, makes the following sensible remarks:—

'It struck us as rather inconsistent that Mr Channing should not merely avow, but glory in the fact that he did not vote at the last Presidential election. It is doubtless right and obligatory on us to oppose the Texas conspiracy to the utmost and to the end; but as one ballot last November would have been more effective than fifty pledges now, we think those who stood aloof when the great battle was fought and lost (when they might have saved it) ought at least to pass over in silence, if they do not choose to regret, their most untimely and inglorious neutrality.

FOR THE COURIER

Mr. Editor—There was a challenge lately g en to the company of Gen Foster engine, No.
by the company of Eagle engine No. 5, for a tr
of power, this challenge was accepted, and acc took place on the 16th inst, on Wallis street. T arrangement was, that No. 7 should get some gine to supply her with water, and she should p through one hundred and fifty feet of hose i
No. 5, and if possible overflow her, and thus sh her superior ability, while No. 5, should p through the same length of hose and throw the water though her pipe, and if No. 7 co not supply as much water as she needed, that s should be victorious. The invitation was given the Volunteer engine company and she was hand at the appointed time. The signal for actio was given by F. Baker, Esq., and every man we at work; at the third stroke of the Volunteer, he air chest blew up and she could not do much, al though it took but one minute and a half even the to overflow No. 7, and No 5, had as much wate as she wanted and a little more. If she had no been in the position she was, I fear she and he company would have been floated into the Salem harbor where she might have had the pleasure of a mackereling excursion but as luck would have i there was a fence near by, and they owe their pres ervation to this. I understand the Eagle is no yet satisfied; but I would beg leave to suggest to them that should another trial take place, they need not be surprised should they find themselves
1, 3 1-4, 4 1-4, 61-4, 8 1-4 P. M.

A Merchandize Train will leave Boston, Portland and all intermediate places every day.

Freight Office in Boston, No. 17 Merchants Row, and on the line of the road at the several Depots.

JOHN KINSMAN,
Master of Transportation.

apr 12

Summer Arrangement of the
DANVERS AND SALEM
HOURLY COACHES

THE Danvers and Salem Hourly Coaches will in connection with the Eastern Railroad, leave Danvers and Salem at the following hours, viz:

Leave Danvers at	7	A.M.	Leave Salem at	8	A.M.
" "	8 1-4		" "	9 1-2
" "	9 3-4		" "	11 1-2
" "	11 1-4		" "	12 3-4
" "	1 3-4	P M.	" "	3	P.M.
" "	2 3-4		" "	4
" "	4 1-2		" "	6
" "	6 1-2		" "	7 1-4
" "	7 1-2		" "	9

For seats apply at Macintire's Hotel, or at Joseph G Shed's store in Danvers, and at the Essex House and Salem Hotel in Salem.

Railroad passengers taken at the depot on the arrival of the cars from Boston and the East.

☞Extra Coaches furnished at any hour on reasonable terms.

SYMONDS & TEEL.

apr 19 tf

NEW ENGLAND
TRUSS MANUFACTORY.

THE subscriber continues to manufacture Trusses of every description, at his residence at the old stand, opposite 264, No. 305 Washington street, Boston, entrance in Temple Avenue, up stairs. All individuals can see him alone, at any time, at the above place.

Having had twenty years' experience, he has afforded relief to three thousand persons, for the last five years. All may rest assured of relief who call and try a Truss of his manufacture. He is now confident he can give every individual relief who may call upon him.

The public are cautioned against the many quacks who promise what they cannot perform.

Having worn the different kinds of Trusses, more or less, that have been offered to the public for the last twenty years, from different patent manufactories, and now continues to wear those of his own manufacture, he is now able to decide, after examining the rapture, what sort of Truss is best to adopt to all the cases that occur; and he has on hand as good Trusses, and will furnish any kind of a Truss that can be had elsewhere.

J. F. F. manufactures as many as twenty different kinds of Trusses, among which are all the different kinds similar to those that the late Mr. Jonn Beath, of this city, formerly made, and all others advertised in Boston, together with the patent elastic spring Truss, with the spring pads.—Trusses without steel springs—these give relief in all cases of rupture, and a large proportion produce a perfect cure—they can be worn day and night; improved hinge and pivot Truss; umbellical spring Trusses, made in four different ways; Trusses with ball and socket joints, Trusses, for Prolapsus Ani, by wearing which persons troubled with a descent of the rectum can ride on horseback with perfect ease and safety.

Mr. Foster also makes Trusses for Prolapus Uteri, which have answered in cases where possaries have failed. Sus-

A New and very Destrctive Corn Worm, has made its appearance at Martinsburg, Va. Its ravages have extended over an entire field, and into one of a different description of soil, adjoining it.

☞Proposals are invited, by S. Ashburner, Engineer, for the Masonry, Grading, &c., of the Gloucester Branch Rsil Road.

☞A man at Dorchester fell down and expired on Saturday last, while mowing, from excessive heat.

☞A collision took place on Monday at Lynn, between a train of gravel cars and a carriage on one of the roads. The carriage was upset, and two persons injured slightly.

Generous Act.—We are informed that Gerrit Smith recently paid $500 to secure the liberty of a slave in Tennessee. On appearing at Mr. Smith's to thank his benefactor, he exposed his body to him and several others—it was terribly scarred in many parts, showing that a great amount of suffering had been endured by the poor fellow. Rich blessings, forever, on Mr. Smith.—Syracuse Star.

A Hoax.—We are told that a gentleman who left Ithaca on Sunday, the 5th inst., says there is not any truth in the extra purporting to come from the Journal Office of that village, giving the particulars of the explosion of a cannon, and killing three citizens of Ithaca on the 4th of July.—Alb Citizen.

☞A single Physician in Philadelphia, was on Tuesday, called to attend upon ten cases of coup de soliel, or sun-stroke.

☞The Springfield Post says a lame man would have been drowned in the Town brook had he not been so full of liquor that the water couldn't get into him.

☞The Directors of the Western Railroad at their meeting in Springfield last week, decided not to change the present rates of fare upon that road.

☞Cassius M. Clay has written a letter to Horace Greeley, in which he formally pledges himself never again to ofier or accept a challenge, or in any manner to give duelling his countenance or support.

☞A man, while mowing at Fall River on Tuesday morning, was so overcome by the heat that he died in the evening.

Fire at Rochester.—Late on Tuesday evening last, a fire broke out in the Cabinet shop of Robert Bell, on the east side of Front street. The flames extended to the centre of Charles H. Carroll's block, on the east side, and on the west side of Front street, seven brick stores and a wood block, belonging to William Simpson, were destroyed; on Works street, two dwelling houses and a black smith's shop, belonging to William Simpson, were also consumed. The buildings destroyed were occupied principally by mechanics, numbering about twenty-five stores. The loss is estimated at $30,000—insurance $12,000.—[Bost. Atlas.

Narrow Escape. We understand there was a narrow escape from fire, a day or two since, at Danvers Neck. The danger was occasioned by hot ashes.—Gaz.

☞A Democratic State Convention for the nomination of candidates for Governor and Lieutenant Governor, is to be held at Springfield, on Wednesday, September 16th.

BRIGHTON MARKET—Monday, July 14 1845.
[From the Boston Daily Advertiser.

At market 420 Beef Cattle: 1800 Sheep, and 700 Swine.

Prices—Beef Cattle—The prices generally obtained would be a reduction from last week for a like quality. We quote Extra 5.50 a 5 75; first quality 5 25 a 5 50; second quality $5 a 5 25; third quality 4 50 a $5.

Sheep—Lambs from 1 50 to 2 25; old Sheep from 1 75 to 2 75.

Swine—A lot old hogs at 4 1-2c; small Shoats, entire lot 4c; selected 5c. At retail, from 5 to 6 1-2c.

MARRIAGES.

In this town, North Parish, on the 3d inst, by Rev Mr Worcester, Mr Stephen Granville to Mrs Elizabeth B Wilkins.

In Salem Mr John W. Rhodes to Miss Elizabeth A. Goldthwait. Mr Asa Clark to Miss Hannah D Kelly. Mr Charles Harrington, of Danvers to Miss Mary Knight, of Salem. Mr Robert A. Fuller, to Miss Mary A. Devereux. Capt. William B. Graves to Miss Abba, daughter of Mr. Philip Manning.

In Lynn, Mr Elisha Pope to Mrs Emma B. Hunt. of Marblehead. Mr Samuel Graves to Mrs M. P. Upton.

In Haverhill, Mr Ellsworth Webster, of New bury port, to Miss Emily A P. Sargent, of Haverhill.

DEATHS.

In this town, on the 11th, John Henry, aged 13 months, son of John and Mary A. Morrison.

At North Parish, on Sunday last, Mr Andrew Batchelder, aged 73.

In Salem, Mrs Catharine Andrew, widow of the late John Andrew, Esq., aged 64. On Wednesday afternoon, Mr Benjamin B. Gardner, aged 44. His death was very sudden—supposed to be from an affection of the heart.

In Cambridge, on Saturday last, Rev. Henry Ware D. D., aged 76.

In Chelmsford, Mr Wm. Fletcher, aged 90 1-2 years. He was one of the minute men that went to Concord, and followeh the enemy to Cambridge on their retreat.

At Northampton, 14th inst, Mr Reuben Taylor, 84, a pensioner of the revolution.

At Conway, Mr Timothy Catlin, 92, a revolutionary pensioner.

PORT OF DANVERS.

Saturday July 12th

ARRIVED.

Sch China, Nickerson, New York Flaur and Grain.

Sch Packet, Hall, Pembroke, Wood & Bark.

Sunday 13th

Victor Jones, New York, Flour & Grain.

North West, Haskell, Calais, with Lumber.

Tuesday 15th

SAILED.

Schrs China and Packet.

Wednesday 16th

" North West and Victor.

CARD.

The Volunteer Engine Company, No. 8, tender their hearty thanks to the Gen. Foster Engine Company, No. 7, for the collation provided for them at the house of Mr. S. Ham, on the evening of the 16th inst.

HOWARD TENT—No. 87—I. O. OF R.

Meet every Monday evening, at 8 o'clock, in the new Hall, near the South Church, Danvers. Members of the Order generally are respectfully invited to attend. A uniformly punctual attendance of the members is requested.

C. E. BROWN, C. R.

WM. H. HOWLAND, Sec.

Why go to Boston to buy

PAPERS for your Rooms, Halls, Entries, etc., when as good an assortment is kept so near as Salem, and at lower prices than can be bought there? A large and fine collection of the most desirable patterns, selected with great care, may be found at july 15 W. & S. B. IVES' Bookstore.

NEW ASSORTMENT of cheap ROOM PAPERS from 9 to 17 cents per roll, just rec'd from the manufacturers at the Paper-store of july 15 W. & S. B. IVES.

Two Hundred Dozen Hosiery, At actual Cost.

KEITH & MASON will offer their entire stock of Summer Hosiery at cost, to close it off—the majority of the stock consists of the very best variety of Hose:

25 doz black, blue black, white and col'd Raw Silk;
25 do fine plain unbleached Hose at 1s;
50 do brown Open Work at 20 cents;
25 do bleached English Hose, at various prices;
10 do Mode color Cotton Hose cheap;
10 do Embroidered Hose at 25 cents;
50 do assorted kinds and qualities.

This is a rare opportunity to purchase Hosiery, and all in want will do well to improve it.

july 15. 24 Washington street, Salem.

SERAPHINE—FOR SALE.—A fine toned Seraphine, in Mahogany case, new and in good order, for sale at the Book and Music Store of.

JOHN P JEWETT & Co.,
july 14 opposite the Mansion House.

BARGAINS.

A GOOD Stock of READY MADE CLOTHING is offered at Great Bargains, at No. 14 Front street, viz: Dress and Frock Coats; Tweed do; Gingham do; Imitation Gingham do; Linen do; Thin Jackets; Satin, Marseilles and Valencia Vests; Cassimere, Doeskin and Satinet Pants; Overhauls; Green Jackets; Fine white Shirts, red flannel, check and stripe do; Under Shirts and Drawers together with a good assortment of Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Doeskins and Vesting, which is sold by the yard, or made into garments at the very lowest cash prices.

Also, an assortment of Stocks, Neck-ties, Cravats, Scarfs Bosoms, Dickeys, Hdkfs. Suspenders, Socks, Wallets. Canes, Caps, Travelling Bags, &c., all of which will be sold at a small advance of the cost, at

EDWARDS'S,
june 28 14 Front street, Salem.

LIST OF LETTERS remaining in the Danvers Post Office, July 1st 1845.

Abbot Albert K.	Hatch Eliab
Adams Samuel	Labadory Mary A.
Bullock Isaac	Lyon Eunice
Barc Mary,	Lord Nathaniel
Burleigh Wm.	Merrill Hannah
Buzzel Oliver A.	McIntire Samuel L.
Barr Mary G.	Marshall Robert
Burk Mr. T.	Marden Emily J.
Brown George	McKenny Charles
Boynton Edmund	McKenna B.
Brown Samuel A.	Martin Eliza A.
Burding Wm.	Schygatt Comfort
Bullock Martha	Newhall H. F.
Clark Samuel	Otis John
Carter R. R.	Porter Ezra
Carlow & Flint	Putnam Harvey
Chase Nathaniel	Pool Eben
Dodge Luke	Porter Joseph
Damon F. H.	Proctor Sally W.
Duyer Ellen	Potter Charles
Danlin J.	Poor Eben'r
Donovan Daniel	Paul James S.
Dyer Benjamin	Roberts Caroline
Emerson Perley	Richardson Abijah
Ellis W. R.	Richardson Wm. B.
Farnum Mr.	Ripley Lewis
Farbrother Marsena S.	Ribbless Riley
Felton Wm. T.	Robbins Alexander
Fuller Elbridge	Romen John P.
Furbush Moses	Sanborn Nathaniel
Flint Mary	Sargent Betsy
Granville Stephen	Savage George
Gould Francis	Smith James P.
Gardner Henry	Swinerton A. P.
Gordon H. E.	Sherrock Eccles
Goodwin Thos. L.	Spaulding Levi
Gale Andrew J.	Symonds E. P.
Hall William	Southwick Maria
Ham Orpah	Tibbets Ichabod
Hill V. E.	Thatcher M. M.
Hyde Taylor	Varney Moses
Hanniford L. B.	Woodbury Addison
Hoyt Susan M.	Whittemore Charles
Hubbard George W.	Whitten Matilda
Haines Ruth A.	Welch Nancy
Hazelton T.	Wilson Malachi
Hutchinson Sarah	Winchester G. K.
Ham James

july 5

LIST OF LETTERS, remaining in the Post Office, at North Danvers, quarter ending July 1st, 1845.

Brewster Stephen B.	Kimball Obediah
Clark Wm. H.	Kenison Hiram B.
Clark Henrietta J.	Lord Samuel
Cross Samuel	Masury Lydia F.
Coffin Enoch	Osgood B. H. 2
Dade David B. 2	Proctor Charles A.
Dodge Mary B.	Page Eliza
Eames Nelson	Prescott Joseph 2
Fuller James	Scott Agnes, in the care of Mr. Putnam
Fuller Lydia	Pearl Joseph
Felker Oliver 3	Putnam Polly
Forbes Sophia E.	Shepard Charles
Goodwin Thomas	Shed Robert W.
Garland Edmund	Scribner Jeremiah
Ham Robert W.	Sheldon Sarah E.
Johnson John A.	Wheeler Alden 2
Josselyn Sally	Wilde G. A.
Johnson Alexander B.

Persons calling for the above named Letters will please mention that they are advertised.

jul y12 THOS. BOWEN, P. M.

Massachusetts Mechanic Association

HAVING AWARDED TO

GOVE, LOCKE & CO.,

and no one else, a DIPLOMA for specimens of

The Best Ready Made Clothing

Exhibited by them at the Mechanics' Fair in September last, must satisfy the community that the location of an establisment is of but little importance, and that the idea of being confined to a particular section of the city, in order to obtain a

GENTEEL GARMENT,

has been rendered obsolete, by the above named award, as without prejudice the award was made to those who deserved it Being convinced themselves, that their CUSTOM WORK has not been surpassed in any point of view, still they have been obliged to stem the current against the strongest prejudices, and have, by unremitted attention to the tastes and desires of their patrons, to a very considerable extent, overcome them, resulting in a successful trade, and encouraging them to prosecute the NEW ENGLAND BRANCH OF THEIR BUSINESS, with renewed vigor, and to devote a large share of their attention the present season, to the

Highest Grade of Custom Work!

Being now prepared with every facility adapted to the various classes in the community, they can furnish any style of Garment which their notion or fancy may dictate—aiming

In point of Style and Fashion,
to be in advance of any other

CLOTHING ESTABLISHMENT!

and being at all times supplied with materials of every description, they are prepared to turn out at the shortest notice

AS GOOD AND AS GENTEEL A GARMENT, as can be obtained in the United States, and have entire confidence in making the assertion, having Cutters constantly

ENGAGED ON CUSTOM WORK:

who are inferior to none in this region, enabling them to assure those who have favored them with their patronage, that no pains will be spared to deserve a continuance of their support—and to those who lack confidence in a Clothing Establishment, because it is situated on

COMMERCIAL STREET,

they would say that a specimen of their work can be seen in nearly everysection of the city, particularly on the backs of

THE MOST GENTEEL PEOPLE!

and to them they refer, in relation not only to the treatment which is universally tendered to them by all concerned in the

COMMERCIAL ARCADE!

but more especially in regard to the price as the Proprietors have by experience ascertained that they can furnish a

FIRST RATE GARMENT!

at a medium price, equal in every respect to those furnished up in town, at an exhorbitant one. Their Stock of Clothing, adapted to the

SPRING SALES!

is far superior to any previous year, and the patronage of the public is respectfully invited, whether in pursuit of a single garment or otherwise, as their stock embraces every article essential or requisite to the wardrobe of a gentleman, while its magnitude enables them to supply COUNTRY DEALERS in any quantity at the shortest notice, and on the best terms.

WHOLESALE DEALERS!

located any where from Maine to Georgia, or even in Texas, can find at this concern an assortment of Wearing Apparel adapted to their sales, and are invited before concluding their

SPRING PURCHASES!

—TO CALL—

At No. 60 Commercial street,
BOSTON,

Sign of the Monument,—and visit the proprietors of

COMMERCIAL ARCADE,
GOVE, LOCKE & COMPANY.
Boston, March 29, 1845 3m

STRIPED AND CHECK'D SHIRTS—A prime and good assortment, well made, at

june 14 EDWARDS, 14 Front St.

New Furniture Store.

SALEM FURNITURE & FEATHER WARE-HOUSE.

205 1-2 ESSEX STREET. 205 1-2

(Two Doors East from the Market,)

JOSEPH WALLIS would respectfully inform his friends and the public that he has taken the rooms recently occupied by T. Needham, Esq., where he will keep constantly on hand and for sale an extensive and well selected assortment of which he will sell at the lowest cash prices, among which may be found,

CABINET FURNITURE,

Sofas, Sofa Beds; Windlass, Cot Trundle and common Bedsteads; Secretaries; Bureaus; Mahogany Card, Work, Centre and Dining Tables;—Mahogany, Cane-seat and common Chairs; Mahogany, Cane back and common Rocking Chairs;—Children's Toy, Rocking and Dining Chairs; Settees and Settee Cradles; Cribs; Grecian and common Wash Stands; Portable Sinks; Portable and Gentleman's Writing Desks, Toilet, Dining and common Pine Tables; Looking Glasses; Swing and Toilet Glasses. Fancy Boxes, a great variety;—Mattresses; and every article usually found in his line of business.

CLOCKS.

J. W. intends keeping on hand a large and well selected assortment of Wood and Brass Clocks from the best of manufacturers—all of which we can feel confident in warranting. Those about purchasing this article will do well to call.

FEATHERS.

Live Geese and common Feathers; a great variety.

N B. J. W. will still continue to Manufacture FURNITURE at the Old Stand, No 29 Lafayette, corner of Ward street, where he will keep on hand a good assortment of

Cabinet Furniture, Feathers, Looking Glasses and Clocks.

Salem, April 12, 1845.

Periodical Depot!!

REMOVAL.

LUTHER CHANDLER, the Proprietor of the Depot for

PERIODICALS AND CHEAP PUBLICATIONS,

formerly kept at No.3, (on the East side of Washington street, has removed to the store,

Corner of Washington and Norman Streets,
(Directly opposite the Old Stand,)

where he intends to keep a full supply of all the Periodicals and New Works, as well as the Daily and Weekly Newspapers, as soon as they appear from the press.

In removing from the old stand he confidently hopes to receive the continued patronage of those who have formerly received his publications and he pledges himself that he will use his best exertions to procure all New Works promptly and sell them at the lowest prices.

His long experience and extensive acquaintance with those publishers and others engaged largely in the Book Trade will enable him to answer orders for particular Works, with great promptness, and at the most favorable prices.

REFRESHMENTS,

such as are usually kept at Restaurateurs, and SODA AND MEAD, will be furnished at the new stand, by S. SAUNDERS.

REMEMBER—Corner of Washington and Norman Sts., near the Railroad Station, Salem.

may 24 3m

NAUMKEAG SALOON.

No. 272 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.

THE subscriber would respectfully inform his friends and the public, that he has taken the above place, and will be constantly supplied with

Iced Cream, Soda, Mead, French Mineral Water, Fruit, Confectionary, &c. &c.

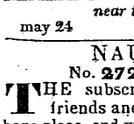
J. G. SHED.

 Parties supplied at short notice, and on reasonable terms. june 28

NEW LUMBER WHARF.

THE subscriber having taken the wharf, called the WEST wharf, near the Bridge, in South Salem, would take this opportunity to inform his friends and the public generally, that he intends to keep for sale an assortment of BOARDS, JOIST, CLAPBOARDS, SHINGLES, PICKETS, LATHS, etc. etc., of as good quality as can be found in the city.

He has now on hand 300,000 dry Boards and Plank for sale, and all wishing to purchase, are respectfully invited to call and examine for themselves.



He has also made arrangements at the Eastward for furnishing Dimension Frames, and filling orders of every description, at short notice.

Having been a practical builder for the last fifteen years, the subscriber flatters himself that his knowledge of the business, and the Lumber trade generally, will enable him to give satisfaction to those who may favor him with their patronage.

As he will be at the Eastward part of the time, he will be able to give his personal attention to the purchasing of Lumber, etc. He has made arrangements with Mr. A. F. CLARK to be on the wharf during business hours, who will wait upon those who may favor him with a call.

Salem, May 10, 1845. tf H. B. WARD.

House and Land for Sale.

The subscriber offers for sale a large two story Dwelling House, on Holton street, convenient for two families, and in good repair. The said house now rents for $120 per annum, and will be sold low.

Terms of sale will be easy for the purchaser, as a large part of the amount may remain on mortgage. Apply to

may 24 tf WM. SUTTON.

TO LET.

ROOMS in Lunt's Buildings, including two very pleasant Chambers, on the second story, under ASHLAND HALL. Also, a Basement Room, in the building occupied by Mr. Francis Dane well located for a provision dealer. Also, a large finished Chamber, in the third story of said building. For terms enquire at this Office.

june 28

FOR SALE.

A two story house and lot of land on Holton street. The House is convenient for two families and will be sold at a great bargain. Inquire of

HIRAM GRANT.

Danvers, April 19, 1845,

GRASS CLOTHS FOR SKIRTS.

JUST RECEIVED at 24 Washington street, a large lot Grass Cloths for Skirts, extra wide and clear. Also, Real India Feather Fans.

KEITH & MASON.

Purchasers of Linen Goods, will do well to examine the assortment of KEITH & MASON, 24 Washington street, consisting of Linen, Damasks, Table Covers, Napkins, Dahlias, Pillow-cane Linens, Linen Sheetings, Crash, diapers, Huckaback, Shirtings, and every quality of plain linens from 12 cents per yard to $1, 25.

N. B Every article warranted pure Irish Linen.

june 21

COAL, COAL.

PEACH MOUNTAIN R. A. COAL, from the Delaware Coal Company, a well known and superior article, of the various sizes.

White Ash SCHUYLKILL COAL, of various sizes, a prime article.

LEIGH COAL, a prime article for furnaces and stoves.

MIDLOTHIAN COAL, for Smith's use, a prime article.

Also—WOOD, BARK, LIME and HVY. For sale by

JOHN DIKE,
july 12 27 Water street.

REMOVAL.

SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN,

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN

Rich Jewelry and Fancy Goods,

HAVE removed to the New Store, No. 291 Essex street, (next above Mechanic Hall) where they will keep constantly for sale Gold Finger Rings, Breast Pins, Bracelets, Lockets, Keys, Gold and Silver Pencil Cases, Silver Thimbles, Silver and Plated Table and Tea Spoons, Butter Knives, Silver Plated and Brittania Ware, Shell, Horn, and Ivory Combs, Pocket Books, Purses, &c., &c.

N. B. All kinds of Jewelry repaired in a superior manner and warranted. Old Gold or Jewelry, made over or exchanged for new.

S. & C. having acquired a thorough knowledge of the business in New York, as well as our success for the past five years in this city, will, we feel assured, enable us to execute with approbation any orders entrusted to our care.

☞Thankful for past patronage, we solicit a continuance of the same. tf March 15.

CO-PARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

THE undersigned would inform their friends and the public, that they have formed a connection in business under the firm of

SHORT & LUMMUS,

and have taken the stand lately occupied by WILLIAM KIMBALL, No. 210 Essex street, Salem.

(Newly opposite the Market.)

where they will open this morning an entire new

STOCK OF DRY GOODS.

among which may be found Barage and Mohair SHAWLS, Mantles, Balzorines, Barages, French and Scotch Ginghams, Lawns, Alpaccas, M. de Laines, Black and Blue Black Alepines, Linens, Linen Drilling, Plain and Ribbed Gambroons, HOSIERY, GLOVES, etc.,

Together with a large assortment of

House-keeping, Lace and Thread Goods.

JOSEPH SHORT,
F. H. LUMMTS.

Salem, June 21. tf

REMOVAL,

JOHN U. ANABLE has removed to No. 8 Boston street, about one eighth of a mile east of his former stand, where he will give his attention to the

WHEELWRIGHT BUSINESS.

in all its various branches, which will be done in a faithful manner, and with despatch.

N. B J. U. A. feeling grateful for past patronage, invites the public in general, and friends (if he has any) to give him a call, 3m july 12

TO LET.

A convenient tenement for a small family, on the corner of Walnut and Fulton streets. For particulars enquire of

Danvers, July 12 SAMUEL TUCKER.

Improved Curtain Fixtures.

A NEW and beautiful article of Curtain Fixtures, of American Manufacture, far superior to those now in use, and not so likely to get out of order. For sale wholesale and retail at the manufacturer's prices, at the Hosiery and Glove Store, No. 236 Essex street, Salem, by

june 14 R. H. CHAMEERLAIN.

Great Bargains

ARE NOW BEING HAD AT THE

Washington Street Clothing Store, Salem

GARMENTS of all description may be obtained at prices which cannot fail to give entire satisfaction.

Great care has been taken in the getting up of every garment, all of which is warranted equal, if not superior to any Clothing in the city.

The subscriber continues to take measures as formerly, and all Garments bespoken, will be made according to the wishes of the customer, and will guarantee both the style and fit.

☞BOY WANTED, as an Apprentice.

S. CHAMBERLAIN, JR.

Salem, March, 15. tf

BENJAMIN EDWARDS,

DRAPER & TAILOR,

No. 14 FRONT STREET, SALEM.

GARMENTS Cut and Made to order, and Fashionably, and warranted to give entire satisfaction

Constantly on hand, a good assortment of

BROADCLOTHS, CASSIMERES, AND VESTINGS.

Also—Neck Stocks Italian Cravats, Scarfs, Shirt Bosoms, Collars, Feetings, Braces, Umbrellas, Hair and Clothes Brushes, Cologne Water, Wallets,

and other articles necessary for Gentlemen's use.

Grateful for the very liberal patronage which has heretofore been bestowed upon the establisment, he hopes by care and attention to business to merit a continuance.

Any order for Goods in the TAILORING LINE, attended to with fidelity and despatch.

All Garments Repaired and Cleansed CHEAP.

Any of the above articles if not on hand when called for, will be furnished at short notice.

mch 15 tf

REMOVAL.

POOLE & STEDMAN,

MAKERS OF

TRUNKS, HARNESSES, &c. AND COACH AND GIG TRIMMERS,

For the better accommodation of their customers, have taken the lower part of the shop recently occupied by Mr. Jonathan Ward,

No. 24 St. Peter Street.
SALEM.

Thankful for past patronage, a continuance of the same is solicited.

S. A. POOLE,
G. B. STEDMAN.

june 21, 1845.

DANVERS DYE HOUSE.

THE subscriber would inform the citizens of Danvers that he has established himself at Danvers Plains, near Maple street, where he will attend to the dyeing and cleansing all kinds of

SILK AND WOOLEN GOODS.

His former experience in England, added to his knowledge of the drugs and dyes in use in this country, will enable him to produce colors, which for cheapness and durability cannot be excelled by any other establishment.

☞Goods left at Mrs. Gould's, Main street South Danvers, or at the Dye House, will meet with prompt attention.

WILLIAM ROWBOTHAM.

Danvers Plains, June 7, 1845. tf

M. TELYEA

HAS a splendid assortment of BROADCLOTHS, DOESKINS, and VESTINGS, of the latest patterns, which are worthy the attention of purchasers.

GARMENTS CUT AND MADE, in the most fashionable style, or according to the fancy of the customer, and warranted to fit.

A lot of very nice SCARFS, and Gentlemen's LINEN GLOVES.

South Danvers, June 14, 1845.

GOLD PENS.—A most desirable article to write with, attached to which is an ever pointed pencil, at SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN'S, next above Mechanic Hall. july 12.

c

JOB PRINTING.

The subscriber being furnished with a beautiful assortment of modern type is prepared to execute all kinds of Job Printing promptly and as neat and cheap as at any other office in the state, viz:—

BOOKS AND PAMPHLETS,
BILLS OF LADING,
CHECKS, BLANKS,
SHOP BILLS, LABELS,
POSTERS, HANDBILLS,
CARDS, CIRCULARS, &c.

GEO. R. CARLTON,
Courier Office, Central St.,

☞RICHARD H. CHAMBERLAIN'S

Hosiery, Glove, Thread and Yarn Store,

No. 236 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.

R. H. C. respectfully gives notice to the citizens of Danvers, that he has now on hand, and is weekly receiving, a full and complete assortment of Spring and Summer Hosiery, the principal part of which are of DOMESTIC MANUFACTURE, and much superior in durability, to those imported. The following are some of the kinds, viz:—

LADIES'

Bleached, Unbleached, Mode, Slate, Black and Mixed Cotton HOSE.

Ribbed—black, mode, slate and white do do.

Open-worked—white, unbleached, and mode do do;

Raw Silk—black, white and mode do;

Woolen—Alpacca, Angola, Merino, Cashmere and Worsted do.

CHILDREN AND MISSES'

Hose, of every description, open-worked, silk-clocked, open and embroidered, plain and ribbed, of all colors and sizes;

MEN AND BOY'S SOCKS.

Merino, Angola, Worsted, Yarn, Cotton and Linen.

Ladies' Gent's Children's and Misses'

GLOVES, in great variety, comprising nearly 100 dozen of all kinds and sizes;

ALSO, AT COST.

The large STOCK of PIECE GOODS, in the above Store, will be offered at COST for THIRTY DAYS, among which are the following Goods, viz:—Mousseline de Laines; Balzorines; Lawns; Ginghams; Prints; Patches; Tickings; Flannels; Diapers; Crash; bleached, unbleached and col'd Table Covers; Linens; Linen Damasks; white and colored Cambrics; Lace Muslins; fig'd, striped and checked Cambrics; Alepines; Alpaccas; bleached and unbleached Sheetings and Shirtings; Shirts; Bosoms, Collars, Suspenders, Cravats, etc. tf

HARRISON'S REMEDY

FOR THE PILES.

THIS is an ointment prepared by the undersigned, and has been so thoroughly tested in so many different cases that I never hesitate to warrant relief to those who will give it a fair trial, observing the directions around each box which give a plain treatise on the disease and full instructions as to diet mode of cure, &c. One application at night never fails to relieve the greatest pain and anguish. I am ready to refer to numerous individuals who have proved this Remedy to be the safest, surest, speediest and cheapest

CURE FOR THE PILES.

My agent in Exeter writes thus: "the Pile Remedy which you left me is all sold, please send me soon a further supply, as a number of persons in this town think very highly of it. N. GILMAN"

MORE TESTIMONY.

Salem, Aug. 6. Mr. Harrison: The box of ointment which I had from you has worked like a charm—I have used it only one night, and I am cured I had used Hays' Liniment as I stated to you, with no benefit but rather was worse, it causing more inflammation. Yrs, J. W.

BLEEDING PILES CURED,

Mr. Harrison—Having given your Peristaltic Lozenges and Pile Remedy a fair trial, I have the satisfaction to inform you that they have operated wonderfully in my case. I had not been able for months to do any work at my trade, owing to exhaustion from bleeding, but I now feel myself cured. The severe pain which I had in my stomach is gone, and my strength is fast returning. I had used various remedies to no purpose, until I tried your medicine. I can also state that Capt. Benj. Ireson of this town has also experienced great benefit from your Remedy. I cheerfully recommend the medicine to all suffering with that distressing complaint—the Piles.

EDWARD H. LEWIS.

Lynn, Sept. 27, 1844.

For sale at 256 Essex street, by the Proprietor,

J. S. HARRISON JR.,

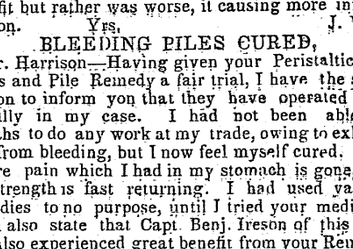
Agents—in Danvers, S. PROCTOR, Jr.; Marblehead—E. Arnold; Lynn—Ladd, and Holder; Beverly—Clarke; Newburyport—C. Whipple; Andover—Amos Abbott; Topsfield—Bixby and Merriam; Haverhill—Nichol; Boston—Ransom & Stevens, Tompkins, Southers and Fowle.

mch 15 6m

Flour, Corn, Oats, Shorts, &c.

Landing from schr Pioneer,

200 BARRELS Genesee Flour;
20 1-2 do do do
500 bushels Mealing Corn;
500 do Yellow do
500 do Shorts;
20 bbls Pea Beans;
4 bbls Marrowfat Peas;
100 bags Fine Salt;



—Also, in store—

100 bushels Killam Oats, for seed;
100 do Herds Grass Seed;
100 do Red Top do do;
500 do Clover do; (Northern;

For sale by DANIEL RICHARDS,

At the old and well known stand on the Plains.

North Danvers, April 19, 1845.

EASY SHAVING AND HAIR CUTTING.

B. B. WILLIAMS respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has removed to the store formerly occupied by Lambert & Merrill, (under the Courier Office,) which he has fitted up in a neat manner, and is now prepared to wait upon those who believe that

"Man wants but little beard below,
Nor wants that little long,"

Champooing, Hair Cutting and Shaving is performed to the satisfaction of all who may favor him with their patronage.

Danvers, March 15, 1845. tf

GOLD BREAST PINS. A beautiful assortment of Ladies' Breast Pins, just manufactured at SMITH & CHAMBERLAIN'S 291 Essex street, and selling low, next above Mechanic Hall. july 12

TOPOGRAPHICAL MAP OF PALESTINE by J. H. Colton. Compiled principally from the observations of Messrs Robinson and Smith. The religious Press and many of the secular papers have spoken in high terms of this map. For sale by G. W. & E. CRAFTS.

174 Essex St. Salem.

DRUGS AND MEDICINES.

A GOOD assortment of Drugs, Medicines usually kept in a Druggist Shop, constantly for sale a the lowest prices, by

DR. JOSEPH SHED, (Ag't.)
(OPPOSITE THE MONUMENT,)

And a variety of Patent Medicine, consisting of Brincerhoff's Health Restorative; Buchan's Hungarian Balsam; Schenck's Pulmonary Balsam; Trufant's Compound; Dandelion and Tomato Bitters; Davis' Compound Tooth Wash; Harrison's Peristaltic, and Worm Lozenges; Thompson's Eye Water; Warren's Croup Syrup; Whitwell's Opodeldock; Different inds of Pulmonary Balsams, and genuine Thomsonian Medicines; Jew David's or Hebrew Plaster; also, Brandreth s, Indian Vegetable, Bec with s, Lees' Dean s, Parr s, Richardson s, Relf's Asthmatic, and a variety of other Pills. Candies, Nuts, Almonds, Citron, Currants, Nutmegs, Mace, Cloves, etc. Particular attention to Physician's Recipes.

Danvers, May 31, 1845.

Opening of Spring!

Magnificent, Chaste and Original Designs for Remodeling

"OAK HALL!"

FOR SPRING TRADE!

OPENING OF "OAK HALL" FOR THREE MONTHS!

Advice to Professional Men, Merchants. Clerks with moderate Salaries, Farmers, Mechanics, Seamen, Firemen and others, VISIT OAK HALL!

ARRIVAL OF SPRING GOODS!
To Wholesale Dealers.

THE OPENING

This Morning, for Three Months!

